S.F.T.S
LIBRARY

THE
BOOK REVIEW DIGEST

FORTY-SIXTH ANNUAL CUMULATION

MARCH 1950 TO FEBRUARY 1951 INCLUSIVE

EDITED BY MERTICE M. JAMES
AND DOROTHY BROWN

Property of Graduate Theological Union
Return to San Francisco Theological Seminary

NEW YORK
THE H. W. WILSON COMPANY
1951

Published 1951
Printed in the United States of America

Publications from which Digests of Reviews are made

Am Anthropol—American Anthropologist. $6. American Anthropological Association, 13 E. 71st St, New York 21

Am Chem Soc J—Journal of the American Chemical Society. $10. American Chemical Society, 1155 16th St, NW, Washington 6, D.C.

Am Econ R—American Economic Review. Paul T. Homan, managing ed. $6; $5 to members. American Economic Assn, Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill.

Am Hist R—American Historical Review. Guy Stanton Ford, managing ed. $6; $5 to members of the American Historical Assn. Macmillan Co, 60 Fifth Av, New York 11

Am J Pub Health—American Journal of Public Health and The Nation's Health. C.-E. A. Winslow, ed. $7. American Public Health Assn, 1790 Broadway, New York 19

Am J Soc—American Journal of Sociology. Herbert Blumer, ed. $6. University of Chicago Press, 5750 Ellis Av, Chicago 37

Am Pol Sci R—American Political Science Review. Frederic A. Ogg, managing ed. $6.60; free to members. American Political Science Assn, 450-458 Ahnaip St, Menasha, Wis.

Am Soc R—American Sociological Review. $5 (membership dues including subscription $8) American Sociological Society, 450 Ahnaip St, Menasha, Wis.

Ann Am Acad—Annals of the American Academy of Political and Social Science. Thorsten Sellin, ed. $5; free to members. American Academy of Political and Social Science, 3817 Spruce St, Philadelphia 4

Atlantic—Atlantic Monthly. $6. Atlantic Monthly Co, 8 Arlington St, Boston 16

Booklist—Booklist. $5. American Library Assn, 50 E Huron St, Chicago 11

Bookmark—Bookmark. $1. New York State Library. University of the State of New York press, Albany 1

Canadian Forum—Canadian Forum. $3. Canadian Forum, Ltd, 16 Huntley St, Toronto 5

Canadian Hist R—Canadian Historical Review. $3. University of Toronto Press, Toronto 5

Cath World—Catholic World. John B. Sheerin, ed. $4 Missionary Society of St Paul the Apostle, 411 W 59th St, New York 19

Chem & Eng N—Chemical and Engineering News. $4. American Chemical Society, 1155 16th St, NW, Washington 6, D.C.

Chem Eng—Chemical Engineering with Chemical and Metallurgical Engineering. $3. McGraw-Hill Pub. Co. Inc. 330 W. 42d St, New York 18

Chicago Sun—Chicago Sun-Times, $14.40. Chicago Sun-Times, 400 W Madison St, Chicago 6, Ill.

Chicago Sunday Tribune—Chicago Sunday Tribune, Chicago, Ill.

Christian Century—Christian Century. Paul Hutchinson, ed. $6. Christian Century Foundation, 407 S Dearborn St, Chicago 5

Christian Science Monitor (Atlantic ed)—Christian Science Monitor. $15. Christian Science Publishing Society, 1 Norway St, Boston 15

Churchman—Churchman. Guy Emery Shipler ed. $5. The Churchman Company, 425 Fourth Av, New York 16

Commonweal—Commonweal. Edward S. Skillin and Philip Burnham, eds. $7. Commonweal Pub. Co, Inc, 386 Fourth Av, New York 16

Crozer Q—Crozer Quarterly. $2.50. Crozer Theological Seminary, Chester, Pa.

Current Hist—Current History. D. G. Redmond, ed. $4. Events Pub. Co, Inc, 108-10 Walnut St, Philadelphia 6

El School J—Elementary School Journal. R. W. Tyler and others, eds. $4.50. Dept. of Education Publications, University of Chicago Press, 5750 Ellis Av, Chicago 37

Eng N—Engineering News-Record. $6. McGraw-Hill Publishing Co, Inc, 330 W 42d St, New York 18

Ethics—Ethics. $6. University of Chicago Press, 5750 Ellis Av, Chicago 37

Foreign Affairs—Foreign Affairs. Hamilton Fish Armstrong, ed. $6. Council on Foreign Relations, Inc, 58 E 68th St, New York 21

Geog R—Geographical Review. $5. American Geographical Society, Broadway & 156th St, New York 32

Hibbert J—Hibbert Journal. George Allen & Unwin, Ltd, 40 Museum St, London WC 1 ($3.50. Leroy Phillips, 569 Boylston st, Boston 16)

Horn Bk—Horn Book. Bertha E. Mahony Miller, ed. $3. Horn Book, Inc, 248 Boylston St, Boston 16

J Geol—Journal of Geology. $6. University of Chicago Press, 5750 Ellis Av, Chicago 37

J Home Econ—Journal of Home Economics. Lillian L. Steckman, ed. $5. American Home Economics Assn, 700 Victor Bldg, Washington 1, D.C.

J Philos—Journal of Philosophy. $5. Journal of Philosophy, Inc, 515 W 116th St, New York 27

J Pol Econ—Journal of Political Economy. Earl J. Hamilton and others, eds. $6. University of Chicago Press, 5750 Ellis Av, Chicago 37

J Religion—Journal of Religion. $6. University of Chicago Press, 5750 Ellis Av, Chicago 37

Kirkus—Bulletin from Virginia Kirkus' Bookshop Service. Service basis, 38 Bank St, New York

Library J—Library Journal, Karl Brown, ed. $6. R. R. Bowker Co, 62 W 45th St, New York 19

Library Q—Library Quarterly. $6. University of Chicago Press, 5750 Ellis Av, Chicago 37

Management R—Management Review. M. J. Dooher, ed. $6. American Management Assn, 330 W 42d St, New York 18

Manchester Guardian—Manchester Guardian. 91s. Manchester Guardian and Evening News, Ltd, 3 Cross St, Manchester; Guardian Newspapers, Inc, 53 East 51st St, New York 22

Mod Philol—Modern Philology. $6. University of Chicago Press, 5750 Ellis Av, Chicago 37

Music Lib. Assn. Notes—Music Library Association, Inc. Richard S. Hill, ed. $3. Music Library Association, Inc., Library of Congress, Washington 25, D.C.

Nation—Nation. Freda Kirchwey, ed. $7. Nation Associates, Inc, 20 Vesey St, New York 7

New Eng Q—New England Quarterly. $4. H. Brown, Hubbard Hall, Brunswick, Me.

New Repub—New Republic. Michael Straight. ed. $6.50. Editorial Publications, Inc, 40 E 49th St, New York 17

New Statesman & Nation—New Statesman and Nation. 32s 6d New Statesman & Nation pub. co. 10 Great Turnstile, London, WC 1 ($7 International News Co, 131 Varick St, New York 13)

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R—New York Herald Tribune Book Review. $2.50. N Y Herald Tribune, Inc. Publisher, 230 W 41st St, New York

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R. See N Y Herald Tribune Bk R

N Y New Tech Bks—New Technical Books. $1.50 N Y Public Library, Fifth Av & 42d St, New York

N Y Times—New York Times Book Review. $3. N Y Times Co, Pub, 229 W 43d St, New York 18

New Yorker—New Yorker. $7. The New Yorker Magazine, Inc. 25 W 43d St, New York 18

Pacific Affairs—Pacific Affairs. $4. Institute of Pacific Relations, 1 East 54th St, New York 22

Poetry—Poetry. Marion Strobel [and others] eds. $5. Modern Poetry Assn, 232 E Erie St, Chicago 11

Pol Sci Q—Political Science Quarterly. John A. Krout, managing ed. $6; free to members. Academy of Political Science, Columbia University, New York 27

San Francisco Chronicle—San Francisco Chronicle. P. C. Smith, ed. $21. Chronicle Pub Co, 901 Mission St, San Francisco 19

Sat R of Lit—Saturday Review of Literature. Norman Cousins, ed. $6. Saturday Review Associates, Inc, 25 W 45th St, New York 19

School & Society—School and Society. $7. Society for the Advancement of Education, Inc, 15 Amsterdam Av, New York 23

School Arts—School Arts. Pedro deLemos, ed. $4. The Davis Press, Inc, Worcester 8, Mass.

School R—School Review. R. W. Tyler and others, eds. $4.50. University of Chicago Press, 5750 Ellis Av, Chicago 37

Social Educ—Social Education. L. P. Todd, ed. $3. National Council for the Social Studies, 1201 Sixteenth St, NW, Washington 6, D.C.

Social Forces—Social Forces. $5. Williams & Wilkins Co, Baltimore 2

Social Studies—Social Studies. Leonard B. Irwin, ed. $3. McKinley Publishing Co, 809-811 N 19th St, Philadelphia

Special Libraries—Special Libraries. $7. Special Libraries Assn, 31 East Tenth St, New York 3

Spec—Spectator. 30s. The Spectator, Ltd, 99 Gower St, London, WC 1 ($7. International News Co, 131 Varick St, New York 13)

Springf'd Republican—Springfield Republican. $5. Republican pub. co, 32 Cypress St, Springfield, Mass.

Subscription Bks Bul—Subscription Books Bulletin. $2.50. American Library Assn, 50 E Huron St, Chicago 11

Survey—Survey, Paul Kellogg, ed. $5. Survey Associates, Inc, 112 E 19th St, New York 3

Theatre Arts—Theatre Arts. Charles MacArthur, ed. $5. Stage Publications, Inc, 130 West 56th, St, New York 19

Time—Time. T. S. Matthews, ed. $6. Time, Inc, 540 N. Michigan Av, Chicago 11

Times [London] Lit Sup—Times Literary Supplement. 19s 6d. Times Publishing Co. Ltd, Printing House Square, London, E.C. 4; $4.15. The Times (London), North American Office, 640 Fifth Ave, New York 19

U S Quarterly Bkl—United States Quarterly Book List. Joseph P. Blickensderfer, ed $3.75. The Rutgers Univ. Press, New Brunswick, N.J.

Wis Lib Bul—Wisconsin Library Bulletin. $1. Wisconsin Library Bulletin, Madison, Wis.

Yale R n s—Yale Review. David M. Potter, ed. $3.50. Yale Review. 143 Elm St, New Haven 7, Conn.

In addition to the above list the Book Review Digest sometimes quotes from Cleveland Open Shelf; Columbia Law Review; Harvard Law Review; Publishers' Weekly; Review of Scientific Instruments; Yale Law Journal; and other bulletins and papers.

Explanations

The descriptive note is separated from critical notices of a book by a dash.

The plus and minus signs preceding the name of the magazine indicate the degree of favor or disfavor of the entire review.

In reference to a magazine, the first number refers to the volume, the next to the page, the letters to the date and the last figure to the number of words in the review.

Publishers' Directory will be found at the end of this volume.

Book Review Digest

Devoted to the Valuation of Current Literature

Cumulation of monthly numbers March 1950—February 1951

ABBOTT, IRA HERBERT, and DOENHOFF, ALBERT EDWARD VON. Theory of wing sections; including a summary of airfoil data. 693p il $15 McGraw

629.134323 Aerodynamics. Airfoils 49-50224

"The purpose of this text is to present concisely the most useful aerodynamic theories of wing sections together with a comprehensive summary of experimental results. The material presented is largely the result of research conducted by the NACA over the last several years." (Publisher's note) Index.

N Y New Tech Bks 35:1 Ja '50

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:244 Je '50 250w

ABBOTT, JANE LUDLOW (DRAKE) (MRS FRANK ABBOTT). River's rim. 254p $2.75 Lippincott.

50-6057

Historical novel of the Niagara country during the war of 1812. Its hero is Quint Darby, a loyal American who suffers under a cloud of suspicion because his father and brother were British sympathizers.

Reviewed by Warren Abbott
Chicago Sunday Tribune p17 Mr 26 '50 100w

"Jane Abbott keeps the war so remote that the reader cares little what it does to her characters. Nor is the fiction much like life. The good live, the bad die, the fit mate." Mary Johnston
— N Y Times p33 Ap 30 '50 100w

ABBOTT, KARL P. Open for the season. 278p $3 Doubleday

B or 92 Hotels, taverns, etc. 50-6173

Reminiscences of an American hotel man, who with his father before him, completed the 130th consecutive season of their resort-hotel management in 1949.

Booklist 46:229 Mr 15 '50

Bookmark 9:181 My '50 50w

"Whether or not you like living in a hotel, or have spent much time there, you will find this is a fascinating tale of what happens behind the doors of a resort hotel when it is 'Open for Business.'" Alice Musholt
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ap 2 '50 300w

"This is a downright entertaining, very well-written, juicy book and you won't need any Mrs. Post to make you a mannerly hotel guest if you read this book about the tourist business and how American folks behave en route." E. E.
+ Commonweal 51:589 Mr 10 '50 260w

Kirkus 18:19 Ja 1 '50 150w

"A lively, relaxed, New England flavored autobiography."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p24 Mr 26 '50 180w

"There's slim chance of this book zooming across best-seller charts. It solves no world problems. It postulates no grave social questions. It is simply an engaging, anecdotal, autobiographical account of the resort hotel business. Those who pick it up will have plenty of chuckles." S. T. Williamson
+ N Y Times p6 Mr 19 '50 700w

San Francisco Chronicle p20 Je 11 '50 150w

"If and when this story is made over into a stage play or movie this reviewer will be willing to stand in line for an opportunity to see it. It seems to have great possibilities along both lines." R. T.
+ Springf'd Republican p8C Mr 26 '50 850w

Wis Lib Bul 46:16 Ap '50

ABBOTT, MABEL. Life of William T. Davis. 321p il $3.50 Cornell univ. press

B or 92 Davis, William Thompson 49-11768

"As with Henry Thoreau of Concord and Gilbert White of Selbourne, Willie Davis . . . found what he sought almost at his doorstep. Staten Island, his birthplace, five miles from the heart of New York, was his treasure ground. Willie Davis trod the cowpaths, combed woods, swamps and beaches, climbed trees, waded in brooks, searched beneath logs and stones and made a record of his spoil. . . He was 'poorly put together,' he said, and ill health pursued him, but he chalked up 83 years and fulfilled his mission—to 'abide on earth as an observing animal.' . . The little museum of the Staten Island Institute of Arts and Sciences is a monument to Mr. Davis. His biographer is the museum's literary curator, and few details escape her." (N Y Times) List of the published works of William T. Davis. Index.

"Miss Abbott draws heavily on the journal and presents many quotations—perhaps too many—but she builds up a striking portrait of the gentle philosopher and scientist whose eccentricities were clothed with humor." W. B. Hayward
+ N Y Times p6 D 4 '49 450w

"This portrait of Davis shows him to have been an unusual person combining within himself the crowning traits of humor, modesty, vitality, generosity, and a certain charming eccentricity. It is no wonder, then, that he had so many friends from all walks of life, or that his biography, while claiming no literary distinction, is so genuine and engaging a document. It should be of interest to a wide audience but especially to students and amateurs of natural and local history."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:36 Mr '50 260w

ABEL, RUTH, and ABEL, RAY. New sitter. [32p] il $2 Oxford

50-9464

Picture story book about a small brother and sister who are anticipating the arrival of a new sitter, because their father and mother are going out. The sitter comes and the children are very happy, because she is an ideal person to be with children.

"Every child who has ever had a sitter will enjoy this story." A. L. Shea
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 O 15 '50 60w

"Disappointing in flatness of story and illustration."
— Kirkus 18:509 S 1 '50 90w

"Gay pictures and a nice sense of security. Recommended for 4-6-year-olds." F. W. Butler
+ Library J 75:1909 N 1 '50 40w

"Perfectly delightful." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 N 12 '50 50w

ABELES, PAUL WILLIAM. Principles and practice of prestressed concrete. 112p il $3.75 Ungar

693.5 Concrete [49-27840]

"The prestressing of reinforced concrete is a building technique which is becoming increasingly important to engineers who are concerned with the design of such structures as concrete bridges and concrete buildings. There have been numerous articles published on the subject, but very few books; hence this authoritative discussion of principles and practical techniques should be useful in all libraries which have active collections on civil engineering. It is based on a series of articles that appeared in Civil Engineering and Public Works Review; but the text of the book differs somewhat from the articles." (Library J) Bibliography. Indexes.

Booklist 46:256 Ap 15 '50

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 75:108 Ja 15 '50 140w

ABEND, HALLETT. Half slave, half free; this divided world. 304p $3 Bobbs

940.55 International relations. World politics 50-5755

"Two years before the Civil War broke out in the United States, Abraham Lincoln said that the American Government could not long endure half slave, half free. Today, Mr. Abend, former New York Times correspondent in the Far East, has taken Lincoln's phrase for the title of a thought-provoking book that points a parallel between conditions in a United States divided into North and South in 1858 and a world divided into East and West in 1950. Mr. Abend is convinced that the slavery that follows in communism's wake is certain to bring it into early conflict with the fundamental freedom instinct of the western powers. It is, he feels, as inevitable as the Japanese attack on China in 1937. . . To make his case, the writer outlines the high points of Communist progress and power throughout the world." (Christian Science Monitor) Index.

Booklist 46:230 Mr 15 '50

"In covering such a vast topic and area his treatment at times is necessarily sketchy and fragmentized. In spots it becomes a rehash of recent news developments and trends. It is when Mr. Abend gets to the Far East that the book really hits its stride. That is the author's home territory—and his sketches, country by country, begin to take on substance and clarity." H. S. Hayward
+ — Christian Science Monitor p14 F 24 '50 600w

"This is a depressing book. Mr. Abend does not attempt to sugar coat his disdain for many United States policymakers. . . He is obviously in no mood to spare basic facts to make room for anecdotal illustrations; so this is stern stuff, and demanding reading which does not compromise with reader lethargy. . . Mr. Abend finds that the United States has, unsought, achieved world leadership, he obviously does not think it is making a good job of it." Martin Ebon
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 Mr 5 '50 380w

"This is an honest, well-written and highly useful book on the most important political issues of our days." D. J. Dallin
+ N Y Times p12 Mr 26 '50 700w

"The author, one of the best informed of the American newspapermen who are concerned with Far Eastern politics, is in a partly despairing, partly angry mood in this book. . . He does not give any very concrete answers, but he does furnish some hard and intelligent explanations of why the methods we are now employing to defend what is ours and to maintain freedom in the still unaffected parts of the globe are inadequate at best and dangerous at worst. His book should deflate any complacency an American might have in regard to the current struggle for the world."
New Yorker 26:104 Mr 11 '50 160w

San Francisco Chronicle p29 Ap 23 '50 450w

Reviewed by J. M. Minifie
Sat R of Lit 33:16 Ap 8 '50 750w

ABRAHAM, GERALD ERNEST HEAL, ed. Grieg; a symposium [by Gerik Schjelderup, and others]. 144,40p music $3 Univ. of Okla press

780.92 Grieg, Edvard Hagerup 50-6968

"A symposium in nine chapters, with preface by its editor, Gerald Abraham, bibliography, complete chronological list of works, and 104 musical examples." (Sat R of Lit) Partial contents: The orchestral music, by Hubert Foss; The chamber music, by Alan Frank; Choral music, by Edmund Rubbra; The piano music, by Kathleen Dale; The songs, by Astra Desmond.

"The book well warrants its American reincarnation. Contributes excellent critical and bibliographical materials to a corner of the field heretofore all too sketchily covered in English. Astra Desmond's chapter on the songs, for example, should be an eye-opener to most." C. K. Miller
+ Library J 75:866 My 15 '50 130w

"The Symposium has no index, but closes with a useful list, more complete than any heretofore compiled, of Grieg's works, and a valuable section of 102 judiciously selected musical examples. The bibliography is convenient and up-to-date. The technical analyst will find much to ponder upon in Gerald Abraham's exhaustive comparative study of the original and the final versions, rich in instructive disparities, of the orchestration of the piano concerto." Elio Gianturco
+ Music Lib Assn Notes 7:574 S '50 1600w

San Francisco Chronicle p12 Ag 27 '50 70w

'Welcome is the appearance of a complete study of the work of one of the greatest of lyric composers, too long neglected—Edvard Grieg. . . Despite the obvious limitations of his orchestral and chamber-music works he is great in music, as Housman, for example, is in poetry, not by the scope and wide-ranging power of a Beethoven or a Milton but by the magical and unique beauty of brief piano pieces and incomparable songs." D. G. Mason
+ Sat R Lit 33:15 Ag 26 '50 600w

ABRAHAM LINCOLN, by some men who knew him; being personal recollections of Owen T. Reeves [and others] with introd. by Isaac N. Phillips; ed. with notes and foreword by Paul M. Angle. ltd ed 123p $7.50 Americana house

B or 92 Lincoln, Abraham 50-5983

A new edition of a book first published in 1911 to mark the 100th anniversary of Lincoln's birth (1909). It is composed of reminiscences of Lincoln by five men, then living, who had known Lincoln: Judge Owen T.

Reeves, Honorable James E. Ewing, Colonel Richard P. Morgan, Judge Franklin Blades, John W. Bunn. Index.

"The small volume . . . has been called a classic and in recent years has become a rare book." Vincent Starrett
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 F 12 '50 220w

"This reprint of a 40 year old book belongs in every Lincoln collection and its value is enhanced with able editing and footnotes by Paul M. Angle." Jay Monaghan
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 F 19 '50 350w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p17 Ap 9 '50 110w

"The restoration to print of this sensible experiment in biographical exploration was an undertaking well worth the doing." J. T. Winterich
+ Sat R of Lit 33:13 Ap 8 '50 230w

ABRAHAMS, DORIS CAROLINE (CARYL BRAHMS, pseud), and SKIDELSKY, SIMON JASHA. No bed for Bacon. 241p $3 Crowell

Shakespeare in fiction, drama, poetry, etc. 50-5387

A novel of life in London, in the theater, and at court during the time of Queen Elizabeth. It is the author's idea that Shakespeare not only wrote his own plays, but did some of Bacon's writing too. The Queen, Will Shakespeare, Raleigh, and all the high-ranking personages of court and stage are characters.

"You could read 'No Bed for Bacon' as an irreverent lampoon, and still have fun, provided it did not hurt your romantic sensibilities. But tho the fun it creates is the principal objective of its authors, it probably comes a whole lot closer to the spirit of the Elizabethan age than some of the historical tomes written in a more sanctified mood." Kelsey Guilfoil
+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 F 26 '50 450w

"A smooth tissue of fabrication on a light framework of fact makes 'No bed for Bacon' a tantalizing spoof at Elizabethan history. For the British readers especially, almost every page ought to bring up some impression from the textbooks. Others may wind up downright bored and perhaps just a little uncertain as to what is true and what is Caryl Brahms and S. J. Simon." Rod Nordell
Christian Science Monitor p12 F 28 '50 300w

"Broad humor here, but at a smart pace and, though not important, entertaining."
Kirkus 17:674 D 15 '49 130w

Reviewed by George Freedley
Library J 75:405 Mr 1 '50 40w

"The idea is more to be applauded than the execution. As reported here, the best brains of the day were far from sparkling in repartee, and their only memorable quips are those you find embedded in their literary remains."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 F 12 '50 230w

"What the authors have actually accomplished is the sort of thing usually done as a Christmas show by undergraduates of limited imagination. Though the book is very tiresome, it contains one or two faintly amusing notions, such as the theory that Shakespeare not only wrote Shakespeare but also wrote Bacon. Recast as a one-act play for amateurs it might be acceptable. But in novel form it is an intolerable bore. 'No Bed for Bacon,' unfortunately, is nothing to laugh at." T. Q. Curtiss
— + N Y Times p26 F 12 '50 380w

"'No Bed for Bacon,' . . . on its dedication-page bears the warning 'This Book Is Fundamentally Unsound.' Nevertheless it's a lot of fun, which is what its authors meant it to be. . . In spite of the fact that this book is a piece of hilarious kidding throughout, the playwright is the most likely figure of the lot. Indeed, I'd much rather believe he was something like the man the authors make him than the kind of fellow a lot of the scholars would prefer him to be." J. H. Jackson
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p18 F 9 '50 950w

"The notion of rewriting history as farce is mildly diverting for no more than sixty pages—no, no more than fifty, but after that it becomes singularly uninventive and tedious. In fact, it reminds me of nothing so much as the plot of a musical comedy destined to perish in New Haven." Lee Rogow
— Sat R of Lit 33:16 Ap 1 '50 220w

Wis Lib Bul p23 Mr '50

ABRAHAMS, HENRY B. (B. A. HENRY, pseud). Alive in the brown stone-age. 198p $2.50 Dutton

818 New York (city)—Social life and customs 50-7321

Sketches describing life in a household of wealthy German-Americans living on East Eighty-first street, New York city. Chapters are prefaced by newspaper clippings of the period (1910).

"These are rich, colorful memories of an era no youngster of today ever will know; but for the older folk they will bring nostalgic sighs." R. L. Blakesley
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Je 25 '50 250w

"Evanescent episodes, these have not the vitality of previous, similar books and rely, for their appeal, on the picture of German-American upper middle class life in a time gone by."
Kirkus 18:162 Mr 1 '50 170w

"You can read this story of No. 57 East Eighty-first Street—in the heart of what is now called Yorkville—at one sitting, and you will do so with absorption and delight." Lisle Bell
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p13 Ap 30 '50 500w

"This series of episodes is as ridden with poorly placed cliches as a whatnot is full of knickknacks. The clippings from The New York Times are infinitely more amusing." Gilbert Millstein
— N Y Times p24 My 14 '50 130w

"In a series of 14 beautifully written sketches, Mr. Henry relates family incidents which epitomize what it was like to be alive in the Brown-Stone Age. Those who were will find nostalgic pleasure in mentions of bolivars and Point d'Arabe lace curtains, Parran Delauney-Bellevilles and servants' balls. Readers whose experience is briefer will find the book enjoyable too. Mr. Henry writes with humor, wit, sensitivity and delicacy. He is never trite, never sentimental." Ruth Leiser
+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 My 26 '50 400w

ABRAHAMS, PETER. Wild conquest. 309p $3 Harper

50-7364

This historical novel of South Africa in the 1830s presents both sides of the story—why the Boers went on the Great Trek to the north, why the Africans resented their intrusion and attempted to stop them.

Booklist 46:303 Je 1 '50

"Not since Cloete's The Turning Wheels have I read as vigorous a story of the great Boer trek as this one."
+ Kirkus 18:183 Mr 15 '50 220w

Reviewed by Jean Garrigue
New Repub 122:21 Je 26 '50 70w

"Mr. Abrahams's sincerity is marked and goes far to redeem his somewhat inadequate prose. He has written an honest book that throws light on one of the most pressing problems of our day." J. M. Morse
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 My 14 '50 370w

"This reviewer has read many accounts, factual and fictional, of that historical migration, which, more than anything else, has made of the Afrikaner what he is today. 'Wild

ABRAHAMS, PETER—Continued
Conquest' differs from all of them in one significant respect: Peter Abrahams is not a white man, and he does not treat of the Trek through the eyes of a white man. The result is an interpretation more rounded, more just, and immensely more dramatic of a movement fully comparable with the covered-wagon conquest of the American West." John Barkham
+ N Y Times p4 Ap 30 '50 420w

"His characters look and sound the way they should, but they seem to be frozen into place, like people in a historical pageant, who live and breathe and feel but are forbidden to move about."
+ — New Yorker 26:109 My 27 '50 90w

"In this day of vicious racial persecution in South Africa, which makes the excesses of American bigots seem mild in comparison, the novel is particularly meaningful as a work of social protest. Yet there is a certain amorphousness in the pronouncements of Mr. Abrahams' philosophers, and probably because the characters themselves are not quite fully formed." Allan Temko
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p11 Jl 9 '50 700w

"A large portion of the book is given to the natives, their loving, their war talk, their superstitions and customs. . . Sometimes Mr. Abrahams's natives sound like old Vikings, sometimes like the great speechmakers among the American Indians. Again one catches a flavor of what might have been the speech of the Elizabethan explorers. This probably adds a sense of universality and color to the narrative, but one wearies at times with the constant concern with sex and war couched in such flamboyant terms. . . [However] 'Wild Conquest' is a thrilling story, as any good saga of conquest should be. Its well-drawn characters and its exotic setting alone would make it entertaining, but Peter Abrahams's feeling for the tremendous and more delicate nuances of human emotion make it a novel of lasting quality." C. N. Govan
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:21 Je 17 '50 550w

"For all its lopsided plot and sketchy characterization, Author Abrahams' discovery of profound trails of meaning in the tragic Boer trek makes Wild Conquest outstanding in the year's crop of historical novels."
+ Time 55:98 My 8 '50 550w

ACHINSTEIN, ASHER. Introduction to business cycles. 496p $4 Crowell

338.54 Business cycles 50-5754

"Wars, depressions, and postwar problems have not only shattered the optimism of even the American general public, but have also shaken academic economists to the depths of, and often out of, their intellectual grooves. Such periods of great turbulence are frequently accompanied by considerable intellectual ferment; there is plenty of evidence of this in recent economic literature; these are analyzed here." (School & Society) Bibliographical footnotes. Index.

"Interesting and well-presented critical and comparative examination." J. E. Cross
+ Library J 75:984 Je 1 '50 70w

School & Society 71:94 F 11 '50 90w

"Introduction to Business Cycles is one of the most complete books that has been written on this subject and can be considered scholarly in all respects and a masterpiece in research work." D. W. Harr
+ Social Studies 41:374 D '50 160w

ACKER, HELEN (MRS ARTHUR B. ANDERSON). Five sons of Italy; jacket by Richard Floethe. 191p $2.25 Nelson

920.045 50-8995

Brief biographies of five famous Italians: Leonardo Da Vinci; Michelangelo Buonnarroti; Galileo Galilei; Nicolo Paganini; Giuseppe Verdi. For ages ten to fourteen. Bibliography.

Booklist 47:46 S 15 '50

"This absorbing set of short biografies gives tantalizing glimpses of five of Italy's foremost heroes and should send 10 to 14 years olds, fascinated by their stories and aided by the bibliography at the end of the book to further exploration of their lives." Polly Goodwin
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Ag 27 '50 270w

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton
Christian Science Monitor p10 N 13 '50 90w

Kirkus 18:419 Ag 1 '50 110w

"The easy-flowing style and the reality of the struggles, heartaches, and thrills of accomplishment and glory, make fascinating reading. . . The book will serve a purpose in any library. Recommended." Harriet Morrison
+ Library J 75:1516 S 15 '50 80w

Wis Lib Bul 46:21 N '50

ACKERMAN, NATHAN WARD, and JAHODA, MARIE. Anti-Semitism and emotional disorder; a psychoanalytic interpretation. 135p $2.50 Harper

296 Jews—Political and social conditions. Psychoanalysis. Psychology, Pathological 50-5672

"The authors of this book have attempted to describe and to define, in a clinical study, an ancient, baffling, and perplexing social problem. Since their training and experience lies in psychoanalysis and social psychology they have examined their material from the theoretical bases on which these sciences rest. This is their point of view, their stand. But they give full recognition to the importance of other ones—ethnic, for example, or economic." (Introd) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by J. H. Bunzel
Am Soc R 15:571 Ag '50 800w

Ann Am Acad 270:175 Jl '50 230w

Reviewed by J. O. Supple
Chicago Sun p7 F 19 '50 100w

Reviewed by J. M. Yard
Christian Century 67:532 Ap 26 '50 20w

Current Hist 18:296 My '50 10w

Kirkus 17:668 D 1 '49 160w

"The book is a valuable pioneering contribution and will prove useful to those interested in improving human relations and promoting mental health." I. B.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 Mr 26 '50 250w

Reviewed by R. A. Schermerhorn
Social Forces 29:215 D '50 350w

Reviewed by Julius Schreiber
Survey 86:262 My '50 300w

"The well-balanced, original analysis and the actual case records in the appendix will be of interest to the student of social prejudice."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:210 Je '50 200w

ACOMB, FRANCES. Anglophobia in France, 1763-1789; an essay in the history of constitutionalism and nationalism. 167p $4.50 Duke univ. press

944.034 Great Britain—Relations (general) with France. France—Politics and government. France—Relations (general) with Great Britain 50-3350

"During the twenty-five years preceding the revolution of 1789, England was praised or condemned by French writers in accordance with what they were proposing for their own country. Conservatives attacked English institutions as hostile to divine-right monarchy. Most of the liberals were at first Anglophile, praising English institutions and the tradition of freedom, but their position was increasingly challenged up to the revolution." (U S Quarterly Bkl) This study by a Duke University historian is based on study of a variety of materials and includes a thirty-two page bibliography.

"Scholarly little volume. . . Though a bit dull in style as scholarly volumes are too wont to be, the book reveals wide research, command of nearly all pertinent material, and should make unnecessary another study of the same subject." B. C. Shafer
+ Am Hist R 56:190 O '50 260w

Am Pol Sci R 44:804 S '50 40w

"In her study, Miss Acomb has combined careful scholarship with a persistent attempt to look behind accepted interpretations, and has consequently produced a carefully documented but not pedantic study."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:327 S '50 240w

ADAMS, ALGER (PHILIP B. KAYE, pseud). Taffy. 258p $3 Crown
50-10610

A story of Negro life in New York city. "Taffy, having spent his 17 years in Harlem, is unable to adjust himself to the change of environment when his family moves to Brooklyn. As a Negro he is the subject of racial discrimination and his bitterness finds solace only when he returns to his former haunts and companions. Eventually he murders a man and is shot to death by the police." (Library J)

Kirkus 18:527 S 1 '50 160w

"The author is obviously well-acquainted with the Harlem Negro world, and the contrast between Taffy's deplorable existence and his mother's social activities is cleverly done. In striving for realism however, he has overstepped the mark, and his treatment of sexual license and brutality will be highly repugnant to many readers." J. E. Brown
Library J 75:1904 N 1 '50 130w

"There is no thematic line, and no narrative structure. Because it lacks the one, the book has not the 'tone of voice' either of purpose or of point of view. Because it lacks the other, it is without method and control. The why is never answered, and the how is broken into a dozen fragments that must be pieced together with patience." Saunders Redding
— N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 N 19 '50 550w

"The novel is a fierce, jarring and important piece of work." Richard Sullivan
+ N Y Times p32 N 5 '50 290w

"A vivid and unforgettable book." Ann Petry
+ Sat R of Lit 33:21 D 23 '50 600w

ADAMS, CLEVE FRANKLIN. Contraband. 241p $2.50 Knopf
50-7493

A tale of narcotics smuggling on the Mexican border, with a U. S. Treasury agent as hero.

Chicago Sun p5 My 9 '50 30w
Kirkus 18:188 Mr 15 '50 60w

" 'Contraband' is terse and bloody in the tough tradition, but with redeeming qualities of wit and sound characterization."
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p24 My 14 '50 210w

"The stuff of Cleve F. Adams' yarn is familiar enough. . . Few practitioners, however, know how to put these ingredients together with such biting, driving economy. You'll be hard put to it to stop reading for an instant." A. B.
+ N Y Times p19 Jl 16 '50 150w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p20 Jl 23 '50 100w

ADAMS, DOUGLAS PAYNE, ed. Index of nomograms. 174p $4 Wiley

016.51084 Nomography (mathematics)—Indexes
50-6718

"The nomogram is a useful kind of chart or diagram which is constructed for the purpose of furnishing immediate answers to certain types of problems in science and engineering which without the aid of an appropriate nomogram would require considerable computation. 'Alignment diagram' is another term for it. This book indexes about 1700 useful nomograms which have been published in periodicals. They are indexed in two ways: by key words—in effect, a title index—and under subject classifications such as physics. The nomograms themselves are not reproduced, but exact references are given to the periodicals in which they appear." Library J

Booklist 46:310 Je 15 '50
Chem Eng 57:231 Ag '50 200w

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 75:872 My 15 '50 110w
N Y New Tech Bks 35:41 My '50

ADAMS, E. SHERMAN. Monetary management; the regulation of credit. 127p $2.50 Ronald

332.4 Credit. Money—U.S. 50-5231

"Author is former vice-president of Central Hanover Bank and Trust Company. Book treats of monetary management in the restricted sense of administrative controls which are intended primarily to affect credit conditions, with the over-all purpose of promoting economic stability at a high level of production." (Library J) Index.

Reviewed by Winifred Baum
Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 My 14 '50 30w

"Intended for the banker and investment man, clearly and concisely written." J. E. Cross
+ Library J 75:401 Mr 1 '50 100w

"The book is written very clearly and as simply as the subject matter permits. The author shows an admirable understanding of both the theoretical and practical aspects of commercial and central banking. The book is addressed primarily to those engaged in banking and investments work, and also to others who are not experts in monetary management. For these readers it should serve as an excellent introduction to the subject. . . The book will be of only limited interest to those already familiar with central banking and its problems since the end of the war."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:177 Je '50 170w

ADAMS, HENRY HITCH, and HATHAWAY, BAXTER, eds. Dramatic essays of the neoclassic age. 412p $5.50 Columbia univ. press

809.2 Drama—History and criticism 50-8514

"The editors have here assembled most of the important English and French essays in dramatic criticism between the years 1660 and 1773. Everybody who should be represented is here: Corneille, Dryden, Milton, Congreve, Steele, Addison, Fielding, Voltaire, Beaumarchais, and Goldsmith, in addition to many others." Theatre Arts

"Apart from their charm, chief value of these pieces is the light and perspective they shed on their authors' lives and times."
+ Chicago Sun p5 Ag 29 '50 170w

"Recommended for literature, drama, and theatre collections." George Freedley
+ Library J 75:2012 N 15 '50 50w

"The collected pieces and the analytical prefaces make this book exceptionally valuable to anyone who is interested in either the theatre or the dramatic theory of the period." Henry Popkin
+ Theatre Arts 34:5 O '50 90w

ADAMS, JAMES TRUSLOW, and others, eds. Album of American history. v5, Index. 222p $5 Scribner

973 U.S.—History—Pictorial works. U.S.—Social life and customs—Pictorial works (44-706)

"The four-volume Album of American history [Book Review Digest 1944-1946, 1948] published without indexes, has proved so useful as a source of picture material that this index volume has been added." Booklist

Booklist 46:94 N 15 '49

"Index subject headings have been well selected, and cross-references are remarkably full. . . The usefulness of the Index is indicated by the following statistics offered by the publisher: for Costume there are 731 citations, classified first under Children, Men, and Women, then under each of these headings chronologically by item and function. For Furniture there are 141 citations, for Houses there are 445, listing the houses by date of building, by exteriors, by interiors, and by name."

ADAMS, J. T.—Continued

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:127 Mr '50 200w

ADAMS, SAMUEL HOPKINS. Pony express; il. by Lee J. Ames. (Landmark bk) 185p $1.50 Random house

50-10533

The story of the Pony express, written for high school age.

Booklist 47:142 D 1 '50

Christian Science Monitor p10 N 13 '50 10w

"A vivid tribute to one of the most romantic episodes in our history."

+ Kirkus 18:657 N 1 '50 170w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 N 12 '50 120w

"Its history is brought out vividly and with careful attention to the meager facts known." R. A. Brown

+ N Y Times p6 N 12 '50 50w

ADAMS, SAMUEL HOPKINS. Sunrise to sunset. 373p $3 Random house

50-7919

"A romance about the rigorous life in and around the cotton mills of Troy, New York, in the eighteen-thirties. Mr. Adams' heroine is a perky young millworker named Obedience Webb, who marries her boss, a man named Gurdon Stockwell. Gurdon turns out to be a thorough villain, and meets a bad end, which is all to the good, as Obedience was really in love with someone else all the time." New Yorker

Booklist 46:335 Jl 1 '50

"Conservative readers may object to frank language and illicit love."
Bookmark 9:243 Jl '50 50w

Chicago Sun p8 Ag 27 '50 70w

Reviewed by Walter Havighurst
Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 Jl 16 '50 400w

Reviewed by W. K. Rugg
Christian Science Monitor p16 Jl 12 '50 300w

Kirkus 18:244 Ap 15 '50

"An expertly told story." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 75:981 Je 1 '50 100w

"A really engrossing yarn of rich and poor in the town that initiated collars. I suspect Mr. Adams has had a very good time writing this book, digging up old songs and sayings, edged turns of speech, the incredibly harsh, though authentic, rules and customs designed to protect the morals and enhance the industry of the children and girls who worked in the water-powered textile mills. By the same token, the book is fun to read even while one is seething with indignation at the smug 'principles' that made it a (profitable) virtue to put a child of six in charge of a loom." Mary Ross

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 My 28 '50 500w

"A dramatic historical novel, which might be further described as an exquisite period piece. The story itself is so full of exciting action and suspense that many who read for 'escape' will down it all in one continuous draft. . . Lovers of Americana will agree that the witty, lively, and urbane Mr. Adams has outdone his previous excursions in the same field, and that this is high praise." Carl Carmer

+ N Y Times p5 My 28 '50 410w

New Yorker 26:99 Je 3 '50 110w

"'Sunrise to Sunset' is a mystery story in an historical setting. When a book is labeled a 'romance' its readers are relieved of any obligation to believe it. But this is such an outrageously implausible yarn that even those addicted to such creation must raise an eyebrow. To me, however, the real mystery about Samuel Hopkins Adams's new novel is that I, a hardboiled reader allergic to mysteries, and whodunits, should have been so engrossed by it." Roger Burlingame

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:14 Je 10 '50 800w

Reviewed by Paul Pickrell
Yale R n s 39:768 summer '50 180w

ADAMS, WALTER, ed. Structure of American industry; some case studies. 588p $4.75 Macmillan

338.7 U.S.—Industries and resources 50-5324

"'A kaleidoscopic view of American business enterprise.' Chapters on thirteen major industries, by as many economists, each following the same outline: first, a brief history of the industry and its institutional pattern, with special attention to recent changes; second, analysis of market structure and price policy; third, public policy alternatives and recommendations. In concluding chapters an attempt is made to integrate individual industry and labor union policies tending towards monopoly into a consistent and over-all pattern of public policy suitable to a free enterprise economy. Suggested readings at end of chapters." Library J

"Professor Adams has produced a very useful book. He has brought together a number of industry studies, in very readable form, not readily available elsewhere. For those who like the case method this is the best book available. For others, who prefer a broader and more integrated treatment, it will serve as excellent supplementary reading." D. F. Pegrum

+ Am Econ R 40:702 S '50 1200w

Reviewed by J. E. Cross
Library J 75:402 Mr 1 50 90w

Management R 39:497 Ag '50 50w

Reviewed by C. E. Noyes
Nation 170:453 My 13 '50 370w

"Thirteen actual and operating industries, which range the economic spectrum from conditions of 'perfect' competition to tight local monopoly, are here examined. . . The result is an enlightening and uninflamed collection of analytical pieces that describe unemotionally the current state of each industry, no matter how egregious, and recommend courses of public policy which, the individual authors believe, might improve things. Since each contributor is interested in improvement along the lines of free enterprise—though not necessarily its laissez-faire variant—these solutions seldom verge very far to the left of center."

Sat R of Lit 33:12 Je 3 '50 320w

ADAMSON, WILLY ANDERSON. Enterprising angler. 268p il $4 Morrow

799.12 Fishing 50-12559

"Some fishing books [the author says] are almost scientific treatises. Others are strictly practical. Yet another kind combines anecdote and reminiscence of the riverside with descriptions of the charm of the angling scene. This book is a 'broth' owing something to each of these ingredients." Foreword

"A British angler, who knows the literature of angling as well as the 'know-how,' writes in delightful style, subtle humor, wholesome philosophy and fresh point of view. . . Recommended." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 75:1906 N 1 '50 50w

"Very readable book."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p103 F 17 '50 470w

ADDAMS, CHARLES SAMUEL. Monster rally. 91p il $2.95 Simon & Schuster

741.5 Caricatures and cartoons 50-10452

A collection of 91 cartoons from Addams recent work, most of them from The New Yorker.

Booklist 47:91 N 1 '50

Reviewed by Robert Cromie
Chicago Sunday Tribune p22 D 3 '50 130w

"At this date, there is little need to dwell upon Mr. Addams's eerie magic and sinister charm as artist and master of the macabre. Here he has preserved the family group of fiends we have cherished since we first met them. They are wonderful people, miraculously evoked from the woodwork and cobwebs in which they live." Lisle Bell
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 D 3 '50 380w

"You remember the movie where Clifton Webb crammed the full bowl of porridge on the screaming brat's head? You remember how pleased you and everybody else in the theatre were when he did that? Well, these books, with their pictures by Mr. Addams, give you that same magnificently ignoble pleasure. Page, after page, after page." Charles Poore
+ N Y Times p7 O 15 '50 390w

Reviewed by Allan Worth
San Francisco Chronicle p3 N 26 '50 100w

"Mr. Addams is as different from Shakespeare as he is from Edgar Allan Poe. Nothing shocks him and no one is shocked by him. The more sinister his concepts are, the louder is our laughter and the greater our enjoyment. Clearly Mr. Addams invites us to enter a world which has nothing to do with the one in which we live except that, in the most glorious, undeviating, and giddy fashion, it turns all of its values topsy-turvy." J. M. Brown
+ Sat R of Lit 33:25 N 11 '50 850w
Time 56:110 O 23 '50 300w

ADKINS, NELSON FREDERICK. Philip Freneau and the cosmic enigma; the religious and philosophical speculations of an American poet. 84p pa $2.50 N.Y. univ. press
811 Freneau, Philip Morin 49-6208

"Scholars have long agreed that the ideas of Freneau represent many contradictions; here Mr. Adkins studies the development of Freneau's mind and the complex influences which explain these contradictions." (U S Quarterly Bkl) Bibliographical footnotes. Indexes.

J Philos 47:362 Je 8 '50 90w

"Mr. Adkins has not only drawn on all published evidence, but has also examined a considerable number of books owned by Freneau which contain marginalia. Especially commendable are Mr. Adkins' analysis of Freneau's very considerable reading, and the sharp distinctions drawn between the different patterns of thought that reading represents."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:458 D '49 250w

ADLAM, THOMAS NAPIER. Radiant heating; a practical treatise on American and European practices in the design and installation of systems for radiant, panel, or infra-red heating, snow melting and radiant cooling. 2d ed rev & enl 504p il $6 Industrial press
697 Heating 49-50101

"Practical treatise by an author who has won international recognition as an authority on radiant heating. It is addressed to heating engineers and contractors. Compared to the first edition [Book Review Digest 1947] there are 32 more pages and 32 more figures. The new matter pertains to such topics as ceiling panels, the effects of carpets on the heat emission of heated floors, and the use of floor heating in chicken brooder houses." Library J

"The second edition is an exceedingly practical book, devoid of extensive mathematics, but including all of the pertinent data and charts to simplify the step by step procedure in the design of radiant heating and cooling panels. The engineer and the contractor, as well as the student, will find the information in this volume easy to understand, and the design procedure easy to follow. The author cannot be commended too highly for his very creditable accomplishment in this regard." J. A. Massaro
+ Chem Eng 57:290 Je '50 500w
+ Eng N 144:42 Mr 16 '50 40w

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 74:1911 D 15 '49 70w
N Y New Tech Bks 35:23 Mr '50

ADORNO, THEODOR W., and others. Authoritarian personality. See Authoritarian personality

ADRIAN, MARY, pseud. See Venn, M. E.

AGAR, HERBERT. Price of union. 750p $5 Houghton
329 U.S.—Politics and government. Political parties—U.S. 50-6381

History of the American political system, its contradictions and inconsistencies, and the men who were responsible for it, from the time of the American Revolution to 1909. Bibliography. Index.

"The provocative title of this book probably gives rise to a variety of expectations in the minds of prospective readers. Whatever the anticipations may be, there will be few, if any, disappointments. The volume is the work of a brilliant writer and seasoned historian, whose instincts are sharp, whose judgments are sound, and whose industry is adequate. It is a notable achievement to have written a volume big with details, surveying more than a century and a half of American history, that permits the reader to lay it down with a feeling of satisfaction and of confidence in the integrity and ability of the author." G. M. Stephenson
+ Am Hist R 55:909 Jl '50 800w
Booklist 46:209; 227 Mr 1 '50; Mr 15 '50
Bookmark 9:181 My '50 30w

Reviewed by Walter Johnson
Chicago Sun p6 Mr 29 '50 550w

Reviewed by Walter Trohan
Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 Mr 12 '50 750w

Reviewed by Henry Sowerby
Christian Science Monitor p16 Mr 16 '50 900w

Reviewed by Paul Kiniery
Commonweal 52:76 Ap 28 '50 300w
Current Hist 18:354 Je '50 50w

"An important book for students of history; not easy reading for the layman."
+ Kirkus 17:668 D 1 '49 260w

"An interesting, controversial book... Recommended." J. H. Berthel
+ Library J 75:313 F 15 '50 130w

"Mr. Agar's point of view is hardly original. But his witty narrative of American history, always competent and sometimes profound, gives a new significance to his thesis. The freshness of his interpretations is all the more remarkable because he leans so heavily on the writings of other historians. Moreover, this book lacks the complacency which is almost universal in books written in praise of our institutions." D. J. Boorstin
Nation 170:626 Je 24 '50 1000w

"His work must be regarded as a magnificent accomplishment. Well designed in its grand outlines, it preserves a meticulous regard for relevant detail. Lucidly written, it will be read for decades by those in quest of an understanding of the peculiarities of the American political order." V. O. Key
+ New Repub 122:17 My 1 '50 1100w

"This long, brilliantly written volume is one of the most penetrating, provocative studies of American government to appear in recent years, and it is certain to be widely read and to arouse much discussion and even controversy. . . This reviewer found himself almost always in agreement with [his] ideas. . . Others may well find themselves in disagree-

AGAR, HERBERT—Continued
ment with Mr. Agar at many points along the way. But they cannot fail to enjoy the brilliant writing, and they cannot fail to be stimulated by the vigor of the ideas. This is a book to be read slowly, enjoyed, and long treasured as one of the wisest studies of the American political system which has yet been written." R. K. Carr
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Mr 12 '50 1500w

"This is a wise book, well written and highly provocative. Neither the facts nor the interpretations are new to scholars, but nowhere have they been presented in such clear and arresting fashion. . . His final conclusion, that 'the world today might do worse than study the curious methods' by which this has been effected, suggests the real purpose behind the writing of this stimulating book." Avery Craven
+ N Y Times p4 Mr 19 '50 1500w

"Mr. Agar is an original thinker and an informed student of history; if his fondness for playing with words and subtleties tends, at times, to run away with him, it must also be said that his central argument is strong and convincing."
+ — New Yorker 26:117 Mr 25 '50 200w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p16 Ap 5 '50 850w

"This is a thoughtful work, historically sound and intellectually stimulating. It places United States history in a somewhat new perspective that is all too often missed by scholars and political scientists, theoretical or practical, alike." Donald Derby
+ Springf'd Republican p6C Ap 9 '50 550w

Reviewed by E. S. Corwin
Survey 86:277 My '50 650w
U S Quarterly Bkl 6:197 Je '50 240w
Wis Lib Bul 46:13 Ap '50

AIKEN, CONRAD POTTER. Short stories. 416p $5 Duell
50-9750

A collection of twenty-nine of Conrad Aiken's short stories. Contents: Bring! bring!; The last visit; Mr. Arcularis; The bachelor supper; Bow down, Isaac! A pair of Vikings; Hey, taxi!; Field of flowers; Gehenna; The disciple; Impulse; The anniversary; Hello, Tib; Smith and Jones; By my troth, Nerissa!; Silent snow, secret snow; Round by round; Thistledown; State of mind; Strange moonlight; The fish supper; I love you very dearly; The dark city; Life isn't a short story; The night before prohibition; Spider, spider; A man alone at lunch; Farewell! farewell! farewell!; Your obituary, well written.

"Not all of these selections are firmly constructed or incisively executed, and in some the theme remains unemphatic, even pallid. What chiefly distinguishes Aiken's work in the short story is his style, always fluent, smooth, and unobstrusive, in spite of its brilliantly varied rhythms and great richness of imagery. It is a poetic utterance unerringly adapted to the purposes of fiction." Warren Beck
+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 O 29 '50 480w

"An engrossing collection of thirty of Mr. Aiken's subtle, delicately probed character analysis short stories. . . Though some of the stories are somewhat dated in their physical circumstance their metaphysical, almost morbid character analyses are still fresh and thoroughly compelling. And they will command a literary following."
+ Kirkus 18:395 Jl 15 '50 140w

"Most of the stories lean strongly toward the psychological, but the treatment may be realistic or highly imaginative. They are original yet the reader may discover types of stories which link Aiken with De La Mare, others which suggest Katherine Mansfield, and still others with a kinship to Maupassant." G. D. McDonald
+ Library J 75:1289 Ag '50 130w

Reviewed by Horace Gregory
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 O 22 '50 850w

Reviewed by William McFee
N Y Times p32 O 8 '50 320w
New Yorker 26:137 O 21 '50 120w
San Francisco Chronicle p24 D 3 '50 220w

"The voice of Mr. Aiken—in his prose as in his poetry—has never been a loud one. His work is melodically beguiling rather than demandingly active. Quietly it reveals to us hidden facets of our behavior, recalls old and lost desires. The range is perhaps too narrow, the characters have too cultivated a sensibility, the disillusionment is too complete, the defeat too Calvinistically inevitable. Gehenna is the recurrent symbol, Feldeinsamkeit the persistent mood. But within his range Mr. Aiken works with precision and persuasiveness. It is to be hoped that this new collection will commend his prose to a wider audience." E. J. Fitzgerald
+ Sat R of Lit 33:16 S 16 '50 600w

"Though his reputation has been largely based on his poetry, Aiken may well be remembered most for his short stories. In his latest book he has brought together 29 of them; the result is an impressive handful of fiction."
+ Time 56:80 O 2 '50 600w

AINLEY, LESLIE G. Boston Mahatma. 246p $3 Humphries

B or 92 Lomasney, Martin Michael

"A biography of Martin M. Lomasney, long boss of Boston's Ward Eight. . . Lincoln Steffens said of Lomasney that 'he had strength, rough kindness, tribal loyalty, and rarest of all, intellectual integrity.' He was also a practical politician of surpassing endowments. Mr. Ainley's highly factual account of Lomasney's career gives a detailed picture of the boss in action. . . The title is not a whim of Mr. Ainley's—it was a Boston Post cartoonist who affixed the 'Mahatma' to Lomasney, and Lomasney liked it." Sat R of Lit

"Both as an individual and as a public figure Lomasney should be a wonderful subject for a biography that would also be a history of Boston during his reign, which began in the Eighteen Eighties and lasted almost until his death in 1933. Unfortunately, Leslie G. Ainley, a Boston newspaper man for thirty years, does not seem to be the person to write it. His is a disappointing book, not because he lacked material but because he did not know just what to do with it. Instead of being an interesting and perceptive study of a political boss . . . 'Boston Mahatma' is a one-dimensional extension of an obituary. . . Mr. Ainley is always on the defensive and while he shows that Lomasney was much as Steffens said he was he never places him in the political, economic, and racial-religious perspective that should be required of all writers about Boston." Karl Schriftgiesser
N Y Times p10 D 11 '49 460w
Sat R of Lit 33:36 Mr 4 '50 150w

"The autobiography is much better done than some similar works about Massachusetts politicians in comparatively recent times. . . Its reading is almost a 'must' for those interested in Bay State politics and government for it deals with all the important political figures of the state, and many of the nation, in the 45 years preceding Lomasney's death in 1933." H. G. L.
+ Springf'd Republican p3D Ja 22 '50 360w

AISTROP, JACK CHARLES RICHARD. Pretend I am a stranger. 327p $2.75 Roy pubs.
[50-30859]

"Bill Maclaren, raised in a poor London area by a drunken father and gin-tippling aunt, grows up without courage and is terrified at the thought of what lies ahead when he is drafted in 1939. Captured by the Germans in Normandy, Bill is tortured and momentarily cracks, mistakenly believes that he has given away the position of his unit and caused its extermination. Temporarily stricken dumb by his horror at his supposed betrayal, Maclaren is sent back to England for psychiatric treatment, feigns loss of memory and assumes a new identity. Slowly and stumblingly entering his new life as Bill Connor, he writes a novel of his experiences, happens upon the estranged wife of his closest army buddy, and learns that her husband is reported killed. Though their way is beset by her unsavory friends . . .they both come to a full understanding of themselves and each other and Bill at last wins his way to courage." Kirkus

---

"With a neatly turned plot and the two main characters, Bill and Mary, presented as complex, believable adults, the book still suffers from a rather too slick presentation of its material and too many asides and interpolations by the author."

Kirkus 18:434 Ag 1 '50 220w

"A competent and stream-lined novel." Elizabeth Jenkins

Manchester Guardian p3 D 23 '49 150w

Reviewed by J. D. Scott

New Statesman & Nation 39:46 Ja 14 '50 650w

"Although he has carefully and clinically charted his hero's childhood, for some reason Mr. Aistrop's Bill Connor née Maclaren never quite comes alive. The author has atoned for this to some extent by surrounding Bill with some excellently drawn minor characters. He is at his best when he is caricaturing with pleasant wit the whole jobless fly-by-night crowd that nibbles at the edges of the black market and flits precariously around the periphery of the cinema, the wireless, and the book trade." J. J. Maloney

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 D 10 '50 500w

"Mr. Aistrop summons an amusing tableau of supporting characters (seedy gentility, night-club society, the pub set), and he deftly projects place and mood. His dioramic chronicle of one man's inner and outer predicaments does not give much chance for side effects and is flawed further by the fact that the distraught hero would probably have come to grief even without the war experience. The form does not seem quite strong enough to sustain both message and dramatic force." James Kelly

N Y Times p11 D 24 '50 380w

"Mr. Aistrop has constructed his tale well. He has peopled it with characters of convincing drabness. And he has written it in a pleasant, if undistinguished, style. It would be regrettable if the undramatic nature of his materials and the unemphatic manner of his presentation should cause readers to overlook a work of consistent interest and real insight." E. J. F.

+ Sat R of Lit 33:43 N 25 '50 320w

Times [London] Lit Sup p853 D 30 '49 340w

AKELEY, MRS MARY LEE (JOBE). Congo Eden; foreword by William King Gregory. 356p il $5 Dodd

916.7 Kongo, Belgian. Game protection 50-6969

"A comprehensive portrayal of the historical background and scientific aspects of the great game sanctuaries of the Belgian Congo with the story of a six months pilgrimage throughout that most primitive region in the heart of the African continent." (Subtitle) Index.

Booklist 46:273 My 1 '50

Reviewed by M. E. Monroe

Library J 75:556 Ap 1 '50 90w

Reviewed by M. D. Read

Library J 75:1056 Je 15 '50 50w

"As chronicler of the beauties of these great reserves in the Congo, Mrs. Akeley is indefatigable, and the Belgian government could have chosen no one more sincerely dedicated to arousing interest in its great project." Margaret Hubbard

+ N Y Herald Tribune p6 Ap 9 '50 650w

"Since Mrs. Akeley is one of that relatively small band of uitlanders who have lived long enough in unspoiled Africa to know its magic, it is no surprise that her book is knowledgeable, colorful, and often fascinating. Some parts of her journey are described overminutely, but when she reaches the gorilla sanctuary in the land of towering volcanoes near Lake Kivu, it is hard to put the book down. . . The book's discussion of jungle creatures is enthralling." John Barkham

+ N Y Times p10 Ap 2 '50 450w

"A quiet book. But it is a book that will grow on you. If you have any interest at all in Africa, if you can enjoy simple, direct, genuine appreciation of wild and unbelievably beautiful country by one who is both schooled in its lore and well able to communicate the love she has for it, then this is a book for you. There are many fine photographs and a few useful maps." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 Ap 6 '50 650w

"An absorbing and very worth-while volume." Linton Wells

+ Sat R of Lit 33:29 Ap 29 '50 650w

Springf'd Republican p8D Ap 2 '50 80w

Reviewed by R. M. Yerkes

Yale R n s 40:184 autumn '50 1000w

AKHILANANDA, SWAMI. Hindu view of Christ; introd. by Walter G. Muelder. 291p $3 Philosophical lib.

232 Jesus Christ. Christianity and other religions—Hinduism 49-10560

"This book is a study of Christ and his religious significance in terms of Hindu categories. The author represents the Ramarkrishna Vedanta Society, Boston. Deeply appreciative of Jesus as an Oriental, he undertakes an interpretation in an Oriental perspective, a task for which his former book on Hindu psychology [Book Review Digest 1946] has prepared him." (Crozer Q) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by J. A. Maynard

Churchman 164:17 Je 15 '50 120w

"For readers already familiar with Hindu thought the book has the value of throwing light on its concepts by showing them in application to well-known material in the Christian religion. On the whole the procedure emphasizes contemplative, spiritual, and mystical elements which activistic Western Christianity tends to overlook. That is good, although the synoptic vision of both Eastern and Western interpretations is doubtless necessary to give full depth to our view of Christ." C. H. Hamilton

+ Crozer Q 27:170 Ap '50 450w

"The book is well worth reading." P. H. Ashby

+ J Religion 30:298 O '50 300w

"Recommended for medium sized and large public libraries, college and university libraries and special libraries in this field. Careful documentation, bibliography and index." E. H. Weeks

+ Library J 74:1193 S 1 '49 110w

ALASCO, JOHANNES, pseud. See Domaniewski, Z.

ALBANELLA, GRAZIANO D'. See D'Albanella, G.

ALBRAND, MARTHA, pseud. See Loewengard, H. H. F.

ALBRECHT-CARRIE, RENE. Italy from Napoleon to Mussolini. 314p $4.25 Columbia univ. press

945.08 Italy—History 49-50178

"The episode of Fascism proper is evidently history—history which, though recent, we are beginning to see with a certain perspective—and what this essay proposes to do is to give an interpretative survey of the development of

ALBRECHT-CARRIE, RENE—Continued
Italy from the beginning of the nineteenth century, leading to the climax of Fascism, with the question in mind: how and why did it happen?" (Pref) The book is divided into four parts: Introduction; United Italy; The Fascist episode; and Epilog; the development of the theme is topical rather than chronological. Bibliography. Index.

"In this handy and readable volume Professor Carrié has provided a highly interesting and valuable book. He calls it an 'essay.' It can perhaps better be described as presenting attractively, often brilliantly, the kind of broad historical survey, illuminating interpretations, and well-selected illustrations that one has a right to expect from a course of lectures for an audience well informed about the history of Europe." K. R. Greenfield
+ Am Hist R 56:103 O '50 600w

Reviewed by William Ebenstein
Ann Am Acad 268:206 Mr '50 480w

Reviewed by G. S. Hooker
Chicago Sun p4S Ja 12 '50 450w

Reviewed by L. T. Heron
Chicago Sunday Tribune p15 Mr 5 '50 150w

"The author's scholarship is sound and the job is well done." Roy Pierce
+ Current Hist 18:163 Mr '50 1000w
Foreign Affairs 29:155 O '50 10w

"For the student or serious reader in contemporary history, this is of interest and importance."
+ Kirkus 17:666 D 1 '49 220w

"An interesting volume whose appeal will be limited by its 'academic' style." Donald Wasson
Library J 75:42 Ja 1 '50 130w

"The value of the book is not in the rather arid narrative of often-related events, from which the author's distaste for drama sometimes excludes what one may feel to be necessary and not merely picturesque elements in the story. . . Where the author excels is in the methodic analysis of policies, and the book might have been stronger if presented in the form of separate essays." C. Sprigge
+ — Manchester Guardian p4 My 16 '50 1000w

"A first-rate work of scholarship, sound and sure in its judgments. . . After having read it, however, one wonders what special niche it was supposed to fill or whether the considerable amount of work put into it was worth the time and trouble. As a textbook, or 'prescribed reading' for a contemporary history course, it is decidedly to be recommended and that, perhaps, is its raison d'etre. It is not, and does not claim to be, an addition to our knowledge of Italian history; it is a selection and an interpretation." H. L. Matthews
+ — N Y Times p12 Ja 15 '50 550w

"Not a formal history but rather a selective examination of the principal elements which made possible the emergence of Fascism. Dr. Carrié skillfully unfolds his main theme against the background of the great political and intellectual movements of nineteenth- and twentieth-century Europe. Some of the facts and views he presents will be familiar to the reader conversant with Italian history but his interpretations are fresh, vigorous, and sound." M. T. Florinsky
+ Sat R of Lit 33:16 Mr 25 '50 650w
U S Quarterly Bkl 6:328 S '50 280w

ALDANOV, MARK, pseud. See Landau, M. A.

ALDERMAN, CLIFFORD LINDSEY. Arch of stars. 410p $3 Appleton
50-7920

A historical novel about the Revolution as it affected the inhabitants of the Hampshire Grants, later the state of Vermont. Ethan and Ira Allen, and Seth Warner are among the characters.

"This is Mr. Alderman's first novel, but it is broad in scope, grafic in its gallery of characters, hectic in its action. It maintains a rapid tempo thruout its 400 pages. It is a rousing historical novel, full of incident and action and as generously supplied with amorous adventures as with the fortunes of war." Walter Havighurst
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 Jl 2 '50 450w

"Good continuity though weak in depth, on the whole a lively historical novel of convincing action and color."
+ — Kirkus 18:283 My 15 '50 180w

"This is standard brand, with slabs of research thickly laid on, battles, tap-room scenes, conscientious bawdiness and all. But it's a tale thrice-told (and in very loose style)." E. F. Walbridge
— Library J 75:1044 Je 15 '50 80w

"Mr. Alderman is particularly successful in re-creating the beau monde of New York, the quiet heroism of the wilderness settlers of Vermont, and something of the blustering magnificence of Ethan Allen." Charles Lee
+ N Y Times p25 Je 25 '50 180w

"Mr. Alderman writes with immense assurance and produces a vigorous, mouthy kind of dialect that may or may not be what Americans of the latter part of the eighteenth century were accustomed to hear. His characters are period pieces—brightly costumed, full of talk, and deeply dyed in heroic or villainous colors, according to what the plot calls for."
New Yorker 26:74 Jl 8 '50 140w

"This book [is] one of the best of its kind to appear in recent years." H. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p7D Je 25 '50 650w

ALDINGTON, RICHARD. D. H. Lawrence; portrait of a genius but. . . 432p $3.75 Duell
B or 92 Lawrence, David Herbert 50-7701

"Biography of Lawrence. Aldington, English poet and novelist, was acquainted with Lawrence from 1914 until Lawrence's death. His narrative, which follows in detail the course of Lawrence's life, draws on memoirs already published, on his own recollections, and on Lawrence's writings." (Library J) Index.

Reviewed by C. J. Rolo
Atlantic 186:84 Jl '50 850w
Booklist 46:315 Je 15 '50

"There are some rather cheap wisecracks at Lawrence's expense, and touches of condescension which rub one the wrong way. . . But these . . . are only occasional flaws in a book which is, on the whole, fair, sympathetic, and satisfying. Aldington seems to have tried hard to write a sane, balanced account of Lawrence, and for the most part he succeeds." Desmond Pacey
+ — Canadian Forum 30:114 Ag '50 1350w

"Whether the morbid and pitiful story was worth telling again is an open question, but Mr. Aldington tells it sympathetically and in the main critically, with interesting excerpts from Lawrence's letters, fiction and imagistic verse. But since he is patently aware of his subject's loose and emotional thinking on most topics, it seems a pity he does not point out the essential fallacy and misunderstanding of the Lawrence attitude toward Christianity." Katherine Brégy
+ — Cath World 172:77 O '50 300w

Reviewed by Edward Wagenknecht
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 My 21 '50 600w

"Aldington knew Lawrence personally and also had the advantage during his writing of contact with Lawrence's wife, Frieda, and with many of Lawrence's friends, including Aldous Huxley and John Middleton Murry. The result is that his work includes many interesting personal anecdotes. . . But Aldington knew Lawrence's faults at first hand and is very detailed and incisive in pointing them out. . . The book which will show precisely wherein consists the artistic achievement of Lawrence, so unfortunately spotted by the sadnesses of his life, has yet to be written." J. W. Meaney
Commonweal 52:516 S 1 '50 900w

"With the objectivity of a scholar and the conscience of an artist Richard Aldington has created a portrait of the spontaneous, lively genius of D. H. Lawrence that will stir the memory long after the book is read. . . A must for students of literature."

+ Kirkus 18:192 Mr 15 '50 430w

"Sympathetic but not idolatrous, the biography offers an informed and urban judgment on Lawrence as man and artist." H. W. Hart

Library J 75:556 Ap 1 '50 100w

"Mr. Aldington has mercifully avoided the mistake of trying to see through the eyes of Lawrence; surely it is even greater presumption to expect Lawrence to see through the eyes of Mr. Aldington? Here, nevertheless, is the best life of Lawrence that we have." Norman Shrapnel

+ — Manchester Guardian p4 Mr 28 '50 600w

"What is objectionable in Mr. Aldington's account is not that it is full of judgments but that the judgments are made from a trivial and shallow point of view. . . But his book is sufficiently full of facts—however dubious his attitude toward the facts and his interpretation of them—to be of considerable value to anyone interested in Lawrence." Delmore Schwartz

Nation 171:64 Jl 15 '50 900w

"All in all, since at the time of Lawrence's death Aldington wrote a graceful and penetrating essay about him, this ungenerous coughing up of old bile is a regrettable business and a great disappointment." Anthony West

— New Repub 122:20 Je 5 '50 700w

"The merit of Mr. Aldington's justly, but unhappily, titled biography is that it at least gives Lawrence's life a perspective. It is sympathetic. It does not harp on personal grudges which most of Lawrence's friends had reason to feel. . . I found nothing new in this book—one can hardly get that from a writer who has the biographical disadvantage of being a friend—but the known material is sensibly set out." V. S. Pritchett

+ New Statesman & Nation 39:488 Ap 29 '50 9050w

"An objective portrait painted twenty years after the subject's death. Aldington's volume on D. H. Lawrence will undoubtedly stand the test of time better than anything else so far in print." James Stern

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 My 21 '50 1500w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bowen

+ N Y Times p3 My 21 '50 1550w

Reviewed by Alfred Kazin

New Yorker 26:100 Je 10 '50 1300w

"Aldington does neglect the minor characters in Lawrence's life. With the exception of Katherine Mansfield, Middleton Murry and perhaps Mabel Luhan, Lawrence's friends are only briefly characterized. To this reviewer, the distortion seems to be a meaningful one: the portrait of Lawrence (made from Aldington's angle) looms all the bigger. The portrait itself might almost be called a study in inconsistencies. And for that matter, to that first hallmark of genius—contemporary disapproval—might be added a second possible mark of genius: inconsistency." Dorothy Sargent

San Francisco Chronicle p13 Je 18 '50 800w

"Aldington, who has always admired Lawrence while candidly admitting his friend's faults, has approached his task with level eyes and a clear mind. The portrait is as fair as it is believable. . . While his book is more thorough than Kingsmill's, and written with more humanity as well as with more skill, it does not provide any further data about Lawrence's youth. . . Another notable fault in Aldington's book concerns readers new to the Lawrence milieu: except in the case of Lawrence's wife, Aldington fails to develop adequately some of the secondary figures." H. T. Moore

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:20 Ap 39 '50 800w

Reviewed by Hesketh Pearson

Spec 184:512 Ap 14 '50 1000w

Time 55:96 My 29 '50 950w

"It is true that Mr. Aldington's determination to champion Lawrence has undergone a certain modification since he wrote his introduction to Apocalypse in 1932. . . If, however, Mr. Aldington's attitude towards Lawrence remains somewhat schizophrenic, this is a small and perhaps unavoidable blemish in an admirable biography, honest in intention, affectionate in spirit and generous in appreciation."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p200 Mr 31 '50 3300w

Reviewed by L. L. Martz

Yale R n s 40:152 autumn '50 240w

ALDRICH, MRS BESS (STREETER). Reader. 467p $3.50 Appleton

50-7036

Contains two of Mrs Aldrich's novels: A Lantern in Her Hand [Book Review Digest 1928]; and A White Bird Flying [Book Review Digest 1931]; also five short stories with a midwestern locale.

Booklist 46:288 My 15 '50

"A safe book for your conservatives, with nostalgic, healthy values."

+ Kirkus 18:242 Ap 15 '50 130w

"A good many women in the Middle West who never heard of Willa Cather's beautiful epics of pioneer women know the homespun story of a pioneer told in 'A Lantern in Her Hand' and other of the same writer's plain, truthful stories of that American region. Such honesty is almost always convincing and often charming."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p29 My 7 '50 100w

"The short stories do more than distract. They have that same genial, affirmative quality that belongs to the novels. The editor has made a felicitous choice in these novels and stories." J. V.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 Ag 13 '50 110w

ALDRIDGE, JAMES. The diplomat. 631p $3.75 Little

50-5256

A long, serious novel about present day history. In it are two contrasting characters: Lord Essex, a suave diplomat of the empire-building type; and the young Scotch scientist, MacGregor. The two are sent to Russia on a mission regarding England's plans in Iran and Azerbaijan, and the clash of the two opposite personalities furnishes the action of the book.

Booklist 46:172 Ja 15 '50

Bookmark 9:185 My '50 40w

Reviewed by Carlyle King

— Canadian Forum 30:117 Ag '50 280w

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon

Chicago Sun p6 Mr 1 '50 550w

"As a study of diplomacy in action, this book is invigorating; as a novel, however, it is exhausting. . . His huge book of 631 pages must run close to 290,000 words and yet I do not recall skipping a single word of it. To do so would have been to cheat myself, because Mr. Aldridge writes with power even when one of his characters launches a monolog that might run to several pages of close-set type." V. P. Hass

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 F 26 '50 500w

Reviewed by Theodore Kalem

Christian Science Monitor p3 Mr 4 '50 1350w

"This has the makings of a significant book, but its values are smothered in slow-motion trivialities, repetitive expression, and an awkward style. The kernel of the story has innate drama and originality. . . A few of the characters emerge as life size. But the basic values of the story are muted."

+ — Kirkus 17:660 D 1 '49 350w

"There seems to be an occasional tendency to glibness; an overuse of 'alright'; and almost invariably writing 'disinterested' for 'uninterested.' Too good to miss, however." E. F. Walbridge

+ — Library J 75:318 F 15 '50 100w

ALDRIDGE, JAMES—Continued
Reviewed by Paul Bloomfield
Manchester Guardian p4 D 9 '49 170w

"Whether one agrees with his thesis or not, The Diplomat is an almost continuously absorbing book, and an important one. Artistically, it represents a tremendous forward stride in Aldridge's development from neo-Hemingway to a style and stature of his own." Richard Lauterbach
+ New Repub 122:21 Ap 3 '50 750w

Reviewed by Antonia White
New Statesman & Nation 38:666 D 3 '49 290w

"Mr. Aldridge's intentions are high and he manages many good scenes. His initial setting in the diplomatic-journalistic world of Moscow has authentic flavor. . . But as a novelist he fails to give rounded dimensions to his principal characters and he has too little profundity as a political thinker to justify their extensive, their at times exhausting, comments upon the verities of the cold war or the ethics of British policy in the Near East." Walter Millis
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 F 26 '50 900w

"Mr. Aldridge's book will be called too long (which it is) and pro-Russian (which it is not). His hero and heroine have made their bows before, but they are none the less intelligently and remarkably alive. His writing is competent and (what is more important) his story is a challenge to the giant gladiators in the arena of our time. And though his A-bomb world of 1946 is gone, what he says applies even more ominously, to the day of the triton bomb." M. H. Ley
+ N Y Times p4 F 26 '50 320w
New Yorker 26:117 F 25 '50 210w
San Francisco Chronicle p22 Mr 26 '50 340w

Reviewed by Walter Havighurst
Sat R of Lit 33:17 Mr 18 '50 650w

"Mr. Aldridge in The Diplomat has assembled more material than he has been able to digest. Very properly attempting to broaden his range, he has scored some successes on the long, ambitious journey here set down. But the book reads as if he had determined, out of a topical problem, a mass of personal experience, and an assortment of characters, to make a novel." L. A. G. Strong
Spec 184:28 Ja 6 '50 100w
Time 55:110 F 27 '50 430w

"The Diplomat, though a much larger work, lacks the astringency of Mr. Aldridge's war books, and it seems that its material would have made much better reading as straight autobiography."
Times [London] Lit Sup p821 D 16 '49 200w

ALEKHIN, ALEKSANDR ALEKSANDROVICH. Best games of chess, 1938-1945; chosen and annotated by C. H. O'D. Alexander. 118p $2.75 Harcourt

794.1 Chess 50-7037

The third volume in the trilogy presenting selected chess games played in tournaments by the late Alexander Alekhin. This covers his best games from 1938 to 1945. The first part of the book describes the Margate, Avro and South American tournaments just before the war; the second part takes up the best games played by Alekhin in Germany and, after 1944, in Spain and Portugal. Indexes. For earlier volumes in this series see Book Review Digest 1927, 1939.

Booklist 47:9 S 1 '50

"Editor Alexander has done a competent job in selecting and annotating these games. His brief introduction is perceptive and to the point. Most important of all, this collection, along with Alekhine's own two great volumes of his best games and Reinfeld's recent book on Alekhine's earliest games, furnishes a complete record of one of the greatest chess careers the world has ever known." R. L. Hanson
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 My 7 '50 190w

"The annotations, as one might well expect from Alexander, are readable no less than instructive. My only grudge is that the introduction and other references to what one might call the 'human touch' are a little on the short side. But this may be due to the fact that an earlier volume of the series contained a full biography. The present volume, at any rate, is well indexed, with regard to opponents and tournaments as well as openings."
+ New Statesman & Nation 38:628 N 26 '49 160w

"Although the 42 games collected here testify to a fading touch, they nevertheless have a brilliant ring to them and are no less worthy of study than those played in the years of his strength. . . The annotations are sensitive and intelligent." R. O'B.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 Je 4 '50 100w

ALEXANDER, ALBERT ERNEST, and JOHNSON, PALEY. Colloid science. 2v il $15 Oxford

541.3452 Colloids 49-8784

"An advanced treatment which is of interest to graduate students of chemistry and professional chemists who are concerned with colloids. The first volume—which is about twice as long as the second—is devoted largely to theoretical considerations, experimental methods and general laboratory procedures. The second volume is devoted to descriptions of colloidal systems and applications of colloidal chemistry. Extensive, selected bibliographies accompany the chapters." N Y New Tech Bks

"The authors have not always succeeded in carrying their treatment back to fundamentals. For example, there is no indication in the electrostatic theory that the treatment is limited to spherical symmetry; and the treatment of surface omits the fundamental relation upon which the measurement of surface tension depends. However, it is clear that the authors have tried hard to unify Colloid Science as a true science, and they have succeeded much better than most writers on colloids. The book will be a very useful addition to any reference shelf." George Scatchard
+ Am Chem Soc J 71:3580 O '49 550w
N Y New Tech Bks 35:52 Jl '50

ALEXANDER, CARTER, and BURKE, ARVID JAMES. How to locate educational information and data; an aid to quick utilization of the literature of education. 3d ed rev & enl 441p $4.50 Teachers college

016.37 Education—Bibliography. Educational research 50-7005

"The third edition of this work is as welcome as its predecessors [Book Review Digest 1936, 1942] for it again 'wraps up in a neat bundle' all of the sources in and approaches to the literature of education. Improvements are to be noted, particularly, in: inclusion of more recent works; separation of general techniques of search from specific educational sources; and, library practice exercises allied with each chapter—all representing content and editorial improvements." Library J

Reviewed by Nathaniel Stewart
Library J 75:696 Ap 15 '50 150w

"Extensively revised, this up-to-date and streamlined edition of Dr. Alexander's standard work on making the best use of the library is a vastly improved text and reference aid."
+ School & Society 71:222 Ap 8 '50 30w

"There is ample evidence of the revision, expansion, and reorganization of the material. There is scarcely a phase of library research that is not described in full detail. Taking little for granted, the authors are practical to the point of talking down to their audience and overstressing the obvious. . . The section on the appraisal of current books in education is incomplete and sketchy." W. W. Brickman
+ — School & Society 71:329 My 27 '50 500w

ALEXANDER, ELLIOT RITCHIE. Principles of ionic organic reactions. 318p $5.50 Wiley

547 Chemistry, Organic. Chemical reactions 50-8092

"An advanced book in organic chemistry of interest to upper-class undergraduate and graduate students majoring in the field and to professional organic chemists. It deals with known facts and certain hypotheses about fundamental ionic mechanisms which are common to many organic reactions. General the structure of organic compounds resonance are considered first, then standard types of reactions such as esterification, the Grignard reaction, and the Wolff-Kishner reduction are studied from the electronic viewpoint." (Library J) Indexes.

"As a presentation of the subject of polar mechanisms from the standpoint of organic chemistry, this book succeeds admirably. . . It is to be regretted that in the treatment of the structure of organic compounds resonance is presented as a phenomenon which molecules actually experience. This point of view will tend to lead the unwary to the conclusion that resonance is, itself, often responsible for the chemical behavior of molecules. More emphasis on the importance of actual electronic structures of molecules whatever the means of representation, would have helped to counteract this difficulty." R. E. Buckles

+ — Chem & Eng N 28:3258 S 18 '50 240w

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 75:1192 Jl '50 80w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:52 Jl '50

ALEXANDER, FRANZ. Psychosomatic medicine; its principles and applications. 300p $4 Norton

616.8 Medicine, Psychosomatic 50-8264

A summary of the general theory of psychosomatic medicine by the head of the Chicago Institute for Psychoanalysis. Includes a chapter on The function of the sexual apparatus and their disturbances, by Dr Therese Benedek, a member of the staff of the same institution. Bibliography. Indexes.

"In the future, many of the present concepts will be modified, some will have failed to stand the test of time, but the basic generalizations and underlying philosophy of illness, in all likelihood, will persist as a fundamental contribution to the science of medicine." John Spiegel, M.D.

+ Chicago Sun p5 Jl 30 '50 460w

"Here is a lucidly written book which will be of great interest to the medical profession and also to the lay reader who wants to be informed about the development of ideas in modern medicine." D. W. Fiske

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 Jl 23 '50 400w

"A clear and concise setting down of the present status of an important and revolutionary viewpoint in medicine by its foremost living exponent. Not limited by any means to the personal formulations of the author, however, it is a valuable critique of the subject by the man who more than anyone else has a right to be called 'the father of psychosomatic medicine.'" F. G. Slaughter

+ N Y Times p3 Ag 13 '50 1350w

Reviewed by A. L. Brush, M.D.

Survey 86:464 O '50 550w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:370 S '50 230w

ALINSKY, SAUL DAVID. John L. Lewis, an unauthorized biography. 387p il $4 Putnam

B or 92 Lewis, John Llewellyn 49-11806

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

"This biography, written by a warm admirer, but this side of idolatry, is made up of a number of related stories. . . And while, in all these areas, there is hardly an incident where Lewis does not come off gloriously and his adversaries do not look silly or sheepish or callow, the biography is no mere hero worship. However, adverse criticism is restricted to Lewis' position on foreign affairs." Gustav Peck

+ Am Pol Sci R 44:1019 D '50 1300w

"Whether you admire or dislike John L. Lewis, this 'unauthorized biography' is certain to make him more understandable." Peter Trimble

San Francisco Chronicle p19 Ja 29 '50 550w

"Alinsky's work contains many long conversations between himself and Lewis. These chiefly concern controversial matters in which Lewis has been involved. . . As a result the work frequently will be judged not on its merits, but through the particular critic's viewpoint on Lewis and his activities since he became head of the miners' union in 1920. Certainly the book is due for a rough reception among the 'hate Lewis' coterie, which has its center in the higher echelons of the CIO leadership and includes some of the country's foremost labor reporters. This is unfortunate, for the book deserves better than that. In point of readability, dramatic impact, and reportorial skill it is well above the average of its genre." Wellington Roe

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:23 F 11 '50 1000w

"The author contributes some important information about Lewis that hitherto has not been available. . . A personal friend and great admirer of Lewis, Alinsky sees each of Lewis' controversies through Lewis' eyes. Except for several critical comments in a minor key . . . the book reads like an authorized biography. . . The book does not build confidence in Alinsky's judgment or his powers of accurate description by presenting a long list of persons who are shaken, groggy, dazed, hypnotized, hysterical, or in a state of shock as a result of Lewis' statements or actions." Joel Seidman

Survey 86:91 F '50 800w

"Mr. Alinsky has written a vivid and rapidly paced story. . . Strictly speaking, the biography is what its subtitle would indicate—unauthorized. Yet Mr. Lewis' side of a controversy—and he was engaged in scores of battles—is always presented in the most favorable light."

+ — U S Quarterly Bkl 6:37 Mr '50 240w

ALKIRE, LURA JIM, and SCHULER, STANLEY. Home freezing for everyone. 157p $2 Barrows

641.4 Food, Frozen. Cookery 50-6478

Contents: Make the most of your freezer; What to freeze; How to package foods for freezing; How to prepare foods for freezing; Short-time freezing; How to cook frozen foods; Frozen specialities; Bake to freeze; Quick meals from the freezer; Entertaining made easy; Freezer management. Index.

Booklist 46:242 Ap 1 '50

"With few exceptions, the directions are sound, clear, and easily followed. The text is supplemented by several well-prepared tables. The contents are well indexed. Although the book does not contain new information, it is a good compilation. The recipes furnish a good variety, and the freezing quality of the recipes has been tested." Faith Fenton

+ — J Home Econ 42:746 N '50 340w

ALLCARD, EDWARD C. Single-handed passage. 223p il $3 Norton

910.4 Voyages and travels. Temptress (yawl) 50-7247

A former British navy officer crossed the Atlantic alone, in the forty-year-old yawl Temptress in 1949. This is his record of the hazards of that eighty-day voyage.

Booklist 46:273 My 1 '50

"The author has a quiet, whimsical viewpoint on life and passes along his comments on his voyage with dry humor and entertaining observations. It's a delightfully droll log of an unusual marine feat." Al Chase

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 Jl 16 '50 200w

ALLCARD, E. C.—Continued

"A modest narrative of a considerable exploit, this is most definitely for the sailing fraternity but for other armchair adventurers as well."
+ Kirkus 18:194 Mr 15 '50 150w

"A graphic account of author's experiences in fair weather and foul, on land and sea, with practical advice to those who wish to try their luck." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 75:1190 Jl '50 50w

Reviewed by W. B. Hayward
N Y Times p37 Ap 16 '50 170w

+ Sat R of Lit 33:35 Jl 22 '50 180w

Times [London] Lit Sup p679 O 27 '50 650w

ALLEN, FREDERICK HENRY. Your mortgage. 90p $2 Duell
332.72 Mortgages 50-7848

"What to do about it, how to protect yourself, how and where to get it." (Subtitle) Explains six different mortgage plans, terms of contract, amortization, insurance, taxes, etc. Includes tables of interest rates.

Booklist 46:328 Jl 1 '50

Cleveland Open Shelf p15 Ag '50

"A very useful book for every public library, many special libraries, and every real estate operator to own. Many prospective home owners will want to own it too."
+ Kirkus 18:228 Ap 1 '50 190w

"For all libraries."
+ Wis Lib Bul 46:15 Jl '50

ALLEN, GEORGE EDWARD. Presidents who have known me. 254p $3; pa $1 Simon & Schuster
B or 92 U.S.—Politics and government—20th century 50-12019

Autobiography of the man who has been known as President Truman's court jester. It covers both his personal and his political activities. Index.

Booklist 47:1; 94 S 1 '50; N 1 '50

"The best of Allen is a compendium of wit and humor of Washington's most famous characters. The worst of Allen is his own efforts to lunge into thought on world and national problems. A jester should stick to Joe Miller and not wrap the mantle of statesmanship about his fool's cap." Walter Trohan
Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 N 5 '50 650w

"When the last laugh has faded away, the reader realizes he has learned a good deal about how politics operate in the United States Government. And he begins to think that the 'bungler' from Booneville might not be such a bungler after all." Emilie Tavel
+ Christian Science Monitor p18 O 12 '50 650w

Kirkus 18:544 S 1 '50 170w

"All in all, it's a wise and funny book and one that should be added to the shelves of all who want a laugh or who collect volumes about the dizzy Washington of our time." Bert Andrews
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 O 15 '50 700w

Reviewed by Cabell Phillips
N Y Times p11 O 15 '50 450w

"A surprisingly sharp picture of behind-the-scenes Washington." J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p18 O 26 '50 700w

"At times it is difficult to tell when the author is serious or being funny. This is not wholly disingenuous on his part. Allen has worked long and hard at perfecting this pose. The effort has paid off very handsomely. In this book it has produced a tract that should be required reading in every political science course in the country. This is unvarnished practical politics as is rarely dished out by the practitioners." R. S. Allen
+ Sat R of Lit 33:20 O 14 '50 1250w

ALLEN, HERVEY. City in the dawn. 696p $3.50 Rinehart
50-14381

The author had begun a fourth novel to follow The Forest and the Fort, Bedford Village, and Toward the Morning, before he died. His writing had taken Salathiel Albine to his goal, Philadelphia. This volume comprises an abridgement of the first three books plus the part of the fourth that the author left, making one complete narrative. The editorial work was done by Julie Eidesheim.

Booklist 47:34; 75 S 15 '50; O 15 '50

Cleveland Open Shelf p20 O '50

"An extraordinarily successful and novel adventure in editing this, and for the many who have read one or two but not the whole of the Allen series, the coordinating of the parts into one whole, with a final chapter written before Hervey Allen's untimely death, will be an answer to a sense of incompleteness."
+ Kirkus 18:428 Ag 1 '50 250w

"It is a monumental work and is recommended for larger public libraries and college and university libraries that purchase modern fiction." A. R. Eaton
+ Library J 75:1405 S 1 '50 110w

"Skillful editing has made possible a single-volume edition which keeps the continuity of the story line and much of the colorful background of this saga of a gigantic backwoodsman's progress from the forest primeval to the civilization of provincial Philadelphia."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p29 O 22 '50 90w

Reviewed by C. V. Terry
N Y Times p32 O 8 '50 410w

ALLEN, HOLLIS PARTRIDGE. Federal government and education; the original and complete study of education for the Hoover Commission task force on public welfare. 333p $4 McGraw 379.73 Education—U.S. Education and state 50-6536

"A member of the 'task force' presents the complete report of the Hoover Commission with respect to education. Running the gamut from elementary school education to advanced programs for international education, a very illuminating inventory of the Federal government's role in education is presented." (Library J) Index.

Reviewed by P. R. Mort
Ann Am Acad 271:217 S '50 450w

Booklist 46:310 Je 15 '50

"This volume is an excellent example of a dual contribution to the fields of education and public administration." Nathaniel Stewart
+ Library J 75:776 My 1 '50 140w

School & Society 71:190 Mr 25 '50 20w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:323 S '50 320w

ALLEN, LEE. 100 years of baseball; the intimate and dramatic story of modern baseball from the game's beginnings up to the present day. 314p $3 Bartholomew house
796.357 Baseball 50-7393

The story of baseball in the United States, beginning back in the 1850's with "Harry Wright, forgotten father," and bringing the account up to "L'affaire Durocher." No index.

Booklist 46:283 My 15 '50

"All in all this is a valuable addition to a baseball library."
+ Kirkus 18:191 Mr 15 '50 270w

"Refreshingly different: the most important book on baseball in years. . . A must for all libraries." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 75:404 Mr 1 '50 60w

"Mr. Allen's book, and Robert Smith's 'Baseball,' published in 1947, are the first good over-all treatments of the subject to appear since the writings of Richter and A. G. Spalding. . .

This book touches on nearly every major baseball event worth mentioning, briefly and smoothly." John Lardner
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 My 14 '50 320w

Reviewed by John Lardner
New Yorker 26:110 My 20 '50 300w

Reviewed by Robert Cousins
Sat R of Lit 33:19 Je 10 '50 150w

"Devotion to the best interests of the game and a firm faith in its ability to survive all handicaps shines through Mr. Allen's reportorial style." D. B. B.
+ Springf'd Republican p12C My 21 '50 250w

ALLEN, MERRITT PARMELEE. Make way for the brave; the Oregon quest; decorations by Kreigh Collins. 236p $2.50 Longmans
50-8478

Novel for older boys in which Red Dakin, a sixteen-year-old boy, is the central figure. It tells of his adventures along the Oregon trail in 1832. When the leader of the expedition turned back, Red took up land and stayed on.

Booklist 47:15 S 1 '50

Chicago Sunday Tribune p13 N 12 '50 140w

"Historically it is an important transition period, for the free life of the fur-trading mountain men is coming to an end and the vision of permanent settlers in the West is beginning to come true. Red is one of those who ses a new future in the Willamette Valley. Boys of junior high school age will enjoy the adventure and anticipate the day when Red recovers his necklace of bear claws." S. M. A.
+ Horn Bk 26:381 S '50 160w

Kirkus 18:356 Jl 1 '50 170w

"Excellent background, exciting story, and fine characterization. Recommended for general purchase." M. D. Read
+ Library J 75:1308 Ag '50 20w

"The story is full of action, and offers many side lights on the ways of varied sorts of Indians, traders, animals, mountain-men. Red also meets several varieties of Easterners, including a Harvard botanist. The descriptions of the different sorts of country on that long journey from St. Louis to the Pacific are terse but telling. Altogether, it is good reading for boys over twelve." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ag 20 '50 180w

"Occasionally the tempo slackens but Red's encounters with Indians, both good and bad, with the fabulous Mountain Men, with traders and missionaries, and his feud with his cousin are all told with great vigor. The breadth of treatment of the westward movement gives an excellent perspective on this phase of our history." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p16 Ag 27 '50 220w

"The action of the story never falters. It holds the reader at an almost breathless pace. . . This is an adventure story, tense and exciting. It is, too, a record based upon history, authentic and rich, with a scholar's knowledge of the men who helped to make America. It is a good-looking book, with end-papers in sepia and attractive black and white decorations."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:42 S 16 '50 320w

"Plenty of exciting action is in this good adventure story of the West to hold the attention of the reader."
+ School & Society 72:111 Ag 12 '50 20w

Wis Lib Bul 46:28 S '50

ALLEN, MERRITT PARMELEE. Mudhen and the Walrus; decorations by Stephen J. Voorhies. 216p $2.50 Longmans
50-5686

The Mudhen is a prep-school boy with an active mind. The Walrus is the name of a school magazine which the Mudhen helps to launch so that his friend, Frog, can stay in school. The story is of one year during which the boys go thru a great many experiences, funny and not so funny, and emerge triumphant.

"Boys and girls alike will whoop with glee over the nonchalant way in which [The Mudhen] performed his exploits. Here is one of the funniest books this reviewer has laughed out loud over in a long time. Maybe its corn, but its lots of fun." Polly Goodwin
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 Mr 19 '50 250w

Kirkus 18:23 Ja 15 '50 150w

"Recommended to all who laughed at the first book about this famous pair." R. M. McEvoy
+ Library J 75:881 My 15 '50 80w

"The many incidents are well developed and genuinely amusing. They seem almost like separate stories, yet there is a thread of continuity that binds them all together. A good many girls, as well as boys of 10 and up, will be enthusiastic about this book." R. A. Brown
+ N Y Times p22 Mr 5 '50 180w

"There is a chuckle on every page. . . The story of how they made money enough to insure that Frog would keep on in the school is the best part of a very good tale. Girls will like it just as much as their brothers." M. G. Davis
+ Sat R of Lit 33:47 Mr 11 '50 140w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal
Springf'd Republican p8C Ap 30 '50 200w

ALLEN, ROBERT SHARON, and SHANNON, WILLIAM VINCENT. Truman merry-go-round. 502p $3.50 Vanguard

920 Statesmen, American. Washington, D.C.—Biography. U.S.—Politics and government—1945-. Truman, Harry S. 50-14840

Third version of Allen's Washington Merry Go Round. This one contains judgments of President Truman and the cabinet, Supreme court members, politicians, and others in the Washington limelight. Index. For first two volumes see entries under titles: Washington Merry-go-round, and More Merry-go-round in Book Review Rigest 1931, 1932.

Booklist 47:73 O 15 '50

"Unfortunately for the collaborators, the current pace of events is so rapid that their work began to get the patina of age as it left their typewriter. They were able to squeeze in something of the Korean war, but the ouster of Defense Secretary Johnson and other expected changes in Washington faces date the book not a little." Walter Trohan
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 O 1 '50 410w

"The book has the awful fascination of a gossip column, while at the same time it is extraordinarily informative, not merely as to personalities, their strengths and weaknesses, but as to the top heavy, incompetent, bungling functioning of our governmental machinery Here and there an accolade is bestowed. . . The whole is immensely good reading, controversial as it is, and frequently irritating in a tendency to flippancy, quipping and cheapness."
+ — Kirkus 18:539 S 1 '50 280w

"Unimportant Washington chit-chat." R. W. Henderson
Library J 75:1663 O 1 '50 140w

"Often the anecdotes are revealing and the epithets apt, and most readers will find the book immensely entertaining. The Allen trademark is stamped indelibly." Willard Shelton
+ Nation 171:393 O 28 '50 800w

"The Truman Merry-Go-Round is a fighting indictment of the shoddy and anemic reporting that floods out of Washington each day. It is a welcome political purgative." A. H. Uhl
+ New Repub 123:20 N 13 '50 550w

"Although this book is not likely to shock and horrify us by the destruction of demigods, it must be admitted that it adds to the gaiety of the nation by its terrific fustigation of minor pomposities and frauds. . . We have come through five appalling years under the guidance of this outfit. If they are, as Allen and Shannon imply, all peanuts, why wail and beat the breast? We cannot pull great men like rabbits out of a hat; most of the time we have to manage without them. The real story in this book is its implication that at a pinch, even in terrible times, peanuts will do; and that is not alarming, it is comforting." G. W. Johnson

ALLEN, R. S.—Continued
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p33 O 8 '50 1000w

"These quickie personality sketches are packed with a good deal of information, amusing anecdotes and spicy gossip." Samuel Lubell
N Y Times p6 S 24 '50 950w

"Apparently for the benefit of those readers who are unable to digest straight prose, the authors have interlarded their text with a series of bon mots of an elementary type, such as 'Washington society is like lemon meringue pie without the filling: all fluff and a lot of crust.' These sayings are an unfortunate addition, because the rest of the book seems fairly sensitive."
New Yorker 26:149 O 14 '50 190w

Reviewed by Gordon Pates
San Francisco Chronicle p19 O 15 '50 750w

"For the reader it is a volume which is chock-full of information, misinformation, venom, and treacle about the men and the institutions that go to make up the always confused and confusing city which the radio commentators always refer to as The Nation's Capital. It is entertaining. It is interesting. But it should be taken with a large grain of salt." Bert Andrews
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:19 O 14 '50 1150w
Time 56:82 O 2 '50 460w

ALLEN, SHIRLEY WALTER. Introduction to American forestry. 2d ed 413p il $4.50 McGraw 634.9 Forests and forestry—U.S. 50-4768

"A textbook for forestry students which should prove of interest and reference value to the general reader. Discusses the economic value of forests, their protection and development, forest products, government and private policy, and the profession of forestry. First published in 1938 [Book Review Digest 1939] and only slightly revised." Booklist

Booklist 47:41 S 15 '50

"This new edition is not greatly changed, but revisions have been made to correspond with changing forestry policies in this country, to bring the reading lists up to date, to revise the information on opportunities in forestry, etc." R. R. Hawkins
Library J 75:1299 Ag '50 110w

ALLEN, WALTER ERNEST. Reading a novel. 58p $1.25 Swallow, A.
028.4 Fiction [50-754]

"In his extended essay, the author has set up standards whereby the general reader can measure his own judgment of the modern novel. He has mapped the modern reader's approach to the novel, and has attempted to show the current function of the novelist. Of special interest will be the last section. Here, six recent European novels are critically analyzed. Among those chosen were Greene's The Power and the Glory, and Cary's The Horse's Mouth." Library J

"Readers who enjoy fiction and those who ordinarily shun it, or examine it with critical aloofness, may all gain from a study of this essay by Walter Allen, an English literary critic." M. W. Stoer
+ Christian Science Monitor p4 Ap 15 '50 550w

Reviewed by W. K. Harrison
Library J 75:695 Ap 15 '50 80w

"This brief essay contains many sensible and enlightened observations on the modern novel. They sound rather obvious and shopworn, perhaps because Mr. Allen seems to address his remarks to the middle-brow (a term he overuses), whom he hopes to entice to better fiction than the lending libraries display."
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:27 Ap 29 '50 100w

ALLPORT, GORDON WILLARD. The individual and his religion; a psychological interpretation. 147p $2.50 Macmillan
201 Psychology, Religious 50-5982

An interpretation of the significance of religion from the psychological standpoint. The author is professor of psychology in the department of social relations at Harvard University. Index.

Reviewed by P. R. Farnsworth
Ann Am Acad 270:184 Jl '50 400w

"This is one of the few books of modern times that this reviewer finds absorbing to the last paragraph. He feels that he cannot skip a single sentence for fear of missing something—and I mean something significant." T. F. Opie
+ Churchman 164:15 My 1 '50 150w
Cleveland Open Shelf p14 Ag '50

"In examining religion in general from the point of view of psychology in general, there has been no book comparable to this since William James. . . It is true that his work is brief and is suggestive rather than exhaustive. But it is so penetrating that it may well stimulate the more detailed work still needed." Seward Hiltner
+ J Religion 30:293 O '50 650w

"An important book, written by one of our best known psychologists."
+ Kirkus 17:649 D 1 '49 130w

"Mr. Allport's analysis of faith as a venturing trust or wager, as distinguished from absolute certainty, is not only suggestive for theology; it helps to clear the air of the kind of unwarranted dogmatism which psychology and adult religion rightly reject. . . As a scientist concerned with religion in relation to personality structure, he has consciously excluded 'revealed religion.' The difficulty in this approach is that the great religious traditions all insist upon a 'revelational' as well as an 'evolving' side. This factor is of considerable psychological significance, and its omission means that the fuller dimensions of the problem have not been explored even from the side of psychology, much less from the side of theology." John Dillenberger
N Y Times p12 Jl 9 '50 400w

"Here is a book about religion which will be a 'must' whenever the public school has sufficient courage to introduce an objective study of religion into the curriculum of secondary education. No high school teacher should attempt to discuss religion in the classroom until he has read this book or one with the same thesis." C. D. Spotts
+ Social Studies 41:376 D '50 600w

"Well written and easy to understand." R. F. Henchey
+ Springf'd Republican p3D F 26 '50 180w

"It is a psychological interpretation of religion which will rank very high among such scientific studies and should be carefully distinguished by the general reader from the current 'peace of mind' books. Every reader and critic should ponder the preface carefully and so gain a clear impression of the specific purpose of the book. That statement reflects the wisdom of a mind well informed in many fields and a mature religious faith, as well as the poised and careful work of a scientist and scholar." P. J. Braisted
+ Survey 86:279 My '50 500w

"Valuable for ministers as well as others interested in psychology."
+ Wis Lib Bul p17 Mr '50

ALMOND, GABRIEL ABRAHAM. American people and foreign policy. 269p $3.75 Harcourt
327.73 U.S.—Foreign policy. Public opinion —U.S. 50-6254

An analysis of American attitudes toward foreign policy, which attempts to relate them to other basic American attitudes. Partial contents: World leadership and human material; The psychological impact of the cold war; American character and foreign policy; Changes in the foreign policy mood; Social groupings and the foreign policy mood; Consensus in a world of crisis. Index.

"Discerning and profound study." Robert Strausz-Hupé
+ Am Pol Sci R 44:757 S '50 1400w

"It is fortunate that the book, which is equipped with the scholarly apparatus of source citations and an index, is written and produced in such a way as to reach a diversified audience. There is caviar here for the jaded professional appetite and red meat for the keen beginner." Barrington Moore
+ Am Soc R 15:688 O '50 600w

"The book deserves a reading; the plea deserves a hearing." L. M. Sears
Ann Am Acad 271:186 S '50 400w
Booklist 46:310 Je 15 '50
Bookmark 9:207 Je '50 40w
Foreign Affairs 29:150 O '50 20w

"Difficult reading and probably not for the average layman, but a useful work." Donald Wasson
Library J 75:489 Mr 15 '50 80w

Reviewed by B. J. Loewenberg
New Repub 123:20 O 23 '50 900w

" 'The American People and Foreign Policy' is one of a series of publications sponsored by the Yale Institute of International Studies. These projects . . . have made many valuable contributions to an understanding and clarification of America's world role. This latest volume, which is modestly written, lucid and pertinent. takes its place worthily in the series." August Heckscher
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p17 Mr 26 '50 800w

"A timely, stimulating and well-documented book." C. R. Miller
+ N Y Times p4 Mr 26 '50 650w
San Francisco Chronicle p20 Je 4 '50 110w

"This is an important book. No previous analysis has penetrated deeper to the heart of an immensely important problem, the problem of public opinion and the conduct of foreign affairs. If Mr. Almond sees the difficulties clearly, and exposes them ruthlessly, he writes nonetheless in a tone very far from despairing. And he ends on a note of hopefulness, of the kind of hopefulness that comes from clearer thinking and more disciplined feeling." Dexter Perkins
+ Sat R of Lit 33:19 Ap 29 '50 650w

Reviewed by L. L. Wright
Survey 86:272 My '50 650w
U S Quarterly Bkl 6:214 Je '50 260w

"I think Mr. Almond overdoes his attack on optimistic idealists; certainly some ministers and teachers have ducked the facts of life, but one may wonder whether the answer is an equal overemphasis on the gloomier facts. Surely there is something missing in a study of American attitudes towards foreign policy which omits the influence, real and potential, of the basic American commitment to freedom. Mr. Almond himself, in his very first chapter, points out that this commitment is the mainspring of our willingness to act in world affairs; his useful and stimulating book would have been greatly improved if he had not left this point aside throughout his later analysis." McGeorge Bundy
Yale R n s 39:726 summer '50 1050w

ALPATOV, MIKHAIL VLADIMIROVICH. Russian impact on art; ed. and with a pref. by Martin L. Wolf; tr. from the Russian by Ivy Litvinov. 352p 32pl $7.50 Philosophical lib.

709.47 Art, Russian. Russia—Civilization 50-8302

"Mikhail Alpatov, a professor at Moscow University and a recognized expert on European art in general, has written a book that attempts to prove that in all divisions of art Russia has contributed monuments comparable to the best in Western Europe and worthy of a distinguished place in the history of world art." (New Repub) Bibliography. Glossary. Index.

Bookmark 10:36 N '50 30w

"It is futile to apply a canon of objective criticism to an art book cut so obviously to a nationalistic bias. When art throughout the world, Orient and Occident, is becoming international; when there is an artistic giving and taking between nations and races; when there is such a deep and humble appreciation of mutual values in cultural heritages, texts like Alpatov's would seem ingenuous, if they were not invested with such significance." Dorothy Adlow
Christian Science Monitor p9 Jl 8 '50 500w

"A remarkable amount of knowledge and a curious lack of discrimination, according to our free cultural standards, have gone into the writing of this book on Russian art—a work that presents in scarcely disguised form the official trends of Soviet culture today. As such, this learned work by Professor Alpatov of Moscow University is worth studying, because it gives us an approximate idea of how and why art is taught in the universities of the USSR." Helene Iswolsky
Commonweal 52:466 Ag 18 '50 650w

"Despite a manifest desire to be objective in appraising the contributions of Russian art in the light of those of the West, Professor Alpatov tends to defeat his own thesis by falling into the hopelessly defensive and chauvinistic attitude of so many Russian historians of art." E. J. Simmons
— + New Repub 123:20 Ag 7 '50 1200w

ALTICK, RICHARD DANIEL. Scholar adventurers. 338p $5 Macmillan

820.72 Literary forgeries and mystifications. Research. English literature—History and criticism 50-11053

"Dr. Altick of Ohio State University here writes about the Wise and Collier forgeries, the Malahide Castle Boswell papers, the murder of Christopher Marlowe, the Brontës' Angria romances, Wordsworth's natural daughter, and the indefatigable investigators, whether members of the Modern Language Association and Bibliographical Society of America or independent researchers, who have brought these and like marvels to the light of day and the pages of Modern Language Notes and PMLA." (Library J) Index.

Kirkus 18:625 O 1 '50 130w

"The name of Altick will henceforth rank with Mott, Newton, Pearson, Starrett, Winterich, and other masters of the art of making books and their makers living realities." E. F. Walbridge
+ Library J 75:1822 O 15 '50 130w

"To remark upon his limitations is not intended as an adverse criticism of Mr. Altick's book but merely to indicate his range of interest. Within that range he has selected very wisely. Here are the stories of most of the most exciting new discoveries brought to light by the patient industry, the acumen, the combination of luck and cunning, possessed by various investigators." S. C. Chew
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 D 31 '50 1200w

"The race against oblivion is never wholly won; the charm of Mr. Altick's book is that he conveys to the reader the excitement of the chase and the thrill that comes when the scholar, after long groping and frustration, at last holds the document that answers his questions." Delancey Ferguson
+ N Y Times p6 D 10 '50 850w
School & Society 72:382 D 9 '50 40w

ALTMAN, RALPH. Availability for work; a study in unemployment compensation. 350p $4.50 Harvard univ. press

331.25444 Insurance, Unemployment. Unemployment. Labor supply—U.S. 50-5400

"Availability, one of the most important conditions of employment compensation eligibility.

ALTMAN, RALPH—Continued
means a readiness, willingness and ability to work. Rulings of unavailability are more numerous than any other type of benefit disqualification. . . Mr. Altman surveys the field and examines the numerous administrative and court decisions on the subject, pointing out in which respects these, in his opinion, leave something to be desired. He discusses the labor market and the labor force, the relative immobility of workers between occupations, industries and areas, the search for work and for workers, their ability to work, their restrictions as to hours, wages and job location, and the special problems raised by students, seasonal and female workers, and the self-employed. (There is no table of cases)." (Pol Sci Q) Index.

"We need studies such as this, careful, comprehensive, analytical—still very rare in their field—to provide us with a report of progress and a statement of unsettled issues." C. A. Kulp

+ Ann Am Acad 271:207 S '50 480w

Management R 39:507 Ag '50 110w

"As the first full-length exposition of an important concept in the field of unemployment compensation [this book] is a timely aid. . . Mr. Altman suggests a presumption of availability arising from a claimant's prior working history as well as his registration with the employment office. It would appear that utilization of technical presumptions may pave the way for the imposition of a burden of proof, a burden which he points out elsewhere has no place in a claimant's benefit proceeding. Despite these and other caveats, however, students and technicians in the field will be grateful to Mr. Altman for his contribution to the subject." Sidney Schindler

+ — Pol Sci Q 65:312 Je '50 700w

"This book will prove very useful not only to administrators but to all people who want to understand the way in which unemployment compensation is operating. . . This is not light reading, but is a valuable contribution to knowledge on a subject of great interest and importance in keeping with the high standards of the Wertheim studies." E. E. Witte

+ Survey 86:214 Ap '50 500w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:197 Je '50 240w

ALTSCHULE, MARK DAVID. Physiology in diseases of the heart and lungs. 368p $5 Harvard univ. press

612.17 Heart—Diseases. Lungs—Diseases

"Dr. Altschule has attempted to condense, in the twelve chapters of this book, the voluminous recent literature on cardiorespiratory physiology in health and disease, and has provided each section of the text with a comprehensive bibliography." (U S Quarterly Bkl) Index.

"The great clarity of the presentation, and the sound approach throughout, may occasion a wish that Dr. Altschule had not set such a modest limit for the size and scope of this volume. But perhaps the major virtues of the book depend on its relative simplicity and its self-imposed limitations. It would be a poor show of appreciation to complain that the very excellence of a book makes it seem all too short." Ancel Keys

+ Am J Pub Health 40:346 Mr '50 270w

"Although designed primarily for third and fourth year medical students, this monograph will probably be more useful as a reference work for internists and for young clinical investigators in cardiology. . . The scientific advances in this field in the last decade or two have made it essential for clinicians at this time to refresh their knowledge of circulatory dynamics so that they may employ the newer methods of diagnosis and therapy of cardiovascular and pulmonary disorders with understanding. The publication of this monograph is, therefore, timely."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:527 D '49 130w

ALVAREZ DEL VAYO, JULIO. The last optimist [tr. by Charles Duff]. 406p $4 Viking

B or 92 Statesmen—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 50-5146

Autobiography of a Spanish journalist and diplomat who was at one time foreign minister of the Spanish Republic. At present he is foreign editor of The Nation. Since 1939 he has been an exile from his native land. "He tells of his childhood in Spain, his studies and journalistic work in Germany, England and France. As a newspaperman in the post-World War I peace conferences, he interviewed and knew the top statesmen of Europe and America." (N Y Times) The story of his life is brought up to the year 1949. Index.

Booklist 46:188 F 1 '50

Reviewed by Elaine Cummings

Canadian Forum 30:19 Ap '50 210w

"The strokes of his brush are strongest on the first third of the painting. There he tells the story of his youth in Spain and his first visits to Paris, London and Germany. He is an impartial but interested observer of these student days; broad, generous, fair and lively. . . For the last two-thirds of his autobiography, Senor Alvarez del Vayo is prosecutor, defender and jury in a series of political cases that can be of great interest only to a life-long Socialist. . . His judgments, therefore, are partisan and hence suspect. His Socialist adversaries no doubt can find many inequities in them. As a relatively uninformed reader, I thought them fair enough, though the bitterness of this eternal optimist shows through in many places." Irving Pflaum

+ Chicago Sun p4S Ja 24 '50 550w

"A book which is catching, sad, and instructive at one and the same time. . . A reading of this book leaves one with a deeper understanding of many of the crucial questions which wrack the world today. And such understanding is always requisite before any constructive action can be taken or even conceived." J. G. Harrison

+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Ja 21 '50 600w

Commonweal 51:492 F 10 '50 200w

Current Hist 18:228 Ap '50 40w

Foreign Affairs 29:155 O '50 20w

"There is a great, warm personality here—a personality which reflects vividly the important—and unimportant—people he met and/or knew, the issues for which he lived and argued, the international events in which he was either an interested observer or active participant. Wonderfully alive sketches of names-in-the news, a sensitive evaluation of not only the Spanish political and literary scene but also of international problems yesterday and today."

+ Kirkus 17:620 N 1 '49 180w

Reviewed by Donald Wasson

Library J 74:1752 N 15 '49 170w

Manchester Guardian p4 O 31 '50 300w

"It is as autobiographer that he must here be appraised, and he can be enthusiastically commended for the part of the book which is truly personal narrative. This is on the highest level of historical autobiography; it is observant, detached, wise, human, and alive. . . The final chapters of the book, while disappointing autobiography, are admirable polemics." Raymond Swing

+ — Nation 170:62 Ja 21 '50 1550w

Reviewed by A. H. Uhl

New Repub 122:20 Ap 3 '50 1000w

New Statesman & Nation 40:523 N 25 '50 150w

"About half of this autobiography deals with other lands and leading figures he has met in them. Countless interesting names are scattered through its pages, but we learn little of interest concerning them. . . Whenever the author turns to Spain, however, the book becomes livelier and charged with feeling." B. D. Wolfe

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Mr 12 '50 1000w

"Alvarez del Vayo's fascinating autobiography is worth while if only because it will make readers angry and argumentative. If

'Vayo' (friends and foes know him only under that name) were a less attractive, intelligent and sincere man, one would suspect that at times he has his tongue in his cheek. . . It goes without saying that such a man has a remarkable story to tell and that he writes it expertly." H. L. Matthews

+ N Y Times p3 Ja 22 '50 800w

"His memories are rich and fascinating, for he has known such people as Lenin and Krupskaya, Nehru, Rosa Luxemburg and Karl Liebknecht, as well as the artists and writers of the School of Paris, who brought off a little revolution of their own, and, of course, everyone who counted for anything in Spanish public life before Franco."

+ New Yorker 25:101 Ja 21 '50 140w

Reviewed by R. G. Colodny

San Francisco Chronicle p15 F 19 '50 700w

"Julio Alvarez Del Vayo's autobiography makes fascinating reading. It shows a man whose sincerity is as admirable as his passion for creating a better world. . . Unfortunately, it also shows that sincerity and experience are not enough to give one a clear insight into the grave issues of the day." H. B. Kranz

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:21 Mr 18 '50 800w

AMERICAN COUNCIL ON EDUCATION. Universities of the world outside U. S. A. See Chambers, M. M., ed.

AMERICAN educator encyclopedia; a thoroughly modern work designed to meet the needs of every age; ed. by the late Gordon J. Laing and by Harry Orrin Gillet. 10v il maps $59.50; to schools and libraries $49.50 United educators, inc, 6 N. Michigan av. Chicago

031 Encyclopedias and dictionaries 50-13471

"According to the preface and a publicity brochure, The American Educator Encyclopedia is intended to supply 'a compact and reliable source of information' useful to many groups of adult readers, teachers, and students at a price within the reach of the average family and the low-budget school. It aims to meet the reading and interest levels of elementary children, young people, and adults. . . It was reviewed in Subscription Books Bulletin in January 1930, April 1938; additional information was given in July 1942; and the last review appeared in the January 1943 Bulletin. . . The articles are generally brief and factual. The average length of each is 15 to 20 lines. . . A few of the articles are long and comprehensive. . . Topics included are of major general and historical importance but the set lacks articles on many topics of recent and current note, principally biographical. . . A check of factual statements against those given in other standard encyclopedias indicates a high degree of accuracy for what is given; however, there is a lack of up-to-dateness. . . A topical index resembling reading outlines is found in volume 10." Subscription Bks Bul

"The style of The American Educator Encyclopedia is clear and lucid but for the most part far too advanced to meet the needs of younger children. A vocabulary check by means of the Flesch formula indicates a general college level. However, accompanying some of the articles likely to be of interest to children and young people are 'Wonder Questions' with brief paragraph explanations written in simple, direct language that is well within the reading range of the upper elementary and junior high school student. . . Although The American Educator Encyclopedia cannot compete with other major encyclopedias in inclusiveness and fullness, the set does contain much useful information in brief survey form. The coverage is fairly broad for topics of general importance in all fields. The volumes contain some material of interest to all ages. The American Educator Encyclopedia is recommended therefore for school, home, and public library purchase in cases where the price of a more complete encyclopedia is prohibitive."

+ — Subscription Bks Bul 21:35 Jl '50 1200w

AMERICAN library directory, 1948; a classified list of 11,334 libraries with names of librarians and statistical data; comp. under the direction of Karl Brown. 731p $17.50 Bowker

027 Libraries—U.S.—Directories

"The contents of this enlarged post-war statistical library directory list the following eight sections: Libraries in the United States; Libraries in the U.S. Territories and Dependencies; Libraries of Canada and Newfoundland; Library Schools; Library Organizations; State and Provincial Extension Agencies; Special Collections and Libraries; and Index of Memorial Names. In the first three sections, which comprise 684 pages of the book, the names of libraries and librarians are listed (occasionally including other top personnel); information is given in regard to branches, stations, volumes, circulation, income, salaries, book and periodical expenditures, special collections and special subjects covered. The data given cover public, college and junior college, law, medical, institutional, hospital, federal, state and special libraries." Subscription Bks Bul

"The material is detailed, excellently edited and organized, unusually complete, and easily used, especially because of the boldface headings, the numerous see references, and the supplementary indexes. . . Generally, the Directory gives up-to-date information. The omissions of statistics under numerous small public libraries is regrettable. . . The American Library Directory is recommended for purchase by all libraries which need such directory information."

+ Subscription Bks Bul 20:27 Jl '49 550w

AMERICAN peoples encyclopedia; a comprehensive modern-minded reference work; Walter Dill Scott, chairman, editorial bd; Franklin J. Meine, ed-in-chief. 20v il maps $79.50-$149.50; school & lib ed $120 Spencer press, 153 N. Michigan av, Chicago 1; for sale by Sears, Roebuck & co, W. Arthington & S. Homan, Chicago

031 Encyclopedias and dictionaries 50-5095

"The American Peoples Encyclopedia is planned with up-to-dateness and 'utility for the home, school, office, and library' as major objectives. . . The work is, according to the publisher, 'not a revision of Nelson's Encyclopedia but a completely new encyclopedia developed with Nelson's Encyclopedia as a background.' . . Many articles have been prepared by well-known authorities. . . The Encyclopedia is, on the whole, made up of small topics. It contains short articles of the definition type in a somewhat larger proportion than Encyclopedia Americana and World Book Encyclopedia, though there are many long articles." Subscription Bks Bul

"Anyone who has a Sears Roebuck catalogue can get a full description of this thoroughly modern encyclopedia from the sales point of view, for Sears is the sole distributor. That channel ought to get it into the hands and homes of a large part of that great mass of 'American people' for whom it is intended. At the same time the intelligentsia, if they are intelligent enough to base their judgment on essentials, will not think lightly of it as mere mail-order culture. . . While the scope of the work is encyclopedic, in the sense of covering all kinds of topics about which the intellectually inquisitive mind or the seeker for specific information may inquire, the emphasis seems to be more on the sciences than on the humanities, and more on new knowledge and recent events than on the remote past. . . On the whole, the report on [the religious] aspect of the work is favorable." W. E. Garrison

+ — Christian Century 66:1296 N 2 '49 1850w

"For the most part the writing is popular in tone and content, giving adequate but not exhaustive accounts. Usually it is dignified and straightforward in manner. Vocabulary and sentence structure make it too difficult reading for children. . . The numerous photographs are well-chosen, interesting and pertinent, but many do not come out clearly in the printing. . . For homes and libraries, with limited funds

AMERICAN peoples encyclopedia—Continued
and materials, desiring a moderate priced, useful although not exhaustive encyclopedia The American Peoples Encyclopedia is recommended."
+ — Subscription Bks Bul 20:9 Ap '49 1600w

AMERICAN SOCIETY OF TOOL ENGINEERS. Tool engineers handbook; a reference book on all phases of planning, control, design, tooling, and operations in the mechanical manufacturing industries. 2070p il $15 McGraw

621.7 Machine tools. Machine shop practice 49-5892

"More than the conventional handbook, this compendium draws on 152 specialists to describe by word and diagram, in 115 sections or chapters, the mechanical, thermal, and electrical fabrication of practically every tool and machine. The book contains not only the established standards of screw threads, twist drills, and gears, but also lays emphasis throughout on the most economical use of these devices in the construction of a given product. In this connection, the book brings together as collaborators the eighteen thousand members of the American Society of Tool Engineers, whose experience is invaluable." U S Quarterly Bkl

Booklist 46:116 D 1 '49
U S Quarterly Bkl 5:541 D '49 240w

AMERICAN SPEECH AND HEARING ASSOCIATION. Speech problems of children. See Johnson, W., ed.

AMES, DELANO L. Death of a fellow traveller. 247p $2.50 Rinehart
50-8907

Detective story.

Kirkus 18:343 Je 15 '50 70w

"The new Delano Ames opens in a vein of broad farce which is rather too bad because the rest of the book is both sophisticated and subtly plotted. However it would be carping to complain about such a fault in a book which is otherwise witty and skillful."
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 S 17 '50 90w

"Deprived of the sophisticated and often amusing chatter of the hero and heroine (of which there is too much) and of the lively genre background, this would be a very dull puzzler. In spite of its title, the book has nothing to do with Communists." M. H. Oakes
— N Y Times p11 S 3 '50 140w

"A little too coy for comfort."
New Yorker 26:76 S 2 '50 130w

AMES, DELANO L. Murder begins at home. 249p $2.50 Rinehart
50-6077

Detective story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun p4 Mr 17 '50 80w
Kirkus 18:11 Ja 1 '50 70w

"Delano Ames's new book, which follows in rapid succession an intelligently plotted and witty mystery he published this fall, is right up to the standard of the first."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p24 Ap 2 '50 230w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
N Y Times p23 Ap 9 '50 150w

"The story, as told by Brown's wife, is full of violence and Southwestern atmosphere but may be a bit too cute for everybody's taste."
New Yorker 26:123 Mr 25 '50 130w

AMIOT, PIERRE. Bijou, the little bear; il. by [the author] tr. from the French by Jacqueline de Leon. [24p] $1.75 Coward-McCann
50-9327

Picture story book about a little French girl who is kept imprisoned by wicked Mme Octavia. The little girl is rescued by two bears, goes to the carnival with them, and finally goes to live with the kind bear family.

Reviewed by Marcia Winn
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 N 12 '50 60w
Kirkus 18:412 Ag 1 '50 120w

"All the ingredients to please a small child, aged 5-7, are here. . . Recommended." Elaine Beatty
+ Library J 75:1670 O 1 '50 100w

"Assembled in this very Gallic picture book is as beguiling a company of bears as we have seen in many a day. As drawn by M. Amiot they have a good deal of that bland drollery which has made Babar the Elephant such a favorite." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p36 S 10 '50 140w

AMORY, CLEVELAND. Home town. 310p $3 Harper
50-5049

A satire on book publishers and the publishing business generally. The hero is Mitch Hickok from Arizona, who is brought to New York by the publishers of his book, Home Town. He goes thru all the ballyhoo and cocktail parties completely unmoved and unimpressed, and returns, unspoiled, to his "home town."

Reviewed by Edward Weeks
Atlantic 185:82 Ap '50 270w

"This very slight story is a satire on publishing promotion, which carries more sting than humor. A disappointment to those who enjoyed The Proper Bostonians."
Booklist 46:172 Ja 15 '50
Bookmark 9:107 F '50 50w

"A reader need have no stronger connection with the publishing world than a subscription card in the local library to enjoy this easygoing satire." Mary Sandrock
+ Cath World 170:475 Mr '50 240w

"This is an astonishingly poor performance. And though I may have written less severe reviews of worse books, I did not consider their authors to be of the caliber of Cleveland Amory, who knows better." E. D.
— Chicago Sun p7X Ja 29 '50 270w

"Cleveland Amory's 'Home Town' is 100 proof satire. That it satirizes the way books are publicized makes it the year's prize book to anybody in the book business, of course, but all any reader needs in ways of preparation for its hilarious enjoyment is just to be able to read. If you have ever read a popular book the popularity promotion methods described in it will make you chortle. If you've ever listened to authors talk at a woman's club you'll rush out and find someone with whom you can share those pages." Fanny Butcher
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ja 15 '50 550w
Cleveland Open Shelf p4 Ja '50
Kirkus 17:609 N 1 '49 160w

"Mr. Amory overdoes the simplicity. His style, to match the laconic honesty of Mitch, is stripped down to monosyllabic nakedness. . . Fortunately there's variety and often explosive comedy in the telling, including every last item of publishing promotion data, from correspondence files, newspaper columns, editorial questionnaires and blurbs. And out of it all emerges a light, bright satire, as fresh as a newborn author and as true as the words of jest." Richard Mealand
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Ja 15 '50 750w

"A genial if somewhat oversimplified lampoon of the ruses and devices and skepticism of book publishers, their aides and allies and outriders. . . 'Home Town' may well give impending authors pause. Mr. Amory has written his expose tersely, humorously and with muffled malice. He concludes with the suspicion that authors are happier at home than in the publisher's wringer." Richard Maney

+ N Y Times p26 Ja 8 '50 600w

"Mr. Amory's novel, which includes a few lively scenes and several funny parodies, is more likely to amuse publishers, their clients, and his own friends than the rest of us. Most of its comedy depends on the contrast between the young author and the literary camp followers he meets, but, unfortunately, the poor fellow seems just as dull as they do, and his jargon seems, in its own way, just as faked as theirs."
New Yorker 25:97 Ja 21 '50 120w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p16 Ja 11 '50 750w

"Take a newspaperman from a small town in Arizona, have him write a book and get it published, then bring him to New York and put him through the hoops—cocktail parties, ladies' clubs, radio and television appearances, and the rest of it. What have you got? A much-told tale, certainly. But a good raconteur can take an old one and do wonders with it, even though the audience has heard it before, and so Mr. Amory has told this old one with an antic wit that makes his book good company." John Brooks
+ Sat R of Lit 33:15 Ja 7 '50 600w

Reviewed by J. W. Culver
Springf'd Republican p3D Ja 22 '50 250w

Reviewed by Harry Hansen
Survey 86:156 Mr '50 150w

Times [London] Lit Sup p609 S 29 '50 240w

"Good fun."
+ Wis Lib Bul 46:19 Ja '50

AMRINE, MICHAEL. Secret, a novel. 311p $3 Houghton
50-8771

Story of an American scientist who was employed by the government first in the researches leading up to the atomic bomb, later in the study of the effects of the bombing on Japan.

Booklist 47:12 S 1 '50

Chicago Sun p12 Ag 15 '50 50w

"In form, 'Secret' is a novel; in effect, it is an essay. As a novel, it is slightly poorer than fair; as an essay, it is first-rate. . . What is important is that Mr. Amrine has dramatized, with telling power, the human and ethical problems of the atomic bomb. His 'essay' deserves wide and thoughtful reading." V. P. Hass
+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 S 3 '50 500w

Reviewed by Roland Sawyer
Christian Science Monitor p12 Ag 8 '50 600w

Cleveland Open Shelf p16 Ag '50

"It may be said that experience does not come through. Mr. Amrine states that a person experiences a certain reaction or feeling, but he does not convince us, he does not show us. There is no emotion in the novel: everything is on the descriptive and narrative level. In short, fiction does not seem to be Mr. Amrine's medium." F. X. Duggan
Commonweal 52:564 S 15 '50 470w

Kirkus 18:315 Je 1 '50 190w

"Despite the world-shaking events covered in this book, the author has failed to create either an absorbing or important novel." J. E. Brown
— Library J 75:1180 Jl '50 150w

"'Secret,' Michael Amrine's first novel, is a bitter, provocative book that should be read by every one who is looking for a key to the international confusion of the post-war years. Military men have been discussing the various lethal properties of an atomic explosion: blast, radiation, radioactive poison gas. Mr. Amrine dramatizes the deadliest of all effects of an atom bomb—mere possession of it." Mitchell Wilson
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Ag 6 '50 750w

"In taking his protagonist from a quiet college campus to Oak Ridge, Los Alamos, Washington and Hiroshima, Michael Amrine has chosen the most dramatic material available in the world today. Yet 'Secret' has a curiously static quality. Instead of populating his book with people he has sprinkled it with ideas, good ideas, admirable ideas. Yet the present reader couldn't help wishing he had written a factual account of what went on in the Manhattan Engineering District and the Federation of Atomic Scientists." Merle Miller
— + N Y Times p16 Ag 6 '50 450w

"It is a startling and in many ways a shocking novel, not so much because of what it reveals of the atom bomb project from its inception but because of what it suggests may go on behind the curtain of 'security.' Mr. Amrine, as it happens, knows something of what he is talking about, since he was publications editor for the American Federation of Scientists during their 1946 campaign for civilian control of atomic energy. He has seen more than most people of what did go on behind the curtain, and here he lays out for the reader of his novel some of the questions that have come out of the relationship between the successful splitting of the atom and world politics and war." J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ag 11 '50 500w

"'Secret' is not very successful as a novel. . . . Mr. Amrine has assumed a responsibility in writing fiction about a man he identifies as one of the top-ranking scientists of America, and I suspect that he has done the actual top scientists an unintentional injustice. Whether these men are really as limited, innocently arrogant in their rectitude, and hemmed in by lack of humor and understanding as B. F. Halverson, remains very much of a question. If they are—or if, as seems more likely, there is just an element of Halverson in some of them—then the reason for their failure to convert us all to internationalism is evident." John Brooks
— + Sat R of Lit 33:14 Ag 5 '50 1000w
Wis Lib Bul 46:23 S '50

ANDERSON, CLARENCE WILLIAM. Blaze finds the trail. [48p] il $1.50 Macmillan 50-10357

Another story about Billy and his pony, Blaze. They go for a ride and get lost in the forest, but Blaze finds the trail and they arrive home safely.

Booklist 47:140 D 1 '50

Reviewed by Richard Blakesley
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 N 12 '50 140w

Christian Science Monitor p11 N 13 '50 20w

Kirkus 18:557 S 15 '50 120w

"Recommended for ages 6-8." Virginia Russell
+ Library J 75:2081 D 1 '50 70w

"It's a lovely book, with Mr. Anderson's pictures at their very best. Young horse artists (of whom there are thousands) will want it, whatever their age. The text is good, easy-reading for six to eight year olds." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 N 12 '50 120w

Reviewed by A. N. Fedder
N Y Times p32 N 12 '50 90w

ANDERSON, CLARENCE WILLIAM. Horses are folks [il. by the author]. 90p $3.50 Harper
636.1 Horses 50-10733

Articles on horses comparing them to human beings. Partial contents: The toddlers; Teenagers; Rugged individualists; The prima donnas; Square shooters; The top drawer. Illustrated with many lithographs and drawings.

Booklist 47:159 D 15 '50

"Mr. Anderson, who knows what he is talking about, says that any horse can communicate its needs and wishes to you if you will only take the time to understand. Children, as well as adults, will enjoy this book." Richard Blakesley

ANDERSON, C. W.—Continued

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 N 19 '50 270w

"This book is a blue ribbon winner, that will bring a gasp of delight from young and adult lovers of fine horses and fine sketches."

+ Kirkus 18:693 D 1 '50 120w

"We meet a rare gallery of horse characters, who, in text and portrait, become very real to us. Anderson fans, who are legion, will grab it at once. One might hint to those about to buy one of the many horse stories in juvenile fiction for youngsters of twelve or over, that this might well accompany the gift, if not supersede it. Fiction you can always borrow, but an Anderson, once owned, is seldom loaned."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 N 26 '50 150w

ANDERSON, DWIGHT. The other side of the bottle. 258p $3 Wyn

616.861 Alcoholism 50-9676

"The author's own story of his recovery, eighteen years ago, from a seemingly incurable form of alcoholism is supplemented by numerous vivid case histories taken from life and literature." (Publisher's note) Index.

"One of the most inclusive books on alcoholism to date. . . A good job."

+ Kirkus 18:410 Jl 15 '50 170w

"This is a first-rate book worthy of the studious and frank approach the author has devoted to it." Haven Emerson

+ N Y Times p43 O 22 '50 170w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p20 O 10 '50 280w

"There are some odd emphases and serious omissions throughout—none of which will be discernible to the uninitiate in this field and none of which detracts from the importance or value of this book." Joseph Hirsh

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:14 D 30 '50 550w

"This book ought to prove very helpful to anyone concerned with alcoholism, whether individually, professionally or through close relationship to someone suffering from the disease." Yvelin Gardner

+ Survey 86:570 D '50 240w

Time 56:95 O 9 '50 550w

ANDERSON, MRS ETHEL TODD. Rainbow campus. 192p $2.25 Nelson

50-8997

The setting for this college story is the University of Hawaii. Several young students of mixed ancestry learn that an Indian prince is attending the university incognito, and they set out to discover him. For ages twelve to sixteen.

Kirkus 18:421 Ag 1 '50 90w

Reviewed by Eleanor Kidder

Library J 75:1673 O 1 '50 80w

"A first-rate picture of the University of Hawaii with its cosmopolitan campus, its irresistible blend of east and west in student body, studies, fun and food. . . Girls will enjoy the slight mystery and the exotic setting; they will absorb much authentic information about our 49th or 50th state-to-be." M. C. Scoggin

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 O 22 '50 140w

"A popular type of college story based upon appreciation of Hawaii, but not upon outstanding authorship." Irene Smith

N Y Times p16 Jl 23 '50 170w

ANDERSON, GEORGE KUMLER. Literature of the Anglo-Saxons. 431p maps $5 Princeton univ. press

829.09 Anglo-Saxon literature 49-5732

"Surveying the entire canon of Anglo-Saxon literature from the beginnings to the Norman Conquest, this is the first one-volume descriptive history of the subject to appear in many years. Two introductory chapters prepare for detailed accounts of the heroic and Christian epics, the elegiac, religious, and other lyrics, the Anglo-Latin literature, and the works of Alfred, Aelfric, and Wulfstan. Shorter chapters discuss prose fiction, secular didactic writings, and scientific materials." U S Quarterly Bkl

"The book furnishes a good introduction to Anglo-Saxon literature and thought for the beginner and provides one only moderately acquainted with the period with a very full list of materials for further study, both in original documents and in scholarly commentary." J. D. A. Ogilvy

+ Am Hist R 55:582 Ap '50 1050w

"The author presents his work with a strong appeal to the modern scholar to extend his present interest in the basic value [of] the Old English language, to include a serious study of the literature for its own sake because it reveals the making of that particular type of individuality which is called English." Leila Flower

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 D 29 '49 600w

Times [London] Lit Sup p535 Ag 25 '50 700w

"Extensive bibliographical and critical footnotes collected at the end of each of the fourteen chapters comprise more than a fourth of the book, and constitute one of the best reviews in print of relevant scholarship. Four maps and a sixteen-page index facilitate the usefulness of what is likely to become a standard resource in its field. The book is a contribution to cultural as well as literary history."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:444 D '49 180w

ANDERSON, MAXWELL. Lost in the stars. 86p $2.75 Sloane

812 Paton, Alan—Cry, the Beloved Country 50-7189

A dramatization of the Alan Paton novel: Cry, the Beloved Country (Book Review Digest 1948), which tells of the tribulations of a South African Zulu minister.

Booklist 46:272 My 1 '50

"Maxwell Anderson has made a beautiful dramatization of Alan Paton's novel, Cry, the Beloved Country. The poetry written for the songs has a simple beauty which seems to retain the idiom of the Zulu." W. L. C.

+ Churchman 164:15 My 1 '50 70w

Wis Lib Bul 46:17 Jl '50

ANDERSON, OLIVER. In for a penny; with il. by John Mackey. 186p $2.75 Morrow

50-9842

An English novel which satirizes the Brontës and their writings. A young man from London, arrives in a little village to assist the rector. He plots a hoax on the BBC, American publishers, etc. by using the manuscripts of the rector's three daughters. The story is about the working out of this scheme.

"One of the wittiest, bawdiest, most nimble satires ever to emerge from an English countryside. . . It is peopled with some of the zaniest characters you'll ever meet." Richard Blakesley

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 O 15 '50 380w

Kirkus 18:397 Jl 15 '50 190w

"A British satire with all the subtlety of a pile driver, this seems destined for a quick trip to the remainder stands." E. F. Walbridge

— Library J 75:1405 S 1 '50 70w

"'In for a Penny' should really have been written in technicolor. Mr. Anderson's approach is that of Thorne Smith—with brambles."

— N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p38 D 3 '50 250w

Reviewed by Rex Lardner

N Y Times p14 D 17 '50 180w

"As master of pagan revels Oliver Anderson takes Pan for a merry hayride. It will be a pity if his Swinburnean idiom proves too elegant for American devotees of homespun ribaldry. Elmshire semantics being what they are, the double-entendres come pretty thick and fast for the mere unwary Yankee. And I wonder if that burlesque of mysticism doesn't push literate naughtiness a bit too far." A. F. Wolfe
Sat R of Lit 33:14 D 16 '50 380w

ANDERSON, RUDOLPH E. Story of the American automobile; highlights and sidelights. 301p il $3.75 Public affairs press
629.2 Automobiles—History 50-6335

An account of the development of the automobile from early steam coaches in pre-Revolution times to 1930. Illustrated with reproductions of old prints and advertisements. Indexes.

"Useful, factually, for reference on the history and development of the automobile in America, but utterly lacking in any spark of zest for the subject, which is unfortunate."
+ — Kirkus 18:157 Mr 1 '50 190w

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
+ Library J 75:698 Ap 15 '50 70w

"Charming little book." Peter Blake
+ N Y Times p6 Mr 19 '50 230w

"He has done an especially fine job in digging up and captioning his valuable and interesting illustrations."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:50 My 13 '50 140w

ANDRES, PAUL GERHARD. Survey of modern electronics. 522p il $5.75 Wiley
621.38 Electronics 50-10007

"The book is designed for college students. Its main purpose is to convey the importance of electronics in many fields of engineering. Readers without some previous education in electronics will have difficulty with it, but advanced amateur experimenters and general readers who are familiar with the physics of terminology can both use it to get a better understanding of electronics devices and principles than is afforded by the strictly popular books." (Library J) Bibliographies. Index.

Booklist 47:89 N 1 '50

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 75:2007 N 15 '50 140w

ANDREWES, LANCELOT, bp. Private devotions. 146p $1.25 Abingdon-Cokesbury
248 Prayers

A collection of private devotions which was originally written in Greek by the Elizabethan bishop who was largely responsible for the translation of the King James version of the Bible. This edition, translated by John Henry Newman, is reproduced photographically from an edition issued in England in 1897.

"If any collection of private prayers deserves to be included among the 'classics,' these do. . . The publishers have managed to produce a little book of distinguished typographic appearance at a low price."
+ Christian Century 67:1051 S 6 '50 130w

"Andrewes' sensitivity and religious perception, as well as his skill as a writer, are revealed in the manual of devotions he prepared, in Greek, for his personal use. In this translation by John Henry Newman, Andrewes' beauty of language and thought, his fervor and mystical insight, are retained. A small volume, attractively printed, it is a religious book that many will cherish." N. K. Burger
+ N Y Times p33 Mr 12 '50 160w

ANDREWS, KENNETH RICHMOND. Nook Farm; Mark Twain's Hartford circle. 288p il $4.75 Harvard univ. press
B or 92 Clemens, Samuel Langhorne. Hartford 50-9751

"Mark Twain lived from 1871 to 1891 in Nook Farm, a residential section of Hartford, Connecticut. His friends and neighbors there included Charles Dudley Warner, Joseph Twichell, Harriet Beecher Stowe. Mr. Andrews, a member of the faculty of the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration, has written a detailed account of the community's social life, its political and religious ideas, and its literary production." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by Edward Wagenknecht
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 N 5 '50 450w

"Unfortunately, Mr. Andrews' work has two counts against it. First of all, Nook Farm is horribly gushy. . . Secondly, Mr. Andrews not only lets his pedantic side get the best of him, but at times it absolutely overpowers him. He often goes to ludicrous lengths to substantiate a point." R. H. Boyle
Commonweal 53:46 O 20 '50 850w

"A contribution to cultural history . . . and a new enlightening approach to the study of Mark Twain." H. W. Hart
+ Library J 75:1396 S 1 '50 110w

"This painstaking reconstruction of his Hartford environment should settle for good several long-standing controversies about Mark Twain and the American scene. . . To follow Mr. Andrew's scrupulous tracing of all the lines that joined to produce the setting in which the composition of 'Huckleberry Finn' took place necessarily calls for some patience on the reader's part, but in the end the labor is eminently worth the effort." Howard Doughty
+ Nation 171:487 N 25 '50 950w

"Mark Twain scholarship and criticism have taken an impressive turn for the better. The latest books about him—Mr. Andrews's is the third within six months—show a refreshing effort to replace legend and theory with fact. The present volume, moreover, merits special praise as the first to study in detail the background, associations and accomplishments of Mark Twain's greatest and happiest period—the twenty years, 1871 to 1891, which he spent in Hartford." De Lancey Ferguson
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 D 31 '50 1200w

"The cultural generalizations and conclusions of the book are sometimes evasive, and a kind of subdued but firm optimism plays over the whole scene. Perhaps this tone is consistent with the Christian meliorism of the period. Just for what it is—a survey of a community rather than a deep analysis—'Nook Farm' is a good book, and incidentally a handsome one." Maxwell Geismar
+ — N Y Times p5 O 8 '50 550w

"This book at once takes its place as a contribution of major importance to the swiftly growing bulk of Mark Twain literature. It is a big book in everything but mere word-count. . . There is more than two-dimensional superficiality here; there are depth, judgment, shrewd and accurate appraisal, and a scholarly detachment that still has room for humor, warmth, and sympathy." J. T. Winterich
+ Sat R of Lit 33:26 O 14 '50 1200w

ANDREWS, MARSHALL. Disaster through air power. 143p $2 Rinehart
358.4 U.S. Armed services. Aeronautics, Military 50-5502

"A newspaperman and former Army officer, Mr. Andrews accuses the Air Force of leading the country toward military disaster by persuading the public that another war could be won solely by means of air power. He analyzes air power, ground forces and sea power, and advocates a balanced military establishment, claiming that the Air Force has not proved that it can deliver the goods unless backed by the other two arms and fighting along side them. The Army and Navy also come in for a fair amount of criticism for their dilatory peace time actions and their wastefulness." Library J

Booklist 46:195 F 15 '50

Reviewed by Wayne Thomis
Chicago Sun p3 F 5 '50 750w

Christian Century 67:402 Mr 29 '50 200w

ANDREWS, MARSHALL—Continued
Reviewed by Donovan Richardson
Christian Science Monitor p14 F 27 '50 650w

"There are arguments here with which many militarists—as he anticipates—may take issue, but to the average reader (will he read it?) this makes sense."
+ Kirkus 17:687 D 15 '49 130w

"Timely and worthwhile." Donald Wasson
+ Library J 75:102 Ja 15 '50 100w

Reviewed by A. E. Talbert
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 F 12 '50 900w

" 'Disaster Through Air Power' reads more like a political pamphlet than a reasoned military critique, and its compass is too brief to permit the thorough discussion which these difficult topics deserve. It contains some glittering generalities and some definite inaccuracies or misinterpretations. Moreover the author's approach is admittedly subjective. . . Despite these faults, this book represents a corrective to the extremism of certain Air Force views, and it drags out of the closet certain Air Force skeletons . . . which have long been talked about in Washington. . . 'Disaster Through Air Power' is a book by an angry man surfeited with the propaganda which too often has seeped out of certain offices in the Pentagon. Mr Andrews has answered generalities with generalities; he has not been either objective or scrupulously fair. But the author has not been too angry to get in some shrewd blows. There will be some apoplectic people in the Pentagon." H. W. Baldwin
N Y Times p3 Ja 29 '50 1250w

"Mr. Andrews, though he often gets overheated, writes with earnest conviction."
New Yorker 25:98 F 11 '50 160w

"Mr. Andrews has written clearly, plainly, in simple terms—and often angrily, too, since he is tremendously disturbed by what looks to him like disaster just beyond the horizon of our thinking if we persist in the one-sidedness we've so strongly been sold. What he wants his book to do is to bring Americans awake, with a shock. They must come awake, and soon, he is convinced, or they are headed for trouble—for disaster of the most fearful kind. His book will most certainly bring about some serious thinking on the part of those who read it." J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ja 29 '50 1850w

"The purpose which inspires Mr. Andrews is noble enough. It is certainly in the public interest. The attempt to stem by one's writings a powerful tide of public fervor in any given direction is likely to be a thankless one. Its success, moreover, which is bound at best to be limited depends on the scrupulous avoidance of just those vague irresponsible generalizations and distortions or denials of embarrassing facts which bring the books one is opposing so much public applause as well as commercial success. On this all-important criterion, Mr. Andrew's effort unfortunately collapses." Bernard Brodie
Sat R Lit 33:14 F 18 '50 1150w

"Highly colored, provocative, rather biased, and angry recital, in which emotion too often seems to substitute for logic." G. C. Kenney
Sat R Lit 33:14 F 18 '50 900w

Reviewed by Donald Derby
Springf'd Republican p8C Mr 26 '50 330w

ANDREWS, ROBERT DOUGLAS. Great day in the morning. 341p $3.50 Coward-McCann 50-6445

A historical novel of the American West which is based on events in Colorado during the gold rush days of the 1850's and 60's. The hero is Owen Pentecost, a southerner who arrived in Denver in 1858, and was instrumental in starting the "Georgia conspiracy," a plot to draw Colorado into the secessionist movement. Pentecost gambles and wins, and for a time is a power in the frontier community. At the outbreak of the Civil war he joins the rebels and sends his gold to help the South. When he realizes his game is up he rides into the unknown alone.

"A robust, splendidly paced and frequently fascinating novel." V. P. Hass
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p17 Mr 26 '50 400w

Kirkus 18:32 Ja 15 '50 190w

"Fast-moving and absorbing novel. Recommended." J. E. Brown
+ Library J 75:397 Mr 1 '50 130w

"Mr. Andrews has delved into contemporary records, quoting from official documents and editorials, to ballast the fiction. 'Great Day in the Morning' is flamboyant, somewhat overwritten in places, but it has zest and drive."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Mr 26 '50 230w

"Whole sections of the book paraphrase well-known records. . . But the bulk of the story distorts the facts in these records and cruelly, often without even dramatic reason, twists the characters of well-known people. All in all, it is a shoddy job." H. B.
— + N Y Times p17 Ap 9 '50 150w

"Mr Andrews knows precisely how to control [his story], how to make it most effective, how to let his dialogue move the story forward, how to invent the right dramatic episode in the right place. Moreover, he gives the story an unexpected twist at the end—unexpected, that is, by the reader accustomed to the more familiar stock situations. The author's ending is out of stock too, but it's an item less frequently used than some." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Mr 13 '50 750w

"It is a book you will read to the end, if only because you once believed in such melodrama when you were a kid and still secretly love it. Of its kind it is first rate." W. E. Wilson
Sat R of Lit 33:29 Je 10 '50 320w
Wis Lib Bul 46:18 Ap '50

ANDREWS, ROY CHAPMAN, ed. My favorite stories of the great outdoors; nature lover's treasury. 404p $2.98 Greystone
Short stories—Collections. Natural history
50-5767

Partial contents: The Indian well, by W. V. Clark; Seal hunting, by Vilhjalmur Stefansson; How the mountain was clad, by Bjornstjerne Bjornson; The cat, by M. E. W. Freeman; The presidents and fishing, by Herbert Hoover; The home town of the army ants, by William Beebe; The voice of Bugle Ann, by MacKinlay Kantor; Jim Baker's blue-jay yarn, by Mark Twain; The sugar camp, by Louis Bromfield; The storm, by Lafcadio Hearn; Benny and the bird dogs, by M. K. Rawlings; On lying awake at night, by S. E. White; The mysterious forest, by W. H. Hudson; A-hunting of the deer; by C. D. Warner; Elephant, by Carl Akeley; Sharp eyes, by John Burroughs; The isle of St. Peter, by J. J. Rousseau; The character of dogs, by R. L. Stevenson; The elephant remembers, by Edison Marshall; The winds of heaven, by Richard Jefferies; Winter at Walden, by H. D. Thoreau; Tappan's burro, by Zane Grey; The battle of the marten and the porcupine, by Mayne Reid; To build a fire, by Jack London; An adventure with a dog and a glacier, by John Muir; Grey eagle, by H. R. Sass.

"One need not be an outdoorsman, not even a nature lover, to enjoy this book. A desire to be entertained is sufficient cause to read on and on thru the 404 pages of this kaleidoscopic arrangement of animal stories, naturalists' studies, and descriptions of fascinating scenes." Mason Warner
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 Mr 5 '50 300w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 75:778 My 1 '50 70w
Springf'd Republican p6C Ap 9 '50 270w

ANDREWS, ROY CHAPMAN. Quest in the desert; il. by Kurt Wiese. 192p $2.50 Viking 50-6837

"Wolf, the dog, could scent danger. Whether in the compound of his American master's home in Peking or in a camp on the Mongolian plateau, he was always alert, ready to fight an enemy. And there were enemies aplenty when Wolf accompanied his master, Jack Benton, on a scientific expedition into the Gobi Desert, in 1920." (N Y Times) For ages 12 to 16.

Booklist 46:220; 248 Mr 1 '50; Ap 1 '50

"Thru the author's able writing and personal knowledge, aided by Kurt Wiese's effective drawings, boys will gain a vivid picture of a far off land and its people as they have touched our own in discovery and friendship." Polly Goodwin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Ag 13 '50 270w

"Young people who like tales of exploration will find plenty of excitement in this fictionized account of the first expedition employing motor vehicles in the Gobi Desert. . . The life of the Mongol tribes is made very interesting." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 26:197 My '50 120w

"Exciting reading, although Benton is almost too ruggedly Frank Merriwell and the white supremacy attitude toward all Chinese is unpleasant. Should go for dog lovers as well as adventure fans."

+ — Kirkus 18:63 F 1 '50 170w

Reviewed by Louise Davis

Library J 75:645 Ap 15 '50 70w

Reviewed by Siri Andrews

Library J 75:989 Je 1 '50 80w

"In the 1920's Dr. Andrews spent ten years in Central Asia, exploring for the Museum of Natural History. . . His new book for older boys builds on these memories, weaving many facts into thrilling fiction about one year's adventures."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 My 7 '50 270w

"Based on the experiences of its distinguished author, who spent ten years exploring Central Asia for the American Museum of Natural History, this story takes the reader into a strange and fascinating country. Each chapter is an adventure along the way, well written and exciting. . . This is a mighty good dog-adventure-travel story." Howard Pease

+ N Y Times p20 Ap 23 '50 200w

"This is an adventure story of the best kind, based on knowledge and experience." M. G. Davis

+ Sat R of Lit 33:39 Je 10 '50 140w

ANGELL, JOSEPH WARNER, ed. Thomas Mann reader. See Mann, T.

ANGLE, PAUL MCCLELLAND, ed. Abraham Lincoln, by some men who knew him. See Abraham Lincoln

ANGLE, PAUL MCCLELLAND. Here I have lived; a history of Lincoln's Springfield, 1821-1865; a publication of the Abraham Lincoln assn, Springfield, Illinois. 2d ptg 313p il $3.75 Rutgers univ. press

977.356 Springfield, Illinois—History. Lincoln, Abraham 50-6642

A reprint of a book on Lincoln, first published in 1935 (Book Review Digest 1936). It is the story of Springfield, Illinois, and of Lincoln's life there. Illustrated with contemporary prints. A note about sources. Index.

Booklist 46:288 My 15 '50

"First published 15 years ago in a small edition by the Abraham Lincoln association of Springfield, 'Here I Have Lived' has long been out of print and in considerable demand as a unique contribution to Americana. With a few corrections, this new edition is essentially the same book which has come to be cherished by those fortunate enough to own a copy of the original printing." R. P. Basler

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 My 7 '50 350w

"The present volume is a reprint of a book published by the Abraham Lincoln Association in 1935. Long out of print, it had become a 'hard to get' but much sought item. Its return engagement, by request, is a happy event not only for Lincoln study but for American social and cultural history." J. G. Randall

+ N Y Times p17 Ag 13 '50 700w

ANNETT, FRED ANZLEY. Electrical machinery; a practical study course on installation, operation and maintenance. 3d ed 458p il $3.75 McGraw

621.313 Electric machinery 50-5235

"The new material in this edition is largely concerned with electron tubes and circuits. Four new chapters replace those on Fundamental principles and Electron tubes and their applications. Minor revisions in the rest of the text to bring it up to date." Booklist

Booklist 46:288 My 15 '50

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 75:497 Mr 15 '50 140w

ANNIXTER, PAUL. Swiftwater. 256p $2.50 Wyn 49-50439

The Calloways, father and son, were the last trappers left in their northern Maine village. They both loved the woods and all wild creatures, especially the wild geese, and it was the ambition of the boy's life to establish a bird sanctuary. The novel traces their course thru trials and tribulation, until, after the father's death, success came to young Bucky Calloway.

Booklist 46:160 Ja 1 '50

Bookmark 9:159 Ap '50 40w

"A pleasant, sympathetically told story of man against nature, human and otherwise." August Derleth

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ja 29 '50 450w

Kirkus 17:613 N 1 '49 160w

"Folksey in style, close to nature in fine descriptions of trapping and woodlore, a nicely conceived plot, and a moving plea for conservation." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 74:1818 D 1 '49 130w

"Both boys and girls will enjoy reading about Bucky." M. D. Read

+ Library J 75:706 Ap 15 '50 70w

"Mr. Annixter's story brings you close to nature, to the stillness of the forest and the miracle of the changing seasons. His animals are acutely observed—the wolverine with his cunning, the bear cub that becomes a household pet, an ancient crow named Scissorbill 'hunched up in his rusty black raiment, looking like a corrupt old Prime Minister.' . . Swiftwater has a winter morning magic."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p13 F 12 '50 200w

"Mr. Annixter's own love of nature comes through clearly on almost every page despite occasional literary lapses. The descriptions of geese honking their way south and of the woods, deep and silent in the winter snow, are unforgettable." J. P. Quehl

+ N Y Times p26 Ja 22 '50 230w

"A warm, nonslick novel that will be of particular interest to every father or son interested in the outdoor life." K. B.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p19 Mr 12 '50 140w

"As the book shapes up, it seems best fashioned for the younger reader, who will not mind the repetitions, if he ever notices them." N. L. R.

Sat R of Lit 33:36 F 11 '50 160w

Wis Lib Bul 46:28 F '50

ANNUAL review of United nations affairs, 1949; ed. by Clyde Eagleton. 322p $5 N.Y. univ. press

341.1 United nations (organization)

"This volume consists of the proceedings of the first Institute for Annual Review of United Nations Affairs held at New York University in July, 1949. Lectures by leading authorities, many of them officials of the United Nations, cover the Secretariat, Assembly, Security Council, Trusteeship, Economic and Social Council, Legal Problems, and Trends for the Future. Each subject is covered by one or more persons, and the discussion which followed each lecture is summarized in detail." (Library J) Index.

Reviewed by L. L. Wright
Am Hist R 56:169 O '50 260w

Am Pol Sci R 44:511 Je '50 50w

Reviewed by W. L. Godshall
Ann Am Acad 270:155 Jl '50 240w

"A very useful volume intended to supplement, but not replace, the United Nations Yearbook." Donald Wasson
+ Library J 75:399 Mr 1 '50 100w

"It should prove a valuable addition to the growing U. N. bookshelf." D. J.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 Mr 26 '50 140w

Springf'd Republican p6D F 19 '50 110w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:201 Je '50 280w

ANOUILH, JEAN. Ring round the moon; a charade with music; tr. by Christopher Fry; with a pref. by Peter Brook. 104p $2.50 Oxford

842 [50-36733]

A play translated from the French by Christopher Fry. It "is set in 1912, in the world before the wars, and it is an incarnation of that world not as it really was but as it seems to us now after all that has happened since." (Nation)

Manchester Guardian p4 Jl 18 '50 30w

"'Ring Round the Moon' was translated, with great fidelity to the letter and spirit if one may judge by the sound, by Christopher Fry. It is interesting that two contemporary European playwrights who are aware of and sensitive to the destruction and despair of the past decades should speak in accents both affirmative and gay." Dramatic criticism by Margaret Marshall
+ Nation 171:513 D 2 '50 750w

"There is so much in Fry's verse plays which comes perilously close to pretty writing that it may surprise readers to find him so adept a translator of this prose play. There is no stiffness; the lines are speakable, and they are witty, mocking, or delightfully odd as the case may require. It may be that he has missed certain overtones in the original, a hint of scorn for what mankind has made of itself. None the less, without Fry's delicate re-creation of the text it is doubtful if this play could have succeeded in English." W. P. Eaton
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 D 24 '50 500w

"Mr. Fry has taken great liberties in adapting, inventing, cutting and adding. Unquestionably, M. Anouilh must have been aware of this and must have given his consent. In all, the play reads better in French, is richer, clearer, more whimsical, and this in spite of the beautiful flow of 'Fryesque' English. The 'many moods' of which Brooks Atkinson writes emerge—from a theatrical and literary viewpoint—much better in the French 'L'Invitation au Château.'" Saul Colin
+ — N Y Times p16 D 10 '50 270w

"Having been unable to procure a copy of M. Anouilh's text I can only guess at the richness of Mr. Fry's contribution. The fact that he converted the original title, 'L'Invitation au Chateau,' into 'Ring Round the Moon' may perhaps be taken as a hint. . . No one who has seen or read 'The Lady's Not for Burning,' 'A Phoenix Too Frequent,' or 'Venus Observed' can be unprepared for Mr. Fry's prowess with the language. If in 'Ring Round the Moon' he writes prose instead of poetry, his prose nonetheless has the fecund imagery, the dash, the beauty, and the originality associated with his poetry." J. M. Brown
+ Sat R of Lit 33:25 D 16 '50 700w

ANSLEY, DELIGHT. The good ways; decorations by Robert Hallock. 214p $2.50 Crowell

290 Religions—Juvenile literature 50-13198

An introductory study of the most important religions of the world. Considers the origins and principles of the Egyptian religion, Judaism, Greek and Roman beliefs, Hinduism, Buddhism, and the beliefs of the Chinese, Mohammedans, and Christians. Intended for ages twelve to sixteen.

Booklist 47:63 O 1 '50

"At times the discussion seems questionably simplified but for those who are interested, it is the sort of material which may lead to further reading." S. M. A.
Horn Bk 26:387 S '50 80w

"An inspiring and comprehensive book, not only packed with information in the field of comparative religion, but an enriching story of man's search for God."
+ Kirkus 18:357 Jl 1 '50 180w

"The book, for all its compression of complex subjects, is exceedingly well written, and a stimulating introduction, for adults as well as young people, to a great field of thinking. Oddly, the chapter on Christianity seems to us the least well done. The chapter 'Where are we going?' is excellent." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 D 24 '50 270w

"Its sympathy and breadth of vision should help a great many young people to realize that 'all forms of religion are the attempt of mankind to reach harmony with God.' . . Thoughtful young people will find this a stimulating and an illuminating book." E. L. B.
N Y Times p24 O 1 '50 190w

"The author, herself a Quaker, shows great understanding. It is difficult to find on a subject as controversial as this a book as objective as Miss Ansley's. An index and suggestions for further reading add to the value of this much needed book." B. W. Shaffer
+ Sat R of Lit 33:60 N 11 '50 230w

ANTIQUES book; outstanding, authoritative articles on ceramics, furniture, glass, silver, pewter, architecture, prints and other collecting interests; ed. by Alice Winchester and the staff of the magazine Antiques. 319p il $6 Wyn

745 Antiques. Collectors and collecting 50-8660

Thirty-five articles selected from the magazine Antiques. Each chapter has been checked to bring it up to date. The chapters are grouped under headings: Ceramics; furniture; glass; silver; pewter; architecture; prints; folk art; textiles; firearms; toys. Copiously illustrated. No index.

Reviewed by Russell MacFall
Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 O 22 '50 120w

Cleveland Open Shelf p14 Ag '50

"Collectors will find the book handy for reference, each in his own specialty, and fascinating and even improving reading in broader but related fields. People who are not already collectors are warned to beware of it. For the interest it excites is insidious." H. I. Brock
+ N Y Times p23 Ag 6 '50 200w

"Miss Winchester, her staff and the publishers, deserve praise for this handsome book which will have a special appeal for the antique dealer and the general collector." J. V.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p15 Jl 30 '50 230w

APOLLINAIRE, GUILLAUME. Selected writings; tr. with a critical introd. by Roger Shattuck. 272p pl $3.50 New directions
841 50-9404

Selections from the works of this French poet (1880-1918). The original French and the translations are on facing pages. The prose selections are given in translation only. Bibliography.

"Any one interested in modern poetry in any language will value this book. Even if one's concern is poetry in English he will welcome this brilliant Frenchman's poems, in which so many of the directions of recent verse began." Paul Engle
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 S 10 '50 180w

"More informative than aesthetic. Apollinaire is such an important figure in modern French poetry (though probably an overrated one) that this was worth while attempting. But Mr. Shattuck's selection of the poems, though adequate enough, is not particularly good, and his translations are full of inaccuracies and unwarranted emendations of the original. . . With all its faults, and provided the crib is carefully combed by teacher, this book should be of use in schools if the Academe has yet come to admit Apollinaire's existence." L. F. D.
+ — Manchester Guardian p4 Ag 1 '50 170w

"Mr. Shattuck's long prefatory essay is thorough, informative, and informed by admiration for his subject: we are made to see the heroism in the life of Guillaume Apollinaire. . . But if Mr. Shattuck has been almost reverent in his introduction, he has also been almost blasphemous in his translations, which are pretty bad, particularly in their insertion of adjectives Apollinaire did not use, and in their high incidence of clichés." Rolfe Humphries
+ — Nation 171:293 S 30 '50 160w

Reviewed by Louise Bogan
New Yorker 26:126 O 28 '50 450w

Reviewed by J. T. Soby
Sat R of Lit 33:66 O 7 '50 1350w

"Apollinaire is not tractable to translation, but many of Mr. Shattuck's transpositions are intelligently done. Sometimes one demands a closer correspondence to the mordant brevity of the original. . . But these are disputable details; what matters is that a comprehensive study and selection of Apollinaire has for the first time been made available to the English reader."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p596 S 22 '50 3000w

APOSTOLIC Fathers; an American translation, by Edgar J. Goodspeed. 321p $3.75 Harper
281.108 Christian literature, Early—Collections 50-5878

"A new translation of some of the non-canonical writings of the early Church in the idiom of modern speech. Included are 'The Teaching of the Twelve Apostles—the Didache', the letters of Barnabas, Clement, Ignatius and Polycarp, 'The Shepherd of Hermias', 'The Fragments of Papias' and 'The Address to Diognetus'. Each of the twelve 'books' is prefaced by a brief introduction dealing with the authorship, date, occasion and purpose of the writing." Kirkus

Booklist 46:346 Jl 15 '50

Reviewed by L. T. Heron
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Mr 12 '50 350w

"The historical value of 'The Apostolic Fathers' is immense. There are several translations of them. They all tend to be heavy, sluggish, and overloaded with conventional phraseology carried over from the King James Version. Goodspeed's translation gives them blood and breath, and restores to them the glow of life which really belongs to them." W. E. G.
+ Christian Century 67:209 F 15 '50 400w

Reviewed by R. C. Miller
Churchman 164:15 My 1 '50 150w

"Goodspeed's translations are always careful, reasonably close to the original, and often informative. All this is true of this volume. I cannot help feeling that notes of an exegetical and historical nature would have added greatly to the strength of the book, while less Spartanlike terseness in the introductions would have aided the general reader." M. S. Enslin
+ Crozer Q 27:356 O '50 600w

"This is a most important book for all who want to understand the development of the early Christian Church, its doctrine and its practices."
+ Kirkus 18:168 Mr 15 '50 150w

"Edgar J. Goodspeed's translation of the New Testament is widely and favorably known. We now owe him a debt of gratitude for having made available these 'companions and sequels to the New Testament'—the more so since older translations are not easily obtained today. Mr Goodspeed's 'American Translation' gives to the originals all the freshness and contemporaneity the texts allow. But he would be the first to admit that, at times, the difficulties of translation lie in archaic ideas rather than in the precise words themselves." W. L. Sperry
+ N Y Times p33 Mr 19 '50 450w

APPELL, GEORGE C. Tin trumpet of China. 238p $2.75 Duell
50-9615

"This present story takes place in 1938 in China. . . A Russian agent (trying to carve a career for himself by taking the pressure off the Chinese Communist troops) persuades a Chinese Nationalist general to attack the Japanese across a frozen river. The impossible assault fails and the corrupt Nationalist general, more interested in saving face than winning battles, finds a scapegoat in young Captain Liang, a company commander." N Y Times

Reviewed by Ruth Chapin
Christian Science Monitor p6 N 11 '50 600w

"A seemingly knowing, and disabused, portrayal which reduces the heroism of war to the self-interest of those engaged in it, this is unlikely to appeal to many."
Kirkus 18:368 Jl 1 '50 180w

"Powerful novel; not for the queasy." H. G. Kelley
Library J 75:1405 S 1 '50 110w

"Mr. Appell has drawn a valid and comprehensive background, but his characters . . . are composite types. It is only when he shows us the Chinese conscript soldier that his ability to do real character drawing becomes apparent." E. L. Acken
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 O 15 '50 200w

"The author, George C. Appell, surely knows his infantry tactics as well as anyone who works in fiction. He makes it remarkably clear that in the Far East a gun is more valuable than a man; a live soldier fends for himself, and no burial squads and chaplains bother with the dead." Herbert Mitgang
+ N Y Times p50 S 24 '50 380w

"Mr. Appell is strongest in dealing with scenes of pain and shock. . . He is also able to give a sharp sense of the detachment of people in times of panic. . . With all this, it is a pity that his writing in general is so disarranged for it creates a smoke screen that delays the reader without adding anything to the wallop of the story."
+ — New Yorker 26:131 O 7 '50 120w

San Francisco Chronicle p11 N 26 '50 430w

"In the department of reporting the filth, degradation, and horror of warfare Mr. Appell needs to concede nothing to any other writer. Unfortunately, his skill as a novelist does not match his craftsmanship as a reporter. The inefficiencies, bunglings, and villainies of his high command, while believable, are never made wholly convincing. . . Though the book must be registered as a disappointment as a novel, Mr. Appell's outstanding skill as an evocative reporter commands attention." E. J. Fitzgerald
Sat R of Lit 33:32 S 30 '50 310w

APPLE, JAMES MACGREGOR. Plant layout and materials handling. 367p il $5 Ronald

658.2 Factories. Material handling 50-8466

"The main theme of this book is the necessity of coordinating plant layout and production planning with materials handling. Materials handling thus becomes one factor in a comprehensive problem in industrial engineering. The author emphasizes the importance of flow charts in working out the problem. Although there is more emphasis on basic questions and techniques than on materials handling equipment, many illustrations showing modern equipment in use are included. The appendix includes useful engineering data on such topics as belt and roller conveyors, lift trucks, procedure in making a materials handling survey, illumination standards, and plant layout standards." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 75:1192 Jl '50 140w

"The book is suitable for use both as a textbook and as an introduction or 'refresher' for practicing engineers."
+ N Y New Tech Bks 35:61 Jl '50

APPLEGATE, MELBOURNE S. Helping boys in trouble; the layman in boy guidance; with foreword by Joseph H. McCoy. 124p $1.75 Assn. press

136.77 Boys. Juvenile delinquency 50-5536

A member of the Big Brother movement describes his methods of guiding "boys of average, or better than average, mentality. However, [the program] is not limited to exceptionally bright boys. In fact, some phases of the program may be effectively applied, under certain circumstances, to boys who are considerably below average in intelligence." (p.20) Index.

Booklist 46:212 Mr 1 '50

"Mr. Applegate's book is a sort of manual derived from his years of wrestling with potential menaces, and will make admirable teaching material for the volunteers who come after him." Gilbert Millstein
+ N Y Times p21 Je 25 '50 170w

School & Society 71:63 Ja 28 '50 30w

Wis Lib Bul 46:15 Jl '50

APPLETON, LEROY H. Indian art of the Americas. 279p 79 col pl maps $15 Scribner

970.67 Indians—Art. Indians—Religion and mythology 50-14584

"A comprehensive collection of the best work done in arts and crafts by the Indians of North, Central and South America—a complete record of the American Indians' contribution to world art—from the Arctic Circle to Patagonia." (School Arts) Bibliography. Index.

"A beautifully planned and executed work."
+ Bookmark 10:36 N '50 40w

Kirkus 18:542 S 1 '50 170w

"Should be invaluable for the serious researcher unable to visit Indian collections in the various museums around the country, and will be useful to the librarian consulted for information on authentic tribal designs, costumes, utensils and the like." A. S. Plaut
+ Library J 75:2077 D 1 '50 280w

"The book is neither sound art nor sound anthropology." Harry Tschopik
— N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 D 17 '50 500w

Reviewed by Oliver La Farge
N Y Times p7 N 19 '50 240w

"This will be a book chiefly for the student or the designer who wants to have a wide selection of motifs handy for 'inspiration' when he needs it. Neither the historian nor the serious student of the Indian of the Americas will find the volume up to their requirements." Macalister Jones
San Francisco Chronicle p18 D 3 '50 700w

Reviewed by John Collier
+ Sat R of Lit 33:9 D 9 '50 500w

"As a reference book for your Indian projects and authentic source for design symbols and motifs you will find wide use for this book in your classroom or library."
+ School Arts 50:adv D '50 150w

ARBUCKLE, DUGALD SINCLAIR. Teacher counseling. 178p $3.50 Addison-Wesley

371.422 Personnel service in education 50-5894

"The author believes that the teacher is the key person, not only in the guidance program, but in the whole educational system. His book, based on this premise, is divided into three parts. Part I discusses the meaning of, and need for, counseling, the nondirective point of view, and the traditional teacher. Part II consists of verbatim reports of actual conversations between teachers and students, and Part III is devoted to a discussion of the new or nondirective approach in the classroom." (School R) Chapter bibliographies. Index.

Booklist 46:227 Mr 15 '50

School & Society 71:94 F 11 '50 40w

Reviewed by W. W. Brickman
School & Society 72:218 S 30 '50 350w

"Arbuckle has done much to clarify the role of the teacher, to differentiate between the traditional and the nondirective approaches. His verbatim reports of actual cases are enlightening. However, the fact that counseling, on any level, demands careful, intelligent training has not been adequately stressed. Until teachers are given supervised practice in counseling, either before graduation or through in-service programs, little progress will be made in the field of teacher counseling." M. R. Brown
+ — School R 58:305 My '50 800w

Reviewed by M. R. Brown
Social Educ 14:285 O '50 250w

ARBUTHNOT, JOHN. Memoirs of the extraordinary life, works, and discoveries of Martinus Scriblerus. See Pope, A.

ARCHIBALD, JOE. Hold that line! 220p $2.50 Macrae Smith co.

50-9794

"Ray Sage, powerful and popular tackle at Champlain College, has no school spirit. After he graduates and plays pro football, he finally realizes what he had missed in college life." Library J

Booklist 47:119 N 15 '50

"A pleasant variation from the usual football yarn, credibly told." Robert Cromie
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 N 12 '50 150w

Kirkus 18:389 Jl 15 '50 130w

"Sage's lack of feeling for his school is pounded into the reader, although not too painfully, through clever dialogue. The book's best feature is the football." Lillian Morrison
+ Library J 75:2019 N 15 '50 100w

"It's a simple tale done in broad strokes but with plenty of rough, tough football for the fan." M. C. Scoggin
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 O 22 '50 150w

Reviewed by Fitzroy Williams
N Y Times p50 N 26 '50 80w

Reviewed by W. R. White
San Francisco Chronicle p5 N 12 '50 50w

ARCHIBALD, JOE. Touchdown glory. 191p $2.50 Presbyterian bd.

49-48151

A small college with a very good football team finds itself up against a glory-hunting coach and a wealthy alumnus. The idealistic fullback from Vermont fights for clean football and wins.

"A most satisfactory, engrossing story."
+ Kirkus 17:396 Ag 1 '49 160w

"Excellent college football story." Lillian Morrison
+ Library J 75:42 Ja 1 '50 130w

Reviewed by M. C. Scoggin
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 F 19 '50 60w

Reviewed by R. A. Brown
+ N Y Times p34 O 30 '49 130w

ARCHIBALD, WILLIAM. The innocents. 144p il $2.50 Coward-McCann

812 James, Henry—Turn of the screw 50-8430

A play based on Henry James' The Turn of the Screw.

Booklist 46:350 Jl 15 '50

Cleveland Open Shelf p18 O '50

Kirkus 18:290 My 15 '50 60w

"Highly recommended to all theatre and drama collections." George Freedley
+ Library J 75:1192 Jl '50 40w

"For all except those who can't bear their classics to be tampered with, 'The Innocents' offers a most exciting dramatic experience. Whether seen in the theater or only in the reader's imagination, it will still mean different things to different people, which is to say, much of its intriguing ambiguity still remains to raise questions." Frank Jones
+ San Francisco Chronicle p21 Ag 13 '50 400w

ARLEY, NIELS, and BUCH, KAI RANDER. Introduction to the theory of probability and statistics. 236p $4 Wiley

519.6 Statistics. Probabilities 50-5204

"The purpose of the present book is to give an elementary introduction to the theory of probability and statistics with special regard to its practical applications." (Pref to the Danish edition) List of references. Index.

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 75:323 F 15 '50 90w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:24 Mr '50

ARMSTRONG, CHARLOTTE. Mischief. 182p $2.50 Coward-McCann

50-7473

A suspense story, in which a young middle-western couple at a convention in New York leave their little girl with a baby sitter and go to a banquet. The baby sitter, a girl in her teens, proves to be insane, and the story is one of terror.

"This is a highly effective shocker with no taint of the pretentiousness that recently has marred Mrs. Armstrong's tales."
+ Chicago Sun p5 Jl 4 '50 60w

"For sheer, crawling horror, this story beats anything of the kind I have ever read. Not that there are no better horror stories, but I know of none that does so well with simple material and plot, such a commonplace setting and an almost casual, matter of fact air." Kelsey Guilfoil
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Je 25 '50 230w

"Charlotte Armstrong has spun out a situation to a point where it becomes incredible."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 Jl 16 '50 200w

"A perfectly constructed melodrama—and more than a melodrama. Miss Armstrong is amazingly adroit at fusing action with character development, and at utilizing the most theatrical devices not only to thrill but to say something about Man and his world. The novel is as short as it is rich, packed with meaning and terror in each phrase." A. B.
+ N Y Times p19 Je 25 '50 130w

"The story is comparatively simple . . . but Miss Armstrong, who is very good at this kind of thing, has managed a fine, chilly combination of terror and suspense."
+ New Yorker 26:99 Je 24 '50 90w

"High suspense, well-portrayed people, and racing tempo. Hair-raising."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:36 Je 10 '50 20w

ARMSTRONG, EDWARD ALLWORTHY. Bird life; drawings by E. A. R. Ennion. 152p $2.50 Oxford

598.2 Birds 50-7039

Studies on the habits and behavior of birds the world over by an English ornithologist. Contains a chapter on birds and man. Illustrated with photographs and drawings. No index.

Booklist 46·299 Je 1 '50

"Not a first book on bird watching, but most readable."
+ Bookmark 9:181 My '50 50w

"There is a tremendous amount of learning digested in this book. It is presented generously and graciously. Many an arduous study is here distilled into a paragraf that can be read in less than a minute and pondered over indefinitely." A. C. Ames
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 My 7 '50 230w

"Interesting and instructive reading for the ardent bird fancier. Recommended for school and nature libraries on high school level." J. F. Kennedy
+ Library J 75:989 Je 1 '50 100w

"The presentation is direct and factual, without the embellishments of the 'oh-my!' and 'isn't-nature-wonderful' schools. The emphasis is of course upon the natural history of birds, and a surprising amount of detail has been compressed into a relatively small book." J. W. H.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p21 My 28 '50 140w

ARMSTRONG, MATT. Turtle River filly; il. by Charles Banks Wilson. 213p $2.50 Doubleday

Horses—Legends and stories 50-9385

The scene of this story for boys is a small Ontario village. Thirteen year old Ramey Stone and his father are partners in the ownership of a black filly, and Ramey trains her for the trotting races. On Christmas day Bonnie Bee wins the race on the ice covered Turtle River and Ramey's faith in her is justified.

"The author, who lives near the river where the ice races are run, has created a vivid and exciting picture of a sport little known to children in the United States." Frances Cavanah
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 N 12 '50 100w

"There is more than a surface story in this, for Ramey is a boy with character; the father-and-son relationship is exceptionally well done. It is a book which older boys will read with enjoyment and remember for a long time." Siri Andrews
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 O 15 '50 160w

"This story of a small Ontario town in the horse-and-buggy days is notable for freshness, vigor, good characterization, and particularly for the warm, realistic quality of the father-son relationship." F. C. Smith
+ N Y Times p26 D 10 '50 160w

ARNDT, ELMER J. F., ed. Heritage of the reformation; essays commemorating the centennial of Eden theological seminary. 264p $3 Smith, Richard R.

230.41 Eden theological seminary, St Louis. Reformation 50-1259

"12 scholarly essays written to commemorate the centennial of Eden Theological Seminary at Webster Groves, Mo. All but two of the dozen writers are members of the seminary faculty and the other two are alumni, a trustee and a former Eden professor. Thus the essays reflect the spirit of a theological school whose roots are in the Reformation. . . The first defines 'The Recurring Protestant Spirit,' the last describes 'The Relevance of Reformation Doctrine in Our Day,' and those in between include 'The Living Word in the Scriptures' and 'Sacramental Fellowship.' " Springf'd Republican

ARNDT, E. J. F.—Continued

Christian Century 67:273 Mr 1 '50 180w

Reviewed by R. C. Miller
Churchman 164:15 My 15 '50 190w

Reviewed by O. J. Aldrich
+ Springf'd Republican p8C Ap 23 '50 300w

ARNESON, BEN ALBERT. Democratic monarchies of Scandinavia. (Governments of Europe ser) 2d ed 294p $3 Van Nostrand

342.48 Denmark—Politics and government. Norway—Politics and government. Sweden—Politics and government 49-4054

"Second edition of this text on the governments of Norway, Denmark, and Sweden, revised to include changes following the recent world war, most of which, according to the author, are of minor effect. The book reviews the culture of the people, political history, parties, administrative features, and labor and social legislation." (Current Hist) For first edition see Book Review Digest 1939.

"He has given us a reliable guide—I believe it is the best of its kind—to a better understanding of these three progressive democracies of the North." J. H. Wuorinen
+ Ann Am Acad 267:213 Ja '50 280w

Current Hist 17:161 S '49 40w

ARNOLD, ELLIOTT. Walk with the devil. 265p $3 Knopf

50-9934

A novel about the war in Italy in which two brothers are the chief protagonists. One, an ex-gangster, deported from the United States to his native Italy, has become a person of power there. His brother, a captain in American Intelligence, is delegated to deal with him about an important bridge. In the struggle which follows it is the captain who loses his integrity; the ex-gangster who gains in stature.

Booklist 47:75 O 15 '50

"This is a smashing yarn with characters etched in acid, explosive action and a powerful undercurrent of reflection on the meaning of a moral conscience." V. P. Hass
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 O 15 '50 420w

"This mature and complex study of honor versus expediency shows the effect on Guy of his association with his Mephistophelian brother and of the taint of double dealing that pervades every part of the transaction. The touch of soot leaves a mark."
+ Christian Science Monitor p6 N 25 '50 180w

"Arnold's best book to date."
+ Kirkus 18:484 Ag 15 '50 280w

"Intriguing, yet not entirely convincing. Recommended." A. J. Gaines
+ — Library J 75:1659 O 1 '50 100w

"Perhaps one could read 'Walk With the Devil' merely as an adventure story, for its action is swift and its excitement is cumulative, but I think few readers will do so. Surprising though it may sound, it becomes even more important to think one's way through the moral issues that Mr. Arnold makes concrete in his effective and thoughtful novel." Mary Ross
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p22 O 15 '50 1000w

"Fast-moving and yet thoughtful, this novel concerns a cloak-and-dagger episode in an Italian village in the Appenines during the recent war." H. F. West
+ N Y Times p26 O 15 '50 410w

"Mr. Arnold shows again that he is that ideal combination, a fine storyteller and a man with something to say. You'll go a long way before finding a novel relating to World War II (although this is not, in the ordinary sense, a 'war novel') that furnishes as high a degree of suspense, as taut a sense of danger as this story." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 O 11 '50 1100w

"His plot is sound and original; the Italian scene is admirably drawn, and the characters, in or out of uniform, talk and act like human beings. The slight but appealing love story that threads through the book is a more or less peaceful interlude in the midst of the dynamic events that wind up in violence and murder in a luxurious Italian villa." Harrison Smith
+ Sat R of Lit 33:23 N 4 '50 800w

ARNOLD, THURMAN WESLEY, and others. Future of democratic capitalism. See Future of democratic capitalism

ARSTEIN, HELEN, and MOSS, CARLTON. In person—Lena Horne. 249p il $3; pa $1.50 Greenberg

B or 92 Horne, Lena 50-10230

The life story of the talented Negro singer and movie actress. The account of her experiences includes her many difficulties in her rise to fame: the opposition of her family to her stage career; her efforts to have both a career and a family; and the trials of a person of color.

Booklist 47:1; 94 S 1 '50; N 1 '50

"The authors have done an excellent job. . . Poignant, stylistically repetitious but undeniably interesting; recommended for Negro, and theatre collections." George Freedley
+ Library J 75:1828 O 15 '50 80w

Wis Lib Bul 46:14 N '50

ARVIN, NEWTON. Herman Melville. (American men of letters ser) 316p $3.50 Sloane

B or 92 Melville, Herman 50-7584

"Critical biography, for the 'American Men of Letters' series. Mr. Arvin is Professor of English at Smith College. His study offers a narrative account of what is known of Melville's life, and an interpretation, in psychological and psychoanalytical terms, of Melville's personality. Critically, it presents an independent appraisal and an exhaustive analysis." (Library J) Bibliographical note. Index.

Booklist 46:315 Je 15 '50

Bookmark 9:207 Je '50 40w

Reviewed by Paul Engle
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 My 28 '50 500w

Reviewed by Horace Reynolds
Christian Science Monitor p16 Je 15 '50 700w

"Mr. Arvin evidently felt the necessity to digest and present in absorbed form all the recent pseudo-psychiatric theorizing about Melville. He has performed this task with sympathetic insight and a wisdom which saves him from many of the excesses of younger and more intemperate Melville enthusiasts. But the book is nonetheless topheavy with psychiatric theories for its primary function as a biographical and critical introduction to Melville's work." Mason Wade
+ — Commonweal 52:492 Ag 25 '50 460w

Current Hist 19:39 Jl '50 20w

"Mr Arvin has combined both the human and scholarly approach to his subject and has made a definite contribution to the understanding of the curious Melville."
+ Kirkus 18:85 F 1 '50 180w

"For the serious reader, a balanced and acute work of literary criticism, and a valuable addition to the Melville bibliography." H. W. Hart

+ Library J 75:313 F 15 '50 100w

Manchester Guardian p4 O 20 '50 150w

"Mr. Arvin's book is not only the best literary biography of 1950 but one of the most valuable critical studies of the year and of the decade." M. D. Zabel

+ Nation 171:679 D 23 '50 1700w

"Newton Arvin's Herman Melville is remarkable simply because it is good, that is, perceptive, reasonable, balanced and persuasive in its judgments. Arvin has mastered an art that is essential to sound criticism: the art of making qualifications that seem to weaken his direct statements, but really strengthen them by bringing them closer to the complicated truth." Malcolm Cowley

+ New Repub 123:24 O 30 '50 1400w

"Technically (and in other respects as well), Mr. Arvin's new biography of Melville is a very considerable achievement. . . The high point of the biography is the long critical section on 'Moby Dick.' Mr. Arvin has reservations, sometimes very considerable reservations, about almost all of the other works. . . But of such reservations Mr. Arvin has none when he faces 'Moby Dick,' and these pages of criticism are, I believe, more acute than anything thus far written about this mighty book." Willard Thorp

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Je 11 '50 1250w

"Newton Arvin's short literary biography is the wisest and most balanced single piece of writing on Melville I have seen. It is marked not only by a thoroughly convincing analysis of his creative power and its limitations, but, what is most sharply felt in the book, a wonderfully right feeling for the burning human values involved at every point of Melville's struggle with his own nature." Alfred Kazin

+ N Y Times p6 My 7 '50 1100w

"This critical biography of Melville, in the American Men of Letters Series, seems, though flawed, to be easily the best full-length study of that cetaceous author we have yet had."

+ — New Yorker 26:110 Je 10 '50 240w

"So much is attempted that the critic has no time really to introduce the writer and his works, but must discuss them as if they are really well known. This will make the book difficult for strangers to Melville, and generally reduces the impact of his personality. He remains here a problem rather than a man." M. S.

San Francisco Chronicle p11 Jl 9 '50 490w

"Let's be blunt: this is not just a first-rate book on the life and art of Melville; it is also a superb exercise of critical scholarship and an ornament to American letters." H. P. Vincent

+ Sat R of Lit 33:21 Ap 29 '50 1000w

"Always brilliant, always deft, and almost always correct when he interprets Melville's work, Mr. Arvin is equally deft and brilliant but often unconvincing when he reconstructs Melville's private life."

+ — U S Quarterly Bkl 6:271 S '50 320w

"A finely-written book. It exhibits all the qualities which make Mr. Arvin so valuable a critic—his patient intelligence, his scrupulous care, his wide culture, his freedom from cant." Richard Chase

+ Yale R n s 40:186 autumn '50 900w

ASBURY, HERBERT. Great illusion; an informal history of prohibition. 344p $4 Doubleday

178.5 Prohibition 50-10358

"This one volume informal history of prohibition divided into two sections covers both aspects of 'The Noble Experiment.' The first part traces the history of the temperance movement from its colonial beginnings, while the second part details the history of the corrupt and crime-ridden period from 1920 to 1934." Library J

Booklist 47:126 D 1 '50

Reviewed by Milton Crane

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 N 5 '50 450w

Kirkus 18:576 S 15 '50 160w

"Mr. Asbury beside being an expert social historian is well-equipped for the writing of this history, as he is a descendant of a leader of the temperance movement. He recounts history in his usual deft manner, weaving his facts and statistics into an absorbing and at times ironical humorous picture of the battle of prohibition. Recommended." H. L. Roth

+ Library J 75:1903 N 1 '50 120w

"This clinical study of a mass hallucination ought to be read by every high school student in the country; for prohibition disappeared a long time ago and voters coming of age now have no personal memory of its effects. They should learn; and above all they should learn the true significance of Mr. Asbury's last, sad line, quoted from Will Rogers: 'The poor dumb clucks. They ain't learned a thing!' " G. W. Johnson

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 N 19 '50 1100w

Reviewed by John McNulty

+ N Y Times p3 O 22 '50 1750w

New Yorker 26:164 N 4 '50 160w

" 'The Great Illusion' is perhaps not as lighthearted as 'The Barbary Coast,' but it is a good and authentic background picture that a lot of Americans will want to take a look at, I think. A lot of them should, particularly those who would hate to see another attempt made to control excessive drinking by passing a law." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 O 24 '50 750w

Reviewed by Duncan Aikman

Sat R of Lit 33:13 D 30 '50 1050w

Springf'd Republican p12D D 3 '50 90w

ASHLEY, RAY. Electrical estimating. 312p il $6.50 McGraw

621.3 Electric engineering 49-50341

"It is the purpose of this book to set forth the essential methods and practices of professional electrical estimating and to provide in sample estimates and guides a basis for training new estimators. This manual is written primarily for the contractor, estimator, engineer, or student who must solve complex problems of estimating, appraisal, cost accounting, job scheduling, or supervision as part of his daily affair. It is closely concerned with the practical aspects of estimating such as the speed required to get out bids, the necessity for hewing close to the line in competition, and the personal problem of long hours over the board under the strain of large responsibilities." (Introd) Index.

Booklist 46:213 Mr 1 '50

"Although some of the book is of interest to small contractors, it is largely suited to the needs of estimators who are concerned with figuring larger jobs such as installations in office buildings." R. R. Hawkins

Library J 75:108 Ja 15 '50 130w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:5 Ja '50

ASHLEY-MONTAGU, MONTAGUE FRANCIS. On being human. 125p $1.95 Schuman

301 Sociology. Evolution. Cooperation 50-7952

"Here are brought together for the first time the leading scientific data in support of the principle that co-operation, not conflict, is the natural law of life." (School & Society) Bibliography.

Reviewed by Jessie Bernard

Am J Soc 56:283 N '50 1800w

Reviewed by F. H. Hankins

Am Soc R 15:454 Je '50 800w

"I recommend Montagu's book to anyone interested in the matter at stake, even though the final prescriptive chapter is a bad let-down. Here the author seems suddenly to be standing on a soapbox. It may conceivably be true that human relations can only be bettered by so educating the next generation that it sets about changing the competitive pattern. But this is the kind of utopian idea which an author should wistfully murmur and not brandish as a formula for salvation." C. J. Rolo

ASHLEY-MONTAGU, M. F.—Continued
+ — Atlantic 186:83 Jl '50 480w

Booklist 47:5 S 1 '50

Reviewed by Robert Peel
Christian Science Monitor p7 Ag 26 '50 850w

"A stimulating and readable book. . . Even if one does not accept all the statements made in this book and feels that several of the author's fundamental assumptions are in need of correction, he must nevertheless acknowledge that here a notable step forward has been made. It is something for which one has to be grateful. It is unusual for a scientist to propose ideas like those contained in this volume. One must also be grateful to the author for his pointing out that the teachings of morality, especially that of the 'golden rule,' are not in conflict with the laws of nature." Rudolf Allers
+ Commonweal 52:417 Ag 4 '50 1200w

Reviewed by Walter Watson
Ethics 61:86 O '50 350w

Kirkus 18:189 Mr 15 '50 220w

"This brief book is an expansion of Mr. Montagu's article in the Saturday Review of Literature of last November. It could well, and certainly should, become the most influential book of this century." Harold Lancour
+ Library J 75:558 Ap 1 '50 140w

"A brilliant book on the principle of cooperation and its significance." Patrick Mullahy
+ New Repub 123:19 Jl 17 '50 800w

Reviewed by Malcolm Cowley
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 Jl 9 '50 600w

"Though one may not agree with all of it, this book is a satisfying, reassuring experience. It is brief, the style is excellent and it is easy to read." Smiley Blanton
+ N Y Times p3 Ag 13 '50 600w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p22 Ap 28 '50 850w

"Whether or not it rests upon sound biological and sociological foundations, Mr. Montagu's message is an earnest and important one, and it deserves both prominent attention and thoughtful consideration." Robert Bierstedt
+ Sat R of Lit 33:25 Jl 8 '50 600w

School & Society 71:255 Ap 22 '50 30w

Reviewed by E. T. Hall
Social Educ 14:334 N '50 400w

"Scientists and laymen alike, including educators, will find this a stirring affirmation, simply put with deep sincerity, by one who speaks out of a wide and profound scholarship in the newest of social sciences." Ordway Tead
+ Survey 86:371 Jl '50 350w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:355 S '50 240w

ASHTON, WENDELL J. Voice in the West; biography of a pioneer newspaper. 424p il $5 Duell

071 Deseret news. Salt Lake City 50-7381

The official history of The Deseret News, established by the Mormon church on June 15, 1850. This Utah paper is the oldest newspaper in the intermountain West. Bibliography. Chronology. Index.

"This book has far more general interest than might be supposed, particularly for the western fan. Its description of the hardships of pioneer newspaper publishing is one of the best ever written." John Randolph
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Je 25 '50 60w

" 'The Deseret News,' could hardly be bettered as a centennial memorial. It is a brisk and simply written story." Virginia Sorensen
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Je 25 '50 1050w

"Mr. Ashton's study of The News' origins is scholarly; the detailed attention given the woes of pioneer printers alone make this volume a necessity to students of the West. However, to this reviewer, he considers all too briefly those times when Federal officials were battling 'Mormon Theocrats,' when The Salt Lake Tribune was labeling churchmen 'thick-necked polygs'—and an Associated Press correspondent went for one embattled editor with a six-gun. Mr. Ashton reports the skirmishes but fails to make vivid a bitter era during which an oppressed religious group sought a mountain refuge only to be persecuted again." Jack Goodman
+ — N Y Times p23 Je 11 '50 450w

"The early chapters are much the best, a useful contribution to the history of American printing and publishing. . . This part of the book also exhibits a greater objectivity than is characteristic of the chronicle of the last half-century and Mr. Ashton points out some of the more obvious failings as well as the special virtues of the News as a true newspaper during its pioneer period. . . Well illustrated and documented, the book is marred by an index more lengthy than adequate." D. L. Morgan
+ Sat R of Lit 33:27 Jl 15 '50 800w

ASIMOV, ISAAC. Pebble in the sky. 223p $2.50 Doubleday
50-5147

"It began when Joseph Schwartz was walking down a street in Chicago, past the Institute for Nuclear Research. He raised one foot in the twentieth century; he lowered it in Galactic Era 827, the victim of an odd accident inside the Institute involving an experiment with crude uranium." Publisher's note

Booklist 46:189 F 1 '50

Reviewed by Anthony Boucher
Chicago Sun p6S F 3 '50 40w

"Nice satire on our own racial intolerances and our own militarists underlies Schwartz's adventures in aiding a romance and thwarting a rebellion. Well plotted with a minimum of 'jargon.' " M. C. Scoggin
+ Horn Bk 26:214 My '50 70w
+ Kirkus 17:630 N 15 '49 130w

"Followers of Buck Rogers will be prepared for this fantastic but well written piece of science fiction. . . The book is certainly not a 'must' but is recommended for its entertainment value." J. E. Brown
+ Library J 75:104 Ja 15 '50 110w

Reviewed by Richard Gehman
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p22 Ap 16 '50 200w

"Mr. Asimov is an old hand at this sort of thing and this novel makes for fine reading." R. L.
+ N Y Times p31 Ja 29 '50 140w

"It's agreeable to be able to report that 'Pebble', like its predecessor, is adult entertainment."
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ja 15 '50

Reviewed by Fletcher Pratt
Sat R of Lit 33:32 Je 17 '50 50w

ASQUITH, LADY CYNTHIA MARY EVELYN (CHARTERIS). Haply I may remember. 237p il $3.50 Scribner

B or 92 Authors—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 50-14090

Memoirs of Lady Cynthia Asquith, daughter of the Earl of Wemyss, and wife of a son of Premier Asquith. Her story is developed thru anecdotes about her family and their many friends, among whom were Sir James Barrie, Burne-Jones, Sargent, and Professor Tonks. Index.

Bookmark 10:3 O '50 30w

Reviewed by Leila Flower
Christian Science Monitor p14 S 5 '50 650w

Kirkus 18:459 Ag 1 '50 170w

"This is not an important book but it is an addition to belles lettres; many libraries will find [it] worth having." K. T. Willis
+ Library J 75:1285 Ag '50 140w

"A distinctly attractive, unusual book." J. B.
+ Manchester Guardian p4 My 23 '50 390w

"It is disappointing that there isn't more about Barrie in this book, for the author was in a unique position to write about him. There is none of the nostalgia and melancholy so often present in books of reminiscences. A woman who obviously delighted in life as she found it, Cynthia Asquith seems to retrieve the moments of the past with all of the brightness or sadness that they contained, and no more." Nancie Matthews

+ N Y Times p6 Ag 13 '50 850w

"As loosely strung as an old necklace, this series of vignettes describes an Edwardian childhood in the now-vanished English country life, grand style. It is skilfully written, lit with humor, evocative." Julia Davis

+ Sat R of Lit 33:25 S 16 '50 600w

"Lady Cynthia Asquith has the rare gift of writing in a style which is brisk and entirely personal, and at the same time literary. So vile a word as nostalgic may be here avoided, for Lady Cynthia's curious and energetic mind is vitally concerned with what is happening in the modern world, and is, to use her own word, 'expectant.' . . I have never read any reminiscences in which the impact of the writer was more immediate or the egoism more attractive. In all her portraits, in all her memories, Lady Cynthia writes with a feminine intensity of appreciation and a vehemently personal assessment. One may disagree with some of her values, but he would be a brutish reader who did not respond, in one way or another, to her enthusiasm and her vivid integrity." C. E. Vulliamy

+ Spec 184:798 Je 9 '50 700w

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p473 Jl 28 '50 600w

ATHERTON, LEWIS ELDON. Southern country store, 1800-1860. 227p $3.50 La. state univ. press

658.87 South—Economic conditions. Retail trade 49-48244

"A social and economic history of what eastern businessmen often called the 'country and interior trade' of the Old South. Crossroads stores and mercantile establishments in larger towns back from the sea coast were grouped within the commonly used meaning of the phrase. The dates given in the title are approximations only. Around 1800 short-staple cotton began its sweep across the South, carrying with it a great transformation in social and economic life. In 1860 the Old South was on the verge of a war which was to modify part of the old order and to expedite changes already under way. Although southern staples sold widely in world markets, the writer has limited himself to consideration of local and national aspects of the problem." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

"This is a sound book which fills a need of long standing. It clears away much obscuring fog from Old South economic history, and it points the direction for further fruitful study and interpretation." T. D. Clark

+ Am Hist R 55:932 Jl '50 900w

"This study is based on business records, newspapers, family letters, and other contemporary sources. It is an important addition to the growing body of literature on the social and economic history of the ante-bellum South." F. M. Green

+ Social Forces 29:218 D '50 800w

"Theoretical arguments and historical fact are supported by a wealth of documentation. Anecdotes and brief career sketches enliven the book."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:186 Je '50 240w

ATTWOOD, FREDERIC. Vavache, the cow who painted pictures; il. by Roger Duvoisin. 77p $2.25 Aladdin

50-7585

The story of a wonderful cow who could paint pictures that came alive. Vavache was the perfect companion of a little American boy living in Normandy. She even painted herself invisible so she could go with him to the beach and the market place. For ages 6 to 12.

Booklist 46:291 My 15 '50

+ Bookmark 9:213 Je '50 30w

"The humor and truly French feeling are perfectly carried out in the Duvoisin pictures." Polly Goodwin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Je 18 '50 190w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk 26:193 My '50 90w

"Will intrigue youngsters who like their nonsense jolly and fast-paced with absurdity."

Kirkus 18:235 Ap 15 '50 90w

Reviewed by Louise Davis

Library J 75:632 Ap 15 '50 80w

Reviewed by D. M. Blasco

+ Library J 75:1054 Je 15 '50 40w

"Mr. Duvoisin's pictures are very French and very funny. With its various French words, it might best be read aloud to those six to eight-year olds who are always imagining invisible playmates." L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ap 30 '50 230w

"Mr. Attwood tells us that he heard this story when he was small, and it is regrettable that his grown-up self intervenes sometimes, to educate, to explain setting and pronunciation. But if at times Mr. Attwood's adult self has grounded the lively fantasy, Roger Duvoisin's pictures take up and off, imagination and skill never failing him." Majorie Fischer

+ — N Y Times p22 My 28 '50 230w

San Francisco Chronicle p19 N 19 '50 50w

Wis Lib Bul 46:19 Je '50

AUCHINCLOSS, LOUIS (ANDREW LEE, pseud). Injustice collectors. 248p $2.50 Houghton

50-14014

A collection of eight short stories "about people who have beautiful manners, plenty of money, and a perfectly ghastly time all around." (New Yorker)

"They are well told stories, despite a certain repetitiousness of effect which rises out of their thematic similarity. They all get down deep into the personalities involved; they all carry a fine, full weight of conviction; and in each one there is solid craftsmanship combined with honest feeling." Richard Sullivan

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 O 29 '50 400w

"Likely to leave the average reader gasping for air." E. F. Walbridge

Library J 75:1506 S 15 '50 110w

"Despite his always smooth and sometimes neatly aphoristic writing, despite his knowledge of the narrow circle he draws with all its implicit materialism and imitative aristocracy, Mr. Auchincloss has too little impact as a critic of man's ways. Whereas the well-bred, fastidious irony of an Edith Wharton fitted the times of which she wrote this kind of satire applied to our day seems as anachronistic as the society it depicts. For all its merits, it is out of context today, and as such, curiously lacking in passion and in the power to move." Virgilia Peterson

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 O 1 '50 700w

Reviewed by Whit Burnett

N Y Times p4 O 15 '50 270w

New Yorker 26:102 S 30 '50 120w

San Francisco Chronicle p30 D 10 '50 370w

"'The Injustice Collectors' is the work of an extremely skillful and observant writer. These are not clinical case histories, but with the device of fiction Mr. Auchincloss puts his finger on fact. It is a tribute to the impact of these stories that one begins to speculate upon one's own propensities as a collector!" S. H. Hay

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:37 O 14 '50 700w

AUDEN, WYSTAN HUGH. Enchafèd flood; or, The romantic iconography of the sea. 154p $2.50 Random house

809 Romanticism. Sea in literature. Literature—History and criticism 50-6354

Three critical essays on the romantic spirit in literature, delivered at the University of Virginia under the Page-Barbour Foundation in March, 1949.

Reviewed by Duncan Robertson
Canadian Forum 30:69 Je '50 600w

Reviewed by Paul Engle
Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Mr 26 '50 500w

"A curious and provocative little book. . . As always, Auden is brilliant. A small audience of Auden admirers, persons of intellectual curiosity interested in the role of symbols, and a few modern poets will provide the market for this volume. They will like it for its flashing insight rather than its sustained wisdom. Yet it has, now and again, a rare quality that perhaps we should listen to more attentively."
+ Kirkus 18:46 Ja 15 '50 170w

"It is criticism of a high order, stimulating, tempered and revealing." G. D. McDonald
+ Library J 75:489 Mr 15 '50 70w

"This pseudo-scholarly impression which 'The Enchafèd Flood' makes on one is aggravated by the show of logical and scientific rigor in its numbered paragraphs, catalogues, diagrams, and propensity to labor the obvious. . . Auden is best when farthest off his subject, as his quotations are more interesting than his argument. . . Auden clearly has a great deal of feeling for such things as 'Moby Dick' and 'The Hunting of the Snark.' It is a pity that most of this feeling should be stifled in an uninspired iconography." Martin Greenberg
— + Nation 170:407 Ap 29 '50 1050w

"These essays are both playful and profound, and though it can be charged that in turning his interest to myth and symbol in a framework of neo-Christian values Auden is following a contemporary fashion, it is clear that he is not following it merely because it is a fashion, but because he is excited by this kind of thinking. And he can communicate his excitement to the reader." David Daiches
+ New Repub 122:27 Ap 17 '50 900w

"The brilliance of his elucidation is dimmed only occasionally by the religious light in which he conducts it. And even those of us who cannot accept his view of First and Last Things must be grateful to him for insisting that we fasten our attention upon them." Babette Deutsch
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Mr 26 '50 1250w

"'The Enchafed Flood' may or may not accomplish the over-all intention. That, I think, a man must decide for himself out of his own beliefs and experience. It does, however, achieve triumphs of detailed insight into literary composition and meaning, and in this sense it is an impressive victory of the parts over the whole." Dudley Fitts
N Y Times p35 S 10 '50 650w

"The defect of Mr. Auden's method is that he is always elaborating rules and making out lists of categories into which his concrete examples turn out only imperfectly to fit. He might perhaps have come out better if he had taken up the voyages one by one and traced the recurrence of images while indicating the divergence of incident. And, as a writer who aims at and depends for his effectiveness on a rigorous exactitude, he occasionally creates confusion by producing ungrammatical sentences. But it is interesting to have these so diverse works, which range from the absurd to the tragic, brought together and studied as symbolic fables of the romantic hero's quest, and Mr. Auden turns up some curious parallels." Edmund Wilson
New Yorker 26:129 Ap 15 '50 450w

Reviewed by M. K. Spears
Poetry 76:281 Ag '50 1000w

"These studies suggest somehow the verve and the impatience of the platform when it is occupied by a brilliant teacher. While he puts his right hand tentatively on one idea, Auden seems to reach out with his left to catch at another. This is an enormously stimulating performance to follow, one infinitely more rewarding than the precise and disciplined arrangement of ideas that have long since fallen from the tree." James Gray
+ Sat R of Lit 33:40 Ap 15 '50 750w

"This book has the fascination, the rococo rapidity and fullness of invention, and the wit of Mr. Auden's poetry. . . By itself, it has the interest of any good poet's notebook."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:149 Je '50 240w

Reviewed by Jacques Barzun
Yale R n s 39:730 summer '50 800w

AUDEN, WYSTAN HUGH, and PEARSON, NORMAN HOLMES, eds. Poets of the English language. (Viking portable lib) 5v ea $2.50; de luxe ed set $17.50 Viking

821.08 English poetry—Collections. American poetry—Collections 50-9508

"Five volumes of the Viking Portable Library are devoted to this basic collection of English and American poetry. Volume I: Langland to Spenser; Volume II: Marlowe to Marvell; Volume III: Milton to Goldsmith; Volume IV; Blake to Poe; Volume V: Tennyson to Yeats. Each volume has its own introduction, with notations and editorial help for the reader." Library J

Booklist 47:77 O 15 '50

"The selections are varied, mixing familiar anthology pieces with unfamiliar. Because the editors had five volumes for their work, they were able to include complete a number of poems from which most anthologies are only able to make selections; and where selections are made, they are usually generous." Russell Lord
+ Christian Science Monitor p7 O 7 '50 750w

"Though this may not be the very best comprehensive anthology of English poetry so far produced, it has some claims to be regarded as precisely that. . . Its principal defect is that, in their anxiety to present newly discovered material . . . the editors have inflicted upon us some rather obscure poets of American Colonial times, among them Edward Taylor, who is given twenty pages when he does not deserve even one. Nevertheless, in spite of a few such imperfections, this anthology stands every chance of becoming the one in general use, more or less superseding all others." Theodore Maynard
+ — Commonweal 53:45 O 20 '50 390w

"A significant achievement in scholarship and editorial acumen."
+ Kirkus 18:497 Ag 15 '50 170w

"As in all good anthologies you can learn as much about the editors as you can about the poets, through what is put in and what is left out. The editorship of Auden brings special interest to these volumes and they seem to offer unusual promise for library use." George McDaniel
+ Library J 75:1668 O 1 '50 100w

"The taste of the editors is both apparent and, like their range, catholic. The introductions are brilliant as well as sensible. In short, if anybody wants to learn as much about English poetry as is offered him here he will end up by knowing a great deal about the subject." Rolfe Humphries
+ Nation 171:292 S 30 '50 300w

"A truly distinguished anthology. It is distinguished, among other reasons, for the fresh sensibility displayed in the choice of selections, and even more for the pervading conception of the whole tradition of poetry in English from Langland to Yeats as a single majestic sequence."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p36 O 8 '50 650w

AUDUBON, JOHN JAMES. Birds of America; introd. and descriptive captions by Ludlow Griscom. 320p pl $2.95 Macmillan

598.2 Birds—North America. Birds—Pictorial works 50-6931

"A smaller book than the royal octavo edition of 1937 [Book Review Digest 1937], with the number of plates reduced from 435 to 288. No text except a 30-page introduction describing Audubon's life and work, and brief captions. No scientific names, data about nest, song, or methods of identification. Beautiful color work at a pleasingly low price. Classified contents; no index." Booklist

---

Booklist 46:234 Mr 15 '50

"Although the plates have been reduced in size and consequently lose much of the fabulous detail of the originals, this defect is of small moment to any but the very serious student. . . The introduction convincingly sets forth the cause of conservation. Besides being a tribute to Audubon himself, it is a worthwhile piece of reading for everyone concerned with the economic, cultural and aesthetic values of protecting our natural resources. Unlike certain other, more expensive editions, the plates in this work are arranged in proper scientific order. The result is a handy and useful reference book." J. A. L.

+ Canadian Forum 30:94 Jl '50 220w

Reviewed by Bob Becker

Chicago Sunday Tribune p9 My 7 '50 20w

"It is a pleasure to take up a book that contains quiet beauty, and nothing else, and here is one attractive to hold, browse in, or study. The reader will find no overtones, no 'interpretations.' The color red means the flick of a red-winged blackbird across a sunlit field, and that is all." H. B. E.

+ Christian Science Monitor p8 Mr 18 '50 390w

"Wonderful value this, and an unusual piece of book making."

+ Kirkus 18:202 Mr 15 '50 150w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p21 Ap 23 '50 370w

San Francisco Chronicle p30 Ap 2 '50 30w

"Mr. Griscom has omitted virtually all species erroneously recorded (Audubon did make some mistakes) and 'mere vagrants and waifs to our shores.' Preference has been given to the better paintings and to the more handsome and better known birds of America. The captions are brief and informative, but no scientific names are included, an omission which will mean little to most readers." R. F. H.

+ Springf'd Republican p8D Ap 2 '50 300w

AULAIRE, MRS INGRI (MORTENSON) D', and AULAIRE, EDGAR PARIN D'. Benjamin Franklin; il. by the authors. [48p] $2.50 Doubleday

B or 92 Franklin, Benjamin—Juvenile literature 50-10503

A picture-biography of Benjamin Franklin for ages six to nine. "It gives a simple but comprehensive account of Franklin's progress from childhood days as one of seventeen brothers and sisters to his full development as author, scientist and statesman. Authentic in its presentation." (N Y Times)

Booklist 47:140 D 1 '50

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 N 12 '50 180w

Cleveland Open Shelf p24 D '50

Kirkus 18:655 N 1 '50 120w

"Distinguished both in text and illustration. In imaginative and humorous manner Franklin's character and the important accomplishments of his entire life are accurately presented. . . For every library." Virginia Haviland

+ Library J 75:2016 N 15 '50 100w

"The biography is well condensed and Franklin's part in the shaping of our country clearly emphasized. . . The d'Aulaires have made a fine contribution, a book which all Americans around ten or eleven will enjoy." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 N 12 '50 280w

"Here is an admirable life of Benjamin Franklin, colorfully presented through a happy integration of text and picture." Eugenia Garson

+ N Y Times p32 N 12 '50 120w

"This sprightly book for six to nine-year-olds is probably the best of the d'Aulaires' picture biographies."

+ New Yorker 26:176 D 2 '50 60w

"While the text of this volume is far above average, it is the art work by the authors that makes it one of the outstanding books of the season."

+ San Francisco Chronicle p8 N 12 '50 150w

AULT, NORMAN, ed. Seventeenth century lyrics from the original texts. 2d ed 562p $7.50 Sloane

821.08 English poetry—Collections. Lyric poetry 50-7777

"Originally published in 1928 [Book Review Digest 1928 this anthology] was at once recognized and cherished, but all the unsold copies were destroyed by German bombs in 1940, and only after ten years is it restored to print. . . More than 3,000 poems were provisionally selected, and that number reduced with exquisite taste to 565 poems by 214 poets whose names are known and many that remain anonymous in spite of much minute examination. . . About a third of the poems have never been reprinted since their own century; twenty-eight of them have never been printed at all. . . A valuable feature of the anthology is a list, at the end, of collections of poetry issued during the seventeenth century." N Y Herald Tribune Bk R

"A tireless burrower in original texts, Ault avoids the cardinal sin of anthologists, which is to anthologize other anthologies. His peculiar way of working frequently results in better versions of familiar poems and some new identifications of authorship."

+ Chicago Sun p5 Jl 11 '50 80w

"The poetry here represented is, in all probability, the finest body of poetry in English." Milton Crane

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 Jl 9 '50 90w

Kirkus 18:156 Mr 1 '50 110w

"A creative masterpiece of anthology-making. . . No sound of scissors went into the making of this book and no smell of paste attends it. It comes direct from the sources in thousands of volumes printed in the seventeenth century and hundreds of manuscripts. . . Certainly no century of English poetry surpasses this, and in my opinion none equals it. As certainly, no century has yet found such an anthologist as Norman Ault."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p17 Je 4 '50 750w

AUSTIN, ALEINE. Labor story; a popular history of American labor, 1786-1949. 244p $2.50 Coward-McCann

331.88 Labor and laboring classes—U.S. Trade unions 49-48947

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

Canadian Forum 29:286 Mr '50 210w

"Miss Austin has a gift for condensation, and the sweep of events as told in Part One (1786-1865) through the first chapter of Part Two is an impelling kaleidoscope of the stumbling efforts of laboring men to better their lot through organization. Some of this thrust is lost thereafter as the complications of growth in industry, population, and legislation require more detail and exposition. From there on, also, the history becomes a more indignant recounting of the atrocities against organizations of workingmen, a roll call of labor martyrs, a harsh judgment of the AF of L, and a paean for the CIO." W. L. Mezger

+ — Christian Science Monitor p14 Jl 10 '50 300w

Cleveland Open Shelf p2 Ja '50

AUSTIN, ALEINE—Continued

"Miss Austin's premise is that since the foundation of this country, American workingmen have fought and starved and often died not only to promote their own interests but to better the lot of their fellow men. From this starting point she has admirably fulfilled her objective of telling a dramatic story. There are times when her lack of critical judgment, rather ingenuous attitude, and oversimplification of important issues throw the book somewhat out of balance, but it is always lively and interesting." F. R. Dulles

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 F 26 '50 500w

"Miss Austin has shown fine insight in relating the turbulence and violence of labor's struggle for a place in the sun to the significant social forces that have swept over our land. If her easy-to-read little volume recalls at times the fervid, lyrical, folksy, quasi-spiritual tones of union songs sung at union meetings, she comes by it naturally as a former factor worker, CIO journalist, researcher, and educator." Joseph Rosenfarb

+ Sat R of Lit 33:14 F 4 '50 230w

Springf'd Republican p8C Mr 12 '50 60w

"To compress 163 years of history of American labor organizations into a volume of 244 pages requires rigid selection and paring down of detail. In this, Aleine Austin has succeeded remarkably well, although there is room for disagreement at some points. . . Nevertheless, the main stream of the story is related in a style which is both informative and sprightly. The stories of organizations are interwoven skillfully with character sketches of past and present leaders, thus giving life to the details of history." Lois MacDonald

+ — Survey 86:213 Ap '50 500w

AUSTIN'S new encyclopedia of usable information; general eds: Lewis Copeland and Lawrence W. Lamm. 1634p il maps $19.50 Parke, Austin & Lipscombe, inc, 99 University pl, N.Y. 3

031 Encyclopedias and dictionaries

"According to the preface 'Austin's New Encyclopedia of Usable Information is an entirely new work, planned especially as a practical guide and ready reference volume, giving you instant, usable information on a great wealth of subjects that affect your daily life. . . Each article is a how-to-do-it article, telling you step by step exactly how to proceed in one or another of the essential activities which center on your home, your job, your leisure.'" Subscription Bks Bul

"The directions for sewing, cooking, playing games, stenography, etc., are not as clear, nor as detailed, nor as well outlined as might be found elsewhere, i.e., in periodical articles found through Handicraft Index, and the Readers' Guide, in Farmers' Bulletins, and other government 'how to do it' books and pamphlets available at a low cost. . . Inadequate treatment of some subjects, omission of material pertinent to this type of book, factual errors in the text, and inconsistencies and errors in the index and cross-reference system seriously limit the value of the book. It is not recommended."

— Subscription Bks Bul 20:12 Ap '49 1250w

AUTHORITARIAN personality, by T. W. Adorno [and others]. 990p $7.50 Harper

301.15 Personality. Discrimination. Attitude (psychology) 50-6315

"An intimate view of the personality traits of those who are particularly susceptible to anti-democratic propaganda and, also particularly inclined to act out anti-democratic behavior. The authors and their staff studied over 2,000 subjects. The findings point up the fact that individuals who show extreme susceptibility to fascist propaganda have a great deal in common. Furthermore, while such individuals have numerous characteristics which go together, there are enough typical variations within the pattern to distinguish several subtypes of what they call 'the auhoritarian personality.'" Survey

"Despite its bulk, the book is no white elephant; it will serve political science well, both as to its findings and as to its techniques." Alfred De Grazia

+ Am Pol Sci R 44:1005 D '50 850w

Reviewed by J. H. Bunzel

Am Soc R 15:571 Ag '50 800w

Ann Am Acad 270:175 Jl '50 230w

"A careful, intensive study. . . The questions used and the analyses of several persons are very suggestive and will be invaluable for social scientists and all who are working in the field of intergroup relations." J. H. Yard

+ Christian Century 67:532 Ap 26 '50 80w

Current Hist 18:296 My '50 30w

Reviewed by Franz Alexander

Ethics 61:77 O '50 1900w

Kirkus 17:617 N 1 '49 80w

"These studies, while obviously addressed to the student of social science, will repay the general reader as well, providing he is not too easily scared off by technical terms, complicated charts, and highly scientific reporting." Frances Witherspoon

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p23 My 7 '50 650w

San Francisco Chronicle p16 My 7 '50 700w

"The book is far more revealing for its comments about the nature and symptons of prejudice than it is clearcut in its suggestions for abolishing prejudice." Donald Derby

Springf'd Republican p6D Jl 16 '50 300w

"The book contains valuable sections dealing with the parents and with childhood, with the religious attitudes and practices, the sex attitudes, and numerous other aspects of the authoritarian personality." Julius Schreiber

+ Survey 86:261 My '50 600w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:210 Je '50 250w

AVERILL, ESTHER. King Philip, the Indian chief; il. by Vera Belsky. 147p $2.50 Harper

B or 92 Philip, Wampanoag chief—Juvenile literature 50-12861

The life story of King Philip, chief of the Wampanoag Indian tribe in Massachusetts.

"It is a tragic tale of violence and misunderstanding, but the author's careful research and interest in her subject makes Philip a very real and sympathetic character." A. T. Eaton

+ Christian Science Monitor p10 N 13 '50 70w

"A thrilling and sincerely conceived story."

+ Kirkus 18:521 S 1 '50 180w

"This essay in human relations is both a footnote to past history and a lesson for now. Highly recommended for everyone over 12 as interesting and profitable reading." M. C. Scoggin

+ N Y Times p14 D 31 '50 150w

New Yorker 26:189 D 2 '50 70w

"It is a fine book, written with great skill and care and firmly based on early New England history, that was the parent root from which the nation grew. With its twenty excellent black-and-white line drawings and maps by Vera Belsky it is a book that should be made available to every young student of American history." M. P. Allen

+ Sat R of Lit 33:62 N 11 '50 470w

AVILOVA, LIDIIA ALEKSEEVNA. Chekhov in my life tr. with an introd. by David Magarshack; with drawings by Lynton Lamb. 159p $2.75 Harcourt

B or 92 Chekhov, Anton Pavlovich 50-8199

Personal reminiscences of Chekhov by the wife of a St Petersburg official. She describes her unhappy love affair with the great writer and throws light on some autobiographical elements in "The Seagull." This true love story was first published in Russia in 1947, five years after its author's death.

Booklist 46:352 Jl 15 '50

"This story's power to move cannot be guaranteed. It depends on the sympathetic support of a sentimental mood, a not too critical attitude, and a capacity to enter into the sorrowful nostalgia of Tennyson's 'Tears, Idle Tears.' If the reader can and will supply these elements, he can apply to this book its author's words, written of a spring night in Czarist Russia, 'The song of the nightingale rang in it like the sound of an ice-cold crystal.'" A. C. Ames

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Jl 2 '50 350w

Reviewed by Vivian Mercier
Commonweal 52:415 Ag 4 '50 480w

+ Kirkus 18:320 Je 1 '50 170w

"Highly recommended for theatre, literature and Russian collections." George Freedley
+ Library J 75:1043 Je 15 '50 100w

"It would be difficult to support the claim that the whole constitutes 'a highly valuable literary document,' but there is a revealing glimpse of Chekhov as literary adviser and a new account of the origin of the medallion episode in 'The Seagull.' Mr. Magarshack seems to give this last too much significance." N. M. R.
Manchester Guardian p4 Ap 25 '50 300w

"In some respects Chekhov in My Life illumines for me its central figure more than any other book I have read about Chekhov. It has an excellent introduction by David Magarshack, who has also translated. The drawings by Linton Lamb add a fine retrospective sadness, especially the woman with an umbrella leaning into the snow, and the title-page head of Chekhov as a young man. Here he hasn't developed that odd later quizzical look. His beard has hardly started; in the land and century of the God-haunted beaver, his was to remain—what shall I say?—essentially feminine." G. W. Stonier
+ New Statesman & Nation 40:43 Jl 8 '50 1350w

"It is an interesting contribution to the study of the life of one of the most complicated of all Russian writers. It is also in its own right, a superb love story. . . It is written in a careful, sensitive, detached but imaginative style. It is not Chekhov himself, but it has the gentle, effortless precision and the tender humanity of a writer who has studied Chekhov with love and for a long time. . . This translation is not hard on Lydia Avilov, although the translator's long introduction might much better have been reduced to a short appendix." Joseph Barnes
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Je 18 '50 1400w

"This unassuming story of unrequited love is told with simplicity and sincerity in these reminiscences, the content of which is summed up in the unpretentious title, 'Chekhov in My Life.' . . [The] translation conveys the directness, amounting almost to naiveté, of the original. Avilov's memoirs, although decidedly readable, do not disclose any new facts and add little to such important recollections of Chekhov as those of Gorki, Korolenko, Knipper-Chekhova, Nemirovich-Danchenko, Shchepkina-Kupernik and many others." Marc Slonim
N Y Times p12 Je 18 '50 800w

"Mr. Magarshack, in his introduction, has provided many biographical details, and his translation is so smooth and brisk that the dialogue . . . seems at times startlingly modern."
+ New Yorker 26:94 Je 24 '50 260w

"Mme. Avilov was not much of an artist. But she must have been a great woman. Few people have as sincerely as she does recorded the failure of their lives' great passion." Robert Pick
+ Sat R of Lit 33:13 Jl 8 '50 650w

Reviewed by R. D. Charques
Spec 184:794 Je 9 '50 750w

"This account of Chekhov as a flirtatious but elusive admirer hardly lives up to the book's introduction in which editor David Magarshack claims Lydia Avilov as the great love of Chekhov's life and a possible model for Nina in 'The Seagull.'"
+ — Theatre Arts 34:96 S '50 700w

"There may, for all we yet know, be half a dozen more books on the same theme as Mme. Avilov's to be added to Chekhov's bibliography before a definitive life can be written. They will not fundamentally re-shape the outline of his character as we know it; but, if they are written with anything like the grace and simplicity of Mme. Avilov's, they will be immensely worth adding to the detail of the portrait."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p311 My 19 '50 800w

AYME, MARCEL. Barkeep of Blémont; tr. by Norman Denny. 280p $3 Harper

50-7702

A small town in France, shortly after the "liberation" of 1944, is the scene of this satirical novel. Some of the characters are an engineer and his family (who have been forced to take others into their small apartment), a verse-writing cafe owner, a millionaire, a collaborationist, and several Communists. Thru their daily lives and interchanges of conversation the story of post-war France is shown in microcosm.

Booklist 46:303 Je 1 '50

"Finely drawn satire. . . Sophisticated; for the mature reader."
+ Bookmark 9:212 Je '50 50w

"The style is sharp, swift and simple. Characterization is excellent. The book adds up to a fine, detailed view of a chosen bit of human confusion." Richard Sullivan
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 My 21 '50 300w

Reviewed by Ruth Chapin
Christian Science Monitor p8 Je 10 '50 1050w

Kirkus 18:184 Mr 15 '50 180w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Jenkins
Manchester Guardian p4 S 1 '50 210w

"The tone of this novel is clear and dry when it might have been wrathful or cynical. Aymé seems to prefer human nature to the ideas it has of itself or to the Idea it would sacrifice its own nature to, and in this way Watrin, the great innocent, seems to be his spokesman. But everyone else has his say too: even the millionaire is allowed to pity himself. It is French realism, cutting, brilliant and hard." Jean Garrigue
+ New Repub 122:20 Je 26 '50 600w

Reviewed by Frank Hauser
New Statesman & Nation 40:329 S 30 '50 500w

"Mr. Ayme is a challenging writer and what he says is both penetrating and painful. Though the moment and the mood that he describes have both passed, they are not obliterated and because of what it says about people in France, both yesterday and today, this book should be invaluable documentation to most commentators upon foreign affairs and all politicians. It says quite a number of disagreeable things and makes clearer a great many knotty points." Iris Barry
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 My 21 '50 430w

"The modest and retiring Marcel Aymé, whose gifts as a humorous conteur class him among the greatest in that Gallic tradition, satirizes the foibles of his time much as Molière, Daumier, and Anatole France once did." Justin O'Brien
+ N Y Times p4 My 14 '50 650w

Reviewed by A. J. Liebling
New Yorker 26:89 Je 17 '50 600w

"He has written a true conte philosophique in the Voltairean tradition. Like Voltaire, he recounts horrors with a beaming smile as if he had no idea they were horrors. He can be extremely funny. . . Is his picture of the time and place truthful reporting? Certainly not. Possibly Marcel Aymé can produce clippings to show that each of his ugly incidents occurred. But the sum is far too evil to be recognizable by foreign visitors in the autumn of 1944 or by the French themselves. Marcel

AYME, MARCEL—Continued
Thiébaut, reviewing the book in the Revue de Paris, wrote: 'Foreigners who might read this book would be much mistaken if they accepted it as a symbolically exact picture.' The translation, by Norman Denny, is excellent." Morris Bishop

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:19 My 27 '50 600w

Reviewed by R. D. Charques
Spec 184:252 Ag 25 '50 350w

Springf'd Republican p12C Je 11 '50 180w

"Since the war, French fiction has been obsessed with the theme of the Resistance movement. Usually it portrays the movement with the moralistic, black & white simplicity of Zane Grey on the subject of cowboys and rustlers. In dealing with the theme in The Barkeep of Blémont, French Novelist Marcel Aymé has granted it some of the complexity it possesses. Because he has gone beyond mere slogans and asked himself how people actually felt and behaved immediately following France's Liberation, his novel shines with quiet credibility."

+ Time 55:102 My 15 '50 650w

Times [London] Lit Sup p545 S 1 '50 450w

AZEVEDO, FERNANDO DE. Brazilian culture; an introduction to the study of culture in Brazil; tr. by William Rex Crawford. 562p pl maps $12.50 Macmillan

918.1 Brazil—Civilization. Education—Brazil
50-6062

A monograph on the history of Brazilian culture from the sixteenth century to 1940. The author is a Brazilian educator and writer, who has been Secretary of Education in the state of São Paulo, and a university professor there. Bibliographies. Indexes.

Reviewed by Hugh Walpole
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Mr 19 '50 270w

"This is a thoroughly reliable and highly informative introduction to Brazil." W. E. G.

+ Christian Century 67:465 Ap 12 '50 600w

Reviewed by W. S. Rycroft
Churchman 164:16 Jl '50 300w

Current Hist 18:229 Ap '50 60w

Foreign Affairs 29:164 O '50 40w

"The scholarship of the author, a famed student of the social sciences, is admirable and his book, a must for university libraries, should prove stimulating and informative to those interested in culture in general and in Latin American civilization." Joseph Borome

+ Library J 75:42 Ja 1 '50 130w

Reviewed by M. D. Zabel
Nation 170:531 My 27 '50 800w

"This is a huge, sprawling book, formless, repetitive, learned, suggestive, frequently brilliant, always informative—a book as vast among books as the land with which it deals is among lands. Intellectually speaking it is a pioneering book. . . To sum up, Dr. Azevedo has broken ground for a general understanding of Brazilian culture in a disorganized but richly rewarding book, a kind of anthology of all the effects at self-understanding that are going on among Brazil's intellectuals and men of letters." B. D. Wolfe

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ap 16 '50 1000w

"The book is verbose and repetitious, meant to be consulted in part rather than to be used as a whole, yet there are orchids in this jungle. . . A competent translation would have helped the book, and a strong blue pencil could have hacked straight paths through meandering repetitions. Nevertheless, patient readers equipped with a skill in skipping can gain from it and its ample bibliography a real insight into certain phases of Brazilian civilization. The impatient ones will admire the 418 illustrations which make this book a handsome and expensive product." Mildred Adams

N Y Times p7 F 26 '50 550w

"Fernando de Azevedo's 'Brazilian Culture' is probably the most important book to come out of that country. It is the work of a trained sociologist who has dug deeply into his subject and has produced a thorough study of his country and his people. But it is not a book for the tourists planning a trip to Brazil; it is for the workroom and the libraries. Azevedo makes no pretensions that it is for popular reading." Herbert Cerwin

+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 Mr 5 '50 800w

"While the specialist may very well find this whole big book worth reading and studying in spite of its length, its mass of detail, and its repetitions—the manuscript would unquestionably have benefited from judicious editing. Anyone interested in Brazil's present and in the tremendous potentialities of its future will find it worth dipping into, and its rich store of more than 400 photographs worthy of examination." Herschel Brickell

+ Sat R of Lit 33:32 My 27 '50 950w

"This monumental work is of first-rank scholarship."

+ School & Society 71:125 F 25 '50 20w

"By the publication of this magnificent volume . . . the Macmillan Company has made probably the greatest literary contribution to the understanding of the little known Brazilian civilization that the United States has received. In every sense—accuracy of material, literary flavor, clarity of presentation, and artistic appearance—it is a noteworthy volume." S. G. Inman

+ Survey 86:574 D '50 600w

B

BABCOCK, RUTH. Black grape. 314p $3 Coward-McCann

50-6775

A story of a marriage between two conflicting temperaments, a marriage broken and healed again more than once. The scene is first a small mining town in Pennsylvania, later New York City in the 1890s.

" 'Black Grape' is an interesting novel because of its setting and events, and especially because of an honest and unusually astute picture of two people and the relationship between them." Mary Ross

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 Ap 2 '50 500w

Reviewed by Andrea Parke
N Y Times p23 Ap 2 '50 90w

"Miss Babcock's portrayal of Lily's character, and of two personalities so much at war with one another because they were in essence so alike, is better in its idea than its execution. The writing is at times curiously inept and unreal; the dialogue occasionally reminds one of conversations which take place in 'The Young Visitors.' . . But it has vigor and color and the end is much better than the beginning, which is always a good thing!" S. H. Hay

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:27 Ap 15 '50 450w

Springf'd Republican p8C Ap 30 '50 80w

BABINGTON, SUREN H. Navajos, gods and tom-toms. 246p il $3.50 Greenberg

970.3 Navaho Indians. Indians of North America—Rites and ceremonies 50-8014

The author, chief of surgery at the Herrick Memorial Hospital in Berkeley, California, served as physician to a number of exploring and scientific expeditions in the Navajo country. Out of his experiences and his interest in the people, he has written this book on Navajo ways and character. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:313 Je 15 '50

"The author's special interest in medicine gave him insights which others could not have, and since the Navajo ceremonies are largely devoted to healing this was of great use to him and is now of high use to the reader." Paul Engle

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ag 20 '50 250w

"This is not a book for the historian or ethnologist, or those troubled by the serious economic plight of these nomads. It is for the summer tourists who hope to take a trip to the reservation some day, and for stay-at-homes who want a first-hand account, written colloquially, of a fascinating region and people. . . Dr. Babington has an unusual and winning sense of wonder, which makes his writing often resemble that of the early explorers of the region." Haniel Long

+ N Y Times p18 Ag 6 '50 450w

"He describes the tribal fiestas and dances with the authenticity of a man who has taken part in them, and the book is liberally illustrated with photographs made by the author. . . Of the beauty of their country and the poetry and picturesqueness of the people, Dr. Babington has much to say, and says it well." A. R. Bosworth

+ San Francisco Chronicle p10 My 30 '50 900w

"The book is peppered with interesting little factual oddments, such as the information that tumbleweed was introduced to the West from Siberia in the Nineties as an antierosion measure. There are interesting photographs."

+ Sat R of Lit 33:30 S 16 '50 230w

BABKIN, BORIS PETROVICH. Pavlov; a biography. 365p $6 Univ. of Chicago press

B or 92 Pavlov, Ivan Petrovich 49-11887

A biography of the Russian physiologist, famous for his studies of digestion and of the conditioned reflex. The second half of the book is a discussion of Pavlov's work and its importance. The author was a pupil of Pavlov, and served as his assistant in the department of physiology at the Institute of Experimental medicine in St Petersburg. He is now with the Montreal neurological institute. Bibliography. Index.

"The biographical material is rather starry-eyed; the scientific matter is businesslike, and brings Pavlov pretty well up to date." B. B.

New Repub 122:21 Ap 3 '50 230w

"Altogether Pavlov is one of the most fascinating figures in the whole history of science, and Babkin has risen to the high task of writing his biography. It will stand as a great biography of a great man to lighten our path through the gloom of our modern mediocrity and degradations." W. H. Gantt

+ N Y Times p4 N 27 '49 1200w

"It will be a long time, if ever, before we have another such book as this about one of the giants of modern physiology. Dr. Babkin was not only a student of Pavlov's but an aide and friend as well, and he has managed to give us a wellrounded and critically balanced portrait of his master. While the biographical part of this book is somewhat episodic, it is impossible to read it without learning what sort of a man Pavlov was." J. W. H.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 F 5 '50 450w

"The book is a major step in the right direction. Dr. Babkin, who is now doing research at the Montreal Neurological Institute, knew the famous scientist for more than three decades and spent ten years as his assistant in St. Petersburg. Moreover, he discusses Pavlov's scientific contributions and character with impartiality." John Pfeiffer

+ Sat R of Lit 33:30 Ap 8 '50 700w

BACCHELLI, RICCARDO. Mill on the Po; tr. by Frances Frenaye. 590p $4 Pantheon bks

50-9509

"Parts I and II of the Italian trilogy, Il Mulino Del Po, with part III scheduled for fall 1951 publication. Regarded in Italy as the Italian equivalent to War and Peace. Family novel, with historical undertones, covering the years 1821 to 1872 (part III goes to 1920) told against the slow birth of the Italian nation and the impact of historical events on three generations of the Scacerni family, millers on a floating mill on the River Po in Northern Italy." Library J

Booklist 47:136 D 1 '50

Bookmark 10:32 N '50 40w

"Mr. Bacchelli's treatment of the political problems is seemingly equable; he respects Catholic truths, apparently realizes that the temporal defects of the papal states do not weaken the Church's spiritual integrity. A crowded, sprawling novel but one that can hold your interest." Mary Sandrock

+ Cath World 172:153 N '50 250w

"There are imperfections in his design and at times the reader will wish for more of one pattern and less of another. But never does the book lose a sense of intimate contact with real people and real events. This seems to me to be achievement enough." Emmett Dedmon

+ — Chicago Sun p5 S 19 '50 470w

"Mr. Bacchelli's 'The Mill on the Po' is a massive, agrarian epic in the tradition of Rolvaag, Hamsun, and Nexo. The thoughtful reader will find it rich in rewards, but he will have to have a little patience over the long haul, in reaping them, for it is ponderous in movement like a glacier." Edmund Fuller

+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 S 24 '50 490w

Cleveland Open Shelf p20 O '50

"The Mill on the Po is the finest historical novel we have had of twentieth-century Italy. . . In addition to its moderation, the solemnity with which the life-death cycle is portrayed and the measured cadence of the language in which the violence of nature is expressed are alien to modern ears. That is why the book will appear quite dull to many readers, as it did at first to this reviewer. And there are dull parts. But in a work of this magnitude, that much can be endured." Serge Hughes

+ Commonweal 53:206 D 1 '50 800w

"An epic novel translated from the Italian, and carrying over into English its robust quality, acute, vivid in characterization and detail, a satisfying rich novel of conspicuous literary flavor."

+ Kirkus 18:480 Ag 15 '50 280w

"Of almost epic proportions, this is recommended for all collections which aim to include foreign creative literature in English translation." R. E. Kingery

Library J 75:1405 S 1 '50 140w

"There may be—indeed there are—subtler artists than Bacchelli writing in Italy today but there is, I think, none who could handle a theme like 'The Mill on the Po' with his mastery. The work has been admired in Italy since the publication of the first volume in 1938 and I believe American readers will be no less appreciative. The translation by Frances Frenaye is very good and much credit is due her for having brought into English the authentic flavor of Bacchelli's prose; he is a painstaking and highly disciplined writer and finding the mot juste must have been no easy matter over these long pages." T. G. Bergin

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 S 17 '50 1100w

"No one who reads 'The Mill on the Po' as fiction will be disappointed. And all who care to give it some further thought will find that in many ways much of its contents transcends the story of Italy, for it leaves one with the feeling that no one in this world is so small or unimportant that he does not in some manner or other, by his actions, contribute to or influence the destiny of others." Robert Knittel

+ N Y Times p5 S 17 '50 750w

"Regrettably, the Scacernis not only carry on their sturdy peasant shoulders the burden of summing up fictionally the successive political and economic trends but also suffer recurrently from the type of natural disaster—flood, famine, or plague—that is indispensable to any novel written, as this one is, in the grand manner. As a result, the representatives of the tribe are submerged a good deal of the time either literally, in the treacherous waters of the Po, or figuratively, in the author's elaborate method of presentation."

New Yorker 26:118 S 16 '50 160w

"It is quite an old-fashioned book, actually. It is written on a straight line, with little depth or insight, and in a manner reminiscent of the century it describes. The translation is not particularly bright, and altogether it is the

BACCHELLI, RICCARDO—Continued
dulness of Scacerni and his fellow peasants which comes through rather than any heroic qualities they may have demonstrated while their country was being born from the little kingdoms and Papal States." Thomas Sugrue

Sat R of Lit 33:19 S 30 '50 900w

BACH, GEORGE LELAND. Federal reserve policy-making; a study in government economic policy formation. 282p $3 Knopf

332.4973 Money. Banks and banking—U.S. Federal reserve banks 50-6427

"This book is a study in modern economic policy-making. It has two main purposes. The first is to report in some detail a recent extensive study of the process of Federal Reserve monetary and bank-supervisory policy formation. The second is to look analytically at the policy-making experience of the past quarter century to see what lessons it may have for the future. . . . This monograph rests in considerable part on a study of the Federal Reserve System which [the author] conducted in 1948 for the Hoover Commission." (Pref) The author is professor of economics at the Carnegie Institute of Technology. Index.

"This book is unlikely to be popular with those who believe that all problems of policy formation and coordination can be solved by drawing a pyramidal type or organizational chart which concentrates final authority and responsibility in the chief executive. It should, however, be welcomed by those who believe that the type of organization to be adopted and the location of control over it should depend upon the nature of the functions to be performed, the types of policies desired, and the past performance of the agency or agencies involved. It is an excellent example of the kind of case study on which plans for government reorganization should be based." L. V. Chandler

+ Am Pol Sci R 44:1014 D '50 600w

"This is an extremely interesting and valuable monograph and is recommended as desirable reading for all who are interested in the subject. . . Whether or not the reader agrees with Professor Bach's recommendations in Part IV (the reviewer does not in all cases), he will find the discussion stimulating and the suggestions far from dogmatic in nature. Professor Bach has made a definite contribution to money and banking literature in the writing of this monograph." F. A. Bradford

+ Ann Am Acad 271:207 S '50 460w

Current Hist 18:356 Je '50 30w

"Professor Bach's study of Federal Reserve policy-making should not be missed by anyone interested in the current debate over monetary and fiscal matters. Engagingly and judiciously written, the little volume makes excellent reading, be it for classroom, desk, or bedside purposes." R. A. Musgrave

+ J Pol Econ 58:456 O '50 900w

"The study as a whole is a workmanlike contribution to an interesting problem of distribution."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:314 S '50 280w

BACKER, GEORGE. Deadly parallel: Stalin and Ivan the Terrible. 240p $3.50 Random house

947.084 Stalin, Iosif. Ivan IV, the Terrible, czar of Russia. Russia—Foreign relations 50-8344

"The parallel is between Ivan the Terrible and Joseph Stalin. . . The author contends that there is great significance in the current glorification by official Soviet historians of Ivan IV and his bloody reign, because, he says, 'history is only the re-creation of the past in the image of the present.' " New Yorker

---

Reviewed by Irving Pflaum

Chicago Sun p5 Jl 2 '50 430w

"While Mr. Backer's basic idea is sound, and there are occasional shrewd criticisms of soviet methods of rule and communist propaganda, the execution of the book is open to several serious criticisms. The author lacks the gift of organization; he rambles from one point to another with few connecting links and he lacks a clear and forceful style." W. H. Chamberlin

+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Je 25 '50 550w

"To go beyond, as Mr. Backer does, and declare Ivan's 'oprichnina' identical with Soviet bureaucracy is more than straining a point; it amounts to a hardly permissible overlooking of all the fundamental and decisive cultural, political, and socio-economic differences between the age of Ivan IV and our own. . . That czar, incidentally, was one of the most remarkable personalities ever to dominate a large, though secondary, sector of the world stage. . . It is unfortunate that in the pages of Mr. Backer's book he never quite emerges from under the shadow of Stalin." Ernest Pisko

— + Christian Science Monitor p8 Jl 8 '50 1000w

Current Hist 19:107 Ag '50 40w

+ Kirkus 18:254 Ap 15 '50 170w

Reviewed by M. G. Checrallah

Library J 75:975 Je 1 '50 140w

"Even for those whom it may puzzle or annoy, this little book should prove rewarding. Mr. Backer is full of stimulating ideas." Crane Brinton

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Je 25 '50 750w

"A former editor of The New York Post, George Backer has turned his active mind to a field remote from journalism, and with distinguished success. . . Mr. Backer has written an astute and startling essay on the parallels between Stalin and Ivan the Terrible. And in exposing the trend and fulsomeness of the praise bestowed on Ivan by an approved Soviet historian, he has added a colorful item to our slow realization of the state of things behind the curtain." Max Eastman

+ N Y Times p6 Je 18 '50 700w

"It makes an ingenious argument, and the author has bolstered it up with a good deal of knowledgeable historical background. The flaw in the book comes from Mr. Backer's tendency to wander all over the place in his reasoning."

New Yorker 26:96 Je 17 '50 200w

San Francisco Chronicle p21 Ag 20 '50 500w

"An illuminating and frightening book, essential background for an understanding of what is happening in the Soviet Union." H. C. Wolfe

+ Sat R of Lit 33:28 Ag 12 '50 600w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:328 S '50 280w

BACMEISTER, MRS RHODA (WARNER). Your child and other people; at home, at school, at play. 299p $3 Little

649.1 Children—Management 50-8629

A guidebook to the social life of children from one to eight, written for "the middle-brow level." Bibliography. Index.

Bookmark 10:3 O '50 30w

"A really outstanding volume, packed to the brim with helpful advice on understanding and guiding the young child." Millicent Taylor

+ Christian Science Monitor p7 S 16 '50 750w

Cleveland Open Shelf p17 O '50

Kirkus 18:197 Mr 15 '50 200w

"A good though not an erudite, acquisition for the library's collection on parent and child." Nathaniel Stewart

+ Library J 75:1045 Je 15 '50 130w

"From her rich experience as teacher, mother and grandmother the author has presented concrete suggestions and described actual situations. Her book provides real understanding of the child's social needs and adjustment." M. R. Brown

+ N Y Times p41 S 10 '50 200w

San Francisco Chronicle p26 N 26 '50 200w

School & Society 72:287 O 28 '50 40w

BAER, BARBARA. How to make curtains and draperies. 103p il $1.50 McBride

645.3 Drapery. Interior decoration 50-9616

"From the picture back to the Palladian window, and from indestructible orlon back to antique lace, this pocketbook-size volume deals with window treatments both decoratively and practically. Mechanics of measuring, cutting, and sewing are covered; the fabric market, from metallic brocades to fishnet is given the once-over and suitability of various types to your home are discussed; hardware and fittings to use on today's walls, and of the decorative order—like chunky plastic or brass tiebacks—are brought to your attention. Emphasis is on up-to-the-minute effects." Christian Science Monitor

Booklist 47:128 D 1 '50

Christian Science Monitor p12 S 22 '50 100w

BAERWALD, MARCUS, and MAHONEY, TOM. Gems and jewelry today; an account of the romance and values of gems, jewelry, watches and silverware. 303p il $10 Rodd

739.27 Gems. Jewelry 50-5462

"Most books about gems are written for the mineral collector or for the jewel-dazzled general reader. This one, by a jeweler and a magazine writer, is designed to interest the retail jeweler, to give him some understanding of the merchandise he sells and to explain to him the romance of his craft and the ramifications of gem mining, gem cutting, of the manufacture of synthetic gems, of rings, watches, silverware, and other valuable goods which the jeweler deals in." Chicago Sunday Tribune

Booklist 46:214 Mr 1 '50

"The chapters on synthetic stones are extremely good, up to date, explicit, and extremely well illustrated. On natural gem stones, the authors have little that is original to say, but they present what they have handsomely and with a wealth of good pictures. The book is handsomely produced and illustrated." Russell MacFall

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Mr 5 '50 150w

"The admirable appendix, bibliography and cross index, added to profuse illustrations, marginal headings for easy reference, and handsome though sturdy format make this a practical as well as a beautiful book, which will be widely hailed for public library use."

+ Kirkus 18:50 Ja 15 '50 220w

"Altogether, though, the book promises more than it delivers, and like so many others on the subject, it is good for browsing, but falls short of being either an excellent treatise or a satisfactory reference book." R. R. Hawkins

Library J 75:497 Mr 15 '50 130w

"Lavishly illustrated with photographs and drawings, the book is a treasure house of anecdote and fact, odds and ends of information and counsel, tables of birthstones, relative hardness, refraction, colors and the like." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ja 24 '50 700w

BAGBY, GEORGE, pseud. See Stein, A. M.

BAILEY, ALBERT EDWARD. Gospel in hymns; backgrounds and interpretations. 600p il $6 Scribner

245.2 Hymns 50-6256

The author, an authority in his field, selected 313 hymns from the hymnals of various denominations, including those hymns which were found in at least six of the books. He discusses the history, authorship, and meaning of each hymn chosen. Indexes by first lines, hymnal references, authors and translators. Copiously illustrated. Selected bibliography.

"Church workers who have responsibility for congregational singing or for Sunday school music will find in the 600 pages of this volume enlightening information to guide them in their choices. Even lacking the ability to carry a tune, a reader will gain from Prof. Bailey's interpretation a fascinating new insight into the relation between history and hymns." F. D. Heron

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ap 9 '50 250w

"The whole is a really superb work. It fittingly climaxes Prof. Bailey's long and distinguished career as an exponent of the relation of the arts to religion." W. E. Garrison

+ Christian Century 67:498 Ap 19 '50 1200w

Reviewed by W. L. Caswell

Churchman 164:17 Jl '50 120w

Cleveland Open Shelf p14 Ag '50

"This method of selection ensures him against omitting old-time favorites, but it obviously is quite inadequate as a guide to excellence. A considerable number of hymns included are second-rate, or worse; only one hymn written in the last thirty years is listed; and Canon Briggs, the greatest living hymn writer in England, and John Haynes Holmes and M. F. Ham, the foremost living writers in America, are not even mentioned. . . The book has certain other limitations. The author rarely comments on the tunes with which the hymns are associated, although those tunes often have made a great contribution to their popularity. There is an index of authors, but no general index, which would have greatly facilitated use of the book. . . Within the limitations noted, however, the author has produced a book which is likely to have considerable popular appeal. Its large amount of anecdotal material about authors and their social background will come in handy for ministers who want to interest their congregations in the hymns they love to sing, or to Sunday-school teachers." H. W. Foote

+ — Crozer Q 27:369 O '50 800w

"This would be a most valuable addition to the library of any Protestant who is interested in the hymns of the Church."

+ Kirkus 17:650 D 1 '49 190w

"Fascinating account. . . Recommended for church-school, home and library reference use." R. P. Tubby

+ Library J 75:696 Ap 15 '50 130w

"Beautifully printed and illustrated, fascinating in content, an attractive combination of scholarship and sentiment, this book accomplishes ably what it set out to do. Students and lovers of hymns will pore over it for many a day." J. H. Holmes

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 Ap 23 '50 600w

"The author, unfortunately, has treated his subject in a somewhat sensational manner. Controversial religious history is frequently and needlessly interjected; facts are often twisted into half truths, and the author's personal interpretation of certain hymn lines is sometimes questionable." J. W. McGill

N Y Times p33 Mr 19 '50 230w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:163 Je '50 240w

Wis Lib Bul 46:12 Ap '50

BAILEY, CAROLYN SHERWIN (MRS EBEN CLAYTON HILL). Enchanted village; il. by Eileen Evans. 190p $2.50 Viking

50-9364

A teen-aged boy and girl trying to make a paying proposition of a worn-out New Hampshire farm become aware of their pioneer ancestors. During their year together on the farm they decide to put on a play about America's past, and the book ends with the play, staging directions and all.

Kirkus 18:470 Ag 15 '50 190w

"Recommended for grades 7-9." Elizabeth Burr

+ Library J 75:1837 O 15 '50 80w

"These stories of the past are slight (as is the contemporary narrative). Yet out of them Jane and Bill make a play which should be stimulating to young readers, for it furnishes a theme and a pattern that can easily be adapted to anybody's home-town history. The most outstanding quality of the book is its lovely sense of the seasons and the richness that is America's." E. L. B.

BAILEY, C. S.—Continued
+ N Y Times p16 Ag 27 '50 180w

"Delicate drawings of the New Hampshire scene illustrate this fresh and satisfying book."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:65 N 11 '50 210w

BAILEY, NEMADJI BETH (MRS J. A. MC-LEAN). Meal planning and table service for the American home without servants. rev ed 167p il $3.50 Manual arts

642 Table. Menus 49-6730

Revised edition of a book first published in 1924. "This book is intended for the home of that large group of women who have no maid or, at best, but one maid. In every case the work has been analyzed into the fundamental processes, and basic rules have been stated. The execution of the processes also have been given." (Introd) Index. For earlier edition see Book Review Digest 1936.

"Here is a splendid source of help for both homemakers and students." Marie Sellers
+ J Home Econ 42:215 Mr '50 150w
School & Society 70:288 O 29 '49 30w

BAILEY, STEPHEN KEMP. Congress makes a law; the story behind the Employment act of 1946. 282p $3.75 Columbia univ. press

328.37 U.S. Congress. Politics, Practical. Unemployment 49-49271

"Factors leading to the formulation of the so-called Full Employment Act, the influences bearing on the features of the bill; pressure groups and personalities interested for and against, and in general the objectives of the Act. Professor Bailey (Wesleyan), concludes that the desires of the people, as expressed in elections, are more or less baffled by our law makers in the conflict of interests." (Current Hist) Bibliography. Index.

"Professor Bailey has made a scholarly and valuable contribution to the literature of public policy formulation that deservedly won for him the Toppan Prize at Harvard for the most distinguished thesis in political science in 1948. To political scientists its value does not lie merely in the fact that the author has given us a provocative case study. What is more important, perhaps, is that he has drawn attention to problems and issues in the interrelated social sciences that call for serious investigation." Belle Zeller
+ Am Pol Sci R 44:468 Je '50 1050w

"This is an excellent study of the realities of the legislative process, one which should be read by any person interested in the movement to make Congress equal to the needs of a democracy in the second half of the twentieth century." D. D. McKean
+ Ann Am Acad 269:157 My '50 320w
Booklist 46:255 Ap 15 '50
Current Hist 18:166 Mr '50 50w

"Students of American political dynamics will welcome Professor Stephen Kemp Bailey's new book, Congress Makes a Law . . . as a valuable addition to their sources for the study of that immensely complex and always confusing process whereby public policy is made." G. W. Setzer
+ Pol Sci Q 65:154 Mr '50 600w

"Mr. Bailey sets himself what at a casual glance might be considered a narrow focus: the story of the Act's genesis and its perilous course through Congress. Actually, because he has done so excellent a job, he has written an extremely important monograph—both because the measure itself represents a vital policy declaration committing the Federal Government to a large scale of responsibility for the nation's economy and because this book spells out in the clearest form the nature of the legislative process and the pressures that affect it."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:11 Je 3 '50 360w

Reviewed by E. S. Magee
Survey 86:371 Jl '50 600w
U S Quarterly Bkl 6:198 Je '50 200w

BAILEY, THOMAS ANDREW. America faces Russia; Russian-American relations from early times to our day. 375p il $4 Cornell univ. press

327.73 U.S.—Foreign relations—Russia. Russia—Foreign relations—U.S. 50-10009

"A history of our relations with Russia since the time of Catherine the Great. This is a checkered story, complicated by a number of what the author calls myths, which he sets out resolutely to dissolve." (New Yorker) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by Gilbert Twiss
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 N 5 '50 270w

"Some of this is debatable, and Mr. Bailey's thesis that Alexander I should receive credit for the formulation of the Monroe Doctrine, rather than Monroe or Adams, leads him into deep waters. But his program for the present, which advocates self-education about Russia; . . education of Russia about America; the 'selling' of democracy; full armed strength; and patience, will impress most readers as the logical, and proper one." H. O.
+ — Christian Science Monitor p14 N 18 '50 300w

Reviewed by Alex Inkeles
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p22 N 26 '50 700w

"In the concluding chapter of his book, Mr. Bailey makes statements about Russia which are in no way connected with the objective and serious content of the work as a whole. . . For the rest, this is a serious and useful work." D. J. Dallin
+ — N Y Times p12 D 10 '50 550w
New Yorker 26:163 N 4 '50 230w

"A sprightly style is marred by excessive alliteration and a few strained metaphors. Contemporary cartoons enliven a handsome book. The bibliography lists well-known works, but the index is inadequate and not entirely accurate. Nevertheless, this presentation of the roots of a current problem—'the most frightening one of our times'—deserves to be read by the man in the street." W. U. Solberg
+ — Pol Sci Q 65:590 D '50 900w
San Francisco Chronicle p5 N 26 '50 200w

"Provides excellent background for the study of Soviet-American relations today. There was a need for so lucid and well-documented a survey of Russian-American relations." H. C. Wolfe
+ Sat R of Lit 33:16 N 11 '50 850w

BAILEY, THOMAS ANDREW. Diplomatic history of the American people. 4th ed 986p il maps $5 Appleton

327.73 U.S.—Foreign relations 50-7691

"Two new chapters cover events from 1945 to 1949, bibliographies have been brought up to date, and a glossary of diplomatic terms has been added." (Booklist) Bibliography. Index. For first edition see Book Review Digest 1940.

Am Pol Sci R 44:797 S '50 20w
Booklist 46:317 Je 15 '50
Christian Century 67:707 Je 7 '50 200w
Current Hist 19:39 Jl '50 30w

BAINTON, ROLAND HERBERT. Here I stand; a life of Martin Luther. 422p il $4.75 Abingdon-Cokesbury

B or 92 Luther, Martin 50-9795

A biography, popularly and entertainingly written, but based on scholarly research and study. The author is Titus professor of ecclesiastical history at Yale Divinity School, an ordained minister of the Congregational church, and an active member of the Society of Friends (Quakers). The illustrations in the book are drawn from the collection of medieval and Renaissance drawings, woodcuts, and engravings.

Booklist 447:59 O 1 '50

"Like a first rate novel, 'Here I Stand,' is intensely human in style and treatment. The author, Quaker that he is, has understanding and sympathy for human strength and human frailties. As an intellectual achievement, the book is even greater, for it handles abstruse theological problems and disputes in such a manner as to make them clear to any intelligent reader." L. T. Heron

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 O 1 '50 230w

"Author Bainton has given us an exciting biography of one of history's greatest men. I use the adjective purposely. The book is written in such an easy, readable style and with such a vivid portrayal of one of the most dramatic lives in history that it makes exciting reading." D. J. Campbell

+ Christian Century 67:1168 O 4 '50 1150w

Reviewed by W. E. Garrison

+ Christian Century 67:1169 O 4 '50 700w

"Readable and authoritative life of Luther." Neil Martin

+ Christian Science Monitor p6 O 28 '50 1050w

"This life is being widely advertised and deserves to be widely read. It has a scholarly basis, for the author, a professor at Yale Divinity School, is a student of the Reformation period. But it is popularly written and should have a wider appeal than most religious biographies. An attractive feature is the inclusion of many wood-cuts and engravings from Luther's own time which have been culled from Dr. Bainton's collection of medieval drawings, woodcuts and engravings. This is a book to be featured."

+ Kirkus 18:590 O 1 '50 240w

"A sound but somewhat pedestrian biography. . . However, the fascinating contemporary woodcuts and engravings and the generous extracts from Luther's writings are well worth the price of the book."

+ Nation 171:350 O 14 '50 50w

"The Renaissance schooled men to question all the accepted postulates, and in Germany the area of question was society and the church rather than letters and art. Germany was seething when Luther stepped onto the scene. If it had not been, he would have shared the fate of John Hus. Luther was the last man of the Renaissance. Some of this is only hinted at in Mr. Bainton's book, not dealt with explicitly. Yet in all other respects, the book is excellent." T. C. Chubb

+ — N Y Times p10 N 19 '50 450w

San Francisco Chronicle p15 N 26 '50 500w

Time 56:68 S 18 '50 1050w

BAIR, PATRICK. Faster! faster! 251p $3 Viking

50-9238

An allegorical novel about the plight of the individualist in our present day regimented world. The characters are all passengers on a train. In the front coaches things are pleasant, but the end coaches are bare and unpleasant. Here live the people who do the work and attempt to drive the train ever faster and faster. Eventually the crash comes, but the people in the end coaches survive. One man imposes his will upon the others, and the struggle for speed begins again.

"This novel, thriller, fantasy, allegory—call it whatever you like—seems to me a highly remarkable, eminently readable, honestly impressive little book." Richard Sullivan

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 S 3 '50 350w

Kirkus 18:392 Jl 15 '50 180w

"Mr. Bair writes with an easy cynicism. He has been compared to George Orwell, but there's only a slight resemblance. Both Orwell and Bair give their political satires the exciting qualities of a thriller, but Orwell prophesied the future with a savage and melancholy depth. The bitterness in Bair's allegory is not deep, and his observation seems only superficial."

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 O 29 '50 410w

"Mr. Bair writes with passionate, youthful sincerity, but his heavy-handed allegory is alternately too obvious and too obscure. The publishers are plugging it as a 'suspense' novel. Mr. Bair may some day write a good allegory, or if he took lower aim, he could undoubtedly write a good thriller. 'Faster! Faster!' being an inept mixture, is not quite either." H. M.

N Y Times p39 S 10 '50 140w

New Yorker 26:119 S 9 '50 130w

"Mr. Bair's style is straightforward and swift and economical. But his material is rich and there are many layers of meaning." W. R. White

+ San Francisco Chronicle p21 S 17 '50 750w

Reviewed by Fletcher Pratt

Sat R of Lit 33:17 D 30 '50 60w

"There seems on the face of it little reason why, since the characterization and the dialogue aim at naturalism, this story should not have had a realistic setting: the army, for instance, might have replaced the train, for Chapel's initial experience has its parallel in that of many cultured conscripts during the recent war; but doubtless the author is one of those who imagine that a 'deeper significance' attaches to novels with imaginary backgrounds."

Times [London] Lit Sup p165 Mr 17 '50 430w

BAKELESS, JOHN EDWIN. Eyes of discovery; the pageant of North America as seen by the first explorers. 439p il $5 Lippincott

973.1 America—Discovery and exploration. U.S.—Description and travel 50-10588

"An effort to describe North America as the first white men in each area saw it: landscapes, forests, plains, animals, plants, streams, and Indians, as they existed before the inevitable change that began almost from the instant of the first white settlement. It is neither a story of adventure nor a book about Indians nor a history of exploration and colonization. Where the life of an explorer is touched upon at all, it is merely to explain who the man was and how he came to make his discoveries when he did. Because of this approach, many a great name of the ever-moving frontier does not appear at all." (Pref) Index.

Booklist 47:154 D 15 '50

Kirkus 18:504 Ag 15 '50 220w

"A worthwhile book. Recommended for the general reader." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 75:2075 D 1 '50 140w

"Mr. Bakeless's new book is less important and less scholarly than his 'Lewis and Clark' but is likely to interest a larger public. . . In general, I think, he is better with flora and fauna than with geography, more at home in the East than in the West and not so trustworthy on Indians as on the white men. The most satisfactory and pleasing—perhaps because the most detailed—portions of his book are those that deal with New England, New York and Pennsylvania." Bernard Devoto

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 N 26 '50 1150w

Reviewed by Ralph Thompson

N Y Times p7 D 17 '50 550w

San Francisco Chronicle p22 D 3 '50 460w

Springf'd Republican p7B D 24 '50 270w

"Author Bakeless keeps his Eyes of Discovery turned away from the explorers themselves and fixed firmly on what they saw. Through their eyes, a modern North American can get a fascinating view of what the land was like before the first highway went through and the first billboard went up."

+ Time 56:109 N 27 '50 750w

BAKER, HELEN, and others. Transmitting information through management and union channels; two case studies. (Princeton univ. Department of economics and social institutions. Research report ser) 140p $3; pa $2.50 Industrial relations section

658.31 Industrial relations 49-11357

"Two large corporations and their unions coöperated in this analytical study of their

BAKER, HELEN—Continued
communications system. It reveals employe attitudes toward the adequacy of media and the channels for sharing information, and offers constructive ideas for more effective programs." Chicago Sunday Tribune

"Students new to the field will find this book of considerable value as they begin to grapple with the many-faceted problems of the industrial community." R. C. Sorensen
+ Ann Am Acad 268:231 Mr '50 550w

Reviewed by Winifred Baum
Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 My 14 '50 40w
U S Quarterly Bkl 6:215 Je '50 280w

BAKER, JOSEPH ELLIS, ed. Reinterpretation of Victorian literature; ed. for the Victorian literature group of the Modern language association of America. 236p $3.75 Princeton univ. press

820.9 English literature—History and criticism 50-5600

Eleven scholarly essays on Victorian literature. Contents: Social background and social thought, by Emery Neff; The comic spirit and Victorian sanity, by H. M. Jones; The Oxford movement; a reconsideration, by C. F. Harrold; The critical study of the Victorian age, by Norman Foerster; Form and technique in the novel, by B. A. Booth; Victorian education and the idea of culture, by W. S. Knickerbocker; The development of the historical mind, by R. A. E. Brooks; The tradition of Burke, by F. L. Mulhauser; The Victorians and the world abroad, by Karl Litzenberg; New territories in Victorian biography, by J. W. Dodds; Our new Hellenic renaissance, by J. E. Baker.

"The kind of scholarship which this book represents is an essential ingredient of criticism, but it should not be taken for the whole of it. It is far beyond the kind of study in which literature is treated as a historical phenomenon, but it has not yet reached the point at which literature is treated as art." Jacob Korg
Nation 170:629 Je 24 '50 600w

Reviewed by Walter Allen
New Statesman & Nation 40:258 S 2 '50 600w

"Occasionally one is uncomfortably aware of special pleading—as when one paper denigrates the eighteenth century and another the twentieth in order to enhance the nineteenth. If the Edwardians scoffed at their Victorian fathers that is no reason for us to eulogize them. But most of the discussion is genuinely constructive. Also valuable, it indicates the lines of attack for future forays and campaigns in conquering the rich Victorian fields." Robert Halsband
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:20 Je 3 '50 150w

Reviewed by Philip Tomlinson
Spec 184:150 Ag 4 '50 1650w
Times [London] Lit Sup p532 Ag 25 '50 3300w
U S Quarterly Bkl 6:149 Je '50 240w

BAKER, MARGARET JOYCE. Four farthings and a thimble; il. by Decie Merwin. 150p $2.50 Longmans

50-6555

A family story for ages eight to twelve. The Tailors were Londoners but they all wished for a home in the country. A sudden influx of pets made their landlord demand that they move or get rid of the animals. Benbow, the youngest, ran away and found the very house for them. Farthings turned out to be the home they had longed to own.

Booklist 46:266 Ap 15 '50

"Pleasant English family story with plenty of action."
+ Bookmark 9:163 Ap '50 40w
+ Chicago Sun p5 Jl 18 '50 70w

"Excellent family reading." Polly Goodwin
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 My 14 '50 130w

"Good writing, humor and imagination mark this story for the middle age group." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 26:189 My '50 120w
+ Kirkus 18:61 F 1 '50 80w

Reviewed by Louise Davis
Library J 75:635 Ap 15 '50 70w

"Good reading for those who like 'real' stories." H. M. Brogan
+ Library J 75:703 Ap 15 '50 80w

"Miss Baker's 'Homer the Tortoise' is an honor book on our Spring Festival list. This second book is just as amusing, not quite so fantastic, a bit longer, and good for girls a bit older say, from ten to twelve."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p19 My 7 '50 270w

"The excess of good luck softens up the book and weakens it as a realistic performance, yet the characters behave naturally and there is a lovely feeling for country living which makes the story very attractive." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p28 Ap 2 '50 180w

"The background of his story is post-war England. It has a good deal of atmosphere and something happens on every page. Both boys and girls should get a good deal of pleasure out of Benbow and the Tailor family."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:35 My 13 '50 180w

"This child's book is well written in lovely prose, with humor and joy and imagination."
+ School & Society 71:190 Mr 25 '50 20w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal
Springf'd Republican p8C My 7 '50 140w

BAKER, MARGARET JOYCE. Homer the tortoise; il. by Leo Bates [Eng title: Nonsense! said the tortoise]. (Whittlesey house publication) 149p $2 McGraw

50-6712

A tale of what happened when three small English girls discovered that their pet tortoise could talk.

Booklist 46:278 My 1 '50
Bookmark 9:187 My '50 30w

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun p3 My 6 '50 90w

"Any 7 to 11 year old who reads about Homer will forever after gaze on turtles with a wary and curious eye, I promise you!" Polly Goodwin
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 My 14 '50 210w

"An engaging bit of whimsey about a tortoise who talks, this airy nonsense set in England should appeal to those who loved Alice in Wonderland and like animals who have something to say."
+ Kirkus 18:97 F 15 '50 130w

Reviewed by Louise Davis
Library J 75:629 Ap 15 '50 50w

"Recommended for reading aloud and for fourth-fifth-graders to read themselves." Anne Izard
+ Library J 75:986 Je 1 '50 80w

"A good tale to read aloud to a pet-loving family with ages six to ten to listen."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 My 7 '50 250w

"The talking animal often sounds banal and silly but not Homer. He is wholly convincing and very diverting." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p28 Ap 2 '50 190w

"A winning tale from England, made convincing by good writing that doesn't resort to any tongue-in-cheek business."
+ New Yorker 26:176 D 2 '50 80w

Reviewed by G. C. Castor
San Francisco Chronicle p3 N 12 '50 110w

"A very amusing and a convincing story."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:46 Ap 8 '50 270w
Wis Lib Bul 46:22 Jl '50

BAKER, MRS NINA (BROWN). Next year in Jerusalem; the story of Theodor Herzl. 186p $2.50 Harcourt

B or 92 Herzl, Theodor—Juvenile literature. Zionism 50-5812

A biography of the founder of modern Zionism: Theodor Herzl. For ages fourteen or older. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:220 Mr 1 '50

Bookmark 9:165 Ap '50 40w

"This is excellent background material on a timely subject, discussed acceptably for adults as well as young people." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 26:200 My '50 100w

"This is a careful, quiet record of a strenuous, brilliant career. It should be of great value in schools and libraries as objective background material for one of the most important events in contemporary history."

+ Kirkus 18:104 F 15 '50 190w

Reviewed by Siri Andrews

Library J 75:704 Ap 15 '50 70w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ap 30 '50 140w

"Recommended for junior and senior high school ages." Irene Smith

+ N Y Times p24 F 26 '50 120w

San Francisco Chronicle p25 My 21 '50 260w

"This experienced writer of biography for young people has presented an understanding and a convincing historical picture." C. E. Zagat

+ Sat R of Lit 33:42 My 13 '50 270w

Reviewed by S. B. Shear

Springf'd Republican p8D O 1 '50 70w

Wis Lib Bul 46:22 S '50

BAKER, MRS NINA (BROWN). Sir Walter Raleigh. 191p $2.50 Harcourt

B or 92 Raleigh, Sir Walter—Juvenile literature 50-9893

An authentic biography of Sir Walter Raleigh for age twelve and older. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 47:102 N 1 '50

"For the young reader who has already discovered the fascination of good biografy, I should recommend the Baker book." A. B. McG.

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p20 N 12 '50 130w

"Nina Brown Baker's Sir Walter Raleigh lacks the color and the spacious background Mr. Trease has given to his book, but it is clear and reliable as to historical fact and provided with a bibliography and an index librarians will appreciate." A. C. Moore

+ — Horn Bk 26:457 N '50 30w

"An absorbing story, well told, and the conversations are manufactured in direct, neutral English which present the gist of the thought without slipping into inaccurate period or contemporary vernacular."

+ Kirkus 18:612 O 1 '50 110w

"Here is biography in the best sense of the word, with not a bit of fictionizing and all sources recorded; it is an exact and fascinating recreation of the man, period and place; it is written with economy and pace." M. C. Scoggin

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 N 12 '50 220w

"Mrs. Baker's book is brief, simply narrated, and fast moving. An index and a bibliography add to its usefulness for younger readers in search of information. . . Dialogue, poetry, letters and court bulletins are incorporated in the author's swift-paced narrative to add authenticity and color." Elizabeth Hodges

+ N Y Times p18 N 12 '50 160w

New Yorker 26:190 D 2 '50 70w

Sat R of Lit 33:63 N 11 '50 220w

BAKER, RACHEL (MININBERG). Chaim Weizmann, builder of a nation. 180p $2.75 Messner

B or 92 Weizmann, Chaim 50-10151

"From his boyhood when he studied in Russia under a rabbi who dreamed of Jewish liberation, Weizmann had only two purposes—the study of chemistry and the founding of a Jewish homeland. His selfless devotion has had tremendous and lasting influence. . . In 1948 he was elected the first President of Israel. [This is a] biography of one of our great men, with full bibliography and useful index." N Y Herald Tribune Bk R

Booklist 47:99 N 1 '50

Kirkus 18:477 Ag 15 '50 180w

"The story of Chaim Weizmann is really the story of the establishment of Israel. Rachel Baker has told it clearly, sympathetically, dramatically." M. C. Scoggin

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 N 12 '50 240w

Reviewed by M. P. Allen

N Y Times p50 N 26 '50 150w

BAKER, WARREN, and KOZACKA, JOSEPH S. Carbide cutting tools. 416p $5.50 il Am. Tech. soc

621.9 Tools. Metal cutting 49-11217

"The greatly increased use of carbide cutting tools in the machining of metals has created a real need for a book which presents information about these tools in a form suitable for machinists and others without advanced engineering education. This book is an impressive compendium of information on the subject, and it is written for use as a text in vocational schools, and as a self-instruction book by practicing machinists and tool designers." N Y New Tech Bks

Booklist 46:60 O 15 '49

Cleveland Open Shelf p15 Ag '50

N Y New Tech Bks 34:71 S '49

BALCH, GLENN. Lost horse; il. by Pers Crowell. 246p $2.50 Crowell

Horses—Legends and stories 50-8507

A sequel to Wild Horse (Book Review Digest 1948). In this story Ben and Dixie of the Tack Ranch in Idaho save the beautiful wild stallion, King, from death, and are rewarded by his owner, a horse breeder from Arizona. Grades five to eight.

Booklist 47:80 O 15 '50

Kirkus 18:304 Je 1 '50 210w

"Well-written, exciting story that will be popular with readers from 12-16 and all who love horses." A. M. Wetherell

+ Library J 75:1673 O 1 '50 80w

"A good tale." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 N 12 '50 120w

"This [is] more than just a good horse story. There is character development in it and some fine descriptive writing. Mr. Balch makes the ranch country very convincing. Full-page drawings by Pers Crowell give a vivid sense of King and of the ranch horses."

+ Sat R of Lit 33:57 N 11 '50 260w

BALCHIN, NIGEL. Who is my neighbor? [Eng title: A sort of traitors]. 308p $3 Houghton 50-13899

Story of a group of scientists who make an important discovery only to have the government step in and assume control for political reasons. Interlarded with the story of their scientific achievements and frustrations is the story of their personal and emotional entanglements.

Booklist 47:53; 75 O 1 '50; O 15 '50

BALCHIN, NIGEL—Continued

"Mr. Balchin does not disappoint us in the end; and whatever it is dealing with, the narrative is brisk and forceful. It has its psychological surprises; its piquant contrasts of outlook; and it is lively with excellent talk—with deft badinage, intriguing 'shop,' dignified official duels, and tensely emotional outbursts." Eric Forbes-Boyd

+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Ag 13 '49 450w

"The personal problems are interwoven deftly, and there is a pleasing atmosphere of glass blowing, Petrie dishes and experimental animals, but neither the human situations nor the problem of the use of science for biological warfare are discussed in a way to make any outstanding impression." Anthony Standen

— + Commonweal 53:102 N 3 '50 330w

Kirkus 18:488 Ag 15 '50 210w

Reviewed by H. I'A. Fausset

Manchester Guardian p4 Je 24 '49 240w

"Instead of the tragedy in which he might have involved our feelings, Balchin produces one of his characteristic neat 'gripping' endings, which reduces his whole book to the level of a high-grade entertainment. And, of course, it is very good entertainment, told with all Balchin's craftsmanship and flair. . . Balchin's understanding of scientific research, with its excitement, its repetitive tedium, and its awful hours of low grade clerical work; his ability to create his own important territory somewhere between the lab. and Whitehall; and his portrayal of Marriott—these are things which make it a matter of real regret that he is not able to devote more of his time and energy to the pursuit of literature." J. D. Scott

+ — New Statesman & Nation 38:105 Jl 23 '49 700w

"It would be a mistake to imply that Mr. Balchin's book is an allegory or that it is a tract for the times. It is that, to be sure, but it is a first-rate novel, too. The author of 'The Small Back Room' and 'The Borgia Testament' is a capital story teller, and he has not here sacrificed the story to the thesis." H. S. Commager

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 O 29 '50 1000w

Reviewed by Leo Lerman

N Y Times p37 N 26 '50 550w

"There is a total lack of suspense about the story, which draws quietly to its close like a polite argument among well-informed people, and while no one has been convinced or dissuaded, no harm is done and things remain much as they were to begin with."

New Yorker 26:150 N 25 '50 80w

Reviewed by J. M. Grant

Sat R of Lit 33:36 D 9 '50 320w

"The whole problem of the scientist's freedom of conscience in the contemporary world peters out in the antics of an intellectual peacock of a professor and the equally farcical heroics of an immature research worker; there is a spy-story police chase to round things off. The truth is, of course, that you cannot make a satisfying novel out of what is called a problem; neither life nor literature consists of problems. The trimmings here are excellent but the theme founders." R. D. Charques

— + Spec 182:866 Je 24 '49 270w

"A Sort of Traitors bears some resemblance to The Small Back Room in its suggestion of the daily life of a community of scientists but it does not carry the same degree of conviction."

Times [London] Lit Sup p409 Je 24 '49 650w

BALDWIN, FAITH. Look out for Liza. 245p $2.50 Rinehart

50-1108

Liza Lennox, widowed at the age of twenty-five and heiress to a fortune, went to New York city to live. The only people she knew there were her trustees. All three of them promptly fell in love with her. Liza was anxious to marry again, and chose the youngest trustee after providing wives for the less fortunate contenders for her hand.

Kirkus 18:143 Mr 1 '50 80w

Reviewed by Mary Johnston

N Y Times p21 My 7 '50 140w

Time 55:94 My 1 '50 180w

"Delightful story. . . Genuinely likeable characters."

+ Wis Lib Bul 46:28 Je '50

BALDWIN, HANSON WEIGHTMAN. Great mistakes of the war. 114p $1.50 Harper

940.5 World war, 1939-1945 50-6871

"This short book covers what the author, military editor of the N.Y. Times, considers to be the mistakes made during the war which are responsible for the present cold war. These mistakes were largely political and were made because we fought to win, with no concern for what would happen after the war." (Library J) Notes and bibliography. No index.

Booklist 46:259 Ap 15 '50

Reviewed by H. J. Morgenthau

Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Ap 16 '50 450w

Foreign Affairs 29:148 O '50 30w

"Well documented, but in the main, a rather personal statement of conclusions drawn from selected facts."

Kirkus 18:121 F 15 '50 270w

"Recommended." Donald Wasson

+ Library J 75:395 Mr 1 '50 100w

"This curious and profoundly pessimistic little book by the nation's leading military critic leaves me with an odd impression that it is something other than it seems to be. In considerable part an attack on Franklin Roosevelt's policies toward Russia, it is more an outcry against the present consequences than a proof that other policies could have avoided them." Walter Millis

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Ap 2 '50 1000w

"Mr. Baldwin is a sound logician who backs everything he says by appeals to the record. The man who reads The Chicago Tribune editorials will doubtless call it an anti-Roosevelt book, but it is not an anti-anything book except as it is against the muddled thinking which has caused us to lose the peace. It is a book which no historian of the war can afford to neglect." Fletcher Pratt

+ N Y Times p18 Ap 2 '50 650w

"Mr. Baldwin has a serious purpose. His little book is no mere picking of dead bones, no simple second-guessing job. Fundamentals are involved, and the author sets down his story of our mistakes so that the general reader may have a look at the larger questions involved. 'Why,' rather than just 'what' is the backbone of Mr. Baldwin's text, and in these times that attitude is the best of sense." J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p16 Ap 3 '50 800w

"This small but contentious book by the military expert of The New York Times is a provocative soul-searcher of our national conscience." H. C. Butcher

+ Sat R of Lit 33:13 S 16 '50 650w

Springf'd Republican p12C Ap 16 '50 260w

"The book is rather haphazardly documented, with little attempt made to discriminate between the more and less reliable authorities. It nevertheless presents a challenging point of view which is well worth testing against the facts as they become more fully known."

+ — U S Quarterly Bkl 6:340 S '50 230w

BALDWIN, HANSON WEIGHTMAN. Power and politics; the price of security in the atomic age; pref. by David P. Barrows. 117p $2.75 Claremont colleges

355 World politics. U.S.—Defenses 50-9680

Based on lectures delivered at Claremont Colleges. In them the military editor of the New York Times compares the political and military strength of Russia and the Western world, and outlines a plan for a middle course of action for the United States.

Am Pol Sci R 44:1045 D '50 50w

Booklist 47:36 S 15 '50

"Mr. Baldwin's Power and Politics is a rational book produced in an irrational era. It is also a book which gives one a world overview in a very short reading span. The fact that Hanson Baldwin is a military expert makes his rationality doubly impressive. . . If there is a weakness in Mr. Baldwin's analysis it is his failure to come to grips with the impact of the world revolution we are passing through, and of Russia's identification with it." Hermit Eby

+ — Christian Century 67:1171 O 4 '50 550w

Cleveland Open Shelf p17 O '50

"Mr. Baldwin has put out thoughts which must have seemed sufficiently challenging to a Californian audience last spring; but in book form to-day, and for readers all over the world not even his prescience over Korea can make those thoughts seem other than wordy, superficial and often platitudinous. His arguments and conclusions are impeccable. They are perhaps—though not more than perhaps—still necessary for their public. Yet on this side of the Atlantic they seem obvious and clothed in clichés."

— + Times [London] Lit Sup p623 O 6 '50 700w

BALDWIN, JOSEPH CLARK. Flowers for the judge. 210p il $3.50 Coward-McCann

B or 92 50-9894

"Joseph Clark Baldwin 3d, an urbane and high-spirited Republican, who, in 1930, as minority leader of the Board of Aldermen, helped bring about the Seabury Investigation by writing Franklin Roosevelt, then Governor, demanding that he investigate the Mayor's Office, and who between 1941 and 1947 represented the 17th or Silk Stocking, Congress District, has written a book of memoirs which touch briefly on politics and go into considerable, loving detail on what it feels like, or felt like, to have been brought up in the early nineteen hundreds against a rich man's Life-With-Father backdrop." N Y Herald Tribune Bk R

Booklist 47:114 N 15 '50

Christian Science Monitor p17 N 4 '50 360w

+ Commonweal 53:78 O 27 '50 270w

"Lots of childhood adventures and misadventures, with each of the nine children emerging as individual personalities, but somehow there is a sort of pontifical air about it that robs it of the sparkle of Life with Father, etc."

Kirkus 18:578 S 15 '50 240w

"This is a gay and amusing picture of a way of life fast becoming extinct in America. Recommended." H. R. Forbes

+ Library J 75:1822 O 15 '50 110w

Reviewed by G. T. Hellman

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 N 5 '50 950w

"Author Baldwin, United States Representative in Congress for six years, as well as Harvard Porcellian, whip, and gay blade about Paris, has written this volume, he says, for the joy of it—and in the hope, too, that some readers may enjoy it in turn. This reader did." H. I. Brock

+ N Y Times p37 N 5 '50 270w

New Yorker 26:155 N 25 '50 100w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal

Springf'd Republican p8D N 12 '50 300w

BALDWIN, MONICA. I leap over the wall; contrasts and impressions after twenty-eight years in a convent. 313p $3.50 Rinehart

B or 92 Convents and nunneries [50-17114]

The author is a niece of Stanley Baldwin. Miss Baldwin entered a convent as a girl in 1914, and reentered the world in 1941. In this description of her life in the convent and her readjustment to life "outside" Miss Baldwin recounts her experiences thru the war years, when she tried various jobs, and ends with her retirement to a tiny cottage on the Cornish coast.

Booklist 46:165; 188 Ja 15 '50; F 1 '50

Bookmark 9:131 Mr '50 40w

"This book might be classified as one which should be given only to persons prepared to be sympathetic. Those who read between the lines will see that it is in fact an appealing human document—a playfully written story set against a complicated and often distressing background. . . Some of her reminiscences of cloister life have aroused not unreasonable criticism and they seem hard to reconcile with the fact that she continued for nearly thirty years in apparently wholehearted sympathy with the ideals and practices of the community to which she belonged. . . The spirit of all this is in sharp contrast to the spirit of other passages which entertain or impress or edify the reader; so that the book will provide material for many a discussion of the type which never ends because the issue involves unanswerable psychological problems." Joseph McSorley

+ — Cath World 170:477 Mr '50 320w

"Miss Baldwin tells her story with a certain wry humor and a sturdy honesty and with a reserve that seems partly personal inclination and partly consideration for her respected former associates." Dorothy Sparks

+ Chicago Sun p6 F 21 '50 350w

"She has done well toward accomplishing her avowed purpose of answering the many questions continually put to her about convent life. And she is by far most alive, eager and enthusiastic when doing so. The attempts at 20th century flippancy make way for a natural sincerity and truth when she describes convent life and Catholic doctrines. Altho [in contrast to Thomas Merton] she writes from the point of view of one without a religious vocation, yet she is aware of the tremendous values of the monastic life." Betty Swords

+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Ja 29 '50 450w

"Miss Baldwin had an unusual experience. Happily she also had the ability and the grace to describe it with wit, a great deal of charm and the insights of a profoundly religious and sensible woman." John Cogley

+ Commonweal 51:514 F 17 '50 800w

"This is a fascinating book. It is not as sensational as the title suggests; this is no expose of life among the Nuns. . . The author does not idealize the monastic life as does Thomas Merton. But neither has she come out a violent critic of it. Rather she gives a sympathetic interpretation of its value the while she expresses for certain basic characteristics of it the profound distaste which finally led her to 'leap over the wall'. This book ought to have a wide reading both by Catholics and non-Catholics, for the subject matter is interesting, and is presented in an extremely able fashion."

+ Kirkus 17:650 D 1 '49 340w

"Frankest account of convent life this reviewer has ever read. . . Everything she writes is marked by sincerity, naiveté and a delicious choice of words. Her case was unprecedented, she tells us—and so is she. A remarkable book which will not displease Catholics nor disappoint the curious." E. L. Lewis

+ Library J 74:1816 D 1 '49 80w

"There is sincerity in this book and a sort of artlessness, occasionally even sentimentality, which one feels a more experienced writer or person would have concealed by a show of sophistication. It is one of its odd contrasts that such passages can be found alongside descriptions of really courageous tackling of hard war work. . . The book interests deeply for two reasons. First, for its lively account of the effect upon an alert and sensitive woman of the great differences in the world she knew after so long. Secondly, Miss Baldwin's description of the rule of the convent." M. C.

+ Manchester Guardian p3 D 30 '49 240w

BALDWIN, MONICA—Continued
Reviewed by Naomi Lewis
New Statesman & Nation 39:142 F 4 '50 190w

"Monica Baldwin's Rip-Van-Winkle return to the world after so long and complete a separation in so cataclysmic a period of history must be exceedingly rare in human experience. Her writing shows the qualities that led to that experience—honesty, courage, imagination, humor, independence and adventurousness of mind and spirit. 'I Leap Over the Wall,' for which the author proposes the alternative title of 'Impressions of a Square Peg in a Round Hole,' is an unusual and engrossing record of times, places, ideas, and a personality." Mary Ross
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Ja 29 '50 1200w

"Humor and objectivity inform the book." Elizabeth Janeway
+ N Y Times p5 Ja 29 '50 1100w

"Unfortunately, Miss Baldwin's final compromise, a permanent retirement to a remote and picturesque cottage in Cornwall, is too hastily and superficially presented here to form an effective ending for an otherwise thoughtful and candid piece of work."
+ — New Yorker 25:86 Ja 28 '50 170w

"Miss Baldwin has balanced her chronicle nicely, alternating detailed and interesting descriptions of convent life with a running account of her struggle for existence 'outside.' Both of her story-lines make absorbing reading." E. J.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 F 5 '50 550w

"It is an honest book, written with style and humor, and it therefore exposes its central, in fact its only, character, in every aspect of her personality, mind and character." Thomas Sugrue
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:20 F 11 '50 1200w

"The picture of the modern world as seen by an eye entirely fresh to it stands out the more sharply for the contrast to the enclosed and dedicated life which Miss Baldwin had left. Her descriptions of the convent are full and frequent. To many people they will be as foreign as war-time London was to her, but even they will appreciate her nostalgia for the space, the quiet, the general courtesy, the sense of purpose, and for the elaborate routine that made living so hard in some ways but so easy in others. . . This is a straightforward narrative, quiet and sincere, written, except for a few over-fanciful passages, in limpid prose, and profoundly interesting." Lettice Cooper
+ Spec 183:828 D 9 '49 650w

Time 55:90 Ja 30 '50 800w

"On the whole this is a light-hearted account, and Miss Baldwin's passion for the tiny, lonely cottage in Cornwall, the door of which closes on her at the end, is most engaging. Light-hearted but, if the truth must be told, a trifle worldly. Yet the range of Miss Baldwin's experience is wide enough to make a remarkable book."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p823 D 16 '49 900w

BALDWIN, ROBERT CHESTER, and McPEEK, JAMES ANDREW SCARBOROUGH, eds. Introduction to philosophy through literature. 595p $4.50 Ronald

108.2 Literature—Collections. Philosophy
50-8252

"This book is intended to introduce students to philosophy through the medium of selections from good literature. . . The selections chosen are drawn from much of the best literature of ideas, including the writings of many leading philosophers. More than a hundred authors are presented, nearly half of them contemporary. . . The selections in each chapter are organized around one of the major philosophical themes, with the final passages in each chapter often affording a natural transition to the topic of the next." (Pref) Compilers are members of the faculty of the University of Connecticut. Indexes to titles, authors, subjects.

Booklist 47:87 N 1 '50

"Here is a book valuable for every teacher of philosophy, if he does no more than keep it at his desk for private reading." T. V. Smith
+ Ethics 61:93 O '50 360w
School & Society 71:366 Je 10 '50 40w

BALINT, EMERY. Don't inhale it! il. by the author. 222p $2.75 Gaer 49-49189

"The year in which the present satire is laid is 1965. . . [It] is dominated by the dis-United Nations and the chaos attendant on the disruption of the world by the explosion by Uncle Sam of the super-atom-bomb. The scene opens on the world awaiting the Big Moment, when this bomb is scheduled to be set off in the North Pacific, off Korea and Siberia. Paul H. Hatch in person, newspaper king of the good old USA, who has usurped the office of President is there on a battleship to watch the fun. . . The results were fantastic." Sat R of Lit

"The lack of genuine social comment, and the multiplication of fantastic horrors, will exhaust most readers—including even the die-hard addicts, who will surely be put off by the hero's dialogues with his shaving brush." Murray Schumach
— N Y Times p16 D 18 '49 140w

"The low-brow won't like it; the high-brow will revel in it, in spite of the horseplay in which the author indulges now and again. . . These irrelevances, however, should not wholly act as the traditional bushel hiding the light Mr. Balint has to give us, for, these things apart, he has written a brilliant satire, at its best comparable with George Orwell's 'Nineteen Eighty-Four.'" John Cournos
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:11 Ja 28 '50 650w

BALL, ZACHARY, pseud. See Masters, K. R.

BALLARD, JAMES CLARENCE. But a little moment. 500p $3.75 Dutton
50-6692

In this two generation novel of the South the heroes are Adam Allen and his son, Jason. Adam's ambition was to build bridges, and he was something of a success at it. But he early handed on his ambition to his son, and the main theme of the novel is Jason's struggle for his own integrity.

Kirkus 18:114 F 15 '50 190w

"A first novel of undoubted promise, by a young author who will make his mark when he learns to control his literary erudition, and to lean less heavily upon his Great Books discussions at St. John's. For mature readers." R. W. Henderson
+ — Library J 75:776 My 1 '50 110w

Reviewed by Richard Match
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 Ap 23 '50 650w

Reviewed by Charles Spielberger
N Y Times p27 My 21 '50 140w

"No one since the late Thomas Wolfe has worked harder than Jason does at making a way of life out of being lost; the difference is that Wolfe, in his way, had a sense of humor."
— New Yorker 26:114 My 6 '50 140w

"Mr. Ballard's long novel is epic in ambition but something far short of that in execution. Somewhere imbedded in its prolix pages is a plan for a two-generation history, the spirit of man passed from father to son, exalted and cleansed in the fires of experience. But the plan is imbedded in fatty tissue, too much meaningless meandering and talk." N. L. Rothman
Sat R of Lit 33:33 Ap 29 '50 140w

BALLINGER, WILLIAM S. Portrait in smoke. 213p $2.50 Harper

50-8927

A novel of suspense. Dan April, a young Chicagoan, who operates a bill collecting agency, discovers an old picture of a very beautiful woman in his files. He determines to trace her, because he had seen her once and had fallen in love with her. He is successful in his search, but his experiences from then on are filled with danger.

Chicago Sun p4 S 12 '50 90w

"The technique is intriguing, but none too satisfying to this old fashioned reader, who likes his stories to move right along, not proceed by jerks and stops. As for the trick, here tried once more, of sealing the last chapters and offering to refund the purchase price to any reader who can resist breaking the seal to learn how it comes out, all I can say is that any book interesting enough to keep the reader going thru three-fourths of it will certainly make him want to read the rest. My advice would be to break the seal when you begin the book, because you will anyway. It's certainly worth finishing." Kelsey Guilfoil

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 Ag 20 '50 320w

Kirkus 18:337 Je 15 '50 190w

Reviewed by Robert Hagy

N Y Times p17 Ag 6 '50 170w

"An enthralling story that builds up to a smashing climax." D. F. M.

+ Springf'd Republican p9B Ag 20 '50 120w

BALOGH, THOMAS. Dollar crisis: causes and cure; a report to the Fabian society. 269p $3 Macmillan

332.41 Great Britain—Economic conditions. Great Britain—Economic policy. Money—Great Britain [50-741]

"That we have not two worlds—Soviet communistic and Western democratic—but three, is, in effect, the argument of 'The Dollar Crisis.' And it is with the economic recovery of the third world—Britain and Western Europe—that the book is concerned. Thomas Balogh, who is an economist at Oxford University, says that capitalist America understands imperfectly the recovery problems of Britain and Western Europe, and that it views the job as shorter than it is. He argues that the solution to Western Europe's economic troubles is long-range planning." (N Y Times) No index.

"Hungarian-born Dr. Balogh ['fellow' of Balliol college, Oxford, England] belongs in that category of economists which uses the threat of unemployment as a pretext to preach all-around burocratic controls: totally restricted exchange and trade, allocated raw materials and labor, fixed prices and wages, rationed consumption, etc. But he is intelligent enough to realize that Britain's dollar problem still would not be solved. His solution is as simple as it is unoriginal: let's 'redistribute' wealth between the United States and Britain. . . The book is important as a symptom of the fever condition in British labor." Melchior Palyi

Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 Je 11 '50 180w

Foreign Affairs 29:158 O '50 30w

"Mr. Balogh's candid report is made to the Fabian Society but many of its ardent policy recommendations are addressed to the United States. It is not as easy reading as John Maynard Keynes' 'Economic Consequences of the Peace,' but it is the same sort of impressive warning." Broadus Mitchell

N Y Times p19 Ap 2 '50 700w

"Because 'The Dollar Crisis' states a viewpoint little heard on this side of the water, in a prose style several cuts above what we normally receive from professional economists, it is worth the attention of interested citizens. That is, anyone willing to stand up against its toughness is in for some provocative and surprising reading sessions." P. R. Levin

+ Sat R of Lit 33:16 Je 24 '50 700w

BANNING, MRS MARGARET (CULKIN). Give us our years. 274p $2.75 Harper

50-6622

Character study of Eve Starr, a wealthy, beautiful woman, wife of a Chicago business man. Eve was considered one of the country's best-dressed women, and as she approached middle age she was living a serene and happy life, until she attempted to rule the lives of her two grown children. It took her son's suicide-attempt to teach her that her children must live their own lives without her interference.

Booklist 46:225; 261 Mr 15 '50; Ap 15 '50

"Assured and alluring, this one's for rent."

+ Kirkus 18:37 Ja 15 '50 100w

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p19 Ap 16 '50 270w

"Since the Starrs are so glamorous—and so fortunate—it is rather hard, at times to sympathize with them, even when their income begins to dwindle. But at least they are presented as credible human beings with problems not peculiar to their class." Edith Walton

N Y Times p22 Ap 2 '50 200w

Sat R of Lit 33:29 My 13 '50 130w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal

Springf'd Republican p8D Je 18 '50 120w

Wis Lib Bul 46:21 My '50

BANNON, LAURA MAY. Big brother; story and pictures. [48p] $2.50 Whitman, A.

50-7815

Story of Sally and her brother Dick. Sally's doll sailed down the river on Dick's boat and Sally was heartbroken until "her very best big brother" figured out a way to rescue the doll. For ages five to eight.

Booklist 46:338 Jl 1 '50

Reviewed by M. B. King

Chicago Sun p15 Je 15 '50 30w

"A colorful picture book with an appealing story and large clear type for the youngest readers." A. L. Shea

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p7 Ag 20 '50 200w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk 26:284 Jl '50 40w

"The illustrations, in full color and blue and white have a vigor of design and color, but unfortunately, the humans look flat and limp. . . Large type and simple words make this suitable for second year readers."

+ — Kirkus 18:303 Je 1 '50 160w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Sussdorff

Library J 75:1196 Jl '50 70w

"The story is a little contrived, not highly exciting, but it is gaily written in an easy-to-read vocabulary, with amusing, if sometimes overcrowded, pictures." E. L. B.

+ — N Y Times p11 Jl 2 '50 130w

Wis Lib Bul 46:19 Je '50

BARBER, MRS ELSIE MARION (OAKES). Hunt for heaven. 230p $3 Macmillan

50-8908

In 1886, John Bliss, a Chicago minister, with part of his congregation, established a communal group on a Pennsylvania farm. During the first years while they were struggling to establish themselves, the group worked hard. With the coming of prosperity things did not turn out so well. But the man sent to destroy the community learned to respect the ideals they represented, and to love the leader's daughter.

Booklist 46:326; 47:39 Jl 1 '50; S 15 '50

Reviewed by Olive Carruthers

Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 S 3 '50 460w

BARBER, E. M.—Continued
Reviewed by W. K. Rugg
Christian Science Monitor p9 S 2 '50 270w

Kirkus 18:316 Je 1 '50 190w

"Book is well written, minor characters are clearly drawn, but plot is inconclusive." R. P. Tubby
+ — Library J 75:1044 Je 15 '50 80w

"'Hunt For Heaven' is written with warmth and with understanding of the ideals and purpose, as well as the fumbling and pathetic lack of practical clear-thinking, in the founding of religious utopias. Mrs. Barber's novel is vigorous and illuminating."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Ag 20 '50 190w

"Mrs. Barber writes skillfully enough, and with a tolerant understanding of the struggles of the colonists. Yet like John Bliss she never quite achieves her vision. Her account of his hunt for heaven lacks the emotion which might have made this story of man's search for God a moving experience." Charlotte Capers
+ — N Y Times p17 Ag 6 '50 170w

Reviewed by Pamela Taylor
Sat R of Lit 33:75 N 11 '50 360w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal
Springf'd Republican p8B S 3 '50 170w
Wis Lib Bul 46:23 S '50

BARBETTE, JAY. Final copy. 244p $2.50 Dodd 50-10152

Mystery story.

Booklist 47:138 D 1 '50

"A smooth story based on a highly dramatic situation."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p28 O 29 '50 150w

"It is sketched with economical, well-calculated strokes that give an incisive picture of the terror that stalks the hunted." M. H. Oakes
+ N Y Times p46 N 12 '50 130w

BARCLAY, WADE CRAWFORD. Early American Methodism, 1769-1844; v 1, Missionary motivation and expansion. (History of Methodist missions, pt 1, v 1) 449p maps $3.50 Board of Missions and Church extension of the Methodist church, 150 5th av, N.Y. 11

287 Missions. Methodism

"This is the first volume in a projected six-volume history of American Methodist missions. . . The present volume covers the period in American Methodist history from the beginnings to the great schism of 1844. But since no treatment of Methodist activity can be understood apart from the Wesleyan influence, the book opens with an introductory chapter on the 'Wesleyan heritage.'" Christian Century

"The topical treatment that is used by the author has both the obvious merits and defects of giving unity to a particular theme and then requiring the necessary back-tracking to pick up other topics. In dealing with the expansion of Methodism, the author felt that it was necessary to incorporate innumerable details of numbers of converts, of preachers, of members, that can be of interest only to the most serious student or researcher. Out of fairness to Dr. Barclay, he probably felt that there was no other way to have a well-rounded history. Nevertheless, it classifies the work mainly as a reference volume." W. M. Gewehr
+ — Am Hist R 55:929 Jl '50 650w

"Its appearance is an event of importance not only for world Methodism but also for American church history, for the development of mission-mindedness in America has far-reaching significance. . . When completed the project will be a noble and notable achievement in which all world-minded Christians might well take pride." W. W. Sweet
+ Christian Century 67:431 Ap 5 '50 950w

"A fascinating and fully documented account. . . This volume should be read far beyond the boundaries of Methodism." R. C. Miller
+ Churchman 164:16 Jl '50 160w

"No one would seek to rob, or could rob, those early circuit riders of the credit and honor due them in the molding of America's religious life. . . But one could have wished for less fulsome praise and unblushing adulation in this first volume of the projected six in a History of Methodist Missions. A true historian of necessity must develop a critical mind and an unbiased, impartial approach to his subject. These missionaries, worthy as they were, it is well to remember, arriving in the late decades of the eighteenth century, came to an America well established in culture and civilization, nearly 150 years after others had come to a wilderness untamed by the hand of men. . . Apart from these and some other similar objectionable features and weaknesses, we have in this first volume of the History of Methodist Missions a most valuable collection of facts, inspirational in their revelation of the courage and faith of simple, ordinary men who were determined to conquer this new-born nation for their Christ. And the telling of that story also reveals a long period of intensive research and the collection and organization of an immense amount of material." R. E. E. Harkness
+ — Crozer Q 27:164 Ap '50 1200w

"In these pages the transformation of Puritanism by Methodism is described with the objectivity of the historian who does not dodge essentials, whether mundane or spiritual." P. W. Wilson
+ N Y Times p28 F 5 '50 130w

BARDIN, JOHN FRANKLIN. Burning glass. 237p $3 Scribner
50-8515

A story of the happenings during one day in a summer colony largely made up of artists, writers, musicians and pseudo-intellectuals. The opposing forces are represented on the one side by adults, indulging in amorous dalliance; on the other side by two children, one a precocious boy who satirizes the doings of his elders.

Chicago Sun p5 Ag 13 '50 50w
Kirkus 18:336 Je 15 '50 180w
— N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 Ag 27 '50 230w

"It seems to be the novelist's intention to comment upon the malaise of the intellectual through the revealing sketches of a 12-year-old. However, before such an idea can be creatively realized, the boy himself must be convincing. This lad's speeches could only have been uttered by a rather elderly Druid with a degree in psychiatry." Boris Todrin
— N Y Times p18 Jl 16 '50 200w

"Mr. Bardin has the talent for suspense and horror; doubtless his training in the mystery-story has helped sharpen this. He also possesses a nice knack at satire and a gift for letting his readers see the motives behind his characters' acts and thoughts. At the same time, the limits of his book allow him to develop most of them only in two dimensions. The one character with genuine depth is the boy, Roger, who was, according to one way of looking at it, a monster, unbelievably vicious, but in another light the only truly sane human being of the lot." J. H. Jackson
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ag 4 '50 700w

"Mr. Bardin, a writer of mystery stories, now turns attention to the mores of the intellectuals. Although his novel is uneven it is distinguished for excellent characterization and for an almost cinematic manner of telling its story, worthy of that master of this style, Graham Greene. . . Mr. Bardin's portraits of the children are sensitive and delightful. There is an intricate weaving of many threads throughout; this is a subtle tale, stimulating to read." John Cournos
+ Sat R of Lit 33:26 Je 29 '50 310w

"Mr. Bardin has handled this interesting theme well, but not quite well enough. His narrative never flags, nor does it lose power to stir the imagination, but the characters of adults and children never emerge clearly enough to make the story quite convincing. It is a pity, perhaps, that his attack should be focused upon the intelligentsia: a broader view might have lent more weight to his parable."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p433 Jl 14 '50 190w

BAREA, ARTURO. Lorca: the poet and his people; tr. from the Spanish by Ilsa Barea. 176p $3 Harcourt
861 Garcia Lorca, Federico 49-11331
For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

"This is probably the finest thing yet written on this wonderful Spanish poet. The prose of the book moves with some of the same lyrical imaginativeness that we find in the poetry itself. Barea emphasizes the special Spanish qualities of Lorca, and in doing so reveals much that is more than Spanish in him. He locates many of the sources of Lorca's images, in the landscapes, the occupations, the sports, the people. It is above all the people, shrewd, betrayed, devout and skeptical in the same moment, who are the perpetual subjects of his poems." Paul Engle
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 F 12 '50 280w

New Yorker 26:103 Je 3 '50 100w

"To lovers of Lorca I would heartily recommend Barea's book. For the information it contains on the background of Lorca's poetry and the world out of which it grew will increase their grasp of one of the great Spanish poets of our generation." Eliseo Vivas
+ Poetry 76:46 Ap '50 1150w

"The exposition is laconic but never hurried, and one marvels at the end that without employing any scholarly apparatus, without taking refuge in any private mystique, the author has been able to say so much and so definitely. . . The handling of the poems is especially admirable: there has been no attempt to reproduce the rhythmic qualities of the Spanish, although these are not neglected in the criticism; the concentration is upon the imagery and the translatable elements of the sense. All in all, a sensible and valuable study." Dudley Fitts
+ Sat R of Lit 33:29 My 20 '50 380w

BARKE, JAMES. Wonder of all the gay world; a novel of the life and loves of Robert Burns. 671p $3.50 Macmillan
Burns, Robert—Fiction 50-8416

The third volume in the four-volume fictional biography of Robert Burns, to be called Immortal Memory. The present novel covers the Edinburgh years, 1786-1788, and the settling of the difficulty about Jean Armour, ending in their marriage. For the two earlier volumes: Wind That Shakes the Barley, and Song in the Green Thorn Tree, see Book Review Digest 1947 and 1948.

Booklist 46:326; 353 Jl 1 '50; Jl 15 '50

"Whether he has done the memory of Burns a service is open to question. The story he tells, with its tiresome descriptions of endless amours, puts more emphasis on the 'lewd Scotch peasant' than on the inspired poet. But this volume makes a real and even a great contribution to the story of Robert Burns and his fate by the convincing picture Mr. Barke draws of Edinburgh life in 1786-88. . . All serious students of Burns are indebted to Mr. Barke for the fuller light he throws on the poet's background in Edinburgh." J. M. M.
+ — Canadian Forum 29:237 Ja '50 280w

"The sex life of the hero seems to get rather disproportionate emphasis. But that is also probably true of the subject himself. . . All this is very interesting, and there is reason to believe that it is more than ordinarily accurate biography, but it is not very edifying." W. E. G.
Christian Century 67:1332 N 8 '50 280w

"For this book as for its predecessors—'The Wind That Shakes the Barley' and 'The Song in the Green Thorn Tree'—there are credits and debits. Credits are evidences of unflagging research, knowledge of the background, geographical, biographical, and social, in particular a remarkable account of Edinburgh in the eighteenth century, and for the reader a clearer insight into the poetry of Burns. Debits are needless reiteration of the moral reeks of Auld Reekie, and the dalliances of a man tender to the immediate object of his attentions, callous to others."
+ — Christian Science Monitor p9 Ag 5 '50 250w

Cleveland Open Shelf p16 Ag '50

Reviewed by K. T. Willis
Library J 75:1180 Jl '50 130w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p42 D 3 '50 430w

"History, biography and fiction are skillfully blended; one does not pause to ask where one ends and the other begins. One feels that the essential facts are here, that this is the way the Scottish poet acted and thought, loved and hated, talked to his friends and his women." John Cournos
+ N Y Times p18 Jl 16 '50 270w

"His depiction of Burns, as a high-minded fellow—a wee bit oversexed, perhaps, but confronted at every turn by the nymphomaniacs of Auld Reekie and its environ—isn't especially convincing or nearly as flattering as the author intended."
— New Yorker 26:70 Jl 22 '50 120w

Wis Lib Bul 46:23 S '50

BARKER, A. L. Apology for a hero. 263p $2.75 Scribner
50-6847

The "hero" is Charles Candy, a middle-aged English clerk with a strong inferiority complex. On a brief visit to Florence, Italy, he meets a woman, falls in love and marries her. His progress toward a fuller realization of his own possibilities is violently interrupted by the death of his wife and by the entrance into his life of his wife's sister.

"Apology For A Hero has unusual and breath-taking moments of thrill, has humor and can be called—in short—a novel which, little publicized as it may have been, is fully deserving of our attention. One might add that in the past Miss Barker's short story collection, Innocents, has been singled out for the Somerset Maugham Award." John Envers
+ Canadian Forum 30:190 N '50 280w

"The psychological and moral penetrations of this novel are considerable. It is a work of shrewd analysis, presented with both urgency and control; and its meaningfulness is always apparent but never underlined." Richard Sullivan
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Je 18 '50 390w

"Apart from a laborious beginning, overloaded with exposition, the book bears no stigma of the first novel. The plot is original. . . The perception of character is unswervingly true, the use of language and sense of scene always fresh and often brilliant. Yet there is something missing. . . [This] is a well-made book, but it is also a curiously heartless one."
+ — Christian Science Monitor p6 My 6 '50 250w

"A subtlety of characterization, a blending of good and evil and singularly vivid description, marks this for the discriminating."
+ Kirkus 18:183 Mr 15 '50 230w

"Perceptive novel, gratefully recommended for small public libraries." F. A. Boyle
+ Library J 75:693 Ap 15 '50 80w

"Miss Barker is a young writer of exceptional talent, detached, but with an intimate feeling for what is both sad and absurd in the drama of life and for the spiritual forces in man and nature that challenge the ordinary. Her language, too, is alive and she can describe a Cornish landscape or a storm at sea with

BARKER, A. L.—Continued
a painter's eye for significant detail and the passion of a poet." H. I'A. Fausset
+ Manchester Guardian p4 My 5 '50 150w

"Miss A. L. Barker's first novel is well written and by no means commonplace in theme. The point, alas, of the hero for whom she is so concerned to apologise is simply that he is dull all through. She tests him, like a character in a fairy tale, against various stimulating and unusual situations, and in each he remains as unshakably dull and grey as a piece of last week's pudding." Margaret Lane
— + New Statesman & Nation 39:613 My 27 '50 370w

"Precisely what Miss Barker is trying to say in her first novel, or whether she knows herself, this reviewer is by no means sure. What he is sure of is that a writer who has found her form of expression in the short story, and employed it as Miss Barker did in 'Innocents' [Book Review Digest 1948] should not desert it for another until she feels capable of mastering the new medium. This effort of Miss Barker's is less an 'Apology for a Hero' than for a novel." James Stern
— N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Ap 16 '50 650w

"'Apology for a Hero,' though not up to expectations, is for all that a perceptive and extremely readable novel—a book with a strongly distinctive individuality." Charles Rolo
+ — N Y Times p42 Ap 16 '50 350w

New Yorker 26:121 Ap 22 '50 140w

"'Apology for a Hero' is an outstandingly good piece of work because it fulfills the requirements of a novel written with serious intent; the reader finds himself in it; the reader learns from it how to 'feel' in situations closely related to some in which he is bound to find himself; the reader is shown one aspect of humanity and sees it interpreted with pity and understanding." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 Ap 18 '50 1050w

"Miss Barker is a young English writer whose recent collection of short stories, 'Innocents,' indicated a fresh and significant talent. This novel does not show a mastery of the larger form. Perhaps the author is yet too young to tell this story of middle age with its assertions and surrenders. Her people and their problems do not seem as real as the weather and the Cornish coast." Walter Havighurst
Sat R of Lit 33:15 Ap 29 '50 550w

"I am afraid I could scarcely believe a word of Apology for a Hero, simple though the tale is in all essential respects. The book is carefully written, often individual and sometimes felicitous in phrase, but strains too visibly for descriptive and psychological effect. . . Miss Barker clearly has potentialities as a writer, but as a novelist seems to have got off to a false start." R. D. Charques
— + Spec 184:736 My 26 '50 130w

"Apology For A Hero is nightmarish."
Times [London] Lit Sup p305 My 19 '50 320w

BARKER, ELISABETH. Macedonia: its place in Balkan power politics. 129p maps pa $1 Royal inst. of int. affairs

949.7 Macedonian question 50-6759

"Miss Barker, who briefly traces the history of Macedonia back to the sixth century A.D., rightly places the modern setting of the Macedonian question in the establishment of the Bulgarian exarchate in 1870. Essentially this volume is composed of three chapters treating of the development of the Macedonian problem, respectively, between 1870 and World War I, during the interwar period, and during and following World War II, 1941-49. The volume contains some good statistical material and some black-and-white maps illustrating the complicated issues involved." Ann Am Acad

---

"The author is to be congratulated for a clear and objective analysis of a most obscure as well as significant problem. This is by far the most thorough and dependable study of the latest phase of the history of Macedonia." L. S. Stavrianos
+ Am Hist R 55:956 Jl '50 440w

"There have been, of course, many, many volumes on the Macedonian problem. Miss Barker's well-written, concise summary fills a very definite gap in the history of the question, however, especially because it tells the story, based on the available authentic documentation, of the policies and attitudes of Balkan Communist Parties, the Comintern, and the Cominform toward this problem. Moreover, the story is woven into the fabric of Balkan power politics and is related to European power politics as a whole." H. N. Howard
+ Ann Am Acad 270:198 Jl '50 320w

Foreign Affairs 29:158 O '50 20w

"This small work is a useful and important contribution to an understanding of the rivalries over Macedonia which have divided and weakened the Balkan Communist Parties for the past twenty years, and which continue to divide them today. Miss Barker clears a pathway through the maze of plot and counterplot in terms of which the latter-day history of the Macedonians is largely written, although, as she is careful to note, she is obliged by the poverty of Bulgarian sources to write 'mainly from the Yugoslav viewpoint'—at least as far as the last few years are concerned."
+ New Statesman & Nation 39:200 F 18 '50 360w

"Miss Barker is to be congratulated upon a brief, lucid and masterly exposition of the problem of Macedonia."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p139 Mr 3 '50 950w

BARKER, VIRGIL. American painting; history and interpretation. 717p 100pl $12.50 Macmillan

750.973 Painting, American 50-10368

"Covers the subject from the 17th century through Homer Eakins and Ryder. Mr. Barker has been curator of paintings in the Department of Fine Arts, Carnegie Institute, Pittsburgh, a special assistant at the Corcoran Gallery of Art in Washington, director of the Kansas City Art Institute, and professor of the history of art at the University of Miami." (Springf'd Republican) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 47:130 D 1 '50

"Twenty years of research have been put to useful purpose in this excellent volume. It is written out of a spacious background of scholarship and with the enrichment of poetic insight, critical perception and wit." Dorothy Adlow
+ Christian Science Monitor p7 D 16 '50 130w

"A scholarly and very comprehensive work."
+ Kirkus 18:582 S 15 '50 270w

"This is possibly the most comprehensive treatment of its subject and benefits from much intensive research in the last 25 years." Lincoln Kirstein
+ New Repub 123:24 D 11 '50 110w

"One aspect of the cultural development of our times, which should not escape future analysts of American taste, is the tremendous increase of interest in the development of American art. Mr. Barker's volume is a valuable addition to the augmenting literature on our esthetic development." J. T. Flexner
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 D 10 '50 1050w

"A scholarly, smoothly written, well-documented and beautifully illustrated history of the early colonial limners and sign painters. . . The book's title, of course, is a misnomer, for no book on American painting could omit the names of Cassatt, Duveneck, Luks and Henri; or indeed those of many of the sixty contemporary artists now on exhibition at the Metropolitan Museum of Art." George Biddle
+ — N Y Times p10 N 5 '50 470w

New Yorker 26:158 N 25 '50 80w

"The period since the turn of the century, as Mr. Barker explains in his preface, he has left for another volume. One hopes that he will write it soon for in his panorama of the period between 1670 and 1900 he has raised the standards of American art criticism and given us a continuously interesting and readable book." Holger Cahill

+ Sat R of Lit 33:79 D 2 '50 800w

Springf'd Republican p8D N 12 '50 200w

"Mr. Barker's research has been thorough. . . His writing is witty and precise, marked by the perfect urbanity of an expert, on art of all things, who knows what he is talking about. With a few piffling exceptions, his choice of illustrations deserves the highest praise. . . His gravest problem, however, is not what to put in, but what to leave out. It would have been kinder, for example, to ignore the Hudson River School's John Frederick Kensett altogether than to snub him. . . Another and equally serious limitation is imposed by Mr. Barker's decision to cover so much ground in a single volume." Nelson Lansdale

+ — Theatre Arts 34:90 D '50 1150w

BARKINS, MRS EVELYN (WERNER). Doctor has a family; il. by Burmah Burris. 211p $2.75 Pellegrini & Cudahy

817 50-6662

In this sequel to The Doctor Has A Baby (Book Review Digest 1947) the author describes her family life after the birth of the third baby. She "tells of the necessity to move out of a city apartment now that they are five; the finding of a home, unbuilt, and its Blandingsesque building; the differences in suburban (Westchester) living; her writing, and the general family participation in the hard-to-find publisher for mother's book." (Kirkus)

Booklist 46:243 Ap 1 '50

"You'll like 'The Doctor Has a Family.' It was written by a woman with a facile pen, a great [and necessary] sense of humor, and a maternal wisdom generously shared." R. L. Blakesley

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 Ap 2 '50 350w

"When you get right down to it, [Mrs Barkins is] not too revolutionary, and a little self-satisfied, but there's still the united family front, the light, bright touch to make this casually engaging, to and for the ladies."

Kirkus 18:44 Ja 15 '50 180w

Reviewed by F. G. Slaughter

+ N Y Times p43 Mr 19 '50 190w

"Undeviatingly good-humored and relentlessly energetic."

+ Sat R of Lit 33:28 My 13 '50 130w

Wis Lib Bul 46:17 Jl '50

BARKSDALE, JELKS. Titanium; its occurrence, chemistry, and technology. 591p il $10 Ronald

669.7 Titanium 49-6543

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

"The book is well written in clear, direct style, which makes for easy reading. The author claims exhaustive coverage of the literature up to the time of going to press. Sampling of several chapters and checking against bibliographies available within the titanium industry indicated this claim to be substantially correct." R. Dahlstrom

+ Am Chem Soc J 72:1869 Ap '50 200w

"Dr. Barksdale's book has a useful contribution for scientific and technical users who have some experience in the field and can, by their experience, be guided through certain areas where Dr. Barksdale compiles a vast amount of material quoted in the literature but in some instances, does not critically analyze. This is of no consequence particularly to the skilled worker in the field but would impose obvious difficulties, for example, upon a student. The thoughts expressed pertain particularly to the sections of the book dealing with metallurgy and much less so to the other portions where Dr. Barksdale has had more direct experience. All in all, it is a useful compendium of information, and does reflect the need for filling in stopgaps in a wide-open field and does represent an enormous task for any single individual." G. F. Comstock and W. B. Blumenthal

+ — Chem & Eng N 28:422 F 6 '50 470w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:10 Ja '50

U S Quarterly Bkl 5:543 D '49 250w

BARLOW, HAROLD EVERARD MONTEAGLE. Micro-waves and wave guides. 122p il $1.95 Dover

621.384151 Wave guides. Radio waves 49-9696

"The first American edition of a book which was published in England in 1947. It is a concise, largely mathematical treatment of the subject and it is intended to give engineers in the telecommunications industries an introduction to the subject on their level. Some emphasis is placed upon the parallels between ordinary transmission lines and wave guides. Most of the exposition has to do with the characteristics of wave guides and the fundamental mathematical computations involved in their design. Relatively little space is given to practical applications." N Y New Tech Bks

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 74:1329 S 15 '49 90w

N Y New Tech Bks 54:58 Jl '49

BARNE, KITTY (MRS ERIC STREATFEILD). Windmill mystery; il. by Marcia Lane Foster. [Eng title: Dusty's windmill] 248p $2.50 Dodd

50-6187

Mystery story for young readers. The background is Sussex, England.

"A mystery with quite good characterization and local color and a plot not too improbable, or violent." E. W. Turpin

+ Library J 75:879 My 15 '50 70w

"Although this mystery doesn't come up to standards set in Kitty Barne's previous books it has its points. It tells rather more about old-fashioned windmills than most children will care to know, and there is a sudden shift in loyalties at the end which may confuse some readers. Yet the style is fluid, the characters, young and old, are sharply drawn, and the children are not too clever to be plausible." E. L. Buell

+ — N Y Times p20 Ap 23 '50 140w

"Good illustrations for adolescents' books are, it must be confessed, a pleasant change. These, accompanying an intensely unrealistic story, are truthful, high-spirited and charming. The text, unfortunately, is not up to them."

Times [London] Lit Sup p11 O 21 '49 210w

BARNES, CLARE. Campus zoo. 75p il pa $1 Doubleday

817 Animal pictures 50-7438

Animal pictures with captions relating them to various aspects of college life and personalities.

Kirkus 18:251 Ap 15 '50 100w

Springf'd Republican p12C My 21 '50 70w

+ Wis Lib Bul 46:17 Jl '50

BARNES, CLARE. Home sweet zoo. 76p il pa $1 Doubleday

817 Animal pictures 49-50047

"Following hard on the heels of Mr. Barnes' successful 'White Collar Zoo,' this book considers the American family in terms of the animal kingdom. It again shows the author's gift for choosing the happy accident in photography and giving it point with a telling piece of dialogue or a descriptive caption." New Yorker

BARNES, CLARE—Continued
Reviewed by Edward Weeks
Atlantic 185:83 Ja '50 50w
Kirkus 17:673 D 1 '49 70w
New Yorker 25:129 D 17 '49 70w
+ Springf'd Republican p9D D 4 '49 100w
Wis Lib Bul 46:23 F '50

BARNES, WILLIAM. Selected poems; ed. with an introd. by Geoffrey Grigson. 296p il $2.10 Harvard univ. press
821

Selections from the poems of the Reverend William Barnes, the Dorset schoolmaster, clergyman and poet, who was a friend of Hardy. Most of his poems were written in the Dorset dialect. Glossary. Indexes.

"Mr. Grigson has made an excellent selection from his seven mature volumes and has included, too, some earlier poems that have not previously been reprinted and some of old age. He has also prefaced the verse with a few of Barnes's comments on poetry and with appreciations of his work by Patmore, Tennyson, Hopkins, and Hardy, the last two of whom were much indebted to him." H. I'A. F.
+ Manchester Guardian p4 Ag 1 '50 180w

Reviewed by Rolfe Humphries
+ Nation 171:536 D 9 '50 50w

"Barnes said, during his talk with Kilvert and Moule, that 'in all which he himself had written there was not a verse which was not inspired by love for and kindly sympathy with the things and people described.' There is no better verdict upon the Dorset poet."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p575 S 15 '50 1600w

BARON, ALEXANDER, pseud. See Bernstein, A.

BARR, JENE. Little prairie dog; a read-it-yourself story; pictures by Kurt Wiese. [30p] $1 Whitman, A.
49-11546

A picture book for the beginning reader, which describes the adventures of Stumpy, a prairie dog. He runs away from home but returns safely after a visit to Farmer Jones. Little Betty Jones had wanted him for a pet but soon realized that Stumpy was not happy away from his own home, a hole in the earth.

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun O 15 '49 30w

Reviewed by E. W. Kunkle
Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 N 13 '49 50w

"Recommended for first and second grades." Sonja Wennerblad
+ Library J 74:1826 D 1 '49 70w
Wis Lib Bul 46:31 F '50

BARRE, HENRY JOHN, and SAMMET, LOY LUTHER. Farm structures. 650p il maps $7 Wiley
631.2 Farm buildings Agr50-413

Textbook for use in agricultural engineering courses in college. It studies the problems of constructing farm buildings of all types. Chapter bibliographies. Index.

Booklist 46:256 Ap 15 '50

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 75:497 Mr 15 '50 100w
N Y New Tech Bks 35:21 Mr '50

BARRINGER, MRS EMILY (DUNNING). Bowery to Bellevue; the story of New York's first woman ambulance surgeon. 262p $3 Norton
B or 92 Physicians—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 50-6665

Reminiscences of New York's first woman ambulance surgeon. She describes her childhood in a wealthy home; the financial reverses which made great changes in the family outlook; her education at Cornell; her struggle to get into a New York hospital where women were not accepted; and her eventual admission to Gouverneur. She tells in detail her struggle to gain a foothold, and the difficulties which the male doctors made for their one woman colleague. The book ends with her marriage in 1904.

Booklist 46:209; 260 Mr 1 '50; Ap 15 '50

Reviewed by T. R. Van Dellen
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ap 9 '50 400w

Reviewed by M. C. Scoggin
Horn Bk 26:399 S '50 40w

"There's a certain old world gentility and sentimentality and no feministic aggression to this autobiographical account. . . Some really interesting material here."
+ Kirkus 18:86 F 1 '50 170w

"All teen-age girls will be interested in this rare biography." M. D. Reed
+ Library J 75:1056 Je 15 '50 80w
Nation 171:44 Jl 8 '50 60w

" 'Bowery to Bellevue' is a story of good fortune—and a woman's stamina—and we are beholden to Dr. Barringer for a crowded canvas of patients, nurses, police officers, and citizens slowly building the foundations of a close woven co-operative care for social health. Her book gathers momentum, as detail is piled upon detail; and leaves the reader entertained and thoughtful." Ernestine Evans
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Ap 23 '50 500w

Reviewed by Marilyn Mercer
N Y Times p14 Jl 2 '50 290w

"Interesting material that shows unfortunate signs of having been touched up here and there by a rather heavy-handed sob sister."
New Yorker 26:112 Ap 1 '50 150w

"Dr. Emily Dunning Barringer has made a lively and engrossing story of the experience. Sometimes poignant, often highly amusing, are the many stories she tells of her day-to-day encounters with the patients, the ambulance drivers, the policemen, and the residents of one of New York's toughest neighborhoods. . . One could hardly read this story and doubt that Dr. Emily Dunning Barringer was and is a woman of exceptional ability and spirit and an endearing good humor. She is also a good storyteller." Helen Clapesattle
+ Sat R of Lit 33:54 Ap 15 '50 800w

"Physician and layman will be interested in the simple picture Dr. Barringer draws of the practise of medicine in the days when diagnosis and therapy were not so well based on scientific method as they are today. . . But this is not merely a tale of hospitals and doctors. There are vivid tales of dances and courtship in the nineties, of seagoing vessels along Corlears Hook, of the underworld and tenement tragedies, of a more leisurely world of horsedrawn city buses." Leona Baumgartner, M.D.
+ Survey 86:421 S '50 550w
Wis Lib Bul 46:17 Ap '50

BARRY, FRANK RUSSELL, bp. Recovery of man. 109p $2 Scribner
233 Man (theology). Humanism 49-3738

" 'To stake out a claim for a humanist approach to the Christian interpretation of human nature' is the aim of this brief book by the bishop of Southwell. The crisis of modern man is not due to a lack of science, education and social conditions, but to the loss of religion, its insights, faith and power. Man is now reaching for ideals, universal beliefs apart from God in secular humanism. Bishop Barry believes Christianity is the real humanism and Christian faith the only guarantee of humanism because it includes the greatest human values and presents them in the Christian doctrines of creation and redemption in eternity." Churchman

"The author achieves his aim successfully and gives to the church the emphasis of the Gospel to be presented to our secular world." C. L. Orlard

+ Churchman 164:19 Ap 15 '50 100w

"The book is crisp in phraseology, and its examples should bear conviction with an open-minded secularist. . . The reviewer feels the hypothetical antecedent condition is overemphasized at the expense of God's freedom." W. J. Wolf

Crozer Q 27:87 Ja '50 320w

"It is a book for the theologians and more thoughtful clergy and laity of all Protestant denominations, and is a much more readable volume than contemporary theological works."

+ Kirkus 17:297 Je 15 '49 120w

BARTHOLOMEW, JOHN. Advanced atlas of modern geography; new series. (Whittlesey house publication) 108,47p $8.50; college ed $6 McGraw

912 Atlases Map 50-450

"The 1950 edition of the old Bartholomew's atlas is presented as an entirely new atlas for a new age. It will be understood by all familiar with Bartholomews of the past that it is not an atlas for the sales manager or even the student of history or politics; it is devoted to the science of geography. . . Here are maps for geology and physiography; maps for temperature and air movements; maps for agriculture, vegetation, crops and soil classification, and maps for ethnology. There are more than 100 maps in all, covering the world and all the continents in some detail." N Y Times

---

"A small, well-executed product by a map-making firm of long years' standing and reputation. . . The index represents a new departure. A world-wide geographical coordinate system, referred to as 'hour' coordinates, related to a world grid based on Greenwich, eliminates the confusion of reading east and west of the prime meridian. Spellings usually follow local official forms, but in the case of Brazil the official orthography has not been used."

+ Geog R 40:679 O '50 800w

"Should prove most useful in college and university libraries. . . Maps of the United States are limited to four, while the index lists few small places—both of which features detract from its general reference use." R. P. Tubby

Library J 75:1294 Ag '50 100w

"Very well done. The main maps are all layered, with adequate, clearly coloured population, climatic, and vegetation maps to supplement them. From the ordinary user's point of view perhaps the most noteworthy thing here is the number of relatively large-scale maps (one to four, five, or six million) of areas that are often skimped: the east and west coasts of the United States, for instance, Eastern China, the Punjab, and the Ganges plain." J. W.

+ Manchester Guardian p4 Jl 28 '50 80w

"Probably the most thorough and satisfying of all popular atlases of the kind. . . One misses in this new edition a particularly fine map of the North American Continent contained in the old atlas, but by way of compensation there are several new sectional maps of the United States." L. V. Updegraff

+ N Y Times p37 Ap 16 '50 190w

"Here is a completely revised atlas that is very comprehensive and includes maps not in the former edition or revised so completely that they are much more usable than before." L. O. Myers

+ Social Studies 41:372 D '50 750w

BARTLETT, ROLAND WILLEY. Security for the people; ways of maintaining full employment and high farm income. 303p $3.75 Wilcox & Follett

330.973 U.S.—Economic conditions. U.S.—Economic policy. Unemployment. Cooperative societies 49-2887

"Suggested methods for avoiding a future depression by stimulating business within the competitive free enterprise system. One of the author's suggestions concerns a guaranteed annual wage of 52 pay checks a year, arranged so that what the worker earns in excess during peak seasons can be applied against his wages in a slack season." (Publisher's Weekly) Index.

"This book by the chief of the department of agricultural economics of the University of Illinois is apparently designed for the general reader and not for the student in subject matters of economic organization. This does not mean, however, that teachers and college students should not take a look at it. In fact, it is imperative that they do if for no other reason than to observe a summary presentation of a complicated subject matter in 154 pages. . . What is most to be criticized in Security for the People is the unscientific and intemperate use made of statistics; the ready sense of moral indignation about what the author regards as economic iniquities, and the injection of hackneyed opinions in support of undiluted sophistries. . . The book suffers from congestion, repetition, and bad composition. It lacks style, it is unusually bumpy, emphasizes everything and so emphasizes nothing." Erwin Graue

— + Am Econ R 40:678 S '50 1150w

"The range of sources is amazingly wide. The degree of documentation but rarely impedes the argument. This is a book with a purpose. Some sections of it appear to have been written at white heat, some in haste, for there is a bit of unnecessary repetition. Whether one agrees in whole or in part with the author, he has certainly stated vigorously one of the central issues of our times and assembled evidence for his contentions that must needs be regarded. This is a real service." E. deS. Brunner

+ — Pol Sci Q 65:151 Mr '50 550w

"The discriminating reader may question Bartlett's concern with minimum standards of health, safety, and so on, which are important enough in their own right but of little relevance to stabilizing employment in our heavy industries—the major focus of the book. More important—the author appears totally unaware of the elaborate arguments marshaled in professional journals since 1938 to explode his price rigidity thesis. At best, he ignores the fact that unlike durable manufacturers, demand for farm products is relatively stable, and that price fluctuations come mainly from the supply side. This substantially weakens his argument." H. J. Levin

Survey 86:99 F '50 600w

BARTLETT, VERNON. East of the iron curtain. 212p $2.75 McBride

940.55 Central Europe 50-7101

"This spring [1949] Vernon Bartlett spent three months in Eastern Europe, and in this book he summarises his impressions and in doing so makes at least a small incision in the curtain. Though to no one are the principles and practices of the police State more abhorrent than to Vernon Bartlett, he clearly made a serious effort to leave behind him preconceptions and prejudices when he set out from Trieste, through Yugoslavia, Bulgaria, Hungary, Austria, Czechoslovakia, Poland, and Finland." (Manchester Guardian) Index.

Foreign Affairs 29:157 O '50 20w

Kirkus 18:257 Ap 15 '50 180w

"The whole book is written with a good deal of tolerance, although not of the fellow-traveler kind, and ends with a hope for eventual understanding between East and West." Donald Wasson

+ Library J 75:692 Ap 15 '50 110w

"The picture he paints is not in uniformly drab or sinister colours. To those aspects of life that he finds good he gives unconditional praise. He is as ready to show sympathy as condemnation. The most important single impression that Mr. Bartlett considers he brought back was that nobody in these Iron Curtain countries seems to be preparing for war. They are too busy turning themselves into Communist States." R. F. S.

Manchester Guardian p5 D 28 '49 300w

BARTLETT, VERNON—Continued
Reviewed by W. H. Hale
Nation 170:553 Je 3 '50 800w

"Bartlett, of the London News Chronicle, is one of the best of all living foreign correspondents, a former League of Nations official, and a man rich enough in experience to afford the luxury of frankness. His book is not as complete as those of the three colleagues to whom he tips his journalistic hat, John Gunther, Hugh Seton-Watson and Alexander Werth. But his material is fresh and clean reporting, and anyone who doubts its value should consider how useful it would be to have a comparable job on how things looked last year in, say, Central Asia or China." Joseph Barnes
+ New Repub 122:20 Je 5 '50 500w

Reviewed by H. L. Matthews
N Y Times p9 Je 11 '50 200w

"This would appear to be one of the most levelheaded and responsible books yet published on the East European countries under the Soviet hegemony."
+ New Yorker 26:124 Ap 22 '50 220w

"This book provides an illuminating quick survey of Eastern Europe. It is full of pertinent details which add up to Mr. Bartlett's conclusion that the independent spirit of man is indomitable and will prevail—even in Eastern Europe." G. G. S.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 Je 4 '50 320w

Sat R of Lit 33:14 S 16 '50 360w

+ School & Society 72:15 Jl 1 '50 20w

"The value of Mr. Bartlett's new book lies, not so much in the narrative, as in the conclusions. The story he tells has been largely told by other people, many of them his friends and quoted by him. He has followed their example also in not making perfectly clear the precise dates of his visits to the various countries concerned; this is unnecessarily hard on future historians to whom it will be of vital importance to know of exactly which month in which year is being written in a period where such rapid and sudden changes have occurred. In addition, there are one or two gaps in Mr. Bartlett's information. . . It would, however, be ungracious not to congratulate Mr. Bartlett on his chapter on Finland, which covers much less well-worn ground and is, in any case, both entertaining and instructive." Elizabeth Wiskemann
— + Spec 183:926 D 30 '49 550w

"Mr. Bartlett's book will not please wishful-thinkers in every respect, but it appears to be an honest, careful piece of factual reporting and as such should be a valuable contribution toward understanding the factors that are shaping European history in our time." H. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p8C My 7 '50 300w

BARTON, BETSEY ALICE. Shadow of the bridge. 279p $3 Duell

50-6932

A novel about adolescence. The central character is Alida Grant, a lanky, self-conscious girl, who has been at Cragmere, a fashionable finishing school, for a year. Alida hated Cragmere, with its ironclad rules, until she acquired a pretty, amoral roommate, Dee. Their friendship brought only tragedy to Dee, but as Alida tried to fathom the mysteries of life and human suffering, she became more of a person.

"Miss Barton had so much excellent material at hand without ringing in the many sinister events to make her point that I wonder whether she is not too close to her subject. . . Because of the continuous stream of tragic mishaps, our interest in Alida's maturing gets sidetracked. By far the best writing in the book is found in the descriptions of the pull-and-tug between reality and fancy which takes place in a youth's mind; Betsy Barton has here kept the shadowy, elusive quality which should be the substance of the book, rather than mistrust, fear, fire, and suicide." Betty Swords
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ap 2 '50 450w

"This well-worn but perennially significant theme Miss Barton has made very much her own. In all the important places the book seems freshly minted; only some of the minor symbolism has the heavy ring of the familiar." R. C.
+ Christian Science Monitor p4 Ap 8 '50 420w

Manchester Guardian p4 O 6 '50 120w

Reviewed by John Raymond
New Statesman & Nation 40:374 O 21 '50 250w

Reviewed by George Conrad
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 Mr 26 '50 400w

"This story of adolescent anguish is clearly written, with earnest intensity, but it casts little light upon ancient trials and the intensity itself is of such an unrelievedly banal order that it is something of an embarrassment. There is freshness neither in the writing nor in the conception or drawing of characters or situation." Gertrude Buckman
— + N Y Times p20 My 14 '50 370w

"Miss Barton pours herself into her story, telling it with passion and eagerness. Alida's shiftings from the child's to the adult's point of view and the way in which she resolves a spiritual crisis are told with imagination and understanding." J. V.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 Mr 26 '50 370w

"Miss Barton succeeds to a remarkable degree in capturing the bewilderment and anger of the girl who is a victim of her own bitterness. . . Unfortunately, in her absorption with internal conflicts the author neglects important externals. The whole structure of her story suffers from a lack of definiteness." Josephine Lawrence
Sat R of Lit 33:15 Je 24 '50 600w

— Times [London] Lit Sup p673 O 27 '50 110w

BARTON, FREDERICK BUSHNELL. Music as a hobby; how to have fun with music as a performer and as a listener. rev ed 159p $2.50 Harper

780 Music 50-6336

"This edition is brought up to date and incorporates suggestions made by correspondents and reviewers on the first edition [Book Review Digest 1941]." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 46:263 Ap 15 '50

"It is possible that many who take Mr. Barton's engaging and thoroughly worth-while advice to make music a part of their everyday lives will suddenly discover this central quality of all artistic activity for themselves, without having been frightened away by any such uncomfortable abstruse terminology." K. G. R.
+ Christian Science Monitor p6 Ap 22 '50 850w

"Recommended for all libraries." Leonard Burkat
+ Library J 75:697 Ap 15 '50 100w

Wis Lib Bul 46:15 Ap '50

BARTON, ROGER, ed. Advertising handbook. 1015p il $10; to schools $7.50 Prentice-Hall

659.1 Advertising 50-5781

A collection of brief treatments of various phases of advertising, written by 35 men prominent in advertising. Contains graphic illustrations, analytic tables, and suggestive check-lists. The compiler is editor of Advertising Agency Magazine. Bibliographies. Glossary. Index.

"This is a fact-packed text with illustrations, glossary of terms and other aids that make it an indispensable tool." Winifred Baum
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p7 My 28 '50 40w

"Valuable selective references at end of chapters." J. E. Cross
+ Library J 75:870 My 15 '50 70w

BARTON, ROY FRANKLIN. The Kalingas: their institutions and custom law; with an introd. by E. Adamson Hoebel [ed. by Fred Eggan]. 275p il $4 Univ. of Chicago press

349.9914 Kalingas (Tamil tribe). Law, Primitive. Customary law 49-8801

The Kalingas are one of the hill tribes of northern Luzon. The author of this study of the Kalinga folk law worked among the Philippine tribes for many years, first as teacher, then as anthropologist. He describes not only folk law in detail but also "its relation to a nascent tribal nationalism and internationalism, superimposed upon a typical Indonesian kinship-group and village pattern of social integration." (Social Forces) Glossary. Index.

"In many ways this is the best of R. F. Barton's excellent studies on the customary law of the Philippine tribes in the Mountain Provinces of Luzon. It reveals the steady development of conceptual powers and comparative materials at Mr. Barton's command. It is our great loss that anthropology will not benefit further from his industry and his intimate knowledge of this field." Cora DuBois

+ Am Anthropol 52:81 Ja '50 650w

"There is room for further research. But, in his work on the Ifugaos, the Kalingas, and a manuscript on the Kankanai, which is now in the course of posthumous publication, Barton has established high models of anthropological investigation and collections of materials of far-reaching importance for the comparative study of social institutions." Max Rheinstein

+ Am J Soc 55:420 Ja '50 950w

"This is good scientific anthropology written with unusual vivacity." W. E. G.

+ Christian Century 66:738 Je 15 '49 150w

"In publishing this work, the Department of Anthropology of the University of Chicago, sponsor of many successful field projects in the Philippines, has rendered a notable service both to its late author and to science. . . Anthropologists, geographers and students of law have reason to feel grateful to the author of this valuable work." Albert Kolb

+ Pacific Affairs 23:102 Mr '50 900w

Reviewed by E. S. C. Handy

Social Forces 28:212 D '49 750w

U S Quarterly Bkl 5:470 D '49 320w

BARZUN, JACQUES MARTIN. Berlioz and the romantic century. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 2v 573;511p pl set $12.50 Little

B or 92 Berlioz, Hector Louis. Nineteenth century 50-7935

"In this work, Barzun has flanked the 25 biographical chapters of Berlioz' life with critical essays dealing with the major scores (instrumentation, melodies, structure, harmony, etc.) which are not for the more casual or 'impetuous' reader. And he has also included a few 'interchapters' on more general aesthetic aspects, the century of romanticism, art and life, etc. One follows here the uneven, unhappy courses of his life; . .the long succession of his works and their performance; the neglect of his son, Louis, later a source of remorse; his contacts with all the greats of a highly creative century; the conflict of the artist with the new post-revolutionary society after 1848 and the slackening of the public's response; the writing of his monumental Les Troyens which never had a proper performance; and the last years of increasing illness and semi-obscurity, the death of Louis which was followed shortly by his own death." (Kirkus) Chronology Bibliography. Indexes.

"Barzun tends to overstate his claims for his hero; and I suspect that he could, without lowering his sights, have exercised slightly more selectivity. . . These considerations, though, are dimmed by the book's shining merits—monumental scholarship; elegant and eloquent writing; the pervasive imprint of a deeply civilized mind; and a wealth of insights into the life of art." C. J. Rolo

+ — Atlantic 186:82 Ag '50 850w

Booklist 47:11 S 1 '50

"The richness of the period and the many-sidedness of the great French composer who was one of its towering figures are admirably exploited in Jacques Barzun's volumes. Here is a biografy in the grand manner." Edward Barry

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Je 18 '50 400w

"A true romanticist himself, the author is concerned and fascinated with everything and everybody who would illumine the artistic and social phenomena of the era. What the work has to offer in variety to all readers must be experienced to be believed—from engrossing discussions on the political and literary problems of times past and present to an 'Index to Misconceptions about Berlioz and to Their Corrections'! One feels that all the composer ever said and did, and everything that has been said and done about him, has found its way into this work, directly or by inference." K. G. Roy

+ Christian Science Monitor p6 Je 17 '50 1000w

Cleveland Open Shelf p19 O '50

"A book for the serious student, library reference shelves and music schools in particular, and for a long standard sale."

+ Kirkus 18:88 F 1 '50 270w

"A skilfully written, richly wrought, perceptive and whole-hearted approach to the problem of the life and works of Berlioz. . . A must for research and college libraries and for all but the smallest of public libraries." C. K. Miller

+ Library J 75:495 Mr 15 '50 190w

"While Berlioz himself comes through as the distilled essence of nobility, the residue is a veritable mountain of error, ignorance, and wilful distortion. Mr. Barzun's resultant estimate of his hero is quite accurately given in a fascinating 'Index to Misconceptions about Berlioz and to Their Corrections.' But no other biographer could have set Berlioz in the rich context of history and culture that Mr. Barzun has provided for him. . . The authentic and complete study of Berlioz remains to be written, although it is Mr. Barzun himself who has told us, in a magnificent introduction to the present work, precisely what that study ought to be." Lawrence Morton

+ — Music Lib Assn Notes 7:562 S '50 1200w

"Mr. Barzun has created a hero in his own image. It is a common failing, perhaps inevitable. But to those out of sympathy with Mr. Barzun's conceptual schemes, to those who know Berlioz from the 'Memoir' and Turner's biography, above all to those anxious for new insights into some great music, these thousand pages will seem a dubious homage." R. E. Garis

Nation 171:171 Ag 19 '50 1500w

Discussion by B. H. Haggin

Nation 171:322 O 7 '50 1200w

"A lifetime of humane education and sensitive reaction have been condensed into this book. It is compact of justice, liberality of spirit, and conservatism of values. It is written with grace, wit, and unflagging insight. If we had not made a cheap coin of the adjective 'great,' Mr. Barzun's 'Berlioz and the Romantic Century' is a really living book to which it could cleanly and exactly be applied." Herbert Weinstock

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 My 14 '50 1450w

"There is no room in a review to discuss all the important questions raised by Mr. Barzun . . . so one must conclude with the hope that his scholarly and passionate plea will be heard and a Berlioz society formed to insure the recording of all his principal works. For, whatever our final judgment may be, it is clearly necessary to know all the works of a composer concerning whom the opinions given by capable scholars show that every one of his dozen great works appears to some as his greatest, while the rest are unhesitatingly dismissed as inferior." W. H. Auden

+ N Y Times p1 My 14 '50 2200w

BARZUN, J. M.—Continued

"This enormous, two-volume work is a labor of love, and, like many such labors, sometimes threatens to topple over on the unsuspecting reader and crush him. . . Mr. Barzun is a scholar of astounding erudition, to which he adds an almost too fluent style, and from time to time one cannot help fearing that he not only knows everything but is going to tell everything. Like a good teacher, however, he never fails to instruct or entertain."

+ — New Yorker 26:104 S 30 '50 170w

"The entire Berlioz literature has long needed a thorough critical overhauling, and this Professor Barzun provides. If at times his tone grows truculent, one can understand his impatience. . . Professor Barzun is actually impelled to provide, at the end of his second volume, an 'Index to Misconceptions about Berlioz and to Their Corrections.' This is also an index to Professor Barzun's main weakness: As one reads of Berlioz's 'accuracy and truthfulness,' his 'character and intellect,' . . one wonders if this paragon ever committed the minutest error, either in his personal relations or in his work. Perhaps Berlioz was incapable of error; Professor Barzun, however, falls into a few." Alfred Frankenstein

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p21 Je 25 '50 1500w

"The book, whatever its shortcomings, has been badly needed. Studies in English on the life and art of Berlioz have so far only scratched the surface, and at his best Mr. Barzun, treating a subject obviously congenial to him, commands an impressive range of scholarship and eloquence of style. . . This is a 'literary' biography with musical analyses which are slight in interest, sometimes debatable, and generally lacking in first-hand authority." Robert Lawrence

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:11 My 13 '50 1500w

"Whatever arguments Berlioz and the Romantic Century may provoke, it is a work of great importance. It is built to last, historically and philosophically, and is a splendid combination of patient research, reasonable appraisal, and comfortable writing."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:299 S '50 450w

BATCHELOR, JULIE FORSYTH. Cap for Mul Chand; il. by Corinne V. Dillon. 56p $2 Harcourt

Children in India 50-13862

Mul Chand, a little Hindu boy, wanted to go to Bombay in his uncle's camel cart. But how could he go to the city when he owned no cap? The story describes Mul Chand's brave efforts to earn a cap, and his success.

Booklist 47:15 S 1 '50

Bookmark 10:10 O '50 30w

Reviewed by A. L. Shea

Chicago Sunday Tribune p16 S 17 '50 200w

Christian Science Monitor p11 N 13 '50 30w

Cleveland Open Shelf p23 D '50

"A delightful story of hard work and its reward set in a poor village in India."

+ Kirkus 18:463 Ag 15 '50 110w

"With the steady call for easy reading books well in mind, this is recommended." Mary Strang

+ Library J 75:1670 O 1 '50 70w

"Children of about eight to ten will find it a lively, honest picture of a strange land." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ag 20 '50 130w

"If adult critics carp about over-simplifications and occasional clichés in this book, young readers won't. Neither will parents and teachers who know how hard it is to find a story which is so lively and exciting that third and fourth grade readers wish to read it to themselves, and so unpretentiously written that they are able to do so." L. R. Davis

+ N Y Times p16 Ag 20 '50 140w

BATEMAN, ALAN MARA. Economic mineral deposits. 2d ed 916p il $7.50 Wiley

553 Geology, Economic. Ore deposits 50-8191

New edition of a textbook which first appeared in 1942 (Book Review Digest 1943). There has been some rearrangement of material, some rewriting and some new matter added and many new illustrations. The references at the ends of chapters have been expanded and now cover material to the end of 1949.

Booklist 46:354 Jl 15 '50

"An established work which is useful both as a college textbook and as a reference book in libraries and the mineral industries." R. R. Hawkins

+ Library J 75:1193 Jl '50 110w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:56 Jl '50

BATES, MARSTON. Nature of natural history. 309p $3.50 Scribner

574 Natural history 50-6446

A survey of the whole field of natural history, showing the relationship between living things and their environment. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:242 Ap 1 '50

"Likely to be of most value to the very many laymen with a serious interest in natural history but little formal training in the field. Such readers will find lucidly explained the most modern state of knowledge of the classification, geological history, reproduction and development, environment, interrelationships, behavior, and evolution of animals and plants in nature. The exposition of these aspects is, however, seriously hampered by the inexplicable absence of illustrations." C. L. Remington

+ — Christian Science Monitor p12 Ap 8 '50 650w

Kirkus 18:87 F 1 '50 240w

"An excellent book, recommended without reservation." G. G. Simpson

+ Sat R of Lit 33:27 Ap 8 '50 1050w

"It is an excellent bird's eye view of natural history, with a final section on naturalists and a good bibliography."

+ Wis Lib Bul 46:17 My '50

BATES, RALPH. Dolphin in the wood. 349p $3 Random house

49-50423

Character study of an Englishman, Rodge Frome, born in the village of Wellingdon Parva at the beginning of the twentieth century. His childhood days are sketched, showing his hero worship of his older cousin Will, and his adolescent love for Ruthie Bassett. After World war I, when he discovered that Will had been court martialed, he became more morose. His attempts to become a composer are interrupted by his love affair with Ruthie. The book closes with Rodge on a trip to Spain.

Booklist 46:166; 172 Ja 15 '50

"For the mature reader."

Bookmark 9:107 F '50 70w

"This is the fevered, first-person narrative of an Englishman born at the beginning of the century. The novel is almost belligerently bourgeois as Rodger Frome tells of his boyhood and young manhood in a tiny, picturesque English village." Mary Sandrock

— Cath World 170:394 F '50 260w

"The book has a certain polish and skill, yet it seems remote and full of the cliches of a certain stock type of British novel. To me it seems a throwback, rather than an advance, for Mr. Bates at this time." Edmund Fuller

— + Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ja 29 '50 450w

Christian Science Monitor p11 F 2 '50 250w

Cleveland Open Shelf p8 Mr '50

"The adolescent love scenes between Rodge and Ruth are most original and lovely and bring to mind some very mature Hemingway. Later scenes between them as adults are horrifying in contrast. . . Beautifully written, sincere, and subtle in dealing with human relationships and surroundings, this is distinguished in style, worn in content."

+ — Kirkus 17:632 N 15 '49 150w

"One has the feeling that the story of Rodger Frome is autobiographical, and the authority with which the other characters emerge, strengthens this impression. Recommended." A. J. Gaines

+ Library J 74:1818 D 1 '49 130w

"The particular trouble with this novel is that from a sharply defined background, crowded with relatives and country pleasures, the personal sufferings and rebellion of the author-hero emerge diffused and vague." Ernest Jones

Nation 170:160 F 18 '50 360w

New Statesman & Nation 40:515 N 25 '50 240w

"Fortunately a sense of humor and a sense of history were always standard equipment in good English writing, and Mr. Bates has plenty of both. His main theme is spacious, but some of the best things in his story are small—scenes and miniatures of country life which are indeed, in the joyous language of Wellingdon Parva, as 'main tootlesome' as a Mozart sonata or a good ripe apple." James Hilton

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 Ja 29 '50 800w

"In the novels and stories that he wrote after 'The Olive Field,' whether his scene was Spain or Italy or Mexico, Mr. Bates failed to achieve the rich reality he created in that book. Now, writing about the England of thirty years ago, he has produced passages of comparable substance and force, but the novel as a whole is, like his 'Rainbow Fish' and 'The Fields of Paradise,' less than satisfying." Granville Hicks

N Y Times p4 Ja 29 '50 450w

Reviewed by John Broderick

New Yorker 25:92 F 11 '50 360w

"This richly varied novel is always alive and always vibrant. But it is clearest, firmest, and most evocative in its picture of a South country boyhood at the beginning of this troubled century. Though a man could not return, there is some virtue in remembering the old village clustered about its Common, the simple, earthy people speaking their archaic English, and the great reach of downland, where the shadows of clouds lie long on the hills." Walter Havighurst

+ Sat R of Lit 33:10 Ja 28 '50 450w

"I am not sure, remembering Lean Men and The Olive Field, that this is quite the sort of thing to be looked for from Mr. Bates. It wants something, I think of austerity. . . But I complain too much. The Dolphin in the Wood is the work of a very gifted writer, and wears its liveliness and strength of imagination or memory with genuine charm." R. D. Charques

+ — Spec 184:524 N 17 '50 230w

Times [London] Lit Sup p741 N 24 '50 460w

BATESON, FREDERICK WILSE. English poetry; a critical introduction. 272p $2 Longmans

821.09 English poetry—History and criticism

"The author, lecturer at Oxford, and compiler of 'The Cambridge Bibliography of English Literature,' attempts to define poetry and the proper sphere of poetic criticism; then to apply his theories to specific poems." Christian Science Monitor

Reviewed by Russell Lord

Christian Science Monitor p14 Ag 5 '50 550w

"Though Mr. Bateson has good things to say about the importance of annotated editions, though much of his detailed criticism is interesting, though he shows enterprise and courage in exploring the connection between poets and their social background, these merits are incidental and are, at least in my opinion, outnumbered by evident defects." Rex Warner

+ — New Statesman & Nation 40:181 Ag 12 '50 550w

"Mr. Bateson's book I find, over large tracts of it, lively and interesting. But with a good deal of it I feel impatient. Very likely that was a part of his intention, for I have not yet learned to think of romantic poetry as a disease." H. W. Garrod

+ — Spec 184:860 Je 23 '50 650w

BATTERSBY, WILLIAM JOHN. De La Salle; saint and spiritual writer; with a foreword by Patrick O'Boyle. 207p il $3 Longmans

B or 92 La Salle, Jean Baptiste de, Saint. Brothers of the Christian schools

The second study of De La Salle, following the author's De La Salle; a Pioneer in Modern Education (Book Review Digest 1949). This volume traces La Salle's impact on the Brothers of the Christian Schools. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by Justus George

Commonweal 53:180 N 24 '50 1150w

School & Society 72:269 O 21 '50 30w

"This second volume will have a more limited appeal than the earlier one. The first book is of interest to many classes of readers. . . The companion book is concerned with matters which are primarily of interest to theologians and mystics and devotees of the contemplative life. But the author obviously hopes for a wider public than this. He declares himself as bent on destroying the idea that saints are impossible beings, unlike the rest of men."

Times [London] Lit Sup p567 S 8 '50 900w

BAUER, JOHN, and COSTELLO, PETER. Transforming public utility regulation; a definite administrative program. 367p $5 Harper

380.1682 Public utilities 50-6749

"This book attempts to present the needed pattern of regulation and public utility organization if the prevalent system of private ownership and operation is to be maintained against the inherent advantages of outright public ownership and operation. The proposals are presented not in opposition to public ownership and operation, but as alternative means through which the same public objectives can be attained under readjusted private organization and management." (Pref) Index.

"The most stimulating and provocative sections of this very useful book are those which present specific proposals for handling difficult technical problems. They include methods for establishing and maintaining continuously an exact accounting rate base, converting the return to which a company is entitled to an exact cost factor in the fixing of rates, establishing a fixed dividend rate on common stock, controlling a company's construction plans, and accounting for depreciation charges. These suggestions seem to be wise and plausible and stem from a lifetime experience in studying and analyzing utility regulation and organization." Marver Bernstein

+ Am Pol Sci R 44:1017 D '50 750w

"This book was written largely for 'public officials who have primary responsibility for formulating and administering policies in regard to public interest.' As the author is very well informed through some thirty years of close professional contact with the problem of regulation, his book is highy recommended, even though we know in advance that he does not expect that the desired transformation of public utility regulation will be effected." Eliot Jones

+ Ann Am Acad 270:173 Jl '50 410w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:315 S '50 220w

BAUER, WILLIAM WALDO. Santa Claus, M.D. 266p maps $2.75 Bobbs

614.2 Insurance, Health. Medicine, State 50-9937

"Dr. Bauer, who has been in health education work for thirty years, tells why he is convinced that 'politically controlled, bureaucratic, tax-supported systems of payment for medical care' will be more harmful and more expensive than our present system of A.M.A. supervision and voluntary health insurance such as Blue Cross. He feels that it will be bad for the patient, bad for the doctor, bad for the taxpayer." (Library J) Bibliography. No index.

Booklist 47:71 O 15 '50

"This book is witty, direct, readable. . . The only thing lacking in this otherwise excellent book is reference to the strongest weapon against socialism, the spiritual side of medicine." J. F. Schaefer

+ Cath World 172:237 D '50 400w

"This book is a must for all who want to be enlightened on this controversial subject." T. R. Van Dellen

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 O 15 '50 600w

Reviewed by Ed Marciniak

Commonweal 53:156 N 17 '50 2000w

"Here is excellent ammunition for those people who are opposed to socialized medicine. . . All-out propaganda for the A.M.A. point of view." Anne Whitmore

Library J 75:1503 S 15 '50 130w

"Here are facts which, if viewed in proper perspective, give reason for pride to physicians and to laymen who respect physicians, but Dr. Bauer's story is out of balance. The long record of opposition to progressive health and social legislation, voluntary health insurance, and group medical practice goes either unrecorded or is mentioned only in the manner in which a devout sectarian refers to critiques by misguided heretics. . . Dr. Bauer overdoes his case for organized medicine by identifying the interests of the public with the interests of doctors, and the interests of both with those of the A. M. A." M. M. Davis

Nation 171:464 N 18 '50 600w

BAUMANN, JOHN. Idaho sprout; the story of a western boyhood. 250p il $2.50 Morrow

917.96 Frontier and pioneer life—Idaho 50-8614

Adapted for grades seven to ten from the author's Old Man Crow's Boy (Book Review Digest 1948). It is an account of boyhood in the Idaho ranch country in the early 1900's.

Booklist 47:46 S 15 '50

Christian Science Monitor p10 N 13 '50 40w

"The style is taut, mature, highlighting the action. Superior Western-lore for boys."

+ Kirkus 18:332 Je 15 '50 130w

"Although many young people do not like first-person-narrative, the high thrill of adventure plus a moving father-son relationship and growth to maturity make the title well worth purchasing." Elizabeth Burr

+ Library J 75:1308 Ag '50 80w

"This fictionized autobiography portrays a father-son relationship that is reminiscent of 'The Yearling.' Moreover, it gives an interesting and authentic account of life on a fast-disappearing frontier." Howard Pease

+ N Y Times p14 N 12 '50 150w

"This is what boys call 'a Western.' It is outstanding in its authenticity."

+ Sat R of Lit 33:65 N 11 '50 140w

Wis Lib Bul 46:28 S '50

BAX, ROGER, pseud. See Winterton, P.

BEACH, JOSEPH WARREN. Involuntary witness; poems. 97p $1.50 Macmillan

811 50-7063

"In this new volume of poems Joseph Beach turns on the authenticity and vulnerability of the soul—the effort to net a complex self and to witness others' selfhood while shrinking from the raw exposure 'to their nakedness accessory.' " N Y Times

---

"Professor Beach has advanced to rather trite consideration of his own and other human's confusions, regressions and insecurities. There seems little in this volume, other than perhaps a recognizable nostalgic backward look to childhood, and a stereotyped reflection of a static society, that says much of anything to the reader—anyhow to this reader. Little of originality of expression or form; almost nothing of beauty."

— + Kirkus 18:119 F 15 '50 90w

"These agreeable poems of meditation and reminiscence are distinguished by the versatility and broad background of living which the author possesses. There is a pervading academic feeling but it does not intrude into Mr. Beach's most skilled characterizations and intellectual adventures. It is pleasing to have such a fine book of poems from a scholar who has devoted much of his life to the study of literature—and pleasing to have it at such a reasonable price." Gerald McDonald

+ Library J 75:1189 Jl '50 70w

"At a time when there is too single-minded a demand for communication through simplicity, Joseph Warren Beach communicates a subtle individuality through a sophisticated and highly flexible technique." James Hall

N Y Times p40 Je 11 '50 180w

"There are many rewarding poems in the book, doubly acceptable once we are acquainted with the poet's diction and the poet's internal struggle between the cold critical eye and the emotional pulse." A. M. Sullivan

+ Sat R of Lit 33:20 My 20 '50 500w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:285 S '50 240w

BEAN, LOUIS HYMAN. Mid-term battle: Le Baron Coakley illustrations. advance ed 98p $2.50; pa $1 Cantillon bks, 1523 L st, N.W. Washington 5, D.C.

324.73 Elections—U.S. 50-14641

"The one prominent predicter who dared raise his head after the 1948 pollsters debacle was Louis H. Bean, who took no poll that year, but merely viewed the voting trends of the populace. They showed him that Truman and the Democrats would win. Now Mr. Bean comes along with a pamphlet in which he expresses the belief, with appropriate hedges, that the Democrats will win the 1950 midterm battle as well. Mr. Bean operates on the pendulum theory, that a trend of voting has to slow down, when headed in one direction, before it can swing back in the other. The time, he feels, has not yet arrived for the Democratic trend to slow, or stop." N Y Times

---

Am Pol Sci R 44:1044 D '50 50w

Reviewed by C. W. Smith

Ann Am Acad 272:215 N '50 380w

Reviewed by Walter Trohan

Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 Ag 27 '50 550w

"Korea notwithstanding, The Mid-term Battle is an incisive analysis of the factors and the probabilities of the coming elections and merits careful reading both by the participants and the spectators." James Loeb

+ New Repub 123:28 S 25 '50 1200w

"Mr. Bean's theories have many sound points. There is the danger that he may become too theoretical, and overlook, as he does in discussing the 1948 election, that one candidate for President made a campaign and the other didn't." Warren Moscow

N Y Times p27 S 17 '50 550w

Reviewed by P. R. Levin

Sat R of Lit 33:36 S 2 '50 300w

BEATON, CECIL WALTER HARDY. Ashcombe; the story of a fifteen-year lease [il. by Rex Whistler and others]. 124p $3.50 Batsford

914.2 England—Social life and customs. Architecture, Domestic 50-6499

In 1930 Cecil Beaton leased Ashcombe, an eighteenth-century country house on the edge of the Wiltshire downs, and held the lease for the next fifteen years. In his book he describes the improvements made on the place by his family and friends, the gay week ends before the war, and a little of the effects of the war on English life. Illustrated with photographs and drawings.

Reviewed by Robert Cromie
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Jl 2 '50 200w

Reviewed by Francis Russell
Christian Science Monitor p2 Mr 4 '50 600w

"Illustrated with Mr. Beaton's own photographs, this account of a substantial pageant is warm-heartedly written. Its author underestimates himself in saying that he shows 'no talent or natural facility for literary composition.' " Stuart Preston
+ N Y Times p21 Mr 5 '50 360w

New Yorker 26:125 Mr 18 '50 110w

Reviewed by J. T. Winterich
Sat R of Lit 33:35 Jl 22 '50 180w

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p204 Mr 31 '50 750w

BECK, HELEN L. Going to camp; a guide to good camping; il. by Max Barsis. (Stephen Daye bk) 163p $1.95 Ungar

796.54 Camping 50-7617

Guide for young summer campers. It tells them such things as how to choose a camp; what to take and why; how to get along with other campers; and how to get the most out of camp life. Illustrated with humorous drawings. Grades three to seven.

Booklist 46:306 Je 1 '50

"Here is a book with humorous illustrations by Max Barsis which will bring anyone up to date on camp lingo and camp life. A light style carries a lot of good information." M. B. King
+ Chicago Sun p12 Ag 15 '50 40w

"Recommended for ages 8-12." H. M. Brogan
+ Library J 75:986 Je 1 '50 70w

"Full of alluring, amusing pictures, this excellent book comes highly recommended by educators, and will be appreciated by parents as well... The pictures are alone worth the price; they will make the whole family laugh, and feel better about this great adventure away from home." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 My 21 '50 200w

"The tone is so reasonable that any youngster should be ready and anxious to take the very sound advice offered. Parents, too, will find this profitable reading." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p16 Je 18 '50 130w

"The text is directed to boys and girls but the parents who read every word of it will avoid many of the pitfalls that they are apt to fall into when their children leave them for the great adventure. Miss Beck has a lively sense of humor. Her book is noteworthy for its common sense, its faith in youth, and its enthusiasm."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:28 Jl 8 '50 100w

BECKER, M. JANET. Thirsty oak. 275p $3 Coward-McCann

50-7040

Suffolk county in England is the scene of this story of David Flegg, who was born in humble circumstances, and rose to wealth and power. Six weeks before his death David returned to the scenes of his youth, reviewed his past, and found the farm he loved in good hands. His will provided for the future of the farm.

Booklist 46:269; 286 My 1 '50; My 15 '50

"Miss Becker herself, whose previous works have been monographs of historical research, usually manages to acquit herself well enough in the writing, though sometimes tangling with awkward Latinisms. All her social sympathies lie obviously in the nineteenth century; to her, newfangled ways automatically mean a loss of care for the land. But much may be forgiven her for her delightful knowledge and use of dialect."
+ — Christian Science Monitor p6 My 6 '50 200w

"A leisurely, period atmosphere, together with a deep understanding of English farming country, gives this twice-told tale its interest."
+ Kirkus 18:145 Mr 1 '50 160w

"Extremely disappointing. Characters are badly typed; historical lore is dragged in; the early Victorian plot amateurish, disjointed, melodramatic." R. W. Henderson
— Library J 75:774 My 1 '50 110w

"This novel of Suffolk, laid chiefly in its mid-nineteenth century agricultural heyday, is the work of an author who has spent many years in studying the records and monuments of that English county. She writes with charm and doubtless also with special accuracy, about the quiet life of a countryside... The romantic tale that Miss Becker lays against the Suffolk background is less effective." Mary Ross
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p22 My 14 '50 300w

Reviewed by Charles Lee
N Y Times p20 Jl 9 '50 170w

"She does not trouble to create characters (her men, women, and children are all from stock), but she deals agreeably with them, mixing romance and melodrama and folk gossip with an easy lack of responsibility that might be irritating if her story didn't seem so altogether faraway and picturesque—something from a sampler, almost."
New Yorker 26:120 My 20 '50 110w

Reviewed by C. M. Brown
Sat R of Lit 33:30 Je 24 '50 130w

BECKMAN, JOAN. Skylark farm; il. by Pers Crowell. (Whittlesey house publication) 218p $2.50 McGraw

50-10253

The scene of this story for older boys and girls is the Skykomish Valley in Washington. There is a mystery about the boy Scotty, who comes to work on the Riley farm. When thirteen-year-old Sib Riley and her horse Cactus win a prize at the county fair the mystery is finally cleared up.

"Excellent characterization and a refreshing outdoor atmosphere." A. T. Eaton
+ Christian Science Monitor p10 N 13 '50 40w

"A good book to select from the host of horse stories now flooding the market."
+ Horn Bk 26:474 N '50 50w

"Farm life in Washington, sound horsemanship, and easily handled suspense."
+ Kirkus 18:418 Ag 1 '50 140w

"Miss Beckman understands the magic of suspense and action... [She] writes with a breezy clarity that fits her story. Her dialogue is convincing. But the denouement of her plot is involved and improbable." L. R. Davis
+ — N Y Times p42 N 5 '50 150w

BEDDOES, THOMAS LOVELL. Plays and poems; ed. with an introd. by H. W. Donner. 416p $2.50 Harvard univ. press

822 [50-13424]

A collection from the plays and poems of this English poet, in which the editor "has included, in order of composition, all the important plays, fragments and collections of lyrics from The Bride's Tragedy to The Ivory Gate." (Times [London] Lit Sup) There is a long introduction reviewing Beddoes' life and work, which includes a number of commentaries by writers from his day to ours. Indexes.

BEDDOES, T. L.—Continued

Manchester Guardian p4 Ag 29 '50 250w

Reviewed by Rolfe Humphries
Nation 171:536 D 9 '50 50w

Spec 184:524 N 17 '50 200w

"Professor Donner has been the first editor to appreciate the importance of a study of Beddoes's poetry which should be both strictly chronological and closely related to the events of his life. . . The present selection gives us only the groundwork of Professor Donner's scholarship, but it is the first edition at a price within the reach of the general reader to provide a sound introduction to Beddoes's poetry, and it is therefore long overdue."
Times [London] Lit Sup p642 O 13 '50 2150w

BEDICHEK, ROY. Karánkaway country. 290p maps $3.50 Doubleday

574.9764 Natural history—Texas 50-10319

Nature essays about a little-known section of Texas, a strip of marshland along the coast. Here live the few remaining pairs of the almost-extinct whooping cranes, and the author describes these great birds among his other observations, based on thirty years of exploring and recording. Index.

Booklist 47:151 D 15 '50

Kirkus 18:541 S 1 '50 240w

"As in his previous book [Adventures with a Texas Naturalist, Book Review Digest 1947] Bedichek combines observation and reading, nature and literature. . . In the past, numerous authors have written of Texas big-game hunts, of ferocious nature, of killing wolves and bears and mountain lions. Bedichek mines a different vein and produces more valuable metal." E. W. Teale
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 O 29 '50 1000w

"Portrays scenes with which non-Texans are generally quite unfamiliar, but which this reviewer, at least, finds wonderfully refreshing. . . Mr. Bedichek writes of all this with originality and force. Let us hope that he will try other sections of the great empire that is Texas." D. C. Peattie
+ N Y Times p7 O 29 '50 750w

BEE, CLAIR FRANCIS. Basketball quiz book. 120p $2; pa $1 Greenberg

796.32 Basketball 50-5606

"A series of questions arranged in 29 groups on invention, history, officiating, records, signals, etc. Each section subdivided: straight questions, true or false, little known facts, and answers." Library J

Reviewed by Robert Cromie
Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 F 19 '50 40w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 75:1190 Jl '50 20w

BEEBE, ELSWYTH THANE (RICKER) (MRS WILLIAM BEEBE) (ELSWYTH THANE, pseud). Melody; a romance. 192p $2.50 Duell

50-9225

The central character is an aging British painter with a fatal fascination for the ladies. Just as he has become entangled with a very beautiful young actress, and a middle-aged widow, the one love of his past returns from America.

"This is a very neat little novel; its phrasing is brisk, its movement engaging. In structure it resembles a play; it proceeds in what might be acts, against a background which might be a single setting; its entrances and exits are nicely timed; its characters all the least bit stagy. When you look close you notice that it doesn't have a bit of reality in it; but reading you don't care, because the book is obviously intended as a pleasant diversion rather than as a slice of the actual." Richard Sullivan
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p15 S 17 '50 410w

"A frothy confection, made to order for dramatization as a Noel Coward vehicle."
Kirkus 18:363 Jl 1 '50 220w

"Short and pleasantly giddy romance." Lorine Pruette
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Ag 27 '50 450w

Reviewed by Florence Crowther
N Y Times p23 Ag 27 '50 140w

New Yorker 26:86 Ag 26 '50 70w

"'Melody,' written in the key of charming improbability, twinkles with the grace notes of sophisticated comedy. Elswyth Thane is in top form with the thrust and parry of the Master-Jeeves relationship and she has a wicked way with the polite infighting of drawing-room intrigue." A. F. Wolfe
+ Sat R of Lit 33:36 S 16 '50 320w

BEEBE, ELSWYTH THANE (RICKER) (MRS WILLIAM BEEBE) (ELSWYTH THANE, pseud). Reluctant farmer; drawings by Helen D. Tee-Van. 208p $2.75 Duell

630.1 Farm life 50-5310

At first the author and her husband used their Vermont farm as a vacation spot. But they wanted improvements, and gradually as their ideas changed, the call of the land entered into the picture. Reluctantly, at first, the author began her struggle to bring the land back to cultivation, until finally she became a real farmer.

Booklist 46:166, 185 Ja 15 '50; F 1 '50

+ Bookmark 9:106 F '50 60w

"The book strays off on a good many bypaths. There is too much wallpaper lore; too much private reference to family and friends. Some will find it, as I do, relentlessly chatty at times. A fairer way of putting it would be, highly personal and intimate—qualities that will attract many of its readers. She is interesting on bees but is downright splendid on the woods and the whole scope of the sugaring-off operation. I have never read a better account of it and am not unversed in the matter, for I inhabit a farm perhaps two hours' drive away in the same state." Edmund Fuller
— + Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 F 5 '50 430w

"Elswyth Thane admits that she had fun writing this book and she hopes it will be fun to read. It is all of that. And a great deal more. It is encouraging and it will be stimulating." Elizabeth Yates
+ Christian Science Monitor p8 Mr 18 '50 700w

"Without sentimentalizing, there's a pleasant sense of a home well loved, a countryside savored. Elswyth Thane paints no picture of herself as a girl with a hoe, but 'reluctantly' found herself a competent manager and director of a Vermont farm."
+ Kirkus 17:640 N 15 '49 230w

"Autobiographical notes in a disarmingly insouciant style, with delicate humor, resolving themselves into an entertaining 'Driven-Back-to-Eden' book." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 74:817 D 1 '49 140w

"This book, charming in manner, deliciously humorous and poetic, and heartwarming in substance, should receive, if things went in this world as they ought, a formal official vote of thanks from the next Vermont Legislature. For here is a newcomer to Vermont who, in spite of herself, saw the plight of the old farm and, little by little, has come into a full realization of her responsibility for the acres she owns. . . You'll like 'Reluctant Farmer' especially if you do any reading aloud in your family." D. C. Fisher
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Ja 29 '50 900w

"Reluctant to become a farmer, and even more reluctant to write a book about it, Elswyth Thane has done a good job of both. No gentle-woman farmer, her account is free of the precious little anecdotes and contrived hilarity which characterize too many of the species, but it still manages considerable charm and humor as well as some excellent reporting." Alan Abelson

+ N Y Times p29 Ja 29 '50 180w

New Yorker 25:95 F 4 '50 160w

San Francisco Chronicle p22 Mr 26 '50 150w

"Chalk up another victory for the wily blandishments of the Vermont up-country. This is the testimony of their slow sorcery on novelist Thane and, to a more limited degree, on her naturalist husband, William Beebe. Here is a firm, gay answer to the urbanite who believes that mechanical 'creature comforts' are unavailable beyond the suburbs." R. W. Howard

+ Sat R of Lit 33:32 Mr 18 '50 360w

Springf'd Republican p18A Ja 29 '50 150w

Wis Lib Bul 46:23 F '50

BEEBE, LUCIUS MORRIS, and CLEGG, CHARLES M. Legends of the Comstock lode; decorations by E. S. Hammack. 79p $3 Grahame Hardy co, 2046 E. 14th st, Oakland 6, Calif.

979.3 Comstock lode 50-9457

"[This book contains] some of the more colorful stories that grew up around the amazing treasure-house of silver and gold that was the great Comstock Lode. . . Messrs. Beebe and Clegg . . . provide a brief introduction setting the scene; their chief concern is with the color and atmosphere of the time, and with a few of the curious—sometimes more than faintly preposterious—characters of the Comstock in its great years." San Francisco Chronicle

"Done with chapter-head drawings by E. S. Hammack and illustrated with many photographs, and reproductions of old engravings and lithographs, the little book will amuse and instruct many a reader who has heard about the fabulous Lode but has never gone into the story at any length." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ag 8 '50 650w

"This latest production of the effective Beebe-Clegg team is admittedly a 'retelling [of] oft-told sagas,' but Mr. Beebe, now a permanent Nevadan, brings them into neat historical focus and gives them fresh vitality." J. T. Winterich

+ Sat R of Lit 33:40 O 14 '50 100w

BEELER, NELSON FREDERICK, and BRANLEY, FRANKLYN M. More experiments in science. 176p il $2.50 Crowell

507.2 Science—Juvenile literature 50-6239

"Though planned for use rather than for reading, this book goes beyond the simple, nontechnical description of the experiments to give a quick explanation of the principle involved, the history of the process and its relation to everyday life. The polar projection map, the stethoscope, paper making, are samples of the material included." (Bookmark) Index. For Experiments in Science see Book Review Digest 1947.

Booklist 46:248 Ap 1 '50

Bookmark 9:163 Ap '50 50w

"A very worthwhile supplementary book for schools and libraries."

+ Kirkus 18:103 F 15 '50 120w

"Easy enough for a beginner of 10 working at home but interesting enough for general science demonstrations at school." F. L. Morrison

+ Library J 75:566 Ap 1 '50 90w

"Very interesting." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Je 4 '50 200w

"There is valuable and instructive explanation of just how and why things work scientifically and such diverse areas are investigated as the principles of heating by refrigeration and the preservation of a wild-flower collection." J. W. McGill

+ N Y Times p18 Je 4 '50 160w

Sat R of Lit 33:42 My 13 '50 50w

Wis Lib Bul 46:28 Ap '50

BEEVERS, JOHN. Storm of glory: St Thérèse of Lisieux. 231p $3 Sheed

B or 92 Thérèse de l'Enfant Jésus, Saint

"The English author divides his book into two sections: the first deals with the life of Thérèse Martin, her beatification and canonization; the second, with her teachings, especially in their relation to spiritual needs in modern times. Added to these are a chronology, an adequate but not exhaustive bibliography, and two appendices, one concerning the familiar fabricated representations which were first offered to the public instead of the real photographs which should have been made available, the other concerning the effect of World War II on the French town of Lisieux, especially the places associated with the saint." (Commonweal) No index.

"With the exception of Saint Therese of Lisieux's own brief book, The Story of a Soul, this seems to me the most satisfactory account of her life and teachings extant. It is a reverent, dignified and entirely honest portrayal of a saint who would be but seventy-seven years old if alive today." D. H. Moseley

+ Commonweal 51:661 Mr 31 '50 600w

Times [London] Lit Sup p4 Ap 7 '50 430w

BEHN, HARRY. All kinds of time; il. [by the author]. [61p] $2 Harcourt

50-9110

Short poetic prose and small colored pictures show the thoughtful child something about time. For ages five to eight.

Booklist 47:46 S 15 '50

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton

Christian Science Monitor p9 N 13 '50 50w

Reviewed by A. C. Moore

+ Horn Bk 26:355 S '50 80w

"An unusual and distinguished little book. . . An understanding teacher used this with the children in a vacation school this summer and they enjoyed both text and pictures. The book does need an adult to read it aloud."

+ Horn Bk 26:368 S '50 70w

"An unusual book, delightful in its execution."

+ Kirkus 18:414 Ag 1 '50 110w

"An exceptionally lovely little book for a poetic child." S. J. Johnson

+ Library J 75:1670 O 1 '50 60w

"It is all as brilliantly different from any one else's pretending to be a child as to be a really new sort of thing. A child from five to ten may understand it little or, again, much better than the adult who reads it aloud. He will love the tiny drawings in bright colors, and be enchanted with the parts of a clock which run or roll through the pages. Looking or listening to such pages will really stretch the mind, yet it does not take the mystery of time beyond the happy ken of a child. The only trouble is that so many adults will not think it is for children." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ag 27 '50 270w

Reviewed by Phyllis Fenner

N Y Times p32 N 12 '50 120w

"It is a book to be put into the hands of the children and 'no questions asked.' The child in 'The Little Hill' found her own secret world and possessed it. So in this children will find their own secret sense of time."

+ Sat R of Lit 33:58 N 11 '50 230w

Wis Lib Bul 46:20 N '50

BEIM, JERROLD. Country train; il. by Leonard Shortall. [48p] $2 Morrow
50-8414

Story of Sam, a small boy who lived in a country town and liked to watch the steam trains. Old Putt could send up some beautiful smoke, which the Train of Tomorrow could not do. And once Sam was allowed to sit in the engine cab and help drive the train. For first graders.

Reviewed by A. L. Shea
Chicago Sunday Tribune p7 D 24 '50 70w
Christian Science Monitor p11 N 13 '50 30w
Cleveland Open Shelf p20 O '50

"Not outstanding as a picture book, but full of interest for small boys."
Horn Bk 26:465 N '50 80w
Kirkus 18:351 Jl 1 '50 150w

Reviewed by M. J. Meade
Library J 75:1416 S 1 '50 70w

"It is the sort of book that will be used to lure first-graders into more reading, and to help them believe that books will hold what they like to hear about. The gay pictures, with realistic details, are the clever kind that are now occasionally creeping into our primers." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ag 20 '50 250w

"Sam's ride in the engine cab, his real engineer's cap and kerchief, the interior and exterior pictures of steam and stream-lined trains all add up to an honest, logical train story." Lois Palmer
+ N Y Times p20 Ag 6 '50 140w

"Excellent title for the beginning reader. It has large type and good pictures as well as the engines and railroads that are close to the heart of most small boys. Useful for reading aloud to the youngest."
+ Wis Lib Bul 46:22 Jl '50

BEIM, JERROLD. Danny and the dog doctor; il. by Edgar Levy. [46p] $2 Morrow 50-5486

Danny had watched his doctor friend work on various animals, and so when he found a robin with a broken wing, he took care of the bird in the doctor's absence. The other birds flew south before the wounded bird recovered, so Danny's robin was sent south by plane. There he recovered and the next year built his nest under Danny's window.

Booklist 46:221 Mr 1 '50

"Recommended for second graders."
+ Bookmark 9:162 Ap '50 50w
Kirkus 18:60 F 1 '50 70w

Reviewed by Nelle McCalla
Library J 75:783 My 1 '50 70w

"This is the sort of factual everyday story, written in a skillful easy style, that small boys love. It was built upon a true incident reported in the news. The big type is alluring, also the brevity. The pictures, though not very artistic, succeed in being true to the surroundings of a modern suburban child."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 My 7 '50 140w

Reviewed by Elena Baker
N Y Times p24 Mr 26 '50 110w

"It is a story that will appeal to children who like real adventure and has many attractive illustrations in black and white and in color."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:47 Ap 8 '50 90w
Wis Lib Bul 46:28 Mr '50

BELGION, MONTGOMERY. Reading for profit; introd. by Mortimer J. Adler. 291p $3 Regnery
028.3 Books and reading 50-10113

"[The author] expounds five general rules for reading. . . First, one must read literature, not about it. Second, one must read with a humble, patient, open mind, truly attending to what the author has to say. Third, one should stop reading, if bored; boredom is the signal that one has come to the book too soon or, possibly, too late. Fourth, one should organize one's reading to some purpose. And fifth, one should train one's self to discriminate the real from the false." (N Y Herald Tribune Bk R) This is a revision of an English edition published in 1945.

Booklist 47:87 N 1 '50

Reviewed by M. W. Stoer
Christian Science Monitor p6 D 9 '50 1100w

"The unusual feature of the book as a whole is its combination of a large amount of distinctly elementary information and precept with a decidedly advanced form of intellectual analysis. It is not addressed to the ingenuous but to the sophisticated. That is its significance." George Genzmer
'50 750w
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p22 O 29 120w
San Francisco Chronicle p31 D 10 '50

BELIN, JEAN. Secrets of the Sûreté [his] memoirs [Eng title:, My work at the Sûreté]. 277p $3.50 Putnam
364.944 Crime and criminals—France. France. Sûreté 50-5623

Reminiscences of Commissioner Jean Belin, formerly of the French Sûreté, in which he records the high spots of his thirty-year career with that department. He was instrumental in rounding up the Bonnot gang and in bringing the notorious Landru to justice. Among other true stories he tells of the assassination of King Alexander of Yugoslavia, and the attempted assassination of the King and Queen of England on their visit to Paris in 1938.

Booklist 46:195 F 15 '50

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun p5S F 10 '50 200w

"The account of the tracking of Landru by Belin, of his arrest and subsequent trial, is of extraordinary interest. The reader gets from Belin's account a strong sense of Landru's energetic, thrifty, calculating, passionate and yet coldblooded character. . . One can feel that the word 'secret' is somewhat abused in the title, as the author is continually saying that he acted on 'secret information' but he seldom divulges just how he got it, which one would think the purpose of such a book as this. But there is a genuine excitement about most of the incidents, and the prose itself leaps along with a satisfying nimbleness." Paul Engle
+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 Ja 29 '50 450w

"A thoroughly absorbing volume of memoirs." W. K. Harrison
+ Library J 75:102 Ja 15 '50 100w

"The story, exciting in itself, loses nothing by being told in the first person. M. Belin has been afraid of nothing, least of all of the perpendicular pronoun: if the I's were punched out, some pages would look like a pianola roll. But it would be a brave tune they would play." M. L. Becker
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 Mr 19 '50 600w

"Though his style might do without an occasional cliché, it is swift, strong and clear. He is never dull—and he knows how to tell a story." J. D. Carr
+ N Y Times p6 Ja 29 '50 850w

"An excellent portrait of an old-line police official, suspicious alike of newfangled methods and of political finagling, and, one has a feeling, now somewhat ill-at-ease in his new role of journalist."
+ New Yorker 25:94 F 4 '50 160w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ja 23 '50 950w

"Good."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:32 F 18 '50 40w
Springf'd Republican p8C Mr 5 '50 550w

"There should be material here for which Balzac would have given his eyesight, certainly more than enough for an enthralling rapportage. Yet somehow M. Belin's reminiscences fall curiously flat. . . He has no eye for the significant detail, and he leaves the reader with an impression of arrested revelations and all-round lifelessness."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p711 N 10 '50 600w

BELL, MRS SALLIE LEE. Until the day break. 244p $2.50 Zondervan
50-6002

A Biblical story picturing intrigue and torture at Herod's court. The characters are mainly fictitious.

"Vivid portrayal, Bible quotations and appalling incidents do not produce a well integrated novel. Not recommended." R. P. Tubby
— Library J 75:104 Ja 15 '50 80w

"As a whole has but little to say to the intelligent reader." John Cournos
Sat R of Lit 33:30 Mr 4 '50 320w

BELL, THELMA HARRINGTON (MRS CORYDON BELL). Pawnee; with drawings by Corydon Bell. 63p $2 Viking 50-6500

"Pawnee was a buckskin brave," a little leather Indian doll eight inches tall, or at least that was what he was to the grown-ups. To Bobby Spencer he was a real person. This story for ages six to nine is about the adventures of the two until Pawnee got lost, and even after that when Bobby saw Pawnee at the circus, riding with the grown-up Indians.

Booklist 46:248 Ap 1 '50

"Lively pictures in a very original story."
+ Bookmark 9:162 Ap '50 40w

"This is an excellent portrayal of the 'imaginary friends' stage which many children go through. Pawnee himself may join the immortals among dolls—Hitty, Miss Hickory and the Tin Soldier." M. B. King
+ Chicago Sun p3 Ap 1 '50 170w

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin
Chicago Sunday Tribune p7 Jl 2 '50 120w

"The cowboy theme, beloved alike by small boys and girls, is treated with imagination and humor in Pawnee." A. C. Moore
+ Horn Bk 26:98 Mr '50 160w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 26:102 Mr '50 120w

"Fairy story kept on a real basis, although the Victorian setting may confuse a child used to good fantasy in a contemporary setting."
Kirkus 18:60 F 1 '50 90w

Reviewed by Juanita Walker
+ Library J 75:703 Ap 15 '50 70w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 Mr 12 '50 150w

"There is something extraordinarily appealing about this Pawnee. Perhaps it is a suggestion of wistfulness underlying the humor and excitement of his adventures. Any small boy of 6 to 9 will be moved to sympathy by this miniature Indian's yearning for the free life of his ancestors and rejoice in the eminently suitable solution of his problem. The pictures are of the realistic school, not inspiring, but full of action and fun." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p36 Mr 19 '50 190w

New Yorker 26:176 D 2 '50 70w

"There are great vitality and humor in these drawings of a little Indian doll. He is an ingratiating character. His book is beautifully printed in black and white."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:32 My 13 '50 130w
Wis Lib Bul 46:27 Ap '50

BELLAIRS, GEORGE. Case of the demented spiv. 179p $2 Macmillan 50-8750

Detective story.

Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Ap 6 '50 50w

"British slow freight, but it gets there."
+ Kirkus 18:268 My 1 '50 70w

"A straightforward crime story."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 Jl 16 '50 140w

"The tempo is leisurely and the mystery uncomplicated, but the small-town atmosphere and characters are drawn sharply enough to lift the yarn above average." Hillis Mills
+ N Y Times p19 Jl 23 '50 110w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p20 Ag 20 '50 100w

"Well above average."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:37 Jl 8 '50 50w

BELLAMY, GLADYS CARMEN. Mark Twain as a literary artist. 396p il $5 Univ. of Okla. press

817 Clemens, Samuel Langhorne 50-4775

"Detailed analysis of Mark Twain's travel books and fiction, to discover characteristic 'thought-patterns.' Miss Bellamy suggests that the conflict in Twain between his deterministic philosophy and his moralistic urge to reform mankind explains why his published work so often falls off into burlesque and improvisation." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

"Surely one of the most profound and absorbing studies that have been made. . . Miss Bellamy has written an excellent critical commentary on his fiction. She has first rate chapters on his style and on his technique as a humorist. She has made a more careful study of the travel books than any preceding writer." Edward Wagenknecht
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Jl 30 '50 500w

"A useful discussion of technical matters—structure, style, theme; and a thorough exploration of an interesting thesis. A valuable addition to such studies as those of Brooks and De Voto which attempt to solve the critical problems raised by Mark Twain's personality and achievement." H. W. Hart
+ Library J 75:1176 Jl '50 110w

Reviewed by DeLancey Ferguson
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Ag 13 '50 1200w

"In placing her emphasis squarely on the development of Mark Twain as a literary artist, Miss Bellamy has done more than produce a timely and well-considered book. She has set the appropriate keystone on the arch of Mark Twain criticism." G. F. Whicher
+ N Y Times p6 Ag 13 '50 900w

"The book is stimulating and knowledgeable, but the author, trying to focus the reader's attention on the literary artist in Mark Twain, has been pretty much defeated by the spectacular strength and brilliance of the man's personality; it just keeps intruding itself everywhere you look."
+ New Yorker 26:85 Ag 19 '50 180w

"This book is a seriously conceived and well reasoned demonstration of the author's conclusions about Twain and about his work. It is the result, as even the casual reader will see, of long and conscientious study of the subject, and a solidly worthwhile contribution to the critical literature on Twain." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Jl 21 '50 950w

"Miss Bellamy writes delightfully and with vigorous freshness. Some of her phrases have a Twainian spice. Her summaries are convincing. The order and clarity of her argument show the influence of her profession as a teacher and literary critic without any shadow of pedantic dulness." Elizabeth Wallace
+ Sat R of Lit 33:30 S 23 '50 800w

BELSHAW, CYRIL S. Island administration in the south west Pacific; government and reconstruction in New Caledonia, the New Hebrides, and the British Solomon islands. 158p maps $2.50 Royal inst. of int. affairs

354.93 New Caledonia. New Hebrides. British Solomon islands 50-6437

"Mr. Belshaw describes the effect of the war and subsequent rehabilitation efforts on the economy, society and political life of New Caledonia, the New Hebrides and the British Solomons. This informative survey is based in part on the author's own experience as an administrator in the Southwest Pacific." (Foreign Affairs) Bibliography. Index.

"This is a careful and detailed description of the political and economic position of these little-known islands, both before and since the war." L. A. Mills

+ Ann Am Acad 270:199 Jl '50 370w

Foreign Affairs 28:690 Jl '50 60w

BEMELMANS, LUDWIG. Sunshine; a story about the city of New York. [39p] $2.50 Simon & Schuster

50-7955

Picture-book with rhymed text telling about the mean New York landlord Sunshine, and the daft music teacher, Miss Moore, to whom he rented his apartment, and what happened when Miss Moore bought 2000 umbrellas by mistake.

Booklist 46:321 Je 15 '50

"The pictures are humorous and colorful, as well as descriptive of New York City sights as Mr. Bemelmans sees them. The format of the book will attract a lower age group than the story with its adult undertones, but younger children will find humor in the pictures." A. L. Shea

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Ag 27 '50 160w

"Bemelmans' fans will welcome the book, but children will not find it the equal of Madeline or The Golden Basket." A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk 26:281 Jl '50 90w

Kirkus 18:260 My 1 '50 180w

"The individuality and flavor of Bemelmans' work are apparent in this picture book of New York, though the freshness, spontaneity, and originality of Madeline are missing." Alice McQuaid

+ Library J 75:1305 Ag '50 80w

"It is an odd, inchoate sort of story, and it is a pity that the famous author has not the sort of rhyming ability possessed by, for instance, the author of 'Albert the Camel.' . . But one must not complain of Mr. Bemelmans; he is a law unto himself, and if that is how he imagined the real music school on Gramercy Park, we take it as it comes. He gives us a fresh sense of the possibilities for fun in looking at our city, and as art his work is far above that in any other spring picture-book." L. S. Bechtel

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 My 7 '50 450w

"The story is more extravagant than funny and the verses are often heavy-footed. This is very sad because the pictures are so delightful. Both children and parents will enjoy the New York City scenes." E. L. B.

+ — N Y Times p30 My 14 '50 180w

"The illustrations are entrancing, but the story, framed in decidedly experimental poetry, is not quite so successful." R. F. H.

+ — Springf'd Republican p5C My 28 '50 120w

Wis Lib Bul 46:22 Jl '50

BEMIS, SAMUEL FLAGG. John Quincy Adams and the foundations of American foreign policy. 588p il maps $7.50 Knopf

B or 92 Adams, John Quincy. U.S.—Foreign policy 49-10664

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

"The publication of this book about a famous American diplomatist by a distinguished historian of American diplomacy is an event of the first magnitude, not merely for specialists in diplomatic history but for all students of the history of the United States. . . Professor Bemis has given us a book worthy of its subject." A. P. Whitaker

+ Am Hist R 55:621 Ap '50 950w

"This volume supersedes all previous studies of John Quincy Adams. . . The double mission of the book (it aims both at diplomatic history and at biography) does cause a certain distraction for the reader, but less than one might think. For a great part of the period, the life of John Quincy Adams and the diplomatic history of the United States are almost identical; and, where considerations of domestic politics creep in, Professor Bemis is careful to indicate what is being omitted. Nonetheless, this method creates an almost inevitable foreshortening in the characterization of Adams. . . This slight imbalance, however, will certainly be redressed with the concluding volume carrying Adams through the slavery controversy." Arthur Schlesinger, Jr.

+ — Ann Am Acad 268:191 Mr '50 450w

"Professor Bemis has made a valuable contribution to the history of the foreign policy of the United States." G. W. Brown

+ Canadian Hist R 31:193 Je '50 650w

Cleveland Open Shelf p1 Ja '50

"In a day of excessive and often premature publication it is a pleasure to read a work of ripe but unobtrusive scholarship, based upon complete mastery of all sources, presented in a polished, workmanlike fashion and offered without claims to any new or daring interpretation." R. W. Leopold

+ New Eng Q 23:243 Je '50 1050w

"Bemis has written easily the best study of Adams' first career. It relates the massive work of this great man to vital issues of American faith and fortune. Readers will take pleasure in its special glow of enthusiasm as well as in the solid scholarship to which the dean of American diplomatic historians has accustomed us." Basil Rauch

+ Pol Sci Q 65:134 Mr '50 1200w

"Scholars and laymen alike will hope for completion of this biography, so admirably begun."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:463 D '49 260w

BENCHLEY, NATHANIEL. Side street. 281p $3 Harcourt

50-5875

A novel describing the hilarious activities of two New York city families living in a pair of joined brownstone houses in the East Sixties. Some of the chapters have appeared in the New Yorker and other magazines.

Booklist 46:181; 219 F 1 '50; Mr 1 '50

Bookmark 9:159 Ap '50 50w

"The writing is dexterous and smooth. There are some fine passages of excellent wit and some moments of honest humor. But against these must be balanced an occasional straining, which seems determined to force laughter out of certain incidents which—when all their implications are considered—may not really be very funny after all." Richard Sullivan

+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 Mr 5 '50 400w

Reviewed by C. B. Burnett

+ Christian Science Monitor p20 Mr 30 '50 360w

"Delightful, with some unobtrusively serious overtones, this is pleasing pickup reading in literate terms."

+ Kirkus 18:30 Ja 15 '50 210w

"Wit and humor combined with the lighter aspects of existence, smart comments on gadgets and children make an amusing satire on life in the big city." Anne Whitmore

+ Library J 75:318 F 15 '50 70w

" 'Side Street' is frankly a melange, having no continuity of action beyond that of living in twin houses, devising joint enterprises, and sharing in the problems of parenthood that arise. Mr. Benchley mixes a very good Manhattan." Lisle Bell

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p13 F 26 '50 450w

" 'Side Street'. . . moves at an excellent pace. But it is a book of short pieces, rather than a first novel, as it is labeled. The Easter-present sketch and a couple more appeared in The New Yorker. Most of the others were seen first in various other slick-paper outlets. They have been stitched together with pretty thin thread—but that shouldn't diminish anybody's enjoyment. The son of the late Robert Benchley, who was a very funny man himself, has gotten off to a smooth, free-wheeling start." Gilbert Millstein

+ — N Y Times p4 F 26 '50 550w

"Mr. Benchley has provided his characters with some lively schemes, and has written conversations for them that are pretty amusing, even though it's hard at times to distinguish Allen from Belden, or even to remember which girl is married to which man."

+ — New Yorker 26:114 F 25 '50 120w

Reviewed by Allan Worth
+ San Francisco Chronicle p17 Mr 12 '50 500w

"This book goes down like an ice-cream soda, and it's a real pleasure to say to another Benchley, pull up a chair, it's nice to have you with us." Lee Rogow

+ Sat R of Lit 33:17 Mr 18 '50 400w

Springf'd Republican p6C Ap 9 '50 150w

Wis Lib Bul p23 Mr '50

Reviewed by Paul Pickrel
Yale R n s 39:575 spring '50 70w

BENDER, HAROLD STAUFFER. Conrad Grebel, c1498-1526; 2v; v1, Conrad Grebel, the founder of the Swiss Brethren. 326p il $3.50 Mennonite hist. soc, Goshen college, Goshen, Ind.

B or 92 Grebel, Konrad (50-3145)

"Biographical study [of] Conrad Grebel [who] lived only some twenty-eight years, from about 1498 to 1526. In that brief time he became co-founder and acknowledged leader of the Swiss Brethren, or Anabaptists, whence stemmed the Mennonite movement. Dr. Bender's last two chapters are a discussion of Grebel's theology and an exposition of the significance of Grebel and the Swiss Brethren in the history of the Christian Church." Sat R of Lit

Sat R of Lit 33:32 Ag 19 '50 250w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:300 S '50 280w

BENET, JAMES WALKER. Knife behind you. 231p $2.50 Harper

50-5149

Detective story.

Bookmark 9:159 Ap '50 40w

"While one should allow that the tale is agreeably deft (except for one or two inexplicably abrupt transitions), one must add that all of its characters are a little too faint. Benet sketches well but so lightly that it's all just a little too impalpable in course and fades from recollection almost immediately." James Sandoe

— + Chicago Sun p4 F 17 '50 110w

"Bluff characterization of truck driver saves this yarn from being only so-so."

— + Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 F 19 '50 60w

Kirkus 17:662 D 1 '49 60w

"James Benet's hero has the merit of being a human being. He is unwilling to believe in the true toughness of the 'tough guy' or the shadiness of the slicker until it is proved to him. His honest instincts continually frustrate him in the case, but they make him more likable than the run-of-the-mill amateur detective and give the reader a greater glow when he comes out triumphant in the end."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 F 26 '50 220w

"It's a bitter book; certainly not one for the reader who wants nice people, nor (for all its sex and violence) for the bosom-and-brandy devotee. But the objectivity and economy of its writing mark it as an unusually successful departure from standard mystery formulas." Anthony Boucher

+ — N Y Times p32 F 5 '50 200w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p16 F 12 '50 110w

"Good."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:36 Mr 4 '50 40w

BENET, LAURA. Famous American poets. 183p il $2.50 Dodd

928.1 Poets, American—Juvenile literature
50-6514

Brief biographical sketches of 22 American poets. Contents: C. C. Moore; W. C. Bryant; R. W. Emerson; H. W. Longfellow; J. G. Whittier; E. A. Poe; O. W. Holmes; J. R. Lowell; Walt Whitman; Emily Dickinson; Celia Thaxter; J. W. Riley; Eugene Field; L. E. Richards; P. L. Dunbar; Robert Frost; Carl Sandburg; N. V. Lindsay; W. R. Benét; Christopher Morley; S. V. Benét; M. C. Davies. Index.

Booklist 46:248 Ap 1 '50

Reviewed by Virginia Haviland
+ Library J 75:882 My 15 '50 60w

"Miss Benét handles her brief lives of twenty-two poets with her usual ability and charm of style. Her book should be useful in English classes." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Jl 9 '50 50w

Reviewed by Irene Smith
N Y Times p16 Jl 30 '50 130w

Sat R of Lit 33:44 My 13 '50 90w

Wis Lib Bul 46:25 My '50

BENET, ROSEMARY. See Dawson, R. B.

BENHAM, CLARENCE. Pearl diver's luck [Australian title: Diver's luck]. 286p $3 Norton

B or 92 Diving, Submarine. Pearls 50-6063

"The autobiography of a submarine fortune hunter of a generation ago; a man who walked the wonderland of the tropical ocean floor not unconscious of the beauty of coral caves and gaudy sea life while engaged in the rather messy gamble of searching out, gathering and then mashing the pearl-bearing shellfish." N Y Times

Booklist 46:228 Mr 15 '50

Reviewed by Bruce Taylor
Chicago Sun p6 Ap 5 '50 150w

"Benham is a competent writer and his prose is well flavored with dry, salty wit. Perhaps this is a book that belongs with 'Trader Horn' and the fabulous saga of Count Luckner the Sea Devil." R. L. Hanson

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 Mr 12 '50 350w

Kirkus 18:81 F 1 '50 190w

"The story gives a strong sense of reality, is not over-written and is recommended as first class adventure for the stay-at-home male." H. A. Wooster

+ Library J 75:493 Mr 15 '50 70w

Reviewed by Felix Riesenberg
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 Je 18 '50 380w

Reviewed by Walter Karig
N Y Times p16 Mr 12 '50 370w

"Maybe this, or most of it, is a true story, maybe not. Anyhow, it is very good reading." J. W. H.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p24 My 21 '50 160w

Sat R of Lit 33:32 Ag 19 '50 180w

"Mr. Benham has an original style, breezy and entertaining, but escapades like these have been common to seamen for ages." D. B. B.

Springf'd Republican p8C Ap 30 '50 190w

BENN, SIR ERNEST JOHN PICKSTONE, 2d bart. Happier days; recollections and reflections. 222p $3 Putnam

B or 92 Authors—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 50-5933

"An English publisher who describes himself overmodestly as a 'diehard individualist' reflects nostalgically on an era—mostly the period just before the First World War." New Yorker

---

"The bee of die-hard individualism in Sir Ernest Benn's bonnet buzzes so fiercely through so much of 'Happier Days' that it tends to drown the pleasant hum of reminiscence for which the book might be remembered. . . Sir Ernest who left his mark on British publishing, can hold you whenever he relinquishes the great abstractions and relaxes in chit-chat about the virtues of bread and dripping, the dustiness of Victorian valances and the enticements of the London music hall seventy years ago. He can be diverting, too, when it comes to personalities. . . 'Happier Days' is, in its author's words, the story of a middle-class person who has had a middle-class success. It is a story which will delight the minor historian in most of us." Roger Pippett

+ — N Y Times p43 Mr 19 '50 320w

"A mildly diverting museum piece."

New Yorker 26:122 My 6 '50 170w

Sat R of Lit 33:35 Jl 22 '50 230w

BENNETT, MERRILL KELLEY, and others. International commodity stockpiling as an economic stabilizer. 205p $3 Stanford univ. press

338 Commercial products. Economic policy 50-5381

"How to attack the problem of avoiding wide swings in economic activity through concerted international action in the specific and limited sphere of commodity stockpiling? The purpose of this volume is to further discussion of that question. It is essentially a critical analysis of the ideas and proposals set forth in Benjamin Graham's book, World Commodities and World Currency [Book Review Digest 1944]." (Publisher's note) Index.

Reviewed by C. D. Calsoyas
Am Econ R 40:676 S '50 1100w

Reviewed by P. S. Peirce
Ann Am Acad 271:188 S '50 500w

Foreign Affairs 29:146 O '50 20w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:178 Je '50 240w

BENNS, FRANK LEE. European history since 1870. 3d ed 946,99p il maps $5.50 Appleton

940.28 Europe—History 50-6623

"Third edition, with revisions to reflect the Second World War and its aftermath. There are comprehensive chapters on the status of current affairs in European countries." (Current Hist) Bibliography. Index. For first edition see Book Review Digest 1938.

Current Hist 18:295 My '50 30w

"This thousand-page study is crammed with information, lucidly presented in orderly fashion, and in harmony with an over-all design." B. R. Redman

+ Sat R of Lit 33:41 Je 24 '50 200w

School & Society 71:190 Mr 25 '50 50w

BENSON, ADOLPH BURNETT, and HEDIN, NABOTH. Americans from Sweden; foreword by Carl Sandburg. (Peoples of Am. ser) 448p $5 Lippincott

325.2485 Swedes in the U.S. 50-5150

A study of the contributions made by the Swedes to the life and culture of the United States. The book is divided into four parts: Historical background; Religious life; Denominational education; American activities. Bibliography. Index.

"The fact that Carl Sandburg has written the foreword might enhance the interest in the volume but not its value. The bibliography is not creditable, and it is evident from the acknowledgements that the authors did not use the material with discernment." O. F. Ander

Am Hist R 56:214 O '50 320w

Reviewed by B. J. Hovde
Ann Am Acad 270:174 Jl '50 400w

Booklist 46:212 Mr 1 '50

Bookmark 9:131 Mr '50 40w

"A well documented volume crammed with interesting facts. . . 'Americans From Sweden' modestly but ably reveals that these self-reliant and gifted northern people have proved that no better class of immigrants, physically, morally, socially, has entered the United States. One could wish that Swedes had come in numbers tenfold greater, and with them as many more of their cousins, the Danes and the Norwegians." Hudson Strode

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Ja 29 '50 1200w

"It is a detailed chronicle and reference book for the scholar and the American Swede, and is of interest to the casual reader as well." E. O. T.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 Mr 5 '50 270w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:186 Je '50 180w

"Recommended."

+ Wis Lib Bul p17 Mr '50

BENSON, NORA, pseud. See Mendelsohn, Z.

BENTLEY, EDMUND CLERIHEW. Elephant's work, an enigma. 277p $2.75 Knopf 50-8751

The author defines his book as "a shocker" and dedicates it to the memory of the author of The Thirty-Nine Steps, John Buchan, saying: "I cannot claim that this story attains at any point to so high a standard of improbability as is reached in The Thirty-Nine Steps in some places. But I have done my best."

Reviewed by Mary Sandrock
Cath World 171:473 S '50 240w

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun p5 Ag 1 '50 80w

" 'Elephant's Work' is a far cry from being as subtle a piece of workmanship as Mr. Bentley's detective story, 'Trent's Last Case,' published many years ago and acclaimed as one of the best of its kind ever written. But it's first class entertainment, and offers a pleasant change of diet for the reader of mysteries." Kelsey Guilfoil

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ag 6 '50 460w

"Playfully implausible, this is for more imaginative tastes in escape."

Kirkus 18:289 My 15 '50 130w

"This amusing extravaganza is successful on the whole. . . Recommended." E. F. Walbridge

+ Library J 75:1409 S 1 '50 80w

Reviewed by M. D. Read
Library J 75:1840 O 15 '50 50w

"A mellow if not too exciting novel, in which surprisingly few of the characters are villainous."

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Ag 13 '50 200w

"Here is a fascinating set-up for an action story that could answer an unusual question: How easily does a rather sedate Englishman step into the shoes of an American gunman? Mr. Bentley's story does not cover enough time or show his characters in enough action to bring out a very positive answer. Even so, this is an engaging story with humorous and philosophical sidelights." Patricia Highsmith

+ — N Y Times p12 Jl 30 '50 270w

"Funny and engaging."
+ New Yorker 26:75 Ag 12 '50 120w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p22 S 17 '50 200w

"No reader of however improbable a story wants to feel that the author is doing his best to attain a high standard of improbability. What he wants to feel for a few hours is that the author, without effort, is attaining a high standard of truth." A. A. Milne
Spec 184:893 Je 30 '50 250w

"Elephant's Work is written as smoothly as whipped cream, and it is not a jot more thrilling than a session with a charlotte russe. . . Author Bentley's trouble is that he has turned out neither a mystery nor a thriller, something Bentley seems to realize since he modestly decides that perhaps his book is only an 'enigma.' The real enigma is that the author of Trent's Last Case got stopped in his tracks so near the foot of John Buchan's steps."
— + Time 52:73 Ag 7 '50 380w

"The book—even considered as a pure frolic—falls far below the standard of Mr. Bentley's own detective classic, while his urbane and erudite manner in chronicling the absurd story may prove irritating to modern readers accustomed to the more hectically sinister style initiated by Mr. Graham Greene's 'entertainments.' "
— + Times [London] Lit Sup p385 Je 23 '50 250w

BENVENUTA. See Graedener-Hattingberg, M. von

BENZ, FRANCIS E. Commodore Barry, navy hero. 241p $2.50 Dodd

Barry, John—Juvenile literature 50-7778

A fictionized biography of the first commodore of the American navy, John Barry, a young Irishman who fought in our Revolutionary war. For older boys.

"The author is a journalist who knows boys well; he has made the American Revolution at sea come very much alive. He offers a little known hero to thrill boys over twelve who like to read about sea battles. His chief source is an unusual book privately printed in Minneapolis." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Jl 23 '50 60w

San Francisco Chronicle p3 N 12 '50 150w

"Mr. Benz tells the story of John Barry in a colorful and dramatic fashion. It will certainly appeal to boys, and probably to their fathers. It is a pity that his editor and publisher have not done as well. This is not biography or even 'dramatized' biography. It is rousing, good, historical fiction. It is time for the publishers to make this distinction." R. A. Brown
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:32 Ag 12 '50 140w

BERELSON, BERNARD REUBEN, and ASHEIM, LESTER. The library's public. 174p $3 Columbia univ. press

027.473 Libraries—U.S. Library surveys 49-10661

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

"It is not only the pointing out of the public library's weaknesses and confusions that makes this an invaluable report, but the brilliant analysis in the concluding chapter of possible new concepts in future library policy. In a study made with integrity and objectivity, the conclusions are drawn with intelligence." Siri Andrews
+ Ann Am Acad 268:250 Mr '50 270w

Reviewed by Roy Hillbrook
Current Hist 18:42 Ja '50 60w

"This book is essential reading for all librarians, whether the executive 'boss' or the newly recruited junior." C. R. Sanderson
+ Library Q 20:47 Ja '50 1300w

Special Libraries 41:145 Ap '50 60w
U S Quarterly Bkl 5:513 D '49 270w
Wis Lib Bul 46:11 N '50

BERESFORD, MARCUS (MARC BRANDEL, pseud). The choice. 243p $3 Dial press 50-10013

"Concerns a miserable worm of a man who likes to spy on ladies' bathrooms and who, when found out, decides in movie jargon, 'It's you or her, Nat.' He plans to kill the woman—but in order to give her fair warning writes a note and tells her so. Then he writes the same note to six other people at random. The novel depicts the effect of these bizarre murder notes on the threatened victims." N Y Times

"Of late, sexual perverts seem to have joined drunkards as stock characters of a certain type of book about New York. Even granting the possibility of occasional constructive treatment of a character of this kind, the point of saturation has long since been reached." Ruth Chapin
— Christian Science Monitor p18 N 10 '50 260w

Kirkus 18:618 O 1 '50 100w

"Mr. Brandel's novel fails, I think, because it is so obscure as to be meaningless, because he asks normal readers to invest their emotions in abnormality and because, finally, he simply didn't have very much to say." V. P. Hass
— N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p26 O 22 '50 380w

"An ironic little novel to be chuckled over in one sitting. . . The delight of the book lies in its deft phrasing. . . The macabre humor of this book will escape some readers and its purposeless characters will repel others. But still, anyone interested in superbly clever writing should read it, for Brandel is a conscious artist of real talent. If he ever develops a subject and a group of people worthy of his delightful satire, he could well produce a major novel." J. A. Michener
N Y Times p4 O 22 '50 450w

"It is highly improbable, of course, that none of several people threatened with violent death should call on the police for help. But if the reader for purposes of entertainment is willing to let this pass, then the novel is quite gripping and, in a sense, plausible. For Mr. Brandel is very good at creating impressions, especially sinister ones, of New York." E. B. Garside
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:37 D 16 '50 360w

BERG, LEV SEMENOVICH. Natural regions of the U.S.S.R; tr. from the Russian by Olga Adlen Titelbaum; ed. by John A. Morrison and C. C. Nikiforoff. 436p il maps $10 Macmillan

551 Physical geography—Russia 50-7599

"Priroda S.S.S.R., written in 1937 by one of Russia's leading scientists, is considered the most authoritative work concerning the physical geography of the U.S.S.R. This translation constitutes a valuable addition to the limited number of books in English on this subject. Written for the serious student rather than the casual reader, the book provides a detailed and systematic description of the vast areas falling within the domain of the Soviet Union. Each of the twenty landscape zones or climatic belts into which the volume is divided, is described as to climate, vegetation, fauna, soils and relief. Particularly valuable to scholars are Berg's extensive textual references to other Russian works, and the translator's selective bibliography." (Library J) Glossary. Indexes.

Booklist 46:329 Jl 1 '50
Current Hist 19:40 Jl '50 50w
Foreign Affairs 29:156 O '50 10w

Reviewed by J. E. Brown
Library J 74:1906 D 15 '49 140w

"This is scholarship of a high level indeed, by a man who already had an outstanding reputation before World War I. In it we find careful reliance upon primary observers and objective discussion of alternative hypotheses where knowledge is uncertain. These qualities are characteristic of sound scientific research work everywhere, but are more and more being labeled 'bourgeois' in the Soviet Union today. . . This is an excellent translation by Olga Titelbaum, who had to struggle not only with the intricacies of the Russian language but also with the specialized terminologies." Harry Schwartz

BERG, L. S.—Continued

+ N Y Times p6 Je 18 '50 450w

San Francisco Chronicle p21 Jl 23 '50 200w

"Students of current Soviet affairs will suffer many disappointments from the volume because man, even as an item of the natural environment, is rarely mentioned. . . Economic information is most fragmentary and consists for the most part of brief sentences on agricultural topics. The lack of significant reference to mineral resources is startling, yet these omissions will not deter nor discourage the social scientist, since an adequate understanding of Russia's natural regions can be had from this book, facilitating their analyses of more human factors." R. L. Tuthill

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:27 Ag 12 '50 600w

Reviewed by G. T. Renner
Social Educ 14:331 N '50 220w

BERG, PATRICIA JANE, and COX, MARK. Golf illustrated. 72p $1.50 Barnes, A.S.

796.352 Golf 50-8093

"A textbook for teachers and pupils, based on extensive teaching and clinic experience by former woman champion. Over 90 photographs." Library J

Booklist 46:317 Je 15 '50

Reviewed by Robert Cromie
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Jl 30 '50 80w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 75:1190 Jl '50 20w

BERGER, KLAUS, ed. French master drawings of the nineteenth century; selected [tr. by Robert Allen]. 90p 57il $2.50 Harper

741.9 Drawings 50-6872

"The colored frontispiece and 46 full-page drawings, carefully chosen as characteristic of 'a great artistic epoch,' are preceded by an introduction and descriptive notes on the plates." Bookmark

Bookmark 9:181 My '50 30w

Kirkus 18:233 Ap 1 '50 180w

Reviewed by A. S. Plaut
Library J 75:1509 S 15 '50 70w

"Valuable for students and a delight for the professional artist, this latest addition to Harper's Master Drawing Series maintains in every respect the high standard set by its three predecessor volumes." L. R. Sander

+ Sat R of Lit 33:71 My 6 '50 150w

Reviewed by W. C. Smith
Springf'd Republican p12C Ap 16 '50 240w

BERGLER, EDMUND. Conflict in marriage; the unhappy undivorced. 216p $2.75 Harper

392.3 Marriage. Neuroses. Psychoanalysis 49-11945

"Dr. Bergler, a psychoanalyst, believes that serious and lasting conflicts in marriage are mainly the result of the union of two emotionally disturbed people, 'neurotics.' In such cases divorce is not generally recommended, for, as he says, you can divorce your husband (or wife) but not your neurosis. But many cannot afford psychiatric treatment; many do not want it. Bergler believes, however, that if such people understood the real nature of their marital conflicts, they would get along much better and with less mental anguish. 'Conflict in Marriage' discusses the causes and symptoms of many of the most serious psychological problems of married life." (N Y Times) No index.

Reviewed by N. L. Browning
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ja 1 '50 220w

"His advice is astringent, practical."

+ Kirkus 17:596 O 15 '49 130w

"The virtues of this book are that it shows that marital conflicts often arise from unconscious psychological problems and that they are related to the past. But it has limitations. Not a few psychoanalysts and child psychologists would put the responsibility for childhood problems primarily on the parents who cannot love the child and permit him to develop as much psychological and moral integrity as he can. . . A more comprehensive book would undertake a more detailed consideration of the nature and problems of our society and the way they affect marriage and the family." Patrick Mullahy

N Y Times p14 D 11 '49 450w

BERGLER, EDMUND. The writer and psychoanalysis. 265p $3.50 Doubleday

131.348808 Authorship. Psychoanalysis 50-5989

"Dr. Bergler believes that the writer's creative activity does not stem directly from his subconscious wishes, but from a defense against those wishes, even from a defense against the defense. He explains and elaborates on this, using examples from literature and literary biography to illustrate his points." Library J

Kirkus 18:16 Ja 1 '50 150w

"This is not an easy book to read or to understand, but it is an honest one and deserves a hearing. . . Never sensational, it comes very close to the experiences of many of us, notably in the chapter explaining the popularity of the mystery and detective story. Recommended for the serious reader." Shirley Barker

+ Library J 75:313 F 15 '50 100w

Reviewed by Patrick Mullahy
New Repub 122:20 Je 19 '50 350w

"This is a provocative book. Anyone who writes fiction can see just enough evident truth in the ingeniously presented theories to suggest that they may contain at least a substantial part of the answer to the fascinating question: Whence comes the creative flow? Yet even a firm believer in Freud—as this reviewer is—must be irritated by the glib way in which so many modern psychoanalysts make everything confirm their particular beliefs. It is certainly no support for a writer's self-esteem to read that all great works of literature came from the inability of a baby to get along with its mother." F. G. Slaughter

— + N Y Times p20 F 26 '50 460w

"One has to sweat to make out Dr. Bergler's theory of why writers write. In the first place, it is couched in the thick jargon of psychoanalysis; in the second place, Dr. Bergler does not suffer from 'anxiety about the right word' which he finds a symptom of the 'writer's alibi operation'; in the third place, he leaves key words so loosely defined that, for example, 'writer' varies from a person with a mere itch to a poet." Gorham Munson

Sat R of Lit 33:16 Ag 12 '50 800w

Time 55:102 Mr 6 '50 330w

BERGMANN, MRS LEOLA (NELSON). Americans from Norway. (Peoples of America ser) 324p $3.50 Lippincott

325.2481 Norwegians in the U.S. 50-10589

"Starting with Leif Erikson and other early explorers, author tells the story of Americans who came from Norway. There is a brief history of Norway with a resumé of political issues and economic conditions which caused emigration to the new land of promise. Then come the tales of how these people spread all over our country from the east coast to Minnesota, Iowa, California, and even Alaska." (Library J) Index.

"This is sober, solid racial-group history, and an interesting panel of national background."

+ Kirkus 18:501 Ag 15 '50 160w

Library J 75:1652 O 1 '50 140w

"The author, who is a third-generation Norwegian and a Ph.D. in American Civilization (University of Iowa), writes with complete objectivity and makes no broad claims. Nor does she have to, for the facts are extraordinarily eloquent, and very often eloquent about major issues. . . The story does not depend on its high-spots for its drama or its significance. Its pattern is set by the migrations and activities and cultural achievements of group after group." Llewellyn Jones

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p28 D 3 '50 700w

BERGSTRASSER, ARNOLD, ed. Goethe and the modern age. 402p $5 Regnery

832.62 Goethe, Johann Wolfgang von 50-8947

In the summer of 1949 an international convocation of scholars gathered in Aspen, Colorado, to celebrate the bicentennial of the poet Goethe. This volume contains the text of all the twenty-two lectures delivered there. No index.

Chicago Sun p5 Jl 30 '50 90w

"I have a suspicion, which may be pure fancy, that if Goethe had the privilege of reading all the scholarly essays in this volume, he would pick out Reinhardt's and say: The others discuss great problems very wisely and report what I thought accurately enough, but this man also knows how I felt." W. E. Garrison

+ Christian Century 67:1238 O 18 '50 900w

Reviewed by H. A. Reinhold

Commonweal 53:212 D 1 '50 850w

"Those who attended last year's Goethe bicentennial convocation at Aspen will not soon forget the sense of intellectual satisfaction which they took away from it. The present book, admirably edited by Arnold Bergstraesser, assembles the twenty-two papers presented there and offers substantial evidence of the vitality of that meeting." Victor Lange

+ Sat R of Lit 33:12 S 2 '50 900w

BERGSTRASSER, ARNOLD. Goethe's image of man and society. 361p $4.50 Regnery

832.62 Goethe, Johann Wolfgang von 49-10552

"Dr. Bergstraesser's book is neither a chronological biography nor a commentary on Goethe's works taken one by one. Rather, it is an analysis of Goethe's personality, with frequent allusions to events in his life but little consecutive narrative, and a logically and topically organized interpretation of his principal lines of thought." Christian Century

Reviewed by Leo Kennedy

Chicago Sun N 28 '49 30w

"Prof. Bergstraesser's book derives its value not from any special 'timeliness' in relation to the bicentennial of Goethe's birth but from the solid substance of its theme and the competence of the treatment. A work of this nature must be approached with great modesty by any reviewer who cannot regard himself as a Goethe specialist, for the author is all of that." W. E. Garrison

+ Christian Century 67:114 Ja 25 '50 1350w

Reviewed by Frank Jones

Poetry 75:236 Ja '50 270w

"This important book needs careful study to be fully grasped and appreciated; moreover, it must be tested against the poet's works. The study is not easy, nor are all of its chapters so lucid as those concerning Goethe's political views and his cosmology, but it will amply reward the careful reader."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:7 Mr '50 240w

BERKELEY, EDMUND CALLIS. Giant brains; or, Machines that think. 270p $4 Wiley

651.264 Calculating machines 49-50247

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

Booklist 46:196 F 15 '50

"Machines that learn, remember, reason, and hence may be said to think—have been much in the news during the past decade. The basic principles on which such machines operate are described in an informal, readily understandable style. . . Although written so as to be particularly valuable as an introduction to this important field, this book will prove helpful to those who wish to delve into physics, algebra, mathematical logic, and related subjects." J. W. Perry

+ Chem & Eng N 28:1958 Je 5 '50 140w

Management R 39:500 Ag '50 90w

"It is written for general reading, but it is not a superficial popularization. To grasp all of it, a lay reader will have to apply himself about as vigorously as in comprehending a text in elementary algebra. A useful feature for serious students and librarians is an extensive, organized bibliography."

+ N Y New Tech Bks 35:2 Ja '50

"It is the author's speculations about the future of these machines that make this book exciting and, to a psychologist, highly provocative." H. C. Link

Sat R of Lit 33:26 F 25 '50 1250w

BERL, WALTER GEORGE, ed. Physical methods in chemical analysis. v 1 664p il $12 Academic press

544 Chemistry, Analytic. Physical measurements (50-6873)

"The first volume published of a two-volume work which will cover methods of chemical analysis that are of special value in analyses of complex substances. Each of the papers is essentially a condensed monograph on the subject named in its title. In most of the papers, the underlying theory is outlined briefly, but the emphasis is always on instruments, procedures, and applications. References to pertinent literature are cited in all cases, but enough information is given in the paper itself to guide chemists in practical laboratory use of the method. The work is of interest to graduate analytical chemists." N Y New Tech Bks

"Despite the multiple authorship Dr. Berl has been successful in achieving a remarkable degree of uniformity. A particularly valuable feature is the fact that most authors take pains to explain and illustrate commercially available instruments. . . Thus the book will be a valuable addition to the shelves of both teacher and research scientist." F. C. Nachod

+ Chem Eng 57:237 Ag '50 320w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:35 My '50

BERLAU, ABRAHAM JOSEPH. German Social democratic party, 1914-1921. 374p $4.75 Columbia univ. press

329.943 Social democratic party (Germany). Germany—Politics and government 49-50424

"A study of the problems, efforts, and final defeat of the Social Democrat organization after the First World War, with discussion of the conditions preceding the rise of the National Socialists." (Current Hist) Bibliography. Index.

"This book, obviously based on a Ph.D. thesis, presents a solid and very scholarly treatment of the ideas, the policies, and the attitudes of the German Social Democratic party from the outbreak of the First World War to the acceptance of the Versailles treaty. It does not deal with major events after 1919, and the year 1921 in the title is, therefore, somewhat misleading, justified only by the fact that a short chapter at the end of the book discusses briefly the new party program of Gorlitz (1921)." E. C. Kollman

+ — Am Hist R 55:899 Jl '50 750w

"Whether the heirs of the Social Democrats of 1919 will prove to be stronger or more imag-

BERLAU, A. J.—Continued
inative than their forerunners is not merely a German domestic problem. Berlau's scholarly and discriminating book deserves the attention of all those concerned with the outcome." W. H. Kraus

+ Am Pol Sci R 44:507 Je '50 400w
Current Hist 18:229 Ap '50 450w
Foreign Affairs 29:154 O '50 110w

"The story is very complicated, but through the complications Mr. Berlau, supported by reading that seems as nearly complete as is possible to a single student, steers a clear course. His book is very detailed and on occasions unnecessarily wordy, but he has written a valuable contribution to history which, however hard to read, has the merit of saying, if not the last word, then the last but one." R. T. C.

+ Manchester Guardian p4 Mr 28 '50 290w
Times [London] Lit Sup p264 Ap 28 '50 2050w
U S Quarterly Bkl 6:62 Mr '50 220w

BERMAN, HAROLD JOSEPH. Justice in Russia; an interpretation of Soviet law. 322p $4.75 Harvard univ. press

349 Law—Russia 50-10134

"This third Russian Research Center Study by a young Harvard Professor of law does not deal with specific laws or statutes. . . Historically and ideologically he analyses law as a way of life, 'l'esprit des lois'. . . He shows Soviet law to be a composite of Western (Roman) law, Russian tradition, classical Marxian theory, and socialist response to problems confronting the Soviet regime." Library J

"For one who knows Mr. Berman's earlier contributions to the study of Soviet law, the book under review is an enigma. Early in 1949, he published in the Harvard Law Review, an article entitled The Challenge of Soviet Law in which he boldly asserted that the Americans had much to learn from Soviet law, and in which he committed a number of unpardonable mistakes about the sources of Soviet law, its relationship to pre-revolutionary Russian law, and the latter's relationship to the legal systems of the West. In this book, the basic proposition of the article and the majority of factual errors have disappeared. It seems that, meanwhile, Mr. Berman has gone to school and has learned a lot of things which he did not suspect. But, having done this, he no longer has any real thesis to present and therefore has produced a book that is flat and void of content." N. S. Timasheff

— Commonweal 53:101 N 3 '50 850w

"Far beyond the purely legal sphere, the book provides real insight into the working of the Russian mind, more necessary than ever in this time of conflict. Avoiding legal technicalities, this work should be illuminating reading for every educated reader." H. H. Bernt

+ Library J 75:1652 O 1 '50 130w

"Here is a book which exhibits a 'feel' for its subject. Its author . . . is seeking only to find out what has happened to law in the state which started out to eliminate it. Because of this very curiosity, unencumbered by a desire to footnote a passionate belief, the book is delightfully refreshing." J. N. Hazard

+ Sat R of Lit 33:18 N 11 '50 700w

BERNARD, MRS JESSIE SHIRLEY. American community behavior; an analysis of problems confronting American communities today. 688p $4.50 Dryden

301.153 Community life 49-50313

"This text is designed for undergraduate sociology courses on contemporary social problems. . . In six parts and thirty chapters, this text leads the student through a consideration of the nature of community, competitive behavior within it, conflict behavior, disorganization and dissociation, personality and community, and 'the world community,' thus integrating larger social problems with those of familiar experience." (Am J Soc) Index.

Reviewed by Buford Junker
Am J Soc 56:109 Jl '50 240w

"At all times the treatment is fair and restrained, free from dogmatism and moralizing. Any reader will find this a well-written, stimulating book, and one of the best possible references for competition and conflict which must be handled more effectively if the American creed is to be increasingly realized." I. T. Sanders

+ Am Soc R 15:308 Ap '50 600w

Reviewed by Frances Witherspoon
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 S 3 '50 700w

Reviewed by F. D. Freeman
+ Social Forces 29:99 O '50 600w

BERNARD, WILLIAM SPENCER, and others, eds. American immigration policy; a reappraisal; pub. under the sponsorship of the National committee on immigration policy. 341p $4 Harper

325.73 U.S.—Emigration and immigration 50-120

"The book presents a broad survey of the background of our present immigration regulations, and against this examines the results of the quota system, the economic effects of immigration, the record of our immigrants in social adjustment, and the general effect of immigration on population trends." (Publisher's note) Bibliography. Index.

"The present volume is probably the most complete appraisal of American immigration policy yet published. . . There probably could have been more emphasis on the early racism in our naturalization law and a clearer recognition of the real difficulties of adjustment when immigrants with different linguistic backgrounds came to the United States. . . Finally, the book, while a monumental work of sustained argument marshaled with detailed evidence, is not one which will be read by the general public but only by scholars and experts. It is doubtful whether an approach of this kind will have much direct influence upon Congress without a good deal of public support, and public support will hardly be won by a volume which is not of general appeal." R. A. Schermerhorn

+ — Am J Soc 56:110 Jl '50 1200w

Reviewed by E. P. Hutchinson
Am Soc R 15:314 Ap '50 900w

"Interesting and well-documented volume." F. J. Brown

+ Ann Am Acad 272:217 N '50 330w
Booklist 46:227 Mr 15 '50

"This authoritative study sponsored by the National Committee on Immigration Policy is highly factual and well documented."

+ Commonweal 51:542 F 24 '50 70w
Current Hist 18:355 Je '50 20w
Foreign Affairs 29:150 O '50 20w

"There is interesting information on the stimulating effect immigrants have on our industry, culture, crime, and employment. . . Informative, useful reference book. . . Recommended." Anne Whitmore

+ Library J 74:1902 D 15 '49 150w

Reviewed by Oscar Handlin
N Y Times p26 F 19 '50 430w

"It is obvious that this survey presents one side only of what is truly a puzzle of gigantic proportions, but it does so with an admirable minimum of emotion and a great many persuasive arguments. It might seem more to the point to make the rest of the world fit to live in, rather than to make the United States into a perpetual haven, but we admittedly seem to do better at sheltering than crusading." R. F. H.

+ — Springf'd Republican p8C F 5 '50 420w

BERNSTEIN, ALEC (ALEXANDER BARON, pseud). Wine of Etna [Eng title: There's no home]. 255p $2.75 Washburn

50-7398

A story of an interlude in the fighting in Italy, which follows the adventures of a small group of British soldiers during a rest period in a Sicilian village in 1943.

Booklist 46:286 My 15 '50

Reviewed by Richard Sullivan
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 My 14 '50 400w

Reviewed by M. W. Stoer
Christian Science Monitor p8 Jl 8 '50 900w

Kirkus 18:144 Mr 1 '50 150w

"Mr. Baron tells the oft-told tale with dazzling lucidity, and he contributes a tour de force of realism in his ghastly description of the effects of an explosion from a delayed-action bomb. Even if one feels one cannot read another book about the war it is worth while to make an exception for this one." Elizabeth Jenkins
+ Manchester Guardian p4 F 3 '50 90w

Reviewed by Jean Garrigue
New Repub 122:20 My 29 '50 200w

Reviewed by J. D. Scott
+ New Statesman & Nation 39:170 F 11 '50 370w

"On the whole, 'The Wine of Etna' is an honest and satisfying novel; furthermore, its two main characters win the reader's sympathy. A lesser writer might have handled the personal theme more romantically, a greater one might have made the whole thing seem more important; but perhaps Mr. Baron makes it just about as romantic and important as, in the long run and to its participants, it was." James Hilton
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 My 14 '50 850w

"This is a novel limited in scope, with a clean surface and a craftsmanlike prose style, wholly lacking in that sentimental didacticism which characterizes so many recent treatments of similar themes. It is, in short, an ably conceived and well executed work, which is worth half a dozen torrid 'war novels.'" David Daiches
+ N Y Times p20 My 7 '50 410w

"Mr. Baron writes very well, with a matter-of-fact kind of sympathy, but he has a trick of interrupting himself to describe incidents of such senseless violence that it seems aimless for him to mention them at all."
+ — New Yorker 26:106 My 27 '50 160w

"As in 'From the City, From the Plough,' Mr. Baron is more interested in creating the overall picture than he is in particularizing about his subject. There is no plot to speak of: two elements in life touch for a brief moment, rub, make contact, and are off again. All is said in an undertone yet, where in his combat novel it was precisely this undertone which heightened the impact, here in his novel of repose the undertone robs the story of some of its effect. . . 'The Wine of Etna' is a quiet novel which achieves a delicate balance in its own way." A. C. Fields
+ Sat R of Lit 33:13 Je 24 '50 600w

"There is nothing much to the plot; but a beautifully shaped prose and exceptionally skilful characterisation make the novel one of unusual worth. For the characters are all heroes, prototypes not with everything that makes a human being flattened into mediocrity, but prototypes heightened, stressed so that each is somehow larger than life and yet a mirror of it. For its treatment of a classic situation of war, There's No Home should remain the classic work. I recommend it most strongly." Marghanita Laski
+ Spec 184:192 F 10 '50 310w

"Author Baron's fast-focusing snapshot technique discovers little depth or complication in his tommies and Italians, but he manages admirably to capture the highlights of their brief encounter."
Time 55:100 My 8 '50 380w

BERNSTEIN, IRVING. New deal collective bargaining policy. 178p $3; pa $2 Univ. of Calif.
331.116 Collective bargaining 50-8381

"A study of labor conditions in 1933-35, and the Roosevelt administration's law to further the cause of the union movement, including the Railway Labor and Wagner Acts, the National Labor Relations Bill, etc." Current Hist

"It is not recommended for beginning students, since a full appreciation depends upon administrative and judicial interpretations subsequent to the period covered by the study. Teachers of the conventional government and business course will find it most useful." A. R. Richards
Am Pol Sci R 44:1042 D '50 300w

"If there is anything new in this book that contributes anything of importance, it has escaped this reviewer. Furthermore, there is much too much emphasis given the New Deal." T. R. Fisher
— Ann Am Acad 272:240 N '50 450w

Current Hist 19:105 Ag '50 30w

"The study makes use of many unpublished documents in both public and private hands, as well as a wide range of Congressional hearings and committee reports. A supplementary bibliography of nonofficial sources attests further the author's thoroughness in his approach to the development of the new era in American labor history. The book will be especially useful to social scientists in the labor field, and to all those interested in the American legislative process."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:340 S '50 220w

BERRY, ERICK, pseud. See Best, A. C.

BERRYMAN, JOHN. Stephen Crane. (American men of letters ser) 347p $3.75 Sloane
B or 92 Crane, Stephen 50-10964

A biographical and critical study of the author of the Red Badge of Courage. Bibliographical note. Index.

"A compelling and high calibered piece of literary criticism, marred as it is by a lack of humor, an affected style, and the lack of perspective common to the Partisan Review writers. A real addition to modern critical writing."
+ — Kirkus 18:496 Ag 15 '50 280w

"Recommended for serious readers, as a fresh and emphatic judgment on a neglected subject." H. W. Hart
+ Library J 75:1396 S 1 '50 120w

"John Berryman is the first to attempt serious documentation and criticism, and interpretation of the interminglings of the life and the writings, with their lucid brilliance and their various meanings. And this he does with intuitive sympathy and a highly developed psychoanalytical technique—an ambitious undertaking, for almost everything concerning Crane is fantastically involved." C. G. Stillman
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 D 17 '50 1150w

"John Berryman has put [the book] together with a very true sense of relevance, has made the whole body of Crane's work current, available and in proper place." R. G. Davis
+ N Y Times p4 D 10 '50 1000w

Time 56:58 D 25 '50 850w

BERTO, GIUSEPPE. Works of God, and other stories; tr. from the Italian by Angus Davidson. 224p $1.50 New directions
50-6841

Four stories showing the effect of the war on the lives of peasants, partisans, and American soldiers in Italy. Contents: The works of God; The war passed over us; The need to die; Lull at Cassino.

"This small volume of short stories by Giuseppe Berto, author of The Sky Is Red, is probably one of the finest collections to have come out of Italy recently." Serge Hughes
+ Commonweal 52:251 Je 16 '50 330w

"Put Berto's peasants beside Silone's and they seem mere types, 'flat' characters who say the same thing every time they appear. . . The best of the collection is the last story in the book, a story about American soldiers

BERTO, GIUSEPPE—Continued
which I suspect of having gained a queer accidental advantage from having been translated from the Italian, but which is the only story in the book which I found moving as well as convincing." J. D. Scott

— + New Statesman & Nation 39:46 Ja 14 '50 200w

"Berto's book should be read, primarily, for two stories in it: 'The Works of God,' a short novel, and 'The War Passed Over Us.' They are both excellent." Alfred Hayes

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Je 18 '50 650w

"It is a sensitive little book, translated into plain nourishing words by Angus Davidson; and it is a good, healing remedy for people who have not the quiet and ease that rural images yield to the head, the nerves and the hands." Edward Dahlberg

+ N Y Times p5 Ap 16 '50 500w

"The people described seem real, but their plight is more important than they are and the way in which they accept suffering is more memorable than they are."

New Yorker 26:119 Ap 8 '50 90w

"Berto's human sympathy is as intense as his artistic genius. But there is also a serious failing in these stories: Signor Berto absolves the individual of social responsibility. . . To one reader, at least, such an attitude does not seem very far from the fatalistic apathy which cleared the way for Fascism, and was responsible for so great a disaster for democracy as the fall of France. . . Aside from the final story, 'Lull at Cassino,' in which Signor Berto's craftsmanship occasionally fails him as he attempts to produce the thoughts and speech of Americans, there is every indication of greatness." A. T.

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p20 Jl 16 '50 500w

Reviewed by John Cournos

Sat R of Lit 33:37 Ag 19 '50 290w

BERTOCCI, PETER ANTHONY. Human venture in sex, love, and marriage. 143p $2.50 Assn. press

392 Love. Marriage. Sexual ethics 49-11442

"The question is sometimes asked, 'Are you mature enough to stay married?' This little book, by one of the professors of philosophy in Boston University, raises the broader question, 'Have the two contracting partners enough character to make marriage a life-long venture in the growth of personalities?' The book is essentially concerned in 'values' in sex, love, and marriage. In place of recording what the current facts are, it stresses the possibilities that marriage offers when its potentialities are fully realized. Unlike the recent Kinsey study which restricts itself almost entirely to the biological behavior of the human male in the realm of sexual behavior, this author is rather concerned with the qualitative values of sex and love than with its quantitative aspects measured statistically. In short, the study here under review is a study in sexual ethics." Crozer Q

"This is one of the saner books on sex and marriage. It brings to bear the contributions of religion, morality and science in describing the nature of man and of society. . . This means that the book is soundly based, not that it is vague or theoretical. On the contrary, it is concrete and explicit. It furnishes valuable resources for counselors of youth and of older persons who are having marriage troubles." W. E. G.

+ Christian Century 67:562 My 3 '50 150w

"The book is written in an easy style and is an excellent work to place in the hands of young people. The author is realistically aware of the many problems that sex poses in the modern world. He avoids no issues. His emphasis on the qualitative aspects of the problems concerned is a healthy complement to studies like Kinsey's which deal almost exclusively with its quantitative aspects." F. D. Watson

+ Crozer Q 27:92 Ja '50 310w

Reviewed by Walter Watson

Ethics 61:87 O '50 110w

"A frank, well-written interpretation." D. J. Adams

+ J Home Econ 42:215 Mr '50 80w

"Motivated not by morality per se, but by a practical understanding of social and personal factors, this is a sympathetic and persuasive presentation of a cardinal cause of conflict."

+ Kirkus 17:568 O 1 '49 110w

BEST, MRS ALLENA (CHAMPLIN). Road runs both ways, by Erick Berry [pseud]. 196p $2.50 Macmillan

50-10360

Adventure story of life in early New York state for ages ten to fourteen. The plot is woven around the rivalry of the stagecoach lines running from Fishkill to Albany.

+ Horn Bk 26:382 S '50 80w

+ Kirkus 18:388 Jl 15 '50 160w

"Its historic and social backgrounds are excellent. But all the research, and the knowledge she has gained from living in the northern part of the state, are subordinate to a good plot and an interesting hero." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 N 26 '50 200w

Reviewed by N. B. Baker

N Y Times p26 D 10 '50 120w

BEST army short stories, 1950. 243p $2.50 Rinehart

Short stories—Collections 50-10361

Twelve stories selected as the best from over 500 submitted to the United States army short story contest. Contents: The five alls, by F. M. Davis; The robe and the sword, by M. B. Voorhees; Kismet and the nomad woman, by G. B. Enders; A journey for Wilbur, by J. F. Schnabel; The black brassard, by Jerome Sheppard; The iron maiden, by Bill Fitzgerald; For military merit, by E. P. Lukert; Loyalty check, by Laurence Critchell; Little Mohammed and Egypt's king, by G. I. Drezmal; Destiny strikes back, by C. M. Whitley; Switchboard, by T. H. Martin; The life and death of a village, by D. M. O'Hanlon.

"Individual stories vary widely in quality, with emphasis on originality rather than literary merit. Most have military themes. Seems 'special audience' and therefore not needed in most collections." R. E. Kingery

Library J 75:1660 O 1 '50 80w

"Too often these stories seem not to be the product of a genuine sensibility, but of a mistaken concept of what that sensibility ought to be. This is one of the marks of the amateur writer." R. B. West

Sat R of Lit 33:17 N 25 '50 650w

BEST science fiction stories, 1950; ed. by E. F. Bleiler and T. E. Dikty; with a guest introd. by Vincent Starrett. 347p $2.95 Fell

Short stories—Collections (49-10461)

Contents: Private eye, by Henry Kuttner; Doomsday deferred, by W. F. Jenkins; The hurkle is a happy beast, by Theodore Sturgeon; Eternity lost, by Clifford Simak; Easter eggs, by R. S. Carr; Opening doors, by W. H. Shiras; Five years in the marmalade, by R. W. Krepps; Dwellers in silence, by Ray Bradbury; Mouse, by Frederic Brown; Refuge for tonight, by R. M. Williams; The life-work of Professor Muntz, by Murray Leinster; Flaw, by J. D. MacDonald; The man, by Ray Bradbury. Brief biographical notes about the authors.

Booklist 47:34; 39 S 15 '50

"The collection is one of excellent stories, all of which are highly entertaining and the majority of which have a distinctly literary value." August Derleth

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 O 8 '50 400w

Reviewed by E. F. Walbridge

Library J 75:1506 S 15 '50 110w

Reviewed by Villiers Gerson
N Y Times p33 S 24 '50 140w

Reviewed by Don Fabun
San Francisco Chronicle p17 O 1 '50 270w

Reviewed by Fletcher Pratt
Sat R of Lit 33:17 D 30 '50 60w

BESTON, HENRY, ed. White pine and blue water; a State of Maine reader. (City and country readers ser) 410p $4.50 Farrar, Straus

917.41 Maine. American literature—Collections 50-8431

Selections representing both fact and fiction about Maine, from seventeenth century writings to the present day. Biographical notes. Index.

Booklist 46:331 Jl 1 '50

Bookmark 9:239 Jl '50 30w

"I wish we might have had one of Edmund Ware Smith's 'One-Eyed Poacher' stories and something on the desert of Maine, but these are small complaints against a book that manfully demonstrates the diversity of a mountain and coastal state." Edmund Fuller

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Je 25 '50 450w

+ Christian Science Monitor p17 Jl 1 '50 180w

Cleveland Open Shelf p17 O '50

+ Kirkus 18:290 My 15 '50 180w

"A nice variety for confirmed Maine lovers who may wish leisurely reading in small doses, as the spirit moves." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 75:1182 Jl '50 110w

Reviewed by E. C. Dunn
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Ag 6 '50 650w

"In 'White Pine and Blue Water,' the good Henry Beston, squire of Nobleboro, seems to demonstrate that Maine's average is good. He has assembled a decent anthology of writings about Maine, and I should be more than silly if I failed to recommend it highly to one and all. Since Mr. Beston is the compiler and not the author, we can only credit him with good taste, fine sense of selection, and a beautiful job of hunting outshining examples." John Gould

+ N Y Times p3 Je 25 '50 1900w

"A rich treasure of Maine lore, Maine atmosphere, Maine interpreted in general by those who know what they're talking about. Only lack, where I'm concerned, is something from Kenneth Roberts on the subject of good Maine food." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Je 27 '50 750w

Wis Lib Bul 46:21 S '50

BESTOR, ARTHUR EUGENE. Backwoods utopias. (Am. hist. assn. Albert J. Beveridge memorial fund. Publication) 288p $3.50 Univ. of Pa. press

335.973 Utopias. Communism—U.S. 50-6447

A study of "the sectarian and Owenite phases of communitarian socialism in America, 1663-1829." (Subtitle) Bibliographical essay. Index.

"Professor Bestor has for some years been making a study of the communitarian movements in the United States. This is one of several books which will doubtless be the result of the research, which has been detailed and painstaking. . . This publication will, therefore, be of great value to those interested in the source material on the social thought of the period." A. F. Tyler

+ Am Hist R 55:923 Jl '50 1050w

Reviewed by S. D. Clark
Am J Soc 56:282 N '50 600w

"Scholarly contribution, well organized and written in an easy style." W. E. Hodges

+ Am Pol Sci R 44:1006 D '50 900w

Reviewed by John Sirjamaki
Am Soc R 15:580 Ag '50 200w

"This study is essentially, in the author's words, 'a study of history.' As such, it is a veritable mine of information concerning the development of religious communities in the New World to 1830. Its historical and analytical character is maintained throughout." E. D. Ellis

+ Ann Am Acad 270:163 Jl '50 500w

"The book is more than a history of fanatical projects that failed. It is an analysis of a strain of social thought which outlasted the ephemeral communities that were its first embodiment and which powerfully affects the social thinking of our own day." W. E. G.

+ Christian Century 67:1202 O 11 '50 650w

"It is a pity that Professor Bestor hit on the horrid adjective 'communitarian,' for he has written an unusually good book. We must blame the Russians for having altered the meaning of the word 'communism,' which, a century or so ago, was a less extreme word than 'socialism.' . . It is rather disappointing that Mr. Bestor should have devoted so much of his space to the most spectacular and familiar failure, that of the Owenite settlements. For, as he shows, 'communitarianism' survived Owen in the sectarian communities—the Shakers, the Rappites, and the Separatists of Zoar—and had still almost two generations to run."

+ — Manchester Guardian p4 Ag 15 '50 420w

"A scholarly but uninspired book." David Spitz

New Repub 123:20 Jl 31 '50 180w

"As a thoroughly documented study it will be of value primarily to specialists, but anyone who has heard of Robert Owen and New Harmony and has had his curiosity stirred will find many interesting details here." J. W. H.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 My 28 '50 90w

"On every count Mr. Bestor's study is a model of historical scholarship. Based upon exhaustive and intelligent research, it is presented clearly, objectively, and with a minimum of words. Specialists will praise the critical approach, the thorough documentation, the bibliographical essay, and the authoritative checklist of all communitarian enterprises down to 1860. The general reader will applaud the careful definition of terms, the frequent generalizations, and the emphasis upon the ideas that underlay a faith in community life." R. W. Leopold

+ Sat R of Lit 33:34 My 6 '50 800w

Reviewed by Irving Dilliard
Survey 86:510 N '50 400w

Times [London] Lit Sup p712 N 10 '50 1850w

"The most satisfying quality of this study is its conciseness and objectivity. . . While picturesque detail is not lacking, this is not an anecdotal but a carefully structured study, which as far as it has gone appears to be definitive. It is accompanied, moreover, by an admirable bibliographical essay, and an exhaustive checklist of communitarian experiments."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:187 Je '50 240w

BETHERS, RAY. Perhaps I'll be a farmer; pictures and story. 51p $1.75 Aladdin

630 Agriculture—Juvenile literature 50-7529

An introduction to farming as a career. "Beginning with important facts about soil, soil erosion, crop rotation, it goes on to a world food map, farm machinery, 'what does a silo do,' beef and dairy cattle, and other vital aspects of farming. It introduces the county agent, the 4H Club, 'Future Farmers of America,' and the land-grant agricultural colleges." (N Y Herald Tribune Bk R) For grades 6-8.

"Informative and very attractive illustrations; unfortunately the general format suggests use by a much younger audience."

Booklist 46:278 My 1 '50

Reviewed by A. L. Shea
Chicago Sunday Tribune p9 My 28 '50 60w

Kirkus 18:239 Ap 15 '50 110w

BETHERS, RAY—Continued
"A splendid little volume on all phases of farm life." E. T. Dobbins

+ Library J 75:986 Je 1 '50 70w

"A most useful introduction, factual and dignified. . . The book is labeled as for those from ten to fourteen, but we think its chief usefulness will be on the reference shelf in junior high schools." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p21 Ap 16 '50 200w

Reviewed by Marjorie Burger
N Y Times p18 My 21 '50 140w

Wis Lib Bul 46:26 My '50

BETT, HENRY. Reality of the religious life; a study of miracle, providence and prayer. 159p $2.25 Macmillan

231.73 Miracles. Providence and government of God. Prayer 49-6867

"[A study of] the problem of the relation between science and religion. . . [The author's] concern is to show that science, while making tremendous contributions to our knowledge through the rigorous application of its methods of quantitative measurement and its working assumption that all events embody mechanisms of natural activity, cannot give us an explanation of the ultimate source or end of the world." Crozer Q

"Methodist and English, and a thoroughgoing reasoner, Dr. Bett has given the public a little book on the actuality of true religion that ought to be pondered by scholar, preacher, layman and un-believer. . . His reasoning about the imponderables is no less than fascinating. Seldom does one run across a piece of writing so closely argued." T. F. Opie

+ Churchman 164:17 F 1 '50 190w

"Mr. Bett has addressed himself to the real problem, which is a problem in the philosophy of science: the nature, scope, and adequacy of scientific method. With this problem as it is discussed in recent literature he is familiar, but the issues are not always clearly defined." E. E. Aubrey
Crozer Q 27:64 Ja '50 1600w

BETTELHEIM, BRUNO. Love is not enough; the treatment of emotionally disturbed children. 386p il $4.50 Free press

136.7 Children—Management. Child study 50-8083

"The story of the University of Chicago's unique experiment in making life livable for children who have turned away from a world that brought them too much misery. The Orthogenic School is the university's laboratory in which new methods have been devised for helping delinquent, schizophrenic, neurotic, and just plain unhappy children to respond to treatment when all other methods have failed." School & Society

Reviewed by R. M. Atwater
Am J Pub Health 40:1327 O '50 140w

Reviewed by Peter Knowlton
Ann Am Acad 272:256 N '50 500w

"Amply illustrated, this is a book no intelligent parent should miss."

+ Chicago Sun p5 Je 6 '50 200w

"Dr. Bettelheim presents his psychoanalytic views in a thorough persuasive way and makes convincing those principles hard for the layman to accept." D. W. Fiske

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Jl 16 '50 500w

Reviewed by J. M. Scherr
Library J 75:1294 Ag '50 100w

Reviewed by David Riesman
Nation 170:628 Je 24 '50 1400w

Reviewed by Gertrude Samuels
N Y Times p16 S 17 '50 450w

"'Love Is Not Enough' is an important, challenging book not only for people in child guidance, but for all who are concerned about the mental health and welfare of children." I. B.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p19 Jl 16 '50 500w

School & Society 72:345 N 25 '50 300w

Reviewed by W. W. Brickman
School & Society 72:345 N 25 '50 300w

"The insights set forth here are fresh, alive, and stimulating. Even the more familiar ones take on a new vitality in being reaffirmed with colorful case material." Nina Ridenour

+ Survey 86:523 N '50 550w

BETTELHEIM, BRUNO, and JANOWITZ, MORRIS. Dynamics of prejudice; a psychological and sociological study of veterans. 227p $3.50 Harper

301.15 Antipathies and prejudices. Race problems. Minorities 50-5347

A study of prejudice based on the work of two University of Chicago professors. The persons interviewed were all G.I. veterans in the Chicago area. "Its purpose is to examine the relationship between the anxieties of these men and their attitudes toward members of minority groups. It is further concerned with determining how environmental factors are associated with hostility toward minority groups." (Publisher's note) Index.

Reviewed by J. H. Bunzel
Am Soc R 15:571 Ag '50 800w

Ann Am Acad 270:175 Jl '50 230w

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun p7 F 19 '50 160w

Reviewed by J. M. Yard
Christian Century 67:532 Ap 26 '50 40w

Current Hist 18:229 Ap '50 30w

Kirkus 17:638 N 15 '49 130w

"Had the project set its sights wider, recognized that Negroes and Jews are not the only objects of intolerance in our society, it might have grappled more realistically with the problem of the nature of the peculiar discriminations that apply to those groups. Such an approach would have provided a far more satisfactory basis for a general theory of prejudice." Oscar Handlin

+ N Y Times p29 F 12 '50 450w

San Francisco Chronicle p22 Mr 26 '50 300w

"Both sociologists and social psychologists will find the methodology of Bettelheim and Janowitz fruitful and suggestive for further research. The general reader will also catch important insights from both volumes that help him to understand the way prejudices function in contemporary life." R. A. Schermerhorn

+ Social Forces 29:215 D '50 350w

Reviewed by S. B. Shear
Springf'd Republican p5C S 24 '50 240w

"An excellent study." Julius Schreiber

+ Survey 86:262 My '50 300w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:211 Je '50 280w

BETTINA. See Ehrlich, B. B.

BEVINGTON, HELEN SMITH (MRS MERLE MOWBRAY BEVINGTON). Nineteen million elephants, and other poems. 115p $2.50 Houghton

811 50-8467

"A collection of verse, most of it lighthearted but at the same time completely free of the waggishness that its rather unfortunate title suggests." (New Yorker) The author teaches at Duke University.

Booklist 46:350 Jl 15 '50

"Definitely inferior to Helen Bevington's promising first volume of light verse, Dr. Johnson's Waterfall [Book Review Digest 1946]. The short line, the light touch, the erudite wit and satire on literary subjects are all here again. But while some of these light verses have point, most of them are attenuated and a little flat, and the original idea of spoofing men of letters in a cultivated, drawing room manner becomes a bit tiresome."
Kirkus 18:253 Ap 15 '50 110w

"This book is witty, keenly intelligent, written with sure skill." George McDonald

+ Library J 75:1668 O 1 '50 80w

"[These poems] are urban and sophisticated. Mrs Bevington can write, happily modern, about flying around in airplanes, and with equal felicity turns verses based on literature, preferably that of the eighteenth century. . . In a collection of this kind Miss Bevington's art seems pleasanter, with more variety, grace, and wit, than when it pops up at you ubiquitously from the New Yorker or the Accent on Living department of the Atlantic." Rolfe Humphries

+ — Nation 171:152 Ag 12 '50 240w

"What Helen Bevington writes in the main, is poetry and I trust I am not ruthlessly cutting down her royalties when I admit it. She is also a critic, a scholar and a mild wit. Her title is jocular but her intent is serious, just as the intent of every light verse writer worth his salt, from Horace to Ogden Nash and including Mr. Eliot, is serious. . . Mrs. Bevington has technical limitations. One is a sliding off at the end of her poems, a lack of the 'inevitable line' which should conclude them." Phyllis McGinley

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Jl 9 '50 800w

Reviewed by Irwin Edman

N Y Times p3 Jl 2 '50 310w

New Yorker 26:72 Jl 1 '50 80w

"Mrs. Bevington's first love and her first talent is, I think, the exercise of wit, but she also has the capacity to lay aside that dexterity and speak simply and emotionally in what is not light verse, but poetry." S. H. Hay

+ Sat R of Lit 33:18 Jl 22 '50 450w

Time 56:86 S 4 '50 260w

"The closest this poet comes to a serious poem, committed to genuine emotional values, is in The Visit, an undeveloped attempt to present the confused pain of the child mind at a time of domestic crisis. Mrs. Bevington apparently achieves her real success as a writer of light verse only at much sacrifice of intellectual and emotional depth. The poems, accordingly, are not pure brightness. Sensing darker shadows on the periphery even when the core of the poem is gayest, the reader tempers his delight."

+ — U S Quarterly Bkl 6:286 S '50 320w

Wis Lib Bul 46:17 Jl '50

BEYER, GLENN H. Farm housing in the Northeast; with the assistance of the Northeastern farm housing technical committee. 458p $4.50 Cornell univ. press

631.21 Housing 49-47383

"A survey of facilities, activities, possessions, and preferences of families on owner-operated farms" (Subtitle) in the twelve northeastern states: Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware, and West Virginia. The report consists of data on economic conditions; characteristics of farm houses; family activities; inventories of goods stored in houses; etc. Glossary. Index.

Reviewed by Josephine Kremer

J Home Econ 42:458 Je '50 300w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:98 Mr '50 240w

BEYER, WILLIAM GRAY. Minions of the moon; a novel of the future. 190p $2.50 Gnome press

50-10453

"After a 6,000-year sleep, the hero of this book finds himself in a world which has reverted to savagery. With the aid of a disembodied intelligence from the moon he wins a fair-haired beauty, the leadership of a Viking band, and a life span of several thousand years. He also finds time to destroy two Russian super-brains, who attempt to conquer the earth." N Y Times

---

Booklist 47:98 N 1 '50

"Adroit plotting and spirited (if superficial) writing make for a lively story."

+ — Chicago Sun p6 S 5 '50 90w

"Even for this medium, this is pretty much of a free for all—historical, medical, superscientific, and leaves some rather confused configurations."

Kirkus 18:282 My 15 '50 90w

"This book has a naïve approach, a vague technique—and a certain awkward charm." Villiers Gerson

— + N Y Times p23 Ag 13 '50 170w

Reviewed by Don Fabun

San Francisco Chronicle p20 Ag 13 '50 140w

Reviewed by Fletcher Pratt

Sat R of Lit 33:16 D 30 '50 50w

BEYLE, MARIE HENRI (DE STENDHAL, pseud). Lucien Leuwen; bk 1, The Green huntsman; tr. by Louise Varèse. 388p $3.50 New directions

The first part of Lucien Leuwen which is titled The Green Huntsman, is to be followed by a second book to be called The Telegraph. The present book follows the course of young Leuwen's life while he is situated in a garrison town in northern France. It is concerned largely with his boredom with military life, and his amour with the beautiful young widow Madame de Chasteller.

Reviewed by Paul Engle

Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Je 18 '50 500w

"Stendhal never completed the work, and the novel shows the usual signs of lack of revision. Irony is used with an uneven hand, character traits are glued on from the outside, dialogue oscillates between the natural and the stereotyped. Yet even in a minor work such as this, the author, in analyzing the utter helplessness of sincerity to understand love fully, has left marks of the master." Serge Hughes

+ — Commonweal 52:466 Ag 18 '50 450w

"An elegant and witty period piece. . . While lacking the pace and scope of the classic, Le Rouge Et Le Noir, the brilliantly cynical picture of the politics and mores of the various social classes in the time of Louis Phillipe are no whit less penetrating. The translation by Louise Varese is excellent, the illustrations aid in perfecting the social picture, and the biographical introduction on Stendhal will be appreciated by the student."

+ Kirkus 18:147 Mr 1 '50 250w

" 'The Green Huntsman' was written in the early 1830s . . . and remained unpublished in its entirety until nearly a century later. . . Only the first volume of the translation is now given to the public—a fluent and seemingly flawless work, with a substantial introduction and essential notes. Its readers will therefore have to wait a year in order to find out what happens to Lucien in Paris, to deepen an acquaintance with his fascinating father, and to learn the secrets of modern high finance and politics. Even so, it is only fair to disclose, the novel remains unfinished." Marvin Lowenthal

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Je 11 '50 1550w

"Stendhal's unfinished third novel, bristling with topical allusions, was brought out posthumously under a title which is unpronounceable even in French: 'Lucien Leuwen.' Under these circumstances we can hardly be surprised that it has not hitherto been translated into English. However, since it offers us more—and some of the best—from a master novelist who wrote too little fiction, we must now be doubly grateful to the translator and the publisher." Harry Levin

+ N Y Times p5 My 28 '50 700w

Reviewed by A. J. Liebling

New Yorker 26:64 Jl 22 '50 2100w

"Beyond doubt there is much entertainment to be found in 'The Green Huntsman'; but to describe as a masterpiece the unfinished, unrevised novel of which this volume forms a part is not, to my mind, judicious. Miss Varèse, in addition to making a readable translation, has provided readers of 'The Green Huntsman' with a useful introduction and some helpful historical notes, corrected a few of the inconsistencies in Stendhal's unrevised text, and furnished an appendix with supplementary pages from the author's confused manuscript." B. R. Redman

BEYLE, M. H.—Continued
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:12 Je 24 '50 1150w
Time 55:100 Je 26 '50 700w

BEYLE, MARIE HENRI (DE STENDHAL, pseud). Memoirs of egotism (Souvenirs d'égotisme) by Stendhal; ed. with an introd. and notes by Matthew Josephson; tr. by Hannah and Matthew Josephson. 253p $3 Lear

B or 92 Authors—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc.

"This is a translation of the 'Souvenirs d'Egotisme,' which supplements Stendhal's autobiography, 'La Vie d'Henri Brulard,' giving a slice of his life at a later date than that at which 'Brulard' breaks off. It deals mostly with his adventures in Paris from 1821 to 1830, and is a document which throws light on both the author and the period." New Yorker

"The Josephsons' translation is excellent, and the introduction effectively locates the 'Memoirs' in the context of Stendhal's life and literary career. . . The 'Memoirs' are a dialog between the writer and his unborn audience. Nor can the wisdom of his decision be doubted, for he remains one of the most interesting writers of his time, whose slightest literary remains are today painstakingly studied and annotated." Milton Crane
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 F 5 '50 470w

Reviewed by Gerald Sykes
Nation 170:210 Mr 4 '50 1000w

"By and large, the book taken by itself is liable to be a disappointment to any one but a Stendhal fan, a true Beylist. Its liveliest episodes have already been incorporated into Mr. Josephson's biography, Stendhal, which appeared four years ago. But if Mr. Josephson intends it to be the first installment, as I hope, in the ultimate translation of most of Stendhal's voluminous journals, including a reissue of still another autobiographical sketch, 'The Life of Henry Brulard,' he has begun a great service to English letters. The present imperfect fragment will gain considerably from the richness of the whole." Marvin Lowenthal
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Ja 8 '50 750w

"The book (admirably translated by Mr. and Mrs. Josephson) can be read both for the light it sheds on its author and for the sheer Stendhalian pleasure it is. Parisians of his time, irritated and intimidated by a man they regarded as irresponsible, would have been surprised by this record, which shows the most scrupulous analysis and the most responsible judgments." Harvey Breit
+ N Y Times p4 D 18 '49 950w
New Yorker 25:87 Ja 28 '50 200w

"The introduction and translation, the first in English, are adequate enough, but the notes do not provide sufficient information. Nor is there an index, surely required in such a book as this." Robert Halsband
Sat R of Lit 33:25 Ja 7 '50 190w

BIALK, ELISA (MRS L. MARTIN KRAUTTER). Ride 'em, Peggy! il. by Paul Brown. 196p $2.25 Houghton

50-6556

A story of how eleven-year-old Peggy was cured of her horse craze.

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun p3 Ap 15 '50 240w

"There is much fun and information for 9 to 12 year olds in this entertaining family story with its new horse slant, and also a few good tips for harassed parents with a similar problem on their hands. All the characters, including the difficult Peggy, are well drawn and likeable, and the unfolding of the story is fast paced and credible. Paul Brown's pictures are just right." Polly Goodwin
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Ap 9 '50 210w
Cleveland Open Shelf p20 O '50

"The family life is realistic and wholesome, the characters are well drawn and Paul Brown's drawings are vigorous and effective." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 26:198 My '50 90w
Kirkus 18:277 My 15 '50 180w

"Story drags and could be very tedious to anyone not an ardent horse lover. Recommended if another easy-to-read horse story is wanted." M. F. Cox
Library J 75:879 My 15 '50 70w

"It is all good reading, funny and touching by turns, with sound family relations, and a deep breath of high Colorado air into the bargain. Paul Brown's pictures are tops."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p19 My 7 '50 210w

Reviewed by G. C. Castor
N Y Times p18 Je 25 '50 140w
Sat R of Lit 33:36 My 13 '50 90w
+ Wis Lib Bul 46:20 Je '50

BIANCO, PAMELA (MRS ROBERT SCHLICK). Paradise square. 94p il $2 Oxford

50-9113

The day by day adventures of Carol, aged four and a half, and her brother David, who was a year older. The illustrations show the doings of both the children and their toys.

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton
Christian Science Monitor p9 N 13 '50 50w

"Pamela Bianco's stories have a charm all their own and this one is no exception."
+ Horn Bk 26:371 S '50 90w
Kirkus 18:415 Ag 1 '50 120w

Reviewed by E. W. Turpin
Library J 75:1670 O 1 '50 50w

"Miss Bianco strikes a note apart from other writers of realistic stories for this age. Her Carol and David are normal enough, but their talk, their relations to the little-seen grownups, their world a part of childhood, is far from babyish, and their portraits have a round content of both realism and imagination. Of course, the art work is of the greatest distinction." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 S 24 '50 250w
N Y Times p33 N 12 '50 140w

BIBESCO, MARTHE LUCIE (LAHOVARY) (PRINCESSE GEORGES V. BIBESCO). Veiled wanderer: Marcel Proust; letters to the Duc de Guiche and unpublished papers; tr. from the French by R. Gant. (Falcon Press bk) 88p il $2 British bk. centre, inc, 122 E. 55th st, N.Y. 22

B or 92 Proust, Marcel 50-7412

"As a reader opens Princess Marthe's book, he seems to hear the tinkle of old porcelain, the feminine frou-frou of engaging reminiscence . . . over the tea-cups and in the garden. There are some letters in it to the Duc de Guiche, now the Duc de Gramont, there is a chapter on Proust and Dumas, with a long quotation from Dumas, a chapter on Mme. de Gramont (as a child a poetess prodigy) and a note on César Ritz." Times [London] Lit Sup

Reviewed by Fanny Butcher
Chicago Sunday Tribune p9 Je 4 '50 350w

Reviewed by Theodore Kalem
Christian Science Monitor p9 Je 10 '50 550w
Manchester Guardian p4 N 4 '49 180w
New Statesman & Nation 39:228 F 25 '50 240w

"Her conversation is rambling and repetitious, as becomes a great lady, and it tells us nothing new about the great writer. Like most conversationalists, she goes on at length about the apparently fabulous Duc de Guiche (later Duc de Gramont) without ever assembling in one place the essential facts about the distinguished scientist who played polo with Winston Churchill and supped with Marcel Proust. Nor does she take the trouble to verify the date of Proust's death. Occasionally the dear lady's total recall becomes difficult for us to follow." Justin O'Brien

N Y Times p41 Je 11 '50 450w

"A slight but charming collection of letters and recollections." D. W. Brogan

+ Spec 183:892 D 23 '49 480w

Times [London] Lit Sup p122 F 24 '50 120w

BIBLE. WHOLE. Basic Bible; containing the Old and New Testaments in Basic English [Eng title: Bible in Basic English]. 910p $4.50 Dutton

220.52 50-5865

"A new translation of the Bible, made directly from the Hebrew and Greek. The 1000-word vocabulary consists of the 850 words of Basic English, 50 special Bible words, and 100 additional words 'listed as giving most help in the reading of English verse.' Retains much of the rhythm of the King James Version; makes substitutions for key words whose meaning has changed since the seventeenth century." Booklist

Booklist 46:255 Ap 15 '50

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 S 3 '50 230w

"Well printed and in the conventional divisions of chapter and verse the Basic Bible stands on its own merits as an adequate, dignified translation of the world's most read, most translated book." N. K. Burger

+ N Y Times p22 Mr 26 '50 250w

Times [London] Lit Sup p833 D 23 '49 1550w

BIBLE. WHOLE. SELECTIONS. Dartmouth Bible; an abridgment . . . by Roy B. Chamberlin and Herman Feldman. 1,257p $7.50 Houghton

220.52

"Here is the Bible, only slightly abridged, in the majestic King James Version, with just enough introductory material and just enough notes to make it readily understandable. One suspects that these Dartmouth professors asked themselves, on the basis of their experience with college students, 'How can the Bible be made intelligible and attractive to these boys?' If this was indeed the question they set out to answer, let me attest that they have answered it well. The volume they have produced should appeal to a far wider audience than one confined to college students." Christian Century

Booklist 47:87 N 1 '50

"With its excellent maps, its indices, chronologies, reference bibliografies, introductions to the various books, and notes at the end of each book, a serious minded person could make the Dartmouth Bible a textbook leading to excellence as a biblical student. This reviewer is sorry the price of the Dartmouth Bible is necessarily so high. He hopes that in time the publishers can produce a popularly priced edition. Millions would like to read and reread this Bible." John Evans

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 S 24 '50 700w

"This is it! Here is a Bible which may be recommended without reservation to any literate person who wants to read it for pleasure or for 'instruction in righteousness,' and at the same time to learn what it's about." Paul Hutchinson

+ Christian Century 67:1137 S 27 '50 1000w

"The editing of this new Bible was done as a work of love, and sustained by a contagious spirit of enthusiasm. The publishers have joined the editors in producing as handsome a volume as I have seen in recent years. . . It will foster intelligent reading, and that is a service for which we may all be grateful." J. H. Holmes

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p35 N 12 '50 500w

"The labor is immense, the material refractory, the scholarship exacting and the pitfalls multitudinous. Yet it may be said at once, and with no reservations worth mentioning, that Drs. Chamberlin and Feldman have abundantly succeeded. Those who have contended with the recent plethora of books claiming to transmit the Bible better than the Bible does will inevitably approach any new version with conscious skepticism. However, in the case of the present work, this attitude will be swiftly converted into astonished satisfaction and even enthusiasm. If the reading public is not contented with the Dartmouth Bible, it will never be contented. This is far and away the best presentation of the Bible for the average reader yet produced." A. P. Davies

+ N Y Times p35 S 24 '50 800w

Reviewed by Thomas Sugrue

+ Sat R of Lit 33:10 D 23 '50 750w

BICE, CLARE. Across Canada; stories of Canadian children [il. by the author]. 119p $2.50 Macmillan

49-49093

Stories from various parts of Canada, for grades three to five.

Booklist 46:161 Ja 1 '50

Kirkus 17:469 S 1 '49 100w

"Cheerful, interesting stories. . . Recommended for ages 8-10." Sonja Wennerblad

+ Library J 75:407 Mr 1 '50 70w

Wis Lib Bul 46:33 F '50

BICKFORD, HUGH CRAIG. Successful tax practice. 428p $5.65; to schools $4.25 Prentice-Hall

336.2 Pleading and practice. Taxation—U.S. 50-5963

"Lawyers and executives will find that this book simplifies the details of preparing and filing acceptable tax opinions and briefs. The description of the courts and explanation of their requirements expedite the process." (Chicago Sunday Tribune) Index.

Reviewed by Winifred Baum

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p9 Jl 9 '50 30w

"Bickford has not found it necessary to be painful in order to be informative. Unlike a great deal of legal literature, his book is unusually lucid and readable, and should be very helpful to lawyers who are unfamiliar with tax practice. . . . Unfortunately Successful Tax Practice, like many useful books, is weak in spots. To illustrate, Bickford reveals an ingenuous faith in rules of statutory construction. Rarely, if ever, do any of these rules determine the fate of a tax case. . . In discussing the Bureau the book is somewhat disappointing. . . Despite its limitations, Bickford's book should be quite useful. Perhaps it will encourage the law schools to move closer to the practice of law. Even in the area of 'how to do it' the law schools can do better than the best text." Louis Eisenstein

+ — Harvard Law R 64:178 N '50 1300w

BIDDLE, LIVINGSTON. Main Line, a Philadelphia novel. 313p $3 Messner

50-6927

"A novel about a marital triangle. . . Paul Brent returns from the army unable to settle back into the old routine of being a well-born Main Liner; he seems to have outgrown his prewar circle, all except Cassandra, who is unhappily married to his former best friend. When Paul and Cassandra first begin living together openly, their own inhibitions and the interference of family and friends threaten the relationship; but in time Cassandra's husband grants a divorce, scandal dies down with the lovers' marriage, parenthood justifies them in their own eyes, and a good and permanent marriage seems to be beginning." Booklist

BIDDLE, LIVINGSTON—Continued

---

Booklist 46:225; 261 Mr 15 '50; Ap 15 '50

"The wife fleeing with a lover is a century-old literary device that can still be vital but here it falls flat because of the bleakness of the characters."
— Cath World 171:311 Jl '50 160w

"Social structure as intricate as Philadelphia's makes one hopeful of finding an interpreter as skilled as J. P. Marquand or Cleveland Amory. That may seem a lot to ask of a new writer, but Livingston Biddle Jr. set the task for himself. He is a considerably better than average writer, but he has not seen enough or told enough in this book to make the story revealing or important." Maureen Daly
— + Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ap 30 '50 300w

Kirkus 18:76 F 1 '50 190w

"Well constructed, carefully developed, the argument is sustained throughout. Interesting and should be popular." E. P. Nichols
+ Library J 75:559 Ap 1 '50 80w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p31 O 8 '50 320w

"The most striking thing about Mr. Biddle's novel, his first, is that it is truly passionate and yet completely free of bias. He works his story out cleanly, without loading it with prejudice. As a consequence, the reader's interest is held until the final word." Sugden Tilley
+ N Y Times p43 Ap 16 '50 200w

New Yorker 26:130 Ap 15 '50 130w

"Perhaps it is the effort to exonerate Paul and Cassandra from the ignobilities inherent in their own chosen actions which makes them the least sympathetic characters in the book. There is, for example, much evidence in support of their physical attraction for each other, but very little to encourage the expressed hope that a victory had been won for an enduring love. Here Mr. Biddle seems to abandon the common sense necessary to the novelist and by manipulating human nature to fit the shape of his story he weakens the authenticity of an otherwise artistic work." Sara Lorimer
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:13 Je 3 '50 800w

Springf'd Republican p8C Ap 30 '50 70w

"Main Line is well organized, carefully if stiffly written, and sincere in tone. . . Yet [it] is far less than an adequate analysis of its subject, and something less than a good novel. For one thing, Novelist Biddle seems too fuzzy-fond of his world to see it clearly."
— + Time 55:118 Ap 24 '50 500w

Wis Lib Bul 46:28 Je '50

BILAINKIN, GEORGE. Tito. 287p il $3.75 Philosophical lib.

B or 92 Tito, Josip Broz, known as. Yugoslavia—Politics and government 50-3607

"The story of the rise of Josip Broz. The author got most of the little-known details of Tito's early years—as an engineer, a conscript in the old Austrian Army, a prisoner of war in Russia, and a revolutionary leader hand-picked by Moscow to lead the Yugoslav Partisans—from the Marshal himself. Mr. Bilainkin is a London newspaperman and diplomatic correspondent." (New Yorker) No index.

Am Pol Sci R 44:786 S '50 60w

Reviewed by H. N. Howard
Ann Am Acad 271:230 S '50 320w

Booklist 46:333 Jl 1 '50

"The book is heavily padded with long quotations from Yugoslav Communist propaganda handouts. Tito's speeches must fill scores of pages. They didn't get much play in the Western press when they were made. They didn't deserve it then and they still don't." Irving Pflaum
— Chicago Sun p5 Ag 6 '50 300w

"Poorly organized, clumsily written, biased in the extreme, and completely lacking in perspective. Yet it contains a large number of hitherto unknown, or at least unconfirmed, biographical details, and may therefore be of interest both to the general reader and to the more serious student of contemporary history." Ernest Pisko
— + Christian Science Monitor p14 Je 22 '50 490w

Current Hist 19:165 S '50 60w

"A sympathetic—but fair—portrait. . . Careful analysis of the grim period of civil war, between Chetniks and Partisans—thoughtful study of the pros and cons of relations with the Allies, with the Soviet, add immeasureably to the value of this book as a contribution to a relatively unexplored facet of today's history. This is not a personal biography, in the sense of human interest and anecdotal material. It is a valuable biographical approach to Tito's place in modern history—and makes clearer to the average reader many of the confusing issues of boundary, nationalistic claims, and so on."
+ Kirkus 18:290 My 15 '50 230w

Reviewed by Donald Wasson
Library J 75:1285 Ag '50 130w

"For 223 pages George Bilainkin's Tito is a rather pedestrian and none too informative study of Marshal Tito and the dismal use both the British and the Russians sought to make of him during and after the war. Then, on page 224, begins an extraordinary Belgrade-Kremlin correspondence and the book becomes absorbing." A. H. Uhl
— + New Repub 123:22 Jl 31 '50 400w

"It is doubtful whether, as a biography of Tito, Mr. Bilainkin's book can be considered in any way complete. Although he has taken much trouble to question people in Tito's native village, who still remember him as a schoolboy, the more important period of Tito's life, from roughly 1920 to 1937, is very sketchily treated, and is full of gaps. Very little is said about his visits to Russia and his relations with the Comintern. Among the most useful parts of the book are the chapters devoted to British and Soviet policy in relation to Yugoslavia during the war." Alexander Werth
New Statesman & Nation 38:732 D 17 '49 650w

"This 'impartial' biography of Tito is a rare case of frenzied hero worship." Hal Lehrman
— N Y Times p15 Jl 30 '50 180w

New Yorker 26:94 Je 24 '50 220w

"A choppy and confused chapter arrangement makes the book difficult to read, as does the writer's style. . . Perhaps Mr. Bilainkin's most useful contribution is to communicate the excessive and self-centered although understandable pride with which the present régime regards its position and achievements." H. L. Roberts
— + Pol Sci Q 65:590 D '50 260w

+ Spec 183:930 D 30 '49 200w

BILBY, KENNETH W. New star in the Near East. 279p $3.50 Doubleday

956.9 Palestine—Jewish-Arab problem 50-9365

A report on events during the recent conflict between the Jews and the Arabs for the control of Palestine. The author, on assignment from the New York Herald Tribune, was able to study both sides of the situation. He covers the period from the last days of the British mandate to the emergence of Israel as a "reality." Index.

Booklist 47:58 O 1 '50

Bookmark 10:29 N '50 30w

"A book well worth reading. Clearly and concisely written, it is an excellent piece of reporting. Mr. Bilby does not pretend that it is anything other than a journalist's view of events." A. Andras
+ Canadian Forum 30:190 N '50 500w

Reviewed by Keith Wheeler
Chicago Sun p9 S 10 '50 450w

"One of the New York Herald Tribune's ace foreign correspondents has here written on Israel as nearly objectively as is possible for a necessarily biased observer." G. E. Hopkins
+ Christian Century 67:1107 S 20 '50 1500w

Reviewed by J. G. Harrison
Christian Science Monitor p10 S 16 '50 850w

"An analysis which is politically angled and international in its outlook, and one which is seemingly without fear or favor."
Kirkus 18:376 Jl 1 '50 180w

"A well balanced report. . . Shrewdly evaluating the leaders and policies of both sides in the battle, [the author] points up the reasons for the Jewish success and Arab failure to date with calculated prognostications for the future. Recommended." H. L. Roth
+ Library J 75:1176 Jl '50 110w

"To understand his patient a good psychiatrist is supposed to be a trifle mad. In the same way the gushing American Zionist who crows 'miraculous' may hit nearer home than Mr. Bilby's more collected appraisal, which leads him to underplay the siege of Jerusalem and the odds against which the Jews fought. With this reservation, the book is fresh, lively, and honest." Marie Syrkin
+ Nation 171:231 S 9 '50 1100w

"Mr. Bilby was well aware of the drama and its implications. He was keenly alive to the underlying human values, though this book is neither rhapsodic nor disparaging. It is a candid and straightforward statement in which a rich store of keen first-hand observation is blended with balanced analysis. The book, in short, is superb reporting." E. A. Speiser
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Ag 27 '50 1100w

"Apart from a few inadequacies in discussing certain internal aspects of Israeli policy and attitude, 'New Star in the Near East' is comprehensive and solid." Hal Lehrman
+ N Y Times p7 Ag 27 '50 470w

"Mr. Bilby, a crisp and observant writer, takes no sides; he admires the pioneering Jews but doesn't hesitate to criticize when he thinks criticism is due, which he thinks it is on the score of diplomatic hypocrisy. He is also sympathetic to the Arabs, and gives fair space to their point of view."
+ New Yorker 26:74 S 2 '50 160w

BILLINGS, HENRY. Diesel-electric 4030; il. by [the author]. 69p $2.50 Viking

656 Railroads—Juvenile literature. Diesel locomotives—Juvenile literature 50-8840

Description of a typical run of a diesel-electric engine, drawing the Pacemaker, from Harmon, New York, to Albany. During the course of the trip the author answers questions often asked about the operation of such an engine.

Booklist 47:64 O 1 '50

Bookmark 10:10 O '50 40w

"A beautiful, fact-crammed book for railroad fans of all ages." M. B. King
+ Chicago Sun p5 S 19 '50 90w

Christian Science Monitor p7 N 11 '50 120w

Cleveland Open Shelf p22 D '50

"Henry Billings has made a superb pictorial accompaniment to his accurate informative description of the intricate workings of the big Diesel-electric locomotives which pull so many of the fast trains of today. . . The beauty and strength of the artist's presentation of this unromantic type of engine, the bridges and the railway tracks beside the Hudson River set the book apart as one for the discriminating lover of art. The production of this book leaves nothing to be desired." A. C Moore
+ Horn Bk 26:354 S '50 130w

+ Horn Bk 26:388 S '50 70w

"A breathtakingly exciting and informative book for those who know their trains."
+ Kirkus 18:468 Ag 15 '50 90w

Reviewed by F. L. Morrison
Library J 75:1670 O 1 '50 70w

"Railroad-minded boys and men soon want to get beyond the thrill of train picture books, and stories of the thrill of riding in cabooses. Seldom are they flattered with complete mechanical information, and never before has there been one whole book about Diesels. Mr. Billings has done a grand job." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 S 17 '50 260w

N Y Times p30 S 17 '50 130w

New Yorker 26:188 D 2 '50 80w

Wis Lib Bul 46:21 N '50

BILLINGTON, RAY ALLEN, and HEDGES, JAMES BLAINE. Westward expansion; a history of the American frontier. 873p maps $8.50; college ed $6.25 Macmillan

973 West—History. U.S.—Territorial expansion. Frontier and pioneer life—U.S. 49-3099

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

"This latest addition to the general works on the westward movement is the most detailed and comprehensive treatment of the subject available. . . There is some question, however, whether the advantages of observing the pioneering phase of our economic development from a viewpoint which relates all things to physical expansion are sufficient to compensate for the disadvantages resulting from the necessity of ignoring or slighting the many other phases of economic evolution which cannot readily be associated with the frontier advance. . . It must be said that within the framework of the westward movement as conventionally defined and interpreted, this volume, in the reviewer's opinion, is in many respects the best of its class. The extensive annotated bibliography in itself makes Westward Expansion an indispensable reference work for students of American economic and social development." L. C. Hunter
+ — Am Econ R 40:662 S '50 1450w

"By no means has Professor Billington written the only book on American history exemplifying the Turner thesis, but Westward Expansion definitely ranks with Professor Frederick L. Paxson's History of the American Frontier, 1763-1893, the two being the most valuable productions of this school of thought since the appearance of Turner's The Frontier in American History more than a generation ago." G. C. Osborn
+ Ann Am Acad 269:155 My '50 550w

"The great merit of the book is its cumulative effect. By giving a quarter of his space to the colonial frontiers, something that has never before been done so scrupulously and with such unity, the author establishes a dynamic pattern that accommodates subsequent similarities, novelties, and enlargements in scale with great facility. The reader knows that he is viewing a process, and with that accomplished, he need not worry about Turner unless he wants to. . . The book is lucidly, interestingly, and reasonably written. One might almost add 'leisurely,' except that a number of errors and oversights in digesting the immense mass of scholarship indicate some haste or impatience." J. B. Brebner
+ — Geog R 40:341 Ap '50 1000w

"Every social studies teacher with a general interest in American history or a specific one on the Westward Movement should have a copy of Westward Expansion." H. C. Borger
+ Social Educ 14:280 O '50 600w

Social Studies 41:143 Mr '50 10w

"In summarizing the findings of two generations of American historical scholarship inspired by Turner's essays and teaching, Westward Expansion is a contribution to its field. . . The work will serve to remind Americans of an unique heritage, and will aid others in understanding how Americans came to be what they are."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:353 S '49 240w

BINKLEY, WILFRED ELLSWORTH, and MOOS, MALCOLM CHARLES. Grammar of American politics; the national government. 760p $6 Knopf

342.73 U.S.—Politics and government—Handbooks, manuals, etc. 49-10895

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

"The text is uniformly accurate both in essential facts and in interpretation but the chapters vary somewhat in style and method. Some chapters are 'textbookish' in the sense that they are not distinguished either by a lively style or sparkling interpretation. Unfortunately the chapter on 'Citizenship and Civil Rights' is one of them. . . On the other hand, several chapters merit special commendation. The chapter, 'Public Opinion, Pressure Groups, and the Public Interest,' presents an adequate, balanced and stimulating discussion of a significant area which has been too frequently neglected by textbook writers. . . Three chapters written by 'visiting experts': 'Federal Finance' by James A. Maxwell, 'Government and the Economy' by Arthur M. Ross, and 'Agriculture and Conservation' by Walter W. Wilcox, present an adequate description of governmental functions in these areas." H. M. Dorr

+ — Am Pol Sci R 44:199 Mr '50 800w

"The net result is a book which is distinctly readable, admirably organized, and impressive in format. The bibliographical notes and supplementary reading lists following the chapters are very helpful. While students and other readers may still not find this book as 'exciting' as they would like, there is little doubt that its style, vocabulary, and wealth of striking anecdotes and quotations place it in a different category from many texts. . . Perhaps the most serious question which will be raised about this new study of the National Government has to do with the amount of space devoted to various major topics. . . Perhaps this represents a studied attempt to correct overemphasis on administration, but the question may be raised as to whether it has not gone too far in this direction if proper balance is to be maintained." Harold Zink

+ — Ann Am Acad 267:217 Ja '50 370w

Foreign Affairs 28:508 Ap '50 10w

"Professors Binkley and Moos offer as their apologia a stated intention 'to interpret the phenomena of American Government in terms of human motivation.' . . But intent and purpose vanish when the authors concentrate on loading their pages with facts that bear dim relevance to 'human motivation' and 'ideologies.' They have buried the art—or even science—of politics as it applies to these United States beneath an exhausting survey of the machinery and gadgets that go to make up the Federal Government. . . The book does have its positive value. It is up to date and complete enough to answer any question on governmental mechanics your daily newspaper is liable to raise." P. R. Levin

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:34 Ap 29 '50 270w

"This is a book not only fresh in approach and sane and well balanced in treatment, but written in such a lively style that it should break down the resistance of the undergraduate and challenge the interest of the most apathetic citizen."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:78 Mr '50 200w

BINNS, ARCHIE. Radio imp; il. by Rafaello Busoni. 216p $2 Winston

50-6011

The Tompkins children lived on the lower East Side of New York. Jim was very proud the day he brought home the second-hand radio he had saved money to buy, but they were all unprepared for what happened. The radio did not broadcast according to program; it followed its own sweet will. However, it brought them all good fortune in the end. For ages nine to twelve.

Booklist 46:266 Ap 15 '50

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun p12 Ag 15 '50 70w

"A happy family spirit pervades the amusing book." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 26:193 My '50 100w

Kirkus 18:62 F 1 '50 110w

"There is authenticity in the local color and character, genuine humor and plenty of action in this story which is distinguished for its originality. Recommended." H. M. Brogan

+ Library J 75:706 Ap 15 '50 80w

"The general effect of this story of New York's Lower East Side is that it is directly in line with the Cabbage Patch. All it lacks are the tears. Not recommended." Mary Strang

— Library J 75:706 Ap 15 '50 80w

"There are touches of old-fashioned sentiment all through, and they are welcome, especially when the radio's promise of a 'star' comes true at Christmas in Gramercy Park. It will be interesting to see whether children under twelve in their native New York, enjoy it in spite of the magic, for which we generally think they are too sophisticated. Mr. Busoni's pictures are, of course, fine." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 Mr 12 '50 270w

"Archie Binns, a novelist well known to adult readers, has concocted an amusing, original fantasy which should tickle the imagination of all but the most literal-minded radio fans. It is also a heartwarming portrayal of a close-knit family, making the best of things in spite of poverty and hard work." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p22 Mr 5 '50 200w

Springf'd Republican p12C Ap 16 '50 90w

Wis Lib Bul 46:29 Mr '50

BIRD, BRANDON, pseud. of GEORGE EVANS and KAY EVANS. Death in four colors. 248p $2.50 Dodd

50-5151

Detective story.

"It would be pleasant to be able to report that the new Red Badge Prize mystery was a happy alternative. But Brandon Bird's 'Death in Four Colors' falls into too many conventional attitudes for comfort. . . Meanwhile, I'm afraid that a pair of amateur sleuths allow themselves to behave as if they'd never read a detective story in which a pair of amateurs turn sleuths to vindicate themselves." James Sandoe

— Chicago Sun p4S Ja 27 '50 160w

"A somewhat lushly written mystery, but with enough good background detail to make it an agreeably colorful job."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Ja 22 '50 180w

"While the outcome is somewhat predictable . . . the tracking down of the murderer and the human relationships involved are revealed with vividness and skill."

+ N Y Times p22 Ja 22 '50 200w

"Tart and tangled case (two murderers); acid artistic patter, blob of romance, shrewd professional sleuth, likable amateur, and colorful finish."

+ Sat R of Lit 33:32 Ja 14 '50 40w

BIRD, BRANDON, pseud. of GEORGE EVANS and KAY EVANS. Never wake a dead man. 243p $2.50 Dodd

50-9576

Detective story.

"Superb job of creating creeps and frightening characters in plot that is deeply involved and a bit hollow." Drexel Drake

+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p13 S 17 '50 60w

"A fuzzily written mystery with confusing motives, and a good deal which is unexplained. Not up to the standard of this author's excellent earlier book, 'Death in Four Colors.'"

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 S 24 '50 190w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
N Y Times p40 O 15 '50 180w

Reviewed by L. G. Offord
San Francisco Chronicle p14 O 8 '50 120w

BIRD, WILLIAM RICHARD. This is Nova Scotia. 299p $3.50 Macrae Smith co.

917.16 Nova Scotia—Description and travel 50-9329

An account of a trip around the province of Nova Scotia, which includes historical material and anecdotes about the inhabitants. Supplementary material for tourists, such as eating and lodging places, mentioned but not listed in one place. Index.

Booklist 47:38 S 15 '50

"There is no rushing about in this relaxed travelogue, but pleasure for those who have been there and incentive for those who would see for themselves."
+ Kirkus 18:403 Jl 15 '50 130w

"This is by no means merely a tourist book —even if the reader never visits Nova Scotia (which he surely will want to do), he will feel, after 'journeying' with Mr. Bird, that he knows and likes it well." R. C. Gask
+ N Y Times p18 S 10 '50 600w

BIRREN, FABER. Color psychology and color therapy; a factual study of the influence of color on human life [il. by Raymond Lufkin]. 284p $4.50 McGraw

152.133 Color—Physiological effect 50-7780

"After a section on the history of the therapeutic use of color, the author goes on to the biological and psychological effects with a final section on eye sight. Interesting to the medical profession as well as those who deal with color in interior decoration." (Wis Lib Bul) Bibliography. Index.

"Apparently the author's intention was to present in this book a factual survey of facts and data, free of the semi-mysticism, wishful thinking and unscientific statements found in so much of the literature on color psychology. He has succeeded only partially. In abstracting the literature, some of the faults of his sources have been carried over, but the most serious shortcoming is the failure to give precise citations of sources. . . Nevertheless, the book deserves a place in active collections on color." R. R. Hawkins
Library J 75:1193 Jl '50 130w

Wis Lib Bul 46:18 S '50

BIRSTEIN, ANN. Star of glass. 273p $2.75 Dodd 50-9577

Character study of a young Jewish woman who became secretary to the rabbi of a Manhattan synagog. In the process of painting the portrait of Fay Rosen the author has given an added picture of present-day Jewish life and customs.

"Ann Birstein writes well in this first novel. . . The story, frequently funny or touching, seems an honest and thoughtful picture of situations that must be seething in countless new-American homes."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 D 10 '50 320w

"It is almost impossible in this case to avoid the use of that most overworked word in reference to authors of first novels—promising. However, Miss Birstein's book is promising. It could not very well be called important, but as a writer she does have the necessary attributes of skill and sympathy and a sense of story. More is needed to be 'great' perhaps, but these are surely the first essentials for being at least 'good.' " P. A. S.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p7 N 26 '50 450w

"A story that makes little sense because the people speak and move more as props and prototypes than as human beings. They are conceived so heavily as Jews and are forced so entirely into an unreal idiom that they lose all their natural humor and dimension. Because of this the characters have been mechanically teamed, and there seems to be a kind of muddy message along with this." Madelon Shapiro
— Sat R of Lit 33:33 N 4 '50 270w

BISHOP, MRS CLAIRE (HUCHET). Christopher, the giant; il. by Berkeley Williams, jr. 54p $1.50 Houghton

Christopher, Saint—Juvenile literature 50-8841

The legend of Christopher, the Christ Bearer, told for boys and girls of eight to twelve.

Booklist 47:46 S 15 '50

"This book is rich with meaning for all who have turned to the patron saint of travelers." M. B. King
+ Chicago Sun p12 Ag 15 '50 200w

"Mrs. Bishop's vivid, forthright account of Christopher's life and her revealing picture of his day are effectively complemented by forceful illustrations, in brilliant color. The succeeding books in this new series on the lives of the saints will be watched for expectantly. Their appeal is to all ages." Polly Goodwin
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p16 S 10 '50 200w

Kirkus 18:352 Jl 1 '50 170w

"Recommended for ages 8-12." H. M. Brogan
+ Library J 75:1305 Ag '50 70w

"Mrs. Bishop tells his story dramatically, with a rich background of second-century life. She makes this brave early Christian a real person. The style is for any one over eight, and could be read aloud to a varied age group. Factual foreword and postscript describe the spread of this saint's special fame." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Ag 13 '50 170w

"The style is brisk, chatty, occasionally a little commonplace—like the pictures. Yet the use of modern words and idioms helps to make this third-century saint seem a real and vital figure, and his consecration to Christ's service applicable to our own time." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p13 S 3 '50 130w

BISHOP, CURTIS KENT. Lost eleven. 213p $1.50 Steck

"Primarily a story of team morale. This was a 'dream team,' a team that was scheduled to be one of the greatest in all sports history. They began like champions; then something happened and the team went to pieces. The mystery of what makes or breaks team morale is the warp of this fine story." Sat R of Lit

Kirkus 18:563 S 15 '50 90w

"Story moves swiftly and characterization and football action are excellent. Recommended for boys 12-16." Lillian Morrison
+ Library J 75:1673 O 1 '50 80w

Reviewed by W. R. White
San Francisco Chronicle p5 N 12 '50 50w

Reviewed by R. A. Brown
Sat R of Lit 33:60 N 11 '50 60w

BISSELL, RICHARD PIKE. Stretch on the river. 242p $2.75 Little 50-8516

A fictionized account of life on a towboat plying the upper stretches of the Mississippi river. The "life as portrayed is rough, tough, and bawdy." (Library J)

" 'A Stretch on the River' belongs to that regrettably small number of books that seem to reproduce life (generally in its rowdier aspects) with so much energy, simplicity, and delight that one becomes aware only slowly that nobody ever really talked like this; that what one has been taking for brilliant reporting is

BISSELL, R. P.—Continued
—if Mr. Bissell will forgive me—art. In other words, this is a rare book, and it will be a rare [and dull] reader who does not become enthusiastic about it." Milton Crane
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Jl 16 '50 500w

"This is often very funny, has a fresh feel, but is not cleaned up for primmer tastes."
Kirkus 18:267 My 1 '50 170w

"It is: a) not for nice old ladies; b) questionable as a public library item; c) much rougher than the Coal Queen, which appeared in the Atlantic." H. A. Wooster
Library J 75:1176 Jl '50 60w

"Mr. Bissell makes all his character abundantly alive and his prose has admirable grain and texture. His stories are first-rate and expertly told, his dialogue a constant delight. He is never sentimental, as conspicuously praised recent predecessors of his too often are. He has humor and an admirable irony on tap, but beyond that he has a genuinely comic perception, which is exceedingly rare, though he also sometimes permits himself a purely mechanical sophistication that damages some of his effects. Over and over he gives you the true thing; it would be impossible to find any part of his book dull or inexpert; and with the monologue of the drowned Shorty he really joins a great tradition. But he is sometimes too fluent for his own good and occasionally an odd, inexplicable withdrawal from his material takes place." Bernard De Voto
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 Jl 23 '50 800w

"Mr. Bissell's book is filled with excitement and variety and assurance of truth. Unquestionably he means it as a work of art—not as an item of Americana—and as such it merits serious appraisal. He maintains it at a high level, never letting down—a fact that gives him advantage over most of the more admired of America's younger writers. He deserves a place among them—near the top." Carl Carmer
+ N Y Times p4 Jl 16 '50 470w

"Mr. Bissell is a sensitive and enthusiastic reporter, and it's a pity he almost spoils his book by the pose he strikes as a writer. A licensed river pilot, he at times seems to be trying so hard to impress the reader with his professional knowledgeability that he sounds embarrassingly like an amateur trying to sound like a pro."
+ — New Yorker 26:71 Jl 22 '50 130w

San Francisco Chronicle p21 Ag 13 '50 360w

"The sexual interludes which pepper the narrative illustrate best the difference in tempers between Mark Twain's day and ours. A masculine book this, not without entertainment." J. C.
Sat R of Lit 33:37 Ag 12 '50 240w

"A Stretch on the River is a slight and rambling saga and its humor runs largely to wisecracks, but it has a fine, easy familiarity with river life and describes its spell with casual, vernacular effectiveness. Though the book is no Huckleberry Finn, it has some of Mark Twain's own feeling for the rugged, easygoing river hands on the Mississippi."
+ — Time 56:84 Jl 24 '50 350w

BITTER, FRANCIS. Nuclear physics; a textbook. 200p il $5.50 Addison-Wesley 539.1 Nuclear physics 50-8181

"A college textbook designed for students who have already taken courses in introductory physics and in general atomic theory. Its scope is the physics of the nucleus. Cyclotrons, and other machines for bombarding nuclei also are discussed briefly. The author is Associate Professor of Physics, Massachusetts Institute of Technology." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

"The reader is presumed to have had courses in basic physics and chemistry and to be familiar with the theory and terminology of atomic structure. Though quite beyond the grasp of the average lay reader, the book will be useful to readers who majored in physics while in college and now want more than a popularized presentation of nuclear physics. A good deal of reference data on such matters as isotopes is included." R. R. Hawkins
+ Library J 75:1193 Jl '50 100w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:60 Jl '50

BITTNER, HERBERT, and NASH, ERNEST, eds. Rome; introd. by Giuseppe Prezzolini. 62p 171pl $6.50 Regnery
914.56 Rome (city)—Description. Rome (city)—Views 50-6634

Introductory chapter on past history and present attractions and interests of the city, is followed by over 170 photographs, chiefly of architectural features. Index.

"This is a handsome, well planned volume, a credit to all concerned in its production. The Holy Year may have brought it forth, but it will be not only an enduring pleasure to pilgrims but a lasting compensation to the stay at homes who must do their traveling vicariously."
+ Cath World 171:159 My '50 270w

Reviewed by Robert Cromie
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 My 21 '50 190w

"The introduction, in which there is an evident want of harmony between the professor and the journalist, is at times bookish, at times urbane. Anecdotes and generalities are numerous, and Professor Prezzolini says much about the values Rome has bequeathed to us and the meaning of the city's exquisite historical chaos. It is all said in a very pleasant and at times quite banal tone." Serge Hughes
Commonweal 52:157 My 19 '50 200w

Reviewed by Lincoln Kirstein
New Repub 123:25 D 11 '50 60w

Reviewed by Beach Conger
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p13 Jl 23 '50 30w

"Virtually every outstanding building and historical or artistic site is included, and the photographs give, perhaps, more of a 'feel' of the ancient city than many a carefully written guide book. The introduction by Giuseppe Prezzolini is a sensitive, poetic—but still informative—complement to the photographic exposition." C. M. Cianfarra
+ N Y Times p32 Ap 2 '50 110w

San Francisco Chronicle p21 My 28 '50 150w

Sat R of Lit 33:38 Ap 22 '50 110w

Wis Lib Bul 46:25 Je '50

BJERKOE, MRS ETHEL HALL. Decorating for and with antiques; with drawings by Lyn Watson. 250p il $3.95 Doubleday
747.21 House decoration. Antiques 50-9147

Information on the subject of creating the proper setting for antiques. The author, who owns an antique shop, writes for the person of average means. Emphasis is on New England architecture and antiques. Lists historic houses in each of the New England states, their regulations, and open days. Bibliography. Index.

Cleveland Open Shelf p14 Ag '50

"Has a basic soundness and logical approach. The homemaker will find here a rule of thumb which is a pleasant departure, less perfection in decorating for more comfortable and happy living, and the advice that a professional decorator be used in an advisory capacity rather than given carte blanche."
+ Kirkus 18:403 Jl 15 '50 190w

"Mrs. Bjerkoe approaches her subject from a practical point of view. . . She does not advocate 'stunt' decorating with antiques; but neither does she recommend that everything in a room should be strictly in period. . . The author is not, however, writing for specialized antiquarians. Her book is for the many who enjoy the individuality of old furniture and wish to use it tastefully." Alice Winchester
+ N Y Times p16 S 10 '50 700w

"A book primarily for the amateur and professional interior decorator interested in American antiques, not for the serious student of American decorative arts. So there can be no mistake about the intention of the book, it starts with a lesson in colors for the beginning homemakers." R. L. Howell
+ Sat R of Lit 33:69 O 7 '50 500w

BLACK, CYRIL EDWIN, and HELMREICH, ERNST CHRISTIAN. Twentieth century Europe; a history. 910p il maps $7.50 Knopf
940.5 Europe—History 50-7892

"This is a completely new interpretation of the history of Europe, in which the various countries of eastern Europe are given a prominent part. The depression of the 1930's is used as a dividing point in an otherwise more or less chronological arrangement. Under the main periods, various countries, regions and international organizations are discussed in their relation to each other and the rest of the world. The whole is supported by numerous tables, bibliographical references, charts, maps and photographs." (Library J) Index.

"The authors have sought and admirably achieved something more than just another textbook. While no one will agree with them at every point, no one can accuse them of an unscholarly approach or a dull exposition." D. E. Lee
+ — Ann Am Acad 272:289 N '50 400w
Booklist 47:37 S 15 '50

"Black and Helmreich have made intelligent selection from a myriad of historical facts, organized their material ably, and arrived at a dramatic close. This is prime background reading for the layman." Leon Harpole
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ag 6 '50 270w

"The whole tone of the book is serene, moderate, and convincing. The authors are mainly concerned to interpret and explain, not to denounce or criticize. . . The authors are to be congratulated on the artistic page that one expects from a Knopf book, on the twenty-nine skillful black-and-white maps, and the five ingenious political diagrams. The unusually complete and up-to-date bibliography is confined to books in the English language." S. B. Fay
+ Current Hist 19:227 O '50 1200w

"As a text this is undoubtedly useful, and as a reference book it should be valuable." Donald Wasson
+ Library J 75:1176 Jl '50 120w

Reviewed by Hans Kohn
N Y Times p7 Ag 27 '50 650w

BLACK, MRS IRMA (SIMONTON). Dusty and his friends; pictures by Barbara Latham. [52p] $1.50 Holiday
Dogs—Legends and stories 50-10210

Story of a friendly little beagle belonging to a family who loved all animals. The father of the little boy who owned the dog thought Dusty was a coward, but he soon learned his mistake. For ages six to eight.

Booklist 47:140 D 1 '50
Horn Bk 26:465 N '50 60w
Kirkus 18:415 Ag 1 '50 80w

"Recommended." Juanita Walker
+ Library J 75:1909 N 1 '50 40w

BLACK, MAX. Language and philosophy; studies in method. 264p $3.50 Cornell univ. press
101.4 Language and languages 49-11624

"Eight of the ten essays comprising this volume have appeared previously in various philosophic publications. They are all intended mainly to illustrate various ways in which ideas about language may be used to clarify philosophic problems, but no claim is made to have outlined any systematic philosophy of language. Most of the essays contain careful interpretations and criticisms of theories of language already developed. The views of Russell, Wittgenstein, Tarski, C. W. Morris, and Ogden and Richards receive detailed consideration at various points." (Ethics) Index.

Reviewed by M. H. Thompson
Ethics 60:227 Ap '50 360w

"The author is to be congratulated on getting a book published which is composed of essays on points of logic. There ought to be more such, to supplement our periodicals. I note with pleasure the recognition of the importance of Mr. Russell's theory of descriptions, with the accompanying denial that this commits us to his ideal of language, or his views about acquaintance. . . This book might be very good to introduce a student to this type of semantic discussions, including Tarski, Wittgenstein, Charles Morris, Ogden and Richards, and Stevenson." H. T. C.
+ J Philos 47:608 O 12 '50 1100w

"The essays are difficult, since they are on a high level of abstraction and make use of much of the notation of symbolic logic. Yet for the reader willing to struggle with a forbidding idiom, there are many formulations of an ultimately rewarding clarity. . . For the layman, the essay titled Korzybski's General Semantics will probably have greatest interest, since the presentation is popular without sacrifice of soundness."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:28 Mr '50 280w

BLACKISTON, ELLIOTT. Teaching your dog obedience; over 75 il. by Fred Ortman. 154p $2.75 Crown
636.7 Dogs—Training Agr50-419

This expert's book of advice, instructions, and methods of training the dog in obedience and good behavior begins with chapters on selecting the right dog and training the puppy, before taking up the problems of "obedience" training, training in jumping, retrieving, tracking, etc. An appendix gives the latest obedience regulations of the American kennel club. Index.

Booklist 46:242 Ap 1 '50

"A well done job." Bob Becker
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 My 7 '50 60w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 75:778 My 1 '50 40w

"Valuable book, particularly for the city dweller, and one that should be in every library." J. M. Smith
+ Library J 75:785 My 1 '50 70w

BLAKE, WILLIAM. Blake (1757-1827) with an introd. and notes by Geoffrey Keynes. 24p pl pa $1.95 Pitman
759.2 Paintings, English 50-4532

Ten color reproductions of as many of Blake's pictures, with brief description of each, and an introduction about the artist. The pictures are in the Tate gallery.

Booklist 46:234 Mr 15 '50

Reviewed by Stuart Preston
N Y Times p7 D 25 '49 80w

BLAKE, WILLIAM J., pseud. See Blech, W. J.

BLANCK, JACOB NATHANIEL. The king and the noble blacksmith; il. by Louis Slobodkin. 48p $2.25 Houghton
50-8842

Picture story book about the little eight-year-old king who had so many counselors he didn't know what to do. The day a crow stole the king's crown and all his counselors failed him, the king discovered the noble blacksmith. After that life was much happier for the young king.

Booklist 47:64 O 1 '50

BLANCK, J. N.—Continued
Reviewed by Polly Goodwin
Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 N 5 '50 150w
Cleveland Open Shelf p22 D '50

"A merry story with pictures that make it even merrier."
+ Horn Bk 26:368 S '50 70w
Kirkus 18:349 Jl 1 '50 160w

"Recommended." S. J. Johnson
+ Library J 75:1670 O 1 '50 70w

"This happy little tale has color pictures on all its pages, in the popular Mr. Slobodkin's best manner. This artist's particular skill, a very individual sort of swift, rhythmic sketch, seldom has been better displayed than in this book. The characters are clear for the children, the atmosphere created is appealing to adults, the whole has humor, good taste and nonsensical charm." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 S 24 '50 240w

"Children will take personal satisfaction in the revolt of the young king against his domineering advisers. They will recognize the justice of the blacksmith's reward—the highest position in the kingdom. The royal setting of the story will appeal to them, as will the humor and excitement of the plot." L. P.
+ N Y Times p35 N 12 '50 150w
New Yorker 26:175 D 2 '50 70w
+ Sat R of Lit 33:41 N 11 '50 110w

BLECH, WILLIAM JAMES (WILLIAM J. BLAKE, pseud). The Angel. 438p $3.50 Doubleday

Alexander I, emperor of Russia—Fiction 50-8303

A novel based on the life of "The Angel," Alexander I, whose ultimate fate, as shown here, differed from that of other Russian autocrats.

"[Alexander's] historical importance is considerable. 'The Angel' is an attempt at taking him seriously. It doesn't quite succeed; but it makes a try; and is an honestly intended book and a decidedly informative one." Richard Sullivan
+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Jl 2 '50 350w

"Mr. Blake is obviously full of his subject and could have made this an exciting book; but he has failed to digest his material. Facts and personages romp helter-skelter; Alexander's mistresses, his wife, and a few intimate friends are carefully detailed, but all currents of ideas are lost in the general hurly-burly. There is considerable improvement toward the end: Alexander's elaborate arrangement for his own 'death,' his escape in disguise, his wanderings through Europe, are told with a pace and clarity that hold the attention. Mr. Blake's style is called on the jacket 'dynamic, explosive.' Occasionally it is extremely successful, but all too often its informality smacks only of the bobby-soxer."
— + Christian Science Monitor p6 Jl 1 '50 330w
Kirkus 18:264 My 1 '50 150w

"Weighted on the side of feminine weaknesses in Catherine's Court it may be objectionable to some, but good period material." K. A. Shorey
Library J 75:862 My 15 '50 140w

"Despot and democrat, Freemason and mystic, Lothario and anchorite, who can probe the personality of his imperial mime, this blend of Nero, Narcissus, and Peter the Hermit? William J. Blake attempts to solve the riddle in this cradle-to-grave account 'based on the life of Alexander I.' He writes in a popular vein, making free with the sources and falling back on a fertile imagination when these fail, but the contradictions that becloud Alexander's character are not dispelled." Geoffrey Bruun
— + N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Ag 13 '50 700w

"Mr. Blake's portrait follows the historical likeness. He sketches it with rapid dialogue and terse comment. His fleeting vignettes of Russia are deft and true. At times his insight sheds light in obscure corners, as when he brings out the effect of the resistance of the Spanish populace on Alexander as well as his great antagonist, Napoleon. The author is quite obviously fascinated by extravagance. Thus his speeches too often end in screams and his zest for the grotesque turns some characters into caricatures." Harold Lamb
+ — N Y Times p22 Je 18 '50 550w
New Yorker 26:93 Je 24 '50 100w
San Francisco Chronicle p15 Jl 30 '50 200w

"Long, detailed, and rather dryly written novel." Robert Pick
+ Sat R of Lit 33:35 Jl 1 '50 320w

BLEEKER, SONIA (MRS HERBERT SPENCER ZIM). Indians of the Longhouse, the story of the Iroquois; il. by Althea Karr. 160w $2 Morrow

970.3 Iroquois Indians—Juvenile literature 50-4865

"This is the first of a series for younger boys and girls that tells of the Indian tribes who lived in North America before the coming of the white man. The book brings the story of the Iroquois down to the present time." Sat R of Lit

Booklist 47:15 S 1 '50
Chicago Sunday Tribune p16 N 26 '50 130w

"Excellent book that gives a wealth of factual material about the Iroquois in an easy-flowing, simple style that should prove very popular." Harriet Morrison
+ Library J 75:1670 O 1 '50 70w

"This is a fine informational book for elementary schools." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 N 12 '50 150w
Sat R of Lit 33:65 N 11 '50 100w

BLEGEN, THEODORE CHRISTIAN. The land lies open. 246p $3 Univ. of Minn.

977.6 Minnesota—History. Wisconsin—History 49-48266

"In a series of vignettes Mr. Blegen has retold the story of the discovery and opening of the upper Mississippi. He has touched cursorily on the role of the native Sioux and Chippewas, the French voyageurs and traders, and the later British and American explorers and 'land takers.' He has concentrated, however, on the achievements of one state, Minnesota, hymning its accomplishments from the cultivation of alfalfa to the establishment of the Mayo clinic." (N Y Times) Index.

Cleveland Open Shelf p2 Ja '50

"Dean Blegen writes with an ease derived from complete command of his sources and from a firm confidence in the values which the past transmits to the present." H. N. Smith
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 F 12 '50 500w

"There is a lyrical cadence in Mr. Blegen's prose not usually associated with the writing of history, but from a state now celebrating the centenary of its entrance to the Union, a reasonable amount of exuberance ought to be expected." T. L.
+ N Y Times p22 N 6 '49 180w
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:63 Mr '50 280w

"Interestingly told, with many anecdotes."
+ Wis Lib Bul 46:16 Ja '50

BLEGEN, THEODORE CHRISTIAN, and JORDAN, PHILIP DILLON, eds. With various voices; recordings of North Star life. (Itasca press publication) 380p $5 Webb

977.6 Minnesota—History—Sources. Frontier and pioneer life—Minnesota 49-11623

Excerpts from the letters and other writings of the people who pioneered and made Minnesota the state it is. The period covered by the anthology is from Pierre Radisson to Governor John Lind. Index.

"The frank descriptions of a lumber camp, a wheat farm, life of a school marm, disasters, and religious life written by participants are the real gems of the book. They provide realistic pictures of the Minnesota of their day, and several of them are remarkably delightful reading. Other selections are dull and were apparently selected because the topics they represent were too important to skip, even if poorly described." E. B. Swanson

+ — Am Hist R 55:707 Ap '50 240w

"The device is not new, but familiarity has not dimmed its charm. . . Most [of the selections] are splendid examples of a people's literature. Here truly, is a book worth the labor that went into it, a book worth reading." V. P. Hass

+ N Y Times p40 N 27 '49 320w

"The idea is excellent and admirably carried out. It's just as Munro Leaf says: 'History can be fun.' " J.T.W.

+ Sat R of Lit 33:15 Mr 11 '50 130w

BLEILER, EVERETT FRANKLIN, ed. See Best science fiction stories

BLESH, RUDI, and JANIS, HARRIET (GROSSMAN). They all played ragtime; the true story of an American music. 338p il $4 Knopf

780.973 Jazz music—U.S. 50-12082

"A popular history—the first—of the popular craze which ran from the nineties into the teens of this century. Based on interviews, printed regional sources (e.g. newspapers of Sedalia, Joplin, St. Louis, New Orleans, Chicago, New York), and a study of the musical sources (sheet music and recordings), with the accent on the creators of ragtime and their music rather than on Tin Pan Alley." (Library J) Index.

Booklist 47:130 D 1 '50

"Well written, zestful, for a specialized market."

+ Kirkus 18:499 Ag 15 '50 200w

"Patrons of most libraries will be asking for this." C. K. Miller

Library J 75:1827 O 15 '50 120w

"In their understandable desire to give roots to ragtime, Blesh and Janis seem to me to connect it too directly with Negro folk song—and this is the commonest mistake of the jazz critic, I should say. Actually acceptance of Negro music has come only after a great many dilutions and crossings with white folk and popular styles. . . When America finds its true musical attitude, it will rediscover ragtime, Blesh and Janis feel. And if a book can help, this is it." Alan Lomax

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 O 22 '50 1400w

"In writing the first full-length book on ragtime, its performers and its role in popular music, the authors have clarified and documented an early and important segment of jazz history. . . In a book that is of such lasting significance it is unfortunate that some passages are dull and others uneven in style. Also, one cannot agree with all of the authors' conclusions. . . Yet such defects are of minor importance when the book is judged on its thorough exploration of the ragtime field." C. E. Smith

+ — N Y Times p7 O 15 '50 650w

"This will be an important reference book for the enthusiast for a long time to come. As for the general reader, it will interest him up to a point if he has either a feel for ragtime music or a desire to know more about the social backgrounds against which ragtime was born and grew up." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 O 19 '50 800w

"Mr. Blesh and Miss Janis tell the story lovingly, with a great deal of original research and plentiful detail." Wilder Hobson

+ Sat R of Lit 33:30 N 25 '50 700w

BLISS, WILLIAM. The real Shakespeare; a counterblast to commentators. 311p $3 Macmillan

822.33 Shakespeare, William 50-5532

"Was Shakespeare ever a murderer? Did he as a lad sail around the world with Drake? Was he once shipwrecked on the shores of Illyria, where he met Southampton, to whom later he became jester and favorite? Was he never really an actor? Did he write, without anyone's help, all of all the plays ascribed to him in the Folio? Was Henry V his favorite character? Did he believe in the Athanasian Creed? According to the present volume, yes. Accompanied by loud reports from the antiquated guns of 'Hudibras,' the author sails into a furious 'counterblast to commentators,' and thereafter moves on to discoveries of what the 'real' Shakespeare was like." (Christian Science Monitor)

"Mr. Bliss' book is to be commended for several reasons. In spite of its slightly spurious no-nonsense-about-it quality, it reminds us that Shakespeare was like other writers who lived in the world, wrote both well and badly, and had problems like our own. It also reads an effective warning against pedantry. On the other hand, many of its objects of attack are superannuated, and its tirades against the romantic biografies of Shakespeare rather lose their force when Mr Bliss proposes his own life of Shakespeare, the runaway from Stratford who shipped with Sir Francis Drake in 'The Golden Hind.' " Milton Crane

+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 F 26 '50 500w

"It is certainly every man's right to picture Shakespeare to himself as he sees fit; and Mr. Bliss writes well and with evident love of his subject. And certainly Shakespeare's critics are fair game and good shooting. But to denounce all but a selected few as blundering pedants is no good divinity; nor can the author expect that the creature of his own literary and religious predilections will be the 'real' Shakespeare to someone else." P. W. Timberlake

+ — Christian Science Monitor p6 Mr 25 '50 600w

Reviewed by Harry Levin

N Y Times p7 Mr 26 '50 140w

" 'The Real Shakespeare' is cast in the form of a dialogue between two friends. I had a lot of fun with it. Mr. Bliss has a fine old-fashioned hate for the pettifogging scholars and critics who wrangle over Shakespeare's every line. He lays about him right and left, and the sound of his jawbone on certain over-educated noggins is delightful to hear." Hamilton Basso

+ New Yorker 26:117 Ap 8 '50 180w

BLIVEN, BRUCE, ed. Twentieth century unlimited; from the vantage point of the first fifty years. 315p $3.50 Lippincott

901 U.S.—Civilization. Twentieth century 50-12048

"A collection of sixteen essays, most of which were published in the New Republic. Written by specialists for the general reader, each writer attempts to review the developments of the last half century in his field and to predict what will occur in the future. Elmer Davis (World Government), Edward U. Condon (The Atom), Philip Murray (Unions), William H. Kirkpatrick (Education), and Clyde Kluckhohn (Manners and Morals) are some of the outstanding contributors and their topics." Library J

Booklist 47:113 N 15 '50

Kirkus 18:499 Ag 15 '50 190w

"Recommended." H. G. Kelley

+ Library J 75:1904 N 1 '50 130w

"The high sales resistance to symposia of at least one reader has been overcome by this collection. It is time indeed that somebody exposed the subjectivity of current pessimism about civilization, and especially about civilization in the United States. This book does it." T. V. Smith

+ N Y Times p33 O 29 '50 650w

BLIVEN, BRUCE—Continued

New Yorker 26:133 O 28 '50 160w

Reviewed by Crane Brinton
Sat R of Lit 33:12 D 9 '50 800w

BLIZARD, MARIE. Dark corner. 249p $2.50 Mill 50-5306

Mystery story.

Bookmark 9:159 Ap '50 30w

Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 F 19 '50 60w

"Fancy, but in its way, fascinating too."
Kirkus 17:636 N 15 '49 90w

"A good and tantalizing situation makes this story extremely readable. Some of the motivations aren't too convincing but you'll enjoy the book."
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 F 12 '50 140w

"'The Dark Corner' has the kind of breath-taking pace that makes you sit up all night to finish it." Elizabeth Bullock
+ N Y Times p29 Ja 29 '50 200w

BLOCH, MARGUERITE, ed. Favorite dog stories; il. by Robert Doremus. 250p $2.50 World pub.

Dogs—Legends and stories. Short stories—Collections 50-6624

Contents: The "critter," by A. P. Terhune; Kazan, by J. O Curwood; That Spot, by Jack London; Slipstream, by Corey Ford; Allegheny, by J. T. Foote; The Comet, by S. A. Derieux; Lassie come-home, by Eric Knight; A yellow dog, by Bret Harte; An adventure with a dog, by John Muir; Weep no more, My Lady, by James Street; Mine enemy's dog, by B. A. Williams; Some heroes, by Eldon Roark; Seeing eye dog, by M. L. Fox; As a dog should, by Charles Alexander.

Booklist 46:305 Je 1 '50

"If you like good stories featuring man's best friend, this will make interesting reading for you." Bob Becker
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 My 7 '50 50w

Reviewed by K. H. McAlarney
Library J 75:882 My 15 '50 40w

"All good, all readable—it is just a question how many such collections you have already."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 My 7 '50 50w

BLOCHMAN, LAWRENCE GOLDTREE. Diagnosis: homicide; the casebook of Dr Coffee. 217p $2.50 Lippincott 50-5456

Eight short detective stories.

Reviewed by Drexel Drake
Chicago Sunday Tribune p16 Mr 5 '50 50w

"Lawrence Blochman has mustered up some extremely clever devices in his new detective sequence, and the laboratory makes a refreshing background to the puzzles."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p19 Mr 5 '50 140w

"Each of the individual plots is wound up with a dexterity and finesse that may seem a little pat, but the exposition of laboratory techniques is exceptionally well done." Elizabeth Bullock
+ N Y Times p21 F 19 '50 140w

"Satisfying shorts."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:36 F 11 '50 50w

BLOM, AXEL VIGGO. Organic coatings in theory and practice. 300p il $4.75 Elsevier

667.6 Polymers and polymerization. Finishes and finishing 50-507

"The author's preface states the purpose of the book is 'to define the actual position of our knowledge of coating materials in broad outline and to try to depict the doctrine leading to further investigations.' Further, it was the intent to outline the principal facts and theories of current organic coating science. The documentation is based on Dr. Blom's own research and no completeness in selection of topics is claimed." Chem Eng

"It is too bad that the author did not make a special effort to develop his arguments more minutely and that he jumped so many gaps in his reasoning that many readers will probably be discouraged and induced to lay the book aside. Unfortunately this situation is made worse by the fact that the text was prepared in the German language and translated into English. . . In many cases this reviewer was forced to translate a doubtful passage back into the German before he was able to understand it and to find the correct English translation. This contributes materially to the effort required to absorb the material contained in this book. These criticisms notwithstanding, this book is highly recommended to the student and research worker in the field of organic coatings for it contains many original ideas and is sure to influence and greatly stimulate his thoughts on a subject which only relatively recently has acquired the status of a science." A. C. Elm
+ — Chem & Eng N 27:3144 O 24 '49 500w

"This is an authoritative work. The scope of the subjects treated is so broad that the specialist in any particular phase of the coating industry may find his own sphere of activity presented rather superficially. However, this treatise is not for the uninitiated in the field. Its value is greatly enhanced by acquaintance with the writings of Staudinger, Mark, Carothers, Kienle, Flory and Houwink. Dr. Blom's book belongs in the library of everyone concerned with high polymeric substances." C. F. Silleck + Chem Eng 56:259 D '49 700w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:8 Ja '50

BLOOM, GORDON F., and NORTHRUP, HERBERT ROOF. Economics of labor and industrial relations. 749p $5 Blakiston

331 Labor and laboring classes. Industrial relations 50-5607

"The authors explain that they are trying to supply some interpretation of economic theory as bearing upon labor problems for the student who has not had the usual introductory economics course. And they have then added to this substantial fragment of the volume other parts dealing with the more conventional subjects handled in courses in industrial relations." Survey

"Although it is the authors' idea that the text is suitable for both beginning and advanced students, the analysis is both too extensive and too difficult for the usual undergraduate course. The rôle of this text is definitely at the advanced level, for which it is admirably suited. If the book is used at the graduate level, its lack of integration, criticized earlier, loses some of its importance, since this matter is of less significance with advanced students. It is sincerely to be hoped that the excellent use of economic theory by Messrs. Bloom and Northrup in this volume will inspire other labor economists to abandon their distrust of theory in favor of intelligent application of the valuable tools of analysis it provides." R. H. Ferguson
+ Am Econ R 40:706 S '50 1050w

"It is not easy to appraise so comprehensive a study as this book attempts. It is written with meticulous care and in a clear, interesting style. The chapters on labor economics reflect admirable scientific objectivity. The analysis of wage theory and determination rests squarely on a complete, though not uncritical, acceptance of the marginal revenue productivity concept. The point of view here, as throughout the book, is conservative, but is a reasoned, constructive conservatism which even liberal economic theorists will acknowledge is sincere. The discussion throughout is provocative, which should make the book a welcome addition to the imposing list of texts in the field of labor economics." G. S. Watkins

+ Ann Am Acad 270:167 Jl '50 480w

"In point of encyclopedic comprehensiveness and factual elaboration of the topics required in any grasp of this subject, the book is a mine of up-to-date material, with only a few topics not treated which would seem to require exposition in the present situation. . . The book, in short, admirably serves its intention." Ordway Tead
+ Survey 86:421 S '50 500w

BLOOMFIELD, ARTHUR IRVING. Capitol imports and the American balance of payments, 1934-39; a study in abnormal international capital transfers. 340p $6 Univ. of Chicago press

332 Balance of trade. Capital. Investments 50-6889

"A study of abnormal international transfers of capital during those years, caused by devaluation, impending war, etc. Government control of such movements and the continued need therefor is recommended." (Current Hist) Bibliography. Index.

"Scholarly book. . . This treatise is a major feat of scholarship. It is the product of very prolonged labor, focused tenaciously then authoritatively upon a vital phase and period of our financial relations with the outside world." R. O. Hall
+ Ann Am Acad 270:172 Jl '50 450w
Current Hist 19:106 Ag '50 30w

"Dr. Bloomfield's monograph is characteristically thorough and perceptive. . . The study is a valuable one." C. P. Kindleberger
+ Pol Sci Q 65:615 D '50 850w

"The study is a significant contribution to financial history and to monetary analysis."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:136 S '50 240w

BLOOMFIELD, BERNARD M. Israel diary. 182p il $2.50 Crown

915.69 Palestine—Description and travel 50-6294

A young Canadian business man, member of an ardent Zionist family, flew to Israel last spring to plant the seedlings of a forest in his father's memory. The book, based on letters written home, contains an account of his visit.

"A slight, and often sentimentally slanted, testimonial, there have already been other better books on Palestine which this will not displace."
Kirkus 18:44 Ja 15 '50 110w

"A young business man making his first venture into authorship, Mr. Bloomfield has concocted his 'diary' from diligent travel-notes and from lengthy letters home to Montreal. The result [is] entirely innocent of the diarist's art. . . There are one or two lapses in taste, numerous omissions of pertinent fact, and much sophomoric humor. 'Israel Diary' leaves plenty of room for the book that still needs to be written about young Israel's great achievements and equally great dilemmas." Hal Lehrman
N Y Times p16 Mr 19 '50 450w

"Perhaps a truly successful book of travel is that one which makes the reader feel as though he is the one who is remembering. . . This Mr. Bloomfield has not done. He was obviously most sincere in his desire to present a picture of Israel, and to share his experiences there. Therefore, it is doubly a pity that the results of his efforts were not more satisfactory. As collateral reading on the subject, 'Israel Diary' is useful, but not required." P. A. S.
— + San Francisco Chronicle p21 My 28 '50 260w

"No professional writer, Mr. Bloomfield's diary often becomes entangled in personal asides and ramblings that might well have been edited out. Otherwise his entries form a first-hand picture of life in Israel." H. S.
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:44 Mr 11 '50 140w

BLUM, WILLIAM, and HOGABOOM, GEORGE BYRON. Principles of electroplating and electroforming (electrotyping). rev 3d ed 455p il $6 McGraw

671 Electrotyping. Electroplating 49-50354

"It is 25 years since the first edition of this book was published and almost 20 years since its second edition [Book Review Digest 1924, 1930]. During all of this time it has held its place as the standard American text on electroplating. . . In this third edition, there are extensive changes. The plan of the book remains the same, but a very considerable proportion of the text now deals with developments of the last two decades. As before, it is not intended as a comprehensive treatise; but is designed to provide for platers and others practically concerned with metal finishing, an adequate statement of chemical principles and a survey of the more important practical procedures. There are numerous bibliographical footnotes" Library J

Booklist 46:234 Mr 15 '50

"The new edition is recommended to anyone interested in electroplating, whether new or experienced." C. L. Faust
+ Chem & Eng N 28:1148 Ap 3 '50 300w

"It took the authors a long time to revise their book but we must allow that when they did get to it they did an excellent job. . . In every respect the revised Blum and Hogaboom lives up to, and will enhance the excellent reputation established by the two previous editions." A. H. Pope
+ Chem Eng 57:263 Mr '50 350w

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 75:109 Ja 15 '50 170w
N Y New Tech Bks 35:5 Ja '50

BLUME, FRIEDRICH. Two centuries of Bach; an account of changing taste; tr. by Stanley Godman. 85p $2 Oxford

780.81 Bach, Johann Sebastian 50-14156

"The Professor of Musicology in the University of Kiel has written an account of the posthumous development of Bach's reputation, from that of a great organist and master of contrapuntal device to that of a creative artist of the first rank, 'the father of us all.'" Times [London] Lit Sup

"A work of considerable weight. With scholarship that sees large issues in the round without failing to account for the contributing details, and with a felicitous literary style that is preserved—perhaps enhanced—in the translation, Professor Blume (of the University of Kiel, Germany) recounts the changing fortunes of Bach's music from the last years of the composer's life to the present time." Cecil Smith
+ New Repub 123:20 D 18 '50 110w

"So ably and interestingly does Mr. Blume, aided by an excellent translation, handle his task that it is hard to imagine how it could have been done better in twice the space. My only reservation—less a criticism than a point of view—is that he overstresses the importance of the religious element in Bach's life and music." Moses Smith
+ N Y Times p42 D 3 '50 230w

"Although there is not a trace of chauvinism in this book, any more than in Dr. Blume's other writings, and although he is a man of broad European outlook, the book is for non-German readers somewhat narrow. When the magnifying glass is held so close, perhaps some distortion is inevitable. . . Undue stress, too, it seems to me, is laid on the written word as an avenue of approach to Bach, and this tends to intensify the exclusive preoccupation with German developments." Arthur Mendel
Sat R of Lit 33:29 N 25 '50 800w
Times [London] Lit Sup p311 My 19 '50 480w

BLUNDEN, EDMUND CHARLES. After the bombing, and other short poems. 51p $1.25 Macmillan

821 [49-49232]

"Wild flowers, fern and shrub still adorn the bombed areas of London and other cities.

BLUNDEN, E. C.—Continued
Many writers have been tempted to moralise on those gay displays of nature that hide moments of horror and destruction. But in the lyric which gives the title to his new book Mr. Edmund Blunden avoids an obvious conclusion, and imagination is stirred all the more effectively by his reticence. A few of his later poems remind us of the fact that he is living at present in Japan, but most of them deal with the English countryside." Spec

"Mr. Blunden has a range and power far beyond what the anthologies would suggest. He does play the shepherd's pipes and this gift alone, so brilliantly exercised, would give him a high place in English poetry; but there are in his best poems, and some of these are in this new collection, wise and passionate strains that no pipes could compass." Douglas Grant
+ Canadian Forum 29:286 Mr '50 340w

"Mr. Blunden is a poet who seems never quite to have fulfilled his splendid early promise. His new book of poems is full of accurate observation and generous feeling, but there is a slackness, a flatness, or sometimes merely a strange lack of literary tact, in much of the writing." G. S. Fraser
New Statesman & Nation 38:624 N 26 '49 250w

"Of poetry of this kind—mild, low-pulsed, correctly in love with nature, genteel pursuits and gentle living—it is useless to say more than 'If you like it, you like it.' As a late flowering specimen of the Georgian manner it has a certain clinical value: so our uncles wrote, prettily and without passion, celebrating their high elms, the hedgehog killed on the road, 'our most beautiful and subtle game' of cricket. . . This is Thalia in a hammock in the good old summer time." Dudley Fitts
N Y Times p25 Ja 22 '50 160w
New Yorker 26:127 Ap 22 '50 50w

Reviewed by A. M. Sullivan
Sat R of Lit 33:36 S 30 '50 230w

"Time and absence have given these poems a visional quality, and never have hues been clearer. His meditative mood has deepened, and yet, when he wishes, the poet can set down for us a traditional landscape and still delight in it for its own sake." Austin Clarke
+ Spec 183:704 N 18 '49 220w

"In a room full of loud-voiced people all talking at once the man with the quiet voice may well be most worth listening to, and at the same time the one who cares least whether he gets a good hearing or not. So it is with Mr. Blunden, one of the quietest voices in the flat of poetry at this chattering moment. . . Mr. Blunden has been over there in the corner for a long time now, drinking what was offered by life with discriminating relish; and those who have elbowed their way through to him have had their reward."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p774 N 25 '49 1450w

BLYTHE, LEGETTE. William Henry Belk, merchant of the South. 225p il $2.75 Univ. of N.C. press
B or 92 Belk, William Henry. Retail trade
50-8383

The life story of a southern farm boy who became a pioneer of modern merchandising in his section of the country. He began with a small country store, and expanded the business until he had branch establishments far and wide in the south. Contains a list of Belk stores. Index.

"LeGette Blythe, author and newspaperman of Mr. Belk's home town, tells much of the story in Mr. Belk's own words, and the rest is based chiefly on information supplied by Mr. Belk and his associates. Too little information gets into the book for it to be much more than a tribute to a great merchant. The opportunity to throw light on an unusual facet of American business history was missed almost entirely." C. S. Sydnor
Sat R of Lit 33:30 Jl 22 '50 500w
Springf'd Republican p6D Jl 16 '50 180w

BLYTON, ENID. Five on a treasure island; il. by Vera Neville. 209p $2.50 Crowell 50-7729

Story of three English children, Anne and her two brothers, who spend a summer vacation near the sea with their aunt and uncle and cousin. The discovery of hidden treasure on a little island in the bay proves a most exciting adventure. For grades four to six.

"The children are generous, likable, and have plenty of initiative and daring, even when dealing with hardened criminals. Some phases of the story are wholly English; the style is awkward, uncertain. But the pace of story carries one right along to an exciting climax and a satisfying ending."
+ — Kirkus 18:22 Ja 15 '50 190w

Reviewed by F. M. Hensey
Library J 75:783 My 1 '50 70w

"Children can read a book like this, be entertained, and emerge unharmed by the rudimentary language and characters. Life was never like this, and neither was literature; 'Five on a Treasure Island' is one more of the same, light reading for the younger set." Marjorie Fischer
N Y Times p22 Jl 9 '50 140w
Wis Lib Bul 46:20 Je '50

BOAS, GEORGE. Wingless Pegasus; a handbook for critics. 244p $3.50 Johns Hopkins press
701.18 Esthetics. Art criticism 50-13294

"A dozen or so years ago we published a short book called A Primer for Critics. It was an attempt to analyse and describe accurately the problems which critics of the arts and of artistry would face if they took their tasks seriously. It raised problems instead of answering them. It developed a vocabulary of criticism which its author naively thought might be adopted by the increasing number of people interested in aesthetics and the problems of aesthetics. Its attitude was what is usually called 'naturalistic,' its style literal. It met with a gratifying reception at the hands of a few literary critics, but was treated coolly by aestheticians. In spite of all this, we have ventured to write a second volume conceived in the same spirit and dedicated to the same end." (Pref) Index.

Reviewed by Stuart Preston
N Y Times p41 O 22 '50 200w

"Critic and spectator alike should find Mr. Boas's book stimulating and enlightening, whether or not they are convinced that criticism should become one department in the history of ideas." Frances Blanshard
+ Sat R of Lit 33:76 D 2 '50 310w

BODDE, DERK. Peking diary; a year of revolution. 292p il $3.75 Schuman
951.156 Peking, China. Communism—China
50-10426

"A long-time student of China and of Chinese returned to Peking, where he had once lived for 6 years, as a Fulbright Fellow for a year beginning August 1948. His diary records events over the period of siege, surrender, and occupation by the communists of the cultural and political center of China." (Library J) Index.

Booklist 47:53; 93 O 1 '50; N 1 '50

"In Peking Mr. Bodde saw a great deal, and understood intimately what he saw. His report is honest and fresh within its obvious limitation. Such testimony as that of Derk Bodde is helpful." Randall Gould
+ — Christian Science Monitor p18 N 30 '50 450w

Reviewed by H. C. Hinton
Commonweal 53:152 N 17 '50 380w

"Don't sidetrack this because it is an unheralded item. It is an immensely valuable and often disturbing study of the Communist Revolution in China. . . An important contribution to opening our eyes to Chinese affairs."
+ Kirkus 18:504 Ag 15 '50 270w

"Highly recommended." H. P. Linton
+ Library J 75:1652 O 1 '50 170w

Reviewed by Harold Strauss
Nation 171:651 D 16 '50 700w

"This is the first full-length account of those events by a neutral observer, an account that is both revealing and discerning." Nathaniel Peffer
+ N Y Times p3 O 29 '50 1000w

San Francisco Chronicle p32 D 10 '50 550w

BODDE, DERK, and BODDE, GALIA SPESHNEFF. Tolstoy and China. (History of ideas ser) 110p $2.50 Princeton univ. press

891.78 Tolstoi, Lev Nikolaevich, graf 50-6223

"A study of Tolstoy's interest in and debt to China. Professor Bodde of the University of Pennsylvania, an authority on Chinese philosophy, has made a careful study of Tolstoy's readings on China, his references to China in his writings, and the possible influence these readings had on his thought. Dr. Bodde makes no sweeping assertions for this influence, but concludes that 'among these sources that fed Tolstoy's thinking, that of China, exotic and unfamiliar as it was to his contemporaries, was surely, to the Russian sage himself, one of the richest and most interesting.'" Christian Science Monitor

"Interesting little monograph." M. B. Jansen
+ Christian Science Monitor p16 Mr 28 '50 550w

"A valuable contribution to the extensive history of Russia's debt to foreign culture. Leo Tolstoy's interest in China and Chinese philosophy has been investigated by both Russian and Western scholars, but Mr. Bodde's book is the first truly comprehensive study of the subject." E. J. Simmons
+ N Y Times p5 Mr 5 '50 410w

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 My 7 '50 210w

"The information presented will be valuable to students of Russian literature, and students of China will find it interesting to learn of the appeal which Chinese philosophy and political thought made to the mind of Tolstoy."
U S Quarterly Bkl 6:150 Je '50 120w

BODER, DAVID PABLO. I did not interview the dead. 220p $3.50 Univ. of Ill.

940.53159 World war, 1939-1945—Displaced persons 49-50353

"One hundred twenty hours of interviews with 70 displaced persons in France, Italy, Switzerland and Germany were recorded by Dr. Boder in the summer of 1946. The full translations of eight wire-recorded interviews together with the author's introduction, make up the present volume." Chicago Sunday Tribune

"A brilliant study based upon personal stories addressed to that other perceptual avenue, the hearing." Francis Coughlin
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 D 25 '49 650w

"A great human document, and one well worth reading." M. R.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 Mr 5 '50 120w

Reviewed by J. T. Winterich
Sat R of Lit 33:20 My 6 '50 180w

BODINGTON, NANCY (SHELLEY SMITH, pseud). Man with a calico face. 213p $2.50 Harper

50-10581

Detective story.

Kirkus 18:572 S 15 '50 90w

"Basically this is a rather simple mystery, but Shelley Smith approaches it with such skillful story-telling technique that she creates her own suspense."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p36 D 3 '50 150w

"Lacking in unity of tone and marred by stiffly theatrical dialogue, this effort falls below her best—but it still displays her as one of the most literate of the newer English murder novelists." Anthony Boucher
N Y Times p30 N 5 '50 110w

New Yorker 26:167 N 4 '50 110w

"Miss Smith's skilful and unemphatic style makes the story more hair-raising in retrospect even than in reading." L. G. Offord
San Francisco Chronicle p33 D 10 '50 90w

BOGUE, DONALD JOSEPH. Structure of the metropolitan community; a study of dominance and subdominance. 210p pa $2 Univ. of Mich.

323.352 Cities and towns—U.S.

"A study of the population and the economic structure of metropolitan communities; and the latter term is taken as including not only the urbanized center but also the entire hinterland for each such center to a point midway between it and the next metropolis. The purpose of the research, which was mainly statistical and based upon the 1940 census of the United States, was to test the 'general theory of urban dominance, that is, that cities in general are the foci about which the life of modern nations is organized.'" Am Pol Sci R

"Although the study tests a hypothesis already generally familiar to and accepted by sociologists and, therefore, adds nothing new to basic sociological theory, the author is to be commended for an excellent piece of work. He gives a firm factual basis for acceptance of a hypothesis which, like too many sociological generalizations, has not previously been tested objectively. In addition, he provides much interesting factual data and more precise detailed conclusions about the structure of the metropolitan community." J. A. Quinn
+ Am J Soc 55:596 My '50 950w

"The work was well worth doing, and students of government will find the result to be of some value as background material for their own metropolitan studies." William Anderson
+ Am Pol Sci R 44:218 Mr '50 380w

"To summarize, even briefly, the factual evidence assembled in this exhaustive study is impossible in a short review. But his evidence is convincing. What he presents is a comprehensive picture of a society whose population distribution and major sustenance activities are patterned by the pervasive influences of the metropolitan centers. . . Since the present study is a composite of 67 metropolitan communities, variations of individual communities are obscured in the over-all picture. Hence the practical value of the findings for planning in specific communities and areas may be limited." N. P. Gist
Am Soc R 14:816 D '49 1150w

BOGUE, JESSE PARKER. Community college. 390p maps $4 McGraw

378 Junior colleges 50-8962

"A comprehensive treatment of the community, or junior college movement is offered by Mr. Bogue, a leader in the field. We get more than just the author's views of this newer educational development. Excerpts from speeches, reports and books of outstanding educators in this area are used to round out the picture." (Library J) Index.

"It adds little in the way of new material or towards any extension of the philosophy behind the movement. Recommended." C. W. Roth
+ Library J 75:1410 S 1 '50 130w

School & Society 72:63 Jl 22 '50 40w

BOLITHO, HECTOR. Biographer's notebook. 213p il $3.50 Macmillan

920.02 Biography (as a literary form) 50-10461

Collection of biographical material about an unrelated group of people. Among them are the late Queen Marie of Rumania; the Duchess Louise of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, mother of Prince Albert; and Mowbray Morris, a 19th century English dramatic critic. Index.

Kirkus 18:542 S 1 '50 120w

"Some of the material is to be found elsewhere in the author's work. On the whole, entertaining but fragmentary, and not a necessary item for most libraries." Beatrice Libaire
Library J 75:1653 O 1 '50 160w

"Authors, like housewives, sometimes have wonderful leftovers in their iceboxes, or odd delicacies like plover's eggs, not enough for formal luncheons. 'A Biographer's Note Book' is something like that, and almost anybody who discovers it on his bedside table will find something appetizing in it; though all offerings are perhaps not equally digestible." Ernestine Evans
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 O 29 '50 1000w

Reviewed by W. B. Hayward
N Y Times p44 N 12 '50 470w

"Quite an amusing little book. . . None of this, of course, is of any great consequence, but the easy grace of the author's style makes it an unusually diverting biographer's holiday."
+ New Yorker 26:190 N 18 '50 160w

BOLTON, HERBERT EUGENE. Coronado; knight of pueblos and plains. (Whittlesey house publication) 491p maps $6 McGraw; Univ. of N.Mex. press

973.16 America—Discovery and exploration—Spanish. Vázquez de Coronado, Francisco 49-49163

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

"The chief value of Bolton's study lies in the larger setting in which he places the explorations of Coronado and his chief lieutenants, the wealth of detail that he adds to our previous knowledge of the expedition, his account of the later activities and fortunes of Coronado and the other leaders who returned, and the careful 'reconnaissance of Coronado's route of travel and the scenes of his adventures,' that he made in person from Compostella to north-central Kansas. The book has the Bolton hallmark. It is comprehensive, authoritative, written with meticulous attention to detail." R. G. Cleland
+ Am Hist R 55:948 Jl '50 950w
+ Cath World 171:238 Je '50 100w

"The narrative is fascinating because of its subject matter, despite the author's pedestrian style. It crackles with anecdotes of hope and despair, privation and heroism, deceit and above all, courage." Louis Schaefle
+ — Chicago Sun p7X Ja 15 '50 400w

"It always is difficult to say with any sense of assurance that here is the definitive work on any subject. But it is no trouble at all to call Dr. Bolton's the best documented, most understanding study of Coronado and the conquest that has yet come to hand." Will Davidson
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 Ja 8 '50 300w

"Herbert E. Bolton is professor emeritus of history at the University of California. For his present retelling of this classic he has retraced the 4,000-mile journey and has presented a bulk of new material. The book reflects the faults and virtues of his approach. It is pedestrian and academic, but historically sound, comprehensive, and a worthy addition to the Coronado Cuarto Centennial Publications. What mars it most is his insistence on comparing Coronado's expedition with the later California Gold Rush." Frank Waters
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:18 Mr 25 '50 650w

"It is to be regretted that this thorough and scholarly study, which has so much popular appeal, is without illustrations and lacks adequate maps."
+ — U S Quarterly Bkl 6:63 Mr '50 300w

BOND, EARL DANFORD. Thomas W. Salmon, psychiatrist [prepared] with the collaboration of Paul O. Komora. 237p il $3 Norton

B or 92 Salmon, Thomas William

"A pioneer in psychiatric screening of emigrants, co-founder of the National Committee for Mental Hygiene, and mainspring of the amazingly effective psychiatric organization in the A.E.F. of World War I, Dr. Thomas W. Salmon was the kind of intensely humane and lovable person who usually kills himself serving others. Set down here with loving care by a friend and associate, is the story of his life." (N Y Times) Bibliography of the writings of Dr. Salmon.

"It is a story of a man, a warm, lovable personality whose knowledge and learning did not stifle his humanitarian impulse. Every reader is sure to feel better for having known him through these pages." F. G. Slaughter
+ N Y Times p12 Mr 5 '50 140w

Reviewed by Bertram Schaffner, M.D.
+ Sat R of Lit 33:32 Jl 22 '50 800w

"For those who knew Thomas Salmon—and those who knew him, loved and admired him—it is a satisfaction not only to learn something of the more intimate aspects of his life, but to have recorded the story of his creative career. For the younger generation and for those to come who are interested in the ever-broadening field of psychiatry, it will be an invaluable account of the early beginnings of the mental hygiene movement and of a man who played in it a most significant and effective role." A. F. Bronner
+ Survey 86:334 Je '50 700w

"This captivating story of Salmon draws a vivid picture of him, of his diffidence, charm, unselfishness, and of his accomplishments in the field of mental hygiene. The story brings out clearly the motives behind his work, and reveals the kind of obstacles which a physician who is far ahead of his time must overcome in order to attain his ideal."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:168 Je '50 200w

BOND, NELSON SLADE. Remarkable exploits of Lancelot Biggs: spaceman. 224p $2.50 Doubleday

50-9028

Science-fiction tale of the adventures of the fourth mate on the spaceship Saturn (an obsolete passenger ship built about 2084 or '5, and now on the freight run). The tale is told by Sparks Donovan, radioman on the Saturn.

Booklist 47:44 S 15 '50

"Nelson Bond, especially remembered for the fantasy, Mr. Mergenthwirker's Lobblies, is one of the most widely published authors of science—and other—fiction. He writes with a boisterous touch and considerable good humor." Fritz Leiber
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 Ag 27 '50 320w

Reviewed by H. B. Nichols
Christian Science Monitor p16 S 6 '50 400w

Kirkus 18:371 Jl 1 '50 90w

"Although individual parts of the book trip along lightly enough, the whole is rather low-level, even for light entertainment." Fletcher Pratt
N Y Times p33 S 24 '50 230w

Reviewed by Don Fabun
— San Francisco Chronicle p20 Ag 13 '50 200w

Reviewed by Fletcher Pratt
Sat R of Lit 33:16 D 30 '50 50w
Time 56:87 Ag 14 '50 430w

BONE, HUGH ALVIN. American politics and the party system. 777p $5.50 McGraw

329 U.S.—Politics and government. Political parties—U.S. 49-48925

"The writer has prepared the book especially for the student and general reader rather than primarily for the teacher. It attempts to answer the many questions which have been raised by students over the years such as: How do I get into politics? What is needed for a successful career in politics? To what extent must I compromise my ideals and principles? Is the press influential in determining the outcome of elections? How do interest groups really influence parties and legislatures? How may parties be made more responsible to the wishes of the membership?" (Pref) Parts one and two are devoted to the forces that mold public opinion, and pressure groups. The remainder of the book considers political parties. Chapter bibliographies. Index.

"The thumbnail sketches of party systems abroad are a most welcome addition to an American political text. To be really fruitful for analysis, however, the comparative approach requires the development of historical and cultural materials of considerable complexity. Chapters on the history of American parties will, on the other hand, help materially to enrich the student's grasp of his own political system." Oliver Garceau
+ — Am Pol Sci R 44:499 Je '50 320w

Booklist 46:255 Ap 15 '50

Social Studies 41:142 Mr '50 20w

BONI, ADA. Talisman Italian cook book; tr. and augmented by Matilde La Rosa; introd. by Mario A. Pei. 292p $3 Crown

641.5 Cookery, Italian 50-8521

American edition of a famous Italian cookbook. Besides recipes used in Italian restaurants in this country, it gives substitutes for ingredients not found here. Glossary. Index.

Booklist 46:347 Jl 15 '50

Cleveland Open Shelf p18 O '50

Reviewed by K. T. Willis
Library J 75:2152 D 15 '50 30w

"For those who think that Italian cookery consists mainly of spaghetti and antipasti, there are many surprises. . . Mario Pei's introduction, a genial, authentic discourse on the art of eating in Italy, will give to the uninitiated a better understanding and appreciation of the good things in store." H. M. Clark
+ N Y Times p23 Ag 6 '50 180w

"Lovers of Italian food . . . may, it is true, be disappointed by the absence of the grander specialties of the famous Roman and Milanese restaurants, but for good family cooking this excellent collection of recipes, which has long been a standard work in Italian homes, is an invaluable guide."
+ New Yorker 26:135 O 28 '50 80w

BONN, JOHN LOUIS. House on the sands. 310p $3 Doubleday

MacNutt, Francis Augustus—Fiction 50-9845

A biographical novel based on the life of Francis MacNutt, a convert to Catholicism, who became the confidant of an emperor and three popes.

"Unfortunately, so many things are happening to and around MacNutt that his own character becomes a trifle dim. Occasionally the intrigues seem to call for a specialist to follow them. But let us not cavil. It is an enjoyable novel." Mary Sandrock
+ — Cath World 172:232 D '50 220w

Kirkus 18:397 Jl 15 '50 190w

"Recommended." F. A. Boyle
+ Library J 75:1405 S 1 '50 90w

Reviewed by Philip Burnham
N Y Times p13 D 31 '50 270w

"All of this is obvious material for a picaresque novel about a man who was involved in almost as much history as Lanny Budd. The difficulty is that, despite valiant work on the author's part, the MacNutt pictured emerges persistently as a most unattractive personality—a dilettante, a snob, and completely lacking in the Christian virtues the author is anxious to convince us he had." E. J. Fitzgerald
— Sat R of Lit 33:38 N 18 '50 290w

BONNER, MARY GRAHAM. Winning dive; a camp story; il. by Bob Meyers. 178p $2 Knopf 50-6305

Story of summer camp life for boys of eight to ten.

"Confined in appeal chiefly to those in the know about camp."
Kirkus 18:97 F 15 '50 70w

"Recommended for limited purchase." H. M. Brogan
Library J 75:879 My 15 '50 70w

"This is a good-enough sports story for boys under twelve. But it is not half so exciting or interesting or well written as was Mrs. Bonner's book of last year, 'The Mysterious Caboose.' " L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Je 25 '50 180w

"Mary Bonner makes a good point in showing the way in which parental character and attitudes are reflected, for good or ill, in their children. Although not so exciting as Miss Bonner's 'The Mysterious Caboose,' it all makes a good story for 8 to 12-year-olds." Marjorie Burger
+ N Y Times p28 Ap 2 '50 130w

Reviewed by W. R. White
San Francisco Chronicle p7 N 12 '50 60w

BONNEY, E. ARTHUR. Engineering supersonic aerodynamics. 264p il $4 McGraw

629.1323 Aerodynamics, Supersonic. Airplanes 50-5316

"Aerodynamics at supersonic speeds is still a field in which there are many unknowns. On the other hand, a great deal of knowledge has already been accumulated in both wind tunnel experiments and, as every newspaper reader knows, actual flight. This book is a compact introduction to the existing knowledge, or at least that part of it which has been released. It is cast in the form of a textbook for engineering college students, but because there is little systematic literature on the subject as yet, the book should appeal to fair number of readers out of college. The treatment is based on the assumption that readers will have studied college mathematics and also conventional aerodynamics." (Library J) Chapter references. Index.

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 75:324 F 15 '50 110w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:17 Mr '50

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:245 Je '50 280w

BOOTH, ERNEST SHELDON. Birds of the West; il. by Harry Baerg and Carl Petterson. new ed 402p $6 Stanford univ. press

598.2 Birds—West 50-8320

"A guide to bird identification in the western states from the Great Plains to the Pacific and from Canada to northern Mexico. A general key to the orders and families is followed by descriptions of each order and family. Small black-and-white pictures of individual birds, and eight color plates. Male birds only, usually in summer plumage. A.O.U. numbers are given. Indexes of common and scientific names." (Booklist) Bibliography.

Booklist 46:354 Jl 15 '50

"The varied bird life west of the Rockies is thoroly canvassed, even to ranges of subspecies. Illustrations are good, with eight clear plates in color. Unhappily, the book is heavy enough to pull any coat pocket out of shape." A. C. Ames
+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Jl 9 '50 130w

BOOTH, E. S.—Continued

"Here is the bird guide you had despaired of finding. Limited to birds of the Western States, with a unique system of identification, it is so simple that amateurs can use it accurately." A. R. I.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p21 Jl 16 '50 300w

BOOTH, HAROLD SIMMONS, and MARTIN, DONALD RAY. Boron trifluoride and its derivatives. 315p $5 Wiley

661 Boron fluoride 49-50129

"Boron trifluoride is a chemical substance which is used as a catalyst for condensation and polymerization actions; in organic chemical research; and in other fields. Although not commercially available until 1936, its uses have developed so rapidly that several hundred patents have already been issued in the United States alone. This book is a compact but practically complete monograph of the existing knowledge together with practical information on the handling of the gas in both laboratory and plant processes." (Library J) Indexes.

"The book is valuable chiefly as a source of facts and methods, but it presents the literature mostly in a neutral manner, leaving the reader to sort out what is true and significant from such errors of fact, conclusions without supporting evidence, or ideas for which the evidence is persuasive but not conclusive, as a thorough study of the original papers may reveal. . . On the positive side, it is possible to gain from the book numerous ideas for new lines of research, and the final effect may well be a strong impetus toward the development of important new knowledge."

+ — Am Chem Soc J 72:1868 Ap '50 390w

Reviewed by J. S. Smatko

Chem & Eng N 28:1687 My 15 '50 370w

"This book is, with one exception, a very thorough and painstaking piece of work. It embodies a great deal of difficultly accessible material and the reviewer is glad to see that the patent literature has not been neglected. . . The one criticism that the reviewer can make is of Tables 35, 37, 38 and 40, dealing with steroid compounds. The terminology used is heterogeneous and largely obsolete and there are some errors, so that the tables contrast strangely with the rest of the book, which has been prepared with meticulous care." J. S. Buck

+ — Chem Eng 57:304 Je '50 200w

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 74:1911 D 15 '49 130w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:2 Ja '50

"Investigators in the field will find in this book a very thorough, well organized, and well indexed survey of the pertinent literature. The value of the work is enhanced by the numerous patent references from which information has been culled, thereby relieving research workers in the field from the need for patent searching."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:117 Mr '50 200w

BOOTH, JOHN NICHOLLS. Fabulous destinations. 239p il $3.50 Macmillan

910.4 Voyages and travels. Asia—Description and travel 50-10462

"When John Booth, then minister of an Illinois Unitarian Church, decided just after World War II to take a sabbatical, he spent it in travel in the Orient. The Orient in the post-war years has not been organized for tranquil travel, which is why Mr. Booth went there. . . Mr. Booth moved fast—Japan, China, India, Tibet—seeking out trouble spots, interviewing celebrities, visiting famous and out-of-the-way places, slipping through and around red-tape and harrowing difficulties that would have stopped less enthusiastic travelers in their tracks." N Y Times

Booklist 47:134 D 1 '50

Kirkus 18:453 Ag 1 '50 190w

"The destinations in this volume are not especially fabulous nor are they very exciting as portrayed here. . . The enthusiasm of the writer rescues the book from complete dullness, but this does not make it an essential item." Donald Wasson

Library J 75:1396 S 1 '50 100w

"It makes a good yarn with plenty of humor, novelty and adventure—although sometimes Mr. Booth is a little too insistent about this." N. K. B.

+ — N Y Times p51 N 12 '50 200w

"The destinations are fabulous all right, but their telling is a little too hectic." C. B. Rand

Sat R of Lit 33:14 D 23 '50 500w

"Mr. Booth's style is conversational and entertaining, and he avoids the political and social analyses so often attempted after a brief acquaintance with the East." D. B. B.

Springf'd Republican p7B D 24 '50 380w

BORDEN, MARY (LADY SPEARS). Catspaw [Eng title: For the record]. 313p $3 Longmans

50-9458

Purports to be the confession of a disillusioned communist spy, who had served as secretary to the popular prince of a small European state, which was eventually taken over by the communists. The unsuspecting prince was used as a catspaw by the communists, and when it became evident that he had been taken in, he committed suicide.

Booklist 47:34;61 S 15 '50; O 1 '50

"It is not a pretty tale but its current impact makes it worth hearing. Miss Borden's skillful manipulation of the forces at work within the country and within the embittered Alex has a convincing appeal. . . Catspaw is a forceful novel." Mary Sandrock

+ Cath World 172:152 N '50 210w

"The first thing to be said about 'Catspaw' is that in its own right, as a novel, it is a very fine, sustained, distinguished piece of writing. It is necessary to say this first because the book is likely to be so widely read and highly praised as a study of communism in action that its intrinsic merits as a work of fiction may accidentally be overlooked. This is the best, the soundest, the most illuminating novel about communism I've read since Koestler's classic 'Darkness at Noon.'" Richard Sullivan

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 O 15 '50 350w

+ Kirkus 18:400 Jl 15 '50 190w

"A bit heavily and slowly, but with certainty, the story moves towards the inevitable communistic coup. Recommended." E. F. Walbridge

+ Library J 75:1506 S 15 '50 90w

"A distinguished book, very difficult to classify. . . The book is sombre yet exciting, it moves rapidly yet the reader is constantly held up by the thoughts it engenders." Elizabeth Jenkins

+ Manchester Guardian p4 My 26 '50 130w

"The human relationships, which are bound to be the backbone of this kind of novel, are carefully thought out, ingenious, quite true to life, and all that: but they are not what Miss Borden wants to write about. They are the sugar on the pill, and their falseness is apparent throughout." Frank Hauser

+ — New Statesman & Nation 40:130 Jl 29 '50 310w

"The book is a very good performance. . . The characters are all out of stock, distinguished by no brilliance of imagination or even invention. But the stock they come from is not the shelves of fiction but the stock of facts. If you read newspapers you have met them before. It may, nevertheless, help if you get better acquainted with them in this story and better understand their purpose and methods, their villainy and guilt." Rex Stout

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 O 15 '50 650w

"This clear study of the Communist mind is written with the urgency of one who sees approaching disaster and would warn those in its path. . . And yet, midway of the novel, this reader began to lose interest. Miss Borden's story lacks motion: she seems to be dragging her story out, marking time until she is ready to spill her climax." Horace Reynolds

+ — N Y Times p30 O 29 '50 320w

"As what John Hersey has called 'the novel of contemporary history' Mary Borden's 'Catspaw' is a failure. As a novel of suspense, an it-might-have-happened-this-way kind of thriller, it is a considerable success." Merle Miller
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:53 O 7 '50 800w

Reviewed by Sylva Norman
Spec 184:866 Je 23 '50 300w

Springf'd Republican p4D O 22 '50 360w

"Miss Borden's handling of political intrigue is adroit. Unfortunately, as so often happens in political novels, the characterization inclines to flatness. Alex, whose irritatingly intense narrative style is one of the weaker features, fails to command much sympathy; the Prince remains a cipher."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p337 Je 2 '50 300w

BORN, MAX, and GREEN, H. S. General kinetic theory of liquids. 98p $2.25 Cambridge

541.39 Liquids, Kinetic theory of [50-5152]

"Six papers which first appeared in the Proceedings of the Royal Society are reprinted without change in this volume. However, four pages of notes have been added for the purposes of correcting errors and amplifying certain points. The papers represent an original approach to the problem of liquids as distinguished from gases. . . The book is of interest to graduate chemists and physicists." N Y New Tech Bks

---

"The authors state their awareness of the fact that the six papers contain only a very general outline of the statistical theory of condensed matter. As pioneering efforts pointing the way to new methods of solution of the intricate problems of the liquid state, they are remarkable and worthy of careful study and attention." J. G. Kirkwood
+ Am Chem Soc J 72:3831 Ag '50 450w

"This collection of papers records an important advance in the rigorous treatment of the liquid state. Much remains to be done before these results can be applied quantitatively to liquids in general but any one interested in developing this field further must read these papers." Henry Eyring
+ Chem & Eng N 28:1600 My 8 '50 260w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:41 My '50

BOS, COENRAAD VALENTYN. Well-tempered accompanist; as told to Ashley Pettis. 162p il $2.50 Theodore Presser company, 1712-1714 Chestnut st, Philadelphia 1

B or 92 Musicians—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. Musical accompaniment

Reminiscences of a piano accompanist, whose public career covers a span of some fifty years. He discusses his own technique and illustrates with anecdotes of famous singers he has accompanied from 1896 when Brahms was in the audience to hear the first performance of his Vier Ernste Gesänge, to the present and Helen Traubel. List of recordings by Coenraad V. Bos.

Booklist 46:260 Ap 15 '50

"Perhaps Mr. Bos was wise to speak only of the field in which he has specialized, but a more catholic outlook might have been expected from a man who has been fifty years in the field. For sheer insight into the career of a man now more than ever in the news, however, the book is indeed well worth having." Theodore Shaefer
+ — Music Lib Assn Notes 7:293 Mr '50 650w

"Flighty organization and occasional inconsistencies can be excused in a book which sets forth so much valuable information." Roland Gelatt
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:56 D 31 '49 140w

BOSLEY, HAROLD AUGUSTUS. Firm faith for today. 283p $3 Harper

230 Faith 50-6190

"It is the author's conviction that 'religion must get down to fighting weight at once.' Dr. Bosley believes that religion weakens rather than strengthens itself by diluting its creeds, especially at a time when secular and revolutionary movements are formulating theirs. This book contains chapters on the main affirmations of the traditional creeds of Christendom." (N Y Times) Index.

Bookmark 9:181 My '50 30w

"By a happy coincidence, this book is published at the moment when its author makes his initial appearance at the First Methodist church of Evanston, where he has been appointed pastor to succeed the late Dr. Ernest F. Tittle. This book is assurance that the preaching ministry of that church will be continued in much the same spirit that has characterized it for the last 30 years." C. Seidenspinner
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Mr 12 '50 300w

"Dr. Bosley has read widely. The abundant quotations will give added interest to most readers, even though at times they may seem to impede the clear movement of the argument. To understand this and other aspects of the volume one must keep in mind that this is no mere product of the study, that the book is a resultant of sermons given by a pastor, of lectures to pastors and students, and of addresses which were joined to open forums with a free give and take. And that gives to these chapters the qualities which will command a wide reading." H. F. Rall
+ Christian Century 67:559 My 3 '50 650w

"This book has been submitted to tests by fire! First the material was used as sermons, then subjected to discussions by a ministerial group and finally the words scrutinized by college students. Out of this has come a clean, strong affirmation of the essentials of the Christian faith."
+ Churchman 164:15 My 1 '50 150w

+ Kirkus 18:168 Mr 15 '50 130w

Reviewed by Paul Ramsey
N Y Times p18 Ap 16 '50 180w

Wis Lib Bul 46:18 S '50

BOSSING, NELSON LOUIS. Principles of secondary education. 447p $5.15; to schools $3.85 Prentice-Hall

373 Education, Secondary. Education—U.S. 49-1912

"Young persons training to become teachers, experienced workers in the teaching profession, as well as lay persons interested in education, need to understand the basic principles of secondary education. To provide this understanding is the stated purpose underlying the writing of [this] volume. . . The following four sections comprise the principal divisions of the book: 'Secondary Education in the United States,' 'Development in America,' 'Present Task of American Education,' and 'Implementing the Program.' Each of the fourteen chapters is provided with selected references, as well as with questions and problems for discussion." (School R) Chapter bibliographies. Index.

"It seems hard to find real justification for a synthetic volume of this type and for a course based upon it, inasmuch as those who have successfully studied the basic courses in education do not require additional repetition. Greater blending of the basic curricular stuff would have given Bossing's book a better raison d'être." W. W. Brickman
School & Society 72:85 Ag 5 '50 190w

"The book is written in a style that is easy to read, and the content should prove interesting to young students and laymen. Supplemented with other materials, it should provide an adequate basis for understanding secondary education. It is only natural that the writer of a volume treating comprehensively such an area as principles of secondary education would omit certain topics that seem important to various readers." J. L. Trump
+ School R 58:117 F '50 1500w

BOSWELL, JAMES. London journal, 1762-1763; with a pref. by Christopher Morley. 370p il $5 McGraw

B or 92 London—Social life and customs 50-10625

The first volume of Boswell's autobiography, covering the year 1762-63, when as a youth of twenty-two he arrived in London hoping for a commission in the Guards. This is the first volume to be published from the mass of Boswell papers discovered in the 1920s at Malabride Castle in Ireland. Index.

Booklist 47:135 D 1 '50

Reviewed by Kelsey Guilfoil
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 N 5 '50 650w

Reviewed by Roland Sawyer
Christian Science Monitor p18 N 16 '50 800w

"The volume is sumptuously produced, and edited with charm, modesty and imagination: Professor Pottle's introduction is a model for editors, though his estimate of Boswell's literary greatness may not be fully shared by every reader. The Journal lacks the fascinating and minute detail of Penys' Diary, and Boswell has little sense of humor. . . As a psychological document the Journal is of first-rate importance; self-portraits so full, skillful and frank are rare; but it does not necessarily follow that the artist was a great man. Indeed, some readers may from time to time be heard to mutter: 'Repulsive ass!' " G. B. Harrison
+ — Commonweal 53:205 D 1 '50 750w

Kirkus 18:626 O 1 '50 100w

"Indispensable to all libraries owning the Life of Samuel Johnson." E. F. Walbridge
+ Library J 75:1901 N 1 '50 90w

"As a visitor from the north he sees London with the alien's objectivity; yet he catches the hurly-burly, the political, social, and sexual excitements of the metropolis. But that is only incidental to the most powerful qualities of his journal, its drama and its personalities." Robert Halsband
+ Nation 171:440 N 11 '50 1100w

Reviewed by V. S. Pritchett
New Statesman & Nation 40:591 D 9 '50 2350w

"There is hardly a page of the present journal which does not in some shrewd comment or some vivid little picture of a scene from the comedy of manners, reveal his genius and mark the difference between him and his great contemporary fellow confessor, Rousseau, who rarely sees, as Boswell almost invariably does see, beneath the surface of his own posturings." J. W. Krutch
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 N 5 '50 2900w

"The choice of the 1762-63 journal to begin the series is a happy one—for scholar and casual reader alike it is new and fresh. Although discovered as early as 1930, it has never before been printed, since a long legal tangle over ownership kept it locked up even from the experts. . . The present edition is designed not so much for the professional scholars as for the wide reading public. Later there will be a scholarly, annotated edition. . . It must be admitted that Boswell's revelations of his sordid sex life are not for squeamish readers. Yet Boswell does not stress sex; it is merely part of life as he experiences it." J. L. Clifford
+ N Y Times p1 N 5 '50 1600w

Reviewed by W. H. Auden
New Yorker 26:146 N 25 '50 1050w

"I believe that thousands who are not and have never been Johnsonians will discover this volume with delight, and that many of them will be led immediately to the 'Life' first, and then to the rest of the Boswell papers as they come along during the years. That, without doubt, is all to the good." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 N 5 '50 500w

"One of the most fascinating and illuminating records of human peculiarity that ever ran down the nib of a pen." Leonard Bacon
+ Sat R of Lit 33:11 N 4 '50 1300w

Reviewed by W. G. Rogers
Springf'd Republican p23A N 5 '50 750w

Time 56:106 N 13 '50 850w

BOTHWELL, JEAN. Peter Holt, P.K; il. by Margaret Ayer. 241p $2.50 Harcourt

50-9578

Story of the Holt family and their attempts to settle down in a new community, to which the minister-father had just been transfered. The trials of ten-year-old Peter hold the center of the stage, as he learns some important lessons. The P.K. of the title stands for "preacher's kid," one of Peter's nightmares.

Booklist 47:64 O 1 '50

Cleveland Open Shelf p23 D '50

"A friendly and lively book with some glimpses of small town life and the type of problems a minister-father (a very understanding and jolly man) must face."
+ Kirkus 18:559 S 15 '50 120w

"This is a story of delightfully friendly people in a small town. Recommended for boys and girls of 8-12." D. M. Blasco
+ Library J 75:1834 O 15 '50 70w

"There is a pleasant family unity in this book. Also there is the well-remembered warmth of autumn sunshine, the beauty and excitement of Christmas, and the thrills of coasting down the 'big' hill. Miss Bothwell is particularly successful in describing the strong emotions which overtake any child faced with a new house, a new town, and a strange school." L. R. Davis
+ N Y Times p30 S 24 '50 140w

BOTKIN, BENJAMIN ALBERT, ed. Treasury of Southern folklore; with a foreword by Douglas Southall Freeman. 776p $4 Crown

398 Folklore—South 49-11786

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

"In such treasuries of American folklore as this one (I dare say the folklore of the West will be the subject of his next), Mr. Botkin is doing no small service to American culture. From his doctoral thesis on play-party songs (a model of method and thoroughness) through his timely rescue of the folklore of slavery to the sectional anthologies he is now editing, his work has always been both sound and significant. The titles of his books are no misnomers." Horace Reynolds
+ Christian Science Monitor p12 F 7 '50 850w

"All my fault-finding has been with little things among the numerous important values of the Treasury of Southern Folklore, which I consider an excellent treatment of its subject—the best one, indeed, that I have seen, and this opinion holds as 'from kiver to kiver'; that is, from Douglas Southall Freeman's foreword to the indexes." G. P. Jackson
+ Music Lib Assn Notes 7:296 Mr '50 1200w

"It is an insensitive reader who closes this wealthy book without increased affection for the South—beautiful, perverse, heroic, humorous, and forever raising questions which only folklore can answer." H. W. Thompson
+ Sat R of Lit 33:35 Ap 1 '50 700w

"Again Dr. Botkin has produced a varied and excellent anthology of regional Americana. . . The captious will say that much of the material which is drawn from print is not folklore, in that it has not clearly been passed on through oral tradition. But in our literate country this sharp distinction has less validity than, for example, in certain countries in Europe. In any event, the material is purely regional and carries the reader into the life, past thinking, and mores and manners of a colorful section of our country."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:36 Mr '50 240w

BOTTEGHE OSCURE (periodical). Anthology of new Italian writers; ed. by Marguerite Caetani. 477p $3.50 New directions

850.8 Italian literature—Collections 50-10016

"From the pages of a Roman magazine called Botteghe Oscure (Dark Shops), the editor has chosen fiction and poetry by fourteen contributors, between the ages of twenty-seven and forty-four, to represent contemporary Italian writing." New Yorker

"The poetry, at least in English translation, is uniformly undistinguished, achieving the style, but not the power, of French poetry of the last century. The stories, ranging from a Poe-influenced scientific horror tale to a wryly neurotic love story in the Svevo tradition, are far more impressive."
New Yorker 26:186 N 18 '50 130w

San Francisco Chronicle p11 N 26 '50 110w

BOTTOME, PHYLLIS (MRS ERNAN FORBES-DENNIS). Under the skin. 311p $3 Harcourt

50-6760

Lucy Armstrong, a young English war widow, went out to one of the British West Indian islands to become headmistress of a girls' school. Almost at once she became conscious of the difficulties which the color problem raised, but Lucy was determined to seek good in everyone. A jealous, vindictive teacher with colored blood made determined efforts to oust Lucy and laid her plans accordingly. A hurricane which swept over the island solved a good many of the problems.

Booklist 46:261 Ap 15 '50

"A spirited, high-pitched tale that sustains interest. For the mature reader."
+ Bookmark 9:185 My '50 50w

"This is not a book that treats of the interracial problems with any perspicacity; enjoy it, if you will, as a run-of-the-mill romance." Mary Sandrock
Cath World 171:232 Je '50 200w

"A valiant and earnest piece of writing. . . With the assistance of a series of quietly melodramatic events, including an attempted murder, a hurricane, and a suicide, everything works out, perhaps just a little too easily. Because the admirable decision of the heroine to marry the doctor seems to rise, at the last, more out of thematic and plot requirements than out of any deep personal conviction. And the good idea of the book, by being thus maneuvered and forced, is unhappily weakened." Richard Sullivan
+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ap 2 '50 350w

"No one can deny the urgent importance of Miss Bottome's theme or the beauty of her writing about the Bermudan scene; but the novel as a whole carries too much weight and the characters too often become mere mouthpieces."
Christian Science Monitor p6 Je 3 '50 220w

"Holding reading, but in final analysis the conflicts seem still unresolved, the denouement too glib. Not Bottome at her best."
Kirkus 18:110 F 15 '50 220w

"A hurricane is the climax that forces a denouement—very well done indeed, but the reader is left unsatisfied. Phyllis Bottome's admirers will not be disappointed in the story however." K. T. Willis
Library J 75:559 Ap 1 '50 140w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Jenkins
Manchester Guardian p4 Je 23 '50 130w

Reviewed by John Raymond
New Statesman & Nation 40:105 Jl 22 '50 420w

"'Under the Skin' is a passionate, emotional, highly sentimental story of a romantic heroine dealing in romantic fashion with the problems created by white imperialism. . . Miss Bottome makes in 'Under the Skin' an intensely sympathetic report on the problems of the under race in a highly race-conscious area. But because of a lack of realism both of spirit and method it must be somewhat discounted as a significant social study. It can be enjoyed quite simply as a romantic, compassionately motivated novel about a nice young English girl vis-a-vis the color line on an island in the West Indies." F. H. Bullock
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 Ap 2 '50 700w

"One can't help feeling in the end that what sways Lucy to acceptance of racial equality are the dashing Negro doctor and the captivating technicolor beauty of the Caribbean. Whatever its merits as a diverting story, as a novel of ideas 'Under the Skin' is hopelessly naive and unconvincing." Nona Balakian
— | N Y Times p22 Ap 2 '50 400w

"It is too bad, but we might as well face it. In this new book Phyllis Bottome has bitten off more than she can chew. The beginning is so promising, too! . . The problem of race relations invades the book, as it must certainly seep into every corner of life on the island Miss Bottome is talking about. But the book is not prepared to stand the strain of such an issue." Elizabeth Janeway
— + Sat R of Lit 33:26 Ap 15 '50 650w

"There are the annoying tricks of dialogue that are persistent in Miss Bottome's book. . . Then there is, as always in Miss Bottome's books, the infinitely wise person, in this case the Chinese Mr. O'San, who, verbally at least, solves all human dilemmas with infinite pity and understanding; but such a father-figure, is, after all, comforting to read about so long as the solutions he proffers seem acceptable. I am carping at small things only because I took the whole seriously as an excellent piece of storytelling, some very effective descriptive writing and a helpful contribution to the horrible and distressing problem of racial conflict." Marghanita Laski
+ — Spec 184:26 Jl 7 '50 360w

Times [London] Lit Sup p369 Je 16 '50 130w

BOUCHER, ANTHONY, pseud. See White, W. A. P.

BOUTWELL, EDNA. Red Rooster; il. by Bernard Garbutt. [44p] $1.75; lib ed $2.25 Aladdin

50-9618

Picture storybook for ages four to eight. It begins with Red Rooster, who is heartbroken when his master buys an alarm clock and Red Rooster's morning crowing is no longer needed. He sets out to find a place where he is needed and is joined by a whole company of animals and one elderly woman, all of them superseded by machinery. They finally discover a home where they are much needed and they are all happy again.

Booklist 47:102 N 1 '50

Bookmark 10:10 O '50 50w

Reviewed by A. L. Shea
Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 N 5 '50 220w

Christian Science Monitor p11 N 13 '50 60w

Christian Science Monitor p8 D 9 '50 120w

Kirkus 18:507 S 1 '50 150w

"An appealing, lively little tale with definite charm and background." H. M. Brogan
+ Library J 75:1909 N 1 '50 80w

"This is good to read aloud, but also good, easy reading." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 N 12 '50 80w

Reviewed by C. E. Van Norman
N Y Times p33 N 12 '50 100w

"The drawings are humorous and attractive, printed in black and white with touches of bright red and yellow. It is a story to tell or to read aloud with the pictures to give it vitality."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:44 N 11 '50 140w

Wis Lib Bul 46:20 N '50

BOWEN, MRS CATHERINE SHOBER (DRINKER). John Adams, and the American Revolution. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 699p il map $5 Little

B or 92 Adams, John. U.S.—History—Revolution

An account of the younger years of the second president of the United States. This biography begins in the autumn of 1745 when John Adams was ten years old and ends in July 1776 when he had reached the age of forty. Bibliographies. Index.

Booklist 46:333 Jl 1 '50

Bookmark 9:239 Jl '50 50w

"Mrs. Bowen writes with enthusiasm, aiming 'not to startle with new material, but to persuade with old.' While following her sources conscientiously, she plays up facts, incidents and characteristics of her subject that might easily be overlooked, and lightens up the tale with fancied conversations. The form of writing chosen makes for interest, but not always for clarity."

Cath World 171:399 Ag '50 200w

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun p5 Jl 4 '50 500w

Reviewed by Fanny Butcher
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Je 18 '50 600w

Christian Century 67:1137 S 27 '50 350w

Reviewed by W. K. Rugg
Christian Science Monitor p16 Jl 7 '50 550w

"The Adams of Mrs. Bowen's fancy bears little resemblance to the Adams who earned his place in American history. And perhaps there is no need to say that the New England created by Mrs. Bowen is at once coy and unconvincing. . . Mrs. Bowen is not only superficial, she is tedious. We might forgive her interminable imaginary conversations, her endless imaginary incidents, if only she were entertaining." Wayne Andrews

— Commonweal 52:324 Jl 7 '50 650w

Current Hist 19:104 Ag '50 40w

+ Kirkus 18:250 Ap 15 '50 340w

"A delightfully written biography of one of America's great figures. . . Highly recommended." J. H. Berthel

+ Library J 75:1043 Je 15 '50 140w

"Zestful reading." Ferris Greenslet

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 Je 18 '50 2550w

"It is a great achievement to have re-created Adams so faithfully, to have re-created the era of the American Revolution." H. S. Commager

+ N Y Times p1 Je 18 '50 2350w

"Dealing with one of the most interesting, though not particularly exciting, men in American history, and having all kinds of material at her disposal, the author has brought forth a volume that more nearly resembles a fictional novel than anything else. In addition, she seems to have completely missed the point about Adams. . . The author has done her research well and has tried to stick to it. But her powers of invention seem to flag when there is no research to depend upon. . . Mrs. Bowen is better when she is reconstructing the Braintree and the Boston John Adams lived in; her décor is fine." Hamilton Basso

— + New Yorker 26:69 Jl 1 '50 900w

Reviewed by Carolyn Stull
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Je 11 '50 2350w

"An indefatigable worker, a researcher with a passion for accuracy, Mrs. Bowen has written a book that will stand beside any that have been written about the Revolutionary period, both for its readability and its respect for facts. Even the conversations she has invented out of the documents and manuscripts that have survived all these years have none of the annoying qualities dialogues of this kind so often have. It is true that Mrs. Bowen has discovered no new facts about Adams or the times he lived in, but she has given the old, old facts, grown thin through years of repetitious usage, a new meaning and flavor." Karl Schriftgiesser

+ Sat R of Lit 33:11 Je 17 '50 1350w

"Catherine Drinker Bowen's John Adams and the American Revolution, a thorough, vivivaciously readable fictional biography of 'Old Sink or Swim,' polishes up lackluster John to his proper historical brightness. The result is a handsome illumination of the first 40 years of John's life."

+ Time 55:98 Je 19 '50 800w

Wis Lib Bul 46:26 Je '50

BOWEN, ELIZABETH (MRS ALAN CAMERON). Collected impressions. 269p $3.50 Knopf

824 Literature—History and criticism
50-4637

This collection of "fugitive" essays contains a number of book prefaces—to the Flaubert omnibus, the Faber Book of Modern Short Stories, etc.—; book reviews; articles on plays, pictures, and places; and other miscellaneous papers. The author is known as a novelist, short story writer and critic.

Reviewed by C. J. Rolo
Atlantic 186:85 Ag '50 750w

Bookmark 10:3 O '50 30w

"Unlike most books bearing the Knopf imprint, it is typographically ugly and hard to read. As a critic, Miss Bowen is too often pedantically wordy. Exceptions are her essays on Flaubert, Fanny Burney, the Salsburg Festival and a broadcast done for the BBC on Anthony Trollope. For literateurs only."

— + Chicago Sun p5 Jl 25 '50 70w

Reviewed by Fanny Butcher
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ag 6 '50 600w

Cleveland Open Shelf p14 Ag '50

"All reflect a quickened consciousness—intellectual, emotional, artistic—a taste which is refined and trained, a prose which has been perfected by discipline. For the many, a collection such as this is of unlikely appeal; but for the literary following which is hers, the creative criticism here offers a distinct pleasure disproportionate to ultimate significance."

+ Kirkus 18:344 Je 15 '50 150w

"This is a volume to be cherished and to be used by writers and readers and one for all libraries to buy." K. T. Willis

+ Library J 75:1177 Jl '50 140w

Manchester Guardian p4 My 26 '50 480w

Reviewed by Joseph Kraft
Nation 171:190 Ag 26 '50 1050w

"Miss Bowen's reviews of books make wonderful reading and are totally out of balance. As might be expected, her great talent interferes with her ability to do an ordinary workmanlike review. The fine analysis and imagination she invests create an effulgence around a book which, one suspects, may not be native to it." Kate Simon

+ — New Repub 123:20 S 11 '50 600w

Reviewed by Naomi Lewis
New Statesman & Nation 39:610 My 27 '50 1000w

"'Collected Impressions' is an imposing exhibit of the criticism of a first-rate novelist. Readers may well prefer Elizabeth Bowen, the novelist; they may do so without in the least undervaluing the excellence of Elizabeth Bowen the critic." Milton Rugoff

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Ag 6 '50 1150w

Reviewed by R. G. Davis
N Y Times p5 Jl 23 '50 950w

"Miss Bowen is as brilliant and many-sided as any writer living, and in this medley of pieces she is at her diamond-hard, diamond-bright best."

+ New Yorker 26:73 Ag 12 '50 110w

San Francisco Chronicle p24 O 22 '50 600w

"Miss Bowen's criticism is like that of many creative writers, in that she views the work of other authors in the light of the problems with which she herself has wrestled and measures that work by the standards that she has set for her own. This is a limitation, but it is also a source of strength, for it gives her a consistent critical approach and a firm basis of judgment." B. R. Redman

+ Sat R of Lit 33:11 S 2 '50 700w

" 'Too often,' says Miss Bowen in her review of E. M. Forster's Abinger Harvest, 'collections are to be dreaded. They are the severest test a writer can face. . . Cumulatively the effect may be desolating, showing up unsuspected weaknesses in other work.' And, indeed, the reprinting of short reviews, long essays, radio plays, topographical essays and a memoir of schooldays might become a variation of what Sir Kenneth Clark has called 'a well-known form of literary suicide.' Collected Impressions, however, not only survives the ordeal but reveals Miss Bowen as an occasional writer and critic of distinction, as ready to undertake a spirited appraisal of the Royal Academy Summer Exhibition as to consider profoundly the nature of the novelist's art." Michael Swan

+ Spec 184:618 My 5 '50 700w

"Many of these Collected Impressions are reprinted reviews recording [Miss Bowen's] pleasure with some very ordinary books, and they will explain why her British fellow authors wait eagerly for her notices of their work. It is rarely that she lets anything pass without a kind word, quotable on a book jacket. Yet for all her egalitarian treatment of geese and swans, she writes with such grace and elegance that she is always worth reading. Her own virtues bring her home even when she is farthest off the beam."

+ — Time 56:70 Jl 31 '50 390w

"Set beside Abinger Harvest, or Virginia Woolf's miscellanies, these pieces may fail to achieve an appearance of garnered wisdom, and not every reader will go all the way with the author when she claims that 'they combine into something which is one of the many imponderable by-products of history.' None the less, they all bear witness to the unfolding felicity of phrase in which Miss Bowen has clothed impressions of books and places—impressions always sensitively recorded and sometimes of rare value in themselves."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p352 Je 9 '50 1350w

BOWEN, ROBERT SIDNEY (JAMES ROBERT RICHARD, pseud). Ball hawk. 180p $2 Lothrop

50-6171

Story of a college baseball star who after graduation goes into professional baseball. After a few tough lessons he finally makes the grade in a big league team. For older boys.

Booklist 46:265 Ap 15 '50

Bookmark 9:187 My '50 30w

Reviewed by Robert Cromie

Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 My 14 '50 90w

"Good baseball, easy style and engaging characters, should find a large spring market."

Kirkus 18:206 Ap 1 '50 130w

"Run-of-the-mill, but will do if you need new titles badly. Ages 12-14." Lillian Morrison

Library J 75:989 Je 1 '50 70w

Reviewed by R. A. Brown

N Y Times p11 Jl 2 '50 80w

BOWEN, ROBERT SIDNEY (JAMES ROBERT RICHARD, pseud). Club team. 168p $2 Lothrop

"Tells the story of Tommy Temple, a newcomer to Trinity City, who became a member of the Boys' Club and sought to be its best pitcher. His rival for that position was the son of a local banker who would, and did, go to almost any length to maintain his superiority." Sat R of Lit

---

"A story that should appeal immensely to young customers." Robert Cromie

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 N 12 '50 90w

Kirkus 18:562 S 15 '50 100w

"Not a bad story except for a finale which is a little hard to swallow and a touch of goody-goodiness which, however, is counterbalanced by some excellent fist fights. Perhaps, the younger boys will take it all in stride. For ages 10-14." Lillian Morrison

+ — Library J 75:1675 O 1 '50 70w

Reviewed by R. A. Brown

Sat R of Lit 33:60 N 11 '50 60w

BOWER, MARVIN, ed. Development of executive leadership [introd. by Donald Kirk David]. 130p $2.50 Harvard univ. press

658.3124 Leadership. Executives 49-50017

"The various sections of this book are based on speeches the authors made at the Nineteenth Annual Conference of the Harvard Business School Association held June 11, 1949 at Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration, Soldiers Field, Boston. . . This volume is a companion to the report of the Eighteenth Annual Conference of the Association, held in 1948. . . The present volume describes how business can develop leaders who are equipped to discharge the responsibilities dealt with in the 1948 Conference." p x

---

Booklist 46:228 Mr 15 '50

Reviewed by Winifred Baum

Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 My 14 '50 50w

Reviewed by Roy Hillbrook

Current Hist 18:40 Ja '50 30w

"A worthwhile book for top executives and for those aspiring to business leadership."

+ Kirkus 17:596 O 15 '49 120w

"An arresting book." J. E. Cross

+ Library J 74:1823 D 1 '49 130w

"Business leaders are usually objective, extrovert, not much given to questioning their place in the social scheme. This small book reveals them in a rare, soul-searching mood." Palmer Harman

Sat R of Lit 33:46 Ja 28 '50 600w

BOWER, MRS URSULA GRAHAM. Drums behind the hill [Eng title: Naga path]. 270p il maps $4 Morrow

915.4 India—Social life and customs. Nagas 50-9408

In 1937 the English author of this book, then aged twenty-three, got her first sight of the hill country of India. She knew she must return to live there because of her spiritual affinity for the place and the people. She lived for ten years among a head-hunting tribe of Nagas, studied and photographed them, and came to love them. They in turn regarded her as their Elder Sister, their mother, and perhaps even the reincarnation of their goddess. This is the story of her experiences. Glossary. Index.

Booklist 47:1; 38 S 1 '50; S 15 '50

Bookmark 10:29 N '50 40w

" 'Drums Behind the Hill' misses its mark—it is neither fish nor fowl. By that, I mean that it could have been a critical and readable analysis of a primitive people adapting to the impact of civilization, and it could have been a sparkling account of adventure and travel. In trying too hard to achieve both it does neither very well. The Naga are only dimly seen and imperfectly understood by the reader." W. M. Krogmar

Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 S 24 '50 410w

Christian Science Monitor p7 N 11 '50 1400w

"A record which contributes much which is unknown and unusual in a very readable rendition."

+ Kirkus 18:379 Jl 1 '50 150w

"Unfortunately the manner of presentation somewhat limits its clarity. Characterizations of several individual members of the tribe are good. Of limited appeal to general public and lacking in anthropological detail for the scientist." M. P. McKay

Library J 75:1396 S 1 '50 130w

BOWER, U. G.—Continued

"Some distinguished anthropologists have worked in Assam, and Miss Bower's knowledge of Naga life is probably as extensive as that of any of them. It is a pity that her writing is not really an adequate vehicle to convey this information and that it cannot reflect the spirit which impelled her to her undertakings. She does, however, persuade us that to be a hill tribesman may, for certain tastes be the nicest thing in the world." G. W.
+ — Manchester Guardian p5 D 15 '50 300w

Reviewed by J. A. Smith
New Statesman & Nation 40:405 N 4 '50 240w

"Never has a book been written with more modesty than this. . . Miss Bower's book has faults; it is overloaded with names and initials, its map seems unrelated to any landmark that the average person would know, its written geography will not, I am afraid, become very clear to the reader, but I found in it something I have not found in the others, a spiritual affinity with its subject." Rumer Godden
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 S 10 1250w

"The book is impressive in its simplicity and veracity. There is not a shred of romancing or heightened color; the facts do not need them. One gets through the book and with a jolt realizes that there has been hardly an expression of emotion for any of the human beings—not even the lucky husband who wins her in a courtship and marriage that have a priceless quality, something quite mad and oddly British." H. L. Matthews
+ N Y Times p35 S 10 '50 550w

"A kind of combination of a ethnological study and informal travel book, it makes much better reading than you might think, concerning as it does a region of which you may never have heard. . . She illustrates her book with excellent photographs of her own, and many of her pictures constitute the only available record of the customs, crafts and general way of life of the Nagas. Altogether this is a first-rate personal adventure, and a lot of readers are going to enjoy it tremendously as an introduction to what will be for most of them a wholly new corner of the world." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p12 S 4 '50 850w

"Miss Bower's good humor and enthusiasm are infectious. You will enjoy her story and perhaps understand something of the fascination which the rarefied air of the Naga country had for her. Most of all you will envy her, for here is someone who has had the un-Freudian notion of seeking romance away from her own kind and whose enterprise paid off in rare wonder and adventure." J. G. Hitrec
+ Sat R of Lit 33:14 D 23 '50 750w

Reviewed by Ralph Arnold
Spec 184:388 O 13 '50 550w

Reviewed by Ethel Dexter
Springf'd Republican p12C S 17 '50 500w

Times [London] Lit Sup p608 S 29 '50 950w

BOWERS, CLAUDE GERNADE. Pierre Vergniaud; voice of the French revolution. 535p il $6.50 Macmillan

B or 92 Vergniaud, Pierre. France—History—Revolution 50-11553

Biography of a lawyer from Bordeaux, who became a great orator during the days of the French revolution, associating himself with the Girondist group in Paris during 1791-1793. Bibliography. Index.

"Claude Bowers, an American newspaperman turned author and ambassador, makes a thoughtful contribution in his biografy of Pierre Vergniaud." R. M. Brace
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 N 26 '50 450w

"Here is a biography that combines exhaustive research with vigorous presentation. An important addition to the literature of the French Revolution."
+ Kirkus 18:503 Ag 15 '50 170w

"Claude Bowers's exciting and passionately partisan biography is the first study in the English language of the long-neglected deputy and once famous orator of the Gironde. . . For all Mr. Bowers's great scholarship and fascinating exposition, his pages are often more allegory than history, virtue outraged and vice triumphant. Merely sampling the voluminous literature on the Revolution would show how sharply refracted is the author's image." Leo Gershoy
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 D 3 '50 1450w

"The great orator, who was so unfortunate in his life, was at last fortunate in his biographer. Claude G. Bowers combines exhaustive research and complete mastery of his subjects with the art of making a period, or a man, come alive again." Andre Maurois
+ N Y Times p5 N 19 '50 1000w

"While the author has read the leading works written on the French Revolution during the past forty years he has not allowed himself to be influenced by them. . . The book takes a commendable stand for humanity and broad toleration, but it will revise no judgments on the French Revolution." R. R. Palmer
+ Sat R of Lit 33:17 D 9 '50 1000w

BOWERS, FREDSON THAYER. Principles of bibliographical description. 505p il $10 Princeton univ. press

010.1 Bibliography—Theory, methods, etc. 50-5180

"In this volume, Mr. Bowers makes a complete analysis of the descriptive principles which guide a bibliography. From these principles, he develops the methods by which each part of a book is described according to a standard system which can be commonly understood. Each step in the description is explained in detail and illustrated by numerous examples which cover both the usual and the special problems encountered by the bibliographer." Special Libraries

"For the uninitiated the arrangement of the book creates some difficulty. Not infrequently problems explained in later chapters are essential to the understanding of earlier parts. Short of adopting textbook writing techniques such difficulties are probably inevitable; moreover, the full and detailed table of contents will guide the reader easily to the different major divisions of the book. But it is likely that the Principles will be used primarily as a handbook, or book of reference. It is, therefore, regrettable that the index is not more comprehensive. . . A completed list of abbreviations and symbols (such as HT for half-title) would have been desirable. In conclusion it may well be said that the Principles of Bibliographical Description provide us, as the author had intended, with the scientific foundation for the proper description of books." Rudolf Hirsch
+ — Library J 75:1040 Je 15 '50 850w
Special Libraries 41:146 Ap '50 100w

"Professor Bowers has written a formidable work, but one that deserves careful study by those producing detailed bibliographies. . . The length of the book arises partly from a certain amount of repetition and partly from the author's attempt to place bibliography on the plane of, say, pure mathematics. . . Notwithstanding some faults, the book will be of great value to bibliographers if it is borne in mind that their first aim is to describe editions, issues, &c., as well as they can, rather than to elaborate a system of symbols not easily understood."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p620 S 29 '50 1150w

"Bibliographical description is still a subject of controversy, and, although his book is rather long and involved, Mr. Bowers' thorough presentation of his point of view should stimulate productive thinking and discussion."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:127 Mr '50 320w

BOWKER, ARCHIBALD EDGAR. Behind the bar [fifty years in the Temple as clerk to Sir Edward Marshall-Hall and to Sir Norman Birkett]. 323p il $3.75 Staples press, inc, 70 E. 45th st, N.Y. 17

340.9 Hall, Sir Edward Marshall. Birkett, Sir Norman. Trials 49-48880

"American lawyers are generally aware of the division of the English legal profession into barristers and solicitors, but few know of the role played by the barrister's clerk. The clerk, apart from his duties as office manager, decides what cases his barrister will take, determines what fees he will charge, and assists in the preparation of cases for trial; he is, in short, more than a secretary but less than a partner. This book, the reminiscences of a man who was a barrister's clerk for more than forty years, is an account of the place which such men occupy in the English legal system. The barristers whom Mr. Bowker served, Sir Edward Marshall Hall and Sir Norman Birkett, participated in many of the famous trials of this century, and the book consists very largely of brief descriptions of those cases." (Harvard Law R) Index.

"Mr. Bowker writes lucidly and conveys admirably the atmosphere and spirit in which litigation is carried on in England."
+ Harvard Law R 63:1488 Je '50 200w
+ New Yorker 25:82 Ja 7 '50 220w

BOWLE, JOHN. Unity of European history; a political and cultural survey. 383p $4 Oxford

940 Europe—History [49-588]

"This book is an attempt to bring home to ordinary men and women, sickened and bewildered by the tragedies of our times, the solid achievements of the past; to take a short view of the perspective of European history; and to give some account of our civilization's success." School & Society

"Interesting and well-written book. . . Several mistakes of fact, which are remarkably few for so comprehensive a study, have been noticed. . . Having objected to the author's strained interpretation of European history, the reviewer wishes to commend him for stressing the Christian and humanist values of our heritage." W. C. Buthman
+ — Am Hist R 56:93 O '50 600w

"Mr. Bowle is at his best in discussing modern theory, and in these sections his work is stimulating, if a bit out of date. For the rest, the book is merely another history of civilization. . . The book is too sketchy to be a textbook and too much of a general text to be popular; but for a lay reader it has considerable merit, and the author would seem to have accomplished the goal he set himself. The book would be almost perfect for a discussion by a ladies' cultural society, and would afford them stimulating material." J. L. LaMonte
Ann Am Acad 263:229 My '49 1350w

"The student of European history will find in this one volume an excellent and well balanced summary. The lay reader will find a lucid, intelligible, and highly instructive account of the complex of European history." W. A. N.
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Je 6 '50 410w

"This excellent brief survey of European history since the earliest times has two special claims to distinction. It is one of the most compact, balanced and judicious texts to appear in recent years and it is infused with a sane confidence in the durability of the European achievement. No short review can illustrate the sure focus, shrewd judgments and incisive style that make every page a distillation of ripe historical wisdom. Its fault, if it has one, lies in the embarrassment of its riches." Geoffrey Bruun
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Jl 23 '50 400w

"The underlying theme of this well-tempered survey is the need for adapting and preserving these basic values in a world of pernicious nationalism and class war, in an age increasingly dominated by scientific power. It is written in readable English without hesitancies or undue qualifications." Quentin Keith
+ N Y Times p15 Ag 13 '50 650w

Reviewed by P. R. Levin
Sat R of Lit 33:30 N 11 '50 270w
School & Society 69:118 F 12 '49 50w

"It is a merit of this stimulating book that it provokes a great variety of questions and yields interest on every page."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p591 O 23 '48 1850w

"Mr. Bowle's book should be warmly recommended to American readers and perhaps also for introductory college courses, though it does not clearly recognize the participation of America in the common heritage nor the fact that the closest integration with North America is essential to the stabilization of Western Europe. . . In spite of the conventional optimism of the last three pages, the reader will find in the main body of the book, not a tract for the times like so many that are being written, but a solid, succinct, and readable history for our time." Hans Kohn
+ Yale R n s 40:176 autumn '50 1050w

BOWLES, PAUL FREDERIC. Delicate prey, and other stories. 307p $3 Random house 50-10899

Seventeen short stories, all more or less violent, by the author of The Sheltering Sky (Book Review Digest 1949).

"Horrific, unpleasant, sadistic, these stories just avoid the deep end, but are unqualifyingly talented."
Kirkus 18:659 N 1 '50 200w

"These stories are strong stuff, but they are quietly and skillfully written. Their author knows how to tell a story and create an atmosphere, whether its setting is North Africa, the South American jungle, or mid-town Manhattan. There is variety and excitement in this collection, much that is revolting and horrible, but no melodrama and nothing cheap or banal. Recommended." Shirley Barker
+ Library J 75:2001 N 15 '50 110w

"In 'The Delicate Prey' Mr. Bowles is preoccupied with violence and death. Much of this almost Gothic violence arises from the clash of the civilized with the primitive, but more basically it stems from the fact that Mr. Bowles's characters (both enlightened and native) are warped and morbid beings. They are all, if not mad, severely neurotic, hugging to themselves some quietly terrible frustration, some taint, some malevolent perverseness that finally can no longer be controlled and explodes with twisted fury. Most of the stories end on a note of sheer terror." J. J. Maloney
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 D 3 '50 900w

"Plainly, he is a gifted writer, intense, simple, saying exactly what he means and no more and no less—the kind of writing that writers, especially, enjoy and admire and that is even easier on the general reader. For all their violence, these tales are actionless, which is to say characterless, and vice versa. Yet these stories are the kind that Paul Bowles wanted to write and did write, and no other; and they should be respected as such." Charles Jackson
N Y Times p6 D 3 '50 900w

"In all this passivity and menace, not a spark of human feeling lives, although at times the tension is broken, but not illuminated, by a sudden, reasonless flare of violence. Where such a flare occurs, passivity changes to defeat, but some of the stories lack even that much development. However, the writing—steady, melancholy, and colloquial—is an excellent conveyor of the atmosphere within an atmosphere in which Mr. Bowles' creatures exist."
New Yorker 26:167 D 9 '50 160w

"The volume contains among several fine stories at least one that is a true masterpiece of short fiction—'A distant Episode,' published first in Partisan Review. In this story Paul Bowles states the same theme which he developed more fully in his later novel. The theme is the collapse of the civilized 'Super

The San Francisco Theological Seminary

BOWLES, P. F.—Continued
Ego' into a state of almost mindless primitivism, totally dissociated from society except as an object of its unreasoning hostility. It is his extremely powerful handling of this theme again and again in his work which makes Paul Bowles probably the American writer who represents most truly the fierily and blindly explosive world that we live in so precariously from day and night to each uncertain tomorrow." Tennessee Williams

+ Sat R of Lit 33:19 D 23 '50 1250w

BOYD, WILLIAM CLOUSER. Genetics and the races of man; an introduction to modern physical anthropology. 453p il maps $6 Little

575.1 Anthropology. Race. Genetics 50-10012

"A textbook on the intermediate level, for supplementary reading by those students grounded in elementary genetics and anthropology. Most profitable in college, medical, and scientific libraries, while public libraries should provide it for very ambitious readers. Timely, because racial theories were one cause of World War II." (Library J) Index.

Kirkus 18:325 Je 1 '50 270w

Reviewed by J. M. Scherr
Library J 75:1653 O 1 '50 130w

"Dr. Boyd, an authority on blood groups and immunology, has turned his hand to the broader implications of his field to the problems of genetics and race. He has succeeded in presenting in a lucid, accurate manner a body of recent information which should convince any reasonable person that all men are brothers in chromosomes as well as in spirit." J. W. H.
San Francisco Chronicle p12 N 26 '50 230w

BOYER, FRANCOIS. Secret game [tr. by Michael Legat]. 187p $2.50 Harcourt 50-8587

Tragic little story of Paulette, a nine-year-old war orphan. She wanders away from a column of refugees, after her father and mother had been killed, and is taken in by a family of French peasants. Paulette and Michel, the youngest child of the family invent a game of deaths and crosses, as an attempt at escape from their dreary lives. Michel's tragic end closes the story.

"A disappointing novel." Mary Sandrock
— Cath World 172:154 N '50 220w

Reviewed by J. F. Nims
Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 S 10 '50 400w

"Apart from its art, quite classic in its proportion, this book should be read by all. With an economy of means not a little remindful of the best French movies, for which Francois Boyer writes, the story of The Secret Game moves on inexorably, its quiet horror staring the reader in the face, until he comes to know the tearful truth, that there is no escape from judgment for having caused 'a child's tear.'" C. H. Bishop
+ Commonweal 52:562 S 15 '50 1050w
Kirkus 18:391 Jl 15 '50 200w

"A fine study of the elusive mystery of childhood." W. K. Harrison
+ Library J 75:1410 S 1 '50 100w

Reviewed by Paul Bloomfield
Manchester Guardian p5 F 24 '50 70w

Reviewed by Jean Garrigue
New Repub 123:21 O 16 '50 300w

"Exquisite, pitiful and terrifying study of the mind of a child caught in the cruel trap of total warfare. This child, with the unimaginable resilience of the young, devises a series of emotional refuges for itself in a series which, somehow, lead to the invention of a truly fascinating and obsessive pastime. . . Subtle, almost laconic writing and an extreme economy of style convey, between the lines, the complexities of childhood existence even in the barest and most rustic of surroundings and bring home urgently the mystery of that world in which the very young take shelter from the perplexities of life." Iris Barry
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Ag 13 '50 600w

"An interesting, honest, small work; not perfect, not in the least a cameo, done objectively, at arm's length. No one speaks or acts except the characters. The author is nowhere visible, though he could be the voice of the narrator, a little dry and bitter, following the action of the film; but the shadows on the screen are full of mysterious feeling, they are not puppets but shadows cast by the living." K. A. Porter
+ N Y Times p5 Ag 20 '50 800w

"M. Boyer writes with calmness, his sympathy held well back, and creates an atmosphere of overpowering pity and anger."
+ New Yorker 26:72 Ag 12 '50 50w

"Aside from Richard Hughes, (one always come back to The Innocent Voyage), few writers have realized the monster-inhabited world of a child's mind, and fewer still have been able to present it so that the adult finds it convincing. M. Boyer is one of the few." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ag 15 '50 650w

"'The Secret Game' (which, by the way, has been excellently translated) is imaginative, sensitive, and extremely moving. The reader can only hope that this gifted young writer will stay with his new medium, or at least divide his time between the films and the novel." Pamela Taylor
+ Sat R of Lit 33:13 Ag 26 '50 550w

"Author Boyer has hit upon a powerful idea for suggesting the havoc that war can leave in children's minds, but he has hardly done more than suggest it. Writing with an economy that amounts to sparseness, he comes closer to achieving a fine scenario than a fine novel."
Time 56:87 Ag 14 '50 400w
Times [London] Lit Sup p117 F 24 '50 240w

BOYLAN, MALCOLM STUART. Tin sword. 312p $3 Little 50-9683

"Joshua Doty, the hero, is a physically precocious youth fired with the martial spirit by his grandmother; he leaves a trail of disappointed women in his wake before his cardiac condition is cured by Freudian means and he becomes a Lieutenant Colonel at 19, in time for World War I. He also has amusing experiences in journalism." Library J

Booklist 47:54; 61 O 1 '50

"A very humorous, imaginative and well handled novel, with a scapegrace sophistication."
Kirkus 18:434 Ag 1 '50 130w

"The author was 'the foremost title writer of the silent days' of motion pictures; his humor is largely of the bedroom and bath variety; and his free use of the names of actual people (i.e., the Otis Skinners) seems dubious. Fairly diverting, though." E. F. Walbridge
Library J 75:1660 O 1 '50 110w
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p22 O 29 '50 320w

"The style, a watered-down Cabellese, suggests that Mr. Boylan enjoyed himself immensely—and gave up only when he had tired of the game. . . The author, according to a publisher's release, is considered a Dickens authority by some. It does seem too bad that he could not have learned from Mr. Pickwick that a personality in fiction must be believable before he can be laughed at." Harrison Kinney
N Y Times p35 O 22 '50 250w

"This is a funny, rowdy, and thoroughly unpredictable novel; it sounds as if it had been written all in one breath, and it probably should be read in the same way." Milton Crane
Sat R of Lit 33:15 D 16 '50 430w

"The book sets a sparkling and humorous pace through the first few chapters but lags at the middle and peters out at the end." R. F. Henchey

+ — Springf'd Republican p19A O 15 '50 170w

BOYLSTON, MRS HELEN (DORE). Sue Barton, neighborhood nurse; with front. by Major Felton. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 236p $2.50 Little

49-11907

This is the first Sue Barton book in ten years. In it Sue has been married to Dr Bill for some years and they have three children. The story is of Sue's cleverness in managing her own lively little family, and of her help to the neighbors in the New Hampshire community, where her husband is head of the hospital. For older girls.

"This type of book is needed, and Sue Barton is such a natural, likable, real person, that a Sue Barton, wife and mother story, is all to the good."

+ Kirkus 17:514 S 15 '49 120w

Reviewed by Esther Gorey

Library J 74:1552 O 15 '49 70w

Reviewed by K. H. McAlarney

Library J 75:408 Mr 1 '50 60w

"It is all pretty sentimental, and thought-provoking only on the same level as the other Barton books, but without their nursing background." L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ja 29 '50 90w

"This is an easy, natural story with a satisfying background for those girls who like domestic settings." E. L. B.

+ N Y Times p58 N 20 '49 180w

Wis Lib Bul 46:25 Ja '50

BOZEMAN, MRS ADDA BRUEMMER. Regional conflicts around Geneva. (Hoover lib. ser. on war, revolution and peace. Publication) 432p $5 Stanford univ. press

949.4 Europe—Politics. Geneva. Savoy. Savoie, Haute, France (department) Gex, France 49-10185

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

"The book is thoroughgoing, and, indeed, it tends to be repetitious here and there, but the task of organization is a very difficult one; it has been performed in the main with skill. This reader found the maps rather unsatisfactory. The frontispiece map is too crowded; the same items should be included in a double-page insert of the quality to be found in any textbook. The half-dozen sketch maps are adequate but they do not delight the eye." W. O. Ault

+ — Am Hist R 55:424 Ja '50 400w

Reviewed by W. E. Rappard

Ann Am Acad 268:201 Mr '50 650w

Foreign Affairs 28:683 Jl '50 30w

"Because principles were evolved, laws, tested, compromises made, and lessons learned, the author believes the region's story to be 'a case study of international importance' illustrating the 'need for an adjustment between geographic facts and political ambitions.' In weighing the present European problems, Miss Bozeman concludes, one should not ignore the experience of Gex and Upper Savoy in customs arrangements and neutralization. Her book, fully documented, solidly written and devoid of any attempt to popularize, will be of interest chiefly to advanced students of international law and diplomacy."

U S Quarterly Bkl 5:502 D '49 290w

BRACKE, WILLIAM B. Wheat country. (American folkways ser) 309p $3.50 Duell

917.81 Kansas 50-6934

This volume in the American Folkways series is devoted to the state of Kansas. The author is a third-generation Kansan. He begins with the Spanish exploration period and brings the history of the state up to the present. Index.

Booklist 46:332 Jl 1 '50

Reviewed by Russell MacFall

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Jl 23 '50 100w

Kirkus 18:126 F 15 '50 150w

"Of course, any regional survey must of necessity lean heavily on the tremendous mass of research done by the W. P. A. Writers' Project for the Federal Guidebook Series. But Mr. Bracke's book is considerably more than a re-write of this W. P. A. research. He has done some spade work of his own and, more important still, he has brought the material up to date, with the result that he has done for a typical Mid-Western state what Middletown did for an average small American city." W. L. White

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Ap 30 '50 1000w

"The materials treated have in them color, life and humor. But there isn't a really amusing paragraph in the whole book. William Bracke shovels his material in, often with skimped punctuation and occasionally with sentences of which he, as an English teacher, should be ashamed. He is best with personalities." Hal Borland

+ — N Y Times p21 Ap 23 '50 270w

"No state of our Union has a gaudier history than this geographic heart of the nation; none has produced a more fascinating gallery of 'characters' nor expressed more effectively (often in caricature) what most of us regard as the 'essential nature' of America. And William Bracke, himself a third-generation Kansan, has managed not only to present a multitude of interesting facts about his native state but also to capture much of her paradoxical, exasperating, yet remarkably vital spirit. . . It's a pity that Mr. Bracke has never really learned to write English. He's a college professor of the subject, too! No amount of gusto, and he has lots of it, can quite obscure his faulty word choice, his garbled metaphors, his frequently execrable sentence structure." K. S. Davis

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:49 My 13 '50 700w

Wis Lib Bul 46:25 Je '50

BRACKETT, OLIVER. English furniture illustrated; rev and ed. by H. Clifford Smith. 300p $15 Macmillan

749 Furniture 50-14046

"A pictorial review of English furniture from Chaucer to Queen Victoria." (Subtitle) The book first appeared in 1927 as An Encyclopaedia of English Furniture (Book Review Digest 1928) and has been revised by H. Clifford Smith, a one-time associate of the late Mr Brackett at the Victoria and Albert Museum. "Mr. Smith has added many more [illustrations], and incorporates a large amount of original research in the form of notes on each illustration. He also adds two notes to the letterpress, one on Daniel Marot, the French architect and designer whose undoubted influence in this country [England] has never fully been explored, and the other on the cabinet-maker Vile and the upholsterer Cobb." (Times [London] Lit Sup) Notes on illustrations. Index.

"Not only will this handsome volume . . . doubtless prove an invaluable guide to collectors, but anybody with the slightest feeling for antique furniture is bound to treasure it as a beautiful picture book."

+ New Yorker 26:143 O 21 '50 110w

"Mr. Smith has added to Mr. Brackett's original work a number of new illustrations and a fine and particularly useful section describing the reproductions. Here known data and anecdotes regarding the pieces are given. The book is a useful one for students of English furniture, and for those interested only in home decoration it will serve as a guide to selection." R. L. Howell

+ Sat R of Lit 33:68 O 7 '50 800w

Reviewed by Sacheverell Sitwell

Spec 184:569 N 24 '50 1000w

BRACKETT, OLIVER—Continued

"A happy use has been made of reproductions of contemporary pictures showing interiors and conversation pieces. . . Many of the fine pieces in the possession of the King are shown, and also some particularly good chairs belonging to the city guilds. Mr. Smith continues well into the nineteenth century, but he is content discreetly to suggest that period by contemporary pictures which admirably show the comfort without too closely examining the design."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p339 Je 2 '50 900w

BRADBURY, RAY. Martian chronicles. 222p $2.50 Doubleday

50-7660

"Covering the years 1999 to 2026 A. D., the 'Chronicles' tell of successive visits to Mars by tellurians—first the spacemen, then the tycoons, then the odd types (like amateur arboriculturists and hot-dog-stand owners), and finally the survivors of the last large-scale war on Earth. The reception given the Earth people by the Martians, whose civilization is different from ours, is unfriendly." N Y Times

Booklist 46:336 Jl 1 '50

Reviewed by Anthony Boucher
Chicago Sun p6 Je 4 '50 400w

Reviewed by August Derleth
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 My 21 '50 300w

Kirkus 18:144 Mr 1 '50 90w

Reviewed by E. F. Walbridge
Library J 75:774 My 1 '50 100w

"Earth people will find the 'Chronicles' suspenseful and, at times, funny." Rex Lardner

N Y Times p21 My 7 '50 100w

Reviewed by Don Fabun
San Francisco Chronicle p18 My 14 '50 150w

Reviewed by Fletcher Pratt
Sat R of Lit 33:32 Je 17 '50 150w

BRADFORD, SAMUEL CLEMENT. Documentation. 156p $3 Public affairs press

010 Documentation. Bibliography—Theory, methods, etc. [49-12638]

"Discussion of the importance of systems of documentation, with chapters on the several branches: subject indexes, library service, the Universal Decimal Classification, etc." Current Hist

Reviewed by S. J. Buck
Am Hist R 55:954 Jl '50 200w

Reviewed by W. C. Grover
Ann Am Acad 270:183 Jl '50 400w

"This reviewer was disappointed to find the coverage is not as broad, and the treatment is not as critical and analytical as would be expected in a book. For example, the discussion of alphabetical subject indexing consists of a listing of its shortcomings, while the UDC is mentioned at length in practically every chapter, and its merits extolled without stint. There is no mention of Chemical Abstracts. There is no bibliography or index." R. S. Casey

Chem & Eng N 28:1601 My 8 '50 150w

Current Hist 18:230 Ap '50 30w

"The collection is largely a compilation of previously published articles and suffers from the lack of organization inherent in such compilations. Nevertheless, it is the most nearly complete treatment and the most accessible source that we now have in English. . . Despite the weakness of its specific proposals, the volume is important as a synthetic presentation of the problems of documentation and should be useful in directing the attention of American librarians to the importance of bibliographical control in some form and to the need for further investigations of this neglected aspect of librarianship." M. E. Egan

Library Q 20:204 Jl '50 1400w

BRADSHAW, THORNTON F. Developing men for controllership. 231p $3.25 Harvard univ. Division of res.

658.15 Accountants. Executives 50-7969

"This book is concerned with the problem of what companies can do to develop men for the management function of controllership. . . The author, Assistant professor of Business administration, is one of the group teaching the subject of Control in the first year program, Elements of administration, at the Harvard Business School." (Publisher's note) Index.

Reviewed by W. H. Newman
Ann Am Acad 272:235 N '50 230w

Reviewed by Winifred Baum
Chicago Sunday Tribune p18 S 10 '50 60w

"Following the tradition of the Harvard Business School, the book is primarily a report of contemporary business practices. The case examples are well selected, and are presented with enough explanation to be of practical use to those facing problems of executive development. The book is, perhaps, the best single source yet available describing current business experience."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:355 S '50 200w

BRADY, ROBERT ALEXANDER. Crisis in Britain; plans and achievements of the Labour government. 730p maps $5 Univ. of Calif.

330.942 Socialism in Great Britain. Great Britain—Economic policy. Labor party (Great Britain) 50-8468

"An intensive examination, thoroughly documented, of the background and content of recent and proposed laws and related problems, effecting nationalization or control of Bank of England, Fuel and Power, Iron and Steel, Social Security, Health, etc.—all intended to lead towards a socialist commonwealth, and which Labour presents as a normal development, hence a middle way (Third Force) between communism and capitalism. . . Author believes that a revolutionary planning of productive methods is required at home, and drastic reorientation of colonial and foreign policy abroad." (Library J) Bibliographical footnotes. Index.

Booklist 47:127 D 1 '50

Chicago Sun p12 Ag 15 '50 60w

Foreign Affairs 29:158 O '50 120w

"A scholarly, basic contribution." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 75:1182 Jl '50 170w

Reviewed by J. B. Brebner
Nation 171:63 Jl 15 '50 1100w

Reviewed by Joseph Barnes
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 Ag 6 '50 1250w

"Mr. Brady, Professor of Economics at the University of California, spent eight months in Britain gathering the material for this magnum opus. The result is a work of reference that will be sought by all serious students of contemporary Britain and shunned by the general public. The author . . . has a point of view that is fair and tolerant, and no subject needs such an attitude more. His approach is neither biased nor dogmatic; it is that of a keenly interested research worker who puts down what he finds and does not stretch or distort the facts in his comments." H. L. Matthews

+ N Y Times p5 Jl 9 '50 410w

"Here is a very substantial study of contemporary Britain, centered on the problem of British material production, buttressed with statistical analyses, packed with details of the organization and administration of the Socialist experiment in Britain. . . He may well be right about the immediate future of Britain. But his book is at bottom a misleading analysis for it is based on a deceptively simple view of human society." Crane Brinton

Sat R of Lit 33:13 O 14 '50 750w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:341 S '50 280w

BRAHMS, CARYL, pseud. See Abrahams, D. C.

BRAITHWAITE, WILLIAM STANLEY BEAUMONT. Bewitched parsonage; the story of the Brontës. 238p il $3.50 Coward-McCann

928.2 Brontë family 50-10234

A new study of the Brontës and their work. The author considers Charlotte most fully, but he gives credit to Emily and Anne for their share of the Brontë writings. Branwell's blighted life is also considered. Bibliography. No index.

Booklist 47:74 O 15 '50

"The book is a good example of an all-too-rare kind. It is knowledgeable but not pedantic, both biografical and critical, a labor of love without being amateurish. Not only is it on a literary subject, but it is written with literary skill." A. C. Ames

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 D 10 '50 400w

Christian Science Monitor p13 D 9 '50 320w

"A book that all Bronte addicts will find of interest, and, for those who are not, this will be an exciting introduction to the family."

+ Kirkus 18:458 Ag 1 '50 180w

Reviewed by K. T. Willis

Library J 75:1653 O 1 '50 130w

Nation 171:537 D 9 '50 70w

"The familiar story is told with considerable freshness and with vigor and clarity. There is rather more about the Irish background of the Brontë family than is to be found in some recent biographical and critical studies, and Mr. Braithwaite believes that this Celtic element was an essential ingredient in the genius of the three sisters." S. C. Chew

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p21 O 15 '50 500w

"A pleasantly unpretentious addition to the continually expanding body of Brontë literature. 'The Bewitched Parsonage' is an extremely conservative book. . . Rather than dabble with mythology, the author sticks close to fact. His book displays good judgment and an intelligent appraisal of the labors of his predecessors." William Peden

+ N Y Times p5 O 8 '50 600w

"Mr. Braithwaite goes at his task with an air of misgiving. 'To tell again the story of the Brontës is to invite the captious eye of the literary historian,' he says. He needn't have been so apprehensive, for the book is excellent."

+ New Yorker 26:138 O 21 '50 150w

Reviewed by Ethel Dexter

Springf'd Republican p10C D 10 '50 360w

BRAMELD, THEODORE BURGHARD HURT. Ends and means in education; a midcentury appraisal. 244p $3 Harper

370.1 Education—Aims and objectives 50-6515

"It is not enough to associate Dr. Brameld with the school of 'future centered education.' More significant is the fact that he is one of its most eloquent spokesmen. The theses he presents are few but fertile: we must make constructive use of collectivism; education must be understood within the larger context of the ever-emerging American culture; education and politics (public understanding) must form an inevitable partnership; reconstruction must be the dominant note. . . Future centered education must concern itself with inter-cultural relations, workers' education, and understanding for an atomic age." (Library J) Index.

"Professor Brameld deals with the important issues in education in relation to concrete political and economic realities. The spirit is refreshing; he has the courage to take a 'radical' view at a most unpropitious time." I. B. Berkson

+ Ann Am Acad 271:218 S '50 410w

"A serious and substantiated analysis, for educators largely."

+ Kirkus 18:49 Ja 15 '50 170w

"This is a forward-looking book for libraries with forward-looking collections." Nathaniel Stewart

+ Library J 75:395 Mr 1 '50 70w

"'Ends and Means in Education' is a courageous outline of the 'reconstructionist' philosophy of education. It leaves many questions unanswered, as the author admits. (He promises a more systematic treatment in a book now in press.) Brameld's proposals will certainly provoke debate, and if, in the course of that debate, values are clarified the book will have served its purpose." L. P. Todd

Sat R of Lit 33:16 S 9 '50 550w

"Here is a book rich in practical suggestions for implementing educational ideas, yet remarkable for its intense vision of a new social order to which education can mightily contribute."

+ School & Society 71:124 F 25 '50 30w

Reviewed by W. W. Brickman

School & Society 72:277 O 28 '50 700w

Reviewed by Farnsworth Crowder

Survey 86:423 S '50 270w

BRANCH, EDGAR MARQUESS. Literary apprenticeship of Mark Twain; with selections from his apprentice writing. 325p il $4 Univ. of Ill.

B or 92 Clemens, Samuel Langhorne 50-7851

"A discussion of Twain's very early literary career and unpublished writings. . . This final touch on Twain as a Literary Figure is sustained by seventeen selections from the writings themselves." Sat R of Lit

Reviewed by Lawrance Thompson

N Y Times p4 Jl 2 '50 500w

"Professor Branch treats of these years in an entertaining and yet quite exhaustive manner. His method is to sketch Clemens' movements, and then to print representative selections from his writings in each period, and to comment at some length on them. The latter half of the book is devoted entirely to such selections, many of which will be easily available to Mark Twain fans here for the first time." G. S.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p13 S 3 '50 240w

"Aside from their bibliographical value, the products of Twain's 'literary apprenticeship' are so trivial that Mr. Branch's painstaking efforts seem wasted." Donald Richie

Sat R of Lit 33:33 S 23 '50 260w

BRANDEL, MARC, pseud. See Beresford, M.

BRANDT, KARL. Germany: key to peace in Europe; foreword by Harold W. Bradley. 109p $2.75 Claremont colleges

940.5314443 Germany—Politics and government. Reconstruction (1939-)—Germany 49-11332

"Upon his return in early 1949 from a year spent in Germany Dr. Karl Brandt of the Food Research Institute of Stanford University was invited to deliver a series of three lectures under the auspices of the Claremont Colleges. These have been published under the title Germany; Key to Peace in Europe, apparently without revision or elaboration. The first lecture, entitled 'American Foreign Policy Toward Germany,' is mainly a résumé of the events leading up to 1945. The second lecture, 'The Reconstruction of Germany,' describes various steps taken by military government to cope with economic problems. The final lecture, 'The Integration of Germany into Western Europe,' presumably summarizes Dr. Brandt's thinking as to the future of Germany." Am Pol Sci R

"As lectures intended for a mixed audience of undergraduates, graduates, faculty members, and townspeople, the general level naturally is somewhat elementary and hence there is, especially in the first two chapters, little which is at all new to anyone who has even a bowing acquaintance with recent events in Germany. While a reader can expect no other result under the circumstances, it is nevertheless disappointing that the distinguished authority on German food and agriculture could not have been given an opportunity to discuss the technical details of that aspect of the German problem. The most valuable part of the little book is doubtless the final chapter." Harold Zink

BRANDT, KARL—Continued
+ — Am Pol Sci R 44:225 Mr '50 380w

"The author of this excellent little book is a refugee from the Germany of Hitler and now a citizen of the United States. An expert in agricultural economics, he has taught economics at the University of Berlin and advised the Weimar Republic; during the war he advised the Government of the United States and is now at the Food Research Institute of Stanford University." H. R. Rudin
+ Ann Am Acad 268:204 Mr '50 280w

Foreign Affairs 29:153 O '50 20w

"It offers one of the most informative and thoughtful analyses of the problems which have confronted Germany and the victor Powers since the end of World War II. . . In four years of association with Germans in the post-war years, I found little to support the conclusion that the Germans charged the brutality of the Russian troops to the account of all four occupying Powers. Except in isolated cases this would not be true, even in Berlin. Brandt's book nonetheless stands as an able and thought-provoking publication which will be read with profit by those interested in the new Germany and Europe which are emerging from the shambles of World War II." M. E. Muelder
+ Pol Sci Q 65:475 S '50 600w

Reviewed by J. P. C. Carey
Survey 86:161 Mr '50 240w

BRANDT, MARY L. Decorate your home for better living; with decorative spots by Marylin Hafner. 269p col il $5 Scribner
747.88 House decoration 50-5348

A survey on major points to be considered in room planning and decoration. Covers arrangement, backgrounds, floor coverings, modern and period furniture, window treatment, accessories, and the decoration of kitchens, bathrooms, one-room apartments, etc. Glossary. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:215 Mr 1 '50

"A great deal of sound and useful information is packed into this book, and it serves not only as a general reference book with a modern outlook, but is geared to be valuable for various income brackets."
+ Kirkus 18:17 Ja 1 '50 130w

"This new book, on which Mrs. Brandt has been working for a long time, is based on the courses she has taught for so long. It's a workbook, really; you'll find no Titillating Tidbits about how this or that well-known hostess did her new library, or solved the terribly vexing problem of what to put in a 30-foot reception hall. What you get is down-to-earth principles. . . Particularly good is her advice in the beginning of her book—the advice to get going and do something about whatever it is that doesn't please you about your house." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 Mr 2 '50 800w

Wis Lib Bul 46:19 Mr '50

BRANT, IRVING. James Madison [3v; v. 3] Father of the Constitution, 1787-1800. 520p il $6 Bobbs
B or 92 Madison, James (41-19279)

This third volume of the author's full-length biography of Madison covers the years 1787 to 1800 during which Madison played an important part in the framing of the Constitution and in making it work. For earlier volumes see Book Review Digest, 1941, 1948. Index.

Reviewed by J. T. Horton
Am Hist R 56:124 O '50 900w

Reviewed by James Hart
Am Pol Sci 44:755 S '50 400w

Booklist 46:285 My 15 '50

Bookmark 9:207 Je '50 30w

Reviewed by Avery Craven
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ap 23 '50 350w

"The style of the book, at first intractable and lacking in clarifying recapitulations, gains incisiveness and glints of liveliness as it advances. Unfamiliar pieces of information come to light: Madison's part in determining that the President of the United States should be 'Mr. President,' not 'His Highness'; the weakening of the bond between Madison and Washington as they aligned in different parties; the homely affection between Madison and Jefferson." W. K. Rugg
+ Christian Science Monitor p18 Ap 20 '50 650w

"Most readers will be interested chiefly in Mr. Brant's fresh and suggestive account of the Constitution, but the whole book is of a high order. Completed on the scale in which it has so far been carried forward, this will be one of the most lastingly useful of American political biographies." George Genzmer
+ Nation 171:173 Ag 19 '50 550w

Reviewed by George Dangerfield
New Repub 123:18 S 4 '50 1500w

"The third volume of Brant's Madison is a magnificent study of one of our greatest statesmen at the climax of his career, a penetrating report of the politics of a critical period in American history, and a startlingly original account of that much-discussed document, the Constitution of the United States." Douglass Adair
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Ap 30 '50 1450w

"In his first two volumes Irving Brant restored to Madison his human qualities and charm, and deftly sketched the lines of his future development as a politician, a political theorist, and a statesman. Now, in the third volume, a very important book about a very important person, he catapults Madison right into the greatest decade of his career when he was successively 'Father of the Constitution,' 'Washington's right-hand-man,' and founder of the Republican party." Carl Bridenbaugh
+ N Y Times p1 Ap 9 '50 1050w

"Mr. Brant is a resourceful digger and researcher, but he is not a very exciting writer; even so, this is a first-rate work and important in that it sets the record straight on one of our greatest democratic statesmen."
+ New Yorker 26:107 Ap 29 '50 200w

"Since the dozen years it chronicles were the most important in Madison's life, the book is also the most important of the three produced. The care and scholarship which the author has devoted to his subject makes this unquestionably the definitive biography of the father of the Constitution." Gordon Pates
+ San Francisco Chronicle p12 Je 18 '50 650w

"Certain mistakes and eccentricities of judgment are perhaps unavoidable in a lengthy and pioneering study. None of them in any important way qualifies the original and exhaustive scholarship of Mr. Brant in giving us our soundest biography of James Madison." Adrienne Koch
+ Sat R of Lit 33:9 Ap 8 '50 1000w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:300 S '50 280w

BRAYMER, DANIEL HARVEY, and ROE, ARTHUR CECIL. Rewinding small motors; practical details of repair-shop practice with step-by-step procedure for rewinding all types and designs of fractional-horsepower direct- and alternating-current motors. 3d ed 422p il $4.50 McGraw 621.316 Armatures—Winding. Electric motors 49-49061

"Standard manual for almost twenty-five years. It is more or less complementary to Veinott's Fractional Horsepower Electric Motors, issued by the same publisher. Compared to the second edition published in 1932, there is much new material in this third edition. The major portion of it has to do with recently developed insulated materials and their use in motor windings, but several new types of windings are considered also. There are now 345 illustrations." (Library J) For first edition see Book Review Digest 1926.

Booklist 46:234 Mr 15 '50

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 74:1911 D 15 '49 70w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:4 Ja '50

BREAN, HERBERT. Hardly a man is now alive. 248p $2.50 Morrow
50-10463

Detective story.

Kirkus 18:537 S 1 '50 80w

"Plenty of atmosphere and some very amusing dialogue. Mr. Brean has not as yet worn out his rather unusual mystery technique."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p36 D 3 '50 250w

N Y Times p38 N 19 '50 140w

New Yorker 26:168 N 4 '50 100w

"Good background, neat plot, beautifully lucid presentation." L. G. Offord
+ San Francisco Chronicle p33 D 10 '50 90w

"Much ado—but amusing."
Sat R of Lit 33:44 N 25 '50 70w

"This third offering by Mr. Brean is not such great shakes as a mystery, but it is mighty good writing and a pleasant story, well told." D. F. M.
+ Springf'd Republican p3D N 19 '50 100w

BRECK, VIVIAN, pseud. See Breckenfeld, V. G.

BRECKENFELD, VIVIAN GURNEY (VIVIAN BRECK, pseud). Hoofbeats on the trail; il. by Hubert Buel. 238p $2.50 Doubleday
50-10014

A novel for young adults by the author of High Trail (Book Review Digest 1948). When Cress Pomeroy failed to pass college entrance requirements she despaired of ever keeping up with her scholarly family. Then a four months tramping and camping trip in the Sierras taught Cress to know herself.

Booklist 47:99 N 1 '50

"One weakness this book shares with the previous 'High Trail' is the slow beginning. The introspective, retrospective soliloquy may discourage a prospective reader before going far enough to be captured by the story. The author's ability to portray the beauty and majesty of mountain country is an outstanding quality of the book." A. B. McGuire
+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 N 12 '50 170w

"A fine story of mountain climbing and camping in the Sierras."
+ Horn Bk 26:382 S '50 50w

"A good story and character-uplift."
+ Kirkus 18:424 Ag 1 '50 130w

Reviewed by M. A. Herr
Library J 75:2019 N 15 '50 80w

"Outdoor life, the glory of the mountains, and plenty of horses will hold the interest of almost any girl of twelve to fifteen." Siri Andrews
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 O 15 '50 220w

"First-rate characterization is combined with exciting episodes." M. C. Scoggin
+ N Y Times p16 N 12 '50 130w

San Francisco Chronicle p4 N 12 '50 170w

BRECKLING, MRS GRACE JAMISON. Dream without end. 222p $3 Westminster press 50-6820

The theme of this postwar novel is postwar readjustment. Joyce and Cliff Vaughn were well-to-do, and had been comfortably off so long they had forgotten their early struggles. Dave, their son, wounded in the war, finds it too difficult to go thru with his marriage to the girl he had grown up with. He joins a friend in a one world movement. Linda, the daughter, marries the son of a mill worker and departs for Alaska, leaving her parents bewildered and only partially understanding the new era.

Booklist 46:286 My 15 '50

"The moral message is non-obtrusive and the reading pleasant."
Kirkus 18:73 F 1 '50 160w

"Highly recommended." R. P. Tubby
+ Library J 75:695 Ap 15 '50 70w

Wis Lib Bul 46:21 My '50

BREGY, KATHERINE MARIE CORNELIA. Queen of paradox; a Stuart tragedy. 221p $3 Bruce pub.

B or 92 Mary Stuart, queen of Scots
50-9940

A biography of Mary, Queen of Scots, written from the Catholic viewpoint.

Booklist 47:135 D 1 '50

"A well written and interesting version of the life of Mary. It is a more sympathetic account than that of most historians and biographers, for while Katherine Bregy admits Mary's weaknesses and mistakes, she emphasizes not only the attractiveness of her personality but the steadfastness of her faith."
+ Kirkus 18:592 O 1 '50 180w

"The book is written well and tastefully, and will make pleasant reading for anyone. It is particularly good as a student's introduction to the Reformation." Joyce Geary
+ N Y Times p14 D 17 '50 180w

"Despite its title this new life of Mary, Queen of Scotland and the Isles, does not stress the enigmas and contradictions that have fascinated so many biographers and dramatists but reconstructs Mary's tragic career in a straightforward narrative." Geoffrey Bruun
+ Sat R of Lit 33:20 D 9 '50 290w

BRENNAN, FREDERICK HAZLITT. Irish lullaby. 179p $2 Rinehart
50-7105

The story of an Irish village, upset by a miracle. Why did the hand of God rescue unbeliever Dion Fitzpatrick and allow the six other members of his fishing boat to perish in an explosion? Until another miracle occurred, Kenny McKeogh, the narrator of this tale, was the only one who knew the true facts of the accident.

Cath World 171:313 Jl '50 160w

"Entertaining episodes in rhythmic Gaelic phrasing, this has definite charm."
+ Kirkus 18:115 F 15 '50 150w

"Kenneth McKeogh who relates the tale, gets off to a good start but peters out in no time at all. It is fairly reminiscent of Samuel Lover or Charles Lever, but the humor seems much more strained and it has too many wearisome spots bolstered up with platitudes and 'God Save us alls!' " M. H. Zipprich
— + Library J 75:559 Ap 1 '50 80w

" 'The Irish Lullaby' is slightly irreverent and a bit roistering but no affront to the saints."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 Je 4 '50 140w

"To those who like their miracles in cinecolor, this brief fantasy may be recommended. Those with monochromatic tastes may prefer to remain at a prosaic distance from Glencurry-on-Vine." J. W. Chase
N Y Times p21 My 14 '50 180w

"There may be more Hollywood than Meath to Mr. Brennan's zestful yarn. But look what you get in trade—heads bloodied and bowed, horse racing, mackerel fishing in heavy seas, a villageful of salty individualists. All this and two miracles, too." A. F. Wolfe
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:30 My 27 '50 260w

BRESLIN, HOWARD. Let go of yesterday. (Whittlesey house publication) 271p $3 McGraw

50-7178

The time of this novel of life in a New York city Irish Catholic family is between the two world wars. Larry Callan is the central character. As he waits in the hospital solarium on the day of his mother's death Larry reviews his own life and that of his family. His mother dies just as the news of Pearl Harbor comes in.

Booklist 46:253; 286 Ap 15 '50; My 15 '50

"Mr. Breslin creates his slightly sentimental picture with much skill and smoothness. What it all proves, in terms of its admonitory title, I don't quite know. It is pleasant reading, but in final terms does not hang together as a very solid or substantial whole." Edmund Fuller

+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p7 My 14 '50 450w

"The family solidarity and sympathy here give this portrait its warmth, and while not important, this is at all times likeable."

+ Kirkus 18:213 Ap 1 '50 180w

"There is kindness and warmth in this story, but the recollections are sad and depressing. Well done, but not a book for uplifting the spirits." Anne Whitmore

+ — Library J 75:774 My 1 '50 100w

"Howard Breslin captures the flavor of his characters' romances and jokes, the dullness of their jobs, the escape of their baseball and religion, their inner frustration. Like 'The Tamarack Tree,' Mr. Breslin's first novel, 'Let Go of Yesterday' derives its power from the creation of a believable group portrait against a representative American background." James Kelly

+ N Y Times p5 My 14 '50 270w

"Through the use of a pleasantly muted prose style Mr. Breslin achieves a nostalgic quality that is momentarily persuasive. Unfortunately, the effect does not last. The lovingly presented characters never become more than 'characters,' stereotypes of the traditional virtues. They are gentle and kind, wisely understanding, tolerant, and quietly noble. They remain so, their lives substantially untouched by the historical currents which move outside the sheltering circle of the family." Edward Fitzgerald

— + Sat R of Lit 33:26 Je 17 '50 280w

BREWER, WILLIAM HENRY. Up and down California in 1860-1864; the journal of William H. Brewer; ed. by Francis P. Farquhar; with a pref. by Russell H. Chittenden. 2d ed 583p pl $6.50 Univ. of Calif.

917.94 California—Description and travel

A reissue of a book on early California which was first published in a small edition in 1930, and has been out of print for some time. "Professor Brewer was the first man chosen for his staff by Josiah Dwight Whitney when the California Legislature authorized a survey of the State and appointed Whitney State Geologist to make it. Brewer was not a geologist. He had been trained in agricultural chemistry and in botany. . . While he was making his calculations, collecting fossils and botanical specimens, keeping his personnel organized and making out voluminous reports, Brewer somehow found time to write his brother a numbered series of detailed letters. . . These letters were for his family in Ithaca, New York. . . In 1930, two decades after Brewer's death, Mr. Farquhar . . . edited the letters, added explanatory notes and a biographical sketch, and made of them the book that Brewer might have made if he always hadn't had something more pressing to do." (San Francisco Chronicle)

"A basic book on early California."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 F 12 '50 80w

"Unlike many books rescued out of the past this one is first-rate reading. . . Since the original edition did run out so rapidly and has been so extremely difficult to get for some years, it's a very good thing to have this new printing, and many a Californian who has known about Brewer's book for a long time will be delighted to find it may now be had. The University of California Press is to be congratulated upon making it available." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 D 22 '49 850w

"An agreeable and readable compound of accurate observation and informal personalia." J. T. Winterich

+ Sat R of Lit 33:38 Ap 8 '50 240w

BREWSTER, BENJAMIN, pseud. See Elting, M.

BRICK, JOHN. Troubled spring. 279p $3 Farrar, Straus

50-7264

"The story of a soldier's return from the Confederate prison at Andersonville and what he found in his postwar Hudson River town. Sam Bellnap had been reported dead, but came home, to find his girl, Martha, married to his elder brother and his staid old town blatant with war profits. In some chapters Sam reviews his ordeals in the prison camp, in others he faces his immediate problems, tries to be fair to Martha and his brother, sees that the best chance of happiness for all of them lies in his going away." Christian Science Monitor

"Few pleasures rival that of a first meeting with a fine story-teller, and an acquaintance with John Brick is a great delight. Brick can tell a story, tenderly, with mastery of the art of suspense, and with excellent discipline. His first novel, 'Troubled Spring,' is a snug, sure romance. . . His story is essentially one of the spirit, his problem to recapture the living hues of Civil war times. He succeeds strikingly." Lloyd Wendt

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ap 23 '50 550w

"It is the soberness of the account and the honesty of the revolt against war—past, present, and future—and all its bitter fruits that give the book its weight. Authentic, too, is the Hudson River scene and Highland Landing, which is said to be much like the author's own Newburgh, New York. Missing is the crowning effect of actual emotional experience."

+ — Christian Science Monitor p8 My 13 '50 240w

"A first person telling gives vitality to the memories of the prison at Andersonville, the battle scenes, and the whole offers an interesting parallel to the current problem of veterans' return. Taut narration and dramatic values here."

+ Kirkus 18:248 Ap 15 '50 240w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p17 Je 18 '50 150w

"This would be an ordinary story if the author had contented himself with unraveling the skein of a personal misfortune. What is significant here is the figure of Robert—who is not only an individual but also one who, in Flaubert's phrase, 'rises to the dignity of a type.'" John Cournos

+ N Y Times p27 My 21 '50 170w

BRICKELL, HERSCHEL, ed. See O. Henry memorial award. Prize stories of 1950

BRICKHILL, PAUL. Great escape; introd. by George Harsh. 264p il $3 Norton

940.547243 World war, 1939-1945—Prisoners and prisons, German 50-9619

A first-hand account of the planned mass escape of British and American air men from Stalag Luft III, during World war II. This is the incident upon which Eric Williams' The Wooden Horse (Book Review Digest 1950) was based. Illustrated with photographs.

Booklist 47:53; 58 O 1 '50

Reviewed by J. H. Thompson
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 O 29 '50 400w

Reviewed by Ernest Pisko
Christian Science Monitor p11 O 21 '50 1350w

Kirkus 18:456 Ag 1 '50 130w

"Book is a thrilling account of man's indomitable spirit. Highly recommended." W. K. Harrison
+ Library J 75:1653 O 1 '50 80w

Reviewed by M. D. Read
Library J 75:2160 D 15 '50 40w

"The author of this book, Paul Brickhill, was a small cog in the big machine. . . He has twice been back to Germany since the war to fill in the details, including the German side of the affair as recorded in captured documents. He even obtained German photographs. He has done a marvelous job of piecing the details together into a story that is almost incredible—yet at the same time convincing." Marcus Duffield
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 O 15 '50 1350w

Reviewed by G. Y. Wells
N Y Times p12 O 15 '50 380w

New Yorker 26:149 O 14 '50 120w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p16 O 30 '50 1100w

"'Unbelievable' is an abused word nowadays, too often telling us the wonders wrought by soap flakes. Yet unbelievable is an important word for Lieut. Brickhill's chronicle of the Great Escape, for that is just what such a tale would be but for the grim record that it happened. . . 'The Great Escape' deserves reading for the story's sake alone, as a special part of the war history, and for the pride British and American readers can take justly in this record of human spirit and morale and indefatigable ingenuity on the part of their fellow countrymen." Edmund Fuller
+ Sat R of Lit 33:12 O 21 '50 700w

"Since it turned out that all but three of these gallant men would have been better off to keep on waiting instead of forcing the issue, the reader may be impressed with the futility as well as the daring of the attempt. He may also experience a stifled feeling as the tension mounts. Drawings and photographs enhance this grim, restrained record of one of the most astounding episodes of the war." D. B. B.
Springf'd Republican p4D O 22 '50 600w

BRICKMAN, WILLIAM W. Guide to research in educational history. 220p $2.75 N.Y. univ. press

370.7 Education—History. Research 50-5544

"What this volume seeks to do is to provide the student with specific instances of how historiographical procedures may be used in educational research. . . This research manual is an outcome of several years' experimentation in the author's classes with a mimeographed outline of historiographical procedures in education. It is designed to meet the needs of students writing undergraduate and graduate term reports, as well as those of candidates for M.A., Ph.D., and Ed.D." (Pref) Index.

"Brickman has done an excellent job, and one that needed doing. The 'Guide' will meet a long-felt need." Thomas Woody
+ School & Society 72:74 Jl 29 '50 1550w

Reviewed by R. E. Keohane
School R 58:238 Ap '50 1250w

BRIDENBAUGH, CARL. Colonial craftsman. 214p il $4.25 N.Y. univ. press

331.794 U.S.—History—Colonial period. Arts and crafts 50-7479

"The story of the men behind what are now antiques, this offers much informative material not only for the student of history but for the collector. For here are the rural and urban artisans, their place in their communities, the things they produced and how they did it. From the basic necessities to specialties and quality goods, this shows how entrepreneurs developed, how trades within trades grew and grew, how the drive of single little organizations in their 'buy American' played their part in the War for Independence, and offers a detailed picture of the history of the laboring man of the times." Kirkus

Reviewed by L. P. Stavisky
Am Hist R 56:112 O '50 650w

Booklist 46:311 Je 15 '50

Reviewed by W. P. Sears
Churchman 164:17 Ag '50 130w

"Fascinating material, ably handled, this need not be limited to a student market alone. The illustrations are from the French Encyclopedie of 1762-1777 and represent the style of book illustration of the 18th century as well as faithfully picturing the crafts."
+ Kirkus 18:233 Ap 1 '50 160w

"The pages are full of fascinating detail about life and life's work in far-off days. Bibliographical notes and index are helpful. Interesting for those doing research on business. Specialized but worthwhile." A. S. Plaut
+ Library J 75:1295 Ag '50 100w

Manchester Guardian p4 Ag 22 '50 70w

"The book is too small, the craftsmen are too many and diverse. Regional specialists must remember, too, that so general a researcher necessarily accepts face value more often than he would prefer to do. . . But as a survey, and as introduction to a more detailed examination of a multifaceted subject, 'The Colonial Craftsman' is valuable indeed." E. H. Smith
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Je 25 '50 800w

"Mr. Bridenbaugh writes with wit and insight, but his analysis would have been more meaningful had he defined his terms more precisely." R. B. Morris
+ — N Y Times p14 My 21 '50 650w

"A fascinating study not only of the work of the eighteenth-century American artisan but of his place in pre-Revolutionary society, written with appreciation of, but without an iota of sentimentality about, the universal superiority of the handmade to the factory product. . . To readers whose knowledge of the subject begins and ends with Paul Revere and his silver porringers, the book should be as instructive as it is interesting."
+ New Yorker 26:111 Je 10 '50 140w

"Mr. Bridenbaugh is more interested in the craftsman or the artisan himself, in the real, living, human being than in the things he produced. This approach gives his book a warm personal note. He also retains in his writing the informal delivery of the lecture platform." J. V.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Je 11 '50 110w

Sat R of Lit 33:51 My 13 '50 320w

"Admirably produced, as its matter deserves, the book is illustrated by reproductions of singularly fine engravings from the Encyclopédie, which alone would make it worth possession."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p464 Jl 28 '50 750w

"The eighteenth-century artisan should not be romanticized, Dr. Bridenbaugh warns, but the portrait drawn of him here is both lively and attractive. In the picture, lightening it, social and political confidence appear interstitially with economic success."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:329 S '50 240w

BRIDGMAN, PERCY WILLIAMS. Reflections of a physicist. 392p $5 Philosophical lib.

530.1 Physics—Philosophy 50-7064

"For the last 20 years Dr. Bridgman has from time to time expressed himself in general terms on the meaning of physics to sciences in general, the responsibilities of physicists in this atomic age and similar matters. This book is a collection of these papers, all but three of them previously published. Taken together, these papers are a good presentation of the thought and point of view of an articulate scientist." (San Francisco Chronicle) Index.

BRIDGMAN, P. W.—Continued

Reviewed by D. H. Killeffer
Chem & Eng N 28:2379 Jl 10 '50 250w

"'Reflections of a Physicist' is a collection of delightful little essays and addresses prepared over the last twenty years. In these, Professor Bridgman applies his 'operational thinking' to problems ranging in scope from physics to society. Everywhere the power of this approach is evident, but so also are its limitations. One is constantly aware that 'inspirational' thinking has been subordinated to 'operational' thinking." R. C. Cowen
+ — Christian Science Monitor p14 Jl 20 '50 600w

Reviewed by F. H. Heinemann
Hibbert J 48:396 Jl '50 40w

"Probably the book will appeal most to persons interested in the philosophy and social implications of science. However, the essays on scientific freedom and the potentialities of human intelligence are of interest to general readers."
N Y New Tech Bks 35:45 My '50

"[Mr. Bridgman's] book is recommended not only for its non-technical writing but for its stimulating approach to a modern philosophy. It is an antidote for all literary 'philosophies' that drag in pseudo-science to embellish their obscurity." John Pfeiffer
+ N Y Times p13 Jl 30 '50 500w
San Francisco Chronicle p21 My 7 '50 70w
School & Society 71:237 Ap 15 '50 40w

BRIER, HOWARD M. Shortstop shadow; il. by Jay Hayde Barnum. 246p $2.50 Random house 50-9580

"Why Pooch, a West Coast college student, was suspected of having played semi-professional baseball is the question his friend Randy sets out to learn; but before the truth is discovered there is plenty of baseball and college life." Horn Bk

Horn Bk 26:479 N '50 30w
Kirkus 18:357 Jl 1 '50 120w

"Good baseball, and quite a good story. Recommended for children's rooms, but too young for teen age." M. D. Read
+ Library J 75:1909 N 1 '50 70w

"It is a fairly complicated affair with a lot of mystery to keep the suspense at fever pitch." W. R. White
+ San Francisco Chronicle p7 N 12 '50 60w

"A fine story of college sports." R. A. Brown
+ Sat R of Lit 33:61 N 11 '50 50w

BRIGGS, HILTON MARSHALL. Modern breeds of livestock. 772p il $5.50 Macmillan 636.08 Live stock Agr49-466

"Beef and dairy cattle, hogs, sheep, goats, horses and jacks are the kinds of livestock considered in this book. The recognized breeds of each kind are each described in a concise account that covers the breed's history and characteristics, outstanding individuals and families, registry associations, and finally a concise appraisal of the breed as it exists today. Most of the 201 illustrations are reproductions of photographs of outstanding animals." (Library J) Index.

Booklist 46:329 Jl 1 '50
Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
+ Library J 74:1911 D 15 '49 90w

BRINIG, MYRON. Footsteps on the stair. 346p $3 Rinehart
50-8266

Novel in which Stephen Benjamin, son of a Jewish father and an Irish Catholic mother, pieces together the histories of his parents' families. The setting is a small Montana copper mining town from the late 1880's to the present.

Booklist 46:353 Jl 15 '50
— Chicago Sun p5 Je 27 '50 90w
Kirkus 18:246 Ap 15 '50 130w

"Although the abnormalities and unorthodox behavior of many of the characters account for much of the drama and the swiftly-moving events, the book retains those qualities of reality and verisimilitude essential to a first-rate novel." J. E. Brown
+ Library J 75:1044 Je 15 '50 110w

"'Footsteps on the Stair' is written with delightful forthrightness, and is even at times eloquent. But Mr. Brinig's appetite for life being voracious, his taste is not always perfect. Occasionally, too, he is glib, and inclined to give us, in passing, the froth off the top of his mind. But these are minor faults in a novel lit up by so much vigorous imagination and vigorous writing. 'Footsteps on the Stair' makes extraordinarily good reading." F. H. Bullock
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Je 25 '50 700w

"In these half-achieved character sketches there are passages of sound insight. If the people are not quite memorable, some of the things that happen to them cannot be easily forgotten. Moreover, Mr. Brinig has a feeling for the place and period that should not be underestimated. His extravagance is appropriate to the Montana of the early twentieth century, and one complains not because he deals with the bizarre but because he only intermittently convinces us of its reality." Granville Hicks
+ — N Y Times p24 Je 25 '50 450w

"Mr. Brinig jumps from generation to generation and from one person to another as fearlessly and effectively as a gossipy old woman. There is nothing new about his story, but he relates it with such confidence that it seems well worth hearing again, just this one last time."
New Yorker 26:93 Je 24 '50 300w

Reviewed by John Cournos
+ Sat R of Lit 33:41 Ag 5 '50 230w

BRINTON, CLARENCE CRANE. English political thought in the nineteenth century. [2d ed] 311p $3.50 Harvard univ. press
320.942 Nineteenth century. Political science
50-5654

This work was first published in England in 1933 and is now reprinted without change. The book is made up of a series of critical essays grouped under the headings: The Revolution of 1832; Chartism; The prosperous Victorians, with an Introduction and Conclusion. Bibliography. Index.

Am Pol Sci R 44:514 Je '50 20w

"The chief charm of the book is its style. The author's own words about Bagehot apply appropriately: 'The day of the amateur whom he so much admired may be ended; but surely that of the artist is not'. No one is less an amateur than Professor Brinton, and but few historians are so much the artist." Preston Slosson
+ Ann Am Acad 269:185 My '50 500w

"'English Political Thought in the Nineteenth Century' was the third of the author's major works. There are at least three excellent reasons for welcoming its reissue in the present attractive format. Students of modern British history who have used the work as a text or as supplementary reading will be happy to know that it is available once more. Liberals who want to read a candid appraisal of their faith as an antidote to the late flood of premature obituaries will embrace it as a friend. But the chief reason why this book is valid and timely is the fact that it stresses a truth we are in danger of forgetting. It reminds us that liberalism is a creed that admits the value of individual diversities." Geoffrey Bruun
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 Je 11 '50 900w

Reviewed by Donald Barr
N Y Times p14 Ag 13 '50 470w

Reviewed by B. R. Redman
Sat R of Lit 33:25 N 25 '50 290w

BRINTON, CLARENCE CRANE. Ideas and men; the story of Western thought. 597p $6 Prentice-Hall

901 Civilization, Occidental. Civilization—History 50-4423

This work by a professor of history at Harvard contains "a discussion of the evolution of Western thought from its origins in Hebrew and Greek civilization to the present day. It considers the fundamental ideas of our culture and examines the answers Western man has given to persisting questions of ethics, religion, politics and science." (Publisher's note) Bibliography. Essay topics. Index.

Reviewed by R. H. Heindel
Ann Am Acad 272:266 N '50 550w

Reviewed by C. J. Rolo
Atlantic 186:88 O '50 600w

Booklist 47:58 O 1 '50

"Delightfully readable, richly stimulating guidebook."
+ Bookmark 10:3 O '50 20w

"It is a little regrettable, we feel, that Prof. Brinton tends at times to deify the 'experts' and view the scientists as the creative minority who 'will of course initiate solutions.' . . It is somewhat unfortunate, too, especially in the light of his declared intentions, that Prof. Brinton promises a great deal more clinical detachment than he delivers. . . But despite its flaws, 'Ideas and Men' is a brilliant book, full of pithy summaries and astute analyses, the kind of book, in short, that discerning readers have long been led to expect from one of America's ablest and shrewdest historians." J. A. Clark
+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 S 10 '50 550w

Reviewed by Marshall Wingfield
Christian Century 67:1077 S 13 '50 1050w

Reviewed by Edward Littlejohn
Commonweal 53:154 N 17 '50 1800w

Reviewed by Reinhold Niebuhr
Nation 171:417 N 4 '50 1050w

"Brinton has the great and rare gift of writing about very difficult and complex problems with an easy grace and lucid simplicity. Whether the book is assigned in introductory college courses or used by the general public, it will grow upon the reader; his fear of boredom at 'intellectual history' will soon turn into a feeling of participation in the world of ideas under a kind and understanding guide." Hans Kohn
+ New Repub 123:26 O 30 '50 1150w

"Mr. Brinton has, of necessity, imposed a pattern upon his material; otherwise it would be quite unmanageable. But he has not imposed his own interpretation upon it. . . It is when he comes to the Enlightenment that Mr. Brinton is on home ground, so to speak, and writes with peculiar authority and grace. . . In some ways the most interesting chapters in the book are those dealing with our own time." Henry Commager
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 N 12 '50 1450w

"On three grounds, this book is among the best of its daring genre: first, lucidity, bringing insight into chaos; second, organization of diffuse material, bringing order out of chaos; third, the rich intellectual stimulus of a book reflecting one of America's maturest and subtlest intellects today. . . Mr. Brinton is perhaps as nearly qualified as any mortal can be to attempt so riskily broad a survey. That no human can ever be fully qualified is confirmed by the lacunae every reader will find in any book of this kind, not only in the text but also in the bibliography." Peter Viereck
+ — N Y Times p3 Ag 27 '50 1400w

"The author has a remarkable skill for making popular reading of a very high calibre out of such sobersided subjects as history and philosophical, ethical, and aesthetic ideas. Without in the least writing down to his audience but with an awareness of the limitations of general education, he lifts the reader up and carries him along in an easy-flowing, witty discourse."
+ New Yorker 26:120 S 9 '50 240w

San Francisco Chronicle p13 O 8 '50 450w

"Only a leisurely reading of this scholarly, sane, and stimulating survey can give a really just idea of its vitality, freshness, originality, and charm." Geoffrey Bruun
+ Sat R of Lit 33:14 Ag 19 '50 900w

"A book to be read and discussed for years to come."
+ School & Society 72:111 Ag 12 '50 30w

BRISTOW, GWEN (MRS BRUCE MANNING). Jubilee trail. 564p $3 Crowell

50-5268

The Jubilee trail was the traders' name for the great Spanish Trail, which in the 1840's led from Santa Fe to Los Angeles. This long novel describes the trek of a gently bred New York girl and her trader husband, along that trail. When she was left a widow and penniless, Garnet and the variety girl she had befriended managed to make their living. The story closes about the time of the California gold discovery.

Booklist 46:133; 200 D 15 '49; F 15 '50

Bookmark 9:160 Ap '50 60w

"If you enjoy high caliber westerners, you had best detour The Jubilee Trail."
— Cath World 171:153 My '50 200w

Reviewed by Edward Uzemack
Chicago Sun p9 Mr 5 '50 240w

"Miss Bristow has that true gift of storytelling without which no novel is really great and with which even a melodramatic thriller is compelling." Fanny Butcher
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 F 12 '50 550w

"Miss Bristow's readers, aware of her liking for melodrama, will also find in her new novel large portions of good descriptive writing and history. . . By its exuberance and occasional rowdiness, as well as by its knowledgeable use of new country and its history, it fits the time and place."
+ — Christian Science Monitor p11 F 9 '50 240w

Cleveland Open Shelf p8 Mr '50

"A quality of buoyancy keeps this from standardization; Garnet's lively curiosity and untrained intelligence, Florinda's dramatic past, and the every day living in what is now history —all have strong, popular appeal."
+ Kirkus 17:655 D 1 '49 310w

"This absorbing story giving a thrilling picture of the foundation on which our West was built is heartily recommended to teen-agers and adults." H. R. Forbes
+ Library J 75:171 F 1 '50 90w

"Gwen Bristow has tried to write an epic of early California. But her purpose is defeated by her anxiety to tie off every possible loose end. . . Florinda could have dominated the book. She is delightful as a sexy variety actress who sings bawdy lyrics about the hours she'd wasted saying 'no.' But the California climate does something to her. Her moral fiber is strengthened no end, but her personality is ruined." Hoffman Birney
N Y Times p30 F 5 '50 470w

"Miss Bristow has three specialties—pure virtue, coal-black villainy, and rough-spoken hearts of gold—and she leaves no cliché unturned in her efforts to write good parts for all of them."
New Yorker 26:121 Mr 18 '50 120w

San Francisco Chronicle p14 F 19 '50 370w

"The adjective 'colorful' will probably be the one most often employed to describe 'Jubilee Trail.' It is in effect an expertly directed panorama that the author presents; if the reader fails to attain a sense of close kinship with anyone in the marching throng at least

BRISTOW, GWEN—Continued
he cannot complain that the story drags." Josephine Lawrence
Sat R of Lit 33:16 F 11 '50 600w

Springf'd Republican p8C Ap 23 '50 240w

"An absorbing story. . . Recommended."
+ Wis Lib Bul 46:21 My '50

BRITTAIN, VERA MARY (MRS GEORGE EDWARD GORDON CATLIN). Valiant pilgrim; the story of John Bunyan and Puritan England; with 55 il. by Cyril Hargreaves and others [Eng title: In the steps of John Bunyan]. 440p $4 Macmillan

B or 92 Bunyan, John 50-9620

This biography of John Bunyan portrays him against the background of the physical surroundings of his time. The author spent some time in Bedfordshire, tracing his life there, and then in London, where he spent some time after leaving prison. Illustrated with photographs and maps. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 47:33; 59 S 15 '50; O 1 '50

Reviewed by Edward Wagenknecht
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 N 26 '50 450w

"Combined with her sympathetic analysis of Bunyan's four greatest works in chronological order . . . Miss Brittain has actually re-created a picture of the birth throes of this evangelical England, whose influence has girdled the earth. Not only is her book a welcome addition to the prodigious bibliography already existing on Bunyan and his work, it also possesses the prophetic quality which shows how, in the 17th century: 'England through her religious and political struggle became both architect and symbol of spiritual emancipation and western democracy.'" Leila Flower
+ Christian Science Monitor p6 O 28 '50 700w

Kirkus 18:626 O 1 '50 180w

"For all libraries, and definitely for younger readers than adults." K. T. Willis
+ Library J 75:1653 O 1 '50 140w

"'Valiant Pilgrim' is an intimate and charming recreation of life in Bedford Village and environs three centuries ago and an authoritative account of John Bunyan's career. It is a pity that Miss Brittain did not also undertake a more adequate measure of Bunyan's values." Milton Rugoff
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 N 19 '50 750w

"This book cannot take the place of the more detailed and technical analyses of Bunyan, but in every other way it is admirable. It is replete with new insights for the lover of Bunyan, and should arouse interest even in the college student who has dismissed 'The Pilgrim's Progress' as a supreme bore." Chad Walsh
+ N Y Times p4 D 10 '50 450w

Springf'd Republican p23A N 5 '50 70w

Wis Lib Bul 46:15 N '50

BRO, MRS MARGUERITTE (HARMON). Su-mei's golden year; il. by Kurt Wiese. 246p $2.50 Doubleday

Children in China 50-9684

"From material gathered in China, Margueritte Bro writes a convincing story of present-day life in a Chinese village. Twelve-year Su-Mei risks the scorn of her neighbors to test her father's ideas of scientific farming, proving that the wheat crop can be saved from a blight known to the superstitious as 'The Black Devils.'" Library J

Booklist 47:64 O 1 '50

"Su-Mei's relationship with her parents is beautiful and touching, as is the capacity of the village children for fun and play, despite hunger and hard work. And from the mouths of young and old issues much wisdom." P. G.
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p19 N 12 '50 250w

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton
Christian Science Monitor p9 N 13 '50 30w

Horn Bk 26:471 N '50 80w

"A charming picture of a Chinese village of today, with much that rings true of ways of life and thought. Delightfully told."
+ Kirkus 18:386 Jl 15 '50 190w

"Recommended." Elizabeth Hodges
+ Library J 75:1913 N 1 '50 80w

"A rich variety of people and of ideas, as well as good story quality, makes this a rewarding book for any reader of ten or older." Siri Andrews
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p24 N 12 '50 140w

Reviewed by Eleanor Brent
N Y Times p17 D 17 '50 180w

Wis Lib Bul 46:21 N '50

BROBECK, FLORENCE RICHARDS. Chafing dish cookery. 221p il $3 Barrows

641.5 Cookery 50-10211

"Menus and recipes for supper parties, dinners and buffets as well as brunches and lunches all center around the pretty chafing dish that you may find tucked away in your mother's attic or, less lucky, that you may now buy in many stores." (N Y Times) Index.

Booklist 47:128 D 1 '50

"For the hostess who likes to don a black velvet gown and preside gracefully over a chafing dish." Charlotte Turgeon
+ N Y Times p67 D 3 '50 90w

BROCHMANN, GEORG. Humanity and happiness; tr. from the Norwegian by Frank G. Nelson; introd. by Lewis Mumford. 244p $3 Viking

171.4 Happiness 50-5689

A philosophical inquiry into the nature of happiness, written during the Nazi occupation of Norway, by a Norwegian engineer turned author. He has considered his subject in the light of his whole experience and his book becomes a kind of spiritual autobiography.

Booklist 46:270 My 1 '50

"Sane, enlightening analysis of happiness."
+ Bookmark 9:131 Mr '50 50w

"Brochmann watched the Norwegian people achieve happiness even during the German occupation and therefore has profund insight into its nature. Tho his insight is religious, it is neither radical nor fanatical. Therefore, he is able to discuss such aspects of happiness as death, the sexual experience and flight from reality with amazing wisdom and maturity." C. Seidenspinner
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 F 26 '50 200w

Cleveland Open Shelf p10 My '50

"There is logic here as well as a recognition of spiritual values which gives this a wide appeal to anyone seeking a practical philosophy at a higher level."
+ Kirkus 18:17 Ja 1 '50 150w

"An enriching book which sharpens the wits and challenges the mind. . . Recommended." Anne Whitmore
+ Library J 75:313 F 15 '50 140w

"The time-lag in reaching us—in Frank G. Nelson's translation and with an introduction by Lewis Mumford—is all to the good: more than ever it is needed now. For it is more than an inquiry into the nature of happiness, far other than get-rich-quick system for obtaining it. Its effort is the communication of a transforming idea, and its application to the conditions of successive periods of life. . . A quiet book, it has the authentic thrill of conviction." M. L. Becker
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p22 Mr 26 '50 600w

Reviewed by Haniel Long
N Y Times p18 F 26 '50 450w

'Mr. Brochman writes with ease, grace, and perception (at least, he reads that way in what appears to be an excellent translation by Frank G. Nelson), and, as Lewis Mumford says in his introduction, offers no fictitious consolations or spurious compensations." Hamilton Basso
+ New Yorker 26:113 F 25 '50 1000w

Reviewed by H. A. Overstreet
Survey 86:268 My '50 650w
Wis Lib Bul 46:12 Ap '50

BROCK, EMMA LILLIAN. Three ring circus; il. [by the author]. 110p $2.50 Knopf 50-9114

Sally, aged nine, spent a whole summer practising to be a trapeze artist, while her friend Phil studied up to be a big league pitcher. At the end of the summer her parents took Sally to Minneapolis to hear Dame Myra Hess. Sally's next ambition was to be a concert pianist, a quieter career, to the joy of the neighbors.

Booklist 47:15 S 1 '50

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin
Chicago Sunday Tribune p7 D 24 '50 150w
Christian Science Monitor p11 N 13 '50 20w

"One of her most successful stories in a good many years."
+ Kirkus 18:386 Jl 15 '50 160w

"Recommended for ages 8-10." Doris Blasco
+ Library J 75:1513 S 15 '50 60w

"Miss Brock has created two very amusing children, whose conversation and misdeeds will delight boys and girls of around ten. . . The many funny sketches and the handsome full-color pages will increase the appeal of one of this writer's best books." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 S 24 '50 150w

"Written with Miss Brock's customary directness and insight, well illustrated and printed in large, clear type, this is an exceptionally good book for girls and boys who are beginning to read to themselves. Adults will find a valuable clue to happy child guidance in this engaging story." H. K. Lippmann
+ N Y Times p36 S 10 '50 180w

"Because of its many illustrations, this is an attractive looking book. This is a book to own and to treasure."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:45 N 11 '50 230w

BROCKWAY, WALLACE, and WEINSTOCK, HERBERT. Men of music; their lives, times, and achievement. rev & enl ed 649p il $5 Simon & Schuster
927.8 Musicians 50-10706

"Minor textual changes, and an added chapter on Hector Berlioz, differentiate this from the earlier edition [Book Review Digest 1939]." Booklist

Booklist 47:117 N 15 '50

"The fact that 'Men of Music' has in eleven years reached its ninth printing is proof that it is a 'popular' rather than a 'scholarly' book. That the authors have carefully revised and enlarged it means that they have taken their work more seriously than some successful writers. . . All in all, a work of broad sympathies and general understanding." P. L. Miller
+ Sat R of Lit 33:31 N 25 '50 410w

BROGAN, DENIS WILLIAM. Era of Franklin D. Roosevelt; a chronicle of the new deal and global war. (Chronicles of America ser). 382p il textbk ed $2.25; subs ed $6 Yale univ. press
973.917 U.S.—History—1933-1945. U.S.—Politics and government—1933-1945. Roosevelt, Franklin Delano 50-8825

In this volume of the Chronicles of America series an English historian from Cambridge university is concerned with the rise and progress of the New Deal. The four presidential election campaigns furnish most of the material. Bibliographical note. Index.

"One of the most stimulating volumes of the series. . . I doubt if a better, more sanely balanced, one-volume study of the major phases of the New Deal than this has been written." J. H. Powers
+ Atlantic 186:77 O '50 500w
Booklist 47:37 S 15 '50

"Brogan does a masterly job of condensation in telling the story of the Roosevelt era in 363 not very large pages." W. E. Garrison
+ Christian Century 67:1201 O 11 '50 250w
Current Hist 19:165 S '50 20w

"His final paragraphs on the New Deal are exceedingly brilliant. It was a wise editor who chose this British writer to handle the debatable issues of this period." G. W. McDonald
+ Library J 75:1402 S 1 '50 70w

Reviewed by Joseph Kraft
+ Nation 171:271 S 23 '50 270w

"Mr. Brogan's accounts of N.R.A., T.V.A., and A.A.A. are penetrating. In these and indeed throughout his book he is especially able at stripping off the inconsequential and making explicit that which has had a lasting effect, good or bad." Karl Schriftgiesser
+ N Y Times p7 S 10 '50 270w

Reviewed by Harvey Wish
Sat R of Lit 33:21 N 18 '50 380w

BROMFIELD, LOUIS. Out of the earth. 305p il $4 Harper
630 Agriculture 50-6811

"This book has been written largely at the request of the thousands of practical farmers who visit us every year at Malabar. It is, however, not written for the practical farmer alone but for those hundreds of city and suburban dwellers who have a lively and even recreational interest in reading about everything which concerns agriculture, wild life, nutrition and in general that vast and complex world with which good agriculture is concerned. . . I have merely attempted to set down here some of the observations and speculations of the people at Malabar. . . All of us love the fields and love our cattle. Most of us are simple people who love what we are doing, and that is perhaps the greatest satisfaction in life one can have. Also included in the following chapters are many of the observations and speculations of the visitors, from dirt farmer to scientist, who visit us each year." (Foreword) Index.

Booklist 46:256 Ap 15 '50
Bookmark 9:181 My '50 50w

Reviewed by W. F. Morse
Chicago Sun p5 Ap 27 '50 400w

Reviewed by Richard Orr
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ap 16 '50 500w

Reviewed by E. S. Skillin
Commonweal 52:73 Ap 28 '50 750w
Kirkus 18:121 F 15 '50 460w

" 'Out of the Earth' will be a controversial book. But inevitably, because it is explicit and concerns a vital aspect of life, it will be an important book. Those investigators whom it may affront will be well advised to busy themselves testing its pronouncements rather than wasting time in recrimination. And those who teach science should read it and ask themselves whether, with all of their technical discipline, they have been imparting as broad a view of the interrelations of nature as this gusty layman, Louis Bromfield." P. B. Sears
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Ap 2 '50 750w

"The practical summary of a decade of experience, I think that [the book] will prove well up among the most useful books on agriculture ever published. You have to go back to F. H. King's 'Farmers of Forty Centuries,' early in this century, or to Thomas Jefferson's 'Notes on Virginia,' or, best, to the works of that redoubtable British yeoman-journalist, William Cobbett (1763-1835), for comparison." Russell Lord

BROMFIELD, LOUIS—Continued
+ N Y Times p3 Ap 9 '50 700w

"Mr. Bromfield shows all the fervor of the old-time fire-and-brimstone preacher, and for much the same reason; he is utterly convinced that he has a message and that it is of utmost importance. This urgency lends life to his more technical chapters (the new book comes much closer to being a farmer's manual than the others), and makes it remarkably readable considering the specific nature of the problems he takes up." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Mr 28 '50 1050w

Reviewed by James Rorty
Sat R of Lit 33:17 Jl 1 '50 750w

Springf'd Republican p8C My 7 '50 390w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:364 S '50 210w

Wis Lib Bul 46:18 My '50

BRONSON, LYNN, pseud. Timberland adventure. 221p $2.50 Lippincott
50-8909

A story of the opening up of the Oregon timberlands to settlers in the 1900s, and what that meant to two boys: Bill Cain the young English lad who had jumped ship in Portland, and Nat Purvis, who hates the cordage mill where he worked for meager wages. For younger high school boys.

Booklist 47:102 N 1 '50

"Good suspense, atmosphere, and characterization, and an unhackneyed setting." S. M. A.
+ Horn Bk 26:479 N '50 70w

Kirkus 18:468 Ag 15 '50 110w

"Good story, plenty of action, some coincidences rather farfetched but others no doubt true to history." Sonja Wennerblad
+ Library J 75:1838 O 15 '50 70w

"An unusual story. . . Boys and girls will like the story for its suspense and its down-to-earth realism." Siri Andrews
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 O 15 '50 220w

"The plot moves fast. The characters, though lacking depth, are colorful. And such incidents as the visit to the Lewis and Clark Exposition and the rides in a horseless carriage admirably convey the bustling spirit of the times." Howard Boston
+ — N Y Times p14 N 12 '50 170w

"The characterization is strong and the plot well developed. Young readers will be intrigued by the adventure and excitement, and at the same time they will be learning much about frontier life." R. A. Brown
+ Sat R of Lit 33:54 N 11 '50 100w

BRONSON, WILFRED SWANCOURT. Cats; il. by [the author]. [75p] $2 Harcourt 636.8 Cats—Juvenile literature 50-9467

"So that 'you may enjoy more than ever the company of that tiny tiger or little lion who shares your home den with you,' Mr. Bronson gives the young reader, in picture, chart, and text, just about all the information he can be expected to assimilate about cats and their relatives." Chicago Sunday Tribune

Booklist 47:46 S 15 '50

Bookmark 10:11 O '50 40w

"The job has been wonderfully well done without sentimentality; indeed, the pictures rather tend to stress Pussy's more formidable aspect. The charts on the mechanism of eye and claw are fascinating." Edward Wagenknecht
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p15 N 12 '50 100w

Cleveland Open Shelf p20 O '50

"Packed with information and spectacular illustrations."
+ Kirkus 18:516 S 1 '50 130w

"Recommended." E. E. Frank
+ Library J 75:2081 D 1 '50 70w
N Y Times p50 N 26 '50 120w
+ Springf'd Republican p5D S 10 '50 170w

BROOK, DONALD. Pageant of English actors. 286p il $3.50 Macmillan 927.92 Actors and actresses [50-4160]

Brief biographical sketches of some outstanding actors of the English stage. Contents: Richard Burbage; Richard Tarlton; William Kemp; Edward Alleyn; Thomas Betterton; David Garrick; John Kemble; Edmund Kean; William Charles Macready; Samuel Phelps; Sir Henry Irving; Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson; Sir Herbert Beerbohm-Tree; John Gielgud; Sir Laurence Olivier. Bibliography.

"His sketches vary much in length and even in character, but he seems, in each case, to have used the best authorities available. His taste is catholic, his judgment sensible and kindly." Edward Wagenknecht
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ag 13 '50 450w

San Francisco Chronicle p7 N 26 '50 200w

"Like many of its predecessors, 'A Pageant of English Actors' lacks historical perspective, psychological insight, and unifying standards of artistic judgment. While one can forgive these faults in the nineteenth century collective biographies, since the best of them were at least valuable storehouses of scattered facts, anecdotes, and criticism, one cannot forgive them in a book that, except for its inclusion of John Gielgud and Laurence Olivier, adds little to what has been often repeated about England's leading actors." H. K. Chinoy
— + Theatre Arts 34:5 S '50 650w

BROOKE, JOCELYN. The scapegoat. 209p $2.50 Harper
49-50342

"A morbid novel, in which an uncle's subconscious wish for the death of his orphaned nephew, in order to inherit the boy's estate, induces a state of latent enmity, with dire effect on the personalities of both, and leads to a tragic culmination." Library J

"The weakness of the last incident impregnates the entire novel, the hints of horror are a bit too pat and the symbolism is blurred. Which is a shame, because The Scapegoat is neatly written."
— + Cath World 171:72 Ap '50 250w

Reviewed by Dorothy Langley
Chicago Sun p6S Ja 18 '50 160w

"The rainswept countryside, the ancient Druidic field where the old stones alone hold sway and nothing grows, the dark, enclosing wood, the March house, so close to collapse, all combine to achieve a remarkably effective atmosphere of terror and darkness, against which the tense drama of the boy pitted against the man, both moved by forces not quite realized or within their control, spins out in a minimum of prose, which is spare without being savorless, and gains in its effectiveness thru its very simplicity." August Derleth
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ja 8 '50 400w

Christian Century 67:209 F 15 '50 350w

Cleveland Open Shelf p4 Ja '50

"The concentration, the compression here gives this . . . a direct and telling impact. It should command critical attention and a literary following."
Kirkus 17:609 N 1 '49 180w

"A too lavish use of terms suggesting horror—suspense and too obvious Freudian techniques produce an artificiality—a kind of literary Chas. Addams cartoon." R. W. Henderson
Library J 75:43 Ja 1 '50 70w

Reviewed by H. I'A. Fausset
Manchester Guardian p3 F 18 '49 140w

Reviewed by Simon Harcourt-Smith
New Statesman & Nation 37:259 Mr 12 '49 240w

"It is seldom that one has the privilege of reading a novel which marches as undeviatingly and fatefully toward its climax as 'The Scapegoat' does. It is a short book but never spare or hurried; every bit of it is cogent. Haunting, excruciating, remorseless are perhaps the most salient words for it, even if those do not quite convey the beauty and forcefulness of style and execution. . . A powerful and troubling book. Throughout the reader has an uneasy feeling that he has been there before, and that a veil of realization is being lifted, revealing what he, perhaps intentionally, rejected. 'The Scapegoat' is a skillfully executed, excitingly bitter novel, which serves well to introduce Mr. Brooke—already widely acclaimed in England—to American readers." D. C. De Jong
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 Ja 8 '50 700w

"Rarely in modern writing does one find such an artful alliance of the supernatural with the psychopathic. Jocelyn Brooke can write grim tragedy because he never lets the obvious Freudian motivations of his characters explain and destroy the mystery of their fate. . . Yet the mythical element might still seem artificial had it not been set in the druidical landscape of the east coast of England." Nancy Lendkeith
+ N Y Times p26 Ja 8 '50 380w

"Mr. Brooke's hand, unfortunately, is somewhat too heavy for this delicate theme, and the final melodramatic passage seems more an author's self-indulgence than a natural climax to the story."
— New Yorker 25:86 Ja 14 '50 80w

"It is a work of polished craftsmanship. But I find it disappointing. . . The line of development Mr. Brooke selects is somewhat arbitrary. . . In fairness I must repeat that it is well written and competently managed within its premise. It contains some good scenes, especially several projecting the subtle stresses between the boy and his uncle on the question of masculinity. Some are going to like the book a great deal more than I do." Edmund Fuller
— + Sat R of Lit 33:11 Ja 28 '50 550w

"A really outstanding short novel, delightful and at the same time horrifying. . . Perhaps the very end is too melodramatic. The subterranean (or, if you like, supernatural) forces at work were sinister enough without having to be brought out quite so crudely as in that final picture." Robert Kee
+ — Spec 182:166 F 4 '49 170w

"Like much British writing of the upper literary stratum, it reveals an odd Anglo-Saxon preoccupation with earth elementals, a rather fatalistic concept of human destinies not fully understood in this country except in the field of ghostly fiction headed by such writers as Arthur Machen and M. R. James." R. F. H.
Springf'd Republican p17A Ja 8 '50 120w

"This gothic tale is artificially tensed by Author Brooke with misleading clues (the point of the confrontation at the Druids' stones is never made clear) and contrived devices of suspense. The Scapegoat still has the ugly reality of a fatal disease."
Time 55:89 Ja 9 '50 550w

"A most original and unusual story. In one sense The Scapegoat is a psychopathological drama—almost indeed a text-book tragedy, though with a mythical undercurrent. But it is told very plainly and objectively, and relies on action as the means of revealing character and passion. It makes exciting, sometimes excruciating, reading, and gives the impression of having been very deeply felt. . . It may be that the mythical element, the 'ritual cycle,' is artificially injected, but it seldom obtrudes and does not detract from the power of a remarkable piece of writing."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p101 F 12 '49 360w

BROOKE, LADY SYLVIA LEONORA (BRETT), rani of Sarawak. The Darlingtons. 314p $3 Farrar, Straus 50-9330

Victorian England is the scene of this novel about Lord and Lady Darlington and their twin daughters, Susan and Henrietta. Henrietta, the beauty, is the domineering one of the two sisters. But the weakling, Susan, is far from stupid, and in the end it is she who marries the man whom Henrietta had wanted.

"A yowling farce of the ten-twent'-thirt' variety which is nevertheless good reading and more than a little reminiscent of Charlotte Bronte, and probably represents the present day British variety of escape literature." Olive Carruthers
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 O 15 '50 470w

Kirkus 18:366 Jl 1 '50 200w

"Occasional flashes of gaiety do not dispel somber mood. Limited appeal." E. P Nichols
Library J 75:1180 Jl '50 100w

"'The Darlingtons' is deliberately made up of the echoes of other days—and of other ways of writing about them so long outmoded now that they seem quaint indeed. The whole period stirs in its sleep and lives palely for a few brief moments in Lady Sylvia's intentionally fluttering pages; and dies. The wreath of straw flowers she has laid upon the grave will lie prettily there." F. H. Bullock
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 S 17 '50 750w

"The whole orgy is well written and lively, the action nonstop, the detail faithful to Victorian charm." Jane Martin
+ N Y Times p28 N 19 '50 240w

"They say a paper shortage is again nearly upon us. Publishers should consider twice before wasting paper, not to say ink, on a spurious attempt at something that has been done better and more honestly before." Kathleen Sproul
— Sat R of Lit 33:42 N 25 '50 320w

BROOKES, MRS STELLA (BREWER). Joel Chandler Harris, folklorist. 182p $4 Univ. of Ga.

B or 92 Harris, Joel Chandler. Folklore—U.S. 50-12631

"This volume is primarily an attempt at classifying, summarizing, and examining the folklore element in the writings of Joel Chandler Harris, with some background study of the times and influences which shaped his writings." (Sat R of Lit) Bibliography. No index.

"Miss Brookes has done a careful piece of work. Its only serious fault is the absence of an index, which, in this meticulously documented book, with its extra flourishes in bibliography and chapter notes, is hard to understand." E. H. Smith
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 D 17 '50 550w

Reviewed by Shields McIlwaine
N Y Times p36 O 15 '50 220w

"Mrs. Brookes, one happily notes, does convey the human and literary excellences of Harris's tales, songs, and proverbs, although there is a tendency on her part to smother her subject with encomium and panegyric." Siegfried Mandel
+ Sat R of Lit 33:42 O 14 '50 320w

BROOKS, CLEANTH, and WARREN, ROBERT PENN. Fundamentals of good writing; a handbook of modern rhetoric. 523p $4.75 Harcourt

808 Rhetoric 50-7936

"Two experienced authors analyze the technique of effective writing, point by point, illustrating their suggestions with examples from published works. An appendix covers the special requirements of such forms of writing as the outline, summary, précis, notes, research papers and book reports." (Publishers' Weekly) Index.

"A comprehensive volume. . . Many excellent examples."
+ Bookmark 9:207 Je '50 20w

"Its subject matter, while true and essential enough, is so baldly organized even to the use of diagrams and paragraph headings, that there is no pleasure in reading it. . . Not essential." Shirley Barker

BROOKS, CLEANTH—Continued
— Library J 75:975 Je 1 '50 80w

"The text itself is an example of good writing. It is clear, relevant, economical; it marches from argument to argument, scrupulously illustrated; it is worth double its price in enjoyment to anyone who writes, and the same in profit to anyone who hopes to write. Like their earlier textbooks, Fundamentals of Good Writing is an anthology chosen with tact, and the samples of good writing should often turn the reader to some book he has never before heard of. . . The book is even more useful, however, for its invented or reproduced examples of how not to write. . . With adept mastery, it encourages thought and self-teaching toward a good style." D. A. Stauffer
+ New Repub 123:21 Jl 10 '50 800w

" 'Fundamentals of Good Writing' is a traditional, not a revolutionary, book; it differs from texts used at least as far back as the Twenties only in its meticulous thoroughness and the excellence of its illustrative matter. It is traditional as all good pedagogy is traditional." Wallace Stegner
+ N Y Times p5 Jl 16 '50 950w
Springf'd Republican p7B Ag 6 '50 40w

BROOKS, GWENDOLYN. Annie Allen. 60p $2.50 Harper
811 49-10072
For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

"The work of this young Chicago poet never fails to be warmly and generously human. In a surly and distempered age one is genuinely grateful to Miss Brooks for the lively and attractive spirit that sallies forth from her poems. In contrast to most of her contemporaries, she is neither ridden by anxiety nor self-consumed with guilt. There is in her work a becoming modesty. . . Like many second books, this is an uneven one. . . In some of her poems Miss Brooks confuses simplicity with naiveté. Whenever she is self-consciously naive, as in her ballads, her sentimental lyrics of the 'bronze girl,' she writes badly. . . Furthermore, I do not believe that Miss Brooks should be encouraged to pursue her cultivation of the early Millay inflection. . . Miss Brooks is particularly at home in the sonnet, where the tightness of the form forces her to consolidate her energies and to make a disciplined organization of her attitudes and feelings." Stanley Kunitz
+ — Poetry 76:52 Ap '50 950w

"Miss Brooks has turned from her earlier poetic realism to a strain of lyric emotion. She has turned, too, to elaboration and experimentation in language which, although not always successful, shows her desire not only to break out of set patterns but to make the tone of her work as variegated as possible. . . The poet's feeling for form is basic and remarkable. If her sonnets are dramatically projected, they are also classically firm. This underlying firmness, this sense of form, holds the book together despite its moments of extravagance."
+ — U S Quarterly Bkl 6:21 Mr '50 120w

BROOMELL, ANNA PETTIT. What do you think? 203p $2.50 Harper
398.21 Folklore, Indic. Discussion 50-13090
"A record of discussions, with questions and answers arranged for contemporary use, based on folk tales of an ancient India as retold by Mabel Ashe Beling." (School & Society) Glossary. No index.

"The telling of the stories from the Mahabharata and the Ramayana is superb. They are simplified, as they must be, for in the original they are insufferably prolix and are loaded with irrelevant digressions. Young and old can read these stories with delight. The use of them as starting points for discussions of all kinds of social and moral questions has the merit of offering a fresh approach, but the disadvantage of making a discussion often hang on a very slender thread of suggestion. . . The stories are good, and Mrs. Broomell's discussion outlines are good, but the connection between the two is not much."
Christian Century 67:1171 O 4 '50 350w

"For leaders of high school age in schools and churches. Non-sectarian, emphasis more upon ethics than upon religion."
+ Kirkus 18:595 O 1 '50 90w
School & Society 72:63 Jl 22 '50 30w
Wis Lib Bul 46:18 S '50

BROUGHTON, JOSEPHINE DELVES-. See Delves-Broughton, J.

BROWN, BEATRICE CURTIS. Anthony Trollope. (English novelists ser) 107p $2 Swallow, A.
B or 92 Trollope, Anthony 50-8843
"This book is intended as a discussion of Trollope as a novelist and deals no more than is essential with the facts of his life." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 47:41 S 15 '50
Reviewed by Leon Harpole
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 S 3 '50 60w
Manchester Guardian p4 Ap 21 '50 300w
Reviewed by Joseph Kraft
Nation 171:232 S 9 '50 320w

"One of the things which attracts readers to Trollope today is his positive attitude toward living and feeling. Miss Curtis-Brown's book is an ideal introduction to Trollope." J. V.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 N 19 '50 250w
Reviewed by James Gray
Sat R of Lit 33:32 O 28 '50 320w
Reviewed by C. E. Vulliamy
Spec 184:582 Ap 28 '50 430w

"Criticism is earnest, appreciative, a little laboured, though shot through at moments by an illuminating phrase. That it is the outcome of sincere admiration is plain; no cheap denigration is here. It may send some readers farther than Barsetshire, for the less known novels are treated with a fullness denied (reasonably, space being so limited) to the Barsetshire set, which until recently were the only available reprints."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p355 Je 9 '50 600w

BROWN, ELEANOR FRANCES. Horse for Peter; il. by Pers Crowell. 128p $2.50 Messner
Horses—Legends and stories 50-7384
"Peter read everything he could find about horses. He also drew them, hoped to be an artist, and looked forward to the day when he could own his own horse. Then came the accident which temporarily crippled him and during his convalescence he made friends with his neighbor's show horse, a Tennessee Walker. . . Life became pretty complicated when the horse's owner decided to sell him, but everything works out logically and satisfactorily." N Y Times

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 26:289 Jl '50 60w

"An implausible but pleasant tale. . . However with the plenteous information about Tennessee Walkers, horse shows, and adoring descriptions of the black stallion, Peter's precocious nobility should be no hindrance to enthusiastic reading for horse lovers."
Kirkus 18:97 F 15 '50 120w

"All very improbable, and written in a rather pedestrian style. But Peter's own attitude toward being lame, and his relations to his parents and teacher, give it unusual character value." L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 My 14 '50 130w

"This is a pleasant variation on the boy-meets-horse theme, because the story is as much concerned with human problems as with horseflesh and because those humans are credible and real." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p22 Jl 9 '50 180w

BROWN, EVERETT SOMERVILLE. Manual of government publications: United States and foreign. 121p $2 Appleton

015 Government publications 50-4788

"A valuable listing and description of government publications of the United States and foreign governments. Particular emphasis is laid upon the publications of the United States federal and state governments and the governments of Great Britain and the Commonwealth nations. The publications of the League of Nations and the United Nations are included." Current Hist

Am Pol Sci R 44:1052 D '50 30w
Booklist 47:4 S 1 '50
Current Hist 19:232 O '50 50w

"The Manual has inconsistencies and questionable omissions. . . It is unfortunate that more description and information were not included concerning the official gazettes of the United Kingdom, its Dominions and those of European government publications. However, in spite of the above comments, the Manual should be very useful in introducing graduate students to the field of government publications." J. K. Wilcox
+ — Library J 75:2145 D 15 '50 850w
Special Libraries 41:259 S '50 110w

BROWN, FREDRIC. Compliments of a fiend. 256p $2.50 Dutton

50-6242

Detective story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun p6 Ap 14 '50 100w
Kirkus 18:78 F 1 '50 120w

"Fredric Brown has always written ingenious mysteries and he doesn't fail in this one. The wind-up is less convincing than in some of his other books, but you'll be held by the same amount of suspense to the very end."
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p19 My 21 '50 220w

"Purely as a detective story the book is weak. It sags in the middle through a long investigation of blind alleys and is finally solved only because Ed at last takes, on page 195, a logical step which he could and should have taken on page 77. But, as the story of a young man coming of age in Chicago, it is warm and likable." A. B.
N Y Times p39 Ap 16 '50 140w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p16 Ap 9 '50 100w

"Satisfactory."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:34 Ap 29 '50 20w

BROWN, FREDRIC. Here comes a candle. 256p $2.75 Dutton

50-8824

A psychological novel in which the central character is young Joe Bailey, a smalltime criminal, mixed up in a mild way with the numbers racket in Milwaukee. All his life Joe had feared a candle and a hatchet, and in the end they were connected with his death.

Booklist 47:12 S 1 '50

"It is a bloody, cruel but never depressing glimpse of reality that few authors would dare tackle. . . It is a brilliantly written biography of frustration. Its closing chapter is a shocker you'll long remember." R. L. Blakesley
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ag 6 '50 410w

"Fast paced narrative and sound psychological angles, but geared to those who like tough thrillers rather than more subtle writing."
Kirkus 18:314 Je 1 '50 200w

"A tricky format robs this psychological novel of its impact. . . The author varies a straightforward story with flash-backs done in the form of movie, radio, stage and television scripts. Instead of giving depth to the story, these devices only highlight its lack of perception or import."
— N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 Ag 27 '50 200w

Reviewed by Nelson Algren
N Y Times p22 Ag 13 '50 260w

"Even if we don't think the new Brown opus is, as they say, 'up to snuff,' we're inclined to regard it as one of the better tales of the late summer." E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p22 S 17 '50 190w

"All this violence is rather below Mr. Brown's usual level of achievement. To make matters worse, he has chosen to enliven his tale of terror with some singularly unfortunate deviations from straight narrative. A half-dozen interludes are presented in a half-dozen different forms,—pretentious stylistic vaudeville that makes the book a distressing bore." Milton Crane
— Sat R of Lit 33:36 S 9 '50 270w

BROWN, GEORGE WILLIAMS, ed. Canada; chapters by Edgar McInnis [and others]. (United nations ser) 621p il maps $6.50 Univ. of Calif.

971 Canada 50-7759

Twenty-six authorities have contributed the chapters in this book covering the history, politics, and social organization of Canada. Bibliography. Index.

"A co-operative enterprise such as this book represents cannot avoid some repetition, and a topical treatment lacks some of the virtues of a smooth-running historical narrative. . . But these are minor matters. The book is in every way a credit to Canadian scholarship and should be widely read by all who wish to understand modern Canada and her relations to the world beyond her borders." Carl Wittke
+ — Am Hist R 56:158 O '50 750w
Am Pol Sci R 44:785 S '50 40w

Reviewed by H. F. Angus
Ann Am Acad 272:282 N '50 500w
Booklist 46:350 Jl 15 '50

"The book on Canada is scholarly and well balanced. The editor has seen to it that practically all phases of Canadian life are dealt with, and by those who are recognized in their particular fields. The only question that this reviewer has is whether the book contains so much that it may be read by the scholar rather than by the general reader, and so to some extent defeat the purpose for which the series was planned. . . This is a volume that requires not only reading, but much rereading. It is the most authoritative study of Canada that we have had in the last decade. The printer and the publisher have seen to it that the mechanics of reading is a pleasure. To this reviewer it has been a real pleasure. The editor deserves a word of praise." R. C. Wallace
+ Canadian Hist R 31:188 Je '50 800w

Reviewed by George Scharschug
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 O 22 '50 170w
Current Hist 19:40 Jl '50 40w

" 'Canada' is a solid piece of work. . . Mr. Brown has chosen his contributors well. . . Here the student will find background material to make the important daily news he gets in the American press fit into its frame. Here, too, the general reader will find a Canada without Mounties gettin' their man and Eskimos chasing caribou. . . There is a useful selected bibliography and the book is well indexed." L. L. L. Golden
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 Je 11 '50 700w

BROWN, G. W.—Continued
Reviewed by Geoffrey Bruun
Sat R of Lit 33:32 Je 24 '50 270w

"It is no criticism of the purpose or functions of the book to say that for the most part these essays are good plain stuff, differing in quality, but not in form, from the contribution to a year-book or an almanac. The reader can possess himself of a vast amount of information about every facet of Canadian life, but there is little in the book which illuminates the Canadian scene or which would make an outsider understand to what the development of Canada has led."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p639 O 13 '50 360w

BROWN, JOHN MASON. Still seeing things. 335p $3.75 McGraw 814 50-10626

The third in the author's series of essays on dramatic criticism, and various other papers, all of which first appeared in the Saturday Review of Literature.

Booklist 47:132 D 1 '50

Reviewed by Harold Hobson
Christian Science Monitor p7 D 16 '50 900w

Kirkus 18:498 Ag 15 '50 150w

"Recommended for paid circulation collections." George Freedley
Library J 75:1828 O 15 '50 30w

"What keeps Mr. Brown from being a critic in 'the big, proud sense of the word' (as he rightly believes Joseph Wood Krutch to be) is that, however hard he works at it, all too often what he writes for print is a kind of speaker's prose (and he is an excellent speaker) replete with those rephrasings meant to knock at the ears of sleepy auditors, so that even the drowsiest will in the end achieve the points. This is well enough on the platform; on the page elimination is called for. . . In view of Mr. Brown's gentle charm, his almost always admirable judgment, his compassion, the breadth of feeling and perception he shows in these essays, the way he uses words may seem of small importance. It does not, I must admit, to me." Richard Lockridge
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 N 19 '50 750w

"What makes Mr. Brown's essays the good reading and sound criticism they are is his subjective approach. You'll never find him employing the distant, Olympian view, though he can be objective enough when he chooses. Nor does he take the easy way to the reader's attention, the all-too-common trick of devastating exaggeration." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 N 16 '50 700w

"The esthetic values of everyone from Miguel de Cervantes to Bennett Cerf are spread out before us in lively, provocative, and soundly critical fashion. No long-distance, non-stop marathon endorser, like earlier American arbiters whom one might name, Brown keeps his sense of responsibility as high as are his spirits. One could wish nothing better for American taste than that he should manage to make artistic discernment as infectious as he has made laughter." James Gray
+ Sat R of Lit 33:22 D 2 '50 750w

BROWN, LILIAN (MACLAUGHLIN) (MRS BARNUM BROWN). I married a dinosaur. 268p il $3 Dodd 915.4 India—Description and travel. Burma—Description and travel. Brown, Barnum 50-5776

"Mrs. Brown started on a world cruise after leaving a convent school, promptly fell in love, and was married at Calcutta, India. A lovely specimen of a prehistoric elephant got in the way of a honeymoon, and a continuing succession of ossified bones in various stages of repair finally convinced the bride that while others might have a rose-covered cottage the wife of a fossil hunter had to devote most of her home-making talents to a tent." Springf'd Republican

---

Booklist 46:216 Mr 1 '50

Bookmark 9:155 Ap '50 30w

Reviewed by Bruce Taylor
Chicago Sun p6 Ap 5 '50 340w

"The story of their early wedded life is told in a sprightly fashion, with a touch of whimsey that delights without ever seeming forced or mawkish." W. R. Krogman
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p17 Mr 5 '50 450w

"The humor is rather contrived but the lighthearted acceptance of hardships and the real friendship for the natives give the book more than momentary appeal." M. C. Scoggin
+ — Horn Bk 26:214 My '50 60w

"Mrs Barnum Brown writes well but not startlingly well. . . The book will amuse the casual reader, and definitely the many admirers of the famous paleontologist of the Natural History Museum." K. T. Willis
Library J 75:314 F 15 '50 70w

Reviewed by M. D. Read
Library J 75:706 Ap 15 '50 40w

"It is a good account of the impact of a strange and foreign scene, complete with spooks and leopards that eat dogs and sometimes babies, and it is full of off-the-beaten-track routes, maharajas and baby elephants. Lilian Brown's story has the bounce of 'The Egg and I' and no moan of 'Mother India' about it." Ernestine Evans
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 F 12 '50 500w

Reviewed by Harry Gilroy
N Y Times p29 F 12 '50 180w

Reviewed by J. T. Winterich
Sat R of Lit 33:33 Jl 8 '50 110w

"This is a light and amusing story of life in India and Burma, with gypsy housekeeping and native customs and crochets elbowing aside the descriptions of Dr. Brown's work." R. F. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p6D F 19 '50 230w

BROWN, LLOYD ARNOLD. Story of maps. 397p il $7.50 Little 526.98 Maps. Cartography 49-9542

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

"The Story of Maps by Lloyd A. Brown is good history. If 'history is geography in motion,' then 'the story of maps: the men who made them and the methods they employed, what can be found on them and the devious ways by which the information required for their compilation was obtained' is an important contribution to the history of mankind. As the author says in his introduction, 'There is no other such chronicle in print.'" S. W. Boggs
+ Am Hist R 55:341 Ja '50 650w

"This book gives a definite impression of having been written entirely from research in books rather than in maps, and of having been completed before the author could utilize his reading with understanding or judgment. Nowhere, certainly, is any map, however important, satisfactorily described or analyzed; and nowhere is there any practical account of the routine work of the early chart or map makers. . . Yet Mr. Brown's general bibliography, though it includes some obsolete works, is full, shows considerable research, and will be useful to experts in the history of cartography. The book is handsomely printed and produced, with many unusual and excellent illustrations, chosen rather for their instructive value than for display." Edward Lynam
— + Geog R 40:496 Jl '50 1350w

"Librarians have made many distinguished contributions to cartography and geography. A tradition started by Eratosthenes, librarian at Alexandria of the greatest library of the classical world, has been worthily continued by the author of the present work, who is now librarian of the Peabody Institute in Baltimore. . . The book is beautifully manufactured. The eighty-two illustrations are effective and artistic. The format is pleasing. The pages of text are uncluttered by the documentary impediments of scholarship. Yet the careful student wishing to check sources of controversial or important items can follow the unobtrusive footnotes to the back of the book, where full documentation rewards his curiosity. The extensive Bibliography, arranged by subjects, presents a carefully chosen summary of the literature of the history of mapmaking and its problems." C. D. Harris

+ Library Q 20:145 Ap '50 600w

Reviewed by H. V. B. Kline
Social Educ 14:190 Ap '50 400w

"Adroitly seasoned with drama, the book is logical, balanced, and excellently illustrated. It is fully documented with thirty pages of notes arranged by chapter, and a bibliography of similar length arranged by subject."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:485 D '49 280w

BROWN, MARCIA. Dick Whittington and his cat; told and cut in linoleum by [the author]. [28p] $1.75 Scribner 398

A retelling of the old story of Dick Whittington, illustrated with linoleum cuts.

Booklist 47:15 S 1 '50

Bookmark 10:10 O '50 30w

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 D 17 '50 30w

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton
Christian Science Monitor p9 N 13 '50 60w

Cleveland Open Shelf p22 D '50

"Miss Brown has been a children's librarian and her retelling is good for storyhour."
+ Horn Bk 26:369 S '50 50w

Kirkus 18:464 Ag 15 '50 90w

"Miss Brown's version is clear and vigorous. Her pictures, in a style different from any she has shown in books before, are dramatic linoleum cuts in two colors. They are perfectly suited to the tale and its period; all are lively and funny, with imaginative appeal for boys and girls of about six to ten. Beyond that, their fascinating use of costume and detail, their excellent design and variety of form on the page, make the book of interest to artists and collectors as well." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p28 O 8 '50 180w

"Marcia Brown author-artist of 'Henry—Fisherman' and other fine picture books, here sets the beloved legend of Dick Whittington in a handsome framework. An experienced story-teller, she writes a simple, flavorsome prose, sparked with plenty of conversation to give young children a feeling of reality, of actually knowing the people." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p20 Ag 13 '50 100w

New Yorker 26:175 D 2 '50 40w

"Marcia Brown's presentation of this famous old tale has the originality and distinction that we have learned to expect from this young artist."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:52 O 21 '50 140w

BROWN, MARGARET WISE. Dark wood of the golden birds; pictures by Leonard Weisgard. [58p] $1.75 Harper
50-8605

A parable related in poetic prose for young children. It tells the story of the little boy who braves the strange dangers of the magic wood to bring back to his old guardian the song of the golden birds.

"Somehow it doesn't come off."
— Kirkus 18:331 Je 15 '50 130w

Reviewed by Louise Davis
Library J 75:632 Ap 15 '50 100w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Jl 23 '50 230w

"This is a parable of the poetry and beauty of life, of the courage and faith which are needed to find them and of the insensitivity which comes to those who deny their reality. Now, important as is this theme, the first duty of a parable is to be interesting as a story. This one seems to me too tenuous, too subtle to convey its message effectively. Leonard Weisgard's illustrations are also oversubtle." E. L. Buell
N Y Times p22 Jl 9 '50 180w

BROWN, MARGARET WISE. Dream book; first comes the dream; il. by Richard Floethe. [24p] $1.50 Random house 50-9581

Pictures and simple text for little children about quiet dreams, the dreams of sleeping animals or little children, or even a fish, and a little bird.

Reviewed by Marcia Winn
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 N 12 '50 60w

Kirkus 18:556 S 15 '50 100w

"Recommended for preschool ages." E. T. Dobbins
+ Library J 75:1909 N 1 '50 60w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 N 12 '50 40w

BROWN, MARGARET WISE. Peppermint family; pictures by Clement Hurd. [32p] $1.75 Harper 50-9898

A picture book for young readers all about Mr Peppermint who went to the North Pole to catch fish and polar bears, and what happened when Mrs Peppermint wrote a letter asking what to name their baby.

Reviewed by Marcia Winn
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 N 12 '50 60w

"Although this book is good for any time of the year, it should certainly be served at Christmas along with the candy canes."
+ Horn Bk 26:466 N '50 80w

Kirkus 18:606 O 1 '50 100w

"Children 3-6 will love this imaginative, fanciful tale written easily and rhythmically and pictured by Clement Hurd on pepperminty pages." E. E. Beatty
+ Library J 75:2016 N 15 '50 90w

BROWN, MARGARET WISE. Quiet noisy book; pictures by Leonard Weisgard. [36p] $1.50 Harper 50-9797

Picture story book about something which wakened the little dog Muffin. What was it? In a series of pictures, questions are asked, always with the answer no. Then comes the answer.

Reviewed by Marcia Winn
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 N 12 '50 60w

Christian Science Monitor p11 N 13 '50 90w

Horn Bk 26:466 N '50 40w

Kirkus 18:555 S 15 '50 130w

"Brilliantly colored pictures by Leonard Weisgard and a very simple text make this pleasant fare for children of picture book age." H. M. Brogan
+ Library J 75:1909 N 1 '50 70w

"This is all a very pleasant increase of the small child's powers of listening. It does not integrate the dog Muffin with its idea, as did the first Noisy Book, but it is interesting, charming, well worth a 'quiet' hour with a small child on your lap." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 N 12 '50 150w

BROWN, RAY F., ed. Oxford American psalter; the psalms and canticles according to the use of the Protestant Episcopal church in the U.S.A; pointed and set to Anglican chants. 242p $3.50 Oxford

783.5 Bible. Old Testament—Psalms. Chant (plain, Gregorian, etc.) 49-11923

In the introduction the author (of the General Theological Seminary, New York) discusses the principles and traditions of chanting the psalms in the Episcopal church. He also gives instructions for choirmasters and organists in the use of chants in this volume. The main body of the volume consists of the words of the canticles and the psalter and the music, in brief, for each. Index.

"The whole should be easily understood by any leader who is even moderately competent." W. E. G.

+ Christian Century 67:18 Ja 4 '50 160w

"This book will be of interest to organists and choirmasters of Episcopal churches. Mr. Brown has done a thorough and thoughtful piece of work and those church musicians who favor the so-called 'speech rhythm' system of singing the psalms and canticles to Anglican chants will welcome his new psalter. . . This reviewer happens to feel that the pointing which Mr. Brown employs is open to more abuse by the average choir than the pointing in The Hymnal, 1940 and The American Psalter." Paul Callaway

+ — Music Lib Assn Notes 7:297 Mr '50 320w

BROWN, SAM, ed. Planning your home workshop. See Popular mechanics magazine

BROWN, WILLIAM ADAMS. United States and the restoration of world trade; an analysis and appraisal of the ITO charter and the General agreement on tariffs and trade. 572p $5 Brookings

380.611 International trade organization (proposed). U.S.—Commercial policy. Commercial policy 50-7703

"The purpose of this study is to examine these two international instruments [the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade and the Charter for an International Trade Organization] to trace their historical origins, to clarify and explain their provisions, to place them in their contemporary setting, and to evaluate them as instruments of United States foreign economic policy." Introd.

"This is a very scholarly, timely, and illuminating work." P. S. Peirce

+ Ann Am Acad 271:190 S '50 700w

Booklist 46:346 Jl 15 '50

"Heavy going but well worth the effort—if you yearn to understand what sort of economic shape top-level diplomats are trying to give the world."

Sat R of Lit 33:15 S 16 '50 290w

BROWN, MRS ZENITH (JONES) (DAVID FROME, pseud). Homicide house; Mr Pinkerton returns. 243p $2.50 Rinehart

50-6413

Detective story.

"An adventure that ought to please a good many readers, although David Frome has given us books in which the subsidiary characters were a little less like animated dolls." James Sandoe

+ — Chicago Sun p6 Mr 31 '50 100w

"Genteel and pleasing whodunit."

+ Kirkus 18:39 Ja 15 '50 70w

"The adventures of Messrs. Pinkerton and Bull used to be one of the pleasanter spots in detective fiction. It's good to welcome them back again—a little aged by the war—but just as amiable as ever."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p26 My 7 '50 270w

"The great virtue of good British whodunits is their quiet charm, but this one manages to be a bit too charming and a little too quiet." Hillis Mills

N Y Times p39 Ap 16 '50 140w

New Yorker 26:123 Mr 25 '50 140w

"Blithe, expert, and altogether satisfactory yarn."

+ Sat R of Lit 33:45 Ap 8 '50 40w

BROWNELL, BAKER. The human community; its philosophy and practice for a time of crisis. 305p $4 Harper

323.35 Community life 50-9899

A consideration of the prevailing trends and contrasts between urban and rural life, with special attention given to rural communities. The author is professor of philosophy at Northwestern university. Index.

"There are several levels upon which one might criticize such a work as this. . . It is more profitable to turn, however, to the values that are imputed to life in Mr. Brownell's community and to the attitudes he displays in the course of his description. It is noteworthy that the book as a whole is against the fact of history—that is, it is full of longing for some bygone past, full of hostility to what has actually happened. . . Through the volume also runs a deep strain of obscurantism. . . These attitudes seem related to the author's preoccupation with what he calls survival." Oscar Handlin

N Y Times p46 N 26 '50 800w

School & Society 72:334 N 18 '50 20w

"A thoughtful study." J. W. C.

+ Springf'd Republican p12D D 3 '50 330w

BROWNING, ROBERT. New letters; ed. with introd. and notes by William Clyde DeVane and Kenneth Leslie Knickerbocker. 413p $6 Yale univ. press

B or 92 50-10538

A collection of some 400 hitherto unpublished letters of Robert Browning, covering in point of time the years 1835 to 1889. Copiously annotated. Index.

"Careful and accurate editing as well as new and revealing material make this an outstanding contribution to Browning scholarship."

+ Kirkus 18:550 S 1 '50 190w

"Many collections of Browning letters have appeared in print before this, but never with a setting of such careful scholarship as this group being offered to readers for the first time. . . Recommended for large libraries and literature collections." Shirley Barker

+ Library J 75:1653 O 1 '50 120w

"This new collection of letters will be of interest to all lovers of the poet, but it will hardly draw new readers to him. Perhaps its fundamental value lies in the abundance of fresh evidence on many phases of his career which must be taken into account when a truly 'definitive' biography of Browning is written." S. C. Chew

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 D 24 '50 1250w

"The present volume sets fresh standards of editorial thoroughness. . . The shortcomings in this book are Browning's, not the editors'. It is customary for the reviewer of such a work to display his own erudition by compiling a list of the minor errors in which he has caught his colleagues. So complete, however, is the job which Messrs. DeVane and Knickerbocker, both Professors of English, have done that the present reviewer has caught only one." De Lancey Ferguson

+ — N Y Times p5 N 26 '50 550w

San Francisco Chronicle p25 D 3 '50 130w

"For all their prolixity the editors often withhold important information. . . Sometimes the editors' information is actually misleading. . . The letters themselves, while not so important as those in the major collections already published, contain a number that can compare with the best for the manly, endearing qualities they reveal in Browning. Among them are the letters describing the death of his wife. There is also a vivid account of the disaster wrought by an avalanche at Grissoney, which reveals Browning as a superb artist in prose." Frances Winwar

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:23 D 2 '50 800w

BROWNLOW, LOUIS. The President and the presidency. 137p $2.75 Public adm.

353.03 Presidents (U.S.) 49-6223

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

"Let no one write this book off as unimportant because of its brevity. It is one of the most intimate and human accounts ever published to show the overwhelming difficulties of the presidential office, and the great disparity in this age of giant government between the unavoidable duties and the public expectations of the presidency on the one hand, and the limited personal resources and staff aids of the President on the other. There is insight and wisdom on every page." William Anderson

+ Am Hist R 55:693 Ap '50 320w

"Lectures are often embalmed in print to give the donor tactile evidence of the purchase of his bounty, to glorify the sponsoring institution, and to gratify the lecturer. Having served their purposes, the resulting volumes soon gather dust and are forgotten, as they deserve to be. A different fate awaits Mr. Brownlow's volume of lectures on the presidency. It must be given a place alongside the standard works on the subject. Among them it will be unique, for it contains the mature reflections of a perceptive observer who has had opportunities to exercise his faculties of observation seldom enjoyed by academic writers on politics." V. O. Key

+ Am Pol Sci R 44:198 Mr '50 700w

Reviewed by Frank Paddock

Ann Am Acad 267:220 Ja '50 400w

Foreign Affairs 29:150 O '50 20w

Reviewed by J. C. Long

Pol Sci Q 65:138 Mr '50 230w

BRUCE, ARTHUR GARFIELD. Highway design and construction; 3d ed. by Arthur G. Bruce and John Clarkeson. 3d ed 734p il $7.25 Int. textbook

625.7 Highway engineering. Roads 50-7661

"A standard engineering college textbook which has been thoroughly revised and modernized in this edition—the first on which Clarkeson appears as co-author. It is introductory but comprehensive enough to be of reference value in libraries. The presentation is only semi-technical, hence the greater part of the book can be readily understood by lay readers seeking information on highway engineering. Each chapter ends with a list of pertinent advanced literature. It should be noted that maintenance operations such as periodic oiling of dirt roads are covered, as are strictly engineering operations." N Y New Tech Bks

Booklist 47:41 S 15 '50

"It is reasonably comprehensive, and the treatment is introductory and semi-technical. However, lists of more specific and advanced articles and pamphlets are appended to all of the chapters." R. R. Hawkins

+ Library J 75:872 My 15 '50 80w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:44 My '50

BRUNNER, EDMUND DE SCHWEINITZ, and YANG, E. HSIN PAO. Rural America and the extension service; a history and critique of the Cooperative agricultural and home economics extension service. 210p il $3; pa $2.80 Teachers college

630.717 Cooperative agricultural and home economics extension service. Agricultural extension work. Education of adults 49-48990

"For 35 years America's rural population has had available and made increasing use of agricultural and home economics advisory services provided by Federal and State governments. Much recent progress in farming methods and farm living may be traced directly to the educational facilities co-ordinated under the Cooperative Agricultural and Home Economics Extension Service. In their study of extension, Drs. Brunner and Yang have surveyed the background, organization, methods and principles of the agency and evaluated its many services." (San Francisco Chronicle) Chapter bibliographies. Index.

Am Pol Sci R 44:775 S '50 30w

"What the seeking mind would like to know about the Extension Service is pretty well contained within the covers of this volume. The story is not vividly and dramatically told, as the exciting material it encompasses might easily make it possible to do. But the task is scientifically done, and the serious student will find the book an up-to-date interpretation of this educational enterprise." Wilson Gee

+ Ann Am Acad 268:245 Mr '50 600w

San Francisco Chronicle p22 Mr 26 '50 100w

School & Society 70:335 N 19 '49 50w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:98 Mr '50 120w

BRUNNER, HEINRICH EMIL. Christian doctrine of God; tr. by Olive Wyon. (Dogmatics, v 1) 361p $6 Westminster press

230 Theology. God (50-6821)

"Emil Brunner is one of the three or four most influential theologians of our generation. [This is] the English translation of his beginning volume of systematic theology. . . The first section of the work, a prolegomena, stresses the missionary nature of dogmatics and shows Brunner to be an apostle to the intellectual pagans outside the church (as Karl Barth wishes to be an apostle to the church to seek its redemption from within). The second section deals with the nature and attributes of God and gives a careful historical analysis of the classic teachings in the field. The third section discusses the will of God, especially the problem of 'double predestination.' " Churchman

"This is a good book to brush the rust off clerical minds." T. K. Thompson

+ Churchman 164:17 Ag '50 190w

"The Dogmatik of Brunner, the first volume of which is now accessible in an English translation which has all the merits of Miss Wyon's work, differs considerably in form from that of Barth. It is simple and direct, with no lengthy exercises, and no trace of that argument for argument's sake which is characteristic of Barth. It is written with conviction but not with sledge-hammer blows against those who dare to differ from the author." E. L. Allen

+ Hibbert J 48:408 Jl '50 900w

Times [London] Lit Sup p4 Ap 7 '50 600w

BRUNNER, HEINRICH EMIL. Christianity and civilisation; pt2, Specific problems. 147p $2.50 Scribner

261 Christianity. Civilization, Christian (48-9826)

In his second series of Gifford lectures Dr Brunner "is dealing with the specific problems of civilization: technics, science, tradition, education, work, art, wealth, social custom, and power. In dealing with technics Brunner feels that industrial development in Western culture has proved a hideous perversion of the beauties and harmonies of nature. In dealing with tradition he finds that material and spiritual traditions are as inseparable as soul and body. As a good Lutheran Dr. Brunner is highly suspicious of revolutionary patterns in the social order." (Churchman) Index. For Part 1, Foundations, see Book Review Digest 1949.

Reviewed by C. C. Morrison

Christian Century 66:1455 D '49 2550w

BRUNNER, H. E.—Continued

"Dr. Emil Brunner, Professor of Theology at the University of Zurich, is one of the great Christian theologians of this generation. His Gifford Lectures, 'Christianity and Civilization,' have been anxiously awaited on both sides of the Atlantic. The fact that Dr. Brunner gave these lectures in popular, non-technical language has greatly increased this anticipation. . . [The book] is easily read and understood by intelligent lay readers and deserves the widest possible reading." T. K. Thompson

+ Churchman 164:18 Ap 15 '50 300w

Times [London] Lit Sup p4 Ap 7 '50 600w

BRYN-JONES, DAVID. Dilemma of the idealist. 278p $3 Macmillan

171 Ethics. Idealism. Peace 50-7439

Exposition of the status of the idealist in today's world, exemplified most forcibly in the position of the Christian pacifist in a period of world wars. Author has been both a minister and a teacher of economics and political science.

Reviewed by W. Eliasberg

Ann Am Acad 271:224 S '50 280w

Booklist 47:70 O 15 '50

"The book deserves to be widely read. It is stimulating and persuasive and, although it contains nothing which is likely to shake the intransigent pacifist, it will help those wavering pacifists who are still prepared to respect the moral and intellectual integrity of those who disagree with them. I should add, however, that Calvinists of the Barthian type who mistrust idealism in any case, will find its arguments irrelevant, for the author is himself an incurable idealist." Iain Wilson

+ Christian Century 67:922 Ag 2 '50 1050w

"Professor Bryn-Jones, in the process of recording the development of liberal thought during the last century, has reached clarifying and perceptive conclusions as to the political and social duties of the man who accepts Jesus' teaching as a basis for a way of life. In particular he has made a very sympathetic analysis of the motives of the pacifist." Neil Martin

+ Christian Science Monitor p16 Ag 16 '50 420w

"This book is timely and valuable." W. K. Wright

+ Crozer Q 27:266 Jl '50 800w

Kirkus 18:56 F 1 '50 180w

"Highly recommended for general library purchase." H. S. Taylor

+ Library J 75:395 Mr 1 '50 100w

Reviewed by Y. H. Krikorian

New Repub 123:25 S 25 '50 1400w

Reviewed by P. W. Wilson

N Y Times p31 Je 11 '50 230w

"There are exceptionable things about this book. Its pace is over-leisurely; it ought to have an index; for some reason it uniformly refers to Lord Lindsay as Lord Landsay. Its chief merit is a combination of practical sense with moral sensitiveness. But on reflection that is not a bad definition of wisdom." Brand Blanshard

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:25 Jl 8 '50 750w

BUBER, MARTIN. Paths in utopia; tr. by R. F. C. Hull. 152p $3 Macmillan

335.09 Socialism. Communism. Cooperation 50-6625

"The intention underlying this book is to give genetic account of what Marx and the Marxists call 'Utopian Socialism', with particular reference to its postulate of a renewal of society through a renewal of its cell-tissue. I am not concerned to survey the development of an idea, but to sketch the picture of an idea in process of development. . . The chapter preceding the epilogue sums up my own attitude to the idea, which could otherwise only be read between the lines; moreover it was necessary to point out its significance in the present hour of decision." (Foreword) Index.

"A summary and scholarly study of humanity's search for the perfect social structure." H. W. Steiger

+ Christian Science Monitor p6 Ag 26 '50 800w

Reviewed by C. W. H. Sutton

Hibbert J 48:199 Ja '50 750w

"Buber is a distinguished Hebrew scholar who believes he has discovered the millennium in the agricultural communes of Israel. Distrustful of 'systems,' particularly the Marxian, he looks to the anarchists Proudhon, Kropotkin and Gustav Landauer, but selects only that part of their doctrines appropriate to his case. Like them, he ushers 'government' out the door only to readmit it in the guise of 'society' through the window. Highly mystical, he illustrates too well the ease with which sensitive but not overinformed men espouse simple patterns based on historical truths which they alone can see." David Spitz

— New Repub 123:21 Jl 31 '50 200w

San Francisco Chronicle p27 Ap 30 '50 300w

Times [London] Lit Sup p860 D 30 '49 1200w

BUCK, MARGARET WARING. In woods and fields. 96p il $3; pa $1.75 Abingdon-Cokesbury

574 Nature study 50-6491

Arranged by season and then by habitat, the book contains descriptions of several hundred birds, bugs, small animals, trees, flowers, and shrubs, found in all parts of the United States. Arrangement is by season. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:237 Mr 15 '50

Bookmark 9:163 Ap '50 30w

"A complete index of the scientific as well as common names will appeal to older readers who are scientifically inclined, and a table of contents arranged by season and habitat is an especially good aid." A. L. Shea

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p16 Ap 23 '50 200w

"The nature material is carefully checked and authentic. It is an intimate little volume that should help guide a child to observe more beauty and to be more considerate." Millicent Taylor

+ Christian Science Monitor p6 Ap 29 '50 150w

Cleveland Open Shelf p12 My '50

"The book is not overcrowded and may well tempt to further exploration. Parents who are alive to its value can use it to open their children's eyes to intelligent observation." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 26:198 My '50 100w

Kirkus 18:98 F 15 '50 90w

"Format is beautiful, and drawings by author are, on the whole, charming—flowers and plants are especially lovely. Recommended for school libraries." J. F. Kennedy

+ Library J 75:783 My 1 '50 100w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ap 9 '50 180w

"The beginning naturalist, exploring the countryside, will find Margaret Buck's 'In Fields and Woods' an invaluable companion all year long." J. W. McGill

+ N Y Times p22 Mr 5 '50 150w

"An unusually attractive and informing guide. . . Teachers and the Boy and Girl Scouts should find it an invaluable guide." M. G. Davis

+ Sat R of Lit 33:47 Mr 11 '50 100w

Springf'd Republican p8C Mr 26 '50 130w

Wis Lib Bul 46:28 Ap '50

BUCK, PEARL (SYDENSTRICKER) (MRS RICHARD JOHN WALSH). Child who never grew. 62p $1 Day

362.3 Children, Abnormal and backward
50-9500

In order to help other parents of mentally retarded children Pearl Buck has written this brief account of her own child, whose mental development stopped at the age of four. All profits from the book go to a New Jersey school for retarded children.

Booklist 47:4 S 1 '50

Time 56:41 Jl 24 '50 1350w

BUCK, PEARL (SYDENSTRICKER) (MRS RICHARD JOHN WALSH). One bright day. 60p $2 Day

50-13163

An American mother and her two little daughters on their way from China to the United States, spend a day in Kobe. There they meet and are entertained by a courtly Japanese gentleman, and all three Americans learn some valuable lessons.

Horn Bk 26:379 S '50 110w

Kirkus 18:416 Ag 1 '50 170w

"Expensive for an unillustrated book of only 60 pages. Not a first purchase." Claire Nolte
Library J 75:1513 S 15 '50 110w

"A brief, simple, short, true story which may perhaps be good to read aloud to children of six or seven, but which is also a little lesson for mothers of these ages." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 N 5 '50 270w

"The story does emphasize some of the charms of pre-war Japanese life, but it seems to be aimed as much at the sensibilities of adults as toward children." E. L. Buell
N Y Times p42 O 15 '50 120w

BUDENZ, LOUIS FRANCIS. Men without faces; the communist conspiracy in the U.S.A. 305p $3.50 Harper

335.4 Communist party (U.S.) Communism —U.S.
50-7948

"No matter what one thinks of Mr. Budenz and his tactics, this is a book which should be read by thinking Americans. Budenz, former Communist who returned to the Roman Catholic Church in 1945, discusses the operations of the Communist Party in the United States, describes the methods employed by the Communists, and accuses them of forming a fifth column directly under the control of Soviet Russia." (Library J) Index.

Booklist 46:328 Jl 1 '50

"As this book attains the wide circulation for which it is unquestionably destined, the American public will no doubt reflect the deliberate judgment of judges, juries, and investigating committees who have listened to testimony from Mr. Budenz. They have found it clear, convincing, unimpeachable." Joseph McSorley
+ Cath World 171:315 Jl '50 360w

"No other man could tell this story. Budenz is the only high-ranking American Communist who has left the party voluntarily." Willard Edwards
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 My 28 '50 420w

Christian Science Monitor p14 Je 27 '50 900w

Cleveland Open Shelf p13 Ag '50

"It seems that for Budenz anti-Communism is the whole program, as if holding in check and destroying the Communist apparatus and its open and hidden influences are enough. Budenz show no awareness of the roots which produced the poisonous plant of Communism. The absence of a deeper insight into the crisis of our time, which has produced, among other symptoms, the Communist threat, makes his book insufficient." Waldemar Gurian
Commonweal 52:348 Jl 14 '50 1100w

+ Current Hist 19:166 S '50 30w

"Important as personally experienced evidence and as a documentary on the Kremlin's fifth column—the handling here is straightforward and without hysteria or recrimination."
+ Kirkus 18:226 Ap 1 '50 110w

Reviewed by Donald Wasson
Library J 75:860 My 15 '50 100w

"The reader will not find sensationalism of the sort which has been making headlines recently, nor much that bears directly on those questions of personal association with the Communist party which have been agitating the public. Mr. Budenz asserts that 'not one statement shall appear in this book (although all are based on my personal experiences) which is not supported by documentary evidence.' In many cases he preserves the anonymity of those to whom he refers by describing them simply as 'a popular writer,' 'a woman lawyer' or 'one of the big political bosses of Chicago.' But if there are no strikingly new allegations against individuals, there is a detailed portrayal of Communist methods." Harry Baehr
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 My 28 '50 1400w

"Like many other ex-Communists, Mr. Budenz tends to see Communists under every bush and to make sweeping charges accordingly. In this he is not always convincing, for his own description of the party machinery makes it clear that there was much that neither he nor any other subordinate knew. One ends the book still puzzled as to why Mr. Budenz, an avowed idealist, stuck it out inside that dismal system for ten long years." R. L. Duffus
N Y Times p14 Je 11 '50 450w

"Presumably all Mr. Budenz's pertinent facts have long been in the hands of the F.B.I.; his purpose in writing the book, he claims, was to shock Americans out of their apathy. But however one may admire this purpose, one cannot very much admire the belatedness of Mr. Budenz's dedication to it."
New Yorker 26:109 Je 10 '50 180w

"Budenz deals with a subject to which I have devoted very detailed study—and I find that the facts he presents check perfectly with all that is publicly known of Communist activities in this country and the world. It is true that Budenz has a tendency to be pompous and overdramatic. . . That is a tendency which may irritate the reader but it does not distract from the book's factual content. And it is this factual content that counts. The book is not unrestrained. It is written with regard to journalistic accuracy." Martin Ebon
+ Sat R of Lit 33:14 Jl 1 '50 800w

Time 55:98 Je 19 '50 190w

BUECHNER, FREDERICK. A long day's dying. 267p $3 Knopf

49-50414

A sophisticated psychological novel which analyses the relationships among a small group of people—a widow, her son and her mother, and the three men in love with her.

"Mr. Buechner has written a perceptive and often astringently witty study of subtle human relationships and delicate tensions; a book which continually reaches for the emotional meanings of the moment. It left me, I must confess, with a sense of exceptional promise not fully realized. The parts never quite coalesce into a meaningful whole; the concluding chapters fail to mold the story into a dramatic unity." C. J. Rolo
+ — Atlantic 185:85 F '50 550w

"With flashing insight, the highly sophisticated pages disclose the emotional disturbance caused by a casual incident."
+ Bookmark 9:107 F '50 80w

BUECHNER, FREDERICK—Continued

"The best to be said of characters and plot is that both are made as real as it is possible to make uninteresting people or situations. Like Truman Capote, Buechner has an affinity for baroque settings, which here make even less imposing the lackluster surfaces of a group of indeterminate individuals." Emmett Dedmon

— + Chicago Sun p4S Ja 11 '50 550w

"It's an excellent novel, and surely it will find many enthusiastic readers. Among them I can't count myself. I found the work too cold and studied for enjoyment; its analytical interest failed to move me, perhaps because I could not ever feel that the somewhat bizarre relationships of the somewhat special characters were worthy of such acute analysis. There were many passages which, because I was never caught up in the calculated movement of the narrative, struck me as static and tenuous. A matter, finally, of flavor here; no question of quality; but either you like it or you don't." Richard Sullivan

+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ja 8 '50 500w

Reviewed by Theodore Kalem

Christian Science Monitor p11 Ja 12 '50 1150w

"What is remarkable about Mr. Buechner's writing in this first novel, is its detachment and reserve. It gives a temporary impression of bloodlessness, but before the end of the book is reached, the deep concern the author has for his characters, and the capacity they have to destroy one another, is clear. Part of the impression is a result of Buechner's prose, which is consciously framed and sometimes successful to the point where nothing more could be said. Sometimes the powder is wet, and his elaborate care in arranging the failure is embarrassing." William Pfaff

+ — Commonweal 51:493 F 10 '50 600w

"An oddly beautiful first novel, this is almost certain to create some sort of literary stir. . . A study in nuances of character and atmosphere, this is delicately oriented and finely drawn. For a special market, however."

+ Kirkus 17:612 N 1 '49 210w

"This is an ugly little story, but somehow memorable and of certain distinction, as if told by a lesser Proust. . . Recommended for sophisticated readers only." Shirley Barker

+ — Library J 75:43 Ja 1 '50 80w

"It seems to me the most curiously bad book I have read in months, but with an individual badness from which one can learn much about the central problems of novel writing. . . 'A Long Day's Dying' merely labels and asserts. It never realizes. Again and again we are told that these are wise, charming, cultivated, and subtle people, but all that is really established is that most of them are rich and that they exist in a milieu in which Audubon prints, the unicorn tapestries at the Cloisters, and the Marschallin's farewell from 'Rosenkavalier' constitute cultural chic. . . Unlike most bad novels, however, this book is written, and so skilfully that it will mislead many readers." Ernest Jones

— + Nation 170:64 Ja 21 '50 700w

New Repub 122:21 My 22 '50 360w

"It seems to me that 'A Long Day's Dying' is a legitimate work of art, a miniature work of art perhaps, but within its limited scope it is not very far from being perfect. If one accepts Mr. Buechner's people on their own terms and within their own world, what follows seems inevitable." J. J. Maloney

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Ja 8 '50 750w

"This first novel by a young man of 23 is a remarkable piece of work. There is a quality of civilized perception here, a sensitive and plastic handling of English prose and an ability to penetrate to the evanescent core of a human situation, all proclaiming major talent." David Daiches

+ N Y Times p4 Ja 8 '50 950w

"Mr. Buechner remains calm and sympathetic throughout, busying himself not so much with maneuvering his story toward a blazing finish as with a demonstration of his narrative wares, chief among which are handsomely arched and groined sentences and a knack for spraying his scenes with something that is either poetry or Williams Aqua Velva. Very dexterous."

New Yorker 25:79 Ja 7 '50 190w

"'A Long Day's Dying' is a strikingly fine first novel, and it seems entirely safe to say that its publication will constitute not only the first major fiction event of the new year, but will also introduce a new American novelist of the greatest promise and the greatest talent. In strict accuracy, it is not proper to refer to Mr. Buechner as being a novelist of great promise, for he has already arrived in superlative fashion. It is always an exciting thing to come upon a new, native talent, of a brilliance equal to anything produced in this country for many years, and for that reason, 'A Long Day's Dying' is exciting and most welcome reading." C. W. Weinberger

+ San Francisco Chronicle p13 Ja 22 '50 850w

"It is likely that this unusual novel, mannered to the extent of almost being labeled mandarin, despite its flaws or youthful pretensions, will arouse a great deal of interest in the coming months. For our part, we can only express wonderment and gratitude that the new year has at least started off with a novel with such a high degree of literary refinement from a writer of twenty-three." Richard McLaughlin

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:9 Ja 14 '50 800w

Reviewed by Harry Hansen

Survey 86:155 Mr '50 270w

"Some of Author Buechner's pages are gems of allusive writing, but they are so self-consciously and calculatedly polished that they break the continuity of the novel, and in a few places read like a parody of Chief Mandarin Henry James himself. Buechner has yet to learn how to whip a novel to an unimpeded climax and how to create characters not so transparently stereotyped as Leander, the young university god, and the so-elegant, so-intelligent instructor. But the talent is unmistakably there."

— + Time 55:90 Ja 9 '50 450w

Reviewed by Paul Pickrel

Yale R n s 39:576 spring '50 60w

BULLA, CLYDE ROBERT. Surprise for a cowboy; il. by Grace Paull. 82p $2.25 Crowell

50-8508

Story of a little city boy who wanted to be a cowboy, and after a season of apprenticeship on his uncle's ranch, achieved his ambition. For ages seven to ten.

Booklist 47:64 O 1 '50

"An interesting story with an ending that will make every boy wish to change places with Danny. Action pictures help the city 'cowboy' see the ranch and its exciting life." A. L. Shea

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 O 15 '50 80w

Kirkus 18:330 Je 15 '50 130w

"The incidents leading up to his winning the title 'cowboy' will be interesting reading to children of 7-9. . . Recommended." Elizabeth Sussdorff

+ Library J 75:1513 S 15 '50 60w

"The story is hardly distinguishable from a dozen other first cowboy tales for small boys. But Mr. Bulla has selected the events well for the age he has in mind and has a good style. Schools may like the book particularly for its three new easy-to-sing cowboy songs, good original material for both boys and girls of six to eight." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p28 O 8 '50 130w

+ N Y Times p32 N 12 '50 140w

Wis Lib Bul 46:20 N '50

BULLETT, GERALD WILLIAM. Poems. 64p $1.75 Cambridge

821

"Mr. Gerald Bullett is an English water colourist. He loves the pale colours and changing skies of a pastoral landscape; he is at home in the austerity of winter. In his new book he has made a selection of his poems, old and new, most of which are concerned with some aspect of the country scene." Spec

"No catharsis but a certain sense of wholeness comes from reading these poems. It is a pity people seldom choose a book like this and turn to other literary fare instead." Martin Curtler
+ N Y Times p33 F 19 '50 120w

"His verse is sometimes rather slender, but it is pleasantly intimate and unmistakably sincere, and one of the more recent poems, 'Christmas Eve,' has something of the almost translucent purity of a lyric by Christina Rossetti." Barbara Cooper
+ Spec 183:898 D 23 '49 90w

Times [London] Lit Sup p107 F 17 '50 270w

BUNCE, FRANK. So young a body. 216p $2.50 Simon & Schuster
50-5272

Detective story.

Booklist 46:233 Mr 15 '50

"Wacky characters, droll humor, and heinous villainy blended into effervescent divertissement."
Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 Ja 29 '50 50w

Kirkus 17:662 D 1 '49 70w

"A too involved plot makes this mystery rather heavy going, in spite of the slightness of the book itself."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 Ja 29 '50 140w

"The killings are none too convincing and not very frightening. However, the reader has a pleasant, relaxing little cruise on the Vagabond, and Mr. Humble and his blond friend are attractive fellow-passengers." Hillis Mills
N Y Times p14 F 12 '50 150w

"Giving his characters names that sound as if they came out of Dickens is only one of Mr. Bunce's annoying mannerisms, but his story is still fairly brisk and ingenious."
+ — New Yorker 25:92 Ja 14 '50 130w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p16 F 5 '50 100w

Springf'd Republican p8C Mr 19 '50 90w

BUNCLE, JOHN, JR. pseud. Of wives and wiving; a manual of instruction, exhortation and admonition gathered from older authors for the guidance, delight and moral fortification of contemporary readers. 83p $1.75 Regnery

808.8 Wives. Marriage 49-11748

A small book of quotations about the theme "wives," selected from writers as varied as Shakespeare, Lord Byron, Dr Johnson, and Thomas Moore.

"A delightful trifle."
+ Chicago Sun p5 Jl 25 '50 70w

"The sage advice, wit, and pleasantries concerning holy wedlock ought indeed to amuse and fortify those contemplating marriage or already committed to it. Even confirmed spinsters and bachelors will find it entertaining, if only to observe the snares and pitfalls of matrimony." Kelsey Guilfoil
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 Ja 22 '50 100w

Springf'd Republican p3D Ja 22 '50 120w

BURACK, ABRAHAM SOLOMON, ed. One hundred plays for children; an anthology of non-royalty one-act plays. 886p $4.75 Plays

808.82 Children's plays

Group of plays originally published in Plays, the Drama Magazine for Young People. Contains skits on holidays, thrift, good speech, historical events, fairy tales, etc. "All are simple enough to fit juvenile acting abilities and classroom production difficulties, yet sufficiently flexible to permit elaboration by a resourceful director. Brief notes on costumes, properties, etc., are included." (N Y Times)

Kirkus 17:560 O 1 '49 20w

"Expensive, but useful." Mary Strang
+ Library J 74:1827 D 1 '49 130w

"As might be expected in plays for ease of production and audience appeal, the quality of the selections is very uneven. The few excellent plays by well-known authors are inconspicuous among the many uninspired—and sometimes inane—pieces included to serve a purpose. Nevertheless, this anthology will prove a boon to teachers, camp counselors and other nonprofessionals in search of simple yet effective plays." Elizabeth Hodges
N Y Times p24 F 26 '50 230w

BURCHARD, JOHN ELY, ed. Mid-century; the social implications of scientific progress. 549p $7.50 Mass. inst. of technology; Wiley

506 Science—Congresses

"In the spring of 1949 the institute held an international convocation to explore some of the principal pressing problems which had been raised by science for the 20th century. Forty leading scholars and men of affairs met to exchange views on the social implications of scientific progress at mid-century." (School & Society) This is a verbatim account of the discussions. Biographical notes on speakers. Index.

Chicago Sun p8 O 8 '50 80w

"The book is rewarding rather than easy reading, but it is of potential interest to practically all mature readers who care about either education or the social effects of science." R. R. Hawkins
Library J 75:1510 S 15 '50 160w

"Nothing new emerged. Each of the speakers said in brief what he had previously said or written at more convincing length. But here in one volume is a compendium of contemporary opinion on science, or rather on technology, and what it is doing to us. . . Some degree of unity and meaning is forged from these divergent attitudes and opinions by the unique and able editing of the whole at the hands of John Ely Burchard." Gerald Wendt
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 D 10 '50 650w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:74 S '50

"On the whole, this volume constitutes one of the best compendiums on the relation of science to society that has thus far appeared, if for no other reason than that it brings together the divergent opinions of some of the world's foremost intellectuals." Waldemar Kaempffert
+ N Y Times p3 D 31 '50 900w

School & Society 72:158 S 2 '50 50w

BURCHARD, JOHN ELY, and others, eds. Planning the university library building; a summary of discussions by librarians, architects, and engineers. 145p $2.50 Princeton univ. press

022 Libraries, University and college. Library architecture 49-8972

"Fifteen American colleges and universities sent representatives to form the Cooperative Committee on Library Planning whose findings are summarized in this volume by three of the members. The purpose of the Committee, who were assisted by architects and engineers, was to exchange experience, ideas, and knowledge on all phases of university library buildings. The subjects considered are indicated by the chapter titles: The Library in the University, Problems of Policy and Administration, Desirable Space Arrangements, Stack Arrangement and Construction, Air-Conditioning, Modern Illumination, Technological Problems and Trends, The Librarian and the Architect, Library Planning: A Bibliographical Essay." (U S Quarterly Bkl) Index.

BURCHARD, J. E.—Continued

"The sessions and publications of the committee have led to a better understanding of the university library. A critical evaluation of the library's role, problems, and traditions—good and bad—will lead to better library buildings, and no one will question the importance of, or our need for, better buildings." Herman Fussler

+ Library Q 20:211 Jl '50 1350w

"Since the Committee represented institutions of varying types and sizes, there are many points on which unanimous agreement was not reached. The report does, however, set forth the important problems to be solved by anyone planning a university library, discusses various solutions suggested, and notes the advantages and disadvantages of each. The final chapter, Library Planning: A Bibliographical Essay, is an excellent summary of the literature on the subject."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:418 S '49 290w

BURCKHARDT, JAKOB CHRISTOPH. Recollections of Rubens; ed. with an introd. by H. Gerson; tr. by Mary Hottinger. 386p il $2.50 Oxford

759.9493 Rubens, Sir Peter Paul 50-9158

"Published originally in 1898, this book is the last work of the great nineteenth century Swiss historian. It is not, strictly speaking, a biography, for it is built out of a series of separate essays on various aspects of Rubens' life and works. . . What Burckhardt does here is simply to look at the pictures with deep perception. He is flanked by a wide historical knowledge and by a remarkable visual memory." N Y Times

Booklist 47:77 O 15 '50

"The format of this snug volume is excellent. The 140 plates carry on where the author leaves off; the notes, added mostly by the present editor, catch up with Rubens scholarship since Burckhardt's day, and it includes a selection from Rubens' correspondence, translated for the first time into English." Stuart Preston

+ N Y Times p 10 S 3 '50 270w

"A far more enlightening description of the master's art than the more ponderous volumes which have appeared since [1898]. For Burckhardt wears well; he is one of those rare art-critics who do not appear out of date. . . Burckhardt, was not a poet or a 'littérateur' interested in art; he was an art-student eager to impart to other students the enormous knowledge he had accumulated. His admiration for the great Fleming does not express itself in ecstatic adjectives or striking metaphors. He does not try to emulate the master by translating into words the untranslatable composition, movement and colour of his masterpieces. He takes us quietly by the hand and leads us through the landscape of Rubens' works, pointing here to a tree, there to a sunset, and everywhere to the movement of men and beasts; he leads us also through the palaces and churches of seventeenth-century Europe, covered with religious, allegorical and historical decorations." Emile Cammaerts

+ Spec 184:830 Je 16 '50 1000w

"The translation is a halting affair and in striking contrast to the translation of Burckhardt's Civilization of the Renaissance, which was the first work to be issued in this series, but the appendix of letters and the very good and well-reproduced selection of plates constitute a most attractive and reasonably priced volume."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p672 O 27 '50 1100w

BURDON, ROY STANLEY. Surface tension and the spreading of liquids. 2d ed 92p il $2.50 Cambridge

532.6 Capillarity [49-11669]

"A compact discussion of various problems pertaining to surface tension which are currently of research interest. Practical applications of surface tension are reviewed, but the chief purpose is to provide a summary of the results of recent research and to point to areas where considerable uncertainty still prevails. The book first appeared in 1940 as one of the Cambridge Physical Texts and has now been revised to include reports of the more important papers published since that year." N Y New Tech Bks

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 75:873 My 15 '50 110w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:75 S '50

BURGAN, JOHN. Long discovery. 376p $3 Farrar, Straus

50-6641

"Scene—Beautyburg, a small mining town in Pennsylvania. Time—1925-1945. Main characters are Johnny, the well-to-do son of the uncompromising, but intelligent and hard working superintendent, and Rose, independent and unafraid of life, the daughter of a Russian miner." Library J

Booklist 46:303 Je 1 '50

Bookmark 9:212 Je '50 30w

"At no time does it seem a propaganda novel, nor is there evidence of the author having any ax to grind."

+ Kirkus 18:32 Ja 15 '50 210w

"All characterizations are excellent. . . Recommended." Anne Whitmore

+ Library J 75:559 Ap 1 '50 70w

"A fine, warm, wise narrative in which you will find satisfaction and inspiration. . . Every character in the story is real, and every relationship is genuine. The course of many lives is changed in a few short months—some enriched in experience, some saddened by death or disappointment. Nothing is blurred. John Burgan is a writer of definite talent." Lisle Bell

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Ap 16 '50 320w

"Fine novel. . . The outcome may not satisfy all readers, though there will probably be none whom it does not move." R. T. Morgan

+ N Y Times p43 Ap 16 '50 180w

"The key to the appeal of this novel is its serenity. Except for the doltish Klansmen, the characters are kindly, substantial, sometimes blundering in their groping for right action. For the most part they miss their objective in their search; yet, like most people after all, they live out their years with a dignity and serenity which give this unpretentious novel a quiet strength and charm somewhat rare in a time when so many books aim to shock, astound, or terrify." R. A. Cordell

+ Sat R of Lit 33:32 Je 3 '50 270w

Wis Lib Bul 46:22 My '50

BURGAN, JOHN. Martin Butterfield; jacket drawing by N. G. Rudolph. 210p $2.50 Winston

50-8985

Episodes in the life of a ten-year-old boy, Martin. They begin with the first day of summer vacation when Martin became a town hero, because he climbed a bridge girder and got caught, so that he had to be removed by the firemen. He progressed from one escapade to another thru the long summer vacation, and the opening of school found him in fifth grade, trying to win his way with the prize pupil, a girl named Georgianna.

Booklist 47:136 D 1 '50

+ Christian Science Monitor p6 S 23 '50 170w

"A delightful series of very funny stories which any reader of ten or more will chuckle over." S. M. A.

+ Horn Bk 26:479 N '50 90w

Kirkus 18:353 Jl 1 '50 110w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson

Library J 75:1289 Ag '50 60w

Reviewed by M. D. Read

Library J 75:1840 O 15 '50 70w

Reviewed by M. H. Ley
N Y Times p29 S 17 '50 170w

"A skillful account of a small boy and the world he manages artlessly to manipulate. Readers of 10, and readers of five times that, will chuckle at the difficulties Martin gets into, and somehow safely out of." E. B.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p17 Ag 6 '50 200w

"Sentimentality glows on every page, nostalgia pervades every line, sweet goodness gushes abundantly, and a folksy 'philosophy' threads through the book. . . Mr. Burgan has apparently wished to invite comparison of Martin Butterfield with Penrod and Tom Sawyer. It is impossible to do so for, according to Webster, the objects compared must belong to the same class." Martin Blumenson
— Sat R of Lit 33:32 S 30 '50 290w

Springf'd Republican p12C S 17 '50 180w

BURGER, MRS ISABEL B. Creative play acting; learning through drama. 199p il $3 Barnes, A.S.

792 Acting—Study and teaching 50-7179

The author is director of the Children's Experimental Theater of Baltimore, and her book is based on her years of experience there. Subjects discussed include: The project; Activity pantomime; Mood pantomime; The short play; The long play; Episodic play and pageant; Techniques for the director; Staging the play. Texts of three plays are given. Index.

"Something of her own vivid personality and her philosophy of the role creative dramatics plays in personality development comes through even the practical pages." M. B. King
+ Chicago Sun p3 My 6 '50 100w

"This may be a bit visionary for some and the progressive flavor may be a bit too strong, but there are stimulating suggestions for directing children's plays with the emphasis on spontaneity."
+ — Kirkus 18:210 Ap 1 '50 150w

"Highly recommended for children's and theatre collections." George Freedley
+ Library J 75:698 Ap 15 '50 60w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 Jl 2 '50 80w

School & Society 71:318 My 20 '50 60w

Wis Lib Bul 46:20 S '50

BURK, ROBERT EMMETT, and GRUMMITT, OLIVER JOSEPH, eds. High molecular weight organic compounds. (Frontiers in chemistry) 330p il $5.50 Interscience

541.7 Chemistry, Organic. Polymers and polymerization 49-8888

"The topics of the six lectures in this volume are closely related, and each lecture presents a wealth of important information and of recent results obtained in its field. . . The titles and authors of the lectures are as follows: Polymerization in Suspension and Emulsion, by Walter P. Hohenstein and H. Mark; Osmometry and Viscosity of Polymer Solutions, by W. J. Badgley and H. Mark; The Nature of Elastomers, by Harry L. Fisher; Aspects of the Structure and Reactions of Proteins, by John T. Edsall; Condensation Polymerization and Constitution of Condensation Polymers, by Paul J. Flory; Physical and Chemical Structure of Phenoplasts, by T. S. Carswell." U S Quarterly Bkl

"A regrettable lapse of time has occurred between the writing of most of the contributions and the appearance of the book. Finally one must note with disapproval the neglect of the editors, here as in some of the former volumes, to maintain a central theme for the volume as a whole. High Molecular Weight Organic Compounds is a field nearly as broad and diverse as Low Molecular Weight Organic Compounds and it is a rare person who will be greatly interested in all of the items in this collection." Paul Doty
Am Chem Soc J 72:636 Ja '50 390w

"Continuity is maintained, sufficient space is allowed for adequate treatment of each subject, and the critical compilations of references to the literature following each lecture are useful. The book as a whole should prove valuable to anyone interested in polymers."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:412 S '49 180w

BURKE, KENNETH. Rhetoric of motives. 355p $5 Prentice-Hall

191.9 Rhetoric. Semantics 50-5208

"Using rhetoric in the secondary dictionary definition of 'the power of pleasing or persuading,' this work endeavors to show how rhetorical analysis throws light on literary texts and human relations generally. Beginning with an analysis of Milton's Samson Agonistes and touching as well on Machievelli, Kierkegaard, and many others, it also offers a 'socioanagogic' interpretation of Venus and Adonis ('Adonis and his horse may be considered parts of one motivational cluster') and equates Alice in Wonderland with Lady Chatterley's Lover." (Library J) The volume is the second of a proposed trilogy. For the first see his Grammar of Motives (Book Review Digest 1946).

"Fertile in ideas and challenging and provoking. It will repay only a reasonably diligent approach—but it will repay that well."
+ Chicago Sun p5 My 16 '50 130w

"This is a difficult, craggy, stumping, audacious book. It's both a philosophy and a psychology of language, but it's alive and kicking for all that. It's the kind of book that, once finished, you immediately start again, knowing well that the second reading will yield bigger dividends than the first." Horace Reynolds
Christian Science Monitor p18 S 2 '50 650w

Current Hist 19:106 Ag '50 30w

"Stiff reading for any one not versed in the author's brand of dialectics, it should appeal to graduate students of philosophy, and disciples of the new criticism." E. F. Walbridge
Library J 75:493 Mr 15 '50 120w

"Burke is one of the authors who write to be read twice, and if we give his work that second reading most of our difficulties are cleared away. A second reading is like a second journey through a recently discovered mountain pass; the trail is marked now and we no longer get lost in ravines that end at the base of a cliff. There are, it is true, a few sentences that have to be walked around like boulders in the path; but most of the second journey is easy and we make it with a sense of exhilaration, as if we had suddenly learned to be at home in a strange country." Malcolm Cowley
+ New Repub 122:18 Je 5 '50 1950w

"The undertaking is magnificent in scope and scale; and it is part of a still greater enterprise, an Enquiry into Human Motives and Human Relations, comprising the weighty 'Grammar' published a few years ago, and the promised 'Symbolic.' The author's purpose, his learning, his ingenuity, are equally impressive. . . I admire him for spurning the facile and the glib. I admit freely that his theme, 'the core of human relations,' is a deeply involved subject. . . But I wish that after completing his great inquiry he had spent another couple of years in making it lucid." Albert Guerard
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Jl 23 '50 1000w

"Mr. Burke's scope is such that he includes all that he has read, heard or thought. Structure and selection are not his strong points. In his desire to bring in everything (one of his parentheses runs in length for a page), the argument is often temporarily lost, and the system itself becomes a stalwart symbol for an attempt to impose order on chaos. The diligent reader will emerge with his old ideas seen from new vantage points, with irritating arguments and unsuspected insights, and with a novel and therefore not yet entirely usable vocabulary for analyzing thought and actions." D. A. Stauffer
N Y Times p30 Je 11 '50 1000w

BURKE, KENNETH—Continued

San Francisco Chronicle p21 Jl 23 '50 150w

School & Society 71:231 Ap 15 '50 40w

"Many brilliant passages are scattered throughout the formidable structure of this important and highly individual book, which makes constant use of both colloquial and technical language. The method is inductive, digressive, and associative; the logic is sometimes elusive, although summaries scrupulously trace the course followed."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:291 S '50 320w

Reviewed by T. W. Copeland

Yale R n s 40:167 autumn '50 650w

BURLESON, MRS ADELE (STEINER). Toughey; childhood adventures on a Texas ranch; with il. in color by Elizabeth Rice. 119p $2.50 Steck

Back in 1900 the author and her husband took their three daughters to spend the summer on a Texas plantation. This is an account of their experiences told in story form for ages nine to twelve.

Kirkus 18:303 Je 1 '50 100w

Reviewed by Margaret Miller

Library J 75:1305 Ag '50 70w

"This attractively made book has the double value of presenting experiences that will be unusual to most of its young readers, and yet recounting them so naturally that the whole scene is graphic and convincing." M. C. Dodd

+ Sat R of Lit 33:43 S 16 '50 180w

BURNETT, WHIT, ed. 105 greatest living authors present the world's best stories, humor, drama, biography, history, essays, poetry. 1186p $5 Dial press

808.8 Literature—Collections 50-8866

"An anthology [which] claims to represent the hundred and five 'greatest living writers in the world' and does so with selections of their own choosing—essays, history, biography, drama, poetry, short stories, and more or less self-contained extracts from novels." (Atlantic) Brief biographies and bibliographies of contributors. Indexes.

"This is a sumptuous package of fine reading, but the claim in the title is another matter. . . The most interesting aspect of this anthology is that the authors have made their own selections. The main point about it, however questionable its claims, is that it assembles a large and highly diversified amount of memorable writing." C. J. Rolo

+ — Atlantic 186:86 Ag '50 650w

Booklist 47:36 S 15 '50

Cath World 172:159 N '50 170w

"Sometimes the author's choice is more capricious than representative—as when Sinclair Lewis picks a piece from 'Cass Timberlane.' In general, though, I don't know of any book that can give a better panorama of world literature through the past few decades." Emmett Dedmon

+ Chicago Sun p5 Jl 25 '50 410w

"Another remarkable anthology is presented here by that skilled, veteran editor, Whit Burnett. True, its claims are large [as E. B. White observes, the word 'best' acts as a barrier], and one must bear with the tedious waste space and motion in the device of having the authors 'explain' their selection. A more reluctant bunch you never did see. . . Among the essays—quite the weakest classification in the book—are those by Toynbee, Van Wyck Brooks, and Maxwell Anderson. So this is how a big book that must be all things to all readers seems to just one of them, in brief. The only recent book comparable to it is the fine Haydn-Cournos 'World of Great Stories,' also world-wide and contemporary in its span, altho limited to prose fiction. If you have 'The World's Best' side by side with the other on your shelf, you will have an extraordinary sampler of the world literary scene today." Edmund Fuller

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 Ag 6 '50 390w

Reviewed by E. F. Walbridge

Library J 75:1294 Ag '50 130w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 S 24 '50 270w

"The latest of Whit Burnett's many anthologies is an ample value for its price, and an interesting (interesting is the precise, the aptly ambiguous word) assembly of stories, essays, and poems. . . This is a big book, big enough, one would think, for its title—yet a handy book to read around in. . . It has the attraction of containing pieces that are not regular fare of anthologies and the very real attraction of containing pieces that one would never expect to find in an anthology of literature." Donald Barr

+ N Y Times p4 Jl 30 '50 850w

"In one sense, the book as a whole can be considered a patchwork, as what anthology isn't? In another sense it represents its period; for the most part, it is a collection of world writing voted 'best' by competent and well-read people. More, it is a selection of writing most of which was done in the last three decades. The book, then, does have the virtue of reflecting the best literature and hence much of the best thinking of its time, not merely in the U.S., but in 22 other countries of the world. . . Because of the well planned distribution of types and kinds of writing, from poetry and fiction to history and biography, it is an anthology well worth examining. If it raises arguments in your own mind, if it leads you to quarrel with the majority choices, then so much the better." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 Jl 14 '50 1000w

"There is no doubt that the fat volume produced by balloting contains much excellent reading matter; but there is also no doubt that a good deal of this reading matter cannot fairly be called either 'best' or 'great.' Then, too, the selections furnish ample evidence that authors frequently are not competent judges of their own work." B. R. Redman

Sat R of Lit 33:30 S 2 '50 650w

BURNHAM, JAMES. Coming defeat of communism. 278p $3.50 Day

335.4 Communism. World politics 50-5290

The author believes "that communism can and will be defeated. That it can be defeated without large-scale war if the western nations and particularly the United States follow some such plan of action as he presents. This definite plan of action is the central focus of the book." (Publisher's note) No index.

Reviewed by G. S. Pettee

Am Pol Sci R 44:748 S '50 900w

Reviewed by C. J. Rolo

Atlantic 185:74 Mr '50 310w

Booklist 46:181; 195 F 1 '50; F 15 '50

"Up to a certain point the author's argument is realistic. However certain criticisms suggest themselves: (1) that he does not always offer evidence for debatable statements; (2) that he is too silent about the policy which has tolerated traitors in our government departments; (3) that he seems to blame the industrialists more than the heads of state for our present condition of deplorable weakness; (4) that he is more ready to forgive and trust a converted Communist than a penitent businessman." Joseph McSorley

Cath World 171:76 Ap '50 550w

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon

Chicago Sun p5 F 23 '50 700w

Reviewed by A. C. Ames

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 F 19 '50 700w

"Challenging and brilliantly written book. . . The flaw in the author's reasoning seems to this writer to lie not in the assumption that Soviet communism can be decisively defeated by resistance and propaganda warfare, but rather in his refusal to allow for radical changes in the Soviet Union without western interference. History knows of many examples where a strictly defensive attitude was successful due to sudden or slowly ripening fundamental changes in the opponent's camp." Ernest Pisko

+ — Christian Science Monitor p12 F 25 '50 1050w

Cleveland Open Shelf p9 My '50

"Despite all shortcomings Burnham's book remains a very remarkable and helpful survey of the most important power conflict of our time. Its practical recommendations deserve careful study and evaluation. It must be noted too that this new book avoids more successfully than Burnham's previous works the tendency to draw too much in simple black and white. Oversharp formulations are used, it is true, but they are subsequently toned down. Burnham is now aware that there are other colors besides black and white." Waldemar Gurian

Commonweal 51:610 Mr 17 '50 1350w

Foreign Affairs 29:143 O '50 40w

Kirkus 17:684 D 15 '49 250w

Reviewed by Edward Crankshaw
Nation 170:256 Mr 18 '50 1550w

"In his devotion to human freedom and the processes of reason, James Burnham leaves everything to be desired. Lacking humility, he lacks even more a true sense of human dignity and the worth of human life. He thinks, and talks, fundamentally, of abstract forces and imperatives, of iron laws of politics, of fears and hatreds. Democrats who would defeat Communism and retain democracy will do well to pursue other paths than Burnham's philosophy of inevitability and despair." David Spitz

New Repub 122:18 Mr 20 '50 1350w

Reviewed by A. J. P. Taylor
New Statesman & Nation 40:373 O 21 '50 650w

"The greatest service of 'The Coming Defeat of Communism' lies in its generally skillful and persuasive exposure of the weaknesses of the Communist empire and the need for developing new and imaginative means of exploiting those weaknesses. The book is less happy in its philosophical obiter dicta, as well as in some of the author's attempts to furnish specific examples of his theories in action." H. W. Baehr

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 F 19 '50 1250w

"His new book, which has the happy title of 'The Coming Defeat of Communism,' is again both brilliant and controversial, and, like 'The Struggle for the World,' it argues that we are already in a death-grapple with the Russians. . . His symmetrical formula will have a certain attraction in the hubbub of Washington. Particularly on Capitol Hill, and sometimes even around the White House, some men are weary of the stubborn disorderliness of fact, and like to take refuge in apple-pie solutions. . . So far they have rejected it. They may be wrong, these officials sitting in their shiny offices in Washington, just as many of them were wrong about Hitler, and Mr. Burnham may be right, as many lonely writers were right in 1939, but their collective judgment is that a policy must be based on more evidence than a book." James Reston

N Y Times p1 F 19 '50 2300w

"The author is all in all, quite optimistic, and believes that the collapse of the Communist empire can be brought about without resort to a full-scale war; he outlines a plan for an 'offensive political-subversive' war that would borrow techniques from the Communists themselves. The plan seems intelligent and realistic, or merely cynical—depending on one's point of view."

New Yorker 25:98 F 18 '50 180w

Reviewed by R. H. Uhlig
San Francisco Chronicle p17 Mr 12 '50 850w

Reviewed by Louis Fischer
Sat R of Lit 33:11 F 25 '50 1200w

"However many points one singles out as controversial, and however much Mr. Burnham's dogmatism may infuriate one, this is an important book that raises real questions that have got to be answered. Of how many political writings of our time can we say as much?" Max Beloff

+ — Spec 184:419 O 27 '50 2000w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:199 Je '50 240w

BURNS, MRS EVELINE MABEL (RICHARDSON). American social security system [under the editorship of Marion Hathway]. 460p $4.50 Houghton

331.2544 Insurance, Social 49-5180

An attempt to "depict the main characteristics of the various social security programs currently in operation in the United States, the differences among them and their relationships to each other." (Preface) Indexes.

"[The author] has excellent command of the data, which are presented in a more or less standardized form for each kind of insurance: eligibility, benefits, financing, and administration." E. F. Young

+ Am Soc R 14:818 D '49 250w

"The material has been put into admirable form for use by teachers. Mrs. Burns's pages are well documented and are backed with extensive notes which teachers will find to be of substantial help in organizing courses on social security. The book will be useful to students in the social sciences and in schools of social work, and as a background for in-service training." Karl de Schweinitz

+ Ann Am Acad 269:175 My '50 750w

"For a decade there has been need for an up-to-date and comprehensive study of all social security. The only book dealing with the whole field—Lewis Meriam's 'Relief and Social Security'—was so biased and inadequate that every student of the subject longed for a thorough, thoughtful, and readable treatment. Eveline Burns has supplied that book." J. J. Corson

+ Survey 86:40 Ja '50 300w

"Comprehensive, well documented, and up to date."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:89 Mr '50 240w

BURNS, ROBERT THOMAS. Perfect invader. 297p $3 Bobbs

50-6098

A novel of the immediate post-war days in Austria. Young Bannon, an American soldier, is put in charge of the occupation of a tiny, isolated village—how he performs his task, what his personal feelings and hopes are, and his tragic love affair make up the story.

"Burns writes tersely, but without abruptness, so that the narrative moves rapidly and easily, and leaves an after-impression of great power, carefully restrained. Perhaps a little less restraint would have resulted in a better characterization of Bannon as a more complex human rather than the cold personification of an idea. . . But this 25-year old novelist has many books before him, and The Perfect Invader is a fine portent, we hope, of what is to come." Paul Farrell

+ Commonweal 51:637 Mr 24 '50 480w

"Out of his war experiences, Robert Burns has written a novel of wry humor on the effects of a peaceful invasion. On a miniature stage, he presents a story of considerable breadth and philosophy involving a young American officer, a higher ranking Russian, a Hungarian prisoner-of-war, Austrian aristocrats and the townspeople. In the conflict of nationalities and the combat of ideas, 'The Perfect Invader' is a sharp and stimulating narrative."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p24 My 7 '50 230w

Reviewed by Henry Cavendish
N Y Times p23 Ap 2 '50 180w

"In spite of Mr. Burns' ludicrously flat prose and rather tangled story-telling, he gives an effective rough impression of chaos on a small scale, observed from a distance."

+ — New Yorker 26:118 Mr 18 '50 80w

BURNS, R. T.—Continued

"Despite the seriousness which pervades every page, this is a readable novel, swift-paced and with a good story, well told." John Cournos

+ Sat R of Lit 33:30 My 27 '50 310w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:282 S '50 150w

BURR, JAMES BURGETT, and others. Student teaching in the elementary school. 440p il $3.75 Appleton

370.733 Teachers, Training of

"The authors have supervised student teachers in many kinds of schools in many communities. The book is an outgrowth of their day-to-day experiences with student teachers and the problems that students have acknowledged as uppermost in learning to be effective, able, and creative teachers. The book is written from the point of view of the learner and is designed as a tool to be used in his first intensive teaching experience." (El School J) Chapter bibliographies. Index.

"This reviewer feels that the book would be a valuable part of any teacher's professional library because of its realistic picture of good modern practices in elementary education." E. A. Oehring

+ El School J 50:544 My '50 650w

School & Society 71:124 F 25 '50 30w

"Like the Schorling book, this volume contains excellent photographs, bibliographies with superior annotations, and ideas for discussion. In addition, the authors have supplied clear criteria for self-evaluation by the student teacher. The style is well suited to the reader, but is somewhat more formal than that employed by Schorling." W. W. Brickman

+ School & Society 72:216 S 30 '50 190w

BURRIS-MEYER, HAROLD, and COLE, EDWARD CYRUS. Theatres and auditoriums. 228p il $8 Reinhold

725.82 Auditoriums. Theaters 49-4173

"In this work, the design and equipment of theatres and auditoriums are covered chiefly from the architect's viewpoint. However, since the point of view is almost completely functional, the book consists largely of technical information. There is, for example, a thorough discussion of theatre lighting and many illustrations of lighting equipment. The senior author is Associate Professor and Director of Research of Dramatic Arts and Sound in the Theatre at Stevens Institute of Technology, and his collaborator is Associate Professor and Production Manager of the Drama Department at the School of Fine Arts at Yale University." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

"Beautifully and expertly illustrated, this is certainly the definitive work on modern theaters, their construction, technical facilities and equipment. . . Unfortunately the illustrations are not indexed. Highly recommended for drama, theatre, and architecture collections." George Freedley

+ Library J 75:108 Ja 15 '50 60w

N Y New Tech Bks 34:61 Jl '49

BURROWS, MILLAR. Palestine is our business. 155p $2.50 Presbyterian bd.

956.9 Palestine—Politics and government. Arabs in Palestine 49-48466

"The author writes under a conviction that 'Zionism is basically and tragically wrong,' and a little more than half way through his book he is ready to declare 'it has often appeared during the past ten years that they [Zionists] were not so much concerned to have the Jewish refugees of Europe as they were to exploit them for their own political ends.' He is thus unable to suggest that the future of Palestine should be worked out in cooperation with the State of Israel as an honorable ally rather than as an aggressor whose achievements must be reluctantly if not bitterly accepted." Survey

"The reader is warned beforehand that the author asks for moral judgment and action in favor of 'the homeless and destitute natives of the Holy Land,' i.e., the Arabs, without regard to actual facts or historical developments in the last 70 years." Paul Ucker

San Francisco Chronicle p26 D 11 '49 650w

"It is difficult to view Mr. Burrows' proposals for the future as other than utterly unrealistic." J. P. Jones

Survey 86:93 F '50 550w

BURT, MRS OLIVE (WOOLLEY). Canyon treasure; il. by Earl Mayan. 269p $2.50 Bobbs 50-14654

At first Gary Spencer didn't like Utah, where his mother went to teach after her husband's death. But when he learned Western ways and became interested in rock hunting, hoping to find ore containing uranium, Gary did not miss his Maryland home. For boys of 12 to 14.

"Even boys of high school age will like this book in spite of the fact that there isn't a girl mentioned. The thoro explanation of petrified wood and carnotite, the ore from which uranium is made, makes this a very timely book." B. J. R.

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 N 12 '50 180w

Horn Bk 26:476 N '50 60w

"Timely information given in an exciting story." A. M. Wetherell

+ Library J 75:1913 N 1 '50 80w

"The scientific aspects of this story, as well as descriptions of prospecting and mining, are very interesting and instructive." M. B.

+ N Y Times p30 N 12 '50 150w

BURTON, MRS KATHERINE (KURZ). Great mantle; the life of Giuseppe Melchiore Sarto, Pope Pius X. 238p $3 Longmans

B or 92 Pius X (Giuseppe Sarto) pope 50-6259

A biography of Pope Pius X, who died in 1914. "The keynote of his reign was simplicity. He was born a poor boy, knew hunger and poverty and financial stress throughout his priesthood. He had a splendid mind, a keen sense of justice and above all he knew and practiced true charity. He became a great Pope, famed for his encyclicals and reforms but he will be remembered best perhaps by savants, artists and musicians for his decrees on music and his furtherance of the Gregorian Chant." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

"Mrs. Burton enters but cursorily into hidden complexities and politico-ecclesiastical repercussions, and devotes less than a third of her book to the story of the eleven-year pontificate. Dwelling by preference on Giuseppe Sarto's human relationships, his . . . simplicity, his innate, sturdy courage, and the holiness solidly based on these, she presents a satisfactory, smoothly written outline of a great man's career."

+ Cath World 171:238 Je '50 160w

"Miss Burton's gifts enable her to paint Pius X in flesh and blood. And she has caught the spirit which moved the man. Had she prepared herself in the knowledge of his times, she might have given us the biography we have been waiting for." H. G. J. Beck

+ — Commonweal 52:181 My 26 '50 230w

"This life story is simply and interestingly written."

+ Kirkus 18:169 Mr 15 '50 150w

"Katherine Burton has not only done a scholarly work but she has made Pope Pius a human and lovable man." M. H. Zipprich

+ Library J 75:314 F 15 '50 140w

Reviewed by John Cournos

N Y Times p28 Ap 30 '50 450w

BURTON, MILES. Look alive. 222p $2.25 Doubleday 50-6595

Detective story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe

Chicago Sun p6 Mr 31 '50 70w

Kirkus 18:39 Ja 15 '50 80w

"The riddle is well worked out and entirely logical, but too many irrelevant characters and incidents obscure the action of the book as a whole."

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p24 My 14 '50 180w

"An amateur detective named Desmond Merrion, who gives Scotland Yard a helping hand, is so unattractively cocksure that the reader could almost wish the villains would outwit him. There is also Annabel, the heroine, who is such a confused busybody of a girl that there is not much pleasure in seeing her finally get her inheritance. None the less, it is a fine, intricate puzzle." Hillis Mills

+ — N Y Times p23 Ap 9 '50 170w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle

San Francisco Chronicle p20 Jl 23 '50 80w

Wis Lib Bul 46:21 Jl '50

BUSCH, HENRY MILLER. Conference methods in industry; a practical handbook of basic theory of group thinking and tested applications to industrial situations. 107p $1.50 Harper

658.3 Discussion. Industrial relations 49-48714

"Mr. Busch has outlined a procedure for use of the conference method not only in the field of employee-management relations, but also in sales planning and it merits earnest study by industrial executives as a handbook of useful information in the use of a method of making their tasks easier and their achievements greater. The author is a professor of sociology." (Springf'd Republican) Index.

Booklist 46:116 D 1 '49

Springf'd Republican p18A Ja 29 '50 180w

Wis Lib Bul 46:22 F '50

BUSCHBECK, ERNST H. Austria. 251p $2.50 Oxford

943.6 Austria [50-2653]

A picture of Austria, its people, history, and present political, economic and cultural situation, with the story of Austria's revival as an independent country down to 1948. The author is an Austrian patriot who spent the war years in exile in London. Index.

"Books on Austria are usually written from a partisan point of view, defending one or the other of existing politico-ideological constellations. Dr. Buschbeck's account is more fortunate in that he at least attempts to write from a position above factions. His partial success is more laudable, since he himself was actively engaged in Austrian cultural and educational affairs during the controversial first Austrian republic." E. F. Winter

+ Ann Am Acad 272:292 N '50 500w

"A book of uneven value, somewhat shaky balance and a definitely artificial perspective. The hundred pages devoted to Austrian history are not only heavily overweighted in favor of the past, but also contain, in their evaluation of the First Republic, some quite undefendable statements. . . Stylistically, too, the book is rather unequal. Didactic and pedestrian in many parts, it rises in some instances to the heights of spirited prose." Ernest Pisko

— + Christian Science Monitor p16 F 23 '50 320w

Foreign Affairs 29:154 O '50 10w

"Strongly recommended for public and academic libraries of all sizes." F. E. Hirsch

+ Library J 75:103 Ja 15 '50 140w

BUSH, CHRISTOPHER. Case of the seven bells. 222p $2.50 Macmillan

50-6191

Detective story.

Reviewed by Drexel Drake

Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 My 14 '50 50w

"Well written, literate and, like all the Ludovic Travers mysteries, extremely leisurely."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p24 Ap 2 '50 200w

"The plot this time, involving a barmaid and a handful of the greatest personages of the British theatre, is an unusually transparent one, which any cliché expert should solve in record time; but the mixture as before is guaranteed to prove (to those not allergic to it) a satisfactory sedative—and conceivably even habit-forming." A. B.

N Y Times p34 Mr 19 '50 140w

"Adroit, and perfectly fair."

+ New Yorker 26:107 Mr 11 '50 150w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle

San Francisco Chronicle p16 Ap 9 '50 70w

Springf'd Republican p12C My 21 '50 110w

BUSH, DOUGLAS. Science and English poetry. 166p $3.50 Oxford

821.09 English poetry—History and criticism. Literature and science 50-7550

This volume grew out of a series of lectures given at Indiana university in 1948-49. "The subtitle, 'A Historical Sketch,' might indicate that the book is purely descriptive but Mr. Bush has given it an argument. He acknowledges the services of science to truth and man, but his particular theme focuses upon 'the liabilities and negations, apparent or real, that scientific progress has entailed.' He frames science and poetry within philosophy and religion. In these pages great forces are juxtaposed: truth and virtue, fact and desire, order and freedom, the great cosmos and the little cosmos of man. The major figures—say, Donne or Newton or Tennyson—see beyond their home grounds, perhaps towards 'the wholeness of individual experience in a mysterious world.'" (Sat R of Lit)

Reviewed by Russell Lord

Christian Science Monitor p6 S 9 '50 550w

"The present book carries an impressive title and, within, alas, nothing but the most obvious, ordinary observations. And although it is a short book, it is too long, for it is dull." Jose Garcia Villa

— N Y Times p31 O 15 '50 360w

"The chapters in his book were originally lectures and it is understandable that Mr. Bush would avoid highly detailed studies of individual passages, but it seems a shame that his wide learning is not allowed to come into focus against a specific passage, not merely for the purpose of generalizing about what it says but to demonstrate why it is said the way it is said. On the other hand, his book is extremely useful as a sustained account of the way the assumptions which have accompanied each major development in science, from Bacon's Nominalism to Russell's stark acceptance of man as the product of the same blind forces that nourish the trees, have affected the assumptions of the poet. Whoever is the first to write the history of post-Renaissance poetry in terms of the attitude of each generation of poets toward the human imagination will find Science and English Poetry indispensable." William Van O'Connor

+ — Poetry 76:352 S '50 650w

San Francisco Chronicle p13 S 3 '50 310w

"Lightly and modestly written, yet the reader feels that the author might expand many a paragraph into a chapter or any of the chapters into a separate book. From the medieval heritage down to modern science and modern poetry the panorama is kept in proportion, quick and deft." D. A. Stauffer

+ Sat R of Lit 33:10 Jl 29 '50 360w

"The subject is enormous and the book is short; its sketchiness is one of its virtues. It is an admirable example of what can be done, without distortion of the subject or condescension to the reader, to make special knowledge available to laymen. Mr. Bush writes a direct and vigorous prose which is marked in general

BUSH, DOUGLAS—Continued
by felicity and marred only occasionally by facetiousness. Where partisanship is likely to be stimulated, Mr. Bush is likely to be partisan, as in his chapters on the romantic and contemporary periods. . . But these are faults for which the book's range, liveliness, and lucidity win forgiveness."
+ — U S Quarterly Bkl 6:273 S '50 220w

BUSH, GEORGE POLLOCK, and HATTERY, LOWELL HAROLD, eds. Scientific research: its administration and organization; foreword by Catheryn Seckler-Hudson. 190p $3.25 Am. univ. press

507.2 Scientific research 50-8690

"This book is made up of 23 papers which were prepared for the first Institute on Administration of Scientific Research and Development presented at Washington, D.C. by The American University with the cooperation of the National Research Council and the American Association for the Advancement of Science. Specific papers deal with such important topics as the administration of sponsored research, the administration of research under government research contracts, the responsibilities of research directors, selection of research workers, budgeting costs, and publication of research results." (Library J) Index.

Am Pol Sci R 44:1044 D '50 20w

"The book is characterized by the informality and frankness of the seminar method, thereby giving succinct insights into main aspects of the subject from the personal experience and philosophy of the well chosen contributors, the authors of the 23 chapters." W. A. Hamor
+ Chem & Eng N 28:4122 N 20 '50 170w

Reviewed by Leon Harpole
Chicago Sunday Tribune p9 Ag 20 '50 50w

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 75:1300 Ag '50 150w

Management R 39:499 Ag '50 60w

BUSH, VANNEVAR. Modern arms and free men. 273p $3.50; pa $1 Simon & Schuster

355 Arms and armor. Military art and science 49-48841

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

"Mr. Bush is so clearly on the side of the angels that it is almost ungracious to have to remind him that just as military men lose their competence when they journey into scientific realms, so scientists are prone to stumble when they discourse of political ideas. Mr. Bush is against communism, which is commendable; but his analysis of communism is all too simple and naïve. Similarly, his fetching faith in the liberalism of the rich, his notion that industry is not autocratic, his trust in aristocratic elements to curb the excesses of democracy—all reveal the thinking of a man who palpitates with generous impulses but has not examined thoroughly the social facts and forces that underlie his convictions." David Spitz
+ — Ann Am Acad 268:191 Mr '50 360w

"Dr. Bush headed up the work of over 30,000 American scientists whose efforts largely helped to win the most devastating war in history. It is well for all of us to sit down and read his calm, cold analysis of the strength and the weakness of our democratic society." W. H. Heinrichs
+ Cath World 170:476 Mr '50 470w

"As an antidote for the frightening fallacies of extremists this book serves a useful purpose, but by itself it will be found too sweet for most palates." M. S. Livingston
Chem & Eng N 28:2296 Jl 3 '50 220w

Current Hist 18:229 Ap '50 30w

Foreign Affairs 28:677 Jl '50 40w

"Modern Arms and Free Men is an immensely important book, which gives us an authoritative picture of the framework within which American strategy is now being planned. Yet an important book can also be rather silly. It would, of course, be ridiculous to make this assertion if Dr. Bush had written only about the weapons of total war. But he has not. The theme of his later chapters is the nature of democracy, Fascism and Communism, and the role of the scientist within the three systems in an epoch of total war. On this subject Dr. Bush is as dogmatic and irrational as some of his scientific colleagues who have been converted to Communism." R. H. S. Crossman
+ — New Statesman & Nation 39:460 Ap 22 '50 2200w

Reviewed by J. W. Hedgpeth
San Francisco Chronicle p27 D 11 '49 550w

Reviewed by Walter Taplin
Spec 184:434 Mr 31 '50 1000w

"This is one of those books which only an acknowledged authority can write for popular consumption because he can count on belief without having to produce all the evidence. So much of the desirable evidence is secret that a complete argument cannot be presented, but a writer who is known to have access to all the evidence can secure belief for his conclusions by indicating trends and establishing his own sincerity. That is precisely what Dr. Vannevar Bush has done in this comforting and yet challenging book."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p179 Mr 24 '50 1400w

"A notable book. . . One is immediately struck by the author's massive common sense. It was no accident that Dr. Bush became the head of the Office of Scientific Research and Development. In addition to being a distinguished scientist, he is a shrewd man with both feet firmly planted on the ground of reality. His estimates of our troubled times reject both silly optimism and crippling pessimism." H. A. DeWeerd
+ Yale R n s 39:560 spring '50 1250w

BUSHNELL, ADELYN (MRS MARSHALL BRADFORD). Pay the piper. 275p $3 Coward-McCann

50-7170

Character sketch of Kenny Welcher, born in the midwest of German ancestry, who became the elegant Keith James-Winter, famous singer and teacher. Each time he went up a step from his humble beginnings Keith lost a little of his once undoubted integrity, until in his middle years he had sacrificed everything to his love of money.

Booklist 46:286 My 15 '50

"A machine tooled story with enough vitality in character and romance to give it plausibility and interest."
+ — Kirkus 18:142 Mr 1 '50 190w

"A consistent narrative about a consistent character. Keith James-Winter is left with nothing but his bag of tricks, and he is shrewdly aware of their exact worth. They are shabby, but they work." George Conrad
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Ap 30 '50 290w

Reviewed by Alan Abelson
N Y Times p39 Je 11 '50 100w

Springf'd Republican p8D Je 18 '50 120w

BUTCHER, DEVEREUX. Exploring our national parks and monuments; art work by the author; prepared under the auspices of the National parks association. 2d ed 224p $3.50; pa $2 Houghton

917.3 National parks and reserves 49-50400

An enlarged edition of a book which appeared three years ago (Book Review Digest 1947). It is a comprehensive guide to our national parks, copiously illustrated with photographs. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:201 F 15 '50

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 75:404 Mr 1 '50 30w

Wis Lib Bul 46:17 Ja '50

BUTLER, ELIZA MARIAN. Ritual magic. 328p il $5 Cambridge

133.4 Magic [49-49152]

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

Reviewed by Anthony Boucher
Chicago Sun p6S F 3 '50 30w

"In her first venture, Myth of the Magus, Professor Butler had clearly attempted to do too much: Zoroaster, Gilles de Rais, Casanova and Madame Blavatsky proved uneasy companions under the generic terms of magus, and specialists were not slow to draw attention to certain shortcomings of this first essay. Ritual Magic starts with a section on Pre-Christian Rites and Ceremonies which suffers from some of the defects of its predecessor. . . On the other hand the main part of Professor Butler's work, dealing with the two distinct streams of magical tradition practised in Western Europe, the Solomonic and the Faustian, strikes one as well-informed, stimulating and original in conception." J. E. Housman
+ — Hibbert J 48:198 Ja '50 750w

New Yorker 25:102 F 18 '50 160w

"One would think it impossible to make this material dull, yet Miss Butler manages. As befits a Schröder Professor of German at Cambridge, she has done a characteristic, almost a parody, work of German comparative scholarship. . . Within sharp limits, [however] Miss Butler is well worth reading. She has studied her texts well . . . writes with style, and at times a wry humor. She has a keen critical sense. . . Yet, basically, Miss Butler is not the person to write a book like this. Most important, she doesn't know enough." S. E. Hyman
— + Sat R of Lit 33:21 Ap 22 '50 700w

BUTLER, GEORGE PAUL, ed. Best sermons, 1949-1950. 325p $3 Harper

252 Sermons (44-51581)

"The editor and his advisory committee of Protestant, Catholic and Jewish clergymen present here the results of their prodigious labor in selecting the 52 'best sermons' from no less than 6,585 which were submitted for consideration. Included are sermons of all faiths, of many different denominations and shades of religious thinking. Also a few representative sermons of continental and British preachers." (Kirkus) Index.

Reviewed by E. W. Harris
Churchman 164:17 Ja 1 '50 130w

"After reading this volume one is reassured. While there may be a great deal of poor preaching, there is also some good preaching in our pulpits today. Perhaps there is more able preaching on the whole in this century than during any previous Christian century." J. H. Ivey
+ Crozer Q 27:180 Ap '50 400w

"There is no question but that we have here a well balanced sampling of the best preaching to be heard from the pulpits of today. Those who like to read sermons—clergymen seeking ideas and illustrations for their own sermons—laymen seeking inspiration will find this a most interesting and valuable volume."
+ Kirkus 17:647 D 1 '49 120w

BUTLER, SAMUEL. Essential Samuel Butler; selected with an introd. by G. D. H. Cole. 544p $3.75 Dutton

828 Butler, Samuel 50-6691

"Contains the greater part of Erewhon, though not the sequel, a cut version of The Way of All Flesh, a piece of Fairhaven, an essay called The Deadlock in Darwinism, a sample of the translation of the Odyssey, two or three poems and several pages of the Notebooks." New Statesman & Nation

---

Booklist 47:36 S 15 '50

"About Mr. Cole's The Essential Samuel Butler, one should say that it has been prepared by a scholar who knows Butler well and suffers his idiosyncrasies gladly. I would enter only one mild protest. It is a pity that Mr. Cole could not have taken The Way of All Flesh and Erewhon for granted and given us, say the whole of Erewhon Revisited. . . Mr. Cole's remaining selections are admirable; they make excellent reading and they are skilfully chosen so as to cover most of Butler's manifold interests." C. T. Bissell
+ — Canadian Forum 30:91 Jl '50 650w

"Mr. Cole, who shows excellent taste and judgment in his choice of Butler's works and in his comments on the texts, has seen fit to abridge his selections in a singularly arbitrary way. 'Erewhon' escapes with the loss of only the admirable 'Book of the Machines'; 'The Way of All Flesh' fares less well, for reasons which Mr. Cole only partially explains. . . But in his selections from both parts of the book the editor capriciously leaves out a chapter here and there. . . For the rest . . . [it] is not a substitute for the uncut works of Butler, but it may have the salutary effect of making new readers for those works." Milton Crane
+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Ap 2 '50 400w

Reviewed by F. H. Heinemann
Hibbert J 48:396 Jl '50 70w

"Butler was indeed a most remarkable man, and it is to be hoped that Professor G. D. H. Cole's The Essential Samuel Butler will draw the attention of new readers to his versatile genius." Paul Bloomfield
+ Manchester Guardian p4 F 7 '50 420w

Reviewed by Jacob Korg
Nation 170:478 My 20 '50 650w

Reviewed by V. S. Pritchett
New Statesman & Nation 39:319 Mr 18 '50 2300w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p29 My 7 '50 130w

Reviewed by Hamilton Basso
New Yorker 26:69 Jl 29 '50 1000w

Reviewed by A. B. Temko
San Francisco Chronicle p18 My 14 '50 550w

Reviewed by Derek Hudson
Spec 184:120 Ja 27 '50 800w

Springf'd Republican p12C Ap 16 '50 180w

Times [London] Lit Sup p161 Mr 17 '50 3350w

Wis Lib Bul 46:17 Jl '50

BUTTERFIELD, HERBERT. Christianity and history. 146p $2.75 Scribner

901 History—Philosophy. Christianity—Philosophy 50-6450

"When last year Professor Butterfield of the University of Cambridge pronounced the lectures, which appear in a revised form in the present book, over the B.B.C. he aroused tremendous interest throughout the English-speaking world. In an age of uncertainty, anxiety, and questioning, with thinking people everywhere seeking some vision of meaning in history, an historian of note had had the courage to say that of all the answers to that age-long question, 'What is the meaning of history? the profoundest and truest is to be found in Christianity.' . . Professor Butterfield in these lectures joins a steadily growing number of his professional brethren as well as of scholars and writers in many fields who find no satisfactory answer to the great problem of meaning in life except in Christianity." Canadian Forum

---

"The author of this work has boldly and ably stated his case. Those who oppose him, and obviously there are many, will do well to read him before launching their attack. This is a book that requires thoughtful consideration." R. M. Saunders
+ Canadian Forum 29:262 F '50 240w

"A few references to the Jesuit 'version' of history are questionable, but any Catholic historian will fully agree with the author's general approach, enjoy his eloquent vindication of basic principles common to all Christians, and appreciate his impartiality wherever he touches the relations between the various churches, 'established or not.' " O. Halecki
+ — Cath World 171:396 Ag '50 550w

BUTTERFIELD, HERBERT—Continued
Reviewed by DeWitt John
Christian Science Monitor p7 S 9 '50 1150w

"In this scholarly book, there is a wealth of solid information, a gleam of real illumination, and a forceful injection of inspiration. It is well worth study." H. W. Smith
+ Crozer Q 27:370 O '50 750w

"These are things that urgently need to be said and heard in these days, and I hope that Professor Butterfield's book will be read and pondered by all who are Christians and by many more who are not but ought to be." T. W. M.
+ Manchester Guardian p4 N 14 '49 300w

Reviewed by Rayner Heppenstall
New Statesman & Nation 39:72 Ja 21 '50 500w

"Herbert Butterfield writes with restraint and clarity. He is always perceptive if not what is often called profound. Readers who fell in with Toynbee may be disappointed; but here, in this reviewer's opinion, is a more authentic feeling for history and a deeper understanding of religion." Paul Ramsay
+ — N Y Times p25 Ap 30 '50 460w

"Professor Butterfield says that the student of history needs an 'acquired simplicity'; it is a quality he himself abundantly reveals in a book which is as crystal clear as it is wise and compelling. No review can begin to do it justice; there are sentences on almost every page which cry out to be quoted, and again and again forgotten truths are illuminated by telling phrase or apt illustration. Every student of history should read this book; and the makers of history should read it afresh every year." Hugh Lyon
+ Spec 183:690 N 18 '49 550w

BUTTERFIELD, HERBERT. George III, Lord North, and the people, 1779-80. 407p $7.50 British bk. centre
942.073 George III, king of Great Britain. North, Frederick, 2d earl of Guilford. Great Britain—History [50-1588]

"Professor Butterfield states that his objectives are to describe the incredible chaos of the ministry of Lord North late in 1779; and then to trace the emergence into effective politics of three very significant movements: one, the semirevolutionary crisis in Ireland; two, the Yorkshire Association organized on a national scale to reform Parliament; and three, the opposition campaign within Parliament which began with Burke's plan for economical reform. In the narrative covering these movements late in 1779 and early in 1780, the author has given his own as opposed to what he terms the 'Whig Interpretation of History.' The book is written entirely from source material." Pol Sci Q

Reviewed by Edward Hughes
Manchester Guardian p4 D 13 '49 650w

"An admirable piece of research, full of interest to those who can find its significance for themselves; but the reader may fairly complain against being abandoned so ruthlessly to find his own way. The fog is deepened by Mr. Butterfield's way of writing, evidence of his long success as a lecturer. He says everything twice, in order to give his audience time to get it down." A. J. P. Taylor
+ — New Statesman & Nation 38:556 N 12 '49 1250w

"Brilliantly written sentences and paragraphs appear frequently in the narrative although not in as great profusion as in Professor Butterfield's other works. The reviewer feels that the author has succeeded admirably in his self-imposed task." D. G. Barnes
+ Pol Sci Q 65:635 D '50 550w

"In this book Professor Butterfield has chosen his material entirely from original sources. He shows here, as he has shown elsewhere in the past, an altogether exceptional desire to be scrupulously fair to the motives and actions of the men he is dealing with. . . Professor Butterfield handles George III extremely well, seeing his difficulties and appreciating his ability and courage, while at the same time avoiding all maudlin sentimentality. He attempts the same absolute justice throughout the book; and this is what gives it, to my mind, its greatest interest and value to students of the eighteenth century. It is designed for them, and not for the general reader." Jack Simmons
+ Spec 183:748 N 25 '49 800w

"What merit the work possesses comes from the revelation in the introductory chapter of how this period strikes one who, 'after reading of Lord North and indeed of George III himself so largely through the medium of a tradition that had descended from their Whig enemies,' puts the evidence of enemies together with that of friends. This is a refreshing advance in studies of this period. . . The book is marred by over-emphasis both in interpretation and style, and by the incomprehensible language used to maintain the sensational impression of impending revolution."
Times [London] Lit Sup p1 Ja 6 '50 4600w

BUTTERFIELD, HERBERT. Origins of modern science, 1300-1800. 217p $2.50 Macmillan
509 Science—History [50-5530]

"Professor Butterfield is the Chairman of the Committee formed in 1947 to establish the teaching of the history of science on a regular footing at Cambridge University. He delivered the opening series of lectures which are now printed in this book. They are intended to build a bridge between the humanities and the sciences." (Publisher's note) Partial contents: The historical importance of a theory of impetus; The conservatism of Copernicus; The downfall of Aristotle and Ptolemy; Bacon and Descartes; The place of the scientific revolution in the history of western civilisation; The postponed scientific revolution in chemistry; Ideas of progress and ideas of evolution. Bibliography. Index.

"Professor Butterfield's thesis in this excellent and timely book is that the scientific revolution mainly associated with the seventeenth century is the outstanding landmark in European history. . . It is a large claim, but when one reflects on the change that science has brought about, not only in the forms and material circumstances of our civilisation but also in the whole character of our outlook on men and nature and even more in the prospects for the future of life on this planet, it becomes impossible to refute it." Herbert Dingle
+ Manchester Guardian p4 O 14 '49 470w

"Professor Butterfield does not bring history to the aid of science; history for him is its own end; and if he writes about science, it is because history can no longer be written without it. Science has come of age among historians, and Professor Butterfield's book is the acknowledgment. It is a handsome acknowledgment." J. Bronowski
+ New Statesman & Nation 38:586 N 19 '49 600w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:62 Jl '50

"Though Mr. Butterfield bases his book, as he modestly says, 'on some reading and some examination of classical treatises,' the 'some' must be understood to refer to nearly all the essential works on the major revolutions of thought in astronomy, physics, chemistry, biology and history. . . Scholars are likely to be infuriated by the complete absence of footnotes and the meager two and a half pages of 'Suggestions for Further Reading' that take the place of the usual mountainous bibliography. But the wider public of those who have time only to learn something of what went on in the minds of the conspirators of the scientific revolution from Copernicus to Darwin will be more than grateful for this authentic and fascinating account." P. P. Wiener
+ N Y Times p6 F 26 '50 700w

San Francisco Chronicle p15 Ap 9 '50 190w

"'The Origins of Modern Science' is a happy medium between the oversimplified, 'science-for-the-millions' type of book and the esoteric breed that leaves the average reader altogether baffled. It is a fresh and welcome approach." D. B. Thorburn
+ Sat R of Lit 33:35 Ag 19 '50 340w

"A book which is a model of agreeable compression, written in that challenging spirit which is the first essential of greatness in a teacher." Charles Singer

+ Spec 183:362 S 16 '49 800w

Times [London] Lit Sup p761 N 25 '49 5500w

BUTTERS, MRS DOROTHY GILMAN. Carnival gypsy. 217p $2.50 Macrae Smith co. 50-7159

Fifteen-year-old Capri Maccomb and her mother, an ex-vaudevillian, inherited a carnival and a farm. They sold the farm, but decided to operate the carnival themselves. It meant a great deal of fun and excitement for Capri. She fell in love with a young acrobat, caught the carnival manager in an act of sabotage, and discovered in herself a talent for doing magic tricks. For ages 12 to 16.

Reviewed by A. L. Shea

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p7 Jl 30 '50 200w

"Although the plot of this lively story of a mother and daughter's trials and thrills in managing a carnival is heavily contrived, the book sparkles with atmospheric 'carny' talk and adventures. . . This is a warm-hearted yarn with an appealing mother-daughter relationship and the never-failing fascination of show business."

+ — Kirkus 18:134 Mr 1 '50 130w

"A very interesting story in a very unusual setting." E. E. Frank

+ Library J 75:1055 Je 15 '50 70w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Jl 16 '50 200w

"This is a more plausible book than the author's 'Enchanted Caravan' and quite as entertaining. The colorful carnival life is well drawn, with enough real-life problems to make the lights glitter all the more brightly." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p30 My 7 '50 180w

BUTTERS, JOHN KEITH, and NILAND, POWELL. Inventory accounting and policies. (Effects of taxation) 330p $3.75 Harvard univ. Division of res.

658.15 Corporations—Taxation. Inventories 49-11551

"First of a series of research studies at the Harvard Business School on the Effects of Federal Taxation on Business. Decisions on choice of inventory accounting procedures have been largely affected by taxation, and in particular by the Treasury's acceptance of 'Lifo' (last in-first out) method as alternative to 'Fifo' (first in-first out) and normal-stock and inventory-reserve methods. Based on the mass of available statistics of income plus extensive field studies, this book attempts to gauge the effects on individual businesses and on the general economy and on the computation of national income data." Library J

"Students of business taxation, accounting, management, and public policy will welcome this enlightening monograph." R. G. Blakey

+ Ann Am Acad 269:171 My '50 340w

"Most readers of this study will be only secondarily interested in the niceties of economic analysis. Viewed in terms of its objective, Professor Butters' book is exceptionally competent, readable, and well organized. Research of this kind should be especially appreciated by those who believe that the student of corporate legal problems should acquire the broad background that enables him to appreciate the considerations—accounting, financial, economic, governmental—that result in genuinely skillful solutions." H. G. Guthmann

+ Harvard Law R 63:1082 Ap '50 3450w

Reviewed by J. E. Cross

Library J 74:1754 N 15 '49 100w

"Although the author is very guarded in his statements and explains their tentative character, the study makes a substantial contribution to its limited field of inquiry."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:53 Mr '50 240w

BUTTS, ROBERT FREEMAN. American tradition in religion and education. 230p $3 Beacon press

261.7 Church and state in the U.S. Church and education 50-7586

"In this volume, Professor Butts of Teachers College, New York, endeavors to set forth in its historical framework the principle of the separation of church and state. By careful documentation he outlines what was meant by this principle by the founding fathers, how the principle has been interpreted and practised throughout our history and what bearing it has upon the issues being so hotly debated today. Professor Butts takes the position that the provision of the Constitution prohibiting 'the establishment of religion' makes any cooperation of the state with a religious group or groups unconstitutional. . . The author concedes that the American people have the sovereign right to alter this fundamental principle but takes the position that they should realize that in so doing they are changing an historical tradition." (Kirkus) Index.

"At one point one may question his handling of the constitutional problem. This relates to the crucial question of the incorporation of the federal Bill of Rights into the Fourteenth Amendment. He states flatly, without supporting analysis, that the latter Amendment imposed the civil rights restrictions of the federal Bill of Rights upon the states, and that 'as early as 1896' this view 'was widely accepted.' . . But this flaw in the analysis is peripheral. All in all, Professor Butts has made a substantial contribution to clarifying the meaning of the establishment of religion prohibition in our public law. Until very recently it was generally understood that this country was committed to the principle of the separation of church and state. Now that strident voices are heard to declare that 'cooperation' and not separation is really the touchstone of public policy, it is, of course, essential that competent scholars re-examine and re-state this basic article of American faith." David Fellman

+ — Am Pol Sci R 44:1024 D '50 1200w

Reviewed by F. J. Brown

Ann Am Acad 271:224 S '50 500w

Booklist 46:327 Jl 1 '50

"The American Tradition in Religion and Education will serve as a valuable corrective to much misinformation which has been disseminated in the heat of current controversies. It should have a wide audience." Stanley Lichtenstein

+ Christian Century 67:822 Jl 5 '50 1200w

Reviewed by C. H. Moehlman

Crozer Q 27:268 Jl '50 800w

"Many will challenge both the premises and conclusions of this book, but no one should speak or write on this important subject without taking into account the arguments advanced by Professor Butts."

Kirkus 18:166 Mr 15 '50 250w

Reviewed by H. M. Kallen

N Y Times p24 My 21 '50 450w

"The book is carefully indexed and annotated, objectively written. It provides valuable background material for understanding traditions we have inherited and tend to take for granted." E. B.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p26 My 21 '50 170w

School & Society 71:286 My 6 '50 30w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:323 S '50 260w

BYNUM, LINDLEY, and JONES, IDWAL. Biscailuz, sheriff of the new West; with an introd. by Erle Stanley Gardner. 208p il $3 Morrow

B or 92 Biscailuz, Eugene W. 50-9685

Biography of Gene Biscailuz, for many years sheriff of Los Angeles county. It covers his early career as bookseller, and his later political life, when as deputy, under-sheriff, and sheriff, he put many reforms into practice.

BYNUM, LINDLEY—Continued

Booklist 47:135 D 1 '50

"Worthwhile reading for the crime follower, in its real life presentation of actual cases, for the student of police procedure and of sociology, this has also a definite regional market."
+ Kirkus 18:231 Ap 1 '50 110w

"Messrs. Bynum and Jones, two veteran compilers of Californiana, bring out that the 77-year-old Biscailuz is also a hard-working administrator. Their pleasant and colorful résumé of his life and times goes far toward explaining why last June, after political rivals had suggested it was time to 'put old Gene out to pasture,' the public swept him back into office with more votes than were received by his four opponents put together." Gladwin Hill
+ N Y Times p43 S 24 '50 160w

"Californians will find it a worthy introduction to an outstanding citizen and public official of their State." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 S 26 '50 900w

BYRON, GEORGE GORDON NOEL BYRON, 6th baron. Byron, a self-portrait; letters and diaries, 1798 to 1824; with hitherto unpublished letters; ed. by Peter Quennell. 2v $10 Scribner

B or 92 Authors—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 50-6875

A collection of letters and excerpts from his diaries, including some material hitherto unpublished. Selected and edited with the object of presenting this "partial and fragmentary, but extremely vivid, self-portrait," of the poet.

Booklist 46:302 Je 1 '50

"These two handsome and readable volumes of letters and diaries should be of interest not only to Byron specialists but to all who are interested in human nature and the dramatic revelations into its secrets that such personal documents afford." J. F. Nims
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 Ap 30 '50 450w

Kirkus 18:190 Mr 15 '50 140w

Manchester Guardian p4 Mr 24 '50 600w

"Mr. Quennell's purpose, in which he has succeeded admirably, has been to let Byron portray himself. There is not quite enough explanatory matter for Dr. Johnson's common reader—a misfortune, for this prose could give great pleasure to a public which remembers dimly college courses on 'The Romantics'. . . But all the materials for the amateur novelist, the amateur analyst, are here. They are superb, and it takes only a moderate exercise of the historical imagination to bring to life a whole world and the most entertaining of the Romantic poets." Ernest Jones
+ Nation 171:88 Jl 22 '50 1300w

"It is notoriously difficult for an anthologist to satisfy everybody. But even granting the difficulty of assembling a representative selection from Byron's huge correspondence in two volumes of moderate dimensions, one feels that Mr. Quennell has not made the best possible use of the space at his command. There is entirely too much of the adolescent Byron, and the disreputable, flippant gossip about amorous intrigues in London is accorded too much room, at the expense of many magnificent letters from Italy during the later years." S. C. Chew
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Ap 16 '50 1100w

"This edition of [Byron's] letters, selected and edited by Peter Quennell, is not a scholar's edition. The selection, however, is excellent. It contains representative letters of the early years, of the years of fame, of the rich Italian period, and of his pathetic last days in Greece. The arrangement of these in groups which tell a continuous story helps the reader who is not too familiar with Byron's biography." L. A. Marchand
+ N Y Times p17 Je 4 '50 850w

Reviewed by George Snell
San Francisco Chronicle p22 My 10 '50 750w

"To know Byron slightly is often to dismiss him too lightly. But the more closely one grows acquainted with him, the greater do respect and admiration become. These splendid volumes make Byron, the engaging, never wholly predictable human being, more immediately accessible to all." W. A. Borst
+ Sat R of Lit 33:28 My 20 '50 850w

"To each of the six sections into which Mr. Quennell divides his anthology he furnishes anything from a page and a half to half a page of biographical introduction. But it is all abominably non-committal. When you have read all the letters to Augusta, all the letters to, or about, the Guiccioli, you find yourself still asking, 'Where is the real Byron?' Mr. Quennell knows, but he is not going to let on. If you want to know the truth about Augusta, you will get from Mr. Quennell not a hint of it. This stand-offish editing I cannot think helpful." H. W. Garrod
Spec 184:114 Ja 27 '50 1250w

Times [London] Lit Sup p138 Mr 3 '50 650w

C

CADELL, ELIZABETH. Brimstone in the garden. 264p $3 Morrow

50-8910

A combination ghost story and social satire laid in a tiny English village which makes a good thing of playing up its quaintness for the tourist trade. Three love stories are brought to a satisfactory conclusion, partly by human interference, partly by supernatural.

Booklist 47:12 S 1 '50

Bookmark 10:7 O '50 30w

"A determinedly lightweight English novel." Mary Sandrock
Cath World 171:475 S '50 170w

Reviewed by Olive Carruthers
Chicago Sunday Tribune p17 S 10 '50 410w

Christian Science Monitor p9 Ag 5 '50 140w

Cleveland Open Shelf p16 Ag '50

Kirkus 18:337 Je 15 '50 140w

Reviewed by K. T. Willis
Library J 75:1289 Ag '50 80w

"As readers of 'Gay Pursuit' and 'Iris in Winter,' two of her earlier novels, know, Mrs Cadell manages to be both affectionate and witty in writing about English middle class manners. The result, in 'Brimstone in the Garden' as in her other books, is delightful." Joanna Spencer
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Ag 6 '50 600w

Reviewed by Nancy Lenkeith
N Y Times p16 Ag 6 '50 230w

"A comfortable humorous story of two kinds of love—young and middle-aged—and several kinds of worldly wisdom in a small English village called Deepwood."
+ New Yorker 26:84 Ag 19 '50 70w

"An entertaining and light-hearted novel. . . Amusing as this sort of carrying-on can be, I found myself wishing that Mrs. Cadell hadn't employed quite so much hilarious whimsy in her book. It's just a bit too arch and coy every now and then, at least for my taste." S. H. Hay
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:31 S 2 '50 280w

Springf'd Republican p8B Ag 13 '50 180w

CADELL, ELIZABETH. Sun in the morning; il. by Mildred Coughlin McNutt. 280p $2.50 Morrow 50-8509

Three girls who met in Calcutta at the age of ten are the heroines. During World war I they were separated, but six years later they met again in India, and they picked up their friendship just where it had left off. As the story closes two of the girls are engaged. For older girls.

Booklist 47:46 S 15 '50
Bookmark 10:12 O '50 40w

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin
Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 N 19 '50 180w

Horn Bk 26:382 S '50 70w

"Delightful in style and humor, this is no 'girls' story,' but a story about girls." M. C. Scoggin
+ Horn Bk 26:501 N '50 80w

"Already established as a writer of lighter, brighter English entertainments, this story of three girls and their girlhood in Calcutta has a thoroughly casual charm, catches the quality of youth without pandering to it, and has a gaiety all its own."
+ Kirkus 18:388 Jl 15 '50 180w

"Light, well-written story which girls who like exotic characters and atmosphere will enjoy." Siri Andrews
+ Library J 75:1673 O 1 '50 70w

"The young probably do not know the India of Kipling as well as did their elders. Here is the English India of a bit before and after the first world war, seen through the clever, self-absorbed yet thoroughly democratic eyes of three young friends." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 N 12 '50 450w

"It is [the author's] light-hearted enthusiasm for people and places that gives this book its unusual quality. Many of the incidents are slight, but the girls, the too-devoted ayah, the nine uproarious Eurasian neighbors are memorable, drawn with affection and humor. You see them all in Mildred McNutt's amusing illustrations." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p30 S 24 '50 180w

Reviewed by B. W. Shaffer
Sat R of Lit 33:50 N 11 '50 150w

CADMAN, JOHN WILLIAM. Corporation in New Jersey; business and politics, 1791-1875. 462p $6 Harvard univ. press

347.7 Corporations. New Jersey—Politics
49-50130

The history of the development of the business corporation in New Jersey from 1791 to 1875. Both the political and legislative aspects of the history are considered. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by Oscar Handlin
Am Hist R 56:129 O '50 480w

Am Pol Sci R 44:506 Je '50 30w

"The reader must dig out the material that he most wants. Even the summary chapter is a compendium. We are grateful, however, for the facts so fully provided and so clearly classified." N. S. B. Gras
+ Ann Am Acad 268:234 Mr '50 440w

Reviewed by E. M. Dodd
Harvard Law R 63:1478 Je '50 1550w

Reviewed by G. H. Evans
J Pol Econ 58:552 D '50 900w

"This is a thorough, highly competent study. . . Important and useful." J. E. Cross
+ Library J 75:46 Ja 1 '50 80w

"Political action involves complex human relations, and personal letters, memoirs, and autobiographies contain the clues necessary for understanding what takes place on the legislative surface. Mr. Cadman has not used such sources, nor ventured many opinions in this area of causation. Within its limits, however, his book is a model of thoroughness."
U S Quarterly Bkl 6:199 Je '50 240w

CADY, EDWIN HARRISON. Gentleman in America; a literary study in American culture. 232p $3 Syracuse univ. press

810.9 U.S.—Civilization. American literature—History and criticism 49-10671

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

"A scholar who strives to give social significance to his scholarship must be commended, but in this case the author's zeal betrays him, in the opinion of the present reviewer, into a failure to bring his study to a satisfactory conclusion. In the middle of the twentieth century the word 'gentleman' has an antique flavor suggesting a physical setting embellished by Sheraton chairs and portraits by Peale. Dr. Cady would have increased vastly the usefulness of his book if he had examined the career of this word in our dynamic and revolutionary century and had discussed the emergence of new conventions in our language for the expression of the old ideas and ideals with which he deals." R. H. Gabriel
Am Hist R 55:615 Ap '50 700w

Reviewed by H. S. Commager
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p24 Ap 2 '50 1050w

"A pessimistic man might call this excellent study an excellent post-mortem, and no more. The author himself is aware that many forces are now working against the traditions and values that created—and create—the gentleman." Abbott Martin
+ N Y Times p6 F 19 '50 360w

"Mr. Cady's last chapter on the present status of the gentleman in America falls outside the real scope of his book and is perfunctory, although it is precisely here that the most critical social synthesis could have been and should be made. In spite of the general usefulness of this study, its principal value is, perhaps, to suggest a field for further and possibly better-defined investigation."
+ — U S Quarterly Bkl 6:8 Mr '50 330w

CAETANI, MARGUERITE, ed. See Botteghe Oscure (periodical). Anthology of new Italian writers.

CAHN, EDMOND N. The sense of injustice; an anthropocentric view of law. 186p $3.50 N Y univ. press

340 Law—Philosoophy 50-144

"Professor of Law at N.Y.U. presents what he correctly calls anthropocentric view of law. In three parts, 'Justice and Power', 'Freedom and Order', and 'Security and Change', he tries to show that justice is a manifestation of the sense of injustice, derived equally from reason and empathy. He regrets a purely materialistic or positivistic explanation of law as well as the idea of a natural origin of law." Library J

Reviewed by F. S. Cohen
Harvard Law R 63:1481 Je '50 2100w

"Well written, thoughtful as well as thought provoking, book's appeal will be limited to those interested in the philosophy of law, but they ought not to miss it." H. H. Bernt
+ Library J 75:172 F 1 '50 100w

"The book is an eloquent affirmation of the ability of a working society to protect and cultivate the values which would generally be classed today as democratic and human." J. D. Hyman
+ New Repub 123:19 S 18 '50 600w

"I shall take the risk of predicting that, in ten years or so, Edmond Cahn will be a name to conjure with, like that of John Dewey or William James or Alfred North Whitehead. For here is the most impelling discussion since Aristotle of the subject of justice—a subject which, in an earlier relatively tranquil era, bored most men but which, in our era of perplexity, has again come to the fore as one of pressing significance." Jerome Frank
+ N Y Times p3 D 18 '49 1150w
School & Society 71:399 Je 24 '50 50w

CALAHAN, HAROLD AUGUSTIN. Sailing technique. 459p il $6 Macmillan

797.124 Sailing 50-5317

"Much of this information is available in the author's earlier books on sailing, but libraries needing additional material or replacements may like to have it in this form, which is intended for both the beginner and the seasoned sailor. Numerous photographs and diagrams illustrate the author's points. No index." Booklist

Booklist 46:258 Ap 15 '50

"All the special techniques of sailing are told so clearly that even a landlubber should be able to understand." Al Chase

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p17 Mr 26 '50 90w

Kirkus 17:420 Ag 1 '49 210w

CALDWELL, ERSKINE. Episode in Palmetto. 252p $2.75 Duell

50-9621

The amorous experiences of a pretty young teacher in a little Southern town. After only two weeks of teaching she has caused so much upset among the men of the town that she has to resign.

Reviewed by M. B. King

Chicago Sun p5 S 19 '50 90w

"Mr. Caldwell used to write stories about Georgia characters who, tho they might seem incredible to readers who are not acquainted with that sort of people, had a rich and earthy vitality. He wrote of them with humor and much compassion and insight, so that his stories gave him a deserved ranking among the leading novelists of the country. Now we must speak of his achievement in the past tense." Kelsey Guilfoil

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 O 1 '50 400w

Kirkus 18:394 Jl 15 '50 140w

Reviewed by H. G. Kelley

Library J 75:1405 S 1 '50 80w

"Characteristically, Mr. Caldwell stresses the comedy of sex, and expresses his belief that all women are either presently or reminiscently sex-crazy, while most men are supine idiots. Formerly, one got the impression that he both hated and pitied his characters—now he seems merely to dislike them. They were more amusing—and no less unreal—when they were more frankly uninhibited, unwashed and illiterate." E. L. Acken

— N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p27 O 8 '50 290w

"Mr. Caldwell used to be a serious, talented writer. It is a loss to everyone that he has taken up writing dreamy scenarios." Chandler Brossard

— N Y Times p28 S 17 '50 360w

"Not since the sub rosa stuff of my college days have I read so shameless a piece of literary pandering. . . I do not, believe me, exaggerate either the dirtiness or the silliness of this novel. Mr. Caldwell tells it in a monotone, with gestures, and it's cheap, sleazy, and tasteless. I would hate to have it on my conscience." V. P. Hass

— Sat R of Lit 33:44 O 21 '50 320w

CALET, HENRI. Young man of Paris; tr. from the French by Jacques Le Clercq. 256p $3 Dutton

50-9310

Autobiographical novel depicting life among the Parisian lower classes during the early years of the twentieth century.

"Calet's love of Paris is apparent on every page, as he reminisces through the years of his rich though uncertain life. Because of the depth of these feelings, Calet succeeds in making his readers touch, see and taste his town whether he writes of a calf's head, cooked with vinaigrette or of a dusty chestnut tree in the sun."

+ Chicago Sun p5 Ag 29 '50 190w

Reviewed by Fanny Butcher

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 S 3 '50 550w

"Highly seasoned, this is not for the conventional tourist traffic."

— Kirkus 18:346 Je 15 '50 120w

"Young Man of Paris is almost as good as a trip to Paris. Better in a way, for no tourist could ever hope to learn as much about the man on the street, the vagaries and delights of French life. The memoir is chock full of wit and pathos, and entirely winning from the first word to the last." W. K. Harrison

+ Library J 75:1285 Ag '50 80w

"This book has some delightful faults. It calls itself a novel but is clothed in only a few gaily colored tatters of plot; it assumes an air of candid autobiography yet leaves us, nonchalantly, in ignorance about the hero's career. Its chapters tumble one upon another in blithe chaos like a basketful of kittens with a spontaneous wisdom that might elude the most careful planning. We close its covers much as we might leave a children's playground: smiling but thoughtful, wondering why we ever had to relinquish the naiveté of joy for the vanity of purpose." Frederic Morton

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Ag 27 '50 1000w

"Wisps of French song drift through the paragraphs and Mr. Le Clercq sensibly couples his translation with the original verses. At all times the book reads like good French and doesn't fall into the common pit of slangy, colloquial Americanisms." J. A. Barry

+ N Y Times p9 S 3 '50 550w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p20 Ag 30 '50 800w

"This is the best book I have ever read about the city most deserving of being written about." Elliot Paul

+ Sat R of Lit 33:21 S 16 '50 600w

CALHOON, RICHARD PERCIVAL. Problems in personnel administration. 540p $4 Harper

658.3 Employment management 49-50226

"Using an appraisal of the systems and policies of nearly six hundred companies, Professor Calhoon (University of North Carolina) formulates definite procedures and practices for use in personnel work. In addition to the general information it contains, it is also a practical, detailed handbook with suggested problems and questions for each chapter." (Current Hist) Index.

"The major weakness of the book is its attempt to cover essentially every aspect of personnel and industrial relations work. The result is frequently a very thin and occasionally superficial coverage of a number of topics. . . None of these omissions is serious, but some suggest that some parts of the book may lack depth and profundity. . . Taken as a whole, this is a competent piece of work and should make a very worthwhile contribution to its field." R. N. McMurry

+ — Ann Am Acad 272:234 N '50 470w

Current Hist 18:229 Ap '50 50w

"Not a casebook, but an admirable opener of horizons." J. E. Cross

+ Library J 75:46 Ja 1 '50 100w

Reviewed by C. A. McKeand

Management R 39:363 Je '50 700w

CALKINS, CLINCH (MRS MARK MERRELL). Lady on the hunt; with drawings by R. J. Davidson. 182p $2.50 Harper

50-14404

Humorous story about a Yankee millionaire who buys a Virginia estate and proceeds to stage a fox hunt to end all fox hunts.

Booklist 47:61 O 1 '50

"Looking for a nice bright frothy book, full of satire and horse-talk? This is it." J. F. Nims

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 O 8 '50 350w

Kirkus 18:430 Ag 1 '50 160w

"The story itself and the people in it remind me of a field of horsemanship in which I am at home—the merry-go-round. The figures are not real, they are not meant to be, but they are shaped and painted to suggest the models from which they were made. These are gayer and brighter than real, funnier too. They dip into outrageous situations and rise from them like the merry-go-round mounts that rise and fall majestically, while the rider laughs with joy at the motion and the music from the machine in the center, and lunges with a shout to snatch at a bright brass ring as he whirls by." Emily Kimbrough

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 O 1 '50 550w

"If your sense of humor runs to the grotesqueries of the trophy room, 'Lady on the Hunt' may be your dish. In this reviewer's opinion, it is somewhat less satisfying than a performance of 'Hamlet' with Hamlet missing; it is a case of Wodehouse without Jeeves." David Dempsey

— N Y Times p35 O 1 '50 220w

New Yorker 26:121 S 23 '50 100w

"Probably a good satire could be written about followers of the fox. But 'Lady on the Hunt' isn't it. It is cute rather than clever, tiresome and silly rather than witty. If the hounds couldn't move any faster than this 'short' novel, they couldn't possibly catch the fox. And they didn't." Ray Pierre

— Sat R of Lit 33:41 N 25 '50 280w

Wis Lib Bul 46:17 N '50

CALMER, NED. Strange land. 327p $3 Scribner
50-5182

"A novel about the war, the action is devoted to a single action planned by a general with an eye for publicity. The story is told in the thoughts of about a dozen people, including the general, a company commander, a beautiful WAC captain, a proper Bostonian major, several war correspondents and so on." Library J

Booklist 46:181; 200 F 1 '50; F 15 '50

"A work of sound and fury, which makes poor reading material."

— Cath World 171:74 Ap '50 250w

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon

Chicago Sun p5S F 9 '50 550w

"Seldom has anyone written with more feeling or understanding of the sodden, hungry riflemen who kept going and going long beyond the powers of human endurance, and the young officers who led them. As a dramatic tale of superb characterization, fast and plausible action, and understandable motivation, 'The Strange Land' is worthy of ranking among the top war novels, but not quite the equal of 'The Naked and the Dead,' 'The Young Lions,' 'Guard of Honor,' and 'The Gallery.'" J. H. Thompson

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 F 19 '50 550w

Cleveland Open Shelf p4 Ja '50

Kirkus 18:3 Ja 1 '50 230w

"An otherwise excellent book is muddled by the stream of consciousness style of presentation." Donald Wasson

+ — Library J 75:171 F 1 '50 80w

"Mr. Calmer tells his story in highly dramatic fashion. . . Sometimes the talk moves so quickly that 'The Strange Land' stops being a novel and becomes a kind of play, with the characters exchanging opinions and insults with lightning speed. It all adds up to a war novel that leaves an impression of excitement and suspense, but never quite convinces the reader that it all really happened that way." Herbert Kupferberg

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 F 5 '50 500w

"This is the most enthralling war novel I have yet read by an American about the recent war. In a simple, truthful, restrained and yet vivid and hard-hitting manner, Mr. Calmer describes 'Operation Uppercut,' an offensive against the Siegfried line by one small unit in November, 1944. . . It is the author's highly civilized attitude, his skill as a writer, his uncompromising attitude toward truth which makes this book so praiseworthy." H. F. West

+ N Y Times p4 F 5 '50 450w

"While twelve assorted viewpoints are embodied here, they are presented in a single, staccato style that gives the general effect of leaves torn from a notebook that has been left out in the rain and become somewhat blurred."

New Yorker 25:94 F 11 '50 160w

"Mr. Calmer has written here one of the really good war novels. He has both a synthesizing mind and an analytical one, and his book comes together beautifully despite its montage-effects. As for his characters, his handling of Lieutenant Clare Drake of the WAC is a good example of his ability. Nine out of ten novelists would have made her no more than a tramp, but Mr. Calmer interprets her with insight and tenderness. But his characterizations are all brilliant." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 F 20 '50 1000w

"It is [the] final balance of the 'big picture' which the novel doesn't quite achieve. But that aside, one can't help but feel the understanding that emerges from Mr. Calmer's concentrated view." Hollis Alpert

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:15 F 11 '50 1150w

"Mr. Calmer has done a masterful job of first-hand reporting of the grim side of the war, together with the drawing of many remarkable characterizations. 'The Strange Land' gives a vivid, unretouched picture of action by those heroes of the war, the foot soldiers." J. F. S.

+ Springf'd Republican p6D F 19 '50 260w

"As reportage, the novel does notably well. . . At the level of character, the author sticks to rather simple types, not rising much beyond the good and the bad of melodrama, but does clothe his types in enough detail to give them considerable vitality. The feelings of characters in reference to given situations are plausibly set forth, but the ventures into thoughts and feelings of a more general sort exhibit lack of maturity."

+ — U S Quarterly Bkl 6:156 Je '50 250w

CALOMIRIS, ANGELA. Red masquerade; undercover for the F.B.I. 284p $3 Lippincott
335.4 Communist party of America. U.S. Federal bureau of investigation 50-14897

The author, a commercial photographer, joined the Communist party as an undercover agent for the F.B.I. Her job lasted seven years, and she left to become a government witness in the case against the eleven communist leaders. This is her story of her experiences.

Booklist 47:88 N 1 '50

"The author has produced a fascinating tale which demonstrates her possession of courage, capacity for work and a kind of loyalty too rare at the present day." Joseph McSorley

+ Cath World 172:238 D '50 420w

Reviewed by G. J. Scharschug

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 N 5 '50 190w

Kirkus 18:504 Ag 15 '50 210w

"If even half of the details are accurate, and they probably are, this is a devastating picture of the drudgery and stupidity of life within an organization dedicated to blind slavery and totalitarianism. A volume such as this is far more useful than any anti-Communist legislation." Donald Wasson

+ Library J 75:1654 O 1 '50 140w

Reviewed by Marcus Duffield

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 N 12 '50 1150w

Reviewed by A. H. Raskin

N Y Times p3 N 19 '50 700w

"Miss Calomiris's account of her exacting mission doesn't contain any expecially electrifying information but merely sets forth,

CALOMIRIS, ANGELA—Continued
with a minimum of sermonizing, the aspects of Party work that quite often resulted in total disillusionment on the part of even the most ardent neophyte."
+ New Yorker 26:167 N 11 '50 160w

CALVERT, ROBERT PEYTON. Patent practice and management; for inventors and executives; with foreword by Alan N. Mann. 371p il $5 Scarsdale press, box 536, Scarsdale, N.Y.
608 Patents. Patent laws and legislation

"Popularizations of patent law and related matters for beginning inventors are common enough and so are legal treatises for student and practicing patent attorneys. Here is a new work that falls between these established categories. In it patent law and allied topics are interpreted for people to whom patents are essentially an aspect of business law. The inventors addressed are those who have already gained a measure of sophistication in their profession and the executives are officers of corporations interested in the exploitation of inventions." N Y New Tech Bks

"Everyone concerned with any aspect of patents will find this book interesting and useful, but it is written particularly for the industrial inventor and the executive and to them the reviewer recommends it highly." H. T. Stowell
+ Chem & Eng N 28:1422 Ap 24 '50 250w

"While not designed to make each man his own patent attorney, Mr. Calvert's book will prove valuable in alerting inventors and executives to the problems arising in connection with research, inventions and patents, and in averting serious error before consulting patent counsel." A. W. Deller
+ Chem Eng 57:300 Je '50 420w

"The topics discussed were well chosen, and the discussions are remarkably lucid. The book should prove useful and interesting to a wide range of readers."
+ N Y New Tech Bks 35:42 My '50

CAMDEN, GEORGE. My time, my life. 253p $2.75 Doubleday
50-6852

Story of a young workingman, his wife and baby in wartime London.

Booklist 46:316 Je 15 '50

"Well done, but not keyed to a market today."
Kirkus 18:110 F 15 '50 190w

Reviewed by J. D. Scott
New Statesman & Nation 39:438 Ap 15 '50 270w

"In a terse, hard-hitting, staccato style—a prose that reflects the bleakness of bombed London in the limited vocabulary of a munitions plant worker for whom life has always been a struggle—George Camden tells a story that is at once grim and tender."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p25 Ap 16 '50 110w

"This appears to be a novel so consciously oversimplified for the immediate purposes of war that, only five short years after, it reads close to something issued in 1942 by our own military for the purposes of orienting labor toward its proper duties in both war and peace." Nelson Algren
N Y Times p16 Ap 9 '50 390w

"Bill is not a particularly original man, but he and his little family are extremely appealing. The tragedy that destroys their lives at the very end of the book must be taken on faith as part of the fortunes of war; otherwise, it would seem to be merely a melodramatic caprice of the author, unforgivably pat and unprepared for. Mr. Camden, an Englishman, writes in a chipper, scrappy style that inclines to be tiresome in a long work like this, though it does express the personality of his hero accurately."
+ — New Yorker 26:130 Ap 15 '50 100w
San Francisco Chronicle p21 My 7 '50 450w

Reviewed by Milton Crane
Sat R of Lit 33:36 Ag 12 '50 230w

"It is impossible to doubt that this simple moving book is written by a genuine working-class man who feels the middle classes ('the ladidahs') as alien from him as another nation. For the middle-class reader this book provides a most interesting documentary on the life and thought of a London worker." Marghanita Laski
+ Spec 184:514 Ap 14 '50 140w
Times [London] Lit Sup p213 Ap 7 '50 120w

Reviewed by Paul Pickrel
Yale R n s 39:767 summer '50 210w

CAMERON, ELEANOR. Unheard music. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 278p $3 Little 50-7533

Character study of Jane Fielding, a reference librarian in a California university town. Because she had been crossed in love when she was younger Jane took an exaggerated interest in all sorts of people. The story is of the events of one day in Jane's life, when many small crises arose, all brought into focus by the death of Matthew Hinden, an elderly composer whom she had befriended.

Booklist 46:241; 286 Ap 1 '50; My 15 '50

Reviewed by M. W. Stoer
Christian Science Monitor p6 Je 17 '50 550w

"Evocative characters, a warm appreciation of human relationships, a perception of the delicacy of emotional responses, this is for a critical, discriminating audience."
+ Kirkus 18:185 Mr 15 '50 160w

Reviewed by Jean Garrigue
— New Repub 123:19 Jl 3 '50 110w

" 'The Unheard Music' was six years in the writing and its maturity of outlook and finish of execution evidence the thought and labor that have gone into the book. The author, like her central character, must enjoy human beings, and her picture of the little cosmos of the public library is peopled with likable individuals. The core of the story, however, is Jane's emotional coming of age. Mrs. Cameron handles that difficult theme with both wisdom and subtlety in an unusual book that will have a special appeal to women readers." Mary Ross
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 My 14 '50 500w

"This first novel makes very pleasant reading. . . Jane is a delightful, intelligent individual, beautifully portrayed. Mrs. Cameron does better by her than her friends, for Jane lives while the others are only observed. Then too, the author by limiting herself to one day, is forced to do too much telling about things rather than making them happen. All this mind-reading leaves little room for action, but Jane is so charming that one really doesn't care." Joyce Geary
+ — N Y Times p26 Je 4 '50 150w
New Yorker 26:106 My 27 '50 100w

"The novel has some obvious faults, technical ones, but its values are right. Its core is sound. There is a feeling of warmth and compassion emanating from it." J. V.
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p24 Je 25 '50 300w

"A real world, small but comprehensible, whose atmosphere is palpable, whose characters live and, while we share their lives, concern us deeply, has been created in this distinguished first novel." Pamela Taylor
+ Sat R of Lit 33:29 Je 24 '50 500w
+ Springf'd Republican p8B Jl 30 '50 260w
Wis Lib Bul 46:28 Je '50

CAMERON, KENNETH NEILL. Young Shelley; genesis of a radical. 437p $6 Macmillan
B or 92 Shelley, Percy Bysshe 50-14819

The first volume of a two-volume work on the early life of Shelley, in which the author pieces together all available evidence in an attempt to "rescue Shelley the thinker from the hands of the sentimentalists and apologists." (N Y Herald Tribune Bk R) The book ends in 1813, after the publication of Queen Mab. Index.

Booklist 47:114 N 15 '50

"A good piece of historical biographical research, with a certain timeliness in its estimate of the perennial role of radicals. But it will command only a thoughtful group of readers, chiefly intellectuals and scholars."
+ Kirkus 18:406 Jl 15 '50 100w

"A heavily documented and scholarly volume on one of the most uncommonly interesting figures of a brilliant age of literature. . . Highly recommended for large public and college libraries." Herbert Cahoon
+ Library J 75:1397 S 1 '50 130w

Reviewed by Jacob Korg
Nation 171:488 N 25 '50 650w

"As the first book to be published under the Modern Language Association-Macmillan arrangement of grants-in-aid—it sets a high standard." Delancey Ferguson
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 N 5 '50 1350w

New Yorker 26:134 O 28 '50 180w

"It is no longer easy to discover new facts in Shelley's literary career nor to contribute much in the way of new interpretations. However, Mr. Cameron has marshaled evidence to demonstrate, as no one has so well done before, how Shelley developed from a liberal Whig in his early youth, when he looked forward with equanimity to succeeding his father in Parliament, to become first a reformist Whig, next a revolutionary republican after Tom Paine, and finally, about 1812, a political philosopher of the school of Godwin." Floyd Stovall
+ Sat R of Lit 33:31 O 28 '50 800w

"We must be grateful for this book; the case for Shelley as a philosopher has never been so well stated. Still, all of this material is but the barest of backdrops for 'Ode to the West Wind' and 'Adonais.' "
+ Theatre Arts 34:5 D '50 170w

CAMPBELL, MRS GRACE MACLENNAN (GRANT). The tower and the town. 342p $3 Duell

50-6027

The experiences of an earnest young minister in a Canadian parish, showing how he met the difficulties he had to face, from helping a drunkard to marrying a wife who met the approval of his parishioners.

Bookmark 9:160 Ap '50 30w

"The book is kindly and ought to be popular." L. C. T.
+ Canadian Forum 30:167 O '50 130w

Reviewed by L. E. Cannon
Christian Century 67:432 Ap 5 '50 280w

"The book as a whole represents a praiseworthy attempt to show how religion can kindle spiritual awareness, and how this insight, acted upon in daily life, serves to uplift not only a few individuals, but the whole community wherein they prove their faith by their works." M. W. Stoer
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Mr 17 '50 480w

"There is wise and nice humor here, definite practical spiritual atmosphere in really human terms—all in all one of the few books which can be recommended for a conservative market. This does not mean, however, that it is in any way anaemic."
+ Kirkus 17:675 D 15 '49 200w

"Mrs. Campbell has a quick eye for the daily concerns of a compact, middle-class, orderly community. The humor of the story is unobtrusive, but not the least of its charms."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 F 26 '50 170w

"There is nothing very fresh or particularly illuminating in Mrs. Campbell's story, but there is a patent sincerity not often found in current fiction." Nancy Ladd
+ N Y Times p35 F 26 '50 110w
Sat R of Lit 33:28 Mr 18 '50 130w
Wis Lib Bul 46:23 Mr '50

CAMPBELL, MARIE. House with stairs. 245p $2.50 Rinehart

50-10213

In a first person narrative this is the story of two girls, white Celia and black Janie (the narrator) who grow up together on a Southern plantation during Civil war and Reconstruction days.

Booklist 47:96 N 1 '50

"Most Northerners have been brought up on stories that show slavery and plantation life in the old South at its worst. Here, undoubtedly, Marie Campbell presents it somewhat sentimentally. It is easy, however, to believe that prototypes of Hickory Level did exist outside this novel, which is built up largely on the tales of an old Negro friend (who became the original for Janie) and on files of the county newspaper, dating from the 1860s. Miss Campbell, who lives and teaches in the South and has long been a student of Southern customs and Negro folklore, has here given us a book that has charm as a story." Mary Ross
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 N 5 '50 550w

"Miss Campbell's novel deserves to be read as an important thread in the whole fabric of a region. The novel will be of interest to all readers who wish to understand the South." Charlotte Capers
+ N Y Times p31 O 29 '50 130w

CAMPBELL, MRS MARJORIE ELLIOTT (WILKINS). The Saskatchewan; il. by Illingworth H. Kerr. (Rivers of America) 400p $4 Rinehart

917.1 Saskatchewan river. Saskatchewan valley 50-6401

This river which "drains the Rockies into the Atlantic" is one of the major rivers of America. Some of its tributaries rise in the United States, flow eastward from the Rockies, across the plains, and thru Lake Winnipeg into Hudson Bay. This volume, in the Rivers of America series, describes the geography, history, and human events of the territory thru which the river flows. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:244 Ap 1 '50

"While the people and events of which Mrs. Campbell writes belong to history, she is a story-teller rather than a historian; and since she is interested in the picturesque and the romantic, nothing she touches is drab. . . While it is admittedly difficult to discuss contemporary events, particularly in the field of politics, what people do politically is nevertheless an important part of their history. The history of the people of the plains is mostly the record of a struggle waged for fifty years against what they, rightly or wrongly, believe to be the unfair domination of eastern financial interests. Consequently, even if it should have meant the curtailment of part of the earlier portions, I think some account of this struggle might have been included." D. M. Le Bourdais
+ — Canadian Forum 30:88 Jl '50 1350w

"The whole book is decidedly episodic. The authoress jumps from one topic that attracts her to another, with a resulting lack of continuity, and the chronology of her historical sections is often almost impossible to follow. Her omissions are curious. . . Yet to judge [the book] strictly by professional standards would be unfair. It is intended not for the professional, but for the general reader. . . By and large, it was this reviewer's feeling that the general Northern American reader owes a real debt of gratitude to Mrs. Campbell for a lively and readable book, and that a large por-

CAMPBELL, M. E. W.—Continued
tion of Canada has been on the whole by no means ill-interpreted to the great southern public which is in general singularly ignorant of things Canadian." Richard Glover
+ — Canadian Hist R 31:194 Je '50 650w

"This latest of the Rivers of America volumes vividly reveals a country of rich resources and restless people. . . The late Constance Lindsay Skinner, who planned the Rivers of America series, would have loved this book. It tells about her own northwest country, its harsh seasons, its vast spaces, the demands it has made upon its people and the rewards it has yielded them. It is a country that has tall tales and true tales in its memory—more than enough to last thru the long northern winter nights." Walter Havighurst
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ap 2 '50 550w

"A bold and sympathetic portrait of that part of the Canadian Northwest whose borders touch the mighty river, or whose history has been influenced by its swirling waters. The author has achieved in her pages a style so rhythmic that it marches like a poem. She uses the artifices of a poet—alliteration, metaphor, personification, simile, words skillfully chosen for their color or motion, and their aptness in the context." Maurine Merrick
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 My 8 '50 370w

"For sheer readability, this ranks high in the estimable Rivers of America series. . . First rate regional material, with lots of human interest."
+ Kirkus 17:687 D 15 '49 250w

Reviewed by E. L. Lewis
Library J 75:314 F 15 '50 130w

"To the Canadian it is an experience as rare as it is satisfactory to find a new book which strips off the gaudy tourist advertising and catches the true texture of his country. It is in this sense that Mrs. Campbell has written an altogether satisfactory Canadian book. . . Here, in the record of a river, is a great North American story captured in vivid, living detail." Bruce Hutchison
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 Ap 9 '50 900w

Reviewed by R. L. Neuberger
N Y Times p21 Ap 23 '50 190w

Reviewed by J. M. Thorington
Sat R of Lit 33:48 My 13 '50 850w
Wis Lib Bul 46:27 Je '50

CAMPBELL, WALTER STANLEY (STANLEY VESTAL, pseud). Writing: advice and devices. 301p $3.50 Doubleday

808 Authorship—Handbooks, manuals, etc.
50-6631

A handbook for the beginning writer, containing advice on how to write and how to write to sell. The author is director of professional writing courses at the University of Oklahoma. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 47:36 S 15 '50

Reviewed by L. T. Heron
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 Ap 16 '50 170w
+ Kirkus 18:17 Ja 1 '50 150w

Reviewed by C. W. Weinberger
San Francisco Chronicle p13 Je 18 '50 170w

"Professor Campbell adopts from the outset the premise (with which the reviewer does not agree) that publication is the be-all and end-all of successful writing. . . Granting Professor Campbell's commercial predilection, as well as the limitations it imposes, 'Writing: Advice and Devices' is a worth-while book, sound, matter-of-fact, realistic. Professor Campbell avoids both the high-flying, romantic nonsense and the even more undesirable out-of-the-corner-of-the-journalist's-mouth 'tips' which characterize two predominant types of books for writers." William Peden
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:29 Ap 1 '50 320w
Wis Lib Bul 46:20 My '50

CAMPBELL, WILLIAM EDWARD. Erasmus, Tyndale and More. 288p il $5 Bruce pub.

274.2 Erasmus, Desiderius. Tyndale, William. More, Sir Thomas, Saint. Reformation—England 49-50392

"In this picture of the outstanding figures of the 16th century, the author cites their extreme differences in disposition, in character, and in achievement, yet links them together in life under the masterful personality of Henry VIII." School & Society

"Campbell's interpretation of these men and their times; his judicious selections from their writings; his magnificent ability to show the cataclysmic impact of the Reformation on Christendom, are but three of the many reasons this book is recommended."
+ Cath World 171:318 Jl '50 200w
School & Society 71:143 Mr 4 '50 40w

CANFIELD, LEON HARDY, and WILDER, HOWARD BAKER. Making of modern America; eds, Howard R. Anderson [and others] map and chart ed, Robert M. Chapin, junior. 781p il $3.56 Houghton

973 U.S.—History

"A new book based upon an earlier text, The United States in the Making, by the same authors." (Verso of title page) The history of the United States from the discovery of America to the present is divided into units, designed for senior high school courses. List of important dates. Index.

School & Society 71:222 Ap 8 '50 40w

"Far superior in all respects to a previous text by the same authors."
+ Social Studies 41:240 My '50 10w

CANNAN, JOANNA (MRS H. J. PULLEIN-THOMPSON). Poisonous relations [Eng title: Murder included]. 217p $2.50 Morrow 50-4677

Detective story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun p5 Ag 1 '50 100w

"Effervescent characterization in English family yarn of subtly satirical quality and thoroly engaging." Drexel Drake
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 Ag 13 '50 60w
Kirkus 18:317 Je 1 '50 90w

"Delightfully readable, and only just misses the front rank of detection owing to the author's injudicious lack of reticence." Ralph Partridge
+ — New Statesman & Nation 39:253 Mr 4 '50 180w

"Joanna Cannan's new mystery reads like a cross between Margery Sharp and Angela Thirkell, and one is almost too lost in the charm of its characters to pay much attention to a rather negligible plot."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 Ag 20 '50 180w

"Told with a devastating detachment which is equally brutal toward the English gentry, its middle-class emulators and upstart cockney detectives." Elizabeth Bullock
N Y Times p11 Jl 30 '50 140w

"A literate and amusing book, with exceptionally believable characters."
+ New Yorker 26:87 Ag 19 '50 120w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p13 Ag 27 '50 140w

"Agreeable—quite."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:28 Jl 29 '50 40w
Springf'd Republican p7B Ag 6 '50 30w

CANNING, VICTOR. Forest of eyes. 248p $3 Mill
50-5966

The setting is Yugoslavia, just before the break with Moscow. An English engineer, in Yugoslavia negotiating a government contract, is the central character. When his companion is killed, the engineer becomes the center of a "forest of eyes," as all the villagers observe the "foreigner."

Booklist 46:290 My 15 '50

"Canning has done better by his villains than his more conventional Englishman-hero. His fleshiest character is certainly the urbane provincial chief of police set in contrast to a grimly ambitious rival from the capital." James Sandoe

Chicago Sun p6 Mr 3 '50 160w

Kirkus 17:681 D 15 '49 100w

"This is a good adventure tale, not so much because of its action as because of Mr. Canning's characters. The conflict between Chief of Police Zarko, who was an idealistic party member, and Comrade Lepovitch, who was an opportunistic one, is almost as exciting as Hudson's spy chase. Add to that Mr. Canning's seemingly authentic background and you have a thriller which is both readable and intelligent."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p19 Mr 26 '50 200w

"'A Forest of Eyes' is chiefly recommended to the insatiable fan." Anthony Boucher

N Y Times p27 Mr 5 '50 130w

"Exciting and credible." E. D. Doyle

San Francisco Chronicle p27 Ap 23 '50 90w

CANNON, DOROTHY F. Explorer of the human brain; the life of Santiago Ramón y Cajal, 1852-1934; with a memoir of Dr Cajal by Sir Charles Sherrington. (Life of science lib) 303p il $4 Schuman

B or 92 Ramón y Cajal, Santiago 49-10050

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

Reviewed by René Albrecht-Carrié

Am Hist R 55:403 Ja '50 400w

"The importance of Cajal's work to the development of modern neurology is well understood by the author and explained in a competent manner, although some of the footnotes are perhaps too elementary to be useful for those who will be interested enough to read the book." J. W. H.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p34 O 16 '49 90w

"Medical historians will appreciate this volume, and other readers will enjoy making the acquaintance of a Nobel Prize winner little known to Americans—even his fellow scientists—who combined science, philosophy, and statesmanship in a life full of variety and contrast."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:463 D '49 200w

CANNON, N. I. Pattern and design. 160p il $6 Pitman

745.4 Design, Decorative. Design [49-2398]

"This publication meets teacher and student needs for a textbook on the subject of design. [It] reflects the author's wide teaching experience and is illustrated with 200 black and white drawings and 12 color plates as well as 8 photographs of students' work. Chapter subjects include Principles of Design, Rhythm, Experiments with Media, The Study of Form, Abstract Patterns and Tone, Colour, The Border Patterns, Expression and Texture. Plant Forms, Living Creatures into Patterns, Scaffolds, and Repeating Patterns, Traditional Designs, and Approach to Wood Engraving." School Arts

---

"An encouraging book with sage advice on media and material. Recommended." A. S. Plaut

+ Library J 75:1664 O 1 '50 100w

"Of particular usefulness to teachers of design are the suggestions for study and experiment listed with each chapter. . . The book is arranged with care to lead students smoothly through the progressive steps of increasing awareness, confidence, and imaginative experimentation that results in effective design creation."

+ School Arts 49:9a F '50 170w

CANTRIL, HADLEY, ed. Tensions that cause wars; common statement and individual papers by a group of social scientists brought together by UNESCO. 303p $4 Univ. of Ill.

301.15 Social sciences. International cooperation 50-7512

"At the second meeting of the Unesco General Assembly in 1947, a series of resolutions authorized a study of 'Tensions Affecting International Understanding.' The general purpose of the resolutions was to encourage social scientists to focus their attention and their research techniques on an understanding of the development and perpetuation of attitudes which make for national aggression and, on the basis of their findings, to recommend ways and means of promoting attitudes that would increase international understanding. . . This book contains the short common statement agreed upon by the eight specialists brought together in a two weeks' conference in Paris during the summer of 1948 and the specially prepared statements by each of these experts on the problem posed by the resolution we were dealing with." (Introd) No index.

"This book is certainly an important document in the cause of international harmony if only on the ideological plane." R. H. U.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 Jl 16 '50 500w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:356 S '50 280w

CAPOTE, TRUMAN. Local color. 92p il $3.50 Random house

818 50-9545

"Notes and sketches about places where the author has lived and traveled: New Orleans, New York, Brooklyn, Hollywood, Haiti, Italy, North Africa and Spain." (Publisher's note) Illustrated with photographs.

Reviewed by Paul Engle

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 S 17 '50 180w

"He has the practiced eye and ear of a cocktail lounge virtuoso, and the present volume is further evidence of an uncanny gift for knowing where to begin and, especially, where to end a story. Local Color is a triumph of over-the-martinis badinage. The book winks and blinks with glimpses of 'amusing characters'. . . Along with these candid shots the Capote album offers the boy's own sweet-sad observations on people and places, which are not so deep as a well but not sheer epicene prattle either." John Cogley

Commonweal 52:610 S 29 '50 460w

"Perceptive, clear-eyed and delightfully creative, these notes on places and people have caught the folk rhythms, the angular off-beats, the protective coloring, and the often surrealistic juxtaposition, and brought them into common focus."

+ Kirkus 18:405 Jl 15 '50 360w

"Illustrated by photographs (some good, some arty), it is a handsome piece of bookmaking. The subjects are titled geographically, ranging from American cities (New Orleans, New York, Brooklyn and Hollywood) to Haiti, Italy, Spain and Tangier. All of which is beside the point, for the book is really about Truman Capote, his emotions, perceptions and half-perceptions. As such, it is of high interest. . . You can read 'Local Color' in an hour, and perhaps remember the Spanish train ride all your life." James Hilton

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 O 15 '50 800w

"Truman Capote is not a writer to misuse words and the title of his new book is apposite and exact. 'Local Color,' a haphazard and engaging miscellany of anecdotes and impressions strung loosely together on a geographic thread, is less of a travel book in an ordinary sense than a story-teller's sketchbook." A. S. Morris

N Y Times p7 S 17 '50 700w

"The writing is personal and consciously artful, for the young author is a careful man with a sentence. . . It is just possible that someday Mr. Capote will have forgotten why he wrote

CAPOTE, TRUMAN—Continued
this book. Nevertheless, the collection is pleasant, and contains some shrewd bits of observation."

+ — New Yorker 26:123 S 23 '50 120w

San Francisco Chronicle p28 D 3 '50 250w

"Mr. Capote, we are told, resents being thought of as a 'Southern' writer. Were one uninformed as to his nationality, a reading of 'Local Color' might incline one to think he was French. . . Mr. Capote occasionally uses a too-complicated, over-rich, and fancy rhetoric; at times he misuses with annoying deliberateness the slangy and the familiar. But the places he writes about and the characters are truly composed with the values he desires to give them. Here, undeniably, a conscientious and thoughtful artist is at work—a little too preoccupied still with his Klee lithographs and other unessential and distracting playthings." Gouverneur Paulding

Sat R of Lit 33:28 O 14 '50 650w

CAPPER, PERCIVAL LEONARD, and CASSIE, W. FISHER. Mechanics of engineering soils; with a foreword by L. Scott White. (Civil eng. ser) 270p il $4 McGraw

624.151 Soils (engineering) [49-51909]

"The aspects of soil mechanics which are of practical interest in the design of pavements, slopes and foundations are here treated concisely and authoritatively. The book is based both on practice and on modern theoretical work, especially the studies of Terzaghi; and it is written for advanced engineering students and practicing engineers. The physical bases of such phenomena as the settlement of foundations and the failure of slopes are explained, and related testing and design methods are described. The treatment assumes that the reader will be familiar with the reading of graphs and the setting-up and solving of algebraic equations. The authors are professors in British universities." N Y New Tech Bks

Reviewed by D. P. Krynine
Eng N 145:42 O 5 '50 160w

"An excellent short book. . . The authors are British, but they have not overlooked the American literature. The book should be added to extensive library collections on civil engineering." R. R. Hawkins

+ Library J 75:109 Ja 15 '50 130w

N Y New Tech Bks 34:105 N '49

CAREY, BERNICE. Body on the sidewalk. 219p $2.25 Doubleday

50-7191

Detective story.

Kirkus 18:149 Mr 1 '50 90w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p19 My 21 '50 120w

"The plot illustrates a few sound points on labor solidarity and race relations. Future theses on 'Social Attitudes in the Detective Story' will undoubtedly mention [Miss Carey's] second novel. More purely literary critiques, however, will reluctantly be forced to report that it falls well below her first in writing. Its good intentions are largely frustrated by overstatement and leaden prose." A. B.

— + N Y Times p35 Ap 30 '50 110w

"A workmanlike and thorough book, if not an especially stimulating one."

New Yorker 26:128 Ap 22 '50 90w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p20 My 14 '50 50w

CAREY, BERNICE. Man who got away with it. 224p $2.50 Doubleday

50-9686

Detective story.

Booklist 47:98 N 1 '50

"Careful, credible."

+ Kirkus 18:402 Jl 15 '50 70w

"Not particularly tricky as to plot, nor overburdened with suspense. But it all sounds as if it might really have happened."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p24 O 15 '50 200w

"Unfortunately, the people, the town, and the murders in this book share a disastrous quality—dullness." M. H. Oakes

— N Y Times p39 O 22 '50 110w

"This story loses coherence by starting as straight detective and ending as inverted; but Mrs. Carey's wonderful middle-class background and her ear for conversation make it entirely credible. It's her best to date." L. G. Offord

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p23 O 15 '50 80w

CAREY, MABEL COLEBROOKE. Wild flowers at a glance; drawings by Dorothy Fitchew; introd. by Henry K. Svenson. 275p $2.75 Pellegrini & Cudahy

581.97 Flowers 50-8456

"More than a third of the flowers considered here are native to Great Britain but not America. Of the remainder, most are native to Britain but grow in America also. Therefore, this book must be used in conjunction with one on American wild flowers. Related American species of British flowers are given. All are illustrated in color and arranged by color." (Library J) Index.

"At first glance, a very useful field guide. . . The 'out' on the book, however, is that basically, it pertains to the British Isles."

Kirkus 18:348 Je 15 '50 130w

"Especially good for flowers found in waste places and along roadsides. Recommended for libraries which already have good beginning books on wild flowers." Nina Smith

+ Library J 75:1308 Ag '50 110w

"One of the most convenient [books] we have found to help identify wild flowers." J. V.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 O 29 '50 130w

CARGOE, RICHARD, pseud. See Payne, P. S. R.

CARHART, ARTHUR HAWTHORNE. Fishing in the West. 144p il $4 Macmillan

799.12 Fishing—West 50-9502

An account of fishing, especially trout fishing, in the West. Contains amusing anecdotes and personal experiences. No index.

Booklist 47:9 S 1 '50

Reviewed by Bob Becker
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 S 10 '50 140w

"An authoritative guide to Western fishing by an expert sportsman. A tasteful amount of anecdotal material is spread through the quietly enthusiastic text."

+ Kirkus 18:323 Je 1 '50 160w

"Excellent on rods and flies. Sharp protest on destruction of streams by dams and mining. Highly recommended." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 75:1190 Jl '50 50w

CARHART, ARTHUR HAWTHORNE. Fishing is fun. 122p il $1.95 Macmillan

799.12 Fishing 50-5485

"A guidebook for beginners which extolls the joys of angling as a lifetime sport, discussing identification of the general family to which a fish belongs, what kind of tackle to use, lake and stream lore. Explanatory line drawings." Bookmark

Booklist 46:236 Mr 15 '50

+ Bookmark 9:132 Mr '50 40w

Reviewed by Bob Becker
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 My 7 '50 30w

"Excellent first book for aspiring fishermen."

+ Kirkus 17:529 S 15 '49 90w

"Brief, precise, clearly written. . . Excellent for beginners." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 75:48 Ja 1 '50 30w

"Although primarily for the beginner, there is something here for seasoned anglers as well, particularly those who believe sportsmanship is an accomplished fact when a dry fly touches a trout stream." Nate Aleskovsky
+ N Y Times p34 Ap 16 '50 140w

Wis Lib Bul p19 Mr '50

CARLETON, MRS MARJORIE CHALMERS. Bride regrets. 215p $2.50 Morrow 50-6260

Mystery story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun p6 Ap 14 '50 110w

Reviewed by Drexel Drake
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 My 14 '50 50w

Kirkus 18:78 F 1 '50 90w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p24 My 14 '50 210w

"All this is more reminiscent of the theatre or the screen than of the novel. But it is so highly readable and so slickly surfaced that there may not be a more enjoyable Imperiled-Heroine novel this season." Anthony Boucher
N Y Times p25 My 7 '50 150w

"Though clearly inspired by the famous British case usually known as 'The Brides in the Bath,' this novel, laid in a New England boarding house, has considerable suspense, and the characterizations, especially that of the murderer, are quite well handled."
+ New Yorker 26:124 Ap 8 '50 80w

"Brilliant variations on famous theme. Excellent cast of characters, anything-can-happen background, eye-popping excitement, and romantic obbligato. Rewarding."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:38 Ap 1 '50 40w

Springf'd Republican p6C Ap 9 '50 120w

CARLSON, MRS BERNICE WELLS. Make it yourself! handicraft for boys and girls; il. by Aline Hansens. 160p $2; pa $1.35 Abingdon-Cokesbury
680 Handicraft 50-6501

Simple instructions for making a variety of decorative rather than functional articles. The book can be used with children aged seven or older. The materials to be used are easily procured and worked. Index.

Booklist 46:248 Ap 1 '50

"The print is good and the directions clear, leaving plenty of scope for the free play of the creative impulse. Excellent."
+ Bookmark 9:163 Ap '50 50w

Reviewed by Millicent Taylor
Christian Science Monitor p6 Ap 29 '50 90w

Cleveland Open Shelf p12 My '50

"The value of this latest handicraft manual lies primarily in the selection of materials—all of which, except plaster of paris which is often unpredictable, are clean and mostly of the color, cut and paste variety."
+ Kirkus 18:133 Mr 1 '50 130w

"Heartily recommended." Mary Strang
+ Library J 75:703 Ap 15 '50 70w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 Jl 2 '50 60w

Sat R of Lit 33:41 My 13 '50 60w

Springf'd Republican p8C Mr 26 '50 60w

Wis Lib Bul 46:26 My '50

CARLYLE, JANE BAILLIE (WELSH) (MRS THOMAS CARLYLE). Jane Welsh Carlyle; a new selection of her letters; arranged by Trudy Bliss. 355p il $3 Macmillan
B or 92 Carlyle, Thomas 50-8086

A selection from the letters of Jane Welsh Carlyle, with some connecting comment by the editor. The letters have been edited from the manuscript letters, and some portions which were suppressed in earlier selections, have been restored. Chronology. Bibliography. Biographical index.

Booklist 46:352 Jl 15 '50

"Mrs. Carlyle's letters have been edited before, but Mrs. Bliss has gone back to the manuscripts, printing some letters that have not appeared before and restoring passages which earlier editors had cut. The result is a large and enthralling collection which serves to remind us that not all Englishwomen with a vivid gift for the pen have devoted themselves to the composition of fiction." Edward Wagenknecht
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Je 18 '50 450w

Christian Century 67:823 Jl 5 '50 350w

Reviewed by Ruth Chapin
Christian Science Monitor p6 Jl 15 '50 900w

"The picture [the editor] presents is undoubtedly a favourable likeness, yet it is a likeness, and the vigorous kindness, the genuine self-sacrificing devotion, above all the true passion for her husband which were integral parts of Mrs. Carlyle's character, emerge as they hardly would if we read letter after letter of remorseless criticism and nervous exasperation. Miss Bliss's arrangement is excellent and of absorbing interest as a human document." Elizabeth Jenkins
+ Manchester Guardian p4 Ja 20 '50 300w

"The attraction of this selection of Letters is that, with a bare minimum of necessary comment, we see her life, through Mrs. Carlyle's own eyes." V. S. Pritchett
+ New Statesman & Nation 39:134 F 4 '50 2100w

"Here is the best portrait in existence of one of the most fascinating and sensible women in English literary annals." G. F. Whicher
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 Jl 23 '50 500w

Reviewed by Frances Winwar
+ N Y Times p10 Jl 23 '50 450w

"Mrs. Bliss's choice of letters is a fine one, designed to make no special point except, perhaps, that being married to 'a dyspeptic man of genius' wasn't, in the long run, the unmitigated ordeal that some of Jane Welsh's admirers claim it was."
+ New Yorker 26:96 Je 24 '50 150w

Reviewed by James Gray
Sat R of Lit 33:15 Jl 8 '50 800w

"Mrs. Bliss's selection from the nine volumes of the correspondence, and her able and unobtrusive interpolations, will attract almost any reader to Jane Carlyle. The book has been produced out of love, and out of partisanship perhaps, for this talented woman, whose life was on the whole so wretched. One sees her world through her eyes—a very shrewd observer she was—and is tempted to accept her judgements. It is only occasionally that one remembers how disconcerting she must have been, how sharp of tongue, and how little given to the sparing of feelings. But everything must be forgiven her, one may well conclude, because she was so alive. And alive she is on every page of this book." J. M. Cohen
+ Spec 184:154 F 3 '50 650w

Time 56:82 Jl 3 '50 700w

CARLYLE, THOMAS. Letters to William Graham; ed. by John Graham, jr. 106p il $2.50 Princeton univ. press
B or 92 Graham, William. Authors—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 50-5233

"Contains some two dozen hitherto unpublished Carlyle letters written between 1820 and 1849 to William Graham, a retired Glasgow merchant who lived near Ecclefechan, an esteemed, older friend." Nation

"The letters are talkative, largely concerned with parochial matters, and pleasant to dip into. If they tell us nothing new about Carlyle, they do give a picture of his early literary career and of life at Ecclefechan and Craigenputtock. Their lightness and sometimes even their gaiety will come as a surprise to those who are familiar only with the fulminations of the Chelsea sage."

CARLYLE, THOMAS—Continued

+ Nation 170:456 My 13 '50 90w

"The editor, a great-grandson of Peter Graham, has provided notes and a somewhat wordy introduction. While the letters do not contribute substantially to our knowledge of Carlyle, their triviality gives them charm and interest." Granville Hicks

N Y Times p24 Je 11 '50 450w

New Yorker 26:124 Mr 18 '50 140w

"Carlyle was a young man of 25 when he formed the friendship with Graham, just turned 50; and yet in this lively series of 17 letters the sage of Chelsea has already assumed the magisterial air. The letters, not previously published, do not seem to shed any important light on Carlyle's life or thought, but they will doubtless interest students and specialists." G. S.

San Francisco Chronicle p18 Mr 12 '50 70w

"His style in these private letters is as strident and preachy as in his public writings. He is preeminently the man whose style was of himself, and all his writings are shot through with it. The letters are neatly edited and illustrated with drawings by a collateral descendant of their recipient." Robert Halsband

Sat R of Lit 33:21 Je 3 '50 180w

CARMAN, ERNEST DAY. Soviet imperialism; Russia's drive toward world domination. 175p $3.25 Public affairs press

327.47 Russia—Territorial expansion. Russia—Foreign relations 50-7719

"This result of author's work at Graduate Institute of International Studies at Geneva traces Soviet's attempts of territorial aggrandizement from 1939-49. Makes full use of sources uncovered by war such as Documents From Archives of the German Foreign Office. Written in rather dry, almost diplomatic language Carman presents a factual, but just for that reason even more alarming picture of the relentless Russian drive for expansion on all frontiers and on all occasions." (Library J) Bibliography. No index.

"E. Day Carman, offers a compact survey of the successful and abortive outward thrusts of Soviet expansion since 1939, together with a brief but useful analysis of the various techniques which have been applied in effectuating and justifying the extensions of Soviet rule or domination. Without going deeply into the ideological and political background of Soviet expansion, it offers a generally sound and unpretentious review, country by country, of recent Soviet ambitions. It relies heavily on Nazi-Soviet Relations 1939-1941, on Byrnes and Sherwood, and makes relatively little use of direct Soviet materials. In covering such a complex subject, in which the record shows very many blanks, some mistakes are inevitable." P. E. Mosely

+ — Am Pol Sci R 44:795 S '50 380w

"The most useful available survey of this march of Soviet imperialism. Yet Carman's treatment is characterized by one glaring deficiency. Although his references are good, the author has obviously made hardly any attempt to use the growing body of documentary material illuminating all the areas of the strategy and techniques of Soviet Russia's relentless expansion program." J. S. Roucek

+ — Ann Am Acad 270:155 Jl '50 320w

Reviewed by Ernest Pisko

Christian Science Monitor p14 Jl 18 '50 700w

"No volume is more useful than Carman's in telling of the march of USSR 'toward world domination,' from the shores of the Baltic to China and the Near East. What is regrettable is that Carman takes up such 'delicate' topics as Yalta, Potsdam, the Baltic coups—and nowhere does he utilize the 'inside' stories which have recently become available to us on the details of these unhappy conferences. But, possibly Carman's scope was limited to start with. And his description of Soviet territorial aggrandizements between 1939 and 1949 is the best factual information available to us at the moment." J. S. Roucek

+ — Commonweal 52:277 Je 23 '50 180w

Current Hist 19:166 S '50 20w

Foreign Affairs 29:156 O '50 30w

"Recommended for larger public and educational libraries." H. H. Bernt

+ Library J 75:975 Je 1 '50 110w

Reviewed by J. C. Adams

N Y Times p14 Jl 9 '50 450w

"It should prove of value to the reader who is interested in making a well-grounded judgment of Russia's present-day imperialism." C. E. M.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p15 Je 18 '50 220w

Sat R of Lit 33:14 S 16 '50 320w

CARMER, CARL LAMSON. Windfall fiddle; il. by Arthur Conrad. 175p $2.50 Knopf

50-6753

Bob wanted a violin, so he and all his friends saved soap coupons, because the prize was to be a violin. When it arrived it was so poorly made that the family hastily burned it. The story describes Bob's summer of hard work to earn a good violin. The scene is a small New York town. For ages nine to twelve.

Booklist 46:291 My 15 '50

"Wholesome, exciting story."

+ Bookmark 9:187 My '50 40w

Reviewed by A. L. Shea

Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Je 11 '50 200w

"The story is laid in Carl Carmer's own beloved upstate New York and is rich in the local color of an earlier day. Some parents will reject it for the first chapter, in which Bob is the center of attraction because ill in bed; but once over this episode the story moves along in gay and normal fashion, and the unobtrusive lessons in it are worth a child's while. Suited to young readers of around 12 through 14."

Christian Science Monitor p6 Jl 29 '50 180w

Cleveland Open Shelf p23 D '50

"Windfall Fiddle is full of humor, human understanding and good writing." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 26:190 My '50 80w

"As a story it somehow does not hold a sense of pace, but it has regional values and reasonably good characterizations."

Kirkus 18:101 F 15 '50 150w

"Because fiddles do not appeal to the fifth-sixth-grade readers for whom this book is intended, some selling is needed. However, every youngster wants something intensely, and in that light the book can be pushed. The excellent writing, real characterization, and smoothly handled theme make it worth the effort. Girls will like the humorous twists, which enliven the slow story, but long descriptive passages and lack of excitement limit its attraction for boys." E. E. Beatty

+ — Library J 75:986 Je 1 '50 80w

"It is a 'period piece' of the 1890's, but so full of action and humor that modern boys will forget its actual date. . . This is the best book for children that Mr. Carmer has written. It gives a rich, full, boys'-eye picture of the adult world Bob knew, as do all the best boys' stories." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 My 7 '50 250w

"Carl Carmer has written this story out of his own boyhood memories of up-state New York. It is full of color of the period and the setting, but, better still, it is a story of people. And a grand crowd they are, too, individualistic, wise and humorous." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p22 My 28 '50 180w

New Yorker 26:182 D 2 '50 60w

"This is more than just a story. It is an extraordinarily clear and humorously-worded picture of a place and a time in the history of America. . . The drawings strengthen the impact of the place and the people. Not only boys will want this for their summer reading. It will be read with equal pleasure by 'their sisters and their cousins and their aunts.' "

+ Sat R of Lit 33:36 My 13 '50 270w

"All Mr. Carmer's amusing memories are integrated into a good tale. Bob is a very real boy whom other boys under twelve will enjoy. The adult characters are unusual, especially old Mr. Minette and his tall tales of Civil War times."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:288 S '50 80w
Wis Lib Bul 46:20 Je '50

CARNAC, CAROL, pseud. See Rivett, E. C.

CARNEY, THOMAS PATRICK. Laboratory fractional distillation. 259p $5.75 Macmillan
542.48 Distillation, Fractional 49-50227

"Fractional distillation is one of the most important laboratory techniques in both preparative and analytical chemistry. This is probably the only comprehensive treatment in book form. It discusses the theory, the more useful mathematical calculations, and the characteristics of various types of columns. It contains also extended discussions of how to construct columns, unusual types of columns, and accessory equipment. There are briefer discussions of the azeotropic extractive and molecular methods of distillation. The book is intended for graduate chemists engaged in laboratory work. There is a comprehensive bibliography." (Library J) Index.

"The chapters on constructing and testing columns are excellent, but in the latter the odor of petroleum can scarcely be ignored. . . A steroid chemist wondering how to separate cortisone from a synthetic brew would find neither suggestions nor encouragement, nor would he learn how to characterize his product if he were bold enough to try the method. In spite of such criticisms, the book makes a notable contribution to the chemist's working bookshelf. It will be most useful to those who are already familiar with the field, less so to the tyro or the expert. The index is adequate, the bibliography and suggestions for reading, excellent." K. C. D. Hickman
+ — Am Chem Soc J 72:3831 Ag '50 420w

"The book will serve a useful function as a manual for the laboratory worker, but will be of little interest to the chemical engineer or theorist." J. R. Bowman
Chem & Eng N 28:1068 Mr 27 '50 370w

"This is a major contribution to the chemist in his use of distillation equipment for the preparation of pure compounds and to the engineer who is designing distillation processes. It is almost a treatise on the laboratory aspects of the subject; and while no such book can be complete, the selection of material is excellent." D. F. Othmer
+ Chem Eng 57:262 Mr '50 500w

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 74:1912 D 15 '49 100w
N Y New Tech Bks 35:4 Ja '50

CARPENTER, JESSE THOMAS. Employers' associations and collective bargaining in New York city. 419p $4.50 Cornell univ. press
331.116 Employers' associations. Collective bargaining 50-8520

"The first five chapters are devoted to the pattern of New York City manufacturing, the development and organization of employers' associations, and union and employer attitudes toward group bargaining. Chapters VI-XIII deal with processes and problems of the actual collective negotiations, attention being given throughout to the relations among employers in the associations and, to a lesser extent, to the problems of union strategy. A final chapter presents the author's conclusions, which emphasize the advisability of maintaining appropriate diversity in individual plants within the general pattern negotiated for the industry." (U S Quarterly Bkl) Bibliography. Index.

"The layman may find the central portions of the book technical despite the readability of the book, but he will obtain much of the essence by reading the first and final chapters. An excellent appendix, bibliography, index, and topical table of contents will aid the general reader in locating particular aspects of interest to him." H. A. Bone
+ Ann Am Acad 272:238 N '50 500w

"The author seeks a varied readership among the practitioners of collective bargaining as well as professional scholars. His rather broad aim accounts for some disparity in coverage and style from one section to another."
U S Quarterly Bkl 6:356 S '50 240w

CARPENTER, PAUL SIMONS. Music, an art and a business. 245p $3.75 Univ. of Okla. press
780.65 Music—U.S. 50-6219

"[The author], dean of the College of Fine Arts of the University of Oklahoma, died on Jan. 4, 1949, leaving the manuscript for this book completed. He had gathered material for it in 1945 during a leave made possible by a grant from the Rockefeller Foundation. . . Mr. Carpenter was disturbed that in music, as in other fields, we had become a nation of spectators and auditors. He was annoyed by the fetish of perfection, which was concerned chiefly with giving music brighter and brighter packaging. . . His book takes lusty whacks at the radio, movies, record makers, Petrillo and the Musicians' Union; ASCAP, the society that protects performing rights, and at a faulty approach to education in music. . . A major theme that runs through this book is that the American composer does not get a fair treatment in the nation's concert life." (N Y Times) Bibliography. Index.

"This is a book significant for the sharply critical sense found in the best of America's writing. It crystallizes and orients the 'something is wrong' feeling of those who sincerely wish America to be a musical nation, and it should be pressed, gently but firmly, into the hands of all those who least think they need it." K. G. Roy
+ Christian Science Monitor p6 Ap 22 '50 1350w

"Recommended for all libraries." George Hanson
+ Library J 75:697 Ap 15 '50 180w

"On the whole, Paul Carpenter seems to this reviewer to have been too pessimistic in his outlook. He grinds his axe too hard and his criticisms seem too harsh. . . Further, Dean Carpenter seems to have expected too much altruistic endeavor from interests which are frankly commercial. . . In spite of the disagreements noted, this reviewer found Paul S. Carpenter's book most interesting and enjoyable. The fact that the author wrote so well contributed a great deal to this enjoyment, and it is indeed to be regretted that his untimely death last year has stilled his pen forever." Harold Spivacke
+ — Music Lib Assn Notes 7:467 Je '50 1450w

"It should be emphasized that Mr. Carpenter had a strong antipathy for the cliques that did not attempt to communicate to their audience. Mr. Carpenter's book does not name names in this context, which is unfortunate, because you cannot disagree with him, except in general. The fact remains that music which seemed to him to come out of a vacuum and to be ugly and repellent might very well turn out in time to be quite acceptable to people like him and to a large audience. There is no question, however, that Mr. Carpenter was on the right track in his contention that commercialism tends to cheapen artistic standards. It is a pity he did not live to carry on the good fight." Howard Taubman
+ — N Y Times p10 Mr 5 '50 470w

"The title of the book by the late dean of the College of the Fine Arts at the University of Oklahoma arouses interest. . . His death about a year ago rather inhibits discussion of it, for the contribution a critic may make to clarification of the author's future thinking is, in this case, obviously futile. . . Actually, it is impossible to discuss the ideas of this book because there is a presupposition in every sentence." Irving Kolodin

CARPENTER, P. S.—Continued
Sat R of Lit 33:32 Ap 1 '50 800w

CARR, ALBERT H. Z. Truman, Stalin and peace. 256p $2.75 Doubleday
940.55 World politics 50-9622

The author draws upon hitherto undisclosed facts to present his view of the cold war. He tells an "inside story" of how the world crisis developed, and the historic roles played in it by Roosevelt, Truman, Churchill, Stalin, Byrnes, Marshall, Acheson, Molotov, Donald Nelson, Averell Harriman, Chiang Kai-shek, General MacArthur, General Clay, and others. No index.

Booklist 47:113 N 15 '50

Reviewed by W. H. Chamberlin
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 S 24 '50 600w

"A sane and positive estimate of the cold war, causes and possible remedies."
+ Kirkus 18:539 S 1 '50 300w

Reviewed by Reinhold Niebuhr
Nation 171:368 O 21 '50 950w

"The book is not primarily an 'inside story.' It represents the author's independent and coherent opinions upon the drift of events over the last half decade, from the first fissures in allied unity to the open fighting in Korea. Compact and well written, it is necessarily sketchy and in many portions over-simplified; yet compared to many of the recent volumes on foreign policy, with their overtones of omniscience, and doom, this one disarms by its very unpretentiousness." August Heckscher
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 S 17 '50 750w

"This book is a not unfamiliar blend of hard thinking and naïveté." E. D. Canham
+ — N Y Times p10 S 10 '50 900w

San Francisco Chronicle p27 D 3 '50 700w

Springf'd Republican p5D S 10 '50 450w

CARR, EDWARD HALLETT. Studies in revolution. 227p $2 Macmillan
335 Revolutions. Communism. Socialism [50-9029]

A collection of essays most of which originally appeared as articles in the Literary Supplement of the (London) Times. They are by-products of the author's work on the history of Soviet Russia now in process. Contents: Saint-Simon: the precursor; The Communist Manifesto; Proudhon: Robinson Crusoe of socialism; Herzen: an intellectual revolutionary; Lassalle meets Bismarck; Some nineteenth-century Russian thinkers; Plekhanov: father of Russian Marxism; The cradle of Bolshevism; Lenin: the master builder; Sorel: philosopher of syndicalism; Mr. Gallacher and the CPGB; The revolution that failed; Stalin: (1) the road to power; Stalin: (2) the dialectics of Stalinism.

Reviewed by F. H. Underhill
Canadian Forum 30:139 S '50 350w

Current Hist 19:229 O '50 50w

Foreign Affairs 29:147 O '50 20w

"Professor Carr is deeply committed to the proposition that Marxism, both in theory and in practice, is a rational activity, to be comprehended by the cool exercise of reason. His new collection of essays demonstrates afresh the advantages, and the defects, of Mr. Carr's philosophic approach. . . To write about evil with detachment is to be on the side of evil. Hence Mr. Carr, with his cool reason, arrived before the war at conclusions favourable to Hitler: and now arrives at conclusions favourable to Stalin." A. J. P. T.
Manchester Guardian p4 Je 13 '50 440w

Reviewed by Isaac Deutscher
Nation 171:346 O 14 '50 1750w

Reviewed by R. H. S. Crossman
New Statesman & Nation 40:211 Ag 19 '50 900w

"The essays are pleasing in their succinctness and in the easeful erudition of their author. He studies hard and masters his subject before he starts writing—a habit not quite universal among those who love to write. This makes the more unfortunate a disposition to play down the savage features of the police state into which bolshevism developed. . . This propaganda reticence is especially regrettable in Mr. Carr because of his rare gift, when his mind is free, for lighting up the essentials in a person or a situation. His little essay on George Sorel—like himself a mild, quiet-hearted bourgeois with a vicarious taste for revolutionary violence—is a masterpiece in this genre. One closes the book with a sigh that so careful a scholar should be swayed in any degree by temporary pressures." Max Eastman
+ — N Y Times p12 Ag 27 '50 700w

"Although somewhat uneven in significance and inspiration, all are written in the author's fluent and forthright style. The work will serve as a pleasing but sketchy primer on the march of European revolutionary theory in the last century and a half." G. B.
+ Sat R of Lit 33:36 Ag 19 '50 290w

Reviewed by D. W. Brogan
Spec 184:58 Jl 14 '50 800w

Times [London] Lit Sup p477 Ag 4 '50 3600w

CARR, JOHN DICKSON (CARTER DICKSON, pseud). Bride of Newgate. 308p $3 Harper 50-6752

Historical novel of England in 1815. Dick Darwent, a condemned felon, marries Lady Caroline Ross, one hour before he is to die. Lady Caroline wanted a marriage in name only to preserve her inheritance, and Dick wanted the fifty pounds she offered to leave to his mistress. But owing to his cousins' deaths at the battle of Waterloo Dick becomes Marquess of Darwent and is saved just in time. The long battle which ensues between the ex-felon and his unwilling-to-willing wife completes the story.

Booklist 46:261 Ap 15 '50

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun p5 Ap 21 '50 130w

"Fast and entertaining reading. . . There is an abundance of accurate detail on the social life of London at the time of Bonaparte's final defeat, when the laws of etiquet were regarded as more binding than the laws of parliament. And there is continuous action and suspense. 'The Bride of Newgate' is good for a solid evening of light entertainment." A. F. Otis
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ap 16 '50 400w

"Most superior."
+ Kirkus 18:78 F 1 '50 90w

Reviewed by Ralph Partridge
New Statesman & Nation 40:522 N 25 '50 60w

"The Regency period seems to provoke novels of a certain genre. . . It's rather surprising to find that accomplished mystery writer and historian, John Dickson Carr joining the ranks of these Regency novelists. Not that he doesn't keep up with the best of them. But whereas in other fields of writing he has always defied formula, he seems to have followed the most cut and dried of formulas in this newest historical novel."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 Jl 23 '50 270w

Reviewed by Richard Match
N Y Times p23 Ap 9 '50 200w

"Despite Mr. Carr's prodigious research and accurate descriptions concerning London at the beginning of the nineteenth century his characters and backgrounds remain wholly incidental to the mystery puzzle he has so ingeniously invented. Only one question leads the reader to the final pages of his book, 'Who is the murderer of Lord Orford?'" J. M. G.

Sat R of Lit 33:32 Je 3 '50 270w

Wis Lib Bul 46:22 My '50

CARR, JOHN DICKSON (CARTER DICKSON, pseud). Night at the Mocking Widow. 277p $2.50 Morrow

50-7949

Detective story.

Kirkus 18:220 Ap 1 '50 70w

"Sir Henry—the 'Old Man'—gets coyer and more schoolboyish with each case, but Carter Dickson's novels remain intelligent, polished mystery yarns."
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 Ag 20 '50 180w

N Y Times p11 Jl 2 '50 80w

New Yorker 26:99 Je 24 '50 90w

"Sir Henry is back in England and back in his old form. Thank you, Mr. Dickson." E. D. Doyle
+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 My 28 '50 150w

"First rate."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:42 Je 17 '50 30w

"This is not Carter Dickson at his best, unfortunately, for the plot is sloppy and the Old Man is turned into a burlesque." D. F. M.
— Springf'd Republican p8B Jl 30 '50 90w

Wis Lib Bul 46:29 Je '50

CARREL, ALEXIS. Voyage to Lourdes; pref. by Charles A. Lindbergh; tr. from the French by Virgilia Peterson. 52p $1 Harper

231.73 Lourdes 50-6402

The text of this little book was found among the unpublished papers of Dr Carrel, after his death. It is a brief record, in fiction form, of a trip to Lourdes which he took in 1903, as an independent medical observer. In it is the account of the cure of a young girl who had been pronounced dying of tubercular peritonitis.

Cath World 171:319 Jl '50 100w

"It is a slim volume, but it portrays more graphically than any pious treatise could, the existence of a higher Verity beyond the reach of slide-rule or retort." L. J. Trese
+ Commonweal 52:131 My 12 '50 460w

Kirkus 18:84 F 1 '50 110w

"Highly recommended." R. P. Breaden
+ Library J 75:396 Mr 1 '50 160w

Reviewed by Harry Sylvester
N Y Times p18 Mr 26 '50 420w

Reviewed by J. W. Bogan
Springf'd Republican p5C My 28 '50 170w

"As a piece of writing it is certainly worth reading. The style is straightforward, objective, a trifle naive, slightly reminiscent—perhaps owing to similar French influences—of the early work of Mr. Somerset Maugham. The incidentals of the pilgrimage and the intense emotional atmosphere are vividly conveyed."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p401 Je 30 '50 350w

CARRINGTON, CHARLES EDMUND. British overseas; exploits of a nation of shopkeepers. 1092p il maps $9 Cambridge

942 Great Britain—Colonies, dominions, etc. Voyages and travels [50-9409]

A history of the expansion of the British empire from the earliest known voyages to the 1940's. Maps. Portraits. Index.

"As a reference book Mr. Carrington's work is invaluable. As a thought-provoking picture it is of vital interest at the present moment." Leila Flower
+ Christian Science Monitor p18 N 14 '50 650w

"For all libraries that can afford it." E. F. Walbridge
+ Library J 75:1177 Jl '50 130w

"This is an excellent book, and easily the best history of the British Commonwealth that we have: securely founded on the Cambridge History of the British Empire and on recent research that supplements it; well planned and arranged; illustrated, mapped, and indexed with care. Its high price is fully justified." Jack Simmons
+ Manchester Guardian p4 S 22 '50 370w

"It is a big book in every sense of the term, illustrated with portraits and many maps, and, since the division of subjects on the plan of an encyclopaedia has been avoided, the narrative flows smoothly from chapter to chapter. . . Trifling errors in dates (Shepheard's Hotel in Cairo dates from 1841 not 1844) and in names (The Blackwell Clippers are impishly transformed into the Blackball Clippers) are of no account in a work of such solid worth. More open to criticism are some of the author's judgments on men of great accomplishment."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p511 Ag 18 '50 1550w

CARROLL, CURT, pseud. Golden herd. 249p $3 Morrow

50-9267

The romance of Carl Miller, son of a German who migrated to Texas in the 1840's, and Julia Allerby, niece of a wealthy plantation owner. The Civil War brought hard times to the cotton planters of Texas, so Carl converted the Allerby cotton plantation to a cattle ranch. But it was a long time before his conquest of Julia was successful.

Booklist 47:40 S 15 '50

"For those who choose a real, rather than a completely fictional, West."
+ Kirkus 18:341 Je 15 '50 200w

"A readable story but one which lacks completeness, for in spite of its dependence on political events, the author fails to provide a convincing picture of life in Texas during those turbulent years." J. E. Brown
Library J 75:1410 S 1 '50 130w

"In 1844 fourteen German princelings met on the Rhine to plan the establishment of a German state deep in the heart of Texas. Starvation and thirst, Comanche raids, Utopian intransigeance, finally Confederate guns, took their toll of the German colony that was set up at New Braunfels. Had he cared to, 'The Golden Herd's' author might have written an interesting novel about this little-known chapter of frontier history. However, this episode figures only briefly in his book—which is basically the old, old tale of the cowboy and the lady." Richard Match
N Y Times p11 S 3 '50 180w

"A vivid and colorful story of the birth and early flowering of the cattle industry in the great Southwest." D. F. M.
+ Springf'd Republican p6D O 8 '50 190w

CARROLL, MRS GLADYS (HASTY). Christmas without Johnny. 230p $2.50 Macmillan

50-10362

A Christmas story about shy sensitive nine-year-old Johnny. Because he had more mind than muscle Johnny was something of a misfit until an understanding school superintendent met him and gave him just the help he needed.

Booklist 47:2; 96 S 1 '50; N 1 '50

"It is a beautiful, delicately told story, with as fine a message as 'A Christmas Carol.' Recommended for both children and adults." Olive Carruthers
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 D 10 '50 450w

"Through the medium of a rather heartbreaking little story, Gladys Hasty Carroll has made a sound contribution to the cause of parent and teacher education. Perhaps such was not her intent, but no amount of theory could be more potent than this story."

CARROLL, GLADYS—Continued
+ Kirkus 18:487 Ag 15 '50 210w

"A welcome perennial on Christmas reading lists." F. A. Boyle
+ Library J 75:1406 S 1 '50 80w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 O 29 '50 130w

Reviewed by Nancie Matthews
+ N Y Times p50 N 12 '50 290w

San Francisco Chronicle p24 D 3 '50 100w

Reviewed by Christine Govan
Sat R of Lit 33:62 D 2 '50 470w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal
+ Springf'd Republican p30A D 17 '50 270w

Wis Lib Bul 46:17 N '50

CARROLL, RUTH (ROBINSON) (MRS LATROBE CARROLL). Where's the bunny? [il. by the author]. [28p] $2 Oxford 50-9115

Picture book for ages two to six. It shows the stages in a game of hide-and-seek between a little rabbit and a puppy.

Booklist 47:46 S 15 '50

"The pre-school child will laugh aloud at this story of a playful bunny and a perplexed puppy." Marcia Winn
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 N 12 '50 40w

Christian Science Monitor p7 N 11 '50 90w

Horn Bk 26:369 S '50 30w

"Although this is listed in the picture-book section, it can be used with pre-school through second graders, for the running text is simplified for beginning readers."
+ Kirkus 18:412 Ag 1 '50 90w

"A completely absorbing and satisfying preschool picture book." F. W. Butler
+ Library J 75:1513 S 15 '50 60w

"Delightful baby's first picture book." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p28 O 8 '50 90w

"Very young children are going to have a wonderful time with this picture story. . . Probably the reason for this book's strong visual appeal lies in the fact that it was planned for and tested by children in a school for the deaf and dumb." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p13 S 3 '50 110w

"An ingratiating picture tale of a puppy and a bunny."
+ New Yorker 26:173 D 2 '50 40w

"Like all Ruth Carroll's books, this has an irresistible humor."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:52 O 21 '50 40w

CARSE, ADAM VON AHN. The orchestra from Beethoven to Berlioz; a history of the orchestra in the first half of the 19th century, and of the development of orchestral baton-conducting. 514p il $7.50 Broude bros, 56 W. 45th st, N.Y. 19

785.09 Orchestras. Conducting (music)
[49-2416]

"The present book is a continuation of its author's The Orchestra in the 18th Century (1940) and it covers roughly the first half of the nineteenth century. It deals in great detail with everything that concerns the orchestra and orchestral playing, from seating arrangements and the printing of scores to the gradual emergence during this period of the conductor and the new art of conducting. Most interesting of all is the thorough description of orchestral playing and orchestral conditions in each of the main musical centres of the time. France, Germany and England each has a chapter to itself and a fourth is devoted to Vienna, Italy and the rest of Europe." Times [London] Lit Sup

"Essential to most music collections." C. K. Miller
+ Library J 75:2153 D 15 '50 70w

"To follow Mr. Carse through his descriptions of early nineteenth-century orchestras is to delight in the skill, freshness, and humour with which he has pursued a long and arduous path. . . The book's many illustrations are excellent." G. A. H.
+ Manchester Guardian p3 Ja 18 '49 200w

"I have nothing but praise for this fascinating and useful book, and can be captious only about the fact that its title really gives no clue to the volume's character. . . A splendid presentation of long-needed material!" R. F. Goldman
+ Music Lib Assn Notes 7:281 Mr '50 800w

"The book I can only describe as astonishing. Mr. Carse knows everything worth knowing about the orchestras of the early nineteenth century, and he has put it all down, simply and beautifully, between the covers of one volume." C. B. Farrell
+ Nation 170:283 Mr 25 '50 750w

New Repub 123:21 D 18 '50 30w

Reviewed by Desmond Shawe-Taylor
New Statesman & Nation 38:19 Jl 2 '49 480w

"Mr. Carse has made a close study of all the chief European orchestras during the period, and enlivens his book with details of the characteristics and careers of a vast number of individual players. The appearance of the art of conducting proper (as opposed to mere time-beating), the careers and idiosyncrasies of early conductors, the printing and distribution of orchestral music and the development of the various instruments are all dealt with in detail and with abundant reference to contemporary documents, so that the book is both a first-class work of reference and at the same time readable as a general study." Martin Cooper
+ Spec 181:878 D 31 '48 360w

"The book is not only a work of reference indispensable to any student of the musical period, but also a repository of shrewd reflections and amusing or illuminating anecdote."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p6 Ja 1 '49 800w

CARSWELL, JOHN. Romantic rogue; being the singular life and adventures of Rudolph Eric Raspe, creator of Baron Munchausen [Eng title: Prospector]. 277p il $4 Dutton

B or 92 Raspe, Rudolf Erich

"The first full-length biography in English of the creator of the preposterous Baron. Rudolf Erich Raspe, ex-professor of mineralogy and antiquity, scorned to acknowledge this creature of his bold imagination and thus presented posterity with a pretty bibliographical puzzle. In [The Romantic Rogue] Mr. Carswell sets out to discover why a book which has been a steady best-seller of the past 150 years came to be written in a Cornish copper mine by a middle-aged German geologist." (Times [London] Lit Sup) Bibliography. Index.

"Mr. John Carswell, who edited the definitive edition of 'Baron Munchausen's Travels' a few years ago, has followed it up with a witty and illuminating life of its none-too-respectable author, Rudolf Erich Raspe."
+ Christian Science Monitor p9 D 2 '50 380w

"A first-class study of an able eccentric, written in a flexible and incisive style, which should fill the author's parents—both well-known writers, especially Catherine Carswell—with pride." E. F. Walbridge
+ Library J 75:2075 D 1 '50 140w

Reviewed by Paul Bloomfield
Manchester Guardian p4 O 13 '50 320w

Reviewed by V. S. Pritchett
New Statesman & Nation 40:508 N 25 '50 1100w

"The historians of today have a mandate to clarify modern history by raising science and technology to a more commanding role among the forces that shaped our culture. Mr Carswell has recovered a missing stone for the new structure, a small stone it is true, but accurately laid and expertly polished. At the same time he has created, with wit and sympathy and a quick eye for significant details, a fine fluent biography." Geoffrey Bruun

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 N 19 '50 650w

"It seems to this reviewer that in writing his scholarly and historical study, Carswell neglected an important and even more fascinating aspect of his subject: the story of the true hero, Baron Munchausen himself. . . It is to be hoped that Mr. Carswell, who has already plunged so deeply into the period, will some day give us the tragic story of the real Baron Munchausen." Rene Fuelope-Miller
N Y Times p40 D 3 '50 800w

"The volume is at once a chronological and analytical account of Raspe and his work, and at the same time a colorful panorama of Europe in the years when the odd genius moved and wrote. . . Raspe was, as the author puts it, 'a sport of history.' It is because Mr. Carswell shows him as such, rascality and all, and makes the portrait convincing, just as the portrait of the Eighteenth Century itself is convincing, that this is the good book it is." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 N 28 '50 900w

"Raspe's progress from scholarship to crime and expiation makes a fascinating story, admirably told both as a human drama and as a piece of social history."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p658 O 20 '50 1100w

CARTER, MRS GERMAINE. Home book of French cookery; with a foreword by T. C. Rapp. 278p $2.95 Doubleday
641.5 Cookery, French 50-7248

"Popular French recipes assembled by the author during a five-years wartime internment. Both English and French names are given." (Cleveland Open Shelf) There is an English and French index.

Cleveland Open Shelf p18 O '50

"There seem great gaps of omission, if viewed as a rounded book on cooking, but as a supplement to add that special touch of French sauces, French methods, etc. it has an imaginative though not an inspired quality. The directions are clear if one has basic knowledge."
+ — Kirkus 18:158 Mr 1 '50 100w

Reviewed by K. T. Willis
Library J 75:2152 D 15 '50 50w

"We have been eating well these days—to be precise, ever since this French cookbook came into the house. Trying out its recipes, in order to sit in judgment, resulted in one success after another." Mary Poore
+ N Y Times p24 My 28 '50 190w

CARTER, HODDING. Southern legacy. 186p $3 La. state univ. press
917.5 South 50-5209

"This liberal, southern newspaperman attempts an explanation, not a defense, of certain legacies—attitudes and traditions of the South. The reaction to minority groups other than the Negro; the traditions influencing the South's attitudes on Ku Klux Klan, on 'white supremacy,' 'poor whites,' religion, 'taking the law into one's own hand' and so on—all these are scrutinized." (Library J) No index.

Reviewed by E. F. Frazier
Am J Soc 56:289 N '50 440w

Am Soc R 15:325 Ap '50 200w

Reviewed by V. O. Key
Ann Am Acad 270:160 Jl '50 300w

Booklist 46:198 F 15 '50

Bookmark 9:155 Ap '50 50w

Reviewed by Walter Johnson
Chicago Sun p5 Mr 2 '50 500w

"Restating the ideas which he has spoken before in magazine articles and editorials . . . Hodding Carter here contributes nothing new to the social and political problems of the South." Kelsey Guilfoil
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 F 5 '50 650w

Christian Century 67:499 Ap 19 '50 280w

"Every southerner who judges the South must walk a tightrope. He must defend and praise with one hand while he points to faults with another. It is a difficult rope to walk, but Mr. Hodding Carter walks it adeptly. . . [The] autobiographical approach gives his report anecdotal interest, makes it easy to read, roots his book in instance. The northern reader can only pray that there is more hope in the picture than Mr. Carter finds there, more light there than this intelligent southerner sees." Horace Reynolds
+ Christian Science Monitor p16 F 20 '50 750w

"It is excellently done."
+ Current Hist 18:166 Mr '50 70w

"This is a book that needed to be written—and ought to be read by Northerners and Southerners alike. For here, in terms that even the most prejudiced should acknowledge as objective and fair, the Southern case is presented, judiciously, critically, but sympathetically—by a Southerner devoted to his own corner of the world."
+ Kirkus 17:670 D 1 '49 410w

"Mr. Carter 'hits the nail on the head' in spotting the shortcomings, in explaining the attitudes, and in anticipating the opponents' criticism. This is a highly readable, unembittered, sincere attempt to discuss the South and no person professing concern for our nation's present or future state of democracy should fail to read it." E. P. Nichols
+ Library J 74:1457 O 1 '49 180w

Reviewed by Helen Fuller
New Repub 122:20 Mr 20 '50 650w

"Practically everything that Mr. Carter has to say in 'Southern Legacy' on how the South got that way has been said before. Even the anecdotes and family portraits are recognizable. . . But the composition of the picture is different. Never was the story told so representatively, Mr. Carter being who and what he is. Those who know the South of today may attest that here is the authentic feeling of the progressive Southerner who remains a Southerner in most of what this means of emotion and conditioning." Tarleton Collier
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 F 12 '50 1000w

"In 'Southern Legacy' Mr. Carter tries hard not to offend his fellow-Southerners. Actually, he makes out rather a poor case for the South. The level of its people's intelligence is not so low as he implies, their interest is not so constricted, their imagination not so dull, their conscience not so numb. In his efforts to say cheerily that all, or practically all, is well with the South, if only the North would leave it alone, he inadvertently paints a portrait of the middle-class group that is devastating: pompous, self-satisfied, stupidly blind to human need, unaware of the intellectual currents sweeping across the earth. . . What I miss most in this book is an awareness of the tragedy of our way of life. . . However, in the last chapter I felt him wavering. A small doubt crawled across his mind as he wrote it, whispering that perhaps rejection by one's fellow-men cannot be compensated for by bread or even a book and a ballot. If that doubt continues, it will be good news indeed, for a changing South desperately needs its newspaper editors to change with it." Lillian Smith
N Y Times p3 F 5 '50 1050w

"To the thoughtful reader of this book, the South can never again be as much of a contradiction as it may have seemed before. That is Mr. Carter's achievement, and it is a significant one." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ja 26 '50 900w

"Excluding historical and biographical contributions, I can think of no previous book on the South which so carefully hews to the line

CARTER, HODDING—Continued
of truth, avoiding all save that for which the author personally may vouch. It is an account of the experience of a very human, clear-seeing, wise, courageous scholar and reporter in singularly plain terms. He relates much of it to human beings and their lives. More than any other person who has written on the 'why' of the South, I believe he has come closest to an answer which can be understood and accepted as true and reasonable by all save the unreasonable." Ralph McGill

+ Sat R of Lit 33:11 F 4 '50 900w

"Pulitzer prize winner and journalist, Hodding Carter, writes simply but effectively, albeit entertainingly with here and there a touch of humor. The book is directed toward the general reader for a better understanding of the South and its place in the Nation, but no student of regionalism or folk sociology should overlook it." Katharine Jocher

+ Social Forces 29:219 D '50 330w

"The elaboration of his thesis is done in a light and friendly way, but is nonetheless impressive and rather sobering. It should be required reading for contemporary politicians, including those from Missouri." R. F. H.

+ Springf'd Republican p8C Mr 5 '50 330w

Reviewed by Josephine Tucker
Survey 86:273 My '50 450w

Times [London] Lit Sup p520 Ag 18 '50 1450w

Wis Lib Bul 46:25 F '50

CARTER, JOHN FRANKLIN (JAY FRANKLIN, pseud). Champagne Charlie. 190p $2.50 Duell

50-8845

Charles Hoskins, an unemployed veteran, suddenly acquires a valuable asset: he can will alcoholic beverages into existence. From that point his life becomes one series of adventures. When he is threatened with disaster unless he places his gift at the disposal of the Soviets, Charlie makes an important discovery.

Booklist 47:12 S 1 '50

Kirkus 18:314 Je 1 '50 130w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p25 O 29 '50 140w

"This will do all right for hot-weather reading, for an evening—as the publishers suggest —when a light and easy book and a highball seem indicated." J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p16 Jl 20 '50 600w

CARTER, ROY, and others. Pump questions and answers. 346p il $5 McGraw

621.64 Pumping machinery 49-48586

"Covering the construction, application, operation, installation, maintenance, and troubles of centrifugal, reciprocating, regenerative, rotary, and vertical turbine pumps." (Subtitle) Index.

"The book has a fair number of illustrations and a good index. It is of interest mainly to operating engineers whose work includes the selection and maintenance of pumps." R. R. Hawkins

+ Library J 75:109 Ja 15 '50 100w

N Y New Tech Bks 34:102 N '49

CARTER, MRS WINIFRED. Dr Johnson's dear mistress. 319p $3 Philosophical lib.

Piozzi, Mrs Hester Lynch (Salusbury) Thrale—Fiction

[50-26947]

A novel based on the life of Mrs Hester Thrale, who later became Mrs Piozzi. The story stresses her cleverness, and her friendships with Dr Johnson, Garrick, Goldsmith, and others.

"To those unacquainted with the England of Johnson's day and those seeking a glimpse of the manners of the intellectuals of that time, this book will prove interesting. Less interesting will it be as the story of a woman whom affection eludes for half a lifetime." M. G. Checrallah

Library J 75:1397 S 1 '50 110w

Nation 171:320 O 7 '50 50w

"It is hard to conceive of a more inept book than this superficial and fussy treatment." Robert Halsband

— Sat R of Lit 33:29 N 18 '50 270w

"A leisurely-paced but rewarding book." R. F. H.

+ Springf'd Republican p12C S 17 '50 100w

CARVILLE, THEODORE ELLSWORTH MAGUIRE. Fractional horsepower motor maintenance. [217p] $3.75 Int. textbook

621.313 Electric motors 50-5074

"A practical and useful book on the theory, care, and repair of small motors. . . It is designed for electricians and other persons who are engaged in repair and servicing of small motors or who are preparing to engage in such work. It will be helpful also to home mechanics who do their own repairing. A considerable part of the material which is included has been taken over from smaller texts previously issued by the same company." N Y New Tech Bks

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 75:324 F 15 '50 110w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:20 Mr '50

Wis Lib Bul 46:18 Mr '50

CARY, JOYCE. Fearful joy. 343p $3 Harper

50-14742

The story of a woman's life from birth to old age, as well as a picture of the England in which she lived. It begins in the Victorian age, and ends in the present days of socialism. During that time Tabitha goes thru periods of squalor, to wealth as the wife of a war profiteer, and back again to poverty. And always, thru fifty years, there is Dick Bonser, the charming rascal who first seduced her.

Booklist 47:75 O 15 '50

Bookmark 10:32 N '50 60w

Reviewed by Mary Sandrock
Cath World 172:232 D '50 210w

"'The Fearful Joy,' though not altogether joyful in its overtones, does provide a good picture of both the individuality of Tabitha and the collective personality of her times. This is an accomplishment calling for ability of the first rank—which is exactly what Joyce Cary has." Emmett Dedmon

+ Chicago Sun p5 O 10 '50 300w

Reviewed by Milton Crane
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 O 22 '50 500w

"Cary is a restless, hurried writer. You can't settle down quietly with one of his books. The restive urgency which causes him to choose the present tense for this narrative prevents calm reading. A furious gallop is not a restful gait. But it's fun." Horace Reynolds
Christian Science Monitor p10 O 21 '50 1050w

Cleveland Open Shelf p20 O '50

"Mr. Cary has fashioned a warm and honest story. Tabitha's adventures may be as numerous as those of a serial heroine, but she herself does not see beyond the daily concerns of humoring her family, her son's perpetual colds, and the peccadilloes of her granddaughter. . . There is humor and insight in A Fearful Joy, and skilful description." C. H. Weiss

+ Commonweal 53:75 O 27 '50 1250w

"A wild and woolly tale, full of fun, characters who talk your ears off, and Cary's enormous wide open views on art and life. Evenly and well turned, this is for his audience."

+ Kirkus 18:435 Ag 1 '50 160w

"Story has the usual Cary warmth, charm and high humor, enhanced by Cary's excellent writing. Recommended." Anne Whitmore
+ Library J 75:1406 S 1 '50 90w

"As there must be in everything Mr. Cary writes, there are fine things in 'A Fearful Joy.' . . But in [this book] there is also a thinness, as if he had spread too little character and story over too many years and too many pages. And then, no matter how adroit his transitions or how short the chapters (there are 130 of them), the half-century march seems to move very slowly indeed." J. K. Hutchins
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p29 O 8 '50 800w

"The line from a book like 'Moll Flanders' to a book like 'A Fearful Joy' is so peculiarly direct that one might almost infer an intentional connection. . . It drives through all social levels, and its characters include rogues, scoundrels, prostitutes, and shopgirls; professional, literary, and academic types; industrialists great and small, politicians high and low, the gentry, the nobility. The book is as much the history of her times as it is of Tabitha herself, and we should judge it, perhaps, as we judge Defoe's books, as social revelation in a fictional guise, rather than as the finest novelistic art." Mark Schorer
+ — N Y Times p1 O 8 '50 1100w

New Yorker 26:133 O 21 '50 90w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p20 O 31 '50 750w

Reviewed by Harrison Smith
Sat R of Lit 33:23 O 7 '50 850w

Time 56:102 O 16 '50 950w

CARY, JOYCE. Horse's mouth. 311p $3 Harper
50-5264

Another novel about Gulley Jimson, the earthy painter who has appeared in others of the author's books. Gulley, just out of prison, makes friends with a young would-be artist; renews his acquaintance with his old friend Sara Monday; finds himself a patron; and lives for a while in a rather magnificent spot. The scene is London.

"A laughing, scampish novel about a London artist too old to pay his way in Bohemia." Edward Weeks
Atlantic 185:81 F '50 430w

Booklist 46:113; 172 D 1 '49; Ja 15 '50

Bookmark 9:135 Mr '50 60w

"The resulting novel, richly larded with talk and incidents of pseudo-Dickensian dissolute Londoners, is an entertaining hodgepodge. That is, if the reader does not get bored by the sexagenarian's talkative failure to reach the age of reason." Mary Sandrock
+ — Cath World 170:474 Mr '50 260w

"This is one of the few novels which make even a book critic swear that life is good, for rarely are delight and pathos mixed in such a proper proportion." Emmett Dedmon
+ Chicago Sun p4S F 2 '50 600w

Reviewed by Fanny Butcher
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ja 29 '50 600w

"Joyce Cary's work has originality and enthusiasm (his hero is an artist who every day can get as excited over the sky as if he had never seen it before). It has descriptive power: Cokey's hand is small, 'but it feels like hot marbles'; Alabaster, the art 'cricket,' walks 'like the front legs of a French pug.' The book is large hearted, and large sized, a book in which you can stretch your body and mind. Innocent of plot as 'Tristram Shandy' and laced with quotations from Blake, it has wisdom and the healthy earthiness of all truly humorous work in the Chaucer-Cervantes tradition. It has something else implicit in that tradition. Beneath all the fun and frolic, the satire and romp, lies true appreciation for what is preciously individual in every man. Gulley is a symbol as well as a scamp. Anglo-Irishman Cary is a philosopher as well as a storyteller." Horace Reynolds
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 F 2 '50 850w

"One of the most exciting and rightly written novels I've read in many moons. . . William Blake, 'Rantipole Billy' as Gulley affectionately calls him, hovers over the entire book. Even the smaller fry are motivated by his 'Wood of Self-Murderers;' tree-trunks alive with betrayed faces, branches filled with ravening birds of prey, and the wood itself entombing irretrievably the innocent wanderer. Yes, The Horse's Mouth is an event—not only in literature, but in roistering, fallible, disgusting, endearing humanity." Elizabeth Johnson
+ Commonweal 51:514 F 17 '50 700w

"Excellent, spirited writing, this very much alive account of Gulley Jimson has depth and humor and intelligence, but is not everyone's dish of tea."
+ Kirkus 17:407 Ag 1 '49 170w

"His story is inspired, hilarious, alive and somewhat bawdy. It's an impressive job of portraiture and wonderful entertainment. Cary's style is rich in metaphor, humor, and imagination; so rich, that it is best perhaps in small quantities." Anne Whitmore
+ Library J 74:1753 N 15 '49 80w

"The Horse's Mouth is the record—funny, rambling, close-packed with epigrammatic wisdom and an artist's observations of changing lights and shadows—of the last years of Gulley Jimson, painter and practicing anarchist. Told in the first person, it stands very well by itself, although it is even more impressive if read as the conclusion to the trilogy of which 'Herself Surprised' and 'To Be a Pilgrim' are the earlier parts." Ernest Jones
+ Nation 170:184 F 25 '50 1000w

"In energy of word and invention I doubt if any living novelist can touch Mr. Cary; and having started late, he may yet surpass himself. The Horse's Mouth is very nearly, in a Jamesian way of speaking, all there." G. W. Stonier
+ New Statesman & Nation 36:551 D 18 '48 380w

"Mr. Cary's particular gift is to make all these strange antics seem logical. Jimson is never out of character, and the incessant, often highly colored flow of words which pours from him has a sort of sustained grandeur and point as well as charm." Iris Barry
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 Ja 29 '50 700w

"Of the two kinds of English comic novel—the mulled ale and the vinegar—Joyce Cary's belongs with the warm and the spiced. That is important enough now that the two wars and the ruin of the spacious civilization of great country houses have soured most of English comedy. But what is more important, Cary's 'The Horse's Mouth' is the best thing of its kind America has imported in forty years." Donald Barr
+ N Y Times p1 Ja 29 '50 1550w

"It is difficult to decide which element is the most praiseworthy in this novel, or whether it is satire, comedy, or farcical tragedy. But it will live as the portrait of an artist in his old age. Certainly its lusty exuberance, its humor, depth of wisdom, and wealth of language, make it one of the most remarkable and readable novels to appear for many a season. It is astonishing that it has been neglected by American publishers for more than five years." Harrison Smith
+ Sat R of Lit 33:9 Ja 28 '50 850w

Reviewed by L. S. Munn
Springf'd Republican p8D Ap 2 '50 470w

Reviewed by Harry Hansen
Survey 86:156 Mr '50 120w

Time 55:87 F 6 '50 800w

Wis Lib Bul p24 Mr '50

Reviewed by Paul Pickrel
Yale R n s 39:575 spring '50 100w

CASEY, ROBERT JOSEPH. Texas border, and some borderliners; a chronicle and a guide. 440p il $5 Bobbs
917.64 Texas—History. Texas—Description and travel 50-7201

Anecdotal history of the Texas border country. There are stories of pioneers, adventurers,

CASEY, R. J.—Continued
rangers, outlaws, bad men and women, too, all based on research, and narrated in fiction form. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:301 Je 1 '50

"It's unpredictable, unconventional and doesn't seem to follow any particular pattern. You can start anywhere in it and read forward or back. Whichever way, you're certain to be highly entertained." E. S. Watson
+ Chicago Sun p5 My 3 '50 550w

"Whether he is reporting his travels, describing war experiences, or, simply spinning yarns about people he's met as a Chicago newspaper reporter, Bob Casey is one of the ablest story tellers at work today. . . 'The Texas Border—and Some Borderliners' is the best Casey yet, in the opinion of this fervent Casey fan." Lloyd Wendt
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 Ap 30 '50 410w

"He discovers little if anything that has not been told before, but he does bring it all together in one breezy picture—cockeyed in spots, perhaps, but full of the Casey vigor and the inherently salty and fragrant nature of the subject matter. . . Mr. Casey is careless in many places. What he says about San Antonio, and it is highly favorable, is justified except that Texas gourmets can hardly subscribe to his praise of the restaurants of that wonderful city. The truth is that they are uniformly bad, and all the charming atmosphere in the world can't make them anything else." Stanley Walker
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 Ap 16 '50 700w

"A skillful blending of history and legend, biography and folklore, travel and statistics. That all of this becomes pure entertainment is a tribute to Mr. Casey's whimsical, ironically humorous and still factual style."
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 My 8 '50 1150w

CASEY, ROBERT JOSEPH, and DOUGLAS WILLIAM ARCHER SHOLTO. World's biggest doers; the story of the Lions [ed, Arthur Brogue]. 307p il $3 Wilcox & Follett

650.621 Lions international 49-49168

Story of the founding, growth, and achievements of Lions International. "Casey and Douglas explain the necessity for service organizations to foster the spirit of international relationships, to promote the theory and principles of good government, and to take an active part in the civic, commercial, social and moral welfare of each city, town and community." (Springf'd Republican) Index.

Reviewed by L. T. Heron
Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 Ja 8 '50 110w

"A well written and interesting story. . . Mr. Casey, a former Chicago reporter, is an outstanding feature writer and Mr. Douglas is a well-known war correspondent who has made a brilliant career as a journalist." S. W. Cronk
+ Springf'd Republican p3D Ja 22 '50 190w

CASPARY, VERA. The weeping and the laughter. 301p $3 Little

50-8522

Another psychological mystery story by the author of Laura, this probes for the reasons which led Emmy Arkwright to attempted suicide—or was it attempted murder?

Chicago Sun p12 Ag 8 '50 200w

Reviewed by Olive Carruthers
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Jl 16 '50 390w

"The book is an arraignment of many things in a brittle society that struggles too hard for superficialities. It is honest in its psychology; honest, to, in leaving the conclusion a little in the air; and is eminently easy reading."
+ Christian Science Monitor p6 Ag 12 '50 130w

Kirkus 18:266 My 1 '50 190w

"An inconsequential story for rental collections." H. R. Forbes
— Library J 75:979 Je 1 '50 80w

"As usual Miss Caspary does the brand of special detection which has raised her thrillers to the level of distinction. As in her previous books, she makes full use of her psychiatric understanding, reveals a core of hard modern philosophy and an explicit knowledge of the world in which her characters move and breathe." Isabelle Mallet
+ N Y Times p4 Jl 16 '50 260w

Reviewed by Josephine Lawrence
Sat R of Lit 33:16 Ag 5 '50 650w

Wis Lib Bul 46:20 Jl '50

CASSELMAN, PAUL HUBERT. Labor dictionary. 554p $7.50 Philosophical lib.

331.03 Labor and laboring classes—Dictionaries 50-5122

"Subtitled 'A Concise Encyclopaedia of Labor Information,' this reference book, compiled by a Professor of Industrial Relations at the University of Ottawa, contains 2,461 entries, including 1,652 definitions of terms, 27 biographies, 107 mentions of labor agencies and other bodies, 192 abbreviations, 447 cross-reference titles and thirty-six miscellaneous items. Labor leaders such as Philip Murray and John L. Lewis receive adequate mention within the compiler's frame of reference. The volume has been prepared mainly for American and Canadian users." N Y Times

Am Soc R 15:324 Ap '50 100w

Booklist 46:346 Jl 15 '50

"Prof. Casselman, who teaches industrial relations at the University of Ottawa, has done a useful job of original research and compilation in assembling 2,461 terms, names and abbreviations that appear in labor news and literature. The work is notably free of bias." L. T. Heron
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p9 F 19 '50 90w

Current Hist 18:166 Mr '50 70w

"Very useful." J. E. Cross
+ Library J 75:175 F 1 '50 150w

Reviewed by Roger Pippett
N Y Times p29 Ja 29 '50 110w

"This book may settle some personal arguments but will hardly, as is hoped on the dust jacket, make any deep contribution toward industrial peace. . . To those actively engaged in labor relations it is an interesting record of the word usage which they have developed." P. T.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p19 F 5 '50 110w

Sat R of Lit 33:30 Je 3 '50 290w

School & Society 71:63 Ja 28 '50 20w

CASSILL, R. V. Eagle on the coin. 346p $3 Random house

50-9546

"Andrew Cameron accepts a college teaching job in a small parochial community and finds himself embroiled in an explosive situation when he tries to help elect a Negro to the local school board. The effort fails when Tom Kettle, local saloon keeper, and leader of the liberal faction, allows himself to become entangled in an unfortunate sexual episode with two carnival roustabouts." Library J

"The book is a powerful statement of what ails democracy at its grass roots, but it is not a preachment. Its characters are drawn skillfully—and straight from life. The action will hold lower-case democrats and smug racists alike right through the final one word sentence." Charles Roberts
+ Chicago Sun p7 O 1 '50 200w

Reviewed by Edmund Fuller
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 O 29 '50 400w

"The book is sober, retarded by long arguments; it ventures on a distasteful topic with restraint. Honest in that it remains inconclusive, it is made more baffling than need be by the divided purpose."

Christian Science Monitor p14 O 7 '50 240w

"Cameron is a modern anti-hero, but his stature is not great enough; and although there is both sincerity and care here, the story suffers from the weakness of its central character, the many problems which are projected without solution."
Kirkus 18:396 Jl 15 '50 180w

"The author never succeeds in bringing his characters to life and the result is a dull and unconvincing novel." R. H. McDonough
— Library J 75:1290 Ag '50 70w

"A thoughtful novel in which Mr. Cassill writes with perception about the tangled motives in individual character and the open and submerged currents of fear, bigotry, idealism and ambition in the life of an industrial town. The extent to which he has delved into the subjective aspects of so-called social issues is both the strength and weakness of the book. On the one hand, it gives the story a validity that is lacking in attempts to deal with social issues in propaganda terms or clearcut lines of black and white. On the other, the author's interest in the intricacies of his characters sometimes leads him into digressions that slow down, even confuse, the narrative." Mary Ross
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 S 24 '50 600w

Reviewed by Lylah Barber
N Y Times p50 N 12 '50 230w

"Unfortunately, after [a] propitious start Mr. Cassill loses his footing."
— + New Yorker 26:120 S 23 '50 120w

"It has become the fashion of late to drag in Freudianism, Communism, and homosexualism into our novels as often as not when they would have been best omitted. This novel in particular suffers from their intrusion. . . All of which is a pity, because the novelist is not without writing skill and storytelling ability, which he might have turned to better advantage if he could have eliminated modern superfluities which are in such great danger of becoming formulas." John Cournos
— + Sat R of Lit 33:33 S 30 '50 270w

CASSIRER, ERNST. Problem of knowledge; philosophy, science and history since Hegel; tr. by William H. Woglom and Charles W. Hendel; with a pref. by Charles W. Hendel. 334p $5 Yale univ. press

121 Knowledge, Theory of 50-7218

"William Woglom and Charles Hendel have translated a manuscript which Prof. Cassirer prepared in 1940 when he was teaching at Gothenburg University. . . The author planned this volume as the sequel to studies, published in 1906, 1908 and 1920, in which he had discussed the problem of knowledge in earlier modern philosophy and science. . . Each of the three parts of the book, dealing respectively with mathematics, biology and history, could be considered a book in itself." (Christian Century) "This volume is the fourth, and concluding, book of the great work entitled Das Erkenntnisproblem—The Problem of Knowledge in Modern Philosophy and Science—which Cassirer began almost fifty years ago." Indexes.

"As is often the case with posthumous publications, this volume has some loose ends. The subtitle, for example, is 'Philosophy, Science, and History since Hegel'; the contents would be more accurately described as 'Mathematics and Physics, Biology and History in the 19th Century.' The translators are to be congratulated, however, on the production of a smooth, readable English text." W. A. R. Leys
+ Christian Century 67:706 Je 7 '50 1050w

"This book is a translation from the German of an unpublished manuscript discovered by Professor Cassirer's widow. There is about it an aura of non-completion; certainly the author's conclusions strike the reader as brief and fragmentary. But the main parts of the book, with their brilliant surveys of a century of efforts in geometry, theoretical physics, biology, and the forms and tendencies of historical knowledge, are fully rounded and eminently satisfying. . . As it stands, this work is an incentive to further study of interrelation." Martin Ebon
+ — Christian Science Monitor p14 Jl 28 '50 480w

"The layman and the professional philosopher, the professional scientist and the professional historian are all bound to profit immensely by a study of this work, the ripe fruit of a lifelong devotion to a rational penetration into the greatest intellectual mysteries of the human mind." David Baumgardt
+ Hibbert J 49:85 O '50 2000w

"A learned, scholarly inspection of the principles of the separate sciences and an attempt to explain how they handle primary principles."
+ Kirkus 18:126 F 15 '50 140w

"Written in the incredibly brief period of three months, in 1939, the superb perspective and assured authority of exposition attest to a lifelong study and reflection of which this is the harvest. Not only the brevity of the period of composition but the fact that it was accomplished by a refugee in Sweden while Belgium, Holland, France, Denmark and neighboring Norway were being overrun, evidences the exquisite serenity and poise of this philosophic master. . . Cassirer must by his foresight surely have recognized that this book could be read independently of the preceding volumes. Indeed, though it is to be hoped that the earlier three volumes will now be translated into English, this book is not only independent of them but may be recommended to readers unacquainted with Cassirer's philosophico-historical method as an admirable introduction to his work, and to all students of the subject as a uniquely valuable contribution to the philosophy of science and historiography." James Gutmann
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 Jl 2 '50 1150w

"Cassirer is at his best in making intellectual personalities come to life. His special heroes here are Felix Klein, Hertz, Darwin, Ranke, Mommsen and Burckhardt. His sketches of the mind and thought of these towering figures are quite unsurpassed. In Cassirer they have met a historian of equal genius." J. H. Randall
+ N Y Times p27 S 10 '50 750w

"The reason that this book will be almost impossible for those who have learned philosophy from textbooks is that Cassirer was a great creative historian. He has seen more deeply into the men and movements of the past hundred years than any writer of textbook philosophy. Those who come to this book with the semidigested opinions of the usual historian of philosophy will find only the names familiar. The rest will be incisively different." J. R. Everett
+ Sat R of Lit 33:18 Ag 19 '50 600w
School & Society 72:47 Jl 15 '50 40w
Times [London] Lit Sup p752 N 24 '50 1150w
U S Quarterly Bkl 6:291 S '50 290w

CASTOR, HENRY. Year of the Spaniard, a novel of 1898. 274p $3 Doubleday

50-5538

Historical novel of the Spanish-American war. It covers the year 1898 in the lives of two Philadephia college friends: Caleb Hawkins, a wealthy Quaker playboy; and Warren Spangler, a reporter. In Cuba Caleb serves in the Rough Riders and Warren follows his chosen work, and meets and admires Stephen Crane.

Booklist 46:286 My 15 '50

"A sparkling, sophisticated re-creation of the period and its leading personalities. For the adult reader."
+ Bookmark 9:135 Mr '50 50w

Reviewed by Jack Griffin
Chicago Sun p21 Mr 26 '50 160w
Christian Science Monitor p7 F 25 '50 300w

CASTOR, HENRY—Continued

"This has more pace [and] vitality than the earlier book [The Spanglers (1948)] a gallery of lustier characters."

Kirkus 17:658 D 1 '49 130w

"Sound construction, convincing characterization and lively narration add up to a superior work in the field of historical fiction." E. P. Nichols

+ Library J 75:171 F 1 '50 100w

"Salt, sensibility and sentiment in balanced parts are the ingredients of Mr. Castor's tale. . . If anything were needed to argue the central conviction of Mr. Castor's odd novel, it would be satisfied by the readiness with which one accepts its unquestioning end." E. B. Davis

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 F 5 '50 600w

"In days to come a hundred historical novelists can—and doubtless will—retell the Rough Rider story, but I don't think any of them is going to reproduce Mr. Castor's wholly delightful serving of genial irreverence, only-yesterday nostalgia and plain undated fun. . . It's highly irregular, of course, but Henry Castor treats sex as a laughing matter. In fact, this is the first historical novel in years that I've laughed with instead of at." Richard Match

+ N Y Times p4 F 5 '50 360w

"Mr. Castor, well as he pictures the horrors of mismanagement, both in Florida and Cuba, excellently as he gives you the feel of bullets and blood in the Cuban jungle, does something else. His Warren Spangler is, to the life, the young man of the turn of the century." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 F 2 '50 800w

"I hoped for a rich experience in picking up a book based on a subject so infrequently chosen. Instead I was hounded on a cross-country race with no rewarding impressions of the ground covered." M. F. Wickham

— Sat R of Lit 33:31 Ap 22 '50 340w

CATHER, WILLA SIBERT. Writings from Willa Cather's campus years; ed. by James R. Shively. 142p $2.75 Univ. of Neb.

818 50-6537

"The editor of the book . . . has dug up everything Miss Cather wrote for the college periodicals while she was at the University of Nebraska from 1890 to 1895. He has added to this material a little of the theatrical comment she did for the Nebraska Journal in Lincoln. . . Mr. Shively also wrote to classmates and other alumni of Miss Cather's time asking what they remembered about her. Many replied, and their letters are included in this book." San Francisco Chronicle

Booklist 46:259 Ap 15 '50

"Much of the material in this book is excellent stuff for anybody to have written and really amazing for a girl undergraduate of the '90s. It is true that some of it roams uncharacteristically afield. . . Yet several of Miss Cather's mature themes and attitudes are already here, and the lovely, limpid style is already in a fair way to be developed. . . In the last section of this slim, valuable, and beautifully made book, a number of Miss Cather's college contemporaries give their impressions of her personality. These people generally write very badly, some of them almost senselessly." Edward Wagenknecht

+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p13 Ap 23 '50 400w

Kirkus 18:164 Mr 1 '50 130w

"A useful memoir, and a collection of early compositions of Miss Cather which, of limited interest in themselves, will be of considerable significance to admirers and students of her work." H. W. Hart

+ Library J 75:494 Mr 15 '50 110w

"If this collection of Willa Cather's undergraduate writing and dramatic criticism for a local newspaper was worth public presentation—and I believe it is—then certainly more adequate background and biographical notes, more filling in of what the cultural climate was in the Mid-West of the nineties, what breezes came from the Columbia World's Fair in Chicago, what the theater circuits brought to prairie towns might well have been packed in by the editor. Still, as is, the collection gives its picture of a sturdy young woman, rooted deep in grateful soil, pioneering backward in time and nowhere bounded by trivial campus politics and beaucatching, moving into the world of poetry and history, in revolt against prettiness, concerned with passion." Ernestine Evans

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Ag 6 '50 550w

"The college stories and sketches are youthful work, of course. Some are embarrassingly bad. . . Others show the seeds of her future work. . . The verse is run-of-the-mill for college age as of that still more or less romantic time. . . Of considerably wider interest is the first-hand picture the reader will get of the young Miss Cather from classmates' letters. . . Altogether, limited in area as it is, Mr. Shively's book is a contribution to the general knowledge of Willa Cather, whose life, because she was a significant American writer, is of interest to many." J. H. Jackson

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p22 Mr 22 '50 850w

"These selections are uniformly undistinguished and give little indication—no matter how much one would like to find it—of Willa Cather's later literary powers. What can be said at most is that her academic and home training in the classics and the Bible is reflected in the style of all her writings. . . Of somewhat greater interest is a collection of letters in the same volume written by several of Willa Cather's schoolmates in answer to queries sent out by Mr. Shively. From these letters emerges a biographical composite of the author during her campus years." Siegfried Mandel

Sat R of Lit 33:33 S 2 '50 250w

CAVANNA, BETTY, pseud. See Headley, E. C.

CERF, BENNETT ALFRED. Laughter incorporated; the cream of the recent crop of stories and anecdotes, harvested, assorted, and prepared for market; with il. by Paul Galdone. 191p $1.50 Garden City pub. co.

817 Humor 50-10708

The sixth collection of humorous stories, puns, and anecdotes, gathered and retold by this author. "Now and then he tosses off paragraphs of comment—on what women think is funny, on quips that circulate secretly behind the Iron Curtain, or practical jokes far from amusing to the victims." (N Y Herald Tribune Bk R)

Booklist 47:153 D 15 '50

"I found several tales in this book worth adding to my own repertoire, and I must tell Mr. Cerf, confidentially, that I probably won't mention the source. I'm sure he won't mind, for I can't think of any new jokes I have run across in the last five years which haven't originally appeared in one of his collections or in his Trade Winds column in the Saturday Review of Literature, or will appear. When you hear a good story, just credit Bennett Cerf." Kelsey Guilfoil

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 N 19 '50 500w

"Stag party anecdotes have been revamped so that the whole family can enjoy them without blushing. One credited to Sinclair Lewis has been discreetly edited in this fashion. Mr. Cerf is an artful dodger, favoring stories that are not too long and not too broad."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 D 10 '50 260w

"The jokes are not all, the author admits, original; but, looking at the thing ethnologically, what joke is?. . Anyhow, Mr. Cerf has culled these from friends, many of them luminaries, and from press agents. He has edited them with a sure hand, cleaned one or two of them up, changed a punch line here and there, and arranged them in an informal, topical way." Rex Lardner

+ N Y Times p4 N 19 '50 600w

Reviewed by Bernard Kalb

Sat R of Lit 33:32 D 16 '50 130w

CERVANTES SAAVEDRA, MIGUEL DE. Three exemplary novels; tr. by Samuel Putnam; il. by Luis Quintanilla. 232p $5 Viking 50-10034

Three novellas of Cervantes, translated by Samuel Putnam shortly before his death last year. They are: Rinconete and Cortadillo; Man of Glass; and The Colloquy of the Dogs.

"By general critical consent, the ones chosen by Mr. Putnam for this beautiful companion volume to his 'Don Quixote' are among the best of those written by Cervantes, which were collected and first published at Madrid in 1613." J. A. Clark
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 O 29 '50 410w

+ Kirkus 18:370 Jl 1 '50 170w

"Putnam has done a splendid job, equal in meticulous scholarship to his recent Don Quixote, and students of Cervantes are indebted to him. . . Limited to but important for Cervantes' students." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 75:1406 S 1 '50 170w

Reviewed by B. D. Wolfe
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p22 D 3 '50 600w

"The richness of detail, the sun on the road, the streets and inns, the landscapes and interiors, the mellow portraits and genial self-portraiture bring the scene unforgettably to life. Some of Cervantes' many vivid pictures are attractively and appropriately caught in Luis Quintanilla's illustrations. Text and format combine to make this volume one of the season's most welcome gifts and most fortunate omens." Harry Levin
+ N Y Times p5 O 22 '50 650w

"As Mr. Putnam's previous rendering of 'Don Quixote' showed, Cervantes needs only a fine translation to be as modern as any writer of our time, and these three resonant tales remain pretty 'exemplary' today."
+ New Yorker 26:187 N 18 '50 140w

"The liveliness of Mr. Putnam's translations gives these stories a surprising freshness, and the high quality of his work brings a new sadness at the thought of his untimely death so soon after the publication of his 'Don Quixote.'" Herschel Brickell
+ Sat R of Lit 33:12 O 28 '50 850w

CEZANNE, PAUL. Cézanne; with an introd. and notes by Adrian Stokes. 24p il $1.95 Pitman

759.4 Paintings, French

A brief introduction, followed by ten plates illustrating Cezanne in different types of work, with a facing page of notes.

Booklist 46:263 Ap 15 '50

Kirkus 18:130 F 15 '50 20w

Reviewed by L. R. Sander
Sat R of Lit 33:45 Mr 4 '50 80w

CHAFFIN, NORA CAMPBELL. Trinity college, 1839-1892; the beginnings of Duke university. 584p il $5 Duke univ. press

378 Duke university, Durham, North Carolina. Trinity college 50-6403

"The story of Trinity College—since 1924, Duke University—is in a large sense the history of higher education in the South. Founded as Brown's Schoolhouse at the start of the nineteenth century, it became Union Institute (a private academy) in 1839, and by 1851 it had changed to Normal College, a state-affiliated training school for teachers. Eight years later the teacher-training institution became Trinity College, a liberal arts school under the direction of the Methodist Church. . . Through the detailed reporting of Dr. Nora Chaffin, formerly at Duke but now in the History Department of Vanderbilt University, we see that the men who made the college possible were 'rugged, God-fearing, and quick to respond to the demands of contemporary society.'" (N Y Times) Bibliography. Index.

"The customary mechanisms of scholarship have been employed with the full vigor and diplomacy which mark the mature historian. The bibliography and documentation of the study have been subjected to thoughtful review. It is, I believe, a significant work in American educational history. Let us hope there will be others in this field." R. D. Mosier
+ Am Hist R 56:227 O '50 320w

"It is too bad that the story stops with the removal of Trinity to Durham in 1892. The story of present-day Trinity, with its top-notch educational program, is another episode in the history of higher education well worth telling." Benjamin Fine
N Y Times p29 Ap 2 '50 450w

CHALLIS, GEORGE, pseud. Firebrand. 245p $2.50 Harper
50-1204

Adventure story laid in Renaissance Italy.

Kirkus 17:675 D 15 '49 140w

"George Challis's novel somewhat resembles an abattoir, with skulls cloven 'like cheese.' . . The cutlery includes the Turkish scimitar, Hungarian saber, Toledo blade, English broadsword, lance, dagger and spear, but Tizzo's favorite is a well-honed woodsman's ax. Not a subtle weapon, of course, but this is not a subtle story."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 Mr 5 '50 130w

Reviewed by Richard Match
N Y Times p6 Mr 5 '50 320w

"Coincidences abound, improbabilities are the order of the day; but the story sweeps along at such a pace that these discrepancies in verisimilitude do not at all disturb the reader." J. C.
Sat R of Lit 33:35 Mr 25 '50 270w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal
Springf'd Republican p8C Ap 30 '50 120w

Wis Lib Bul 46:22 My '50

CHALMERS, MRS AUDREY. High Smoke; il. by [the author]. 224p $2.50 Viking 50-10297

Story of a lonely little nine-year-old whose mother and stepfather were theatrical people. Deborah's only toy was a small replica of the farm home of her grandfather and grandmother, called High Smoke. How Deborah, High Smoke, and later grandmother brought happiness to a lot of people makes this story for grades 4 to 7.

Booklist 47:140 D 1 '50

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton
Christian Science Monitor p10 N 13 '50 60w

"Mrs. Chalmers has proved that she can write a good story as well as make picture books."
+ Horn Bk 26:471 N '50 90w

"A pleasant, sentimental story, heavy with coincidence."
Kirkus 18:515 S 1 '50 160w

"Characterizations are slight; episodes, especially in the country, are conventional; plot is too neatly worked out to be convincing. Generally wishy-washy." E. E. Beatty
— Library J 75:2081 D 1 '50 80w

CHAMBERLIN, WILLIAM HENRY. America's second crusade. 372p $3.75 Regnery

940.532 World war, 1939-1945—Diplomatic history. World war, 1939-1945—U.S.
50-10082

"A description of the reasons the United States went into World War II, this volume points out that we gained nothing and lost a great deal. In large part an attack on the foreign policy of Roosevelt and his advisers, much of the book is reminiscent of the isolationist thinking of the 1920's and 1930's." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 47:73 O 15 '50

CHAMBERLIN, W. H.—Continued
"Since the majority, even of those who never believed what Roosevelt told them, ceased to oppose or question his policies after Pearl Harbor, only those who have the courage to face the truth, abandon illusions, and admit their mistakes in order to save something out of the wreckage of the world's hope will appreciate this lucid, profound, and extremely interesting book." Freda Utley
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 O 15 '50 1050w

Reviewed by Ernest Pisko
Christian Science Monitor p14 O 30 '50 850w

"The facts that are revealed by this book, and their resolute exposition by the author, afford the only possible intellectual safeguard against our becoming involved in the third crusade which we are now approaching with ominous speed. It is this consideration that makes the fate of Revisionism the supreme intellectual, moral, and political issue of the midcentury." H. E. Barnes
+ Current Hist 19:352 D '50 2200w
Kirkus 18:575 S 15 '50 180w

"Parts of the book are well documented, but there is sometimes too much reliance placed on statements by 'well-informed' but un-named officials. There is much to think about here, but the book should not be read without also reading such volumes as Hull's Memoirs, Rauch's From Munich to Pearl Harbor, and others." Donald Wasson
Library J 75:1825 O 15 '50 120w

Reviewed by August Heckscher
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 O 15 '50 850w

Reviewed by S. F. Bemis
N Y Times p34 O 15 '50 900w

"To anyone who had to endure over a number of years the daily dose of Virgilio Gayda or Dr. Goebbels, it comes as a shock to find Mr. Chamberlin ladling out the same dish." J. M. Minifie
— Sat R of Lit 33:20 N 18 '50 700w

CHAMBERS, MERRITT MADISON, ed. Universities of the world outside U. S. A. 924p $12 Am. council on educ.

378 Colleges and universities 50-5321

"In an emerging 'one world' where interchange of students, professors, and educators is encouraged by UNESCO, the ERA, and the Fullbright Act, the specific queries about admission requirements, housing, degrees, student aid, and other features are on the rise. In addition to the 'descriptive' material which surpasses the Minerva and similar works both in extent of information and in clarity, the book provides an overview of comparative educational systems for each nation." Library J

"Excellent bibliographies and statistical information abound. A must for the library's reference collection." Nathaniel Stewart
+ Library J 75:399 Mr 1 '50 130w

"A really unique contribution." W. W. Brickman
+ School & Society 71:325 My 27 '50 500w

"The volume is easy to use as a work of reference—presumably its chief purpose. It is also the only world survey of education that exists, and as such has a value and a fascination for all teachers."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:255 Je '50 200w

CHAMBERS, MERRITT MADISON, and EXTON, ELAINE. Youth—key to America's future; an annotated bibliography. 117p $2 Am. council on educ.

016.3 Youth—Bibliography 49-9941

"Listing of recent books, pamphlets, and magazine articles, written for and about young people; topics covered include education, employment, leisure, family life, religion, rural youth, and military service." Survey

Booklist 46:220 Mr 1 '50

"A splendid bibliographical introduction to the sociological aspect of adolescence." W. W. Brickman
+ School & Society 70:441 D 31 '49 20w
Survey 86:46 Ja '50 30w

CHAMPION, PAUL V. Games you can make and play. 128p il $2.50 Bruce pub.

790 Games. Woodwork 50-7074

Twenty-eight games which can be made in a short time, and with the simplest sort of tools, are described in this book. Some of the games included are: Shuffleboard; Pin bail; Dart archery; Indoor horseshoes; Table tennis; French solitaire; Chess; Checkers.

Booklist 46:271 My 1 '50

"Excellent for recreation leaders with limited funds, or for home use." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 75:778 My 1 '50 40w

CHANDLER, CAROLINE AUGUSTA. Famous men of medicine. 140p il $2.50 Dodd

926.1 Medicine—Biography—Juvenile literature 50-6172

Brief biographical sketches written primarily for young people. Contents: Hippocrates, father of medicine; Galen, father of physiology; Arabian and early monastic medicine, Arabian doctors and patron saints; Vesalius, father of anatomy; Paré, father of surgery; William Harvey, discoverer of the circulation of the blood; Edward Jenner, father of vaccination; Elizabeth Blackwell, first woman doctor; Rudolf Virchow, father of pathology; Louis Pasteur, father of bacteriology; Joseph Lister, pioneer in antisepsis; William Osler, the great physician; Walter Reed, conqueror of yellow fever; Sigmund Freud, father of psychoanalysis; Harvey Cushing, pioneer in brain surgery; Alice Hamilton, explorer of dangerous trades; Hans Zinsser, warrior against microbes; The new frontiers, the golden age of medicine. Index.

Booklist 46:237 Mr 15 '50

"This story of medicine from the days of Hippocrates to the present offers a concise and inspiring introduction to any adolescent who likes to be informed." A. L. Shea
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Ag 6 '50 200w

"References and quotations from science and philosophy make this more difficult reading than earlier volumes in 'Famous Biographies for Young People' series. Recommended for high school." Virginia Haviland
+ Library J 75:704 Ap 15 '50 90w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Jl 9 '50 170w

"These biographical sketches, compiled by a poet and a doctor, vary in worth, depending upon sources and factual material. A somewhat uneven effect results, human details and anecdotes being available in unequal portions. Used for reference, however, the individual sketches furnish readable information frequently demanded by the courses of study." Irene Smith
+ — N Y Times p16 Jl 30 '50 130w

Reviewed by Eleanor Breed
San Francisco Chronicle p3 N 12 '50 100w

"It should be an important book for the older boys and girls who are interested in medicine as a profession."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:44 My 13 '50 100w
Wis Lib Bul 46:28 Ap '50

CHANDLER, MRS JOSEPHINE CRAVEN. Romance of the rose. 46p il $1.50 Branford

635.93337 Roses

A brief study of the rose in history. It sketches the story of the men and women who were responsible for its rising importance, and the place of the rose in symbolism, ceremonials, and the arts.

"This exquisitely produced and charmingly written essay on roses will not help you grow them but it may very well make you want to." D. D.

+ N Y Times p33 Mr 26 '50 130w

"A delightful little book for rose lovers." Ethel Dexter

+ Springf'd Republican p8C Mr 5 '50 190w

CHANDLER, RAYMOND. Simple art of murder. 533p $3.50 Houghton

50-9802

An omnibus volume containing twelve tales of mystery and detection, and one essay, entitled The Simple Art of Murder.

Atlantic 186:102 N '50 120w

Chicago Sun p5 O 10 '50 70w

Kirkus 18:372 Jl 1 '50 170w

"It is possible to agree that the first detective stories of the tough variety had a power and freshness which won them a great many followers. Now however both power and freshness have been so swallowed by formula, that Mr. Chandler's brand of fiction is likely to be no more arresting than the drawing room style of deduction which he so much deplores."

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p27 O 22 '50 260w

"It is an admirable collection. Mr. Chandler will do even better when he discovers that you cannot create an American language merely by butchering the English language." J. D. Carr

+ N Y Times p36 S 24 '50 1250w

New Yorker 26:107 S 30 '50 80w

"You can't ask for anything better in the brisk-violence school. Philip Marlowe appears in some, equally tough but less familiar operatives in others." L. G. Offord

+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 O 8 '50 100w

Springf'd Republican p4D O 22 '50 260w

Wis Lib Bul 46:17 N '50

CHANG, FA-SHUN. Sky river; il. by Jeanyee Wong. 156p $2.50 Lothrop

50-8027

A retelling of the Chinese legend of the origin of the Milky Way. It is the story of Weaving-girl and her husband Ox-boy and their two children who are separated by the Milky Way, except for one night each year. For grades five to eight.

Booklist 46:338 Jl 1 '50

"Flavored with the wisdom and simplicity of the old folk tale, the book, attractively illustrated by Jeanyee Wong, is a delightful addition to our folk tale shelf." A. L. Shea

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Jl 23 '50 210w

Christian Science Monitor p7 S 23 '50 150w

"Readers of any age who like folklore will find this well-told, well-illustrated book rewarding." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 26:285 Jl '50 90w

"The appeal of an animal story, in which animals have a great many things to say, the wisdom of an ancient culture and the color, action and beauty of a folk legend make this a fine addition to the group of legends of other lands."

+ Kirkus 18:303 Je 1 '50 220w

"A fine addition to our Chinese folklore collections." Clara Adams

+ Library J 75:1305 Ag '50 70w

"An intricate, adult piece of story-telling, rich with unforgettable, sometimes noble phrases, very rewarding to the reader and illuminating as to the mind of China. This author has offered English-reading people a splendid gift from the best of his country's store. The publishers have made a handsome book of it which should have a wide appeal as a special gift for discriminating booklovers." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Je 25 '50 230w

"It is a leisurely tale for imaginative readers, poetic, flavorsome and sometimes quietly funny." E. L. B.

+ N Y Times p18 Je 25 '50 180w

"American children of from nine up will find the myth, here given full book length, a haunting one, both witty and sad, with many sage and magic touches. The accompanying line drawings complement the text very agreeably."

+ New Yorker 26:178 D 2 '50 90w

Wis Lib Bul 46:26 S '50

CHANGING patterns in American civilization, by Dixon Wecter [and others] pref. by Robert E. Spiller. 176p $2.50 Univ. of Pa. press

917.3 U.S.—Civilization 49-3802

Five lectures given as the first series of annual Benjamin Franklin Lectures at the University of Pennsylvania. Together they attempt to answer the question: What is the meaning of contemporary American life now that American society has grown out of its revolutionary phase? Contents: The contemporary scene, by Dixon Wecter; The pattern of literature, by F. O. Matthiessen; Science and humanity, by D. W. Bronk; The heritage of idealism, by Brand Blanshard; New forms for old faith, by G. F. Thomas. No index.

"This was an ambitious undertaking. The selected cast were of exceptional repute and wisdom. And their lectures were each admirable. But when printed as essays, they don't quite add up; the changing patterns don't coalesce into any one intelligible pattern. And most of the essays turn out to be summaries rather than attempts to answer what Professor Spiller suggested as the 'single question: Who are we?' " John Lydenberg

New Eng Q 23:273 Je '50 600w

"One grandiloquent phrase in the preface seems to deny the whole purpose of this enlightened symposium, for Professor Spiller's claim 'that only as such moments of self-evaluation does man achieve true greatness' would appear to imply that he and his collaborators are convinced that America has at last found her inspiration and her role—an implication that is, fortunately, not borne out by the comments of the authors who follow."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p434 Jl 14 '50 500w

CHAPEL, CHARLES EDWARD. Jet aircraft simplified. 160p il $2.75-$3.75 Aero pubs.

629.13338 Jet propulsion 50-5210

"Explains the basic principles and practical applications of the jet propulsion of aircraft. Among the many subjects discussed and illustrated with both line drawings and photographs are the discovery of jet propulsion, simple examples of jet propulsion, the athodyd, the pulsejet, the turbojet, the projet, composite power-plant arrangements, rocket-powered guided missiles, rocket-powered airplanes, and jet aircraft progress. The book is so organized that it can be used for a one-semester course in a high school or a junior college, as well as for home study." (Publisher's note) Index.

Booklist 46:256 Ap 15 '50

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 75:324 F 15 '50 90w

CHAPELLE, HOWARD IRVING. History of the American sailing navy; the ships and their development. 558p il $10 Norton

623.822 U.S.—History, Naval. Ships 49-48709

"Mr. Chapelle presents a full story of the building of our sailing Navy from colonial times to the time of the last all-sailing man-of-war, built just prior to the Civil War. . . The design and construction of every type of ship is fully detailed, with comments on trends in technical thought and administration as they affected American naval ships." (Publisher's note) Index.

CHAPELLE, H. I.—Continued

Reviewed by Al Chase
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 F 26 '50 120w

"Thanks to an unusual combination of abilities, Howard I. Chapelle has staked out an area of American maritime history on which few will encroach without trepidation. Thanks to a publisher of taste and imagination, his works are appearing in a form which provide models of bookmaking. The present volume is a worthy successor in every respect, to 'The History of American Sailing Ships,' that handsomely mounted classic in the study of sailing-ship design." H. W. Baehr
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 D 25 '49 1350w

"Calculated to overwhelm the lay reader. This reviewer, bogged down in a morass of facts, wishes that Mr. Chapelle had lightened his theme by relating famous ships to the stirring events that gave them fame and glory. In other words, added color and drama to the picture." W. B. Hayward
N Y Times p21 Je 25 '50 230w

San Francisco Chronicle p21 Mr 12 '50 170w

"Certainly the general no less than the specialized reader will derive enjoyment from merely turning the leaves of so lavish a volume as this, with its broad and noble page, its thirty halftones, its 155 text figures, and its thirty-two plans, many of them folding. Here is thoroughness and competence of a sort that the most landlubberly must admire and respect."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:13 Ja 21 '50 180w

"Although the book is profusely illustrated with some two hundred reproductions, many of the figures are almost too small to convey an exact idea of the form of the vessels; the more important ones are reproduced to a large scale. . . Much research and skill have gone into the locating of original plans and documents, the correlating of data to insure correspondence in all details, and the redrawing of all the plans so as to obtain clear reproductions."
U S Quarterly Bkl 6:64 Mr '50 280w

CHAPIRO, JOSE. Erasmus and our struggle for peace. 196p $2.50 Beacon press
172.4 Peace. Erasmus, Desiderius 50-10709

The book is in two parts. The first, Erasmus, herald of a united world, is an analysis of the contribution of Erasmus to religious and political thinking. The second, Peace protests, is a new translation of his The Complaint of Peace. Translator's notes. Index.

Christian Century 67:1524 D 20 '50 210w

"Recommended for larger public and college libraries." F. E. Hirsch
+ Library J 75:1822 O 15 '50 140w

"After World War I, Stefan Zweig, a true world citizen and lover of peace, wrote a book in which he emphasized the pacifism of Erasmus. Mr. Chapiro, after World War II, returns to this task in his able essay. Zweig wrote his book at a time when the Western world was torn and disintegrating. He wrote it in a feeling of tragic resignation. Mr. Chapiro writes with greater confidence. He sees in the United Nations the source of the highest hopes for our times." Hans Kohn
+ N Y Times p38 D 3 '50 410w

School & Society 72:399 D 16 '50 40w

CHAPPELL, MATTHEW NAPOLEON. In the name of common sense; worry and its control. rev ed 172p $2.75 Macmillan
131.337 Worry. Psychology, Applied 49-49433

"In addition to some revision, the material in the first edition [Book Review Digest 1938] is amplified by three new chapters: The worrier's neglected psychological needs, The neglected physical needs, and See a good physician first!" Booklist

Booklist 46:201 F 15 '50

Reviewed by E. L. Pennington
Churchman 164:17 Jl '50 190w

San Francisco Chronicle p18 F 5 '50 120w

CHARDIN, JEAN BAPTISTE SIMEON. Chardin, by Bernard Denvir. (Masters of painting ser) 16p 39pl $2.50 Harper
759.4 Paintings, French 50-7873

Contains 39 illustrations, eight in full color, selected from Chardin's paintings in America and seven European countries. They demonstrate mainly his work in still-life painting and domestic interior scenes. There is a critical and biographical introduction by Bernard Denvir, art critic, author, and lecturer, who was educated in Liverpool, Oxford, and Paris. Bibliography.

Booklist 46:317 Je 15 '50

"The text which accompanies the excellent color reproductions, is of a high quality, both in its thinking and writing." Irving Stone
+ Chicago Sun p5 Ag 13 '50 300w

Kirkus 18:294 My 15 '50 110w

"Adequate color work and black and white reproductions. Recommended." A. S. Plaut
+ Library J 75:1295 Ag '50 80w

Manchester Guardian p4 O 3 '50 60w

"The author, critic on English newspapers, has managed to compress into eleven pages of text as instructive and evocative an introduction as can be found in any moderately priced art book." L. R. Sander
+ Sat R of Lit 33:37 Je 3 '50 230w

"Mr. Denvir's text makes facile reading for the layman, yet is an intelligent and conclusive evaluation of Chardin's work and influence, making it a desirable work for the student." W. C. Smith
+ Springf'd Republican p10C My 14 '50 390w

CHASE, HERBERT, ed. Handbook on designing for quantity production. 2d ed 564p il $7.50 McGraw 621.81 Machinery—Design 50-8756

"The first edition of this practical work for advanced engineering students and professional engineers has already found its way into most technical libraries. The book is a compendium of practical information on such topics as the design of die castings, sand castings, screw machine products, stampings, hot-headed and cold-headed parts, and wire forms." (Library J) For first edition see Book Review Digest 1944.

Booklist 47:157 D 15 '50

"The discussions do not stop with the principles of good design, but the reader is told also what to avoid. Several new chapters have been added in this edition and the work is now about 50 pages longer." R. R. Hawkins
+ Library J 75:1300 Ag '50 90w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:71 S '50

CHASE, JAMES HADLEY, pseud. See Raymond, R.

CHASE, JOHN WADDELL, ed. Years of the modern. See Years of the modern

CHASE, MARY ELLEN. Abby Aldrich Rockefeller. 159p il $3 Macmillan
B or 92 Rockefeller, Mrs Abby Greene (Aldrich) 50-9582

A memoir, written with affectionate restraint, of the wife of John D. Rockefeller, jr. Mrs Rockefeller who died in 1948, was noted for her many charities and her sponsorship of art projects and restorations.

Booklist 47:94 N 1 '50

"Mary Ellen Chase has accomplished a rather delicate undertaking with considerable skill."
+ Christian Century 67:1137 S 27 '50 130w

Reviewed by Sasha Davidson
Churchman 164:17 D 15 '50 270w

Kirkus 18:454 Ag 1 '50 120w

"Rarely is it possible to have a biographical sketch of one so recently among us done with such dignity and judgment and appreciation. . . Not since Alice Brown's sketch of Louise Imogene Guiney, has so short a biography been so memorable. For all libraries." K. T. Willis
+ Library J 75:1397 S 1 '50 90w

Reviewed by Agnes Rogers
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 S 24 '50 1850w

"What Miss Chase has done in this very readable book is to describe the full and happy life of a woman who 'had everything' and who was not frustrated by it. What she has not quite done is to focus Mrs. Rockefeller's life clearly as a reflection of the social history of our times and of the developing problems of American life." Elizabeth Janeway
+ — N Y Times p5 O 1 '50 1250w

"Since her life was without conflict, this book is without conflict also. But Abby Aldrich Rockefeller was in every way an admirable woman and Mary Ellen Chase has given her a fitting memorial." E. M. Chute
+ Sat R of Lit 33:20 O 21 '50 470w

Reviewed by Gertrude Springer
+ Survey 86:520 N '50 650w

CHASE, RICHARD. Jack and the three sillies; pictures by Joshua Tolford. 39p $2 Houghton 50-8846

A retelling of the old folk tale about foolish Jack who started out to sell a fifty dollar cow, and swapped with everyone he saw, arriving home with only a stone. Then Jack's wife went out to find three people sillier than Jack, found them, and got their money back. For ages four to eight.

Booklist 47:46 S 15 '50

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 D 17 '50 40w

Christian Science Monitor p11 N 13 '50 30w

Cleveland Open Shelf p22 D '50

Horn Bk 26:369 S '50 40w

"Fun to read, fun to tell, and the Joshua Tolford illustrations in pencil and in color, doublespread with text on every page, are just right for the story. They have humor and a certain casual charm."
+ Kirkus 18:350 Jl 1 '50 130w

"A successful collaboration between artist and storyteller. Recommended for ages 4-8." H. M. Brogan
+ Library J 75:1305 Ag '50 70w

"The many pictures are entirely satisfactory, lively, strong, characterful, funny. It is a happy addition to American picture books, one to put beside 'Great Grandfather and the Honey Tree,' of last year, and older favorites like 'Down, Down the Mountain,' 'Andy and the Lions,' and 'Lentil.' Its patois comes best to small children in the living voice, but would not be difficult for nine-year-olds to read alone." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 S 10 '50 180w

N Y Times p35 N 12 '50 140w

New Yorker 26:174 D 2 '50 60w

"It would be hard to find a story that would create more merriment among boys and girls, or among grown-ups for that matter, than this one. Tell it or read it aloud in the swinging, rhythmic phrases that Richard Chase gives it and then let them have Joshua Tolford's drawings, in color and in black and white."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:42 S 16 '50 200w

Wis Lib Bul 46:25 S '50

CHASTAIN, MADYE LEE. Loblolly Farm; il. by [the author]. 227p $2.25 Harcourt 50-6438

"Story of Melindy's summer with her grandpa, grandma and two cousins on a farm in East Texas. There is the excitement of a cyclone and a house raising for a climax." Bookmark

Booklist 46:266 Ap 15 '50

Bookmark 9:163 Ap '50 50w

Reviewed by A. L. Shea
Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Jl 16 '50 160w

Cleveland Open Shelf p23 D '50

"There is a healthy spirit of good neighborliness in this story of East Texas, fifty years ago. Girls of nine or ten who like old-fashioned stories will find Melinda a good comrade." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 26:190 My '50 120w

"This warm-hearted, nostalgic and leisurely idyll of country life in Texas in the early 1900's should appeal to fastidious, sentimental little girls."
+ Kirkus 18:178 Mr 15 '50 130w

Reviewed by Louise Davis
Library J 75:636 Ap 15 '50 70w

"Recommended." E. E. Beatty
+ Library J 75:879 My 15 '50 100w

"That first summer visit to Grandfather's farm is a perennial theme among books for little girls, yet when a story comes along that is as fresh and lively as this one it has the illusion of being brand-new." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p24 Mr 26 '50 230w

"Humorous, human, and deeply moving. Perhaps it is the quality of the writing that gives this quiet story its distinction. It is outstanding, too, for the unusual drawings that form the chapter headings and endpapers."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:34 My 13 '50 280w

Wis Lib Bul 46:29 Ap '50

CHATTERTON, RUTH. Homeward borne. 312p $3; pa $1 Simon & Schuster
50-6936

Pax Lyttleton, daughter of a New England college president, wife of a charming Southern aristocrat, mother of nine-year-old Tubby, is compelled by a sub-conscious feeling of guilt, to take into her home a little Polish-Jewish refugee boy. While her husband is still abroad Pax has her difficulties with little Jan, but after Robert's return from two years Occupation duty, her troubles are multiplied and finally bring about disillusion ending in divorce.

Booklist 46:254; 275 Ap 15 '50; My 1 '50

Bookmark 9:212 Je '50 50w

"An inferior novel which drowns an important theme in bathos." Mary Sandrock
— Cath World 171:394 Ag '50 170w

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun p5 Ap 20 '50 420w

Reviewed by Edmund Fuller
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Ap 23 '50 550w

Christian Science Monitor p6 Jl 1 '50 230w

"This would have been a really good story if it were not for the somewhat unsympathetic qualities of Pax, the submergence of deeper insight into Jan."
Kirkus 18:141 Mr 1 '50 240w

"Highly recommended for pay and general circulation collections, regardless of size. It is important." George Freedley
+ Library J 75:693 Ap 15 '50 150w

" 'Homeward Borne' is an unusually thoughtful and discriminating novel in its approach to both individuals and our times." Mary Ross
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p17 Ap 23 '50 600w

"It is pleasant news that an actress of Miss Chatterton's standing should be sufficiently versatile to write a novel as good as this one. She has perhaps stacked the cards against her characters a little too thoroughly, but her climax is both plausible and terrifying. It is to be hoped that Miss Chatterton continues on her second career." Jane Cobb

CHATTERTON, RUTH—Continued

+ — N Y Times p38 Je 11 '50 230w

Reviewed by L. F. Cooper
Sat R of Lit 33:19 Jl 8 '50 600w

+ Springf'd Republican p8C Ap 23 '50 600w

CHAZE, ELLIOTT. Golden tag. 279p $3 Simon & Schuster

50-7219

"An account of a young newspaperman and the things that happen to him while covering a murder, a milk strike, and a Gulf Coast hurricane. . . It is the story of his deep love for his wife and his fumbling adjustment to the idea of being a married man and a father." Publisher's note

Kirkus 18:77 F 1 '50 170w

"Readers will have a thoroughly pleasant time with 'The Golden Tag.' It is an original, human and comfortably witty novel. Writing about a fairly ordinary couple, Elliott Chaze creates personalities, incidents and language that are fresh. Each word in the book is issued with precision and respect, as though the author is never tempted by a cliche." Barbara Klaw

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 Ap 30 '50 470w

"The best part of the book is the author's good-natured lampoon on the personalities and practices of a big wire service." G. M.
N Y Times p25 Je 25 '50 220w

Reviewed by Lionel Clay
Sat R of Lit 33:32 Je 3 '50 400w

CHERAKIS, GEORGE PETERSON. Hand of Alexander. 310p $3 Farrar, Straus

50-6439

An American doctor, Clifford Webster, delivered the legendary Hand of Alexander, a symbol of Greek unity, to a Greek leader, just before the start of World war II. There he met and fell in love with Penelope, so he stayed on after war was declared, and headed a hospital at the front. After he married Penelope the two went to America for a time, but returned to Greece to help in the struggle for freedom.

"Some fairly steady action here, an insistence on the glory that is Greece, keeps this going, but with no great distinction."
Kirkus 18:69 F 1 '50 140w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p24 Ap 16 '50 320w

"Though obviously sincere, Mr. Cherakis has composed one of the tritest eulogies of the American way and Greek resistance." Robert Knittel
N Y Times p23 Ap 2 '50 130w

"Most of the novel is about the border warfare and Mr. Cherakis has done a splendid job of reporting it. He makes it seem a natural thing for Dr. Webster to put aside his professional career in America to stay and help the Greeks when they need him. He wastes no time and space extolling the virtues of the Greek people—he lets their actions and their own words convince you as they convinced Dr. Webster." Edith James

+ San Francisco Chronicle p17 Mr 12 '50 400w

CHESNUT, MARY BOYKIN (MILLER). Diary from Dixie; ed. by Ben Ames Williams. 572p $5 Houghton

973.782 U.S.—History—Civil war—Personal narratives, Confederate 49-11694

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

"The diary was first printed in 1905, edited by Isabella D. Martin and Myrta Lockett Avary. The reprinting restores many of the passages they deleted, though Mr. Williams compressed the manuscript from some 400,000 words to three fourths that number. . . Some of these liberties will disturb the meticulous historian, already dissatisfied with inexact reproduction in the earlier edition. Mr. Williams has not taken his editorial obligations seriously. He footnotes the obvious and ignores the intricate. More than three hundred persons are listed in the index by their surnames only. Historians will continue to quote the diary; they will also continue to hope for an accurate and definitive edition." W. H. Stephenson
Am Hist R 55:629 Ap '50 600w

"Life in the Confederacy is revealed in intimate detail in this book. It is not too much to say that as Samuel Pepys' Diary is to the reign of Charles and as Gideon Wells's Diary is to the Lincoln administration so is the Chesnut Diary to the Southern Confederacy." G. C. Osborn

+ Ann Am Acad 269:156 My '50 360w

"I think her diary is the clearest expression of the emotions, the intelligence, and the forebodings which were flowing through the Southern mind in those years of anguish. Mrs. Chesnut's principal interest was people, but through that interest, which expresses itself in a running commentary of courtships, legal and illegal, of births, deaths, and kinships, shine the stronger rays of her discerning philosophy." Edward Weeks

+ Atlantic 185:72 Mr '50 600w

Cleveland Open Shelf p2 Ja '50

Reviewed by B. I. Wiley

+ Social Educ 14:280 O '50 650w

"Personalities, flirtations, political and military events, slavery and the cost of food, inlaws and cabinet officers, dinner parties and hospital conditions all are subject to her incisive comment. Both the scarcity of the earlier edition and the additions made by Mr. Williams make this one valuable."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:38 Mr '50 240w

CHESS REVIEW (periodical). Let's play chess. 48p pa $1 Pitman

794.1 Chess 50-6937

"Intending the book as a manual for the beginner who desn't know his rook from his queen's bishop's pawn, the authors explain simply the game's fundamentals with the help of many illustrations and photographs, and then proceed to valuable pointers on chess tactics and on nearly 30 standard openings. Cartoons demonstrate that there is a light side to chess, and a brief analysis of the careers of world champions outlines some of the problems you'll face when you, too, are a grandmaster." San Francisco Chronicle

"This most streamlined of all chess primers is no library edition [the format is that of a large page magazine] but it is ideal for the reader who wants to learn the elements of chess in a hurry and painlessly." R. L. Hanson

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p9 F 26 '50 90w

+ San Francisco Chronicle p24 Ap 30 '50 160w

CHESTER, GIRAUD, and GARRISON, GARNET R. Radio and television. 550p il $4.75 Appleton

384.5 Radio broadcasting. Television broadcasting 50-10214

A general introduction to the field. It combines discussions of broadcasting as a social force and as a skill for the potential actor or writer. Glossary. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 47:90 N 1 '50

"An excellent, comprehensive job. It would profit a lot of broadcasters to read the first part of this work, which reports without comment the facts about radio's deterioration from a potential force in mass education to a platform largely for the display of mediocrity." Saul Carson

+ New Repub 123:21 O 23 '50 340w

CHESTERTON, GILBERT KEITH. Common man. 279p $3 Sheed

824 50-9848

"Searching through ancient strong boxes, Miss Collins, Chesterton's literary executor, has found a 'great mass' of his essays, never before collected in book form, and this is the first instalment of her discoveries." (Times [London] Lit Sup) There are over forty of the essays "most of which have never appeared in America at all."

"This book in addition to giving us great delight, conveys the good news that it is only a first selection from a great mass of writings discovered by Chesterton's literary executor." Joseph McSorley

+ Cath World 172:158 N '50 220w

"In Chesterton there is perennial delight for the essay reader, and a new collection of 44 hitherto unpublished (in book form) essays is sure to appeal."

+ Kirkus 18:493 Ag 15 '50 120w

"The best exhibit the author's familiar witty and paradoxical style and suffusion with the eternal wonder of life; some others might well have been left in the chest." E. F. Walbridge

+ — Library J 75:1825 O 15 '50 130w

"Though the left-right jabs of argumentation often look like punch-ball exercise rather than real fighting it is remarkable how many real chins manage to get in the way. True vividness of phrase often flares up, and so does true wit. It is rather like retasting an exciting dish we once ate too much of. Further collections (and there must be material for several) will be most welcome—at decent intervals." N. S.

+ Manchester Guardian p4 O 6 '50 190w

Reviewed by J. W. Bogan

Springf'd Republican p23A N 5 '50 240w

"The sinking of the heart with which these posthumous offerings are normally approached need not pain admirers of Chesterton. He was so prolific and so casual about the journalism he knocked off at such speed and with such delight in creation that his best is as likely as his worst to have got buried."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p626 O 6 '50 900w

CHEVIGNY, HECTOR, and BRAVERMAN, SYDELL. Adjustment of the blind. 320p $4 Yale univ. press

362.4 Blind 50-7202

The author of My Eyes have a Cold Nose (Book Review Digest 1946) has joined with a clinical psychologist to write this book on some of the social and personal psychological problems of blindness. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by J. S. Davie

Am Soc R 15:457 Je '50 160w

Booklist 46:298 Je 1 '50

Reviewed by A. L. Severson

Christian Century 67:561 My 3 '50 230w

Kirkus 18:161 Mr 1 '50 190w

"Libraries will welcome this unique book. The authors have done a highly commendable job, and a great service to the blind." W. K. Harrison

+ Library J 75:556 Ap 1 '50 80w

"This interesting and well documented book challenges us to freshly evaluate methods, past and present, to adjust the blind to modern culture. . . Many agencies with a long tradition of treatment of the blind will not be too enthusiastic about this book, since it is openly critical of their limited vision. The blind may yet teach the sighted to see." H. H. Hart

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p25 O 22 '50 320w

"Thoughtful, sensitively written book." Lucy Freeman

+ N Y Times p23 Je 11 '50 340w

Reviewed by Edith James

San Francisco Chronicle p18 My 12 '50 750w

"Publication of this book marks the most cogent single contribution to the field of work for the blind since 1933, when Cutsforth's 'The Blind in School and Society' made its appearance." K. F. Gruber

+ Survey 86:571 D '50 450w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:367 S '50 280w

"Absorbing reading, and of special value to those in contact with this problem."

+ Wis Lib Bul 46:23 Je '50

CHEW, SAMUEL CLAGGETT, ed. Fruit among the leaves; an anniversary anthology; with an historical introduction. 535p il $5 Appleton

810.8 Appleton-Century-Crofts, incorporated. American literature—Collections

50-8362

This volume celebrates the one hundred and twenty-fifth anniversary of the foundation of D. Appleton and Company, and the Century Company's eightieth birthday. The book is in two parts: part one covers the histories of the two companies and their consolidations; part two is an anthology of selections from works published by them arranged by kind of literature: History and biography; Travel and adventure; Modern thought; Fiction; Juveniles and dialect poems.

"The lack of an index plus the complicated shuttling between 'logical and chronological' order may drive some readers mad. A desirable book, all the same." E. F. Walbridge

+ Library J 75:1043 Je 15 '50 150w

"Professor Chew has been able, thanks to the varied publications of D. Appleton over the years and the long career of the 'Century Magazine' and publishing house, to give a picture not only of a publishing house but of the changing tastes and intellectual interests of the American people through the generations. In his anthology he has been able to pick selections from Darwin to 'David Harum,' from Huxley to Henry James, from General Sherman to Kipling and Brer Rabbit. It is good reading for its own sake, and since so much of it is culled from the old Century and 'St Nicholas,' and most of the illustrations are reproduced from the same source, it should give us furiously to think as we stand before a news rack today." W. P. Eaton

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 Jl 16 '50 2150w

Reviewed by H. I. Brock

N Y Times p14 Ag 20 '50 700w

"This is an 'anniversary book' as I've noted, and therefore in part of interest chiefly to those connected with the companies involved. But because of Mr. Chew's well judged selections, it becomes a good deal more. And in case you think it's all in the nostalgia bracket, I'll add the final note that the volume comes down to 1940, with two excerpts from Thomas Bailey's 'Diplomatic History of the American People.' " J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Jl 7 '50 1000w

Sat R of Lit 33:61 D 2 '50 230w

Springf'd Republican p6D Jl 16 '50 750w

CHEYNEY, PETER. Lady, beware [Eng title: Lady, behave]. 241p $2.50 Dodd

50-9275

Detective story.

Reviewed by Drexel Drake

Chicago Sunday Tribune p17 S 10 '50 50w

"Standard Peter Cheyney. Competent, but inclined to belabor some rather obvious points."

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 S 10 '50 170w

"Peter Cheyney, English author of more than thirty books, is highly popular with his own countrymen (who also like Hollywood's

CHEYNEY, PETER—Continued
gangster movies). He is growing in popularity with Americans. This reader, obviously in the minority, is fond of both the quiet English setting and the tough private eye, but doesn't like them mixed." Hillis Mills
— N Y Times p11 S 3 '50 140w

"Written in that strange approximation of American slang that the English delight in."
New Yorker 26:75 Jl 8 '50 110w

"Case in which 'nothing happened way it should' handled with author's typical skill but with less action than most Cheyney yarns."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:38 Jl 15 '50 40w

"Much of the story is told in dialogue of a peculiarly flavourless variety, which contributes nothing to the revelation of personality; though a Frenchman who on page 85 speaks ordinary English develops, by page 235, a phonetic foreign accent intended, no doubt, to supply local colour."
— Times [London] Lit Sup p337 Je 2 '50 120w

CHEYNEY, PETER. One of those things. 250p $2.50 Dodd 50-5399

Detective story.

"This author switches to new and engaging sleuth in suavely written tale packed with villainous excitement and finesse."
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 F 19 '50 70w

"Since he drives a Jaguar and pays his bar checks from a roll of pound notes, Terence O'Day seems to be operating in London. Otherwise, he is exactly like any tough, cynical, indestructible shamus of fiction in Hollywood or New York. . . A number of American writers do this sort of thing better. Why can't English writers stick to those wonderful tales full of understated horror on country week-ends and Scotland Yard men with impeccable manners?" Hillis Mills
— N Y Times p32 F 5 '50 180w

"Full of violence, mixed drinks, beautiful women, and assorted misunderstandings. Naively written, but pleasant enough."
+ — New Yorker 25:96 F 4 '50 90w

"The atmosphere, to put it kindly, lacks something. As for the characters, to put it rather less kindly, they lack just about everything. We could be quoted as believing this to be something less than Mr. Cheyney's opus magnum." E. D. Doyle
— San Francisco Chronicle p16 F 12 '50 90w

"'One of Those Things' is poor Cheyney. The characters are almost without exception so distasteful that attention as to their fate is hardly engaged." John Garrett
— Spec 183:788 D 2 '49 90w

CHICAGO. UNIVERSITY. People shall judge; readings in the formation of American policy; selected and ed. by the staff, Social sciences 1, the College of the University. 2v 796;944p ea $4.50 Univ. of Chicago press

973.082 U.S.—History—Sources. U.S.—Politics and government—Sources 49-3028

"American history and its great arguments told by means of more than 250 important writings and documents, prepared and selected, with introductions and explanatory notes, by the staff of Social Sciences I in the College of the University of Chicago. Not indexed." School & Society

Reviewed by H. J. Carman
Am Hist R 55:618 Ap '50 950w

"Those critics who believe that social science courses tend to over-emphasize problems and controversial issues will find some support for their criticism in the materials here presented. The most severe critics will be compelled to agree, however, that it is a superb collection and a valuable contribution to all introductory courses in all social sciences." E. A. Helms
+ — Am Pol Sci R 44:229 Mr '50 300w

Christian Century 66:1267 O 26 '49 300w

Reviewed by T. V. Smith
Ethics 61:87 O '50 340w

School & Society 70:240 O 8 '49 40w

"The People Shall Judge will certainly encourage the student to acquire a sense of responsibility about all public issues of his own times and to self-analyze his own standards in an atmosphere of open discussion and free enquiry." H. R. Herington
+ Social Studies 41:282 O '50 800w

CHIDESTER, ANN. Moon Gap. 254p $2.75 Doubleday
50-6058

Moon Gap was a ghost town in Nevada, with a population of four: Miles King, a prospector who believed there was still gold in the hills; Cassie, his oldest daughter, who had been deserted by her husband; her brother Eddie, and her sister Rose. Eddie and Rose escaped from the dull monotony of the dead town, but Cassie stayed with her father. The story follows the course of Cassie's struggle with loneliness and a bout of sickness, until eventually her husband came for her.

Booklist 46:275 My 1 '50

Chicago Sun p5 My 16 '50

Reviewed by V. P. Hass
— Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Ap 9 '50 400w

"In her sense of atmosphere Miss Chidester is superb. The continuing encroachments of dust, of rust and decay, the whisper of rattlesnakes under thin board floors, the pressure of windless heat under a full moon: these are good description in themselves and also serve well as symbolism. 'Moon Gap' is an uneven book but rich in suggestiveness." Ruth Chapin
+ — Christian Science Monitor p12 Ap 10 '50 420w

Kirkus 17:676 D 15 '49 160w

"In indicating the human need for companionship and showing how group-living, group-loving man will bleed to death emotionally if cut off from his own kind, Miss Chidester plays around the fringes of a mysticism which, in bright contrast with the stubborn, earthy quality of her incident and setting, creates on the whole a very pleasing effect." F. H. Bullock
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 Ap 9 '50 500w

"Ann Chidester's new novel succeeds admirably whenever she draws an analogy between her characters and the eerie town they inhabit. Her feeling for atmosphere pressure in both a physical and psychological sense is remarkable. It is when she is faced with the need of practical solutions to the problems she has posed that she is apt to flounder in a morass of easy and unconvincing coincidences." J. P. Quehl
+ — N Y Times p16 Ap 9 '50 350w

"Miss Chidester's writing is simple and direct, with no frills. She deals expertly with every member of the King family, but Cassie is easily the most interesting, which is natural enough, because of the four she is the one who is suffering the most."
+ New Yorker 26:119 Ap 8 '50 110w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p12 Ap 4 '50 750w

"While 'Moon Gap' may not be a deep or important book, it is a most interesting one. It has a haunting quality. . . There is definite suspense in which the desert, sinister and overwhelming, and the animals, vicious and furtive, play a large and positive part. The style is somewhat poetic and, though the author's touch is light, the feeling created is inescapable and the impact of the story moving and somehow lovely." C. N. Govan
+ Sat R of Lit 33:14 Ap 22 '50 600w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal
Springf'd Republican p8C Ap 30 '50 150w

Time 55:96 Ap 10 '50 500w

CHIDSEY, DONALD BARR. Rod rides high. 244p $2.25 Doubleday

50-7745

Rod Fairchild was plane crazy, and as soon as he got a bike of his own he spent as much time as possible at the local airport. For a time he kept it secret from his family, because his father disapproved of airplanes. Later he took lessons from a famous test pilot and the secrecy which Rod hated was ended. Even his father called him Ace Fairchild.

"Chuck full of information about planes and flying, this story in-a-light-vein concerning a boy with an aviation 'complex' should answer the steady demand for pre-teen aviation fiction. . . The portrait of Rodney's father as a good-hearted but fumbling neurotic gives Rodney an eery Charles Addams aspect, but the dialogue and narrative are fresh and entertaining. Plane-minded girls will like this too."

+ — Kirkus 18:177 Mr 15 '50 180w

"Recommended where there is need of aviation fiction from a boy's point of view." Mary Strang

Library J 75:1305 Ag '50 80w

"The boy, his family, the flyers he meets, the detail of the flying lessons, are very real. The trouble is it will send all small boys to haunt their local airports, hoping for the same experiences. . . Perhaps the improbability outweighs the danger of imitation, and the unusual information makes the story worthwhile. In any case, it is very well written." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Jl 23 '50 140w

"While the reader sympathizes with father, this is primarily a boy's story, and every boy who reads it will want to become airborne as fast as possible." C. P.

N Y Times p18 Je 25 '50 140w

"This is Donald Chidsey's first story for boys and it is a very good one."

+ Sat R of Lit 33:35 My 13 '50 220w

Wis Lib Bul 46:22 Jl '50

CH'IEN, TUAN-SHENG. Government and politics of China. 526p $7.50 Harvard univ. press

342.51 China—Politics and government. China—Constitutional history 50-8563

A study in which the intention has been "both to analyze the legal structure of the Kuomintang Government, which is in substance still maintained as this is written, and to describe the practical operation of that government." (Pref) "Ch'ien Tuan-sheng took his doctorate in Government at Harvard in the 1920's. He has been a close observer and occasional participant in the Chinese political scene ever since—as publicist, member of the wartime People's Political Council, and particularly as a leading professor of Political Science in China's major national universities. Now at the Peking National University, he wrote this book while Visiting Lecturer at Harvard in 1948." (Publisher's note) Bibliographies. Index.

Booklist 47:88 N 1 '50

Reviewed by M. B. Jansen

Christian Science Monitor p14 Jl 1 '50 450w

Current Hist 19:104 Ag '50 60w

"Although this book is very valuable now, we should have had it earlier. . . Essential for knowledge of contemporary China." H. P. Linton

+ Library J 75:771 My 1 '50 130w

"Professor Ch'ien Tuan-sheng's 'The Government and Politics of China' is the most comprehensive and penetrating study of the Kuomintang regime yet to appear. It is well written and uniquely well informed and will undoubtedly remain for many years the standard work on its subject. Written by a political scientist who studied under Professor Arthur N. Holcombe of Harvard, who contributes a cogent introduction, this volume will meet widespread academic needs as well as appeal to the general reader." J. K. Fairbank

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Ag 6 '50 1050w

"A valuable addition to libraries on Far Eastern Affairs." E. B.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p19 Ag 6 '50 200w

"This study, written under the auspices of the International Secretariat of the Institute of Pacific Relations, is essentially one of the Kuomintang and the mechanism of government it created for the period of one-party tutelage, which was officially terminated with the adoption of the 1947 constitution, as well as by the loss of power to the Communists. It is the best and most comprehensive study yet made of what is now, in effect, a defunct regime." H. M. Vinacke

+ Sat R of Lit 33:38 N 25 '50 650w

CHILDCRAFT [ed. by J. Morris Jones and others; new ed]. 14v il $56 Field enterprises, inc. Educational division, 35 E Wacker Drive, Chicago 1

808.8 49-2694

"This is a new, revised edition of Childcraft, previous editions of which have been reviewed in the October 1935, July 1940, and January 1943 issues of Subscription Books Bulletin. Titles of the fourteen volumes of this edition are: Poems of Early Childhood; Storytelling and Other Poems; Folk and Fairy Tales; Animal Friends and Adventures; Life in Many Lands; Great Men and Famous Deeds; Exploring the World Around Us; Creative Play and Hobbies; The Growing Child; Guidance for Development; Ways of Learning; Guide Index; Art and Music; and Science and Industry. . . The 1949 edition differs from earlier editions primarily in that the Parents' and School editions are no longer separate. The anthology volumes have been remade, and new authorities have contributed to the children's activities and guidance volumes. The general index has been improved and enlarged." Subscription Bks Bul

"These ten volumes, well planned, and well adapted to developing minds, have an introduction by Angelo Patri and are a treasure trove for any child's library."

+ Cath World 171:399 Ag '50 300w

"Anyone thumbing through the 3400 pages will be astonished first at the brilliant abundance of illustration, next at the variety of subject matter and the scope of the entire plan, next at the impressive list of editors and contributors, each a recognized authority in his field. . . Total the contents of fourteen volumes and you can imagine the complete stimulus to curiosity and the endless hours of pleasure which an entire family can have." M. B. King

+ Chicago Sun Je 25 '49 900w

"Large public libraries which can afford it will find the set useful especially for the illustrations in the earlier books, the science material throughout, and the volumes addressed to parents. School libraries with a sufficiently large budget will be glad to have a reference set with the material always available for use in the school. For young parents with small children, Childcraft is an investment which should help them in their efforts to understand and help their children and to start them on the best in art and literature as the foundation for the future." Siri Andrews

+ Library J 74:1335 S 15 '49 850w

"'Childcraft' calls for superlatives. For those who can afford it, the set is the ultimate in its field."

+ Springf'd Republican p6D F 19 '50 240w

"Viewed as a set of books for parent and child guidance and enjoyment, these volumes would seem to fulfill the hopes of its editors. No set of books, however, can take the place of a home library of individual volumes on specific subjects, nor will excerpts from popular children's books serve as an adequate substitute. While the material in the set is excellent as far as it goes, parents should not feel in purchasing it that the child's literary and hobby interests or needs are adequately provided for. . . Childcraft is recommended for use in home libraries, and for consideration by large children's departments in public libraries and by school libraries for use as a browsing set and an aid in family life programs. It is not recommended for reference use in school or public libraries."

CHILDCRAFT—Continued
+ — Subscription Bks Bul 20:41 O '49 1600w
Wis Lib Bul p13 N '49

CHILDS, JOHN LAWRENCE. Education and morals; an experimentalist philosophy of education. 299p $2.75 Appleton
370.1 Education—Philosophy 50-7760

"The title of this book was chosen because the author wants to emphasize the character of the task that now confronts American educators. This task is nothing less than the attempt to educate a generation equipped to undertake the formation of the patterns for a new civilization; as he conceives it, that is basically a moral task." School & Society

"The book is dedicated to Dewey and Kilpatrick, and in its principles, in its structure, and even in its style, this book resembles Dewey's Democracy and Education. It does not have, however, the originality or richness of meaning of its predecessor, and there is a tendency to fix by doctrinaire commitment the meanings of some terms, such as 'democracy' and 'science' which Dewey left free to be determined by their changing interrelations with other elements of his philosophy. . . The book is, nevertheless, a good statement of one theory, the main theses of which are widely accepted." Walter Watson
+ — Ethics 61:80 O '50 600w

"Professor Childs writes with clarity and directness, and a thorough knowledge of opposing outlooks. In these times of flux and uncertainty, his study should help the layman as well as the educator in reappraising our conflicting philosophies of education." C. E. M.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p12 Jl 9 '50 420w
Reviewed by P. R. Hanna
Sat R of Lit 33:38 S 9 '50 850w
School & Society 71:286 My 6 '50 60w
Reviewed by W. W. Brickman
School & Society 72:278 O 28 '50 450w
U S Quarterly Bkl 6:324 S '50 240w

CHONZ, SELINA. Bell for Ursli; il. by Alois Carigiet. [44p] $2.50 Oxford

Pictures and rhyme tell about Ursli, a little Swiss boy, and the great bell he brought down from the mountain so he could join the procession of bell ringers in the spring.

Cleveland Open Shelf p22 D '50

"Many full page pictures in color, printed in Switzerland, suggest a delightful wall decoration for a children's room at home or at school. The story in verse doubtless suffers from translation." A. C. Moore
Horn Bk 26:455 N '50 50w
Kirkus 18:675 N 15 '50 130w

"The festive colorful water-color illustrations and the beauty of design and format will delight 6-10-year-olds. Recommended." H. M. Brogan
+ Library J 75:2157 D 15 '50 90w

"The big, gay, modern, funny pictures are enchanting. The verses will appeal widely to the very young, for they have a clever way of pointing to what is in the pictures. It all is as clear as the mountain air, for small Americans who never yet have seen the Alps, nor heard of a life like Ursli's. Here is that Swiss educational intelligence quietly bearing fruit." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 N 12 '50 300w

"One of the freshest picture books of the year." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p35 N 12 '50 120w

CHRISTENSEN, ERWIN OTTOMAR. Index of American design; introd. by Holger Cahill. 229p 378il $15 Macmillan
745 Index of American design. Folk art. Arts and crafts 50-10215

"'The Index of American Design,' lodged in the National Gallery of Art in Washington, is a tremendously valuable cultural stockpile of the American people. Established as a Federal Art Project of the W. P. A., its primary purpose was to give artists employment, thus safeguarding the nation's cultural resources. Its function was the pictorial recording of the 'articles in daily use in this country from early colonial times to the close of the nineteenth century,' the products of our native crafts, of our popular and folk art. By the time the W. P. A. closed, the Index had become a collection of thousands of meticulously painted and drawn pictures of Americana. This book by Erwin Christensen, the present director of the index, is the first easily available opportunity we have had to estimate the value of this collection. The introduction, by Holger Cahill . . . traces the rise of interest in visual Americana, the history of the Index itself, its problems, criteria, and objectives." (N Y Times) List of illustrations. Index.

Booklist 47:91 N 1 '50
Reviewed by Paul Engle
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 O 29 '50 430w
Reviewed by Horace Reynolds
Christian Science Monitor p6 N 18 '50 850w

"One of the most beautiful books of the year and a major contribution to the literature of Americana."
+ Kirkus 18:653 O 15 '50 180w
Reviewed by A. S. Plaut
+ Library J 75:2077 D 1 '50 150w
Reviewed by Lincoln Kirstein
New Repub 123:24 D 11 '50 90w

"The selection of plates is excellent. . . The selected bibliography is excellent, though many readers may wish that it could have been broken down in some manner. The content was undoubtedly too widely varied for a logical subject division, but it would have been feasible to list the bibliography, as were the illustrations, under the five main chapter heads which functionally classify the content of the book. This is a splendid piece of work, with unusually fine text, illustration and all-over design." Jean Lipman
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p17 O 22 '50 800w

"The range and scope of the book is remarkable. . . This volume is an important step in the understanding of American culture, and it is fortunate that we have it in a form so beautiful and written with a scholarship so sure-footed." L. C. Jones
+ N Y Times p7 O 22 '50 700w

"It is difficult to praise this book highly enough. . . Both Mr. Christensen, curator of the index and the decorative arts collection in the National Gallery, and the publisher who took the book on are to be congratulated." Macalister Jones
+ San Francisco Chronicle p19 N 5 '50 700w

"This is a picture book of great charm which should appeal strongly to those who are willing to spend $15 for something unusually nice. It would be hard to imagine a more attractive Christmas gift. Not only do the illustrations make the volume exciting to look at, but the text is amusing and informative." J. T. Flexner
+ Sat R of Lit 33:44 N 4 '50 900w

"This superb book brings together in one binding the folk-art design heritage of our country. . . To accompany the illustrations, the author has written a running commentary telling something of the history of the objects and the craftsmen who made them. It's a free, easy style of writing, rich in information with frequent bits of humor to enliven it."
+ School Arts 50:12a N '50 420w
Springf'd Republican p4D O 22 '50 70w

CHRISTENSEN, HAROLD TAYLOR. Marriage analysis; foundations for successful family life. 510p $4.50 Ronald

392.5 Marriage. Family 50-7386

The author, who is chairman of sociology at Purdue University, tried out the material of this book on more than 600 of his students in his family life course. "His emphasis is upon the interpersonal aspects of the marriage relationship and the parent-child relationship, particularly the need for emotional maturity and social normality in each. He considers society's effects on the marriage relationship as equal in importance to the personality of the marriage partners." (Survey) Chapter bibliographies. Indexes.

"The book is well written, sane, and constructive." L. T. Heron
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p13 My 14 '50 70w

"The author has no startling facts to disclose or novel theories to expound—just good sociology, good psychology, good morals and good sense." W. E. G.
+ Christian Century 67:1426 N 29 '50 110w

"This is a well organized and well written text which holds one's interest throughout, but is in no sense a popular, 'how to do it' manual. . . For the teacher or group worker it provides a well rounded synthesis of the materials he works with each day. To anyone contemplating marriage or concerned with its problems, it is provocative and stimulating. Dr. Christensen has made an important contribution to his field." Alicerose Barman
+ Survey 86:391 Ag '50 550w

CHRISTIAN, E. HELGE. And yet the twain. 534p $4 Decker press

A novel of life in the Philippine islands during the Second World war. Niels Christianson, Swedish mill superintendent, considered himself neutral but conspired with the Philippine guerrillas whenever possible. The trip he made from Negros to Manila, in order to report to his company's officials, was fraught with adventures—romantic and otherwise.

"The title, 'And Yet the Twain,' which clearly describes the eventual outcome, is the most succinct portion of this improbable yarn. For the rest, it is a long-winded, absurdly voluminous account." Florence Crowther
— N Y Times p19 My 28 '50 150w

"All of this is utterly unreal and unbelievable. Except for a few passages colorfully outlining the tropical landscape, we are given more than 500 pages of stilted speech and awkward description. It was the author's intention to tell the story of a heroic people in their struggle against oppression but pasteboard figures cannot be heroes." J. M. Grant
— + Sat R of Lit 33:33 Ap 29 '50 140w

CHRISTIE, AGATHA (MILLER) (MRS M. E. L. MALLOWAN). Murder is announced. 248p $2.50 Dodd

50-7830

Detective story.

Reviewed by Norman Shrapnel
Manchester Guardian p4 Je 9 '50 90w

"A Murder is Announced is a heady wine that will stand comparison with the Christies of any but the best vintage years." Ralph Partridge
+ New Statesman & Nation 40:154 Ag 5 '50 450w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 Je 25 '50 200w

"It goes without saying that most readers will guess in vain, though the author lays her facts scrupulously on the line, along with an assortment of her famous red-herrings, all beautifully marinated. By no means neglect Miss Marple's remarks on those faded letters, and the rope of pearls that turn out to be false, after all." C. V. Terry
+ N Y Times p3 Je 4 '50 140w

New Yorker 26:111 Je 10 '50 100w

"You'll find that the old Christie magic is as potent as ever. . . Readers will not need to be assured that Miss Christie has done her usual fine job with characters, settings, dialogue and such. We've already suggested that the puzzle itself is worthy of its creator and of its predecessors." E. D. Doyle
+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 Je 4 '50 300w

"A-1."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:42 Je 17 '50 30w

"One of her best. It has an exceedingly tricky plot that is well paced and nicely worked out. Inspector Craddock aided by Miss Marple, eventually solves the mystery, but the solution will surprise most readers." D. F. M.
+ Springf'd Republican p8B Jl 23 '50 90w
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p385 Je 23 '50 270w

CHRISTIE, AGATHA (MILLER) (MRS M. E. L. MALLOWAN). Three blind mice, and other stories. 250p $2.50 Dodd

50-3535

One novelette and eight shorter stories, most of the puzzles solved either by Miss Marple or Hercule Poirot.

"Deft, entertaining, long title story and eight short mysteries, neatly propounded and solved."
+ Bookmark 9:185 My '50 30w

"Each one of them is a good puzzle and well up to Miss Christie's usual standard."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p19 Mr 5 '50 170w

"Any reader who plows through a great many good, bad and so-so mysteries welcomes a new volume by Agatha Christie. At last, he says to himself, I am in the capable hands of an experienced entertainer who knows her craft. With a Christie book, it is possible to relax in the comfortable knowledge that there will be a tidily constructed plot, reasonably lifelike, adequately motivated characters and no flimflam, cheating or loose ends." Hillis Mills
+ N Y Times p30 F 26 '50 170w

"Some of these are rather old-fashioned, but the book as a whole is well above average."
+ New Yorker 26:108 Mr 11 '50 90w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p18 Mr 5 '50 170w

Sat R of Lit 33:45 Ap 8 '50 40w

Springf'd Republican p3D F 26 '50 90w

CHRYSLER, WALTER PERCY. Life of an American workman; in collaboration with Boyden Sparkes. 219p $3 Dodd

B or 92 50-10162

This autobiography of Walter Chrysler was first published serially in the Saturday Evening Post thirteen years ago. In its present form it contains some new material. No index.

Booklist 47:155 D 15 '50

Reviewed by Hal Foust
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 D 10 '50 400w

Reviewed by E. M. Herrick
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 N 26 '50 850w

Reviewed by Palmer Harman
N Y Times p37 N 5 '50 180w

"It has the casual, conversational tone of a front-porch chat and the fascination that clings to every true story about the boy who reached the top on his own."
+ Time 56:102 O 30 '50 600w

CHUKWUEMEKA, NWANKWO. African dependencies. (William-Frederick press bk) 207p $3.50 Pamphlet distributing

330.9669 Nigeria—Industries and resources 50-2245

"A challenge to western democracy; a study of the resources, commerce and industries of Nigeria and suggestions for the economic development of the dependency." (Subtitle) The author is a native of Nigeria who completed his education in the United States and is now an assistant professor of mechanical engineering at Howard university. Bibliography. Index.

CHUKWUEMEKA, N.—Continued

Am Pol Sci R 44:511 Je '50 30w

"The book contains a valuable summation of the resources of Nigeria. . . It is a helpful and constructive book." D. W. Bittinger
+ Ann Am Acad 271:238 S '50 280w

Booklist 47:5 S 1 '50

Current Hist 19:105 Ag '50 50w

Foreign Affairs 29:163 O '50 10w

"The material is well-organized and the author shows the place of Nigeria in the world economy and uses it as an example of the basic importance of similar under-developed areas. A useful volume, of especial interest to students of the Point Four Program." Donald Wasson
+ Library J 75:1663 O 1 '50 90w

"This book rates the most serious attention of all who recognize that American relations with the socalled 'backward' countries will form the main content of American world policy in coming years, whether it be for better or for worse. It is an indispensable piece of reading for those seriously concerned with the Point Four program for technical assistance to underdeveloped countries. They will not only get facts from it. They will get an attitude." H. R. Isaacs
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p17 Ap 23 '50 700w

School & Society 71:143 Mr 4 '50 20w

"Although in substance a careful, objective, and almost technical analysis of the present economy and the industrial potentials of Nigeria, Professor Chukwuemeka's book fully vindicates its more general title—'A Challenge to Western Democracy.' For, by means of an incisive and realistic analysis of Nigeria as a typical instance, the author gives his readers clear insight into the basic problems of contemporary colonial relations." Alain Locke
+ Survey 86:470 O '50 700w

CHURCHILL, HARRY D., and AUSTIN, JOHN B. Weld design. 216p il $6.65; to schools $5 Prentice-Hall

671 Welding 49-48334

"Although this book is concerned with one subject only, the fabrication of bases for machines by welding, it presents an exceptionally thorough treatment of this subject. Furthermore, many of the techniques described are applicable to the welding of other articles. The book is well illustrated, and the text is supplemented by an extensive bibliography. It won an award of The James F. Lincoln Arc Welding Foundation." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

"A highly specialized volume, but it has few if any competitors." R. R. Hawkins
+ Library J 74:1757 N 15 '49 60w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:11 Ja '50

CHURCHILL, WINSTON LEONARD SPENCER. Europe unite; speeches, 1947 and 1948; ed. by Randolph S. Churchill. 506p $5 Houghton

940.55 Great Britain—Politics and government. Europe—Politics. World politics 50-3939

"The fifty-two speeches contained in this volume were delivered by Mr. Churchill in the years 1947 and 1948. . . Though these speeches range over many topics, foreign and domestic, great and small, it has seemed right to give to the volume the title of Europe Unite, the theme of Mr. Churchill's speech at The Hague of 7 May 1948." Introd

Booklist 46:351 Jl 15 '50

"All in all, these speeches, even the most casual answer to a parliamentary interrogatory, are of tough mental texture, fine moral fibre and often of exquisite literary construction." F. A. Levy
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ag 6 '50 420w

"To read these speeches is to follow, through one of the most brilliant minds produced by the English-speaking world, the intimate course of events during two crucial postwar years." J. G. Harrison
+ Christian Science Monitor p16 Je 7 '50 600w

Current Hist 19:105 Ag '50 20w

Foreign Affairs 29:158 O '50 10w

Kirkus 18:347 Je 15 '50 230w

"There is little to be said about Mr. Churchill's style: it is as usual, superb. Each speech is preceded by a brief chronology of events leading up to the occasion of the address and this feature adds much to the value of the book." Donald Wasson
+ Library J 75:1182 Jl '50 130w

"It is an amazing output when we reflect that in those years Mr. Churchill was writing his war memoirs. Most of the speeches are, of course, pungently political, but they include some charming occasional pieces."
Manchester Guardian p4 F 3 '50 70w

"The editing of the book by Randolph Churchill displays filial respect by interfering with the paternal prose as little as possible. . . Perhaps a little more explanation of certain references, some description of British Parliamentary procedure and personalities would be helpful for Americans, since many of the debates (forming a goodly portion of the book) revolve about the technicalities of British government. . . There might be dispute over the fitness of the book's title. European unity is, indeed, one of Mr. Churchill's recurring themes —but so is the 'fraternal association' of Britain and America and so, to a preponderant degree in this volume, are the errors of the Labor party. . . However that may be, there is delight and profit in following the play of Winston Churchill's mind over the questions of the present and the very recent past." Harry Baehr
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Jl 9 '50 1050w

"It is one of the attributes of the true orator, as it is of the true artist in any kind of expression, that he can make the oldest things seem fresh, be they old poignancies or old jokes. We talk of creative artists, but the greatest artists are recreators in the sense that they are continually putting a new glory upon the surface of the familiar. So it is that when Mr. Churchill talks on liberty and scholarship in a university, just as much as when he talks on European unity at The Hague, he takes the elemental and everlasting truths about culture or about politics and, passing them through the forge of his personality, sends them out new-molded and gleaming." Ivor Brown
+ N Y Times p9 Je 11 '50 950w

"'Europe, Unite' is English prose at its finest and it is also the demonstration of as great and vigorous an intellect as the English-speaking world now possesses in action." C. W. Weinberger
+ San Francisco Chronicle p19 My 28 '50 1000w

"The first thing one notices about these speeches is how good they are to read. . . They are, mostly, the kind of speeches that any political leader in opposition is obliged to make. Many were delivered in the House of Commons; others were composed for party rallies. . . But open them anywhere and you will not read a page without finding some sentence that sparkles with (usually malicious) wit, some sentence that calls (though faintly) like a trumpet. And you will nowhere find a slovenly sentence or a dead one or one unworthy of the great tradition of English prose." Garrett Mattingly
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:28 Ag 12 '50 750w

Times [London] Lit Sup p203 Mr 31 '50 480w

Wis Lib Bul 46:22 S '50

CHURCHILL, WINSTON LEONARD SPENCER. Painting as a pastime. (Whittlesey house publication) 32p col pl $2.50 McGraw

751 Painting 50-5057

A reprinting of Mr Churchill's essay which first appeared in his book Amid These Storms (Book Review Digest 1932). The book is illustrated with reproductions in color of 18 of Mr Churchill's paintings.

Booklist 46:165; 186 Ja 15 '50; F 1 '50

Bookmark 9:131 Mr '50 40w

"When you read Winston Churchill on the joys of painting as a pastime you know beyond doubt that 'amateur' really means 'lover,' and you realize with fresh satisfaction how good it is that at least some lovers never tire of celebrating the objects of their devotion." Richard Sullivan

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 F 19 '50 370w

Cleveland Open Shelf p23 D '49

"A thoroughly charming and polished brief for the cultivation of hobbies—particularly painting."

+ Kirkus 18:41 Ja 15 '50 170w

Reviewed by A. S. Plaut

Library J 75:983 Je 1 '50 130w

"A gentle essay on hobbies or avocations in general and painting in particular. . . It would seem that, if Mr. Churchill continues this development—if he considers each new, vacant canvas not as an ultimate objective but as a point of determined attack—he must be rated as a young painter who is definitely worth watching." R. E. Sherwood

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 F 12 '50 650w

"Whatever Mr. Churchill does is done thoroughly. Whether he is marshaling armies or Cabinet Ministers or words or paint-brushes he combines intelligence, foresight and will-power to a degree that makes him impossible to ignore. . . It follows that an essay by Mr. Churchill about a hobby of Mr. Churchill's is well worth reading." Eric Newton

+ N Y Times p3 F 12 '50 1100w

"[He starts] his reader off on the adventure, coming back again and again to the delights that painting offers to the average human being. It is hard to see how anyone who has ever had the desire to paint can help going straight to the nearest art store, buying the essential equipment and plunging into it." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p10 F 11 '50 700w

"The delight of carrying in your pocket a key to 'a wonderful new world of thought and craft, a sunlit garden gleaming with light and color,' the author communicates in every wise and witty line of 'Painting as a Pastime.' Mr. Churchill's is a remarkable essay. It is personal, warm, and perceptive. It is basted in the rich juices of experience; written with unashamed enthusiasm; written from the heart, yet written with a smile. To find its match in felicity and charm, one must turn back to Hazlitt's 'On the Pleasure of Painting.'" J. M. Brown

+ Sat R of Lit 33:22 Mr 4 '50 2850w

Reviewed by W. C. Smith

Springf'd Republican p3D F 12 '50 500w

"To those seeking a hobby to cultivate before it is too late, to those who wish they could paint but have shrunk from making the attempt, Mr. Churchill, in an essay on Painting as a Pastime, offers both suggestion and encouragement."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p724 D 25 '48 480w

Wis Lib Bul 46:15 Ap '50

CHURCHILL, WINSTON LEONARD SPENCER. Second World war. v3: The grand alliance. 903p maps $6 Houghton

940.53 World war, 1939-1945. World war, 1939-1945—Great Britain (48-2880)

The third volume in the series of which The Gathering Storm, and Their Finest Hour (Book Review Digest 1948, 1949) were the earlier volumes. In this volume the story is carried up to the middle of January, 1942, providing the historic record of the war up to that time. Index.

Reviewed by Preston Slosson

Am Hist R 55:876 Jl '50 900w

"The third volume of Winston Churchill's great chronicle of the war is, if anything, more absorbing than its predecessors, for now the scale of the drama becomes global. . . Even the reader steeped in memoirs of the war will find in these pages an abundance of fascinating disclosures." C. J. Rolo

+ Atlantic 185:80 Je '50 800w

Booklist 46:253; 272 Ap 15 '50; My 1 '50

Bookmark 9:182 My '50 30w

"The source material alone makes this book essential to any student of the Second World War and its literary style is magnificently in keeping with its heroic theme." Robert Wilberforce

+ Cath World 171:316 Jl '50 450w

Chicago Sun p22 Ap 23 '50 550w

Reviewed by J. H. Thompson

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ap 30 '50 650w

"It has become customary to say that certain books are either valuable or indispensable reading on the last great war. Such phrases cannot do justice to Churchill, for of him it can be said that his volumes make not merely invaluable reading, they make the reading on that turbulent era whose everyday effect upon all of us is not yet over." J. G. Harrison

+ Christian Science Monitor p16 Ap 24 '50 1250w

Reviewed by Leander Danley

Churchman 164:16 Je 1 '50 180w

Reviewed by C. H. Weiss

Commonweal 52:226 Je 9 '50 1050w

Current Hist 18:354 Je '50 40w

Foreign Affairs 29:148 O '50 70w

+ Kirkus 18:221 Ap 1 '50 420w

Reviewed by Donald Wasson

Library J 75:692 Ap 15 '50 110w

Reviewed by J. B. Brebner

Nation 170:427 My 6 '50 1450w

Reviewed by J. R. Newman

New Repub 122:19 Je 5 '50 750w

"As the river of lonely British resistance flows into the sea of world conflict, the disadvantages of Mr. Churchill's style of autobiographical history grow much more obvious. . . It was artistically convincing to portray one man as the architect of our 'finest hour,' but this method carried on into the winter of 1941, produces in the reader, acquainted with such serious studies as the White House Papers of Harry Hopkins, a growing sense of distrust. 'Let's have either straight autobiography or objective history,' one feels, 'not this Napoleonic mixture.' This criticism does not apply to the chapters of The Grand Alliance dealing with the Atlantic and Mediterranean wars. The sinking of the Bismarck is done magnificently, and the tragic story of Greece and Crete is told with a good deal of candour. . . When he comes to deal with Russia, Mr. Churchill permits his hindsight altogether too much licence." R. H. S. Crossman

— + New Statesman & Nation 40:101 Jl 22 '50 800w

"The story which Churchill unfolds here is a richly and intricately woven tapestry; at first sight confusing, the major patterns emerge clearly enough in the end." H. S. Commager

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 Ap 23 '50 1000w

"It was a tremendous year, all right, and Mr. Churchill has written of its military events with straightforward simplicity and not many Churchillian flourishes. The pace of his narrative at times is positively breathless, but it is interrupted by a vast number of documents—cables, memoranda, minutes, directives." R. E. Sherwood

+ N Y Times p1 Ap 23 '50 2050w

"It is, of course, wonderful stuff—a masterly piece of historical writing, rich, savory, and complete with humor and wit."

+ New Yorker 26:107 Ap 29 '50 100w

CHURCHILL, W. L. S.—Continued

"As far as this goes, the entire book reflects the same incredible personality, just as the earlier volumes did. This is a history of World War II, but as it proceeds, book after book, it becomes plain that it is a history unlike any other written. It is a personal record, personally thought out and reported by a man who has every right to think of the war as a highly personal matter. More, this volume brings the war home to Americans more vitally than either of the other two." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 Ap 23 '50 1700w

"Mr. Churchill is a very distinguished historian. These memoirs, however, are not quite history in the grand style, and indeed Mr. Churchill has in several of his introductions pointed out that he is not trying to write such history. . . These are rather very superior memoirs, beautifully organized, written with eloquence where eloquence fits, with shrewd sense of reality throughout, focused, like Mr. Churchill's own emotional loyalty, first on England, then on Britain, then on the Commonwealth and Empire." Crane Brinton

+ Sat R of Lit 33:11 Ap 22 '50 950w

Reviewed by J. L. Godfrey

Social Forces 29:95 O '50 850w

Reviewed by Wilson Harris

Spec 184:88 Jl 21 '50 1250w

Reviewed by Donald Derby

Springf'd Republican p8C Jl 9 '50 200w

"It seems to be more hurriedly written, as if against time, but it brings that critical year stirringly alive, conveys with enormous authority and engaging candor its crushing despair and growing hopes."

+ Time 55:99 My 1 '50 390w

"This is a great source book and a great self-portrait."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p447 Jl 21 '50 2650w

Wis Lib Bul 46:21 My '50

Reviewed by S. F. Bemis

Yale R n s 40:149 autumn '50 480w

CHURCHILL, WINSTON LEONARD SPENCER. Second World war [v. 4] The hinge of fate. 1000p maps $6 Houghton

940.53 World war, 1939-1945. World war, 1939-1945—Great Britain (48-2880)

"This 1,000-page volume rolls us from the grim days of January, 1942, when the Axis was almost everywhere triumphant, to May, 1943, when that evil combination of powers was being smitten with one gigantic blow after another." (Christian Science Monitor) Index.

Booklist 47:133 D 1 '50

Reviewed by J. H. Thompson

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 N 26 '50 800w

"This book is as fine a description of the salient events of the titanic struggle as has yet been given us, written by the man best qualified to tell them." J. G. Harrison

+ Christian Science Monitor p16 N 27 '50 700w

"For most Americans perhaps this fourth volume of Mr. Churchill's story of World War II will prove to be the most arresting." James van Zandt

+ Churchman 164:16 D 1 '50 220w

"The armchair strategists will find his military analyses an indispensable contribution to viewing the war from another side than the one we are offered in American records. A sure best seller, as well as documentarily important."

+ Kirkus 18:713 D 1 '50 270w

Reviewed by Donald Wasson

Library J 75:2151 D 15 '50 90w

Reviewed by J. B. Brebner

Nation 171:655 D 16 '50 1150w

"Like Marlborough Churchill is a Tory; like him he is shrewd, practical, prudent, yet elevated. Like him his concern with humanity is born of principle rather than of sympathy. The complexion of his qualities is uneven, and much that he has done since the war is reprehensible, but not one of the sloganeers who lead us today is fit to wipe Churchill's pens." J. R. Newman

+ New Repub 123:18 D 25 '50 2300w

"It is a noble theme, and it is treated with all the nobility of phrase, all the shrewd insight, all the extensive documentation and the same occasional touches of humor that went into the earlier volumes. Yet there is a certain rather subtle shift in the focus of interest. Churchill was happiest, one feels sure, in those high and desperate days of 1940-'41, when Britain stood alone." Walter Millis

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 N 26 '50 1800w

"A superlative book. No memoirs by generals, or politicians, no studies of battles or conferences are in the same class." Drew Middleton

+ N Y Times p1 N 26 '50 2150w

"A swift, straightforward narrative." R. H. Rovere

+ New Yorker 26:67 D 23 '50 500w

Reviewed by C. W. Weinberger

San Francisco Chronicle p18 D 3 '50 1300w

"The uncommon reader who begins Mr. Churchill's memoirs of the Second War with this fourth volume need only be assured that this work is one of the major pieces of writing of our time, that it is essentially contemporary history based on the kind of access to documents only a man in Mr. Churchill's position could have, that it is written with all the historian's skills Mr. Churchill has acquired in a long life of handling men and words." Crane Brinton

+ Sat R of Lit 33:12 N 25 '50 1000w

Time 56:102 D 4 '50 850w

CHUTE, BEATRICE JOY. The fields are white. 219p $2.75 Dutton

50-5075

"A ten day April interlude presents Andrew Collier at forty—thoroughly dissatisfied with the present, regretful about the past and restless about the future. There are his lost dreams of being an architect, his dislike of the factory he had inherited, his hatred of the small New England town he had hoped to escape. . . His personal analysis of his unhappiness comes to nothing and it is his rude awakening to a secret of his wife's that pulls him up short and revises his attitude." Kirkus

Booklist 46:166; 189 Ja 15 '50; F 1 '50

"Here is something new and fresh; not imposing but as fresh as each spring, or as any individual's rebellion at the routine of a job he does not love. . . Told in a clear-cut fashion that is welcome—the more so because Miss Chute presents her theme with grace and laughter. The theme boiled down, means: Second-best can be made into best."

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Ja 26 '50 180w

"An often amusing, sometimes wise, novel of marriage and maturity, this has manners as well as social graces."

+ Kirkus 17:631 N 15 '49 150w

"A thoroughly adult, cleverly written novel. . . A seductive siren, an understanding, gracious wife, amusing conversation, a touch of satire, and the author's sure sense of detail, all keep the reader from becoming even slightly bored. This is a fine story of a modern marriage. Recommended." Anne Whitmore

+ Library J 74:1903 D 15 '49 80w

"Miss Chute is not the first one to say life begins at 40. But she is probably the first to make it seem so easy." Vivian Wolfert

+ N Y Times p30 Ja 29 '50 230w

"Miss Chute's characters are not at all original, but they are carefully drawn and true to form, and her writing fits their behavior very neatly."

+ New Yorker 25:94 F 4 '50 60w

"Pretentiously fancy, with the sprightliness of a store clerk's smile, this has somehow escaped into hard covers from its natural habitat as a complete-in-this-issue, Grade-B, woman's magazine piece." Edmund Fuller

— Sat R of Lit 33:13 Ja 28 '50 130w

Wis Lib Bul 46:28 F '50

CHUTE, MARCHETTE GAYLORD. Shakespeare of London. 397p map $4 Dutton

822.33 Shakespeare, William 49-48602

A reconstruction of the life and times of Shakespeare, based on source material dated up to 1635. Emphasis is on the London period of Shakespeare's life. Selected bibliography. Index.

"What Miss Chute does bring to life in multifarious detail is not Shakespeare of London but the London of Shakespeare—its sights and sounds; its religious outlook, laws and mores; its court; its brutal amusements; its reading tastes; and, above all, its immensely vital world of the theater. Fitted into this painstakingly recreated background, Shakespeare's career certainly takes shape in clearer perspective. Whether any of Miss Chute's biographical facts will be new to Shakespearean scholars I cannot judge; the point is a minor one, since this is clearly a book written for the general reader." C. J. Rolo

+ — Atlantic 185:82 Ap '50 950w

Booklist 46:181; 198 F 1 '50; F 15 '50

Bookmark 9:155 Ap '50 40w

"This book is to be praised as a successful attempt to present William Shakespeare not as the Sweet Swan nor Fancy's Child nor as the poetic giant of the world, but as a hardworking Londoner who made more money as an actor and businessman of the theater than he ever did by his pen. . . Miss Chute gives an illuminating picture of the life of the theater in the sixteenth century, particularly in the courts of Elizabeth and James I. But, let it be said, it is startling to find in this balanced book such adulation of the deeds and character of the Virgin Queen. Adulation is literally the word for it." Clorinda Clarke

+ — Cath World 172:77 O '50 220w

"It's a grand book, filled with the soundest research and reasoning, yet it reads as easily as a novel, and is a warning to pedants and pedagogs not to approach the subject again unless they can work as objectively and write as vividly as Miss Chute has." Kelsey Guilfoil

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ap 2 '50 550w

Reviewed by Theodore Kalem

Christian Science Monitor p7 Mr 25 '50 1500w

Reviewed by Leander Danley

Churchman 164:15 My 1 '50 180w

Cleveland Open Shelf p5 Mr '50

"Shakespeare of London can be recommended as a good book for the public for which it was written. Students will not find it so useful. It is not mere pedantry in scholars which demands that the author of a book about the past shall acknowledge the sources of her facts. From time to time Miss Chute makes interesting statements which the curious and inerested reader will wish to pursue; but without the source he is left wondering where the author found the fact or whether she invented it." G. B. Harrison

+ — Commonweal 52:156 My 19 '50 390w

"An invaluable contribution to the literature on Shakespeare, though there will be some who feel that the form in which it is written militates against its value as a tool for the researcher."

+ — Kirkus 17:504 S 1 '49 160w

"If I were to recommend one book on Shakespeare, his life, his England, to the average student or layman, this would be the one. This is no reflection on Sir Sidney Lee's outstanding one-volume biography but Miss Chute has so magnificently captured the atmosphere, thinking, manner of living, and background of Shakespeare's day that it surpasses it in general interest. . . Highly recommended to Shakespeare, theatre and general reference collections, large or small." George Freedly

+ Library J 74:1194 S 1 '49 130w

"An excellent book about Shakespeare—clear, interesting, reliable, every page bearing witness to her competence and care." Alfred Harbage

+ Nation 170:378 Ap 22 '50 1100w

Reviewed by Douglas Bush

New Repub 122:21 Ap 24 '50 270w

"Miss Chute has performed an inestimable service for the general reader. If you believe that the plays of Shakespeare were not written by Shakespeare, you will not like her book for she will present you with a very formidable flesh-and-blood author-actor-gentleman, whose activities are incontrovertibly established and who seems to be perfectly capable of writing his own 'works' without any assistance from titled amateurs. . . Miss Chute has felt the tremendous vitality and excitement of Shakespeare's London world, and she has succeeded in communicating it." Margaret Webster

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 Mr 26 '50 950w

"Miss Chute, author of 'Geoffrey Chaucer of England' and other books, has had the happy idea of basing her 'life sized portrait' entirely on contemporary evidence. From the facts as we know them, the legal and financial documents, literary testimonials and institutional records, she has pieced together a readable and credible presentation of the man in his time. The pitfall that besets this undertaking lies not so much in its factual inaccuracies, which are comparatively minor, as in its tendency to bridge historical gaps by inferences and generalizations which reflect our own age rather more than Shakespeare's." Harry Levin

+ — N Y Times p7 Mr 26 '50 800w

Reviewed by Hamilton Basso

— New Yorker 26:114 Ap 8 '50 400w

"Where the book belongs in the vast Shakespeare bibliography, the scholar will determine. But the general reader will enjoy this picture of London which was, in essence, like so many of the overcrowded cities of today and will relish the sight of Shakespeare 'in the light of common day.' It is one of those books which because it brings the past to us so vividly, makes us understand the present better." Jane Voiles

+ San Francisco Chronicle p25 Ap 2 '50 800w

"This attractive volume is probably the best of all the 'lives' of Shakespeare that have recently been pouring from the press. It displays many of the delightful qualities that distinguished the author's 'Geoffrey Chaucer of England.' Its virtues are many. . . Occasionally Miss Chute misreads the evidence and even falls into a few errors of fact, but these are really minor blemishes on an otherwise excellent piece of imaginative scholarship." O. J. Campbell

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:13 Ap 1 '50 1100w

Reviewed by W. G. Rogers

Springf'd Republican p8C Mr 26 '50 220w

Reviewed by J. W. Culver

Springf'd Republican p8C My 7 '50 450w

"The style of the biography is good and, despite occasional over-broad generalizations, the presentation is clear. And for those who wish to use the book as a reference work, the index is full and well arranged."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:301 S '50 180w

Wis Lib Bul 46:25 F '50

"Excellent book for the general reader; its primary concern is not literary, but biographical and historical. It surveys our present knowledge of Shakespeare's life and times in an amazing combination of readability and faithfulness to the facts." Hallett Smith

+ Yale R n s 39:743 summer '50 210w

CIANFARRA, CAMILLE MAXIMILIAN. The Vatican and the Kremlin. 258p $3 Dutton

261 Communism and religion. Roman Catholic church 50-12701

An account of the relations between the Catholic church and Communism since World war II. The author has been for many years the representative of the New York Times at the Vatican.

Booklist 47:126 D 1 '50

"The book is useful reading for those naive contemporaries who still believe that you can do business with Stalin." Max Fischer

+ Commonweal 53:238 D 8 '50 900w

CIANFARRA, C. M.—Continued

"An interesting presentation of the battle of religion against atheism. Of interest to Protestant as well as Catholic readers."

+ Kirkus 18:552 S 1 '50 330w

"This volume, within its evident limitations, should be helpful in larger public and college libraries." F. E. Hirsh

Library J 75:1654 O 1 '50 140w

"Mr. Cianfarra's book is written with ease and skill. It presents a great number of interesting facts within a small compass. Its quiet and factual tone and its conciseness will win for it many friends." Hans Kohn

+ N Y Times p42 N 26 '50 750w

New Yorker 26:168 N 11 '50 140w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p18 N 3 '50 650w

"We are constantly being told that the current wars, both hot and cold, are for the minds of men. It would appear that they are for the hearts and souls as well. Whether we like it or not, democracy and religion are on the same side. We will be stronger in so far as we know this and in so far as we know the nature of Communism's ways of attacking both. 'The Vatican and the Kremlin' tells us something about it, an appalling story in a time of incredibly appalling things." W. S. Lynch

+ Sat R of Lit 33:15 N 4 '50 800w

CIARDI, JOHN. Mid-century American poets. 336p $4 Twayne

811.08 American poetry—Collections 50-6746

"This is a book of verse and prose by fifteen mature, for the most part, American writers: two women and thirteen men. The prose in each case serves as explanatory statement to the verse which follows, an attempt on the part of each writer to make clear what he is at. The result is a treatise on the poem that should be of the greatest interest to the student as well as the curious reader who has begun to wonder what all this pother about modern verse signifies." N Y Times

---

Reviewed by Marion Strobel

Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 Ap 9 '50 400w

Reviewed by Gerald McDonald

Library J 75:1189 Jl '50 140w

"Mr. Ciardi's general introduction—he writes a particular one for his own poems—is a curious mixture of sense and silliness, with a good deal of ambivalence as to exactly where he stands. . . He is at his most amusing in his caricature of poesy as distinguished from poetry. Between poesy and poetry, however, is the large area of accomplished, literate, passable verse, recognizably and not too uncomfortable at home in the fashion of its time, mid-century or fin de siècle; and it is of such material that most of this collection consists. Nevertheless, an interesting book to study." Rolfe Humphries

+ — Nation 171:152 Ag 12 '50 450w

Reviewed by M. L. Rosenthal

New Repub 123:18 Ag 21 '50 1150w

"This book does not cover a wide section of the field, but that is one of the effects of its qualities. You can't call it The Complete Poet. There are reaches which no one in the book touches. But that granted, this will be an excellent book for teaching; Shapiro's exposition of the stages in the development of one of his best short poems usefully extends this concept." W. C. Williams

+ N Y Times p6 Ap 16 '50 950w

Reviewed by Louise Bogan

New Yorker 26:161 N 4 '50 150w

"I heartily indorse Volume II—the poetry. I am not so happy about the 'first volume'—the section (121 pages of it) devoted to prose statements, to apologia, commentary, and what-have-you representing the views of the poets on the state of poetry, their own and others. . . No address to the reader in defense of poetry can ever be so persuasive as an actual poem. There are enough actual poems here to make 'Volume I' quite unnecessary." G. P. Meyer

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:18 Jl 22 '50 550w

School & Society 71:190 Mr 25 '50 30w

Reviewed by Victor Prahl

Springf'd Republican p10C My 14 '50 290w

"There is only one thing wrong with the result: most of the poems are pale, thin and derivative. . . Of the 15 poets in this book, more than half are teachers or have recently been teaching—a fact their verse betrays with retributive accuracy. Most of their poems read like the result, not of getting involved willy-nilly in the life of man, but of a careful, cultivated and eminently correct genuflection before previous generations of poets or the present generation of crabbed critics.'

Time 55:118 Ap 17 '50 550w

CICELLIS, KAY. The easy way; with a foreword by V. Sackville-West. 237p $2.50 Scribner

50-14688

"A collection of short reverie stories by a young Greek girl who writes in English, although she has never lived in an English-speaking country and seems to have learned the language more or less by proxy." New Yorker

---

Reviewed by J. F. Nims

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 O 29 '50 250w

"The author is at her best in stories with a Greek locale, and her dense, close-packed prose style is difficult but rewarding."

+ Kirkus 18:619 O 1 '50 90w

"These rare and unusual stories are written by a young Greek girl whose use of English is expert and beautiful, though their flavor is Mediterranean and their real setting that universal ground, the mind of man." Shirley Barker

+ Library J 75:1904 N 1 '50 80w

"If one were told that a Greek girl who had never been to England and so never heard English spoken around her could yet write so well in it as never to betray a foreign accent, one would be considerably surprised. Yet, in her idiom at least, this is what Miss Kay Cicellis has done. . . She expresses the immediacy of human relations with an imaginative awareness which is intensely alive to the physically felt moment. She is only in her early twenties, and there is time enough for her inspired insight to gain breadth and substance." H. I'A. Fausset

+ Manchester Guardian p4 S 15 '50 190w

Reviewed by Louise Bogan

New Repub 123:18 N 27 '50 400w

Reviewed by Robert Kee

New Statesman & Nation 40:408 N 4 '50 110w

Reviewed by Jane Martin

N Y Times p15 D 17 '50 240w

"[Her] remoteness from the language of her choice is reflected in the stories, which are lonely, withdrawn, and self-contained, and have a sameness of voice and mood that makes them seem more like several approaches to one novel than like completed pieces of work."

New Yorker 26:145 O 14 '50 80w

"Perhaps it would be best to regard these as the exercises of a writer who is learning to set forth her very real insights into the things that affect people's thinking and feeling but hasn't as yet found anything to do with the craftsmanship she has developed. The undoubted high order of this craftsmanship leads one to anticipate hopefully the more finished and directed work she has yet to produce." E. J. Fitzgerald

Sat R of Lit 33:18 N 25 '50 320w

"There is nothing Greek or French about her use of our language, which could not respond better to her sensitive direction if she had used it all her life. These stories are brilliant in themselves and phenomenal from a girl in her early twenties. Beautifully composed and written, they convey with authority both sensation and thought, and deal more tentatively with action." L. A. G. Strong

+ Spec 184:375 O 6 '50 180w

"One would like to go farther, as Miss Sackville-West unhesitatingly does, and to say that the stories themselves show 'an original vision linked to a poetic idiom.' But although Miss Cicellis writes with an admirable regard for grammar and syntax, a thick layer of cotton-wool seems to be laid between her patent striving for emotional intensity and its realization in words. . . In some of the stories a delicacy of thought can be glimpsed through the curiously clotted writing."
Times [London] Lit Sup p545 S 1 '50 330w

CLAPHAM, SIR JOHN HAROLD. Concise economic history of Britain, from the earliest times to 1750. 324p $2.75 Cambridge

330.942 Great Britain—Economic conditions [A50-1413]

Presents a panorama of man's work in Britain from pre-historic times up to 1750. The author was from 1908 to 1935 lecturer on English economic history at Cambridge University. Index.

Reviewed by R. G. Cowherd
Ann Am Acad 269:186 My '50 480w

Reviewed by K. F. Helleiner
Canadian Hist R 31:326 S '50 280w

Reviewed by Robert Cromie
Chicago Sunday Tribune p17 Mr 19 '50 60w

Reviewed by Leila Flower
Christian Science Monitor p16 Ag 10 '50 600w

"The late Sir John Clapham was among the most distinguished economic historians whom this country has produced, and the appearance of the work on which he was engaged during the last years of his life will be widely welcomed." R. H. Tawney
+ Manchester Guardian p4 Ja 24 '50 800w

"Sir John Clapham had the gift of incisive observation and telling phrase. Unhappily his death, nearly four years ago, prevented the completion of this final, summarised review of his far-reaching collected knowledge: the story breaks off in 1750. But it is doubtful whether the finished work would have added greatly to understanding of the forces which underlay the Industrial Revolution and gave birth to a society in which capitalist enterprise seemed, for a brief period, to have discovered the secret of expanding abundance."
New Statesman & Nation 38:739 D 17 '49 420w

"It would have been a loss to scholarship if he had not lived to write this book. His work on the nineteenth century, for which there is super-abundance of material, had already shown his talent for selection and analysis. This smaller volume on the earlier periods, the story of which has to be pieced together from fragments, exhibits his skill in weighing evidence and estimating probabilities. High as his reputation stood, it must now stand higher. It is not to be expected that every statement or interpretation will pass without challenge." T. S. Ashton
+ Spec 183:892 D 23 '49 800w

"Good wine needs no bush. It is not given to every historian to write with Sir John Clapham's massive erudition, breadth and assurance; nor to have his posthumous work edited with the notable and self-effacing scholarship of Mr. John Saltmarsh. This book will inevitably take its place, with most of the author's others, on the shelf of standard work."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p854 D 30 '49 1250w

"Throughout the book the interpretations are his own, usually novel, always refreshingly sane, and often given in a sentence that sticks in the mind." Herbert Heaton
+ Yale R n s 39:558 spring '50 1100w

CLARK, ALFRED ALEXANDER GORDON (CYRIL HARE, pseud). Wind blows death [Eng title: When the wind blows]. 247p $2.50 Little

49-48965

Detective story.

Bookmark 9:82 Ja '50 30w

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun p4S Ja 20 '50 320w

Kirkus 17:635 N 15 '49 70w

"A somewhat obvious plot, but the writing is civilized and makes pleasant reading."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Ja 15 '50 190w

"Purists may object that there's no reason why the killer should evolve such elaborate means for disposing of England's foremost woman violinist, but the sternest purist will find no other flaw in a plot compounded of musical knowledge, a Dickens allusion, and a subtle point of law, and related with delightfully unobtrusive wit, warmth and style." Anthony Boucher
+ N Y Times p19 Ja 15 '50 170w

"Intelligent."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:46 Ja 28 '50 40w

"It's a good run of the mine whodunit, with a novel setting, by an English barrister who has turned out five others while relaxing from his legal activities."
+ Springf'd Republican p3D Ja 22 '50 110w

Wis Lib Bul 46:21 Ja '50

CLARK, ANDREW HILL. Invasion of New Zealand by people, plants and animals; the South Island. 465p il maps $6 Rutgers univ. press

993.1 New Zealand—Population. Natural history—South island, New Zealand. South island, New Zealand 49-50393

Historical and economic geography of New Zealand centering in an intensive study of "the revolutionary change in the character of a region [South Island] in a period of less than two centuries." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by J. B. Condliffe
Am Hist R 56:186 O '50 400w

Current Hist 18:99 F '50 60w

"A work that will have an instant appeal not only to historians, geographers, anthropologists and sociologists, but also to anyone who has any interest in learning what the Dominion of New Zealand is like—today, or at any time since alien people, plants and animals were first brought to its shores. It is a book that will long occupy a high place in the scientific literature of New Zealand." K. B. Cumberland
+ Pacific Affairs 23:218 Je '50 650w

"Through such books as Vogt's 'Road to Survival,' we are beginning to realize the importance of understanding ecological principles in our efforts to maintain our natural resources, and this work on New Zealand is a fine analysis of these principles viewed from the perspective of economic and historical geography." J. W. H.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 F 19 '50 450w

"An excellent piece of pioneering work in this field."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p248 Ap 21 '50 370w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:185 Je '50 260w

CLARK, MRS ANN (NOLAN). Magic money; il. by Leo Politi. 121p $2.50 Viking

50-8847

Story of Tony who lived in Costa Rica. He wanted very much to earn enough money so he could realize a Secret: he wanted to buy oxen for his beloved grandfather. The story is of Tony's efforts to earn money and the lessons he learned on the way to success. For ages 9-11.

CLARK, A. N.—Continued

Booklist 47:64 O 1 '50

Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 N 12 '50 200w

Cleveland Open Shelf p23 D '50

Reviewed by A. C. Moore
+ Horn Bk 26:356 S '50 160w

"The ending is much better than the usual stereotyped one for a story with this theme. Pictures, characterization and plot all help to make this a 'must.' "
+ Horn Bk 26:379 S '50 90w

"A pleasant story, but the gay, lilting measure of the speech, so charming to an adult, may puzzle and annoy a child acclimated to the flat intonations of American speech."
Kirkus 18:464 Ag 15 '50 150w

"Family life is modern and portrays a happy working family on a coffee plantation." Juanita Walker
+ Library J 75:1670 O 1 '50 50w

"Mr. Politi's pictures, many in two colors, are in his most distinguished style. In his scenes of these people at work and play, at home and at fiestas, he offers his special combination of caricature and tenderness, and a deep-felt appreciation of event and atmosphere. This book should appeal to boys and girls under twelve." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 O 1 '50 210w

"This is a beautifully illustrated story of a simple loving family, and a wonderful relationship between a little boy and his grandfather." P. F.
+ N Y Times p33 N 12 '50 110w

New Yorker 26:180 D 2 '50 80w

"A story that carries in it a deep understanding of the heart and mind of a child."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:55 N 11 '50 140w

Wis Lib Bul 46:22 N '50

CLARK, CHRISTOPHER. Good is for angels. 237p $2.75 Harper
50-9515

Character study of Mrs. Lizz Litke, whose life of trial and poverty never quite destroyed her faith in the goodness of humanity. The scene is the poor section of Chicago.

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun p5 S 19 '50 110w

"Warm and readable novel. . . Lizz Litke is about as far from being the usual fictional heroine as Chicago is from Brooklyn, but I haven't encountered a heroine in recent years that I loved or admired more." V. P. Hass
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 S 17 '50 360w

Kirkus 18:339 Je 15 '50 180w

"If a lifetime of ugliness can be beautifully described and written about, then this tale of some of Chicago's poorer folk is it. . . Powerfully written and absorbing, but there may be objections to some of the almost painfully frank sex scenes, normal and abnormal." M. H. Zipprich
Library J 75:1290 Ag '50 80w

Reviewed by Kate Simon
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 S 10 '50 320w

"Readers who enjoyed James T. Farrell at his best will enjoy Christopher Clark's latest novel." J. M. Grant
+ Sat R of Lit 33:14 D 16 '50 360w

"Mr. Clark wields a relentless pen in picturing the mistakes of his characters in industrial Chicago of today, so when it comes to recording their achievements the reader feels his accuracy is to be trusted likewise. Those who prefer easy, happy reading may be shocked by vulgarity in the book, by its earthy quality; the author has not glossed unfortunate situations." S. M. Neal
Springf'd Republican p12C S 17 '50 220w

CLARK, MRS DOROTHY (PARK). Just for the bride. 222p $2.25 Doubleday 50-5153

Detective story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun p4S Ja 27 '50 30w

Kirkus 17:635 N 15 '49 90w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 F 5 '50 150w

"The plot is thickened with several chases and hugger-muggery by a bootleg ring. It's all utterly unbelievable, but somehow fascinating in a hypnotic sort of way." E. B.
+ — N Y Times p22 Ja 22 '50 140w

"Mystifying and fiercely exciting, though somewhat primitive in style."
+ — New Yorker 25:104 Ja 21 '50 120w

CLARK, GEORGE KITSON. English inheritance; an historical essay. 184p $2.75 Macmillan

942 Christianity and politics. Great Britain —History

"This book is intended to be an essay on the effects of the Christian religion on the English inheritance. . . The elements I have selected as being of chief importance are the rule of law, the belief in freedom, the sense of personal responsibility, and the belief in religious toleration; and I have endeavoured to trace their roots and to examine their growth at certain points in English history." (Introd) Index.

"The substance and spirit of any book are so inseparable from its style that perhaps it should be said, explicitly, this book is written in an English style that is a delight to the mind and ear. History can also be literature, and this is." W. E. Garrison
+ Christian Century 67:1296 N 1 '50 1500w

"Professor Clark, himself, describes the contrasts between the eighteenth, nineteenth, and twentieth centuries in the general attitude towards Christianity—both the heartsearchings among all denominations as well as the trend towards disbelief. His essay is a hopeful sign that, as the waters are being troubled, this is the moment when honest thinkers may see the light that quickens them." Leila Flower
+ Christian Science Monitor p12 Ag 15 '50 420w

"This valuable book should not be judged by its early chapters, which possibly need a second reading to disclose their value. Both author and publisher are to be congratulated on this timely effort to produce an 'essay on the effects of the Christian religion on the English inheritance.' " W. G. Moore
+ Hibbert J 49:87 O '50 550w

Manchester Guardian p4 Je 16 '50 360w

"A crisply written, sometimes amusing, consistently provocative essay on the foundations of contemporary England." P. R. Levin
+ Sat R of Lit 33:47 O 14 '50 340w

"This book raises important issues, and, without fastening itself in a rigid manner to its stated theme, passes comment on great phases of English history. . . It is possible, however, that certain difficulties of style and exposition will not always make his argument easy for the general reader whom he has in mind. On certain peaks, where he makes a point that might well have baffled expression, his thought may condense itself into rare and happy forms of succinct statement. At times, however, the prose bulges into Baroque or billows out in booming rotundities."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p429 Jl 14 '50 5300w

CLARK, GRAVES GLENWOOD. Thomas Alva Edison; il. by Millard McGee. 165p $2.50 Aladdin

B or 92 Edison, Thomas Alva—Juvenile literature

Biography of Edison for children of nine and older. The book begins with the exciting story of Edison's father's escape from Canada in 1837, and the settlement of the family in the United States, and ends with the death of Edison in 1931.

Booklist 46:306 Je 1 '50

"Since this is not full of imaginary conversations, it will be a preferred biography in many places. The format is excellent." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 26:201 My '50 90w

"This biography of the great inventor should fascinate any prospective scientist or inventor. Although liberally buttered with contrived dialogue of the 'remarks-we-doubt-ever-were-made' variety, the style is readable and entertaining. . . After the early years, Edison's private life is sketched very lightly, with the bulk of the book concerned with the great inventions dramatized in detail by the author in simple lucid language. . . With its large print and attractive format, this is a worthwhile addition to school libraries."

+ — Kirkus 18:237 Ap 15 '50 150w

"Any boy (or girl) over ten with the slightest interest in science will be fascinated by this both for its graphic style and for its accurate, non-technical explanations of inventions." Margaret Scoggin

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p17 My 7 '50 150w

"This spirited biography fills a real place between the easy-to-read childhood lives, and the mature needs of the teen-aged reader. One hopes that this is the first of a series of important biographies in the same inviting format." Eleanor Brent

+ N Y Times p20 Ag 13 '50 180w

Wis Lib Bul 46:20 Je '50

CLARK, GRENVILLE. Plan for peace. 83p $1 Harper

341.67 Peace. Disarmament 50-12659

"The thesis of this volume is that disarmament is the crux of the problem of world order, and that only disarmament in all arms and by all nations will suffice. To be feasible and effective, it is shown that disarmament must be supported by institutions of world law through a world federation of universal membership, with a structure of a federal nature, whereby all powers not expressly delegated would be reserved to the nations and their peoples. . . It is assumed that this creation of a limited world government can best be achieved by basic revision of the present United Nations Charter, and detailed proposals are made for Charter amendment, including a plan for disarmament by stages and for a United Nations Peace Force." Foreword

Reviewed by Neil Martin

Christian Science Monitor p6 D 16 '50 300w

Kirkus 18:581 S 15 '50 120w

Reviewed by Albert Guerard

Nation 171:647 D 16 '50 550w

"A wealth of practical experience and the resources of a powerful intelligence have been combined in this book to define the one rational hope that this reviewer can discern in the gathering darkness." Cord Meyer

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 N 5 '50 1000w

"All things considered, this book seems to the reviewer easily the sanest and wisest plan for action thus far presented. . . Grenville Clark has been a highly successful leader in other groups of private citizens who have initiated movements signally important to the national welfare (the Plattsburg officer training camps of 1915-17; the Selective Service Act of 1940). The vitality of our way of life depends—more than upon any other single factor—on the extent to which individual citizens feel a personal responsibility for the policies of their government and for the role of their country in the world. This book calls for action." Clyde Kluckhohn

+ N Y Times p4 N 5 '50 800w

"If non-violence and security were the first concern of mankind, 'A Plan for Peace' might easily be a satisfactory blueprint for the planet. But the first concern of democratic peoples is not peace but freedom, and the first concern of the Politburo is not peace but Communist expansion. A community becomes a government when it embraces a complete set of positive principles; the weakness in Mr. Clark's proposal is that he attempts to jump the gun and create a government around the single negative principle of no fighting. . . When Mr. Clark comes to grips with this matter of ideologies and the East-West contest, he doesn't make out a convincing case." E. B. White

+ — New Yorker 26:178 N 18 '50 1300w

"I shall not attempt to summarize Grenville Clark's concrete proposals: his book is so admirably compact that the reader would do well to ponder every word he has written." Lewis Mumford

+ Sat R of Lit 33:13 N 25 '50 950w

Reviewed by Ted Southworth

Springf'd Republican p12D D 3 '50 200w

CLARK, SIR KENNETH. Landscape painting [Eng title: Landscape into art]. 147p 104pl $5 Scribner

758.1 Landscape painting 50-6065

Based on lectures which the author gave during his first year as Slade professor at the University of Oxford. In them he discusses the development of landscape painting as an independent art; the four ways of viewing landscape as a means of pictorial expression; and several recent schools of landscape painting. Contains 104 reproductions of paintings and an index.

Booklist 46:258 Ap 15 '50

Reviewed by Dorothy Adlow

+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Ag 7 '50 350w

Reviewed by Anne Fremantle

Commonweal 52:251 Je 16 '50 850w

"It is graphically descriptive and enlightening for the serious student of this art, and an excellent reference book for all art courses."

+ Kirkus 18:83 F 1 '50 100w

"The fourfold classification is valuable, but it is only intended to apply to European art; Chinese and Japanese landscapes do not come within the scope of this book. . . Perhaps some day Sir Kenneth will expand his four categories to include the East and will find there ideas of a slightly different kind, ideas which might even have some validity to-day. In the meantime here is an acute and perceptive essay—a well-illustrated one too, though it is a pity the sizes of the original pictures are not given." Stephen Bone

+ Manchester Guardian p4 N 22 '49 480w

"Sir Kenneth is at his best in his chapters on landscape painting in the nineteenth century. In this, I feel, he is not unique, for the best criticism of this moment, in both art and literature, seems to be centered on the nineteenth century. . . However, Sir Kenneth does not fare so well in dealing with the present state of landscape painting and in explaining the reasons for that state. Here, venturing into extra-aesthetic considerations, he can produce only second-hand opinions and some head-shaking about the new science's attack upon the unity of nature." Clement Greenberg

+ — Nation 170:381 Ap 22 '50 650w

"The new Slade Professor has a central theme, and whether one agrees or disagrees with it is of no great consequence; for the value of a fine critic's comment does not depend on the soundness of his doctrine. What does matter is that Sir Kenneth has at his command four instruments: a turn for historical generalization based on knowledge, the scholar's gift of drawing inferences from apparently disconnected facts and slight indications, expository power and, above all, a love of painting; best with these, he is the properest man alive to 'make our English youth care somewhat for the arts.' " Clive Bell

+ New Statesman & Nation 38:616 N 26 '49 2100w

"One of the most interesting and important books on a general subject in art to appear for a long time. It is not, as he states in his

CLARK, KENNETH—Continued
introduction, a treatise on the history of landscape painting." J. J. Sweeney
+ N Y Times p7 Mr 19 '50 750w

"The reader may not always agree with Sir Kenneth. . . His omissions are no accidents, though some will come as a surprise. Others may object to the author's analysis of individual artists. . . But in no way can it be denied that his book offers very stimulating reading. Its brilliant style and penetrating definitions are strangely accentuated by occasional lapses into colloquialisms and generalizations. Were it not for these, one might never suspect that this book is based on lectures. Nonetheless Sir Kenneth emerges from this form of 'suicide' as much alive as ever." John Rewald
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:43 Ap 1 '50 550w

"No other living writer on art could have treated his subject with greater clarity than Sir Kenneth Clark. . . Sir Kenneth never fails to explain himself immediately, and his command of language is exemplary. Words are not used loosely." Derek Hill
+ Spec 183:610 N 4 '49 750w

"Sir Kenneth Clark's observations on modern art arise logically out of the study of the history of landscape painting which forms the text of his book. . . On this historical framework Sir Kenneth Clark discusses the work of those artists who best display his thesis with simplicity, scholarship, imagination, and his own brand of dry wit. But he refuses to forbid his sympathies complete freedom, and can talk of the two greatest periods for the creation of art as being the age of the Parthenon and the age of Chartres."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p781 D 2 '49 4400w

"An excellent reference book for art courses."
+ Wis Lib Bul 46:18 My '50

CLARK, MARK WAYNE. Calculated risk. 500p il maps $5 Harper

940.542 World war, 1939-1945—Campaigns and battles. World war, 1939-1945—Personal narratives, American 50-10324

General Clark's own account of the allied campaign in Italy, and his part in it. He takes us thru the North African campaign, Italy, and more briefly to Austria and Moscow. Illustrated with photographs. Index.

"To me, this is a fascinating book. Clark was always in the inside of things. . . I could not begin to do justice to this book in the space allotted me. When I read it, I started to put slips at the pages which I thought should be noted in a review. And I found I had put them about every third page. That is his story and, when they have read the book, nine readers out of ten will agree with him." R. E. Danielson
+ Atlantic 186:85 N '50 1150w
Booklist 47:1; 93 S 1 '50; N 1 '50
Bookmark 10:29 N '50 40w

"This is a tremendously interesting book. In addition to his bold indifference to hostile critics, the author displays many other engaging qualities—a strain of MacArthur, a dash of Patton, and a keener sense of humor than either of these." Joseph McSorley
+ Cath World 172:236 D '50 500w

Reviewed by J. H. Thompson
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 O 29 '50 950w

Reviewed by J. G. Harrison
Christian Science Monitor p14 O 24 '50 750w
Current Hist 19:290 N '50 100w

"Honest, forceful, colorful, this is one of the best books to come from World War II's top brass, but it is to be remembered that the majority of them have met with general reader reluctance."
+ Kirkus 18:457 Ag 1 '50 280w

Reviewed by Donald Wasson
Library J 75:1503 S 17 '50 100w

"Gen. Clark's strictures on the political direction of the war, like his defense of the arrangements with the Vichyites in Africa, are, at the very least, debatable. This will not detract, however, from the solid merits of his book which is at once a valuable history of the Italian campaign and a moving tribute to the men who fought in what must have seemed to be the forgotten corner of the war." G. A. Craig
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 O 22 '50 1500w

"An uneven job. It is most rewarding when Clark is writing about the long and bitter struggle up in Italy by the troops of the Fifth and Eighth Armies, and least rewarding when the general, who is not one to hide his light under a bushel, is describing his triumphs among French politicians in Algiers, elucidating his ideas on grand strategy and repeating some of the stock jokes of World War II, jokes which were well worn by 1942." Drew Middleton
+ — N Y Times p1 O 22 '50 1450w
New Yorker 26:132 O 28 '50 250w

"People not at a command level might well blow up at some of his interpretations. But they are honest ones, as presented here. General Clark has a terrific story to tell—from the fly-blown cities of North Africa to his job as American Commissioner in Austria after the war. All in all it's one of the better for-the-record books by a commanding general." William Hogan
+ San Francisco Chronicle p21 O 22 '50 450w

"One of the most thoroughly organized, skilfully written, and informative military memoirs in our literature. It sustains interest to the final paragraph through a delicate balancing of humor, human-interest values, good descriptive reporting, unusual candor in part, and the frequent delivery of hard-boiled opinions on tactics, strategy, and politics, often quite arbitrary. If Mark W. Clark is not aware that his pen is as good as his sword, and perhaps cuts even cleaner, it would be a pity if public response to his writing did not so inform him." S. L. A. Marshall
+ Sat R of Lit 33:10 O 21 '50 950w

Reviewed by Donald Derby
Springf'd Republican p3D N 19 '50 480w

CLARK, RONALD W. Early Alpine guides [il. from phots. by William de Wyvelesile Abney, and others]. 208p maps $4.50 Scribner

796.521 Mountaineering. Alps—Description and travel 50-528

A series of short biographies of the first great Alpine guides, based partly on The Pioneers of the Alps, by C. D. Cunningham and Sir William Abney, published sixty years ago. The material for other accounts was found in climbers' narratives and mountaineering journals. Five of the illustrations are from Whymper's engravings; the rest of the portraits are reproductions of Abney's photographs for The Pioneers. In his book Clark groups the guides by their districts. Table of principal ascents. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by Ernestine Evans
Commonweal 52:206 Je 2 '50 100w
Kirkus 18:14 Ja 1 '50 180w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 75:404 Mr 1 '50 40w

"Mr. Clark has collected a great deal of interesting material and his presentation is so attractive that he will be read with pleasure not only by those to whom most of his stories are new, but also by those who are familiar with his sources, but who will be glad to be reminded of the Golden Age of mountaineering." Arnold Lunn
+ New Statesman & Nation 38:787 D 31 '49 850w

"Simplicity and courage marked these men. This book about them is overloaded with detail, but Mr. Clark has captured their spirit." W. B. Hayward
+ N Y Times p27 F 12 '50 240w

"Mr. Clark's appreciations are just, as well as very readable. I only differ again over the term 'gentleman's gentleman' as descriptive of Melchior Anderegg's manners. The great Melchior had a patrician courtesy and dignity, with no touch of subservience. Nor should the great Christian Almer be contrasted with him as more of the 'peasant.' Both were types to be found among our own peasantry, natural aristocrats and masterful men in their own spheres, reserved, and the one more gentle the other more brusque in outside contacts. The book is attractively presented and well timed." G. W. Young

+ — Spec 183:692 N 18 '49 750w

Times [London] Lit Sup p44 Ja 20 '50 1400w

CLARK, SYDNEY AYLMER. All the best in Holland. 266p il $4 Dodd

914.92 Netherlands—Description and travel 50-9803

A practical guide book which answers nearly all the possible questions about present-day Netherlands. Includes material on the recovery of Holland under the Marshall plan. Index.

Booklist 47:59 O 1 '50

Reviewed by Beach Conger

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p23 N 26 '50 230w

"The thing that you will appreciate about Clark is the clear fact that he discusses enough history and culture and industry to brush you up but, more than that, he offers you the benefit of his experience with restaurants and hotels, giving an inkling of the rates and an appraisal of the cuisine."

+ Sat R of Lit 33:48 N 18 '50 170w

CLARK, WALTER VAN TILBURG. Watchful gods, and other stories. 306p $2.75 Random house 50-9687

A collection of nine short stories and one novella. Contents: Hook; The wind and the snow of winter; The rapids; The anonymous; The buck in the hills; Why don't you look where you're going?; The Indian well; The fish who could close his eyes; The portable phonograph; The watchful gods.

Booklist 47:75 O 15 '50

Reviewed by Mary Sandrock

Cath World 172:234 D '50 200w

"The final judgment on this collection, so far as I am called to give it, is that here are some good, sincere, appealing stories mixed up with some that display an overreaching for emotional content, and some so nebulous they just don't jell. You'll find some good reading in it, but don't be surprised if you find yourself wondering, at times, just what the author is trying to say." Kelsey Guilfoil

+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 O 8 '50 500w

"These [stories] make an interesting contrast with the author's three novels and display his ability to handle the short story techniques in competent manner. Clark's followers will form a definite market and in its specialized fiction field it will have importance."

+ Kirkus 18:399 Jl 15 '50 150w

Reviewed by J. E. Brown

Library J 75:1290 Ag '50 100w

"Mr. Clark appears in this collection of his short stories as a sensitive and cultivated writer, as much at home with knowledgeable outdoor men and their natural world as with intellectuals and academicians. . . This unlikely but graceful combination seems to be responsible for a prose style that is wiry, masculine, and mature, and that has produced almost by its own evocative power . . . a number of interesting stories, and one at least that is really superb. . . But when he attempts to utilize his remarkable feeling for the quality of man's relation to the natural elements—a matter of concern to few important American writers other than Faulkner—in order to assert a philosophical generalization, he is merely banal, as in Why Don't You Look Where You're Going?" Harvey Swados

+ — Nation 171:317 O 7 '50 750w

Reviewed by Richard Match

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 N 19 '50 600w

"The best stories in this book are the more or less outright 'nature' stories, and these, on hawks, coyotes, old trappers, water holes, road-runners, hunters, are told with the effortless charm of campfire yarns." Jean Garrigue

+ New Repub 123:20 D 25 '50 180w

"The first half of most of these stories is landscape and fauna in good prose. Then Mr. Clark tells us about a character, being scrupulous about those differentiated states of consciousness but pretty disdainful about men as against nature. Toward the end a second character comes on and abruptly the story begins to live. For, after all, he can write fiction when the coterie code isn't in his way. For this is coterie (or if you life, lazy) writing, full of low-grade Western mysticism about mountains, the desert, and the animals. . . Mr. Clark writes fine sentences, but he seldom bothers to give his characters life, and he simply refuses to impose on his material the form that might convince a reader he was sharing something worth his effort." Bernard De Voto

+ — N Y Times p9 S 24 '50 850w

New Yorker 26:137 O 21 '50 80w

"The thing about Mr. Clark in the short-story field is that when a story of his does what he wants it to, then it does it perfectly, but sometimes the purpose vanishes in a cloud of not-quite-clear suggestion. It could be that Mr. Clark likes to 'write' too much; his style and his attention to atmosphere and mood seem to take precedence too frequently over sharpness and definition in the story itself." J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p20 O 18 '50 650w

"If 'The Watchful Gods' does not achieve finally the significance of Mr. Clark's first novel, if it does not carry the weight of the collected stories of an Ernest Hemingway or a William Faulkner, it does, even so, become one of the few distinguished 'first collections' to appear in our time, comparable with such volumes as Hemingway's 'In Our Time,' Faulkner's 'These Thirteen,' Caroline Gordon's 'A Forest of the South,' and Eudora Welty's 'A Curtain of Green.'" R. B. West

+ Sat R of Lit 33:17 S 30 '50 700w

Wis Lib Bul 46:17 N '50

CLAUDEL, PAUL. The eye listens; tr. from the original French by Elsie Pell. 293p il $5 Philosophical lib.

704 Art 50-6877

"The present volume is a collection of sundry essays, some brief and ephemeral, others ranking among the most finished and the most suggestive that Claudel has written. Their underlying unity is to be sought in the author's approach to art, which is twofold: sensuous and spiritual, patiently attentive to the details of the picture or of the symphony, yet boldly mystical. A subtle correspondence is traced between the senses of sight and of hearing: Claudel wishes the lover of pictures to listen to them with receptivity instead of conquering them intellectually through the eye, the organ of active approval." N Y Times

"M. Claudel is very subjective, almost mystical, in his commentaries on art, in the brief essay on music, and still more so in the one on the pearl. He is concerned with what he sees only insofar as it may furnish a suggestion and serve as the starting point for the elevated thoughts and devout emotions which are the actual materials for his essays." W. E. G.

Christian Century 67:532 Ap 26 '50 280w

"Gide, Colette, Claudel, all aged 80 or almost, are among the most youthful of French writers. . . Paul Claudel is the youngest writer of France today. . . The longest and the finest essay in the book is Introduction to Dutch Painting composed by Claudel when he was French Ambassador in Brussels in 1934. It is not orthodox art criticism, but a magnificent re-creation of the Dutch landscape as the inspiration of the Dutch painters." Henri Peyre

+ N Y Times p5 My 14 '50 750w

CLAY, LUCIUS DU BIGNON. Decision in Germany. 522p $4.50 Doubleday

943.086 Germany—History—Allied occupation, 1945- 50-5813

"General Clay's story covers his four years in Germany—two as deputy military governor under General Eisenhower and General McNarney, and two as military governor. It is a candid account of the setting up of quadripartite government in Berlin, what went on behind the closed doors of the Allied Control Council (trouble with the Russians is what went on), of economic reconstruction and currency reform, of the breakdown of quadripartite government and the resultant blockade, and of the establishment of a West German government as a political fact." (New Yorker) Index.

"A lengthy chronicle of history-in-the making viewed from the top official level. As such its importance to the specialist and the historian is self-evident. So far as the general reader is concerned, it is my unpleasant duty to report that this is a disappointingly dull book. The writing, while simple and to the point, is definitely drab and fails to bring out the drama inherent in the General's story." C. J. Rolo

+ — Atlantic 185:76 Mr '50 800w

Booklist 46:197 F 15 '50

Bookmark 9:132 Mr '50 60w

"This is a good book and one cannot help mustering a human sympathy for its author who under the circumstances has done his best to rebuild a war-torn country and to promote good will." Erik Von Kuehnelt-Leddihn

+ Cath World 171:157 My '50 550w

"His book is a thorough, documented report on our German policy over the past four years. As a historical reference it is invaluable, though as reading it is often heavy-going." Emmett Dedmon

+ Chicago Sun p7 F 12 '50 360w

"Any historian, present or future, attempting to assess our times, particularly our relations with the Soviet Union, must henceforth consult 'Decision in Germany' if he is to write authoritatively. For that reason, if no other, Gen. Lucius D. Clay, a soft voiced southerner with a steel trap mind, has done his nation a service in setting down his record of the fateful years." J. H. Thompson

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 F 12 '50 550w

Reviewed by Max Fischer
Commonweal 51:560 Mr 3 '50 650w

Foreign Affairs 29:153 O '50 110w

Kirkus 17:671 D 1 '49 470w

"General Clay has added another great merit to his long list of achievements; his is by far the best book written by an American on post-war Germany. . . [A] volume which is indispensable in any college or public library." F. E. Hirsch

+ Library J 75:169 F 1 '50 150w

Reviewed by Edwin Hartrich
Nation 170:186 F 25 '50 1300w

Reviewed by A. Z. Carr
New Repub 122:17 Mr 6 '50 1550w

Reviewed by Aylmer Vallance
New Statesman & Nation 40:259 S 2 '50 700w

"The first authoritative and documented account of American policy and action in Germany during the four post-armistice years. . . The book is not written for those who want their information on Germany in easy, soothing doses, predigested and divorced from the hard details inherent in great and complicated issues. But for those who wish to follow the moves in the coming phases of our post-war relations with Germany this book furnishes an essential background, for it is against this background that our government must frame its future policy." A. W. Dulles

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 F 12 '50 2300w

"Gen. Lucius D. Clay's book comes at a most opportune time. . . [He] does not pose as an oracle about the outcome of these battles. . . But he does tell you why they are being fought and he provides a measure of solid assurance that—if the West remains true to its own political concepts—it can win. In his book, a modest report by a hero of the cold war, the former Military Governor in Germany has foregone the flamboyant, avoided recrimination, and offered no panaceas for the settlement of the German Question. If his report has a general fault, it is that he has been too kind and too considerate in his assessments of men and policies." Drew Middleton

+ N Y Times p1 F 12 '50 1750w

"General Clay shows himself to be a modest man; he disclaims any attempt at dispassionateness, but when one considers the trials his patience was put to his book seems pretty calm. It is also very informative. Many photographs."

+ New Yorker 25:101 F 18 '50 140w

"Clay's book cannot possibly be overlooked by either the student of international affairs or the general reader who prides himself on an awareness of the war and postwar years. . . It is understandable that Ambassador Douglas (State) should on one occasion have considered Clay (Army) 'jurisdictionally minded,' but it is a sad commentary on public administration. Yet, a reading of this book leaves one with a sense of pride in American achievement and, on balance, with a feeling of optimism." A. J. Rockwell

+ San Francisco Chronicle p12 F 12 '50 1650w

"This book is less than it might have been because of its author's systematic and soldier-like restraint. . . But if this truly excellent book suffers from omissions the reader must recall that it is because of the generosity of mind and spirit which is essential in those who assume responsibility for the destiny of millions of their fellow men. . . But, beyond its fact-filled analysis, this book provides an unusual insight into Lucius Clay, American Military Governor in Germany. To most readers it will outline an unusually able public servant who was unswerving in his devotion to his country's purpose. To those who served with him it will be one more mark of a man of lasting proportions." Edward Litchfield

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:15 F 18 '50 1250w

Reviewed by John Midgley
Spec 184:322 S 22 '50 900w

Reviewed by Donald Derby
Springf'd Republican p12C My 21 '50 380w

Reviewed by W. R. Deuel
Survey 86:88 F '50 2100w

"General Clay has written, not for the contemporary reader in search of sensational news or of pleasant and informative relaxation, but rather for the future historian. . . The book retains something of its semi-official origin, and long passages read like excerpts from official memoranda interspersed with comments and recollections of a more personal kind. Its value for the student is increased by 50 pages of 'footnotes' at the end, containing detailed references to sources, mainly American documents."

Times [London] Lit Sup p560 S 8 '50 1400w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:188 Je '50 280w

"Valuable in creating understanding of the situation in Germany during the four years of General Clay's direction. . . His tone is hopeful, but certainly makes clear the seriousness of the situation."

+ Wis Lib Bul 46:17 Ap '50

"Unfortunately, the author's personality does not emerge very clearly, for he has told his story in the driest of army prose, which deprives the report of its drama and will almost certainly deter the casual reader. The book remains, however, one of the outstanding and most authoritative analyses of a critical stage of world history; in fact, the unassuming restraint of its presentation gives added testimony to the unswerving and courageous work of a great public servant." Sigmund Neumann

+ — Yale R n s 39:735 summer '50 850w

CLAY, LUCIUS DU BIGNON. Germany and the fight for freedom. 83p $2 Harvard univ. press

943.086 Germany—History—Allied occupation, 1945- 50-14887

"This is essentially a condensed version of the author's 'Decision in Germany.' . . The little volume contains the three Godkin lectures General Clay delivered at Harvard in the early spring of 1950, with a few additions reflecting on developments up to the summer of this year." (Christian Science Monitor) In his preface General Clay describes his book as "devoted to our efforts to secure a free Europe as a part of a stable and peaceful world."

Booklist 47:93 N 1 '50

Reviewed by G. J. Scharschug
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 O 22 '50 360w

Reviewed by Ernest Pisko
+ — Christian Science Monitor p18 O 27 '50 220w

Current Hist 19:289 N '50 70w

"Will be helpful to adult readers with limited leisure and to college and high school students in search of fundamental information on one of the most complex problems of our time. Heartily recommended for this purpose." F. E. Hirsch
+ Library J 75:2076 D 1 '50 130w

"Implicit in this book, as in Clay's earlier, full-dress apologia, Decision in Germany, is his conviction that the major policy decisions which he made have been uniformly justified by subsequent events. It is no reflection on his sincerity and conscientiousness as an administrator to doubt that all is now for the best in the best of all possible Germanys." A. Z. Carr
New Repub 123:17 N 27 '50 450w

San Francisco Chronicle p20 D 3 '50 150w

CLEARY, BEVERLY. Henry Huggins; il. by Louis Darling. 155p $2 Morrow 50-8615

The trials of Henry Huggins, aged nine or thereabouts, who adopted a stray dog, and found himself in hot water from that day to the end of this story. For ages eight to twelve.

Booklist 47:46 S 15 '50

"One of those rare items—a genuinely funny book."
+ Bookmark 10:11 O '50 30w

Reviewed by A. L. Shea
Chicago Sunday Tribune p15 O 22 '50 50w

Christian Science Monitor p11 N 13 '50 20w

Cleveland Open Shelf p23 D '50

Horn Bk 26:372 S '50 50w

"Enchanting small-boy adventures."
+ Kirkus 18:386 Jl 15 '50 160w

"Author made a mistake in referring to Henry in the first sentence as being in third grade; he acts and talks like a fourth- or fifth-grader. Definitely not in a class with Homer Price but still very funny. . . Recommended." M. E. Martignoni
+ — Library J 75:1513 S 15 '50 80w

"This is everyday life as children know it. Maybe Henry is a little luckier than the average boy, but he's not really any funnier. He just seems that way, which is fine." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p42 O 22 '50 180w

New Yorker 26:179 D 2 '50 60w

San Francisco Chronicle p30 D 10 '50 180w

Sat R of Lit 33:48 N 11 '50 100w

CLEETON, GLEN URIEL. Making work human. 326p $3.75 Antioch press

331.01 Psychology, Applied. Work 50-5489

"'Work can be made fully as satisfying as leisure-time activities.' Qualities fundamental to human action are isolated and discussed on a philosophical plane, then applied by relating to them the major areas in which adjustment is required: placement opportunity, education, rewards, supervision. A final chapter provides a setting for the same adjustment of human relations problems by application of research and judgment rather than intuition and prejudice." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 Mr 26 '50 30w

Current Hist 18:230 Ap '50 40w

"A valuable appendix ties in the case studies created in the bibliographical references to the problems treated in the text. Well designed to help attain the promise of the title." J. E. Cross
+ Library J 75:402 Mr 1 '50 90w

School & Society 71:63 Ja 28 '50 20w

CLELAND, ROBERT GLASS. This reckless breed of men; the trappers and fur traders of the Southwest. 361p il maps $4 Knopf

979 Frontier and pioneer life—Southwest. Fur trade. West—History 50-6356

A study of the lives and adventures of the fur trappers and traders, the "mountain men," who worked over a large section of the western part of the United States, from the Columbia river to Salt Lake to Santa Fe south to the head of the Gulf of California. The period covered by their activities is from 1820 to 1840. Bibliography. Index.

"Like his other works this is written in a scholarly, quiet, but interesting way. He has plentifully illustrated the book with old prints, facsimiles of documents and good photographs; the frontispiece is a color plate. The apparatus includes a good bibliography and an adequate index. It is not easy to see how any scholar in this field or indeed any lover of frontier days and ways could fail to add this volume to his shelf." Stanley Vestal
+ Am Hist R 55:919 Jl '50 480w

Booklist 46:260; 265 Ap 15 '50

"The book is packed with fresh information, quotations from little known authorities, lively debates about controversial matters, and interpretations and bits of insight which inspire the reader's respect. One regrets that the scope of the book does not permit more biography of individuals. The whole is written in a lively but quiet and scholarly style." Stanley Vestal
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Mr 19 '50 350w

Kirkus 18:83 F 1 '50 180w

"This volume offers a vivid account of the super-human exploits and incredible hardships which these men underwent in their search for furs and new trapping grounds. The author has based his material on contemporary sources and his skillful coordination of these fragmentary records provides an almost first-hand account of the Great Southwest as it existed in the early 1800's." J. E. Brown
+ Library J 75:562 Ap 1 '50 130w

Nation 170:582 Je 10 '50 90w

"One hesitates to quarrel, even mildly, with this volume. I am inclined to take exceptions here and there, but on trifling points. . . Above such quibblings stands an overall excellence. Dr. Cleland knows the sources of information and has had the good fortune of access to them. Dozens of manuscripts, periodicals and books have come under his scrutiny and assessment. It is obvious that he loves his subject." A. B. Guthrie
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Mr 12 '50 800w

"From the time of the appearance of Pattie's 'Personal Narrative' in 1831, through Washington Irving's popularization shortly thereafter of the chronicles of Astoria and Bonneville, good books have been accumulating about the mountain men, especially in biography and general treatment. . . 'This Reckless Breed of Men' is in scope, readability, knowledge and wisdom an original and worthy addition to this body of literature." J. F. Dobie
+ N Y Times p7 Mr 12 '50 750w

CLELAND, R. G.—Continued

"Well illustrated with old prints and four maps showing the region with which the narrative is concerned, it is a readable, accurate, lively and thoroughly documented account of a significant episode in the building of the U.S. Further, it covers a hitherto neglected area." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 Mr 14 '50 950w

"Any reader who is at all curious to know what part the fur trade played in opening up the West, how the business was conducted, who were its leaders, and what hardships the trappers endured on their incredibly long treks into regions never before penetrated by white men will find the answers to most of their questions here, lucidly set forth and preserving so much of the feel and flavor of the period as to persuade many to hunt out and read the first-hand narratives upon which this survey is largely based." Oscar Lewis

+ Sat R of Lit 33:12 Ap 8 '50 850w

Time 55:96 Ap 3 '50 700w

"Dr. Cleland's volume is a valuable addition to Southwest history and to the study of the fur trade. It is unobtrusively but thoroughly documented, with much of its matter drawn from little-used original sources. The author has lost none of the drama of the 'mountain men' in telling their story."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:212 Je '50 240w

Wis Lib Bul 46:21 My '50

Reviewed by J. F. Dobie

Yale R n s 40:182 autumn '50 360w

CLEMENT, HAL, pseud. See Stubbs, H. C.

CLEVELAND, CHARLES BLAIR. Great baseball managers. 250p il $3 Crowell

796.357 Baseball—Biography 50-6891

"Behind-the-scenes baseball as seen through the careers of great baseball managers from the rough-and-tumble days of 'Pop' Anson to Casey Stengel who master-minded the crippled Yankees through the 1949 season to win the World Series. Packed into the stories of these famous managers are intimate sidelights and legendary stories of great diamond figures who made the managers great." Booklist

Booklist 46:271 My 1 '50

Chicago Sun p4 My 23 '50 170w

"These accounts of the great managers of today and yesterday are painted largely in highlights, with little apparent effort to make the picture a complete and rounded one. But the lack of depth is more than compensated for by a wealth of color and anecdote and the book is amazingly interesting." Bob Cromie

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 My 7 '50 100w

"We get a fine picture of inside baseball at its best. Dyed in the wool fans, from old timers to boys, will love it."

+ Kirkus 18:122 F 15 '50 140w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson

Library J 75:778 My 1 '50 20w

Reviewed by John Lardner

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 My 14 '50 50w

Reviewed by Rex Lardner

N Y Times p14 My 28 '50 90w

"It is a very readable book as well as an informing one. Boys and their fathers as well as their sisters and mothers will find it invaluable."

+ Sat R of Lit 33:44 My 13 '50 100w

Reviewed by Robert Cousins

Sat R of Lit 33:19 Je 10 '50 150w

CLEWES, WINSTON DAVID ARMSTRONG. Troy and the maypole. 248p $3 Knopf

50-7366

A study of four friends, three boys, and a girl, from childhood thru the early years of their adulthood. The place is an English seacoast town; the time, between the two wars.

Booklist 46:335 Jl 1 '50

Reviewed by Richard Sullivan

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Je 25 '50 360w

"In this account of comradeship, love, callous egotism, and exasperating, sacrificial reticence at the wrong moment, against the background of a small English city and the fascist movement of the 1930's, Mr. Clewes writes with 'inspired commonplaceness' and refreshing, quietly exact craftsmanship."

+ Christian Science Monitor p8 Je 24 '50 210w

"Finely drawn with a clean flavorful style that sets this well above the average run."

+ Kirkus 18:245 Ap 15 '50 170w

"The novel is carefully written, but unfortunately lacks the vital spark which made the author's Journey Into Spring so absorbing. That was spontaneous; this one seems written as a none too grateful task. But it's well worth reading." E. F. Walbridge

+ Library J 75:862 My 15 '50 110w

"Nostalgic, gentle, the autobiographical tone keeps this novel on much too modest and literal a basis, so that at no time do you meet with more than the conventional surfaces of reality." Jean Garrigue

New Repub 123:21 O 16 '50 170w

"The apparent reticence and simplicity of this fourth novel by Mr. Clewes conceal the ingenuity with which he has handled what is in fact a most meaningful and dramatic story." Iris Barry

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 Je 18 '50 600w

"Mr. Clewes' nostalgic recollections of childhood are of the kind that unfortunately strike the reader as less important than they do the writer. Altogether, 'Troy and the Maypole' suggests a writer who is—only momentarily, it is to be hoped—very tired." David Davidson

— N Y Times p25 Je 25 '50 180w

"A wry, nostalgic, somewhat spiritless novel. . . Mr. Clewes' wan, pensive way of writing is well suited to the expression of his lesson, which is that as life goes on we become older and less inclined to jollity of spirit."

+ — New Yorker 26:107 Je 10 '50 100w

"Flaccid in language and flaccid in plot, this dreary novel about a dreary set of people has little to recommend it." Anthony West

— Sat R of Lit 33:35 Jl 1 '50 280w

"Mr. Winston Clewes is neat, lively, unaffected, yet never leaves the reader in doubt for a moment as to what is coming." R. D. Charques

+ — Spec 183:754 N 25 '49 40w

CLIFFORD, JAMES LOWRY, and LANDA, LOUIS A., eds. Pope and his contemporaries; essays presented to George Sherburn. 286p il $6 Oxford

820.4 Pope, Alexander. English literature—History and criticism. Sherburn, George Wiley 50-2790

"Among contemporary scholars who have put eighteenth century studies on a new basis, George Sherburn holds high place. To honor him, eighteen of his fellow-scholars have joined in this Festschrift. Twelve of them are American and six are British; their topics range from minute exegesis to broad philosophic discussion, but all are chosen from the life and thought of the half-century which closed just two hundred years ago." N Y Herald Tribune Bk R

"The well-known scholars who are jointly responsible for this volume all write out of rich backgrounds and a thorough familiarity with the period. The casual reader who picks up this book will be amazed at the painstaking investigations which have been carried into every avenue of eighteenth century life and literature in an effort to enlarge our understanding of the achievements of thinking men in the 'usable past.'" C. T. Houpt

+ Christian Science Monitor p14 F 18 '50 480w

"Some rather dry offerings. Mr. Harold Williams has contributed a most scholarly and interesting essay on Swift's early biographers and Mr. James Sutherland a good general defence of John Gay, but for the general reader the collection is a little forbidding."

New Statesman & Nation 39:284 Mr 11 '50 180w

Reviewed by DeLancey Ferguson
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Ap 16 '50 550w

"This Festschrift volume is a dignified and deserved tribute to one of the deans of eighteenth-century scholarship in this country. In its eighteen essays, most of them devoted to Pope and Swift, a variety of approaches shows how fruitfully that period can be cultivated; it also shows how the traditional approaches to scholarly research, if flexibly and intelligently handled, can illuminate and enliven an epoch." Robert Halsband
+ Sat R of Lit 33:17 Jl 8 '50 270w

Times [London] Lit Sup p87 F 10 '50 750w

Reviewed by R. S. Crane
Yale R n s 39:753 summer '50 500w

CLIFT, CHARMIAN (MRS GEORGE HENRY JOHNSTON), and JOHNSTON, GEORGE HENRY. High valley. 313p $3 Bobbs
50-7494

The scene is a remote valley in Tibet, where dwelt a small pastoral tribe. Salom, a Chinese youth whose father had perished in Tibet, returned to China, but found things difficult to deal with there. An herb peddler told him of the valley, where all was peace and happiness, so Salom made his way back to Tibet. When he found the valley he also found happiness for a period, and then tragedy ended his dream.

Booklist 46:316 Je 15 '50

"A refreshingly vital novel about intrigue in modern Tibet. Enjoy it as a tightly paced adventure story in an unusual but firmly drawn setting. Ignore the murky symbolism which beclouds the action and is the one weakness of a vigorous book." Mary Sandrock
+ Cath World 171:395 Ag '50 160w

"'High Valley' is a novel that puts to shame all previous attempts to put the strange and mysterious land of Tibet into fiction, and it evokes a fresh sense of the dignity and freedom of the soul which is not bound by circumstances. . . Seldom has such a story been told, so completely realistic in setting and tone, yet approaching the purest of poetry in language and feeling. The authors have spared none of the harsh details of life in the valley, but have managed to make the reader see that the triumph of life is the indomitable soul." Kelsey Guilfoil
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 My 28 '50 470w

Christian Science Monitor p8 Je 24 '50 270w

"The book is most painstakingly done, and there is nothing to cavil at: yet it is utterly and entirely fabricated, synthetic. Every detail, perfect in itself, is what the French call 'trop voulu'—too willed, like the fake wormholes in antiquated furniture. But if anyone likes to drink their cocktails, admirably blended, but ready-made from a bottle bought at the grocers, here for them is Tibet." Anne Fremantle
+ — Commonweal 52:445 Ag 11 '50 200w

Reviewed by H. I'A. Fausset
Manchester Guardian p4 F 10 '50 130w

"'High Valley' is a work of collaboration between George Johnston, who is said to have provided the 'substance' of the story, and his wife, Charmian Clift, who supplied the artistic 'burnish.' The stylistic gloss is appropriate to the romantic subject matter, but one wishes that the Johnstons had chosen to tell a story that calls less frequently for a suspension of the reader's disbelief." Stephen Stepanchev
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 My 21 '50 950w

"A vigorous, readable story." Richard Sullivan
+ N Y Times p26 My 21 '50 550w

"This story has an inevitable strangeness and as much adventure as anyone could ask for, but the writing stiffens up too often and the authors seem anxious to give the role of the appealing, ill-fated Salom much more significance than it actually has."
+ — New Yorker 26:100 Je 3 '50 130w

"As a story of the lives of a people thousands of miles and hundreds of years apart from our own, 'High Valley' is a fascinating story indeed. But where it departs into philosophizing—somewhere between Rousseau and Buddha—and it does, quite often, it flounders badly. If Miss Clift and Mr. Johnston had taken themselves less seriously, they might have written a better book." M. M. R.
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p17 Ag 6 '50 250w

"If what you ask of a novel is that it be a good story skilfully told, then Mr. and Mrs. Johnston's yarn of life in far Tibet is your meat and drink. . . This story in its own terms makes sense and serves as the vehicle for an account of life, labor, and religion among Tibetan pastoralists. The data are woven into the narrative with great skill." C. H. Grattan
+ Sat R of Lit 33:28 My 27 '50 550w

Time 55:116 My 22 '50 390w

"In its picture of a primitive community the book is extraordinarily persuasive and interesting; but the story of defeated love which occupies the foreground of the novel has not, unfortunately, a similar credibility."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p165 Mr 17 '50 150w

CLIFTON, CHARLES EGOLF. Introduction to the bacteria. 528p il $5 McGraw 589.95 Bacteriology 50-8122

A college textbook which gives a general introduction to the nature and activities of bacteria. The author is professor of bacteriology at Stanford university. Chapter bibliographies. Index.

"The treatment provides a broad background for the general student as well as an understanding into which detailed information can be fitted if the student continues in this field of science."
Eng N 145:43 Ag 10 '50 70w

"Although the book is too detailed and technical to be suitable for general reading by the average lay reader, it can be used as a reference book to answer laymen's questions on numerous topics." R. R. Hawkins
Library J 75:1300 Ag '50 100w

CLINCHY, EVERETT ROSS. Intergroup relations centers; pub. for the Louis J. and Mary E. Horowitz foundation, incorporated. 54p $1.50 Farrar, Straus
301.152 Intercultural education

Outlines the basis and the need, the mechanics and the promise, of semi-institutionalized bodies whose functions will be research, the training of educators, and the diagnosis and treatment of community disorders, especially such as involve discrimination and intergroup prejudices." Canadian Forum

"Some indications of the over-all sanity of Dr. Clinchy's scheme may be found in his demand that not only social scientists but teachers of the humanities, of theology, of business, and others, shall contribute their quota to the work of such bodies; in his depreciation of 'high-flown jargon.'" R. E. K. Pemberton
+ Canadian Forum 29:263 F '50 300w

"I'm afraid the case is presented in too abstract a form for this to serve as a catalytic agent. For the general public, it should be brought down to cases."
Kirkus 17:318 Je 15 '49 130w

"Brief, clear presentation of an important idea. Recommended for all but the smallest collections." R. E. Kingery
+ Library J 74:1204 S 1 '49 190w

Reviewed by F. A. Dolton
School R 58:240 Ap '50 1000w

CLINTON, KENNETH. Let's read the Bible. 149p $2 Macmillan

220 Bible. Whole 50-5691

"Begins with a frank recognition that the Bible is not read today as it used to be and as it could be. . . Reasons for our neglect of Bible reading are stated with no attempt to gloss over unpleasant facts. Practical suggestions for increased and for more effective Bible reading are made, and selections from the Bible are quoted to induce the reader to go to the source for further inspiration and help." (Publisher's note) Bibliography. No index.

"The book is elementary, practical, and pastoral." W. E. Garrison

Christian Century 67:146 F 1 '50 500w

"Some paragraphs will stimulate and enlighten because they indicate the richness and vitality of the scriptures, but unfortunately these passages are infrequent. The impact of the volume is considerably lessened by a style which has no surprises and many hesitations." Wilson Bennett

Churchman 164:19 Ap 15 '50 150w

"This book is a persuasive call for a renewal amongst us of the reading of the Bible, together with some very practical suggestions as to how such reading can be arranged in the family group or by individuals. The author . . . succeeds in this book in communicating to the reader his love of the Bible, and at the same time he knows how it may be made meaningful by discriminating and intelligent selection."

+ Kirkus 17:649 D 1 '49 130w

"His exhortation is timely and it is to be hoped that it will reach many minds and create a response in many hearts." O. J. Aldrich

+ Springf'd Republican p8C Mr 5 '50 250w

CLISSOLD, STEPHEN. Whirlwind; an account of Marshal Tito's rise to power. 245p maps $3.75 Philosophical lib.

949.7 Tito, Josip Broz, known as. Yugoslavia—Politics and government 49-50303

"A record of the momentous events which culminated in the Communist revolution in Yugoslavia and helped to bring the whole strategic area of the Balkans behind the 'Iron Curtain.' . . [The author] takes us not only into the coffeehouses of Zagreb to meet Tito, but into the minds of the men who made the Revolution." (Publisher's note) Index.

Am Pol Sci R 44:509 Je '50 20w

"The total result is unavoidably confusing; one is, in fact, not quite sure, after reading the book, whether Tito is an outstanding charismatic leader of the modern age, or another cheap politician who has broken his pledges. Otherwise the book is really entertaining, and frequently singularly innocent. The result is a curious mixture which both stimulates and disappoints." J. S. Roucek

+ — Ann Am Acad 268:203 Mr '50 290w

"Despite the style which he adopted, the English writer speaks with considerable authority." G. J. Scharschug

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 F 5 '50 420w

"In his book 'Whirlwind' Mr. Clissold has attempted to tell the authentic story of Yugoslav developments between 1940 and 1946. For this purpose he has drawn on his personal observations as well as on all kinds of material, official and unofficial, on books and newspapers, confidential Communist directives, trial records, and war time diaries of a number of Partisan leaders. Yet despite his abundance of exclusive sources of information, his story gets lost in a kind of twilight." Ernest Pisko

Christian Science Monitor p12 Ja 31 '50 650w

Foreign Affairs 28:514 Ap '50 100w

"The book is written almost as if it were an historical novel, with an imaginative reconstruction of the motives and emotions of the characters. This method makes it easy to read and explains much that a bare chronology would leave obscure. Even the imaginative parts are based on profound knowledge." Hugh Seton-Watson

+ Manchester Guardian p4 Jl 5 '49 550w

Reviewed by Basil Davidson

New Statesman & Nation 38:104 Jl 23 '49 650w

"It is necessary to point out that Mr. Clissold ends his story long before the dispute between the Cominform and Tito. But this in no way detracts from the account. The author is writing about one aspect of the complex Yugoslav story. It is a very vital one and this book will be useful to those with the interest and patience to try to understand it." C. L. Sulzberger

+ N Y Times p16 Mr 26 '50 1000w

Reviewed by H. L. Roberts

Pol Sci Q 65:589 D '50 470w

"This is a lively, interesting volume with helpful maps and an index. It is reasonably objective but would possibly carry more weight if it had further documentation. It gives us some idea as to why Josip Broz, the former locksmith now Prime Minister has the nerve to stand up to the Kremlin." H. C. Wolfe

+ Sat R of Lit 33:38 F 25 '50 600w

"Mr. Clissold is to be congratulated on this book. Without over-complicating or over-simplifying the issues he has made the Tito-Mihailovich conflict intelligible. This is a remarkable achievement." Elizabeth Wiskemann

+ Spec 182:858 Je 24 '49 750w

"Mr. Clissold was as well placed as any other outside observer during the war, and far better placed than most, to register the stages which led Josip Broz-Tito from obscurity through bitter and heroic trials to the eminence of supreme power. He knew the country and the people well; he had access, it seems, to much secret information; and he lived in Belgrade for a time after the war was over. He has used his knowledge skilfully, gracefully and—now that the character and motives of the Yugoslav leaders have become of renewed interest to the western world—above all, usefully."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p359 Je 3 '49 800w

CLOSE, EUNICE. How to make gloves; with diagrams and photographs illustrating the methods of making gloves in the home. 92p $2 Branford

646.48 Gloves 50-8363

"Here is a manual of glovemaking that points the way to the creation of all kinds of gloves with diagrams, photographs, and step-by-step instructions. First we are familiarized with the terms used in glovemaking and then shown how to put them into use in making gloves for dress, for evening wear, for work, for gardening. Gloves for every member of the family can be made by following the clear directions." (School Arts) No index.

School Arts 50:9a O '50 120w

"A perusal of the book tempts one to try to make gloves both for the joy of accomplishment and the fun of finding a new way to beat their high cost and incidentally, perhaps, as the author suggests, find a new and satisfying hobby." Ethel Dexter

+ Springf'd Republican p8C Jl 9 '50 130w

CLOUGH, WILSON OBER. We, borne along. 53p $2 Decker press

811 50-1151

"The poems which Wilson Clough has collected [here] represent work done over a period of thirty years, with a variety of temperaments, techniques and influences. Some are rhymed lyrics, traditional, and occasionally brightened by satire or weighted with bitter irony. The later poems show strong influences of Frost's blank verse monologues and Jeffers' broad line, with the pervasive flavor of Whitman's place-name catalogue in the Wyoming group." N Y Times

"In isolated instances he has achieved numerous sharp observations and clear, musical statements of his poetic evaluations. In the brief formal lyrics, which automatically impose restrictions, he is most successful when he depends most on the imaginative power of his own words. Though many of these poems might please the reader in that they make a unified statement, none of them really flares like a burst of flame, as poetry should." Hubert Creekmore

+ — N Y Times p27 F 26 '50 300w

Reviewed by S. H. Hay

Sat R of Lit 33:43 My 20 '50 280w

CLYMER, ELEANOR LOWENTON (JANET BELL, pseud). Treasure at first base; il. by Jean Macdonald Porter. 248p $2.50 Dodd

50-7782

A combination of baseball, buried treasure, and history for ages eight to twelve. The scene is a small town in Ohio.

Booklist 46:338 Jl 1 '50

Reviewed by Louise Davis

Library J 75:636 Ap 15 '50 70w

"Recommended without reservation for all boys aged 10-13." D. M. Blasco

+ Library J 75:1308 Ag '50 70w

"This good story combines a lot of baseball with a bit of pioneer history. The small boys are real, and there is plenty of humor. The style is lively and easy enough reading for ten and eleven-year-olds. Johnny's job helping his father at his gas station, his mother's cooking, and the dog Daniel Boone are all assets to the tale." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Je 11 '50 170w

"An engaging story for sport fans of the middle-aged group." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p18 Je 25 '50 140w

Sat R of Lit 33:28 Jl 8 '50 160w

CLYMER, JOSEPH FLOYD. Treasury of early American automobiles, 1877-1925. 213p il $5 McGraw

629.2 Automobiles. Automobile industry and trade 50-10680

"From Columbus, Ohio, to Detroit by highway meant close to two days of family travel around 1906 in a one-cylinder Cadillac. . . Floyd Clymer's 'Treasury of Early American Automobiles' takes us back to those summers. . . In text, illustration, cartoons and advertising, here is a half century of American culture and industry. . . Here are the automobile builders—Ford, Olds, Winton and the bearded Stanley twins—and other celebrities of the period: Barney Oldfield, Ralph De Palma, Charles Glidden and the composer of 'In My Merry Oldsmobile,' Gus Edwards." N Y Herald Tribune Bk R

Booklist 47:169 Ja 1 '51

Reviewed by Lisle Bell

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 D 10 '50 470w

"Memories of the dust and duster days will be revived in middle-aged readers by this pictorial miscellany. And the younger generation which takes the motor car for granted will find in this book an engaging and enlightening spectacle." R. M. Cleveland

N Y Times p27 D 10 '50 90w

"If thousands don't find it just the present they've been wanting to give father this Christmas, I'll be much mistaken." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 N 13 '50 650w

COASE, RONALD HARRY. British broadcasting; a study in monopoly. 206p $2.75 Harvard univ. press

380.162 Radio broadcasting. Monopolies. British broadcasting corporation 50-6660

In this book it is the author's purpose "to answer the following questions: (1) How is it that broadcasting in Great Britain came to be organised on a monopolistic basis? (2) What has been the effect of the monopoly on the development of, and policy towards, competitive services such as wire broadcasting and foreign commercial broadcasting intended for listeners in Great Britain? (3) What are the views which have been held on the monopoly of broadcasting in Great Britain?" (Introd) Index.

Am Pol Sci R 44:785 S '50 40w

"This is a well written, carefully documented study of British broadcasting as a public monopoly." H. M. Gray

+ Ann Am Acad 270:187 Jl '50 400w

"This volume is largely a presentation of the findings of successive governmental committees on the question of monopoly. Such committees always tend to propagandize for the status quo. Many of his readers will hope that the author will continue his studies of the British system and attempt to answer the key question which he avoids by stating that it is not his aim 'to come to a conclusion as to whether or not it is desirable that broadcasting should be organized on a monopolistic basis in Great Britain.' " C. C. Rohlfing

Current Hist 17:351 D '49 1100w

Reviewed by H. J. Levin

J Pol Econ 58:446 O '50 900w

"Mr. Coase's discussion is always stimulating, if partial. It seems curious to treat the B.B.C. as if it were something static and to be the same now as it was in the early twenties or in the last troubled years of the Reith period. Obviously, changes in programme policy must affect public attitudes to the idea of 'monopoly' itself. And, equally curious, there is no reference to television and virtually nothing of the newer broadcasting techniques which are on the edge of public launching, and of the finance which must condition development."

Manchester Guardian p5 Ap 6 '50 480w

"It is in the broader context of centralized planning in the public interest that Mr. Coase's discussion of the virtues and defects of private and public monopolies assumes an interest and importance that transcend his specific theme—the British radio. His study bears directly on our own domestic problems as these stem from the growth of monopoly capitalism. His cool and patient probing of the facts is a salutary reminder that our thinking on the subject of monopoly is too often clouded by emotion and by the assertion of dogmas whose real validity we have not examined." C. A. Siepmann

+ Nation 170:530 My 27 '50 950w

Reviewed by Aylmer Vallance

New Statesman & Nation 39:350 Mr 25 '50 1350w

"Mr. Coase's book is both good, novel and timely." D. W. Brogan

+ Spec 184:436 Mr 31 '50 1350w

Times [London] Lit Sup p221 Ap 14 '50 5550w

COATES, JOHN. Here today. 263p $2.75 Macmillan

50-13189

"A primly amusing account of traveling in time, this is told by Peter, whose brother-in-law, Sandy, confesses to having trouble with his various past and present lives. Peter, business-like and efficient, not only makes Sandy keep a diary of his alternate egos, but consults a psychiatrist about him and learns to his horror that the psychiatrist assumes it is he who is personality-swapping. Between problems with his wife, his secretary, his cousin, and the business, Peter's life takes on some rather complex aspects which has a wind-up in a turnabout triangle of entertaining dimensions." Kirkus

"A nicely managed matter-of-fact touch, this is English humor and scholarship in a bland brew."

+ Kirkus 18:480 Ag 15 '50 120w

"John Coates is an able craftsman with a subtle, quiet, mature sense of humor which lights up his stories on the first page and

COATES, JOHN—Continued
keeps them gently incandescent until the final paragraph." Thomas Sugrue
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p17 O 22 '50 480w

"The comedy is a little forced throughout, and the idea, which has possibilities, is never satisfactorily realized." H. F. West
N Y Times p29 S 17 50 180w

Reviewed by Don Fabun
San Francisco Chronicle p23 O 22 '50 250w

"Altogether a delightfully witty novel, and I withhold the words 'urbane' and 'charming' only for fear they would fail to indicate the more substantial pleasures the author has provided." E. J. Fitzgerald
+ Sat R of Lit 33:54 O 7 '50 270w

COATES, JOHN. Time for tea. 266p $2.50 Macmillan 50-6193

Detective story.

" 'Time for Tea' works its charms in spite of the timetables and it is interesting primarily as a conversation piece, rippling with amusement and busy too with a deliciously articulate love affair, as persuasive as it is instantaneous." James Sandoe
+ — Chicago Sun p4 Mr 17 '50 200w

"Mr. Coates is an Englishman new to the mystery field. He has a tendency to ramble, and he's more interested in his love affair than in murder. The book is full of amusing and civilized talk, however, and if you're not a stickler for plot, you'll enjoy it."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p26 Ap 16 '50 190w

"On the credit side, the author is intelligent and perceptive. He occasionally comes forth with a shrewd comment on human nature, and the idea of the plot and its ending are ingenious. But the whole is over complicated and there is much that is trivial, including several long scenes of particularly vapid love-making." Elizabeth Bullock
+ — N Y Times p31 Mr 26 '50 150w

"The characters and the locale are handled with some style, the plot furnishes its moments of anxiety, and the solution, though surprising, seems more or less on the level. It is, however, familiar material, not apt to perplex or fascinate the addict beyond endurance."
+ — New Yorker 26:124 Mr 25 '50 100w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p27 Ap 23 '50 70w

"Written with wit and charm." L. W. A.
+ Springf'd Republican p8C Mr 19 '50 110w

Wis Lib Bul 46:29 Je '50

COATSWORTH, ELIZABETH JANE (MRS HENRY BESTON). Captain's daughter; decorations by Ralph Ray. 198p $2.50 Macmillan
50-7333

When Captain Pierce discovered that pretty young Janet was in love with Alan Loring, one of the lazy Lorings, he immediately ordered her to go with him on his next voyage to the Orient. During the long months away from home Janet grows into maturity and father and daughter reach an understanding, but it is not until after her return and Alan is given a second chance, that Janet finds her true happiness elsewhere.

"In 'The Captain's Daughter' this popular author has turned her attention to the high school group, and has given girls a fine junior novel which combines romance, adventure, and an unusual setting." A. L. Shea
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 S 24 '50 200w

"Pleasantly feminine in style, but a contrived and unconvincing plot, emotionally far removed from problems of today's girls."
+ — Kirkus 18:103 F 15 '50 180w

Reviewed by Louise Davis
Library J 75:642 Ap 15 '50 80w

"Written as a junior novel, the plot seems contrived. Not a necessary purchase." Elizabeth Burr
Library J 75:704 Ap 15 '50 70w

" 'The Captain's Daughter' seems to this writer one of Miss Coatsworth's best books and outstanding among girls' books of this spring. All her capable, intelligent research and colorful true memories here are integrated with a moving young love story." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Ap 23 '50 230w

"Somehow, Janet grown up is less vivid than the rebellious young girl. No doubt girls will enjoy this story for its romantic problems and for its changing scenes, especially the beautifully detailed Korean episodes, but the characters never quite fulfill their first vigorous promise." E. L. B.
+ — N Y Times p20 Ap 23 '50 180w

"The atmosphere and background of this story are fascinating but the characters are types rather than people. Janet never quite seems to 'come through' as the heroine. She is annoying rather than sympathetic."
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:38 My 13 '50 170w

Springf'd Republican p8C My 7 '50 70w

COATSWORTH, ELIZABETH JANE (MRS HENRY BESTON). Door to the North; il. by Frederick T. Chapman. (Land of the free ser) 246p $2.50 Winston 50-10540

The adventures of young Olav Sigurdson, who participates in a Greenland expedition to America in the fourteenth century. For ages twelve to fifteen.

"A thrilling historical novel." E. C. I.
+ Christian Science Monitor p10 N 18 '50 50w

+ Kirkus 18:519 S 1 '50 160w

"Excellent character development and realistic dialogue." C. W. Field
+ Library J 75:1674 O 1 '50 70w

"Here is an unusual, worth while historical novel for boys and girls of twelve and well over that age; it is one of the best in 'The Land of the Free' series, and also one of this distinguished author's best books. It is well illustrated and includes a helpful map." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 N 26 '50 270w

"Miss Coatsworth uses every surmise and fact about the Scandinavian colonies planted after Leif Ericsson's New World discovery. She fills the gaps in her historical material with reasonable speculation. Then, in an after-chapter, she dissociates fact from fiction with scholarly exactness. Olaf's experiences could well have happened, and under the breathless spell of her storytelling one is quite convinced that they did. And Mr. Chapman's masterly drawings are as notable as the text." N. B. Baker
+ N Y Times p14 N 12 '50 150w

"A superb historical narrative, for children aged twelve and over."
+ New Yorker 26:185 D 2 '50 100w

San Francisco Chronicle p19 N 19 '50 200w

COATSWORTH, ELIZABETH JANE (MRS HENRY BESTON). First adventure; il. by Ralph Ray. 60p $1.50 Macmillan 50-10427

"Little Johnny Billington, one of the younger members of the Pilgrim party that came over on the Mayflower, is the center of attention. . . He wanders away from the Plymouth settlement with a dog named Trojan, finds haven with the Indians and opens the way for friendly trade between the Indians and the settlers." San Francisco Chronicle

Booklist 47:140 D 1 '50
Kirkus 18:463 Ag 15 '50 130w

"Not as fine a book as the author's others. Print is large, illustrations by Ralph Ray clear, and book well bound. Recommended for ages 8-10." Juanita Walker
+ — Library J 75:2157 D 15 '50 70w

"Short though it is, this little tale offers seven or eight year olds a rich sense of our Pilgrim background." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 D 10 '50 180w

"This interesting tale of early American history is beautifully illustrated."
+ San Francisco Chronicle p19 N 19 '50 190w

COBEAN, SAM. Naked eye. [119p] $2.95 Harper
741.5 Caricatures and cartoons

Collection of cartoons from the New Yorker. Besides his pictures of mental disrobings are some on dogs, children, art, and street scenes.

Booklist 47:132 D 1 '50
Kirkus 18:673 N 1 '50 130w

"There is a type of novelist who dips into the spice jar to give tang to love scenes by writing: 'He undressed her with his eyes.' Cobean carries out the thought process at his drawing board, extending the privilege to both sexes. As an invasion of privacy, the idea offers astonishing variety—in barrooms, street scenes, psychiatry and slumber. Cobean's eye roams into other than anatomical revelation, of course, but in the channels of his imagination, this is Channel No. 1." Lisle Bell
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 D 3 '50 450w

Reviewed by Allan Worth
San Francisco Chronicle p3 N 26 '50 60w

"The excellent samples within the covers of this new book are somewhat sexy, although not to the extent that they should get into trouble with censorship in Boston or any other place which watches its bookstall morals closely." R. T.
Springf'd Republican p12D D 3 '50 110w

COBURN, KATHLEEN. The grandmothers; with drawings by John A. Hall. 233p $3.50 Oxford 50-9775

"The Grandmothers is the story of Ruth's Canadian 'Gran' and her husband Jenda's Czechoslovakian 'Babicka.' Gran, an Irish Methodist, lived her life on the pioneer farms of Upper Canada and in the Toronto of the turn of the century. Babicka, daughter of a Jewish father but raised as a Roman Catholic, lived first on a Bohemian farm and then kept a small shop in the coal-mining town of Rebec. Though separated by thousands of miles in space, and by differing circumstances and customs, the two were strangely similar. Around those similarities—and those differences—Miss Coburn has woven her story." Canadian Forum

Booklist 47:156 D 15 '50

"Kathleen Coburn has written a thoroughly delightful book designed to give Canadians a sense of the richness of their heritage. . . The book is so beautifully conceived that there is very little to criticize." Edith Fowke
+ Canadian Forum 29:285 Mr '50 400w

"Miss Coburn began to write the record of 'The Grandmothers' during the war, finding it necessary to think of creative forces when the world seemed to be crashing down about her. She tells their stories well, with restraint and dignity, yet gaiety. Her reader likewise will find them an affirmation of the importance of human life." Mary Ross
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p17 N 5 '50 650w

COCANNOUER, JOSEPH A. Weeds, guardians of the soil. 179p il $2.75 Devin-Adair
632.58 Weeds. Soil conservation Agr50-480

A study of the beneficial effects of weeds upon the soil, in which the author shows that even the humble pigweed, lambs' quarters, and ragweed have their uses. No index.

Booklist 47:129 D 1 '50

"Written in a pleasant style and illustrated with some expertly done drawings." R. R. Hawkins
+ Library J 75:2008 N 15 '50 70w

"This is a stimulating book of a kind that is creating for us a newer and sounder agriculture for the benefit of everybody." Louis Bromfield
+ N Y Times p18 N 5 '50 700w

COCHRAN, WILLIAM GEMMELL, and COX, GERTRUDE MARY. Experimental designs. 454p $5.75 Wiley
311.2 Statistics. Science—Experiments
50-7075

"The design of experiments so that the results will yield significant information is an important part of scientific research. The major part played in it by statistical principles is coming to be recognized by all scientists. In this book statistical concepts and techniques are discussed, and about 150 experimental plans or designs chosen to fit a variety of experimental conditions are presented in detail. The book is of interest to advanced students and professional workers in all branches of science." (Library J) Selected bibliography. Indexes.

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 75:873 My 15 '50 80w
N Y New Tech Bks 35:46 My '50

"Guided by a large experience in consultation, the authors have kept in mind in this book the needs of research workers. All the major classes of designs are illustrated by actual experiments, giving data, computations, and interpretation. Citations following each chapter list further examples where the designs have been used. The book should be an immediate choice of the research worker who wishes to make sure that he is getting the most out of his experiments."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:387 S '50 200w

COCKRELL, WILLIAM D. Industrial electronic control; a guide to the understanding of electronic control circuits for industrial uses. 2d ed 385p il $4 McGraw
621.38 Electronics 50-5342

New edition of a work first published in 1944 (Book Review Digest 1944). "Some rearrangement in text to include new material, much of which has become basic in nature. Wiring diagrams redrawn to conform with new A.S.A. symbols. New section added on closed-cycle control or regulating systems simplified by recent experimentation. Questions at close of chapters have been added." (Booklist) Reference at end of each section Index.

Booklist 46:234 Mr 15 '50
Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 75:324 F 15 '50 130w
N Y New Tech Bks 35:21 Mr '50

COCTEAU, JEAN. Diary of a film; tr. by Ronald Duncan. 214p il $3.50 Roy pubs.
791.4 Moving pictures

"A running documentary by Jean Cocteau on the making of 'La Belle et la Bête,' written in a swift and easy style which is a very long way from the stilted jargon often used in discussions about the better sort of film. His comments on the problems of filming a fairy story stay in the mind because they are not so much theories as working discoveries." Manchester Guardian

Booklist 47:130 D 1 '50

COCTEAU, JEAN —Continued

"Recommended for all cinema and French literature collections." George Freedley

Library J 75:2154 D 15 '50 50w

Manchester Guardian p4 Ag 4 '50 160w

"One suspects more than a dash of hypochondria, of psychosomatic ills, in Cocteau's account of what he went through while working on the picture. It is all right to smile now, for the picture is finished. But the smile should be sympathetic, since the accomplishment was just as great as the struggle." Tennessee Williams

N Y Times p3 N 5 '50 1000w

"There is a curious and almost perverse fascination to this little volume. It irritates while pleasing. The mind rejects Cocteau, the man, for an outrageous egotism that reduces the universe to the measure of his personal activities; but the emotions yield, spellbound, to Cocteau the artist, battling titanically for the realization of a dream." Eva Putnam

San Francisco Chronicle p14 D 17 '50 700w

Reviewed by Richard Griffith

Sat R of Lit 33:10 D 16 '50 750w

"M. Cocteau does not air his distinct literary graces in his diary, which is matter-of-fact even as diaries go, and a little stiff in the translating. Yet it will interest all who were touched by the poetry of the film, or who are fascinated by the technicalities of film-making." Cyril Ray

+ Spec 184:190 Ag 11 '50 300w

"The frightful succession of diseases are bound to strike the reader as slightly comic, however sympathetic he tries to be. . . What gives the Diary its special flavour, however, is the personality of the author. . . Aided by Mr. Ronald Duncan's excellent translation, this is a book for anyone who is interested in the cinema, in M. Cocteau, or simply in the turmoils of present-day creation."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p496 Ag 11 '50 650w

COE, FREDERICK L. Graven with flint; il. by Robert Hallock. 150p $2.50 Crowell

50-13164

A tale of the adventures of two Cro-Magnon boys in the days before history began. Hia and Ag, his friend, and Wag, the wolf Hia tamed, fight the Half-Men in a hidden valley, trap a mammoth, slay wolves, and finally lead their people to a better land south of the Pyrenees.

Booklist 47:120 N 15 '50

"Although the colloquial Americanese spoken by the boys is a bit unsettling, the scholarship of the author . . . makes this an exciting picture of human life twenty-five thousand years ago."

+ — Kirkus 18:517 S 1 '50 150w

"The story is cleverly tied in with the pictures found in the caves of southern Europe. Excellent format. Good sound ethics. Recommended highly for all libraries, for it gives good background material for creating interest in the early races of man." Harriet Morrison

+ Library J 75:1674 O 1 '50 90w

Reviewed by Howard Pease

N Y Times p30 S 17 '50 150w

"This almost epic story is illustrated with vigorous and convincing black-and-white drawings."

+ Sat R of Lit 33:65 N 11 '50 90w

COEN, FRANKLIN. Vinegar hill. 311p $3 Rinehart

50-4294

A tale of an election scandal in a small Southern town. Secretary Tobias, a native son, now an old man, arrives in town to accept a house which his admirers are to give him, and he and his granddaughter get caught in the excitement. The action starts with the murder of a young veteran with liberal ideas. His friends start a counter action which ends with the death of Tobias, the ballot boxes stolen, and the court house in ruins.

Reviewed by Jack Conroy

Chicago Sun p5 Ag 20 '50 170w

Kirkus 18:217 Ap 1 '50 200w

"'Vinegar Hill' suggests that with less reliance on melodrama, and more attention to the motivation of character, the author—who here demonstrates a good deal of ability in organizing his complex materials—may write a second novel of real interest." Coleman Rosenberger

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 Jl 23 '50 550w

"Mr. Coen writes honestly and has recorded with a ferret-like sharpness the mores of this composite Southern town. Though his prose has power, his characters never grow beyond the stage of easily recognizable types. Somehow the starkly gripping story the opening prepares you for fails to emerge." Andrea Parke

+ — N Y Times p18 Jl 16 '50 180w

"Basically, Mr. Coen has an excellent story to tell. . . In an attempt to point up the various forces at work behind this kind of incident, however, the author has injected into the novel a lot of material that clutters up rather than clarifies the issue. . . All the small-town types are well and tersely presented. Mr. Coen might quite successfully have focussed his novel on them alone."

+ — New Yorker 26:70 Jl 22 '50 170w

"The story is framed and rigged from the start. It has no naturalness of movement and causes no suspension of disbelief in the reader. The characters are puppets and are jerked this way and that by the author for purposes of his own." W. R. Burnett

— Sat R of Lit 33:13 Ag 19 '50 450w

COFFIN, ROBERT PETER TRISTRAM. Maine doings; with decorations by the author. 266p $3 Bobbs

917.41 Maine—Social life and customs. Authors—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc.

50-5899

Chatty, informal essays on the ways of life in Maine today and yesterday. Partial contents: The Jenny Lind dollar; Teddy Roosevelt; The picnic problem; The most typical American I know; My other unforgettable character; Apple John; My father's henchmen; Down-East breakfast; Maine: state of being oneself.

Reviewed by Walter Havighurst

Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Mr 12 '50 490w

"Robert P. Tristram Coffin is at his best when he writes with his own state as his background, and he writes not as the author alone but as the farmer, the poet, the gourmet, the one-man gardener, the sportsman, the head of a family, and whatever he writes about he has the capacity to exult in. Words are not enough for him, so with deft lines he enlivens the book with drawings that are a brisk counterpart to his vigorous prose; yet it is a prose always on the edge of poetry and with the same incisiveness." Elizabeth Yates

+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Mr 7 '50 600w

"Highly recommended." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 75:314 F 15 '50 100w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 Ap 2 '50 600w

"These essays, long and short, collected into a book make a pretty rich meal, which is perhaps better nibbled at than consumed at one sitting. There is not much that can be called a critical evaluation. Those blindly devoted to Maine—summer people, mostly—may find it wholly satisfying; others are likely to find it a bit cloying." C. B. Palmer

+ — N Y Times p4 Mr 5 '50 320w

"As long as he is preoccupied with the sterling and craggy qualities of his parents, neighbors, friends, and hired hands, the author is able to keep his enthusiasm within reasonable bounds. When, however, he gets around to commenting, at considerable length, on local culinary customs, he is seized with a kind of evangelistic frenzy that isn't apt to communicate itself to readers reared outside his tradition."

+ — New Yorker 26:122 Mr 25 '50 120w

San Francisco Chronicle p21 My 28 '50 250w

"Any way you look at it, 'Maine Doings' is a delightful surprise, and should please even those who are tired of hearing paeans sung to the state of Maine." Elizabeth Ogilvie
+ Sat R of Lit 33:13 Je 10 '50 550w

COHEN, I. BERNARD. Some early tools of American science. 201p il $4.75 Harvard univ. press

509.73 Scientific apparatus and instruments. Science—History 50-6262

"An account of the scientific instruments and the mineralogical and biological instruments in the possession of Harvard College in its early years. However, in telling about these tangible evidences of interest in science, the author conveys a good deal of information about the attitude towards science in academic circles and about how science was taught. Drawings and photographs of early instruments and specimens are included." (Library J) Index.

Current Hist 18:356 Je '50 40w

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 75:699 Ap 15 '50 80w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:75 S '50

"The photographs and descriptions of early scientific instruments form the core of the book. But there is more of interest than just instruments and their descriptions. There are accounts of the teaching of the sciences and the research that was carried on in this field in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries that are much more interesting than one has a right to expect in matters of this kind." D. B. T.
+ Sat R of Lit 33:59 My 6 '50 370w

School & Society 71:143 Mr 4 '50 20w

"The book demonstrates that science played an important role in colonial and early republican America, that the scientific attitude of mind was inculcated in Harvard students, that some of the faculty organized scientific expeditions and made positive contributions to knowledge."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:184 Je '50 200w

COHEN, MORRIS RAPHAEL. Reason and law; studies in juristic philosophy. 211p $3.50 Free press

340 Law—Philosophy 50-5539

"Posthumous collection of lectures, articles, reviews from various law publications by famous philosopher who often applied his concept of polarity to problems of the philosophy of jurisprudence." Library J

"In light of the importance of Cohen's contributions to legal philosophy, it may seem invidious to suggest that there are serious shortcomings in Reason and Law. Yet admiration for Cohen's achievement must not blind us to certain of its limitations. Some of the writing lacks significance because it is detached from the polemics of which it formed a part. Some of it now reads as definitely 'dated,' and much of the writing is so sketchy that it will be of little use to legal philosophers." Jerome Hall
Ann Am Acad 270:182 Jl '50 550w

Reviewed by A. P. Blaustein
Chicago Sunday Tribune p15 Mr 5 '50 400w

"Recommended for collections in the fields of law and philosophy." H. H. Bernt
+ Library J 75:172 F 1 '50 130w

Reviewed by J. D. Hyman
New Repub 123:19 S 18 '50 600w

"Disparate as is the material here, there runs through it a common bond of attitude and method. Over and over there recurs a sharp and illuminating insight into the distinctions between law and ethics, between law and custom, between what now is and what may be deemed ideal or preferable—the 'is' and the 'ought' that some of a different school are inclined to merge or to confuse." T. R. Powell
+ N Y Times p10 F 12 '50 450w

San Francisco Chronicle p17 Mr 12 '50 180w

COHEN, MORRIS RAPHAEL. Reflections of a wondering Jew. 168p $2.50 Beacon press

296 Jews. Jews in the U.S. 50-7334

"The author had intended to write a comprehensive treatise on Jewish history and present problems, but death prevented this final accomplishment. However, his son Felix pieced together the father's essays and reviews on the subject. While this may be less effective from literary point of view, we gain, nevertheless, comprehensive picture of Cohen's basic ideas and critical reflections." Library J

"While not distinguished by originality or based on systematic study—the author repeatedly makes it clear that his observations are not the result of scientific investigation—the thoughts expressed are stimulating and worth pondering over by American Jews, at whom they are primarily directed, and by non-Jews as well." Samuel Koenig
Ann Am Acad 271:225 S '50 450w

Bookmark 9:207 Je '50 20w

"It is a book worth reading, for Gentiles as well as for Jews. Both will gain from its dispassionate approach and the breadth of learning and thinking displayed in it. It is a pity that Morris Cohen died before he could achieve more than these scattered writings in a field in which he obviously had so much to say." A. Andras
+ Canadian Forum 30:118 Ag '50 500w

Reviewed by S. S. Cohon
Crozer Q 27:359 O '50 1000w

"A broad-minded, scholarly American gentleman, the spirit of the man lives again in this volume and any reader, Jew or Gentile, will put down the volume with renewed hope for the human race that can produce such a rare soul."
+ Kirkus 18:53 F 1 '50 100w

"These attractive papers will make good reading for Jew and gentile alike. . . Recommended for public and college libraries stressing religious and sociological literature." F. E. Hirsch
+ Library J 75:314 F 15 '50 140w

Reviewed by G. N. Shuster
New Repub 123:22 Ag 21 '50 800w

"His remarks on the role of the Jews in the American scene, in which he advocates a reasonable course between the extremes of assimilation and an exclusively Jewish culture, are particularly cogent. On the other hand, his refusal to give sufficient recognition to the power of the vital inspiration, the incalculable drive of the human will, or to share its vision, disabled him from preparing a place in his scheme of things for the two events which have transformed Jewish history: the extermination of European Jewry and the establishment of the Jewish state. Yet Morris R. Cohen's dispassionate fact-serving attitude is so rare in contemporary Jewish thinking that it not only merits wide attention but elicits the regret that he wrote so briefly and seldom." Marvin Lowenthal
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Jl 2 '50 380w

Reviewed by T. V. Smith
N Y Times p3 Ap 16 '50 800w

"One-third of the book is filled with book reviews, which are well worth reading, even though some of the volumes dealt with are relatively unknown or are of interest only to specialists. Professor Cohen did not spare praise where praise seemed due, but when he disagreed with the author his wrath could generate some unfair exaggerations. Still, 'Reflections of a Wondering Jew' will be appreciated, not only by the late professor's countless admirers, but also by less biased readers. For here speaks to us, not a pedant, but a man of the world endowed with a strong temperament and a stupendous knowledge." Alfred Werner
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:25 Ag 5 '50 750w

COHEN, OCTAVUS ROY. Bullet for my love. 218p $2.50 Macmillan 50-5656

Detective story.

"Good detective yarn narrated in meticulous detail, both relevant and irrelevant." Drexel Drake
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 My 14 '50 50w

Kirkus 17:680 D 15 '49 70w

"When Octavus Roy Cohen writes a mystery, you can be sure that it is smooth and competent. But that smoothness sometimes, as here, becomes slickness."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p19 Mr 5 '50 160w

Reviewed by Anthony Boucher
N Y Times p21 F 19 '50 140w

"There is probably enough activity, both criminal and sexual, to make up for the fairly primitive quality of the writing."
New Yorker 26:107 Mr 11 '50 160w

"Mr. Cohen's agreeable descriptions of the desert and the drive west are surpassed only by the slam-bang contortions of the plot which involve more bodies than you can shake a stick at. Readers will be pleased to know that they can depend on love triumphing at the end and on evil receiving its just rewards. Another winner from Old Master Cohen." E. D. Doyle
+ San Francisco Chronicle p17 F 19 '50 150w

Springf'd Republican p8C Ap 30 '50 100w

COIT, MARGARET L. John C. Calhoun; American portrait. 593p il $5 Houghton
B or 92 Calhoun, John Caldwell 50-5234

"Biography of a man who has been so often misunderstood and whose actions were misconstrued through a long period of service to his country. Calhoun is pictured as a statesman and family man, farmer at heart but politician by practice in this combined social and political history. . . The growth of the man is studied carefully, with the pros and cons weighed in the balance of contemporary and more recent opinion. The author succeeds in stripping away much of the myth by showing that times change as well as the man, and that one could be, at the same time, both nationalist and sectionalist." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

Am Pol Sci R 44:775 S '50 30w

"Since the author is first of all telling the story of Calhoun's career, it is inevitable that most of her text should be devoted to the Southern side; yet she has been scrupulous, through the medium of balancing quotation and comment, to make it possible for any reasonable reader to reach a reasonable conclusion. She has combined this with a truly first rate ability to analyze and describe character." A. B. Miller
+ Ann Am Acad 272:219 N '50 360w

Booklist 46:333 Jl 1 '50

Bookmark 9:182 My '50 50w

"Imaginative as this volume is in its portrayal of the prewar South, it is no work of fancy run riot among the magnolias and surprise pink lighting of a Hollywood set or a romantic best-seller. It is the story of an industrious, pious man; of a hard life charged by unfulfilled ambitions and an unsparing sense of duty. . . Miss Coit has the art of creating historical characters of almost Shakespearean stature: not only Calhoun of the tortured doubts, intense affections, discouragements, but also the men who ruled with him, Jackson, Webster, Clay." Clorinda Clarke
+ Cath World 171:316 Jl '50 240w

"Miss Coit's is an excellent book, combining a thorough account of Calhoun's life with a lucid exposition of his ideas. At the end, when she puts aside the scholar's notes and talks directly to the reader about the man she knows so well, she produces some brilliant writing. Her biography of Calhoun is worth reading, not only because its subject was an interesting and significant man, but to show us what we so narrowly escaped." R. B. Nye
+ Chicago Sun p6 Mr 22 '50 700w

"Margaret Coit's 'American Portrait' represents more courage and enthusiasm than historical experience. Yet there is a freshness about her work and a grasping of certain fundamentals that deserve attention." Avery Craven
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 F 26 '50 400w

"Margaret Coit's life of Calhoun is consistently sympathetic. . . Miss Coit has handled her subject with maturity of judgment, united with youthful fire and the ability to keep control of all the many threads of her material." W. K. Rugg
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Ja 27 '50 360w

"The tremendous array of facts at Miss Coit's command never proves an embarrassment, so skilful is she in marshaling them into the pattern of a narrative significant as both story and history. Miss Coit has risen to the occasion of a great theme, and it would be surprising indeed if the present year should see another biography which would stand a better chance for the Pulitzer award." John Cournos
+ Commonweal 51:658 Mr 31 '50 700w

"A superb segment of history in the making; an impressive portrait of a great man."
+ Kirkus 17:682 D 15 '49 400w

"An excellent exposition. . . Recommended." H. L. Roth
+ Library J 75:103 Ja 15 '50 140w

"Miss Coit's book provides far and away the most detailed, vivid, and convincing personal characterization of Calhoun we have. Her sympathies are quick and piercing; her perceptions of the intellectual and of the political issues are precise; her documentation is formidable; and she writes with a sharply focussed pictorial style that at times becomes almost over-rich in its lyrical evocations. She greatly admires Calhoun, but not to the point of foolish adoration of his personality or of rapt acceptance of his every opinion; and she has achieved a fascinating reconstruction of his life and time." Arthur Schlesinger, Jr.
+ Nation 170:302 Ap 1 '50 1000w

"The book has many merits—learning, logical form, obvious sincerity, lucidity—but its overwhelmingly dominant impression is that of the sense of doom, of Fate inexorably closing in on a man whom the capricious gods have destined for ruin. . . Calhoun was doomed from the start; but because he was an immensely strong man his hopeless struggle is one of the most dramatic incidents in our national history. This Miss Coit's book brings out admirably. . . The net result is that she has taken what is commonly regarded as one of the dryest stories in American history and turned it into a colorful, somberly gorgeous pageant that enthralls the attention and stirs the emotions as few modern biographies do." G. W. Johnson
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 Mr 5 '50 2250w

"This biography is a brilliant achievement, scholarly and at the same time a work of art steeped in charm, an important contribution to history, a new illumination of a great career." C. G. Bowers
+ N Y Times p1 Mr 5 '50 1550w

"Smooth-flowing and scholarly and written with human understanding."
+ New Yorker 26:118 Mr 25 '50 160w

"The latest biographical study of South Carolina's 'Great Nullifier' is warmly written, and contains interesting material on Calhoun's youth, his studies at Yale, his family life, and his personal fortunes. . . However, the reader may well be disappointed with the author's evaluation of Calhoun's political treatises as 'perhaps the most powerful defense of minority rights in a democracy ever written.' . . Modern democrats will see little of value in the philosophy of a man who hated criticism, scorned doubts, and feared change. If one accepts the desirability of free inquiry and the consequent possibility of social change (Calhoun, of course, did not), then even our present reliance upon pressure groups is preferable to the scheme of interest representation and concurrent majorities urged by the author." B. E. Brown

— + Pol Sci Q 65:319 Je '50 550w

Reviewed by Carolyn Stull
San Francisco Chronicle p16 Mr 5 '50 1250w

"This is a strange biography, at times highly irritating, but more often delightfully entertaining. The second half is so much better organized and so much more cogently argued than the first that the reader is bothered by the illusion of another author. . . When she discusses Calhoun's response to the knotty problems of federalism, Miss Coit sets her sights far above the trivia which occasionally blur her vision in the early chapters of the book." J. A. Krout
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:34 Mr 4 '50 800w

Reviewed by S. A. Wallace
Social Studies 41:283 O '50 600w

"Here is a fine biography. If Calhoun seems a no more sympathetic figure than before, it possibly can be deduced that he was not an especially thrilling man despite the excitement of his day. Miss Coit thinks he was, but the reader may decide that Calhoun has benefited much by having his story retold by a fine historian and excellent writer." R. F. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p8C Mr 19 '50 600w

Time 55:96 Mr 6 '50 1000w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:302 S '50 260w

Wis Lib Bul 46:17 Ap '50

COKER, MRS ELIZABETH (BOATWRIGHT). Daughter of strangers. 383p $3 Dutton 50-13844

"The setting, a plantation in South Carolina before the war between the States; the heroine, Charlotte, an octoroon slave with red-gold hair and magnolia skin; the plot, Charlotte's struggle to admit to herself the fact of her negro blood; the romance, her love for the owner of the plantation; the climax, a horse race in which she is the prize; and the denouement, her happy marriage to a Negro doctor." Library J

"This is an extremely readable novel, whose characters are real and wholly acceptable. The author's handling of headstrong, sensitive, finely molded Charlotte is excellent and her grasp of the times is credible indeed." William Yates
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p15 D 10 '50 250w

Kirkus 18:396 Jl 15 '50 160w

Reviewed by M. P. McKay
Library J 75:1290 Ag '50 80w

"A costume romance of more than usual competence, an imaginative narrative which remains within the bounds of the plausible, a novel which shows careful research and attention to its writing." Coleman Rosenberger
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p21 O 15 '50 800w

"Charlotte and the mulatto doctor she eventually marries are at times warm and strong characters; but much of the novel's power is dissipated in the morass of a naive and, at times, anachronistic style." Thomas Sugrue
N Y Times p29 N 19 '50 230w

"Very much in earnest about the whole thing, the author has tried to do a serious study of a girl nearly white, caught in an impossible situation under the racial caste system of the South. . . Mrs. Coker is a South Carolinian and knows her background of slave chants, menus, and a thousand other details that slow up a story which doesn't move very fast anyway." Patricia Highsmith
Sat R of Lit 33:30 N 18 '50 330w

COLE, MARGARET ISABEL (POSTGATE) (MRS GEORGE DOUGLAS HOWARD COLE). Growing up into revolution. 224p il $3.50 Longmans

B or 92 Labor party (Great Britain)
[50-5388]

Autobiography of this British socialist and author of detective stories. "These reminiscences are not merely to recount the events of one not particularly important life, but to present a picture, as seen through the lens of one mind and one set of experiences, of the revolution of our times." (Pref) Index.

Booklist 46:193; 218 F 15 '50; Mr 1 '50

Reviewed by Leila Flower
Christian Science Monitor p14 My 27 '50 490w

Current Hist 19:105 Ag '50 20w

Foreign Affairs 28:687 Jl '50 10w

"A valuable contribution to social history." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 75:562 Ap 1 '50 140w

"Margaret Cole is an author who combines a rich personal life with a very full and varied public life and writes of both with intellectual penetration and literary skill." Mary Stocks
+ Manchester Guardian p4 D 2 '49 330w

"Reading Margaret Cole's account of 'the Movement,' I was seized with a strong nostalgia, for she has been wonderfully successful in evoking the atmosphere of those years of ferment when so many young people, both in England and America, were throwing themselves wholeheartedly into the furtherance of socialism by various means." Keith Hutchison
+ Nation 170:408 Ap 29 '50 650w

"Candid, fascinating autobiography." W. H. Stevenson
+ New Repub 123:19 Jl 31 '50 800w

"No one can be in a better position than Margaret Cole to write an inside story of the N.G.L., and it is a pity that, in describing this episode in the history of British Socialism, a mood of reticence appears to have come over her. The story would have been worth telling in much more detail. . . This is a personal grouse. There is much of great interest in Mrs. Cole's book." Kingsley Martin
+ — New Statesman & Nation 39:43 Ja 14 '50 750w

"Mrs. Cole's is a very pleasant, lively and well-written book which should particularly interest those who want to understand the history of the Labor movement between the two world wars. It illuminates obscure passages all the more brightly because the light it sheds is personal, not theoretical nor statistical. Mrs. Cole's title reflects what almost every sensitive person in Britain feels—that we are growing up into a revolution which is taking place all around us whether we will or not. The book, itself, however, also reflects the fact that the British Labor movement, which believed itself revolutionary thirty years ago, tends, in 1950, after another thirty years of development, to be soberly Fabian." Kingsley Martin
+ N Y Times p3 Mr 12 '50 850w

"The book is throughout illumined by a quality of truthfulness. Mrs. Cole has made a success of her life; she can afford to say what she really thinks. . . Perhaps Mrs. Cole's truthfulness is most noticeable in her account of her visit to Russia as a member of a team sponsored by the New Fabian Research Bureau in 1932. Here, a reader feels, after so much tendentious matter, is the real thing; and she has taken pains to add a postscript to bring her impressions up to date. With her character-sketches it is impossible to be quite as happy."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p775 N 25 '49 1050w

COLE, TOBY, and CHINOY, HELEN KRICH, eds. Actors on acting; ed. with introductions and biographical notes. 596p $5 Crown

792 Acting 49-49169

"The theories, techniques, and practices of the great actors of all times as told in their own words." (Subtitle) Biographical notes. Bibliography. Indexes.

Kirkus 17:595 O 15 '49 100w

"There is no present day anthology on acting techniques and theories written from the authority of great actors themselves that is in anyway comparable to this one. It stands alone in its field. Comprehensive in scope and carefully chosen. Impossible to include each person's favorite, of course. Recommended for university, college and large public libraries." George Freedley

COLE, TOBY—Continued
+ Library J 74:1909 D 15 '49 50w

"If there has ever been a richer treasure of comments by actors on their art gathered between the covers of a single volume, this reviewer is unaware of it. . . Welcome to help themselves to the bounty are professional students of acting, who will take away both knowledge and inspiration; the critic, who will increase his capacity for judgment; and the average playgoer, who will be rewarded for his reading with an increased appreciation of what he sees (or does not see) next time he goes to the theater." Luther Nichols
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ja 29 '50 750w

"The work as a whole will be of wide interest, and will please especially the student and historian of the theater."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:9 Mr '50 290w

COLEMAN, MRS SATIS NARRONA (BARTON). The new Singing time; il. by Ruth Carroll. 32p $2.50 Day
784.624 Children's songs 50-13132

Twenty-five songs, with music, for ages three to six.

Booklist 47:15 S 1 '50
Chicago Sunday Tribune p41 D 3 '50 70w
Christian Science Monitor p4 O 21 '50 100w
Horn Bk 26:478 N '50 60w

"A book of original songs by the author of previous 'Singing Time' books continues her excellent work in this new volume."
+ Kirkus 18:427 Ag 1 '50 100w

"Heartily recommended for schools and public libraries." Clara Adams
+ Library J 75:1513 S 15 '50 60w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 S 3 '50 200w

"Mrs. Coleman has been most successful in expressing the feeling of her verses in the tempo of her music." Lois Palmer
+ N Y Times p36 S 10 '50 80w

COLES, JESSIE VEE. Standards and labels for consumers' goods. 556p il $5 Ronald 339.4 Grading. Labels. Consumer education 49-11119

"A detailed examination of present-day status and how it has developed; a blueprint for future action. The position of consumers as buyers; criteria for good informative labels; basic concepts of standards and how they are developed, established and used by producers; grade labeling and the controversial movement towards compulsory grade labeling. Much useful information on government and private agencies and the present status in various fields of consumer goods." (Library J) Index.

"It is an excellent text, comprehensive, clear, intelligent, and offering some new material not easily obtainable elsewhere. . . It is regrettable that this excellent book omits discussion of the economic effects of standardization of consumers' goods. Relation of standards to costs is occasionally mentioned but there is no organized, systematic, exploration of this important subject except by implication in the early chapters." Viola Wyckoff
+ — Am Econ R 40:453 Je '50 750w

"For those who wish information as well as analysis, this book is a rich storehouse of facts as to who did (or said) what and when." Hazel Kyrk
+ Ann Am Acad 268:235 Mr '50 310w

Reviewed by Winifred Baum
Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 My 14 '50 50w

"A copy should be found in the library of every college and university home economics department, as well as in the library of many high schools. It should be available to leaders in home economics work. Home economics graduates will enjoy the book because it deals with familiar problems and situations. Doubtless, it will prove a 'best-seller' among manufacturers, advertisers, and retailers of consumers' goods." A. L. Edwards
+ J Home Econ 42:125 F '50 300w

Reviewed by J. E. Cross
Library J 74:1754 N 15 '49 80w

Reviewed by S. H. Rewoldt
Management R 39:369 Je '50 450w

COLES, MANNING, pseud. of ADELAIDE FRANCES OKE MANNING and CYRIL HENRY COLES. Dangerous by nature. 223p $2.50 Doubleday
50-9688

A tale of international intrigue, the scene of which is a Central American country. Tommy Hambledon, British intelligence officer, with an American operative, get the matter in hand.

Booklist 47:98 N 1 '50

Reviewed by Drexel Drake
Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 O 15 '50 60w

"Superior descriptions, some humor, and a timely theme make this a sure thing for a sure audience."
+ Kirkus 18:438 Ag 1 '50 90w

"Tommy Hambledon's exploits in Nazi Germany used to sound more authentic, but he's the same charming fellow."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p34 O 8 '50 170w

"In spite of jungle, jail, a crooked dictator and an alcoholic parrot, Tommy retains his British urbanity." Hillis Mills
+ N Y Times p39 O 22 '50 130w

"Action enough for half a dozen adventure stories, but not much else."
New Yorker 26:108 S 30 '50 90w

Reviewed by L. G. Offord
San Francisco Chronicle p23 O 15 '50 90w

COLLIER, JOHN, 1913- , and BUITRON, ANIBAL. Awakening valley. 199p il $6 Univ. of Chicago press 980.3 Otavalo Indians. Indians of South America—Social life and customs. Indians of South America—Textile industry and fabrics 49-48719

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

"We often say that the evidence is documented by a photograph. How often do we say that the photographs are well documented by facts? That is what can be said about this book. It is probably the first fruitful effort on this level to combine superb theme-photography with sound anthropological fact and insight." Edward Weyer
+ Am Anthropol 52:249 Ap '50 500w

"The study is a joint product of Aníbal Buitrón, a leading Ecuadorian anthropologist (resident of Otavalo) who provided the cultural data; of his wife, who rendered it into smooth, rich English; and of John Collier, Jr., who took the superb pictures during a summer's work in the community in collaboration with the Buitróns and the Indians. The result is an unusually effective record of the community: its dramatic physical environment, basic interests, daily life." J. F. Embree
+ Am Soc R 15:159 F '50 500w

Current Hist 18:100 F '50 40w

Reviewed by Edmund Wilson
New Yorker 25:83 Ja 14 '50 400w

Reviewed by R. E. Keohane
School R 58:132 Mr '50 250w

"In the field of descriptive ethnography, this beautiful volume is something entirely new. It is a predominantly photographic record of the small communities of Indians who live around Otavalo in northern, highland Ecuador on the flanks of 15,000-foot Mount Imbabura. The superb photographs and the text blend to give a vivid picture of the people, Otavalo itself, the country, farm practices, home life, fiestas, dances, marriage, baptism, sickness, death, and, most impressive of all, the changing 'awakening valley' of the coming generation."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:50 Mr '50 240w

COLLIER'S encyclopedia; Frank W. Price, editorial director; Charles P. Barry, ed-in-chief; Louis Shores, lib. consultant and advisory ed; Arthur N. Hosking, art ed; associate eds; Alfred L. Hall-Quest [and others] Miles Lawrence Hanley, consultant on pronunciation. 20v il col pl maps set $149 Collier

031 Encyclopedias and dictionaries (50-13391)

"This review is based on the first six volumes of a proposed twenty-volume postwar encyclopedia. . . The foreword states this to be an entirely new encyclopedia, of comprehensive coverage in readable form, compiled by 2000 contributors under the direction of 84 departmental editors. Advance advertising promises coverage through 30,000 major headings, compiled from intensive search of original sources, and a profuseness of illustration. The Subscription Books Committee has been informed by the publishers that the first printing is considered a pilot printing in order that correction of errors may be made as early as possible. . . In scope, Collier's Encyclopedia aims, according to the publishers, to systematize for the layman all the knowledge significant to English-speaking peoples and to serve public and college library needs. The organization is generally monographic and its readability is average to fairly difficult." Subscription Bks Bul

---

Bookmark 9:132 Mr '50 60w

"It is a pleasure and a joy to welcome to the field of American bibliography the first completely new multi-volume American encyclopedia for adults. Without doubt, other adult encyclopedias will need to fight for their laurels because none, at present, excels the new Collier's Encyclopedia in combined points of recency, of readability, of illustration, of price. In the field of illustration, alone, Collier's presents for the first time to the adult audience an approach which Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia has offered so enrichingly for so long a time to the younger group." W. A. FitzGerald

+ Library J 75:864 My 15 '50 1900w

"Although final judgment should be reserved until the set is complete, the volumes published thus far appear to furnish assurance that 'Collier's Encyclopedia' will be a readable, attractive, authoritative, up-to-date, comprehensive reference work with a price reasonable enough to recommend it for first consideration by the family or individual interested in purchasing an encyclopedia to serve for quick reference, systematic study, and even for recreational reading." E. H. Wilson

+ Sat R of Lit 33:37 S 23 '50 850w

"Collier's Encyclopedia volumes 7 to 12 have also been received, and when the succeeding volumes have been examined, a final appraisal will be made. For this reason the Committee's customary evaluative statement will be withheld until the completed set is available."

Subscription Bks Bul 21:37 Jl '50 1500w

COLLINDER, BJORN. The Lapps [pub] for the American Scandinavian foundation. 252p il maps $3.75 Princeton univ. press

947.1 Lapps 49-50292

"About 30,000 people live in Lapland, the northern part of the Scandinavian peninsula. These nomadic people are developing new ideas and a new economy due to a more direct contact with their European neighbors. This is a readable account of their ancient and present life and should be of great use because of the scarcity of material about the Lapps. Good coverage of the people, land, history, language, government, clothing, dwellings, food and drink, religion, and arts." Booklist

---

"Written in a sprightly style, unhampered by overly much scholarly apparatus, it is essentially a popular book." T. A. Sebeok

+ Am Anthropol 52:402 Jl '50 350w

"Let it be said to the eternal credit of Professor Björn Collinder of Uppsala that he has not permitted his special interest in philology to dominate the study; there is, indeed, only a single and well-executed chapter on the Lappish language. The most distinctive feature of the volume is its wealth of detail, which perhaps only infrequently will tax the patience of a lay reader." J. I. Kolehmainen

+ Am Hist R 55:979 Jl '50 350w

"With his focus on the archaic forms of Lapp culture it is understandable that the author shows little interest in the more recent process of acculturation with the modern Western civilization—regrettable as this may be from the standpoint of a cultural anthropolgist. . . The author admits that his firsthand knowledge of the Lapps, even in the restricted sense of the Reindeer Lapps, is incomplete. From his descriptions it appears that it is largely confined to the southern Lapps of Swedish Lappmark. This limitation invalidates some of the generalizations made. Despite its limitations, Collinder's book gives an interesting popular account of a vanishing culture. Some excellent photographs add to the value of the volume." P. A. Munch

+ — Am J Soc 56:115 Jl '50 1100w

Booklist 46:170 Ja 15 '50

Foreign Affairs 28:683 Jl '50 10w

"No comprehensive study of the Lapps had appeared in English since 1674 until Mr. Collinder filled the gap with this informative work. His scholarly mind explores every aspect of the subject, and as he is a professor of Finno-Ugric languages at Uppsala University and has spent three years among the Lapp people the reader can have confidence in the accuracy of his observations."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p504 Ag 11 '50 480w

COLLINS, DALE. Shipmates down under; il. by Rafaello Busoni. 188p $2.25 Holiday

50-6971

The story of a cruise along the Great Barrier reef, undertaken by the Beresford twins and their cousin Carl, a former navy commander. Their "private yacht," purchased from a film company, was a boat made like Captain Cook's Endeavour. The purpose of their voyage was to chart a course for the tourist trade. But before they were out of Brisbane harbor an old atlas provided them with another more exciting objective: the search for the missing Seamew. So successful was their venture that Cousin Carl promised to sign the twin boys on again as shipmates for another trip.

"This is capital sailing adventure." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 26:197 My '50 90w

"This Australian product has enough adventure and mystery to absorb ship-and-sea dreamers, although the style and dialogue may be too leisurely and light-hearted for American children used to sword clinking and salty epithets in their sea yarns. . . Fanciful adventure on a simple, sunny level."

Kirkus 18:205 Ap 1 '50 110w

"If boys will allow for the Australian flavor of the language and accept the slang used by the twins, they will enjoy a lively yarn. . . All in all, it is adventure-packed, but all seems plausible." J. L. Brubaker

+ Library J 75:1196 Jl '50 70w

"A fine adventure story for boys under twelve, not too long, very well printed and illustrated. The author is an Australian who has had his own adventures along the Great Barrier Reef." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Je 25 '50 140w

"The plot is well constructed and the people are real." Phyllis Fenner

+ N Y Times p16 Jl 16 '50 110w

+ Sat R of Lit 33:38 Je 10 '50 140w

Wis Lib Bul 46:22 Jl '50

COLMAN, JOHN STACY. The sea and its mysteries. 261p il $3.75 Norton

551.46 Ocean 50-10656

"Based in part on firsthand experience, this discussion deals with the general principles of marine science, with oceanography and the amateur naturalist at sea. Folding map and other maps, photographs and figures. Tables, reading list, index." Bookmark

Booklist 47:129 D 1 '50

Bookmark 9:239 Jl '50 40w

Christian Science Monitor p19 N 25 '50 290w

"Amateur marine naturalists who like to observe and collect flora and fauna between the tide-marks of shores will find this an extremely useful guidebook. Other interested laymen, both young and older, will find it a simple and concise but scholarly-condensed volume on all aspects of oceanography."

+ Kirkus 18:552 S 1 '50 150w

"Recommended for secondary school and natural history book shelves." J. F. Kennedy

+ Library J 75:1516 S 15 '50 100w

"Mr. Colman, Lecturer in Zoology at Sheffield University, has written a most readable and almost certainly a most reliable introduction to the whole science of Oceanography." Geoffrey Taylor

+ New Statesman & Nation 39:412 Ap 8 '50 600w

Reviewed by W. B. Hayward

N Y Times p16 N 19 '50 370w

"For students 'The Sea and Its Mysteries' provides an interesting introduction to a vast subject, and for specialists serves as a work of reference." D. B. B.

+ Springf'd Republican p30A D 17 '50 300w

COLOMA, LUIS. Perez the mouse; adapted from the Spanish by Lady Moreton; with il. by George Howard Vyse. 63p $1.50 Dodd 50-5154

A new edition of the story of Perez, the Spanish mouse, and his friend King Bubi the First.

Booklist 46:206 F 15 '50

Reviewed by M. B. King

Chicago Sun p3 Ap 15 '50 50w

Cleveland Open Shelf p22 D '50

Reviewed by A. C. Moore

Horn Bk 26:99 Mr '50 50w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk 26:112 Mr '50 40w

"The tale is in the mood of 'The Tailor of Gloucester' and 'The Magic Fishbone,' and will be enjoyed in homes where such books as those are read and reread. Younger children will be drawn to it by the many enchanting color pictures, so well printed, with their irresistible mice." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ja 22 '50 180w

"This is a rediscovered treasure for little children." B. W. Schaffer

+ Sat R of Lit 33:47 F 11 '50 180w

Wis Lib Bul 46:32 Mr '50

COLTON, HAROLD SELLERS. Hopi kachina dolls; with a key to their identification. 144p pl $7.50 Univ. of N.Mex. press

970.62 Katcinas. Hopi Indians 49-49048

"Intended specifically for collectors, it identifies 250 kachinas, explains them, and illustrates them with black-and-white drawings and some photographs, many in full color. A 'kachina' is three things. It is a supernatural being, long part of Hopi culture. It is a man wearing a mask and impersonating a supernatural being in one or another of the ceremonies of the Pueblo Indians, especially the Zunis and Hopis. A kachina, finally, is also the small doll carved and painted in the likeness of the supernatural being. In his book, Mr. Colton discusses all three aspects of the kachina, includes chapters on the making of kachina dolls and the principal features of these dolls in general, and then, with lavish illustrations comes down to the business of identifying the different ones, illustrating each with an exact drawing." (San Francisco Chronicle) Index of kachinas.

"This is an item for kachina doll collectors, of course, rather than the general reader." J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p22 D 16 '49 350w

"Written to be useful to interested laymen, this work will also be a valuable tool for specialists. . . Although the material will be familiar to students of Pueblo and Hopi ethnology, to most laymen and to many anthropologists and librarians it will be informative and helpful."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:50 Mr '50 280w

COLVIN, FRED HERBERT, and STANLEY, FRANK ARTHUR. Gear cutting practice; methods of producing gears for commercial use. 3d ed 532p il $4.75 McGraw

621.834 Gearing 50-7421

"Although strictly for the practical worker and designed as an introductory book, it covers gear cutting machinery and techniques thoroughly. Numerous tables of data pertaining to gears make it useful as a shop reference book. In this edition, published three years after the second edition, the material has been rearranged in ten numbered sections in order to facilitate study and reference use. Information on new gear cutting machines, new methods of inspection, and data on carbide-tipped hobs are among the material which has been added." Library J

Cleveland Open Shelf p15 Ag '50

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 75:1049 Je 15 '50 90w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:39 My '50

COLVIN, FRED HERBERT, and STANLEY, FRANK ARTHUR. Grinding practice; typical machines and methods used in a wide variety of work. 3d ed 419p il $3.75 McGraw

621.92 Grinding and polishing 50-5356

"Material rearranged for more logical sequence, with new material added to bring up to date. New standard code for marking grinding wheels added." (Booklist) For first edition see Book Review Digest 1937.

Booklist 46:234 Mr 15 '50

Cleveland Open Shelf p15 Ag '50

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 75:497 Mr 15 '50 90w

COMAN, EDWIN TRUMAN, and GIBBS, HELEN MARILLA. Time, tide and timber; a century of Pope & Talbot. 480p il $5 Stanford univ. press

674 Pope and Talbot, inc. Timber. Shipping 50-681

A company history of Pope and Talbot, a "commodity and transportation company that has operated on the Pacific coast for one hundred years." Bibliography. Index.

"The growth of Pope & Talbot has been part and parcel of the growth of the Far West. . . The fact that the authors have understood this and written their book taking into account the background against which the firm made its way through the years is what will make 'Time, Tide and Timber' a reference book for a long time to come." M. J.

San Francisco Chronicle p30 D 11 '49 750w

"This account of Pope & Talbot's first century is thorough and painstaking."

+ Sat R of Lit 33:40 My 6 '50 180w

COMFORT, ALEXANDER. The novel and our time. 80p $1.25 Swallow, A.

808.3 Fiction [49-3241]

In his essay the author "analyzes the dilemma of the modern novel. His main preoccupations are sociological and technical. He sees the novel as the characteristic literary form of our time, when an 'asocial society' possesses no body of basic beliefs which the artist can take for granted and work with. Using an approach which actually grows out of Taine's triple theory, he discusses the novel as a modern institution, and this, in turn, leads him to describe its technical problems, which range from the reader's response to the writer's angle of narration." (Sat R of Lit)

"He throws off a number of general (and often penetrating) ideas on many related topics, but unfortunately, except in a consideration of violence and sadism in contemporary fiction, the two terms of his title seldom connect."

New Repub 122:20 Ja 23 '50 90w

"His long essay is both conversational and close-packed. . . His shortcoming is that too often he throws off fresh, vivid insights without sufficiently explaining and developing them. But for its serious and powerful literary intelligence it is a remarkably stimulating book." Robert Halsband

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:30 Ja 28 '50 140w

COMMAGER, HENRY STEELE. American mind; an interpretation of American thought and character since the 1880's. 476p $5 Yale univ. press

917.3 U.S.—Civilization. National characteristics, American. U.S.—Intellectual life 50-6338

"'He addressed himself valiantly to the greatest subject which can challenge a historian—the mind and character of a people.' In words applicable to himself Henry Commager thus writes concerning the late Vernon L. Parrington, whose death in 1929 broke off the grand design of his 'Main Currents in American Thought' about where Commager begins, in the 1880's. . . Throughout, Commager's concern is with those ideas—whether steady beacons or intermittent ones—which for the last three generations have directed most of our thronging intellectual and social traffic." (Sat R of Lit) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by R. B. Perry
Am Hist R 55:912 Jl '50 1100w

Reviewed by R. B. Perry
Ann Am Acad 272:223 N '50 1100w

"Mr. Commager's over-all view is a familiar one, and indeed there is little in his book that is original. . . His special value as a commentator is that he combines an exhilarating enthusiasm for his subject with a keenly critical viewpoint and an absence of cant that is becoming increasingly rare where patriotism is involved. He combines, too, a readiness to commit himself to forthright opinions with a willingness to admit that some questions must be left open." C. J. Rolo

+ — Atlantic 185:84 My '50 1200w

Bookmark 9:182 My '50 50w

Reviewed by Walter Johnson
Chicago Sun p5 Ap 19 '50 520w

Reviewed by A. C. Ames
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ap 2 '50 500w

Reviewed by S. E. Mead
Christian Century 67:820 Jl 5 '50 2050w

"In a sense his book is superficial, yet it has a sanity, a vigor, and an open-mindedness lacking in many more 'profound' treatises. The philosopher will wince at his failure to discriminate sufficiently on fine points, though an historian with an amateur's love of philosophy may be at least as useful a figure as an historian with a specialist's passion for statistics. A scant but not unfriendly paragraph devoted to Christian Science contains several inaccuracies." Robert Peel

+ — Christian Science Monitor p9 Mr 18 '50 3200w

"The chapters on the American of the Nineteenth and the Twentieth Century, which begin and end the book, are masterpieces of profound insight, keenly critical, but always fair. The author has a deep faith in his country and high hopes for her future, but he inflicts the faithful wounds of a friend. His analysis of the new science of politics and the evolution of American law are especially illuminating. . . The preacher, the sociologist, the historian, all who wish to understand their country and serve it with understanding, will find this an invaluable book." W. L. Caswell

+ Churchman 164:15 My 15 '50 370w

"Perhaps the most striking feature of this work as a cultural history is the failure of the facts and the conclusions to appear in a clear relationship. In some passages the author seems unable to account for data which, with the fidelity of a chronicler, he has incorporated into his story. In other passages he seems nonplussed by results which were plainly implicit in the conditions he has rehearsed. This is tantamount to saying that his theory of causation is inadequate." R. M. Weaver

Commonweal 52:101 My 5 '50 1150w

Foreign Affairs 29:150 O '50 20w

"The author displays impressive competence in dealing with an immense range of material, occasionally punctuating his routine observations with unconventional and opinionated dicta that serve to whip up the reader's interest. . . Professor Commager makes it apparent that he has not yet made up his own mind about many of the perplexing issues which he raises, and he hedges himself about with so many cautions that almost every possible criticism finds itself partially countered in advance." H. A. L.

+ — J Philos 47:610 O 12 '50 1550w

"A cultural cavalcade made up of individuals as well as concepts, this is a very successful synthesis, witty on occasion and consistently enlightening."

+ Kirkus 18:19 Ja 1 '50 250w

"An extremely important contribution to American historical philosophy." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 75:169 F 1 '50 200w

"It must first be said that 'The American Mind' is a rich and brilliant book. Henry Commager has never written before with such felicity and charm. The raw material of the period is wild and exhausting; but the author is always in control, moving through it with wit and urbanity and penetrating insight. . . Yet a shortcoming of the book derives from its failure to carry comparisons far enough to justify its title." Arthur Schlesinger, Jr.

+ — Nation 170:376 Ap 22 '50 2750w

"[Commager] has accepted no easy job, and under the Damocles' sword that hangs over all encyclopedists, he has written one of the most serious histories of American thought since Parrington." M. G. White

New Repub 122:19 Ap 24 '50 2500w

"Deponent now appearing before you deposes and says that he read this book twice because, after a first reading, he was suspicious of his own judgment. To sacrifice politeness to candor, he just didn't believe Henry Steele Commager, good as he is, could write a book as good as this one seemed to be. So he read it again and, sure enough, he stepped down his judgment of two or three chapters; but, disconcertingly, he stepped up his judgment of two or three others. So in the end the summation stands unaltered—it is extremely good." G. W. Johnson

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 Mr 12 '50 1450w

Reviewed by J. W. Krutch
N Y Times p1 Mr 12 '50 1300w

"Mr. Commager is nearly always competent, in a routine fashion, but his outstanding achievement is that he never comes up with a single really fresh or striking idea in the entire course of his four hundred and seventy-six pages."

New Yorker 26:121 Ap 8 '50 240w

"Mr. Commager is content to note that the whole world has an interest in the answers history will make to these questions. In the meantime his book will enable thousands of

COMMAGER, H. S.—Continued
today's Americans to understand themselves better, perhaps even to gain a clearer vision of where they are headed. It would be hard to think of a better reason to read a book and to think about it." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 Mr 24 '50 1050w

"Commager's book, with its fine perceptions and sympathy, does splendid credit not only to the American mind but also to the American heart." Dixon Wecter
+ Sat R of Lit 33:11 Mr 11 '50 1350w

Reviewed by Michael Kraus
Social Educ 14:375 D '50 450w

"Mr. Commager has written a vigorous, mind-stretching, controversy-stirring book. . . If the first part of the book, in spite of brilliant phrasing and onrush of ideas, seems bland in comparison with the last, that perhaps is because Mr. Commager was attempting to quiet the urgings of his own mind, to conceal his sympathies, to convince the reader that he was the philosopher and not the crusader." John Farrar
+ Survey 86:206 Ap '50 1800w
Time 55:110 Mr 27 '50 550w
Times [London] Lit Sup p720 N 17 '50 1450w

"Written with felicity of style, the book can be a valuable introduction to contemporary American thought for the intelligent lay reader."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:188 Je '50 280w
Wis Lib Bul 46:16 Ap '50

"Mr. Commager has given us one of the best books of its kind, and an excellent kind it is. He is, I think, one of the ablest writers among living historians, and one feels, in reading 'The American Mind,' that whoso touches this book touches a man. The American he writes about is vital, mature, exciting; it is a world in which philosophers and economists, poets and theologians go to work on crucial problems of a living democracy." H. M. Jones
+ Yale R n s 39:723 summer '50 1550w

COMMAGER, HENRY STEELE, ed. The Blue and the Gray; the story of the Civil war as told by participants. 2v 1201p il maps $12 Bobbs

973.78 U.S.—History—Civil war—Personal narratives 50-10710

"In these volumes I have tried to present a well-rounded—I cannot call it complete—history of the Civil War in the words of those who fought it. From the four hundred and fifty-odd narratives which are presented here will emerge, I hope, a picture of the war that is authentic, coherent, and interesting." (Introd) The author includes non-military aspects and quotes from civilian accounts as well as military writings. Includes poetry as well as prose. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 47:133 D 1 '50

"Henry Commager has worked thru much of the vast literature which the war produced and has selected what he considers the best accounts of each phase of that struggle, edited them and brought them together in these two weighty volumes. They give a picture and tell a tale which no single secondary work could approach in color and in sound historical perspective. They have the force of the immediate and the vividness of proximity." Avery Craven
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 N 19 '50 400w

Reviewed by Paul Kiniery
Commonweal 53:308 D 29 '50 300w

Reviewed by Oscar Handlin
Nation 171:680 D 23 '50 600w

"An adequate review of 'The Blue and the Gray' would require many pages. The most important thing is that it provides a way of experiencing the nation's most tremendous experience. No one can read it without being impelled to think searchingly about the American people, the American nation, the American past and future." Bernard DeVoto
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 N 19 '50 2250w

"The weaving of this vast miscellany into a meaningful, moving and exciting story was a remarkable accomplishment. . . Cohesiveness, direction and interest derive in great part from the pithy interlocutory comments with which the compiler ties the various parts together. These comments and the introduction, both rich in interpretation, fully sustain Mr. Commager's reputation as one of the most gifted writers among professional historians." B. I. Wiley
+ N Y Times p39 N 12 '50 1150w
New Yorker 26:150 N 25 '50 240w

Reviewed by Alfred Kay
+ San Francisco Chronicle p6 N 26 '50 900w

"It is well to let such men speak for themselves, and these bulky volumes do it better than any writer however skilful, could do it for them." Avery Craven
+ Sat R of Lit 33:38 D 2 '50 700w
Time 56:104 D 11 '50 950w

COMMAGER, HENRY STEELE, ed. Documents of American history. 5th ed 759p $5 Appleton

973 U.S.—History—Sources 49-49474

"This fifth edition has nineteen new documents, including the North Atlantic Treaty, April 4, 1949, but omits 16 from the 4th edition." (School & Society) For earlier editions see Book Review Digest 1934, 1940.

Booklist 46:234 Mr 15 '50
Current Hist 18:100 F '50 40w
School & Society 70:431 D 24 '49 30w
Social Studies 41:288 O '50 20w

COMMODITY RESEARCH BUREAU, INCORPORATED, NEW YORK. Commodity year book, 1949 [Harry Jiler, editor]. 472p $10 The bureau, 82 Beaver st, N.Y. 5

338 Commercial products. Prices. Commercial statistics (39-11418)

" 'This [is] the second Commodity Year Book since the end of World War II and the sixth in the . . . series that was inaugurated a decade ago. . .'—Introduction. . . The main body of text is the alphabetical listing of about 80 commodity items or groups of agricultural and mineral raw materials, and some few processed products such as Beer, Rayon, and Electric Power. Within each group, half of which bear authorship of outstanding representatives of their field, the treatment follows this pattern: about one to three pages of general history and economic discussion, followed by such tables as production, consumption, wholesale prices, exports, imports, acreage, stocks and receipts, and salient United States statistics. Not all tables appear for all commodities. Dates for commodity tables begin usually with 1936, giving annual and sometimes monthly figures. Latest data vary with the commodity, sometimes including even the first quarter of 1949, sometimes ending with 1947, although usually concluding with 1948." Subscription Bks Bul

"This compilation will prove of importance wherever industrial firms or business offices use the library for production and market data, or where students from schools of business administration or agricultural economics make use of its reference tools. Other uses will be for background studies by stock investors. It is recommended for larger public libraries, for university and college libraries where economics courses of more than elementary level are taught, and for other libraries specializing in business materials."
+ Subscription Bks Bul 21:17 Ap '50 750w

COMMON COUNCIL FOR AMERICAN UNITY, INCORPORATED. European beliefs regarding the United States, 1949; a study under the direction of Henry Lee Munson. 134p col maps pa $2 The council, 20 W. 40th st, N.Y. 18

301.154 Public opinion—Europe

"What Europeans think of us according to some 1700 qualified European observers interviewed by representatives of the Common Council for American Unity." Cleveland Open Shelf

---

"Despite the methodological limitations of this particular study, modification and extension of this type of expert poll holds some promise of sharpening our insight into complicated social questions where the ideal conditions of controlled research are impossible." Morris Janowitz

Am J Soc 56:118 Jl '50 550w

Reviewed by Emil Lengyel

Ann Am Acad 268:194 Mr '50 400w

Cleveland Open Shelf p9 My '50

COMMUNITY SERVICE SOCIETY OF NEW YORK. The family in a democratic society; anniversary papers. 287p $3.75 Columbia univ. press

392 Family. Hygiene 49-4903

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

"Such a collection of papers emphasizes the difficulties of communication when the vastly different experiences and the vocabularies of anthropology, psychology, psychiatry, and epidemiology converge on a common problem. There is also a wide variation in the papers, from technical details of methodology to broad generalities with less documentation. There is some inevitable repetition. The papers however are, in general, definitely superior and deserve study by serious students of the social and health fields." R. P. Kandle

+ Am J Pub Health 40:216 F '50 600w

"The papers maintain a consistently high level and deserve the attention of a considerably wider audience than the social workers to whom they were addressed." R. F. Winch

+ Am J Soc 55:597 My '50 650w

"These papers should prove to be of great value to the trained social worker. In this collected form, they would be an excellent reference book for advanced students in sociology, psychology, child development, public health, and nutrition." E. M. Sunderlin

+ J Home Econ 42:126 F '50 190w

"The papers on diverse topics assembled in The Family in a Democratic Society will be of varying interest. One suspects that the general usefulness of the publication would have been enhanced if the group of essays dealing with the family from the perspective of the behavior sciences had appeared separately from the series on public health. For most readers the book will split sharply in the middle." R. O. Blood

Social Forces 28:453 My '50 750w

U S Quarterly Bkl 5:515 D '49 420w

CONANT, JAMES BRYANT, and BLATT, ALBERT HAROLD. Fundamentals of organic chemistry; a brief course for students concerned with biology, medicine, agriculture, and industry. 413p $4 Macmillan

547 Chemistry, Organic 50-7119

A textbook for beginners in organic chemistry. Stresses the relation of organic chemistry to things of everyday life. Questions and problems at ends of chapters. Index.

Booklist 47:6 S 1 '50

"Although there are many excellent elementary texts dealing with the subject of organic chemistry, the reviewer feels that this particular one has been well conceived, carefully organized, and well written. No attempt on the part of the authors to write an all-inclusive textbook is apparent but it is immediately recognized that this book is the product of two men who have done outstanding teaching in survey courses in organic chemistry." R. T. Arnold

+ Chem & Eng N 28:2996 Ag 28 '50 370w

CONDENSED chemical dictionary; a reference volume for all requiring quick access to essential data regarding chemicals and other substances used in manufacturing and research and to terms in general use in chemistry and the process industries; Francis M. Turner, editorial director; 4th ed, completely rev. and enl. by Arthur and Elizabeth Rose. 726p thumb indexed $10 Reinhold

540.3 Chemistry—Dictionaries 50-9387

"This well-known reference book increases in usefulness with each new edition. As users of it know, the term 'dictionary' falls short of an appropriate description. Actually the book is a condensed encyclopedia which is especially useful for its descriptions of commercial chemicals and trade-marked products. Both are described as to general characteristics, chemical compositions, properties, uses, forms, standard shipping containers, and shipping regulations, if any. In addition, general chemical terms such as distillation, are defined. By following a key-number to a source list in the front of the book the name of a manufacturer of a trade-marked chemical can be found." N Y New Tech Bks

---

Chem Eng 57:231 Ag '50 800w

"The scope of the work makes it useful not only to chemists but to practically everyone who has to look up a chemical term, whether he be librarian, writer, purchasing agent or general reader. According to the publisher's statement, '5,000 new items' have been added to this issue. Most of the added entries appear to relate to new products marketed under trade-names, but new generic terms, such as 'anti-biotic,' and the new terms in radiochemistry also are included."

+ N Y New Tech Bks 35:67 S '50

CONDLIFFE, JOHN BELL. Commerce of nations. 884p $7.50 Norton

380.9 Commerce 50-5098

"This book traces the story of the ebb and flow of world trade from the caravans of the ancient world to the barter agreements and currency blocks of today. And paralleling this account it presents the important contributions to economic thought that influenced policy and practice, including the tenets of mercantilism, the pioneering philosophy of Adam Smith, the bold achievements of the classical economists led by David Ricardo, the doctrines of the dissenters, and finally, the ideas of John Maynard Keynes and other modern economists." (Publisher's note) Bibliography. Index.

"The book is a skilful blending of economic history and Dogmengeschichte leading up to an analysis of present-day international economic problems. The primary emphasis throughout, however, is institutional in the broadest sense of that term, and the theoretical sections of the book are relegated to a decidedly secondary place and are generally on a non-technical level. Neither the economic historian proper nor the international trade theorist is likely to be entirely satisfied with Professor Condliffe's treatment of their respective fields—the book being apparently addressed chiefly to the intelligent lay reader—but both will benefit by a careful reading of this important study." A. I. Bloomfield

+ — Am Econ R 40:688 S '50 1650w

Reviewed by R. C. McGrane

Am Hist R 55:955 Jl '50 550w

"This is no conventional treatise on international trade. It is a penetrating and realistic examination of today's chaotic economic relations among nations—their causes, their significance, and some prerequisites of a better order. The volume is broad in scope, distinctive in organization, and challenging in outlook." P. S. Peirce

+ Ann Am Acad 272:206 N '50 700w

"Essentially, this is a textbook of international economic relations, with little to contribute that is original, but better informed, more comprehensive and far more lucid than the average textbook in the field." Melchior Palyi

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p13 D 10 '50 180w

Foreign Affairs 29:145 O '50 60w

CONDLIFFE, J. B.—Continued

"Professor Condliffe has written a book designed to provide perspective for our understanding of contemporary international economics. Employing the historical approach, he sketches the long and tortuous development of world trade and investment from antiquity. Although this sketch is drawn with obvious learning, it is merely the descriptive core of the book. The author also attempts, in stimulating if not wholly successful fashion, to trace along roughly parallel lines the historical evolution of economic policy and theory." C. A. Hickman

+ — J Pol Econ 58:443 O '50 1050w

Reviewed by Harvey Levin

Nation 170:533 My 27 '50 650w

"Professor J. B. Condliffe, of the University of California, has written an ambitious and, in many respects, an impressive book. Certainly it is a useful one. If his work is confusing and too easily reveals an ambivalence of mind and spirit, a split personality, he is reflecting that uncertainty that is so much a characteristic of our times." Louis Hacker

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Mr 19 '50 1400w

"For the general reader, particularly one blessed with intellectual curiosity, this will prove an interesting book. Professor Condliffe has packed an amazing amount of information into it. His exposition proceeds at a leisurely pace. Never dogmatic himself, the author satisfies the inquiring mind by questioning the assumptions which underlie all dogma, both ancient and modern. . . A book of such wide scope in time and subject matter naturally lacks the cohesiveness of a monograph. But a measure of unity is nevertheless provided by a few dominant ideas. . . International economic relations is a broad, somewhat amorphous subject, difficult to treat in compact form. Nevertheless, my impression is that this book is too long. It would have been improved by judicious condensation of certain sections." P. W. Bidwell

+ — Pol Sci Q 65:462 S '50 1000w

"'The Commerce of Nations' would make a superb text for a university or post-graduate course in economic history, but it also has great interest and value for the general reader. The style is clear and factual, and the immense area covered makes the book in reality a sort of history of civilization." C. W. W.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 Mr 12 '50 550w

"In my considered judgment, this is the most important work in its field that has appeared in our generation. It is a book to buy, and to respect." W. A. Orton

+ Survey 86:275 My '50 500w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:178 Je '50 280w

CONFERENCE ON SCIENCE, PHILOSOPHY AND RELIGION IN THEIR RELATION TO THE DEMOCRATIC WAY OF LIFE, 9th, New York, 1950. Goals for American education; ninth symposium; ed. by Lyman Bryson and others. 555p $5 Harper

370.973 Education—U.S.

"[In this book] a group of our most distinguished educators present, each in his own way, what he conceives as the general state of American education and American life. One would hardly expect to find close cooperation in the assembled work of twenty professors, each intensely individualistic and opinionative. But the editors have followed the useful plan of including expert comment on each contribution in outspoken footnotes." N Y Times

"The report would have more accurately indicated the field it covers if its title had been Goals for American Higher Education. While the editors state that they have excluded and shortened comments, the published papers and comments are not of equal merit. The book could have been further shortened without any sacrifice of its significant contribution to the increasing body of literature in this field." F. J. Brown

Ann Am Acad 271:219 S '50 250w

Reviewed by W. P. Sears

Churchman 164:15 My 15 '50 120w

"A very hopeful sign for the future is the dissatisfaction all the contributors to this symposium feel with present educational policies and practices. There is an utter lack of smugness and a complete absence of the doctrinaire spirit. . . That one hundred educators with such different backgrounds and divergent, indeed, conflicting, philosophies should voluntarily come together and in the most friendly possible manner with deep humility and perfect freedom discuss the inadequacies of their profession and earnestly plan for the future shows that some of the most important goals of American education have been reached." Bonaventure Schwinn

+ Commonweal 52:19 Ap 14 '50 1350w

"A 'must' purchase for college and university libraries and for large public libraries." Nathaniel Stewart

+ Library J 75:314 F 15 '50 130w

Reviewed by Alvin Johnson

N Y Times p18 Mr 5 '50 700w

"Readers will be disappointed at the failure of the conference to reach greater agreement as to ends and means, but they will put down the volume with a clearer understanding of the great issues now confronting men everywhere and with a deeper sympathy for the educator." L. P. Todd

Sat R of Lit 33:17 S 9 '50 320w

Reviewed by W. W. Brickman

School & Society 72:281 O 28 '50 280w

Reviewed by Donald Derby

Springf'd Republican p7D Je 25 '50 360w

"If widely read, this could be a very influential volume. Unfortunately, there is an air of seclusion about it and too much of the best it has to say is obscured in a dreary smog of professorial rhetoric. Even so, it remains an earnest and penetrating discussion of what the schoolmen, particularly in the colleges, should be aiming at." Farnsworth Crowder

Survey 86:423 S '50 500w

CONGER, MRS MARION. Georgie's pets; pictures by Vera Neville. 31p $1.25 Abingdon-Cokesbury

50-8714

Story of Georgie who wanted a pet, but chose them unwisely. Eventually he acquired just the right pet for a small boy.

Kirkus 18:384 Jl 15 '50 70w

"Satisfying story. Recommended for 7-8-year-olds." Juanita Walker

+ Library J 75:1305 Ag '50 50w

"This is a pleasant, realistic story that parents and teachers will like reading or telling at storytime and which early readers can enjoy by themselves. The pictures are true-to-life, simple and amusing." L. P.

+ N Y Times p32 N 12 '50 110w

Wis Lib Bul 46:25 S '50

CONKLIN, GROFF, ed. Big book of science fiction. 545p $3 Crown

50-9548

"32 stories all scientifically plausible adventures into the future, tales of what could possibly happen in a world of supersonic speed, interstellar travel, atomic power, strange and marvelous new materials and devices, curious animals and peoples from other planets." Publisher's note

Booklist 47:98 N 1 '50

"For an afficionado audience, this is good value."

+ Kirkus 18:401 Jl 15 '50 120w

"A collection of generally good though rather conventional and stylized science fiction stories." E. F. Walbridge

+ Library J 75:1290 Ag '50 100w

"In the course of selecting the thirty-two stories that make up this anthology, Mr. Conklin has combed magazine files as far back as 1918, but most of his material has been published within the last few years. This is as it should be, for in general the later stories are by far the better." Basil Davenport

+ — N Y Times p33 S 17 '50 280w

"It would be an omnivorous reader who samples all these with equal delight, but the level throughout is quite high, making the book a worthy companion to the editor's previous collections, 'The Best of Science Fiction' (1946) and 'The Treasury of Science Fiction' (1948)." Don Fabun

+ San Francisco Chronicle p17 O 1 '50 230w

Reviewed by Fletcher Pratt

Sat R of Lit 33:17 D 30 '50 60w

Springf'd Republican p5C S 24 '50 180w

CONNOLLY, FRANCIS XAVIER. Give beauty back. 222p $2.75 Dutton

50-6560

"[This] is basically the story of a friendship—in college years and afterward—between a youth of conventional mold and his almost exact opposite—the artist and dreamer. One becomes a lawyer, marries the right girl, thoroughly enjoys what he considers a normal life. The other, whose mother was partly Jewish and whose father was a Catholic, goes through a Bohemian phase and finds fulfillment—spiritually and artistically—in New Mexico." N Y Herald Tribune Bk R

"A calm, sensitive book, uneven at times, but amply rewarding for the perceptive reader."

+ Cath World 171:311 Jl '50 170w

Reviewed by William Pfaff

Commonweal 52:277 Je 23 '50 200w

Kirkus 18:73 F 1 '50 130w

"Not too well written and of limited appeal but may be requested by Roman Catholic borrowers. Recommended for large fiction collections only or for special requests." E. S. Brown

— + Library J 75:559 Ap 1 '50 70w

"In the contrast of character, the balancing of two divergent attitudes of mind, 'Give Beauty Back' achieves form perspective."

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 Ap 16 '50 150w

Reviewed by Joyce Geary

N Y Times p23 Je 18 '50 100w

"Mr. Connolly's book is a simple statement of principle. If it lacks anything it is the proper illumination of principle by means of the powers available to the novelist. His characters are not large enough to support the theme for which they were created. In particular, Ranse Gilby, the artist, gives us no sense of a creative man struggling to find the source of his powers; nor does his conversion at the end rise out of any truly realized spiritual crisis." N. L. R.

Sat R of Lit 33:32 Ap 22 '50 210w

CONNOLLY, MYLES. Bump on Brannigan's head. 157p $2.50 Macmillan

50-6288

"Brannigan is an ordinary man with a bit of a temper and he has always taken it for granted that 'It's the people—the pig headed people that's wrong and not the church.' After a quarrel with his godless son and a bump on the head he decides to apply the teachings of Christ to his everyday life and finds to his amazement that they work." Library J

Booklist 46:193; 219 F 15 '50; Mr 1 '50

"A slight but well-intentioned fantasy." Mary Sandrock

Cath World 171:232 Je '50 170w

Reviewed by Robert Cromie

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Mr 19 '50 350w

"A sterile, contrived farce and semi-satire, which has little to say except perhaps that blood is thicker than water."

— Kirkus 18:72 F 1 '50 160w

"A moral tale, neither subtle nor profound but immensely readable and entertaining." M. H. Zipprich

+ Library J 75:171 F 1 '50 70w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p17 S 17 '50 130w

Reviewed by Gilbert Millstein

N Y Times p23 Ap 2 '50 170w

"Mr. Connolly tells his yarn entertainingly enough, though better not expect too much in the way of plausibility. Fables, after all, don't need to be entirely plausible; if they satisfy as to moral purpose that should be enough, and Mr. Connolly's moral is right enough to suit anybody. As to the manner in which the whole thing is done—well, you'll tab it for a movie instantly, and you'll probably be right, though this column doesn't keep up with Hollywood purchases to know." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 Mr 8 '50 600w

"What makes Mr. Connolly's story amusing and refreshing is the fact that through all his spectacular rise to fame and 'sainthood' old Tom Brannigan's character changes not one whit. He is still plagued by his ulcers and his temper." Valentine Davies

+ Sat R of Lit 33:15 Ap 29 '50 400w

CONSIDINE, ROBERT BERNARD. Innocents at home; with pictures by Harry Devlin. 208p $2.50 Dutton

818 Boys 50-5866

Recounts the harrowing experiences of two New York parents and their obstreperous offspring.

"This is sentimental stuff, without the particular subtlety or charm of John Mason Brown. . . [But] it is pleasant, incidental reading."

+ Kirkus 17:688 D 15 '49 100w

Reviewed by E. P. Nichols

Library J 75:314 F 15 '50 80w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 Mr 5 '50 320w

"It is a wise father who gets his obsession with his children out of his system by speaking about them on paper. It saves the trouble of retailing their doings and sayings to his friends, who may or may not thank him. And when the father happens to be Bob Considine it is a very profitable business indeed to enclose them between the covers of a book." J. C.

+ N Y Times p33 Mr 12 '50 150w

San Francisco Chronicle p20 Mr 26 '50 50w

Wis Lib Bul 46:18 Jl '50

CONSIDINE, ROBERT BERNARD. Maryknoll story. 144p il $3 Doubleday

266.2 Catholic foreign mission society of America, incorporated, Maryknoll, New York 50-5305

Photographs and text tell of the work of the Maryknoll missions in many countries, among them China, Japan, Korea, Manchuria, Ceylon, the Philippines, Central and South America, and Africa.

Reviewed by J. O. Supple

Chicago Sun p7 F 19 '50 80w

Cleveland Open Shelf p14 Ag '50

"Correspondent, columnist, Considine lends a practised hand as well as a sympathetic heart to the aims and accomplishments of Maryknoll—but the audience will chiefly be a Catholic one."

+ Kirkus 17:618 N 1 '49 150w

"Recommended highly for the public library." R. P. Breaden

+ Library J 75:320 F 15 '50 80w

Reviewed by M. D. Read

Library J 75:1056 Je 15 '50 50w

"Bob Considine has written a moving story of the human side of the Church, or better, of the human beings who make up its priesthood. 'The Maryknoll Story' is an engrossing

CONSIDINE, R. B.—Continued
addition to the lore of these brave priests who go into foreign lands and who practice today the Christianity that emerges from the Gospels—healing the sick, helping the afflicted, scorning the tempters." Frank Kelly
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 Ja 22 '50 400w

"The account is most rewarding when Mr. Considine desists from his reportorial coverage, and, in the manner of the late Ernie Pyle, permits Father Fitzgerald, for instance, to recount the harrowing story of Ah Saam, blinded by the fingernails of a jealous mother-in-law. . . The reader should be warned that 'The Maryknoll Story' is determinedly hearty, in what might be called the Bing Crosby-Barry Fitzgerald school of ecclesiastical uplift." J. W. Chase
+ — N Y Times p27 F 19 '50 360w
San Francisco Chronicle p19 Mr 19 '50 120w

"Men of good will and good humor, the Maryknollers take it all in stride—anticlericalism, Communism, alcoholism, leprosy. Atomic-age Americans preaching an ancient God, few in number, they keep improvising new variants of spiritual lend-lease." A. F. Wolfe
Sat R of Lit 33:21 Ja 21 '50 950w

CONWAY, HUGH GRAHAM. Fluid pressure mechanisms. 218p il $5 Pitman

621.6 Hydraulic machinery [50-1624]

"This book deals with the mechanism of fluid pressure equipment and systems—that is, hydraulic and pneumatic machinery. It is not concerned with detail design nor constructional features of the equipment, but with the essential principle of the various devices, how they work and how they differ from each other." (Pref) Index.

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 74:1757 N 15 '49 70w
N Y New Tech Bks 35:5 Ja '50

COOK, IDA. We followed our stars. 246p il $3.50 Morrow

B or 92 Opera. Singers. Musicians—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 50-6878

Two English sisters decided that music would be their hobby after one of them bought a gramophone and a few records. They especially wanted to hear Galli-Curci in opera (the time was the '20s) and so they formed a two-year plan, saved all the money they could, made their own clothes, and finally arrived in America. They were not shy about writing their favorite opera stars, and so thru the years they met many of the musical greats of Europe. This autobiography tells of their experiences, and of their trips to America and the continent, and their rescue work during World war II.

Booklist 46:241; 258 Ap 1 '50; Ap 15 '50
Bookmark 9:207 Je '50 50w

"Miss Cook, an Englishwoman devoted to music, gives some of the most stirring accounts that have appeared in print of the Nazi bombing of London and of the dramatic attempts to rescue German musicians from the clutches of Hitler." Felix Borowski
+ Chicago Sun p3 Ap 22 '50 170w

"The reader who happens to be an opera fan himself will delight in the intimate glimpses of great singers, while the secret rescue missions which Ida and Louise undertook in Nazi-controlled countries, under cover of music pilgrimages and Ida's experience during the London blitz give a moving picture of the heroism of two unassuming British subjects in perilous times." C. B. Burnett
+ Christian Science Monitor p18 Ap 28 '50 360w

"Lots of personal experience here, in lively recall. And always, the star ahead, symbolized by a determination to see—and they hoped to hear—Ponselle again. A unique story, simply told."
+ Kirkus 18:124 F 15 '50 300w

Reviewed by Leonard Burkat
Library J 75:697 Ap 15 '50 100w

"The book, like its heroines, [has] a warm heart and a strong backbone." M. L. Becker
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 Ap 16 '50 650w

Reviewed by Carter Harman
+ N Y Times p24 Ap 23 '50 130w
Wis Lib Bul 46:18 My '50

COOK, JAMES. Voyages of Captain James Cook round the world; selected from his journals and ed. by Christopher Lloyd. 383p maps $2 Chanticleer

910.4 Voyages around the world 50-7663

A selection from Captain Cook's voluminous journals, chosen to illustrate the course of the voyages and the customs of the natives as they appeared to Cook at the time.

Booklist 46:288 My 15 '50

"Mr. Christopher Lloyd's selections from the Journals have been adroitly made. It is the first step that counts for the reader, after that it is hard to put down the vivid, coraline narrative, so detailed, and so fresh from the event. . . There is a piece of plain prose on the danger of bad charts which I would give as a set model to technical writers." V. S. Pritchett
+ New Statesman & Nation 39:432 Ap 15 '50 2450w
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 Je 18 '50 90w

"Christopher Lloyd has done a first-rate editorial job. His selections from the voluminous journals of Cook's three voyages have been made wisely and carefully annotated to maintain the narrative of that 'right-headed and unaffected man.'" W. B. Hayward
+ N Y Times p22 My 21 '50 370w

"Mr. Lloyd's admirable selections anticipate the first complete critical edition of Cook's writings, now in the hands of the Hakluyt Society. His writings show the discoverer as a man tenacious of purpose and of great moral courage. His way with men was summary and efficient. His style is dry, and at times laconic. But where he feels the subject demands it, he expands into detailed accounts that are invaluable ethnology." Paul Dinnage
+ Spec 184:762 Je 2 '50 450w
Time 55:113 My 22 '50 700w
Times [London] Lit Sup p279 My 5 '50 1100w

COOKE, ALISTAIR. Generation on trial; U.S.A. v. Alger Hiss. 342p $3.50 Knopf

351.74 Hiss, Alger. Chambers, Whittaker. Communism—U.S. 50-9481

A retelling of the Hiss-Chambers episode, taken as far as possible from transcriptions of the Hiss trial records. The author reported the trials for the Manchester Guardian. Chronology. Index.

Booklist 47:33; 55 S 15 '50; O 1 '50

"Detailing the dramatic hearings in Washington, Cooke, in three specific instances, blatantly distorts what was there before him in the printed transcript issued by the house un-American activities committee. In less important instances, he has, probably by inadvertence, garbled many facts. . . In his account of the first Hiss trial, Cooke again succumbs to frequent minor errors of fact and observation. . . It is in telescoping the second trial that Cooke most clearly tips his hand. For here, he either leaves out or glosses over the testimony of new witnesses which most thoroly shattered the defense and pinned the lie on Hiss and Mrs. Hiss. . . These criticisms are made more in sadness than in dismay.

For Alistair Cooke is a fluent and whimsical writer." Ralph de Toledano
— + Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 S 24 '50 800w

"A superbly written account of the celebrated trials of United States of America v. Alger Hiss." P. V. Farrell
+ Commonweal 52:583 S 22 '50 650w
Current Hist 19:232 O '50 60w
Kirkus 18:447 Ag 1 '50 250w

"In discussing both Mr. Hiss and Mr. Chambers with equal fairness Cooke not only helps to clear up some of the confusion existing at the time but also takes a healthy crack at the unfair and harmful tactics of Congressional investigating committees. This is a must for all libraries." Donald Wasson
+ Library J 75:1503 S 15 '50 130w

"There can be nothing but praise for the skill with which Alistair Cooke has told the story of the Hiss trials. He has sifted the mass of records, highlighted the crucial dialogues, expertly mingled description, local color, and legal technicalities, and maintained objectivity with no sacrifice of warmth and wit. To say that the result is as enthralling as a novel would be bathos: it is, on the level of pure narrative, more fascinating than any contemporary novel could ever hope to be." Perry Miller
+ Nation 171:414 N 4 '50 1150w

"Although most of the facts in A Generation on Trial have already been published in the newspapers, Cooke has brought them into magnificent focus, and the whole reads like one of the better mystery novels." Merle Miller
New Repub 123:24 S 25 '50 1750w

Reviewed by R. H. S. Crossman
New Statesman & Nation 40:481 N 18 '50 950w

"Mr. Cooke can make this material—which, for all its implications of personal tragedy and national peril, are so wearisomely familiar—seem fresh and vivid. . . 'A Generation on Trial' manages, through a keen sense of dramatic and legal values, conveyed in crisp style, to re-create the tensions of those days when the case was first developed in public." W. H. Baehr
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 O 1 '50 1000w

"Dramatic and absorbing book." Sidney Hook
+ N Y Times p7 S 24 '50 1450w

"This is not only the finest report on a much-reported case but one of the most vivid and literate descriptions of an American political event that have ever been written." R. H. Rovere
+ New Yorker 26:68 D 23 '50 900w

"You can read Mr. Cooke's discriminating account of this confusing case, necessarily condensed for this volume . . . and agree or disagree with the verdict as you choose. But it will be the jury's verdict which you will accept or reject—not Mr. Cooke's, for as has been said his book is straight reporting." Edith James
+ San Francisco Chronicle p12 O 8 '50 1100w

"Alistair Cooke is such a brilliant reporter that one can only regret that he is not a better historian. His account of the two trials of Alger Hiss is a superb piece of writing, lively, perceptive, ironic, and compassionate, with an exuberance which fuses the clutter of detail into a rich and fascinating narrative." A. M. Schlesinger, Jr.
+ Sat R of Lit 33:19 N 18 '50 1250w

Reviewed by Max Beloff
Spec 184:582 N 24 '50 1000w

"Cooke never forgets that he has set out to be a reporter and not a judge; as one result, his book induces in the reader some of the tension that must have gripped the jury. . . On the trials themselves, Generation is a model of balance and lucidity. The tangled evidence is unraveled with easy assurance, the important issues coolly extricated from the legal verbiage that obscures them. What is almost as remarkable as Cooke's overall performance is his knack for indicating the worth of each piece of evidence as it came before the jury."
+ Time 56:102 S 25 '50 850w

COOKE, DAVID COXE, ed. Best detective stories of the year, 1950. (V5) 253p $2.50 Dutton

Short stories—Collections (46-5872)

Contents: Double exposure, by Ben Hecht; Blackmail, by A. V. Elston; Murder for two, by J. A. Kirch; A nice, clean job, by William Fay; The cat's-paw, by Stanley Ellin; The inspector had a habit, by C. B. Child; The stalking shadow, by S. H. Small; The dog died first, by Bruno Fischer; Crisis, 1999, by Fredric Brown; Remember the night, by Day Keene; Brood of evil, by L. G. Blochman; The million-to-one chance, by Roy Vickers.

Booklist 47:138 D 1 '50
Kirkus 18:402 Jl 15 '50 130w

"A sound collection."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p24 O 15 '50 120w

Reviewed by Anthony Boucher
N Y Times p39 O 22 '50 130w
New Yorker 26:107 S 30 '50 100w

"Only a person who reads every detective short story published could judge whether these are actually the year's best. To a non-connoisseur they seem excellent." L. G. Offord
+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 O 8 '50 70w

COOKE, GREVILLE. Light of the world; a reconstruction and interpretation of the life of Christ. 470p $3.95 Bobbs

232.9 Jesus Christ—Biography 50-5766

A reconstruction of the life of Jesus, written by an English vicar, who devoted seven years to his task. The narrative includes events of the early Christian church, based on the New Testament. Index.

Booklist 46:255 Ap 15 '50

"It would be absurd to accuse Mr. Cooke of literary genius, but he does write a smooth, vivid narrative style, which many thousands of novel-readers will find both easy and rewarding. He is better as a writer, I think, when he is able to fill in with comparative freedom than when he is merely paraphrasing the Gospel narrative." Edward Wagenknecht
+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Mr 5 '50 450w

"Mr. Cooke's beautiful and reverent work is no novel. The subtitle describes it accurately. It both reconstructs by supplying material which the author believes to be historically true, and interprets by viewing the events in the light of a mature Christian faith and (if the phrase is not taken too narrowly) a certain theological position. . . Mr. Cooke is an Anglican clergyman who has heretofore kept his literary light under a bushel. It is a bright light and well deserves that the publisher should set it on a lamp-stand." W. E. Garrison
+ Christian Century 67:370 Mr 22 '50 1400w

"Heartily recommended for all libraries." O. G. Lawson
+ Library J 75:315 F 15 '50 100w

"Greville Cooke has written a devoutly sincere and occasionally enlightening book. Many will read it and be refreshed by it. Some will regret, with this reviewer, that so great and serious a task fails so completely to meet the standards of contemporary Biblical criticism." J. H. Holmes
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p25 Ap 2 '50 600w

"His book is factual, not fiction—neither stuffy nor sensational—and the background, while elaborately filled in, is authentic rather than imaginative. He is no modernist; to him the Gospel story means what it says." P. W. Wilson
+ N Y Times p33 F 19 '50 110w

COOPER, SIR ALFRED DUFF. Sergeant Shakespeare. 96p $2.50 Viking

822.33 Shakespeare, William—Knowledge—Military life 50-6339

Informally written essay in which the author examines the theory that Shakespeare was at one time a soldier, perhaps an N.C.O. As proof he considers a number of the plays with more or less military backgrounds and some individual speeches and characters.

Reviewed by C. J. Rolo
Atlantic 185:85 Ap '50 140w

Booklist 46:244 Ap 1 '50

Reviewed by F. D. Hoeniger
Canadian Forum 30:70 Je '50 280w

Chicago Sun p3 My 30 '50 60w

Reviewed by Milton Crane
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Mr 26 '50 160w

"This fresh approach, like a new camera angle, provides much interesting interpretation. Mr. Duff Cooper discusses hardly a play which he does not illuminate. I shall always henceforth hear the rumble of a drum all through 'Hamlet,' as I have hitherto heard it all through 'Othello.'" Horace Reynolds
+ Christian Science Monitor p6 Mr 25 '50 750w

Kirkus 18:45 Ja 15 '50 130w

"The author is convincing and highly readable. Recommended for Shakespeare and theatre collections." George Freedley
+ Library J 75:698 Ap 15 '50 60w

Reviewed by Douglas Bush
New Repub 122:20 Ap 24 '50 90w

"One can have nothing but welcome for this urbane re-entry of the amateur into the dusty arena of professional Shakespeare scholarship." J. I. M. Stewart
+ New Statesman & Nation 38:784 D 31 '49 130w

Reviewed by W. P. Eaton
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p25 My 7 '50 220w

Reviewed by Harry Levin
N Y Times p7 Mr 26 '50 180w

Reviewed by Hamilton Basso
New Yorker 26:117 Ap 8 '50 80w

"The factual argument of this book is not convincing. But read for new light on the lines, and for the sense, too, that Shakespeare belongs not only to the scholar and the classroom, but to the gifted lay reader, this small 'speculation' has its place." E. C. Dunn
Sat R of Lit 33:15 Ap 1 '50 650w

Reviewed by W. G. Rogers
Springf'd Republican p8C Mr 26 '50 220w

Times [London] Lit Sup p858 D 30 '49 1050w

Wis Lib Bul 46:21 S '50

Reviewed by Hallett Smith
Yale R n s 39:743 summer '50 210w

COOPER, SIR DUFF. See Cooper, A. D.

COOPER, GORDON. Your holiday in Italy. 200p il $2.75 McBride

914.5 Italy—Description and travel [50-33136]

This brief guidebook to Italy, which is imported from England, was written primarily for travellers on a small budget. Contains a section on "what you should know before leaving home;" and a section on "the best of Italy." Lists a few useful phrases and menus. Index.

"A rather sketchy outline of what to see, but it has many useful hints for those who must count their pennies and do not mind traveling and living in other than first class trains and hotels." Beach Conger
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p13 Jl 23 '50 60w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 Je 12 '50 60w

COOPER, GORDON, and WELSMAN, ERNEST. Your holiday in Europe. new rev ed 269p il $3 McBride

914 Europe—Description and travel [49-26025]

Brief instructions for traveling in the various European countries, following general instructions on traveling cheaply. "This book has two purposes: (a) To provide you with ideas for every kind of holiday in Europe likely to suit your requirements; (b) To give you enough (and only enough) practical, up-to-date information, so that when you go you will have the best possible time." (Introd) Illustrated with photographs. Index.

Reviewed by Beach Conger
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Jl 30 '50 50w

"You'll find advice about travel agencies, counsel on how to go on your own if you prefer to do it that way, and much similar useful information. You will also get the kind of exact factual knowledge you need if and when you have made up your mind on the places you want to visit." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 Je 23 '50 350w

COOPER, MRS LOUISE (FIELD). Boys from Sharon. 242p $2.75 Harper

50-6640

"Lucius and George, two little boys from Sharon, Connecticut, are condemned to spend a week with their elderly relative Mrs. Fanning, a lady of means who lives in a small New England university town. Other recipients of Mrs. Fanning's somewhat overbearing hospitality are her brother, Mr. Howe, and his daughter Edith. The boys arrive, Edith falls in love with a young university instructor, Mrs. Fanning opposes the match, and Mrs. Fanning loses." New Yorker

"Very pleasant, nicely phrased, and light." Edward Weeks
+ Atlantic 185:80 Ap '50 300w

Booklist 46:261 Ap 15 '50

Bookmark 9:185 My '50 60w

"An appealing human quality plus dry elegance and a sharp wit make for pleasant, intelligent reading. However, the humanity though appealing is hollow. Mrs. Cooper rigidly refrains from even intimating character depths or motivating reasons."
+ — Cath World 171:313 Jl '50 240w

"The satirist's touch is light—so light!—that the adult characters are pretty much painted on the wall, but the little boys are very real, from Lucius' profanity to George's passionate concern for his Chinese harp, and they will romp right into your heart, imaginary dogs and all." Olive Carruthers
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ap 16 '50 300w

Reviewed by Margaret Williamson
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Ap 17 '50 420w

Cleveland Open Shelf p12 My '50

"This is told in a carefully weeded, nurtured and precise style whose fastidiousness gives a delicacy to domesticity in crisis. The humor here is fragile rather than hearty."
+ Kirkus 18:68 F 1 '50 240w

Reviewed by L. T. Nicholl
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 Ap 2 '50 270w

"A delicate, enchanting tale." E. H. Walton
+ N Y Times p32 Ap 30 '50 500w

"Mrs. Cooper's characterizations are faultless, and if her urbanity occasionally sinks to the level of an overcomfortable purr, it is a small flaw in such a smooth, pleasant book."
+ New Yorker 26:108 Ap 1 '50 120w

Reviewed by Josephine Lawrence
Sat R of Lit 33:18 Ap 1 '50 600w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal
Springf'd Republican p12C Je 11 '50 180w

"The boys are delightfully natural, the picture of adults is on the sardonic side. Amusing."
+ Wis Lib Bul 46:18 Ap '50

"The result, in literature at least, is charming. Mrs. Cooper's adults are sticks which move when the plot demands it, but the little boys, to whom the book belongs, are captivating." Paul Pickrel
+ — Yale R n s 39:767 summer '50 150w

COOPER, MORLEY. Trailer book. 245p il $3 Harper

629.2262 Automobiles—Trailers 50-7984

"How to select, equip and maintain a modern trailer coach." (Subtitle) The author draws on his own experiences in this book. He discusses types of trailers, making a camp in wilderness areas and on transcontinental tours; gives advice on brakes, and other safety measures and devices. The appendixes list approved trailer parks, state laws affecting trailers, and data on electric brakes. Index.

Booklist 46:299 Je 1 '50
Bookmark 9:208 Je '50 30w
Kirkus 18:162 Mr 1 '50 120w

"An inclusive book of expert and rather specific information for owners (both actual and potential) of house trailers." R. R. Hawkins
Library J 75:1049 Je 15 '50 70w
Wis Lib Bul 46:19 S '50

COOPER, PAGE, and TREAT, ROGER L. Man o' War; il. with photographs. 230p $3 Messner

798.4 Horse racing Agr50-474

A biography of the great race horse. Includes a genealogical line giving brief notes on his ancestors back to the Godolphin Arabian. Appendixes give family records, racing records, sire records, and data on his descendants. No index.

Booklist 47:91 N 1 '50

Reviewed by Pat Patten
Chicago Sunday Tribune p28 D 3 '50 310w
Kirkus 18:564 S 15 '50 70w

"Valuable for breeders interested in blood lines." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 75:1906 N 1 '50 60w

"Miss Cooper and Mr. Treat have dealt admirably, not too sentimentally and not too statistically . . . with the life and times of Man o' War. . . It makes a first-rate book throughout. To enjoy reading it you need not care much about horses or racing, but, by the time you come to the end, you will." E. H. Smith
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p37 N 12 '50 270w

"The authors have made a good story, with pictures that bring back the living image of the magnificent creature behind the legend. One portrayal in particular of Man o' War and Will together is worth all the rest, excellent as they are." H. I. Brock
+ N Y Times p44 N 26 '50 180w

Reviewed by Richard Henchey
Springf'd Republican p3D N 19 '50 130w

COPELAND, THOMAS WELLSTED. Our eminent friend Edmund Burke; six essays. 251p il $4 Yale univ. press

B or 92 Burke, Edmund 49-49177

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

"These essays are accurate and well written. They effectively show how much there is yet to find out about Burke, and they add to our knowledge of him more than 'only a little.'" C. B. Cone
+ Am Hist R 55:598 Ap '50 500w

Reviewed by L. C. Wanlass
Am Pol Sci R 44:513 Je '50 100w

Reviewed by Leila Flower
Christian Science Monitor p14 Ja 30 '50 650w

"Though this is a book of rather specialised scholarship, it is written with distinction and sometimes even with charm. Historical scholars would do well to emulate its example." A. J. P. T.
+ Manchester Guardian p4 O 13 '50 370w

"As a preliminary study this book is an incentive—which Professor Copeland means it to be. But it is also an admirable model, in treatment and style, for any further work on the brilliant and many-sided Burke." Robert Halsband
+ Sat R of Lit 33:18 F 18 '50 180w
Times [London] Lit Sup p217 Ap 7 '50 480w

"The author of this book is largely concerned with why Edmund Burke has escaped us, why we have never had a really clear image of him as a person. In these essays, Professor Copeland attempts, with considerable success, to reveal the extent of the ignorance about Burke and, at the same time, tries to clear away some of the misinterpretations in order to make way for a complete and definitive reconstruction of Burke's character, his private life, and certain aspects of his public career."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:39 Mr '50 260w

COPENHAVER, JOHN WILLIAM, and BIGELOW, MAURICE HUBBARD. Acetylene and carbon monoxide chemistry. 375p il $10 Reinhold

661 Acetylene. Carbon monoxide 49-11852

"Prior to and during World War II, extensive research in acetylene chemistry, especially in the reactions of acetylene under pressure, were made by the I. G. Farbenindustrie in Germany. The work was in charge of Dr. Julius W. Reppe. After the defeat of Germany, the Allies made an attempt to induce Dr. Reppe to write out a full account of his work. Although this effort was unsuccessful, the present book is based largely on the documents of Dr. Reppe and his associates. Information gathered by the Field Information Agency, Technical (F. I. A. T.) and the British Intelligence Objectives Sub-Committee (B. I. O. S.) also is included." (N Y New Tech Bks) Bibliography. Index.

"A valuable feature is the inclusion in many instances of operating conditions and yields of chemical processes, and a summary of pilot plant and research experience with processes or modifications which did not reach full scale production. Liberal references to the original sources will be helpful to the reader who requires complete information. A welcome addition to the section on explosion hazards in handling acetylene under pressure would have been inclusion of specific safety precautions recommended for laboratory work with acetylene under pressure." A. C. Cope
+ Am Chem Soc J 72:3830 Ag '50 400w

"The bulk of the book is organized in a logical and readable manner showing the effect of careful editing of the work of J. W. Reppe and his staff who are largely responsible for the developments described. . . Organic chemists and advanced chemistry students will find the contents of this book stimulating." A. O. Zoss
+ Chem & Eng N 28:350 Ja 30 '50 300w

"This book is written in an interesting manner and should be of considerable value to industrial chemists. It is to be regretted that omission of authors' names in the references and lack of identification of the titles in the general bibliography make these of less value than they otherwise would have been." T. L. Jacobs
+ — Chem Eng 57:248 F '50 300w

COPENHAVER, J. W.—Continued

"The book is of interest to organic chemists generally but has special interests for chemists working in the field of polymers and for chemical engineers concerned with designing of plants in which potentially explosive reactions must be handled safely."

+ N Y New Tech Bks 34:81 N '49

COPLESTON, FREDERICK. History of philosophy; v. 2, Mediaeval philosophy, Augustine to Scotus. 614p $4.50 Newman press

189 Philosophy, Medieval

"The first volume of Father Copleston's work [1946] covered ancient philosophy from the pre-Socratics to the neo-Platonists. The second volume covers the mediaeval philosophers down to the end of the thirteenth century. It is somewhat longer than the first volume, although Father Copleston is still only half done with mediaeval philosophy. The work is evidently designed primarily to be read by Catholic readers." (Spec) Bibliography. Index.

"Especially valuable, because [the author] is at home in the medieval tradition. The well-written text seems generally reliable, but the scope of the whole is so ambitious, that, e.g. the chapter on Roger Bacon consists chiefly of a report on his Opus Majus, but does not answer Thorndike's severe criticism." F. H. Heinemann

+ — Hibbert J 48:396 Jl '50 60w

+ Manchester Guardian p4 My 5 '50 210w

"The author certainly offers nothing but his own thorough scholarship towards making his reader's task easy. . . The general reader would be ill-advised to prefer Father Copleston's work to (for instance) Bertrand Russell's brilliant, lucid and readable History of Western Philosophy, which covers much the same ground, even if more superficially. The one important novelty in the Catholic presentation is the careful consideration of the question why the mediaeval theologians should be counted as philosophers in the strict sense at all."

+ — Spec 184:160 Ag 4 '50 270w

Times [London] Lit Sup p601 S 22 '50 550w

CORBETT, ELIZABETH FRANCES. Duke's daughter. 251p $2.50 Doubleday

50-6296

The third in this series of which the earlier novels were Immortal Helen, and Eve and Christopher (Book Review Digest 1948, 1949). Eve had lost two husbands and her adored father, whom she called The Duke. She was contemplating marriage for the third time with Senator Wayne Pepperidge, when she met Phil Dunham. The mystery of Phil and his gentle but mad mother occupies Eve for some time and almost causes her to doubt The Duke. The mystery is finally solved and Eve's third marriage seems certain.

Reviewed by Warren Abbott

Chicago Sunday Tribune p17 Mr 26 '50 70w

Kirkus 18:8 Ja 1 '50 120w

Reviewed by Beatrice Sherman

N Y Times p35 Mr 26 '50 130w

Sat R of Lit 33:28 My 13 '50 140w

CORBETT, SCOTT. Reluctant landlord; il by Paul Galdone. 243p $3 Crowell

818 50-7335

While the author was still in the army, his wife, in desperate search for a home, bought a run-down, small New York apartment house and moved into the "landlord's" quarters, basement and first floor. When Mr Corbett returned from the wars, he moved into the job as landlord with many and various, and often hilarious adventures, as recorded in this book.

Booklist 46:225; 272 Mr 15 '50; My 1 '50

Bookmark 9:208 Je '50 40w

Chicago Sun p5 Je 20 '50 120w

"Altho the story is told with great geniality and the ability to create fun with a recital of troubles, I was glad that the book contains only 243 pages of not many words each. In that space, it seems to me, Author-Landlord Corbett has extracted pretty near every drop of fun and sentiment which could be wrung from the subject. It offers a few hours of pleasant reading, and perhaps you shouldn't ask anything more, the way books are today." Kelsey Guilfoil

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Je 4 '50 320w

+ Kirkus 18:200 Mr 15 '50 150w

"A delightful, hilarious book. We don't wonder the tenants and landlord became one happy family. Illustrations by Paul Galdone in keeping. Good laughs, good reading. Recommended." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 75:771 My 1 '50 110w

"The framework is perfectly satisfactory, but the incidents, true though they may be, are somehow not as funny as they were intended to be, and the characters, with one exception, are more like broad comedy types than real people. The exception, a mousy roomer named Lenny Backus, turns out to be a sweet little guy whose main trouble has been that nobody has ever been nice to him before." Nathaniel Benchley

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 My 21 '50 230w

COREY, LEWIS. Meat and man; a study of monopoly, unionism, and food policy. 377p $4.50 Viking

338.176 Monopoly. Meat industry and trade. Trade unions 50-5771

This book was written at the suggestion of the secretary-treasurer of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen, A.F.L. The author says, that, broadening the scope somewhat, his aim has been: "To study the meat industry, within the complex of general economic organization and its relation to other food industries, with special emphasis on monopoly, unionism, and food policy." (Pref) Index.

Booklist 46:212 Mr 1 '50

Reviewed by Thomas Furlong

Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 F 26 '50 300w

"What makes this book interesting and important is not alone its quality, which is excellent, but the fact that the organized meat workers should have wanted such a book written, and that they should have asked Lewis Corey to write it." James Rorty

+ Commonweal 51:682 Ap 7 '50 1250w

Kirkus 17:667 D 1 '49 210w

"In a comparatively few pages the author has brought together a mass of useful information about the vast food needs of the world and about recent scientific discoveries which prove that, given international cooperation, these needs can be satisfied." Keith Hutchison

+ Nation 170:329 Ap 8 '50 820w

"It is unfortunate that this book is written in a rather dull, flat style that tends to deter rather than attract the reader. For it is well organized and brings together a host of facts about the meatpacking industry. It has, in addition, more positive virtues. For one thing, an adequate amount of space is devoted to the history and present status of labor organization in meat packing, a subject which is skimped or neglected altogether in most industrial studies." Theodore Norman

+ — New Repub 122:20 My 1 '50 500w

Reviewed by L. H. Bean

N Y Times p18 F 19 '50 550w

CORKERY, DANIEL. The wager, and other stories; il. with wood engravings by Elizabeth Rivers. 192p $2.75 Devin-Adair

50-6340

"Daniel Corkery, a scholar of Ireland, professor emeritus of English Literature at University College, Cork, now in his seventies, has long been known to a small circle of delighted Americans. Among his writings are a study of literature, The Hidden Ireland; another of Synge and Anglo-Irish Literature; a gem of a novel called The Threshold of Quiet, and four volumes of short stories. The Wager culls sixteen of the best stories from these volumes." Cath World

---

Bookmark 9:212 Je '50 30w

"He tells his brief, pungent tales in a muted style with a clean, meticulous prose. He has a deep but rather intermittent humor; many of his stories have an aura of sadness but sternly avoid sentimentality. . . All in all, grand reading. If you are not a Corkery fan, The Wager will certainly make you one."
+ Cath World 171:152 My '50 260w

"The 16 short stories in this collection are not lacking in drama, in intensity, or in passion. But they seem to lack them, because these qualities are not readily apparent. Most of Corkery's characters have one attribute in common: whatever there is in their lives of turbulence or of passion, whether the passion be of love or of hate, is revealed only by hints, by words in unfinished sentences, by subtle intonations of speech. . . Elizabeth Rivers' impressive woodcuts are ideal interpretations of these unusual tales." J. M. Flynn
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 My 7 '50 350w

"Corkery's art is mature, austere, bare of apparent artifice. He thinks like a wise man and speaks like the common people. He knows how to use the moods of nature to intensify the moods of men, how to mass detail so as to give the sense of time passing slowly in excitement, how to modulate beautifully from the joy of youth to the sadness of age." R. M. H.
+ Christian Science Monitor p7 S 23 '50 900w

"Literate and distinctive."
+ Kirkus 18:187 Mr 15 '50 100w

"The wood engravings by Elizabeth Rivers are lovely and in keeping with the text. Recommended for short-story collections." M. H. Zipprich
+ Library J 75:559 Ap 1 '50 110w

"The part of Ireland that he writes about . . . has much of the haunted power of a Yorkshire moor; his fishermen and plain folk are myth-obsessed, solitary, living out their destinies in some huger frame than that which modern (especially urban) man grants to himself. In these stories, at last, the imagination is present, the sentence is molded and modulated, not manipulated, and feeling penetrates and holds characters and events in its grip." Jean Garrigue
+ New Repub 122:20 My 8 '50 150w

"Daniel Corkery, in this excellent collection of stories, proves his right to a prominent place among Irish story tellers. . . After reading these sixteen stories one predicts that American readers will want to see more of this gifted man's work." Richard Harrity
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 My 14 '50 450w

"That Corkery's work has taken so long to reach these shores may be due in part to Corkery himself, for his publishers describe him as 'shy . . . disinterested in literary critics and skeptical of American publishing.' But the delay may also be due to Corkery's art, for of all living Irish story writers, and there are many, Corkery's voice is the most subdued, his world the furthest removed from the ballyhoo and bustle of modern life." James Stern
N Y Times p4 Ap 16 '50 450w

New Yorker 26:118 My 6 '50 90w

CORMACK, MARIBELLE. First book of stones; pictures by M. K. Scott. 93p $1.50 Watts, F.

552 Rocks—Juvenile literature 50-9849

For beginners interested in stones and stone collecting. Explains where to collect them, how to test specimens, how to keep collections, etc. For grades 4-6.

Booklist 47:80 O 15 '50

"The illustrations are beautiful and informing. Of particular interest is the double page spread on the earth's history. Children will love and learn much from this new 'First Book' and so will their parents even if, like this reviewer, they never had the slightest interest in geology before." P. G.
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p17 N 12 '50 190w

"The child who fills his pockets with 'pretty stones' should have this fascinating book right away. It will capture his budding interest and guide it into elementary geology." M. J. T.
+ Christian Science Monitor p4 O 21 '50 100w

Kirkus 18:354 Jl 1 '50 160w

"Here is a fine 'first' book, to start young collectors on a new enthusiasm." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 D 10 '50 170w

Reviewed by R. A. Gordon
+ N Y Times p35 N 12 '50 90w

Wis Lib Bul 46:22 N '50

CORREA DA COSTA, SERGIO. Every inch a king; a biography of Dom Pedro I, first emperor of Brazil; tr. from the Portuguese by Samuel Putnam. 230p $3 Macmillan

B or 92 Pedro I, emperor of Brazil 50-5453

Biography of Dom Pedro, son of King John VI of Portugal. Dom Pedro, the first emperor of Brazil, was a handsome, lusty man, who lived his life too furiously, and died at the age of thirty-six. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:218 Mr 1 '50

Canadian Forum 30:71 Je '50 220w

"The author, who is Brazil's consul at Los Angeles, has done an admirable job of research to create this story. The incidental figures—Metternich, the mad Queen Dona Maria I, the scandalous, conniving Dona Carlota—give the story an authenticity that turns an otherwise unimportant era in history into as romantic a story as ever came out of the courts of Europe." R. L. Blakesley
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 F 19 '50 370w

Reviewed by W. S. Rycroft
Churchman 164:16 Je 1 '50 300w

Current Hist 18:296 My '50 50w

Kirkus 17:671 D 1 '49 150w

"This short biography is vividly written and keeps the reader enthralled." J. L. Ross
+ Library J 74:1816 D 1 '49 70w

Reviewed by T. J. Hamilton
Nation 170:352 Ap 15 '50 410w

"Sergio Correa da Costa, grandson of a poet and possessing the skills of a poet and novelist himself, has told the story of his hero with all the relish for colorful action which it merits. And Samuel Putnam, one of this generation's really great translators has provided his usual fluent, animated, flawless and unobtrusive translation, alas, probably the last to come from his pen, its publication being posthumous." B. D. Wolfe
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Mr 5 '50 600w

Reviewed by Duncan Aikman
N Y Times p6 F 12 '50 500w

"Sergio Correa Da Costa understands the significance of this period of history and treats its events and ideas with clarity and restraint. If it sometimes seems that his portrayal of Dom Pedro lacks a certain creative interpretation and depth of understanding, it may be that the Emperor is too colorful and many-sided to be confined within the limits of a single biography." M. L. M.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 Mr 19 '50 270w

Reviewed by J. F. Rippy
Sat R of Lit 33:14 Jl 8 '50 1050w

Springf'd Republican p3D F 26 '50 150w

CORRIGAN, JOHN LOUIS. Management and management's rights to manage in industrial relations; a study in differences. 233p pa $2.50 Catholic univ. of Am.

331.1 Industrial relations. Collective bargaining A50-9030

"Study of changing relations between industrial management and organized labor. The book points out an almost complete reversal of attitude on the part of management, between the years 1919 and 1945, concerning the legitimacy of labor's claim to share in industrial government through the processes of collective bargaining. Major credit for this change is given to the cumulative influences initiated by the National Labor Relations Act. Mr. Corrigan has used four industries, TVA, the automobile, railroad, and clothing industries, in which to compare the practical definition of management, its structure and point of view, reversal of the managerial attitude toward collective bargaining, and management's contractual rights." U S Quarterly Bkl

Reviewed by Joel Seidman
Ann Am Acad 272:235 N '50 270w

"Labor leaders, labor economists, government officials, and others should profit from this work. It provides a more vivid picture of industrial government in action than do more generalized treatments of the subject. Except for its display of a few biases, the book maintains a high degree of objectivity."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:357 S '50 280w

CORYN, MARJORIE. Sorrow by day. 312p $3 Appleton

50-6672

Historical novel about France in the era of Louis XIV. The love of La Grande Mademoiselle, cousin of the king, for a conniving Gascon count, is the theme.

Booklist 46:303 Je 1 '50

"Marjorie Coryn, whose 'Good-Bye, My Son' brought her to the fore as a top novelist, again reverts to the luxury and adventure of royal France for her background of 'Sorrow by Day.' It is written with the passionate intensity of a woman in love with the France that used to be. It is a dramatic story of superb characterization and plausible action." R. L. Blakesley
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p7 My 28 '50 400w

"Miss Coryn's storytelling is brilliant, her use of historical background adroit, her Louis XIV more truly a king than he is sometimes represented."
+ Christian Science Monitor p8 My 13 '50 270w

"Finesse in the handling keeps this from a note of farce and the aging Mademoiselle ends her story in a regal manner. French history and decor are a substantial backdrop for adept fictionization."
+ Kirkus 18:243 Ap 15 '50 230w

"Only moderately interesting." K. A. Shorey
Library J 75:774 My 1 '50 100w

"Louise de Bourbon, after the Queen the first lady of the kingdom, is never made vulgar; she is made very successfully human. Marjorie Coryn's portrait of the King is also a human portrait. It is true that in this novel his interest seems unduly centered on matters of palace personnel, yet the author succeeds in showing the King's attitude toward what may be called the seriousness of government. . . It is a relief to be able to say that . . . this is the most chaste historical novel written in many a year." Gouverneur Paulding
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 Ap 30 '50 550w

Reviewed by Florence Crowther
+ N Y Times p21 My 14 '50 150w

"With insistent effort, detailed care, and resounding research, [Miss Coryn] reveals some of the shadier spots in the Sun King's court. One could wish for a certain rationing of heel twirlings, back archings, and arrogantly upraised Bourbon chins, but for all its embellishments the story makes for juicy reading."
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:32 Jl 15 '50 270w

COSTA, JOSEPH, ed. See National press photographers association. Complete book of press photography

COSTA, SERGIO CORREA DA. See Correa da Costa, S.

COSTAIN, THOMAS BERTRAM. Son of a hundred kings; a novel of the nineties. 465p $3 Doubleday

50-9942

In the winter of 1890 a six-year-old boy arrived in the Canadian town of Balfour, with a square of oil-cloth sewn on his coat bearing this inscription: "This is Ludar Prentice. He has no money. He is going to his father, Vivien Prentice, at Balfour, Ontario, Canada. Be kind to him." On the day when the travel-sick little boy reached Balfour his father committed suicide, so the town decided to carry on the "Be kind to him" part of his legend. The story is of Ludar's life up to his twenties, with the story of many of the other inhabitants of Balfour as well.

Booklist 47:69; 96 O 15 '50; N 1 '50

"An absorbing story, rich in both characterization and incident."
+ Bookmark 10:32 N '50 40w

"In the pipeorgan of novel writing, practically every stop has been pulled out at one time or another by Mr. Costain. The result is a book filled with interest, for at the turn of every page something happens. Adventure is around every corner." Fanny Butcher
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 O 15 '50 650w

Christian Science Monitor p16 N 18 '50 180w

Kirkus 18:479 Ag 15 '50 240w

"The situation of the penniless, unknown little boy, the crotchets of the family that cast him out and the townspeople who took him in, and the warmth, variety and humor of the tale and its telling add up to a novel decidedly in the Dickensian tradition. . . Here, in credible and pleasant small-town terms, are a series of skirmishes between vice and virtue, greed and generosity, that would bring cheers and whistles and hisses from the audience at a melodrama such as was popular in Ludar's childhood days. It would, indeed, be a cold and captious reader who could dissociate himself from the fates of heroes and heroines of the story and fail to feel a glow of satisfaction when the virtuous prevail." Mary Ross
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 O 22 '50 650w

"A spree of old-fashioned yarning, it is richly sub-plotted in the Dickensian manner with structural gingerbread and replete with disenchanting editorial intrusions by the author. . . Much of the dialogue is unlifelike, the characterization superficial, and the narrative wooden." Charles Lee
N Y Times p4 O 22 '50 650w

New Yorker 26:133 O 21 '50 100w

"The mood of Mr. Costain's period novel is frankly one of escape, the medium is romantic. He captures the feel of the time leaving his characters with surging confidence in the life of tomorrow." Jane Voiles
+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 O 29 '50 420w

"It is sincerely written and deeply felt; almost indefinably it conveys faith in human nature and good cheer, a rare thing in this Atomic Age and the more to be valued on this account. In a technical sense, and in mood, the novel verges on the Dickensian: there is pathos, there is humor, and, above all, there is excellent characterization, with a tendency to noble caricature." John Cournos
+ Sat R of Lit 33:15 N 11 '50 450w

Reviewed by L. S. Munn
Springf'd Republican p12D D 3 '50 430w

Time 56:104 O 30 '50 330w

COTHREN, MRS MARION (BENEDICT). Pictures of France by her children. 32p $1.50 Oxford

759.4 Paintings, French. Children as artists

Reproductions of paintings by French school children showing various aspects of French life and customs. Simple text in French and English explains the pictures for young American readers.

Booklist 46:266 Ap 15 '50

"This is a delightful little book." A. L. Shea
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Ap 30 '50 140w

Cleveland Open Shelf p24 D '50

"Excellence of color printing and clarity of presentation have been achieved in this small book at a cost so reasonable as to give it a place in any home, school, library or art collection." A. C. Moore
+ Horn Bk 26:172 My '50 200w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 26:291 Jl '50 90w

"A godsend for the classroom, and all those interested in children's art will want to own this."
+ Kirkus 18:205 Ap 1 '50 110w

Reviewed by Louise Davis
Library J 75:635 Ap 15 '50 100w

"Good for appreciation of art, of the French language, and of France as a country. Recommended." E. E. Beatty
+ Library J 75:879 My 15 '50 80w

"It is a lovely book, most welcome as a token of friendship that reaches both ways across the sea. It will stand proudly beside 'Little People in a Big Country' (pictures by Russian children) and 'Pictures by Young Americans.' It is this reviewer's opinion that these French paintings are the best by far of the three collections, as art and as imaginative interpretation of daily life." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ap 30 '50 310w

"This is a fine way to stimulate young children's interest in French art as well as in France itself, for these pictures are all marked by the French genius for design and color and they are all painted with love." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p22 Ap 30 '50 150w

New Yorker 26:190 D 2 '50 60w

"There are fascinating details in these paintings and the color reproduction is excellent. It is an inspiring little book."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:32 My 13 '50 130w

Wis Lib Bul 46:19 Je '50

COULSON, THOMAS. Joseph Henry, his life and work. 352p il $5 Princeton univ. press

B or 92 Henry, Joseph 50-7249

"The life and career of Joseph Henry lie midway between Benjamin Franklin and Willard Gibbs but, although he was a physicist of great ability, Henry's achievement and the net effect of his career have left a smaller imprint on the development of science than either Franklin or Gibbs. Henry was certainly the most important physical scientist produced in America during the first half of the nineteenth century. . . The tragedy of Henry's career was, first, that he was chiefly an experimentalist and, as Mr. Coulson aptly declares, lacked the 'divine spark of the superlative genius.' . . . The second aspect of tragedy in Henry's life is that, at the height of his career, when he was professor of natural philosophy at the College of New Jersey in Princeton, he abandoned the path of research to become the inaugural Secretary of the newly founded Smithsonian Institution." Sat R of Lit

Reviewed by Waldemar Kaempffert
Am Hist R 56:134 O '50 950w

Booklist 46:352 Jl 15 '50

"This book, by the director of museum research at the Franklin institute, Philadelphia, is a beautiful tribute to one of the most neglected figures in American history. It also is a fascinating story filled with human interest and intimate revelation about Henry's friendship with figures like Lincoln, Agassiz, Bache, and other notable men during one of the most stirring periods of 19th century life in the United States." Roy Gibbons
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ag 6 '50 450w

"Here, within the covers of a single book, Mr. Coulson has presented, in panorama, the story of this dean of early American science. In so far as it is literarily possible he has given the whole view of his man, his work and the vision that inspired it." R. C. Cowen
+ Christian Science Monitor p16 S 29 '50 480w

Current Hist 18:355 Je '50 60w

"The book will be profitable reading to anyone interested in the history of modern science, or in the history of the telegraph alone." R. R. Hawkins
+ Library J 75:873 My 15 '50 90w

"Mr. Coulson's book is the first complete and critical account of Joseph Henry's life. It was no small task to gather so much material from scattered sources, with very few of Henry's own words extant. And even with all the labor expended there is very little in the book on Henry's personal life, not much on his personality. But what this book lacks will probably remain unwritten." Gerald Wendt
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Ag 20 '50 500w

"Henry's long career covered an important period in American science, and Mr. Coulson has prepared a valuable historical study as well as a distinguished biography." John Pfeiffer
+ N Y Times p10 Ap 23 '50 460w

"Written with sympathy and restraint, Mr. Coulson's biography of Joseph Henry is a splendid achievement. Although he is careful to point out the significance of Henry's scientific discoveries he nowhere makes unjustified claims nor exaggerated bids for his greatness. Rather, he explores with dignity the limitations of Henry's mind which prevented his achieving greatness of the first rank." I. B. Cohen
+ Sat R of Lit 33:27 My 6 '50 950w

COULTER, ELLIS MERTON. Confederate States of America, 1861-1865. (History of the South, v7) 644p il maps $7 La. state univ. press

973.713 South—History. U.S.—History—Civil war 50-6319

This is the fourth published volume in the proposed series of ten, which will cover the history of the Confederacy. This volume treats of the Civil war as an aspect of the life of a people. Critical essay on authorities. Index.

Reviewed by R. S. Henry
Am Hist R 55:934 Jl '50 850w

Am Pol Sci R 44:775 S '50 40w

"Written by one of the South's most distinguished historians, this book is by all odds the best survey of Southern civilization, 1861-1865, that has yet appeared. Here is told the story of Southern wartime society and economy as well as of war, politics, and diplomacy. The author brings to his task an unusually rich and comprehensive knowledge of his subject and a marked gift for lucid historical prose." J. B. Sanders
+ Ann Am Acad 271:196 S '50 400w

Booklist 46:351 Jl 15 '50

"Most interesting of all is Prof. Coulter's destruction of the old myth regarding southern loyalty. . . Coulter's final conclusion is that the Confederacy failed because its 'people did not will hard enough and long enough to win.' " Avery Craven
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Mr 19 '50 500w

Reviewed by Paul Hutchinson
Christian Century 67:1049 S 6 '50 900w

Current Hist 18:295 My '50 30w

COULTER, E. M.—Continued

Reviewed by G. D. MacDonald

Library J 75:563 Ap 1 '50 140w

Nation 170:556 Je 3 '50 30w

"The able performance of the author is revealed in his remarkable mastery of the sources and in a vivid, readable style. There is also the boon of humor, which proves a great help to a reader following so formidable a subject." J. G. Randall

+ New Repub 122:17 My 1 '50 900w

"There is no romanticizing about the Lost Cause in this scholarly book. It is a detailed, well documented and unvarnished account of an ill-fated government and a beleaguered people which will be illuminating to practically everybody who reads it." Dumas Malone

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Mr 26 '50 1100w

"The discussion of slaves leaves an impression of contentment which their wholesale running away in invaded areas does not justify, and the brief comment on the Negro as a soldier is, in effect, disparaging to a degree that available evidence does not seem to warrant. It is much easier, however, to find flaws in a book than to write one. When all is said, the fact remains that Mr. Coulter has produced a volume of outstanding merit. Except in the treatment of purely military matters, this is decidedly the best work in its field." B. I. Wiley

+ — N Y Times p7 Ap 2 '50 950w

"This is an important book. It fills a neglected gap in American history, but it does more. It contributes much to a clearer understanding of the federal system of government and the danger in such a system of overstressing local freedom above central efficiency in time of crisis." Avery Craven

+ Sat R of Lit 33:20 Ap 1 '50 1000w

Social Studies 41:380 D '50 10w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:189 Je '50 280w

COUNCIL ON FOREIGN RELATIONS, INCORPORATED. Political handbook of the world; parliaments, parties and press as of January 1, 1949; ed. by Walter H. Mallory. (V22) 213p $3.50 Harper

329 World politics. Political parties (28-12165)

"First issued in 1927 as A Political Handbook of Europe. . . The compilation is now in its twenty-second year of publication and has been issued annually, even during the difficult war years of 1939-1945. It brings together a collection of significant but transitory political information from many and varied sources, some official, some private, all considered reliable by the editor. . . The table of contents lists sixty-three major countries of the world (plus the International Court of Justice and the United Nations) arranged in one alphabet from Argentina to Yugoslavia. Sixteen minor governments are grouped alphabetically under a concluding section, Other Countries, with very brief treatment. The 1949 volume includes under countries: name of the capital; area and population figures; composition of the government; programs and leaders of the political parties having parliamentary representation; and the names, political affiliations, and editors of the influential newspapers and journals most apt to be quoted abroad. Circulation figures are given for newspapers, except in Russian-controlled countries, and the names of news agencies are mentioned. There is no index to the volume." Subscription Bks Bul

"As a library reference tool, access to political and official changes and personnel would be facilitated by the inclusion of a detailed cumulative index for geographical, personal, governmental, party, and press names. . . The up-to-dateness of the statistical data (particularly the estimates) regarding area and population is often more recent in the corresponding volumes of The Statesman's Year-book, which also supplements various political materials advantageously. . . Library value of the Political Handbook is enhanced by continuous rather than occasional purchase. The content is useful to the serious reader or writer concerned with political and world affairs in relation to the American press and for quick reference use as well. The Political Handbook of the World is recommended."

+ Subscription Bks Bul 20:52 O '49 600w

COUNT, EARL WENDEL, ed. This is race. (Great religious festivals ser) 747p $7.50 Schuman

572.08 Anthropology. Race 50-6320

"'An anthology selected from the international literature on the races of man' made up of sixty selections originally written in nine different European languages by writers of twelve different nationalities. These studies, beginning with the Comte de Buffon, belong to the past two hundred years and represent most of what has been seriously thought and said on the subject of what race actually is." N Y Herald Tribune Bk R

"Recommended for reference libraries." D. F. Lucas

+ Library J 74:1675 N 1 '49 130w

"Of so extensive a work, scientific and technical in its methods, I can say no more in this column than that it is, so far as I know, unique in English, valuable and steadily exciting to anybody who wishes to get as close to the truth as possible about one of the vast, perplexing and indeed crucial problems of our age."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p17 Ap 9 '50 360w

Reviewed by S. L. Washburn

N Y Times p16 O 1 '50 600w

School & Society 72:334 N 18 '50 40w

COURLANDER, HAROLD. Kantchil's lime pit, and other stories from Indonesia; with il. by Robert W. Kane. 150p $2.75 Harcourt

398.2 Folklore—Indonesia 50-9468

Folk tales of Indonesia, in which Kantchil, the tiny mouse deer, outwits most of the larger animals. Glossary.

Booklist 47:64 O 1 '50

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton

Christian Science Monitor p11 N 13 '50 20w

Horn Bk 26:487 N '50 60w

Kirkus 18:511 S 1 '50 120w

"Mr. Courlander is an expert storyteller, as his previous collections have proved, and this new volume will be useful to the librarian as well as entertaining to the child with an established folklore background. . . Recommended." Clara Adams

+ Library J 75:1671 O 1 '50 110w

"The stories illuminate native life in Java, Sumatra, Bali, Celebes, Lombok, Borneo. Their range is admirable: not only animal stories and witty folk-wisdom, but such unusual little tales as those of the Javanese alphabet, of a wood-carver, a stonecrusher, a sharp-shooter. As before, the notes are very interesting and valuable."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p24 N 12 '50 130w

"Few writers in recent years have contributed so richly to the field of folklore for children as has Harold Courlander, and with 'Kantchil's Lime Pit' he adds another title to an already distinguished list." E. S.

+ N Y Times p22 N 12 '50 150w

New Yorker 26:186 D 2 '50 70w

"This is a book that has great value for adults as well as for the children, who will love to listen to the stories."

+ Sat R of Lit 33:41 N 11 '50 180w

Reviewed by Ethel Dexter

Springf'd Republican p6D O 8 '50 200w

COURLANDER, HAROLD, and LESLAU, WOLF. Fire on the mountain, and other Ethiopian stories; il. by Robert W. Kane. 141p $3 Holt

398 Folklore, Ethiopian 50-7265

"The Fire on the Mountain is a companion volume to Mr. Courlander's earlier work, The Cow-tail Switch and other West African Stories [Book Review Digest 1947]. . . In this new collection are the tales Ethiopians love: how the Guragé servant won his land through justice, how the Tota outwitted the leopard and his jackal, how the white mouse found a worthy wife, and many more. Sometimes the heroes and villains of these stories are men, sometimes they are animals. The characters are sometimes very wise, and sometimes they are very silly. Often the tales are about the weaknesses and vanities of all human beings, or about right and wrong." (Publisher's note) Notes on the stories. Glossary and pronunciation guide.

Booklist 46:291 My 15 '50

"[The stories] are in general, short and not too difficult for the third or fourth graders. Older students interested in folk lore as a social study of peoples will also find the book of more than usual interest." A. L. Shea
Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 My 7 '50 130w

Cleveland Open Shelf p22 D '50

"Often very short, like Aesop's Fables, they suggest parallels in different storytelling collections. Mr. Kane's imaginative and humorous illustrations show an informed appreciation of the origins. This book will probably be more used by storytellers than by children." A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 26:285 Jl '50 90w

"A distinguished collection of folk stories and legends of the peoples of Ethiopia, flavored with the wisdom, cynical humor and the primitive freshness of the ancient agrarian civilization."
+ Kirkus 18:204 Ap 1 '50 180w

"Sincere respect for a people and real understanding of the art of storytelling distinguish these folktales. Courlander and Leslau heard them told by native storytellers and in translating them have preserved not only their sly wit and simple wisdom but the very rhythm of each narrator's voice. . . Recommended with enthusiasm for ages 10-15." Eulalie Steinmetz
+ Library J 75:704 Ap 15 '50 140w

"These are stories for an adult ready for something different in his reading, and for older young people with exploring minds. Not many are for younger children, for they have that adult satiric twist of the humorous Moslem with his amber talking beads, and a sort of moral it takes an adult to appreciate." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 My 14 '50 400w

"This is a rich collection, full of fresh material for the story-teller, written with such clarity and simplicity that children can read them with ease." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p22 Ap 30 '50 180w

New Yorker 26:186 D 2 '50 70w

"An invaluable addition to the folklore of the world."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:39 Je 10 '50 230w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:288 S '50 120w

COURTAULD, SAMUEL AUGUSTINE. Ideals and industry; war-time papers. 134p $2.25 Cambridge

331.1 Industry. Industrial relations
[50-742]

"The ten papers which make up the book were presented by Mr. Courtauld before a number of different groups in Britain during the war. They express the penetrating understanding of industrial problems which their author acquired during his many years as chairman of the board governing the far-flung textile interests of Courtaulds, Limited." (Christian Science Monitor) Contents: Government and industry: their future relations; The business man's inspiration; Coming industrial changes; Art education; Some industrial relationships; Further thoughts on industrial relationships; Employer-employee relationships; The business man and the economist; An industrialist's view of labour management; Co-operation in industry.

Reviewed by A. G. Hinman
+ Christian Science Monitor p16 D 12 '49 700w

"The collections of addresses as a whole is characterized by considerable reiteration of principle, even of phraseology; yet the changing nature of the audience is of such variety that Mr. Courtauld's remarks reveal themselves with a sense of conviction and emphasis, rather than repetition. . . It is surprising, that the book contains no chapter dedicated to taxation and industry. Perhaps this is a refreshing experience for readers of modern industrial literature. In fact, to encounter a non-fiction book of any sort wholly devoid of statistics is a refreshing experience, and Mr. Courtauld has demeaned neither his philosophy nor charm by making use of conventional symbolism." H. F. Willkie
+ Management R 39:357 Je '50 800w

Times [London] Lit Sup p700 O 28 '49 1250w

COURTIER, SIDNEY HOBSON. Glass spear. 252p $2.50 Wyn

50-6306

Mystery story.

Booklist 46:304 Je 1 '50

"This is high-flushed tosh from beginning to end but it has been managed with such energy that it is a pleasure to bend over and let one's flesh creep." James Sandoe
Chicago Sun p4 Mr 17 '50 100w

Kirkus 17:681 D 15 '49 100w

"This new mystery from Australia has a scholarly flavor. . . The aborigine background is an intrinsic part of the story and gives an unusual distinction to what in any case is a fast-paced and readable book."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p19 Mr 26 '50 200w

Reviewed by Anthony Boucher
N Y Times p23 Ap 9 '50 140w

"This is a good one." E. D. Doyle
+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 Mr 19 '50 130w

COWAN, LAING GRAY. France and the Saar, 1680-1948. 247p $3.50 Columbia univ. press

943.42 Saar. France—Foreign relations—Germany 50-3112

"The claims of France and Germany to the Saar Basin analyzed and discussed with an outline of the results of wars, changing rule through the centuries, etc., down to the present." (Current Hist) Bibliography. Index.

Am Pol Sci R 44:1056 D '50 10w

"The historian and student of international relations will find this volume to be a convenient and reliable summary account of the Saar problem in European history. The book is distinguished by factual accuracy, sound organization, and balanced presentation." O. J. Hale
+ Ann Am Acad 272:291 N '50 390w

Current Hist 19:39 Jl '50 30w

Foreign Affairs 29:152 O '50 10w

COXE, GEORGE HARMON. Eye witness. 248p $2.50 Knopf

50-6341

Detective story.

Booklist 46:304 Je 1 '50

Reviewed by E. Fowke
Canadian Forum 30:144 S '50 60w

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun p6 Mr 31 '50 90w

Chicago Sunday Tribune p15 Ap 2 '50 50w

Kirkus 18:77 F 1 '50 70w

"A capable and crisp mystery in the true Coxe manner."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p26 Ap 16 '50 160w

COXE, G. H.—Continued

"There are moments of padding and repetition which suggest that the story may have been sharper in its condensed magazine version; but occasional fast skipping will bring you to one of the season's better constructed surprise endings and a satisfactory feeling of an evening well spent." Anthony Boucher
+ — N Y Times p34 Mr 19 '50 150w

"Good plot, speedy action, customary crisp Coxe conversation, and well-concealed solution—but people, except for Murdock, are uncommonly shoddy lot. Expert—as usual."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:36 Mr 25 '50 50w

COXE, GEORGE HARMON. Frightened fiancée. 242p $2.50 Knopf 50-9943

Mystery story.

Kirkus 18:440 Ag 1 '50 80w

"Good George Harmon Coxe which means a smooth, fast-paced mystery."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p39 N 12 '50 170w

"A solid and exciting mystery novel, falling satisfactorily just about half way between the hard-fast-action and nice-people-in-the-countryside schools." A. B.
+ N Y Times p17 D 31 '50 150w

Reviewed by L. G. Offord
San Francisco Chronicle p20 O 29 '50 70w

"Rather unpleasant."
Wis Lib Bul 46:17 N '50

COXHEAD, MRS NONA. House of mirror. 256p $3 Dutton
50-12119

"A study of a supremely egotistical woman. As landlady of a large rooming house, she exerts an almost hypnotic influence on the lonely and insecure. Their adoration is a mirror for her colossal vanity. When a love affair distracts her attention, the weak cannot continue without her support." Library J

Booklist 47:115 N 15 '50
Christian Science Monitor p8 D 23 '50 270w

"Some fine writing here, and a subtlety and psychological perceptiveness more intensified than in her earlier books."
+ Kirkus 18:487 Ag 15 '50 150w

"Incredible, but mildly entertaining." J. L. Ross
Library J 75:1660 O 1 '50 70w
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p24 N 19 '50 380w

"Had Miss Coxhead devised a less rigid pattern for her theme and injected fewer stock characters, she might have aroused more interest in her heroine and her protégés." M. L. Krupka
N Y Times p31 O 29 '50 110w

"The situation is treated with a restraint that produces well-paced suspense and a plausible solution to a problem of complex contingencies. A well-constructed novel of wide appeal, 'House of Mirror' demonstrates the technical skill of a talented author." Richard Henchey
+ Springf'd Republican p10C D 10 '50 180w

CRABB, ALFRED LELAND. Reunion at Chattanooga. 308p $2.75 Bobbs
50-14370

Another story in this series of books on life in Tennessee after the Civil war. Grandma Blevins is the central character, and her memories of war days run all thru the book. Mainly it is the story of the daily lives of Grandma, her two sons, and her granddaughter, in Chattanooga during the twenty-five years following the Civil war.

Booklist 47:61 O 1 '50

"With the exception of Grandma the characters are flat and uninteresting, the style trivial. Of interest to readers of the earlier books in this series." Katherine Shorey
Library J 75:1406 S 1 '50 80w

"'Reunion at Chattanooga' is one of Alfred Leland Crabb's best novels of the South, perhaps his best since 'Dinner at Belmont' opened his successful series." Lorine Pruette
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 O 22 '50 650w

"It must be said that Mr. Crabb gets off to a somewhat slow start in this one, but after about a hundred pages with several North-South romances, yellow fever, feuds, unsavory politics, a business boom and a great fire erupting in rapid succession, things pick up. As usual, Mr. Crabb features cheerfulness, coincidence, semi-interminable Confederate dialogue and a plot as full of threads as one of Grandma Blevins' crocheted doilies." N. K. Burger
+ N Y Times p33 S 10 '50 230w

Reviewed by E. J. Fitzgerald
Sat R of Lit 33:45 O 21 '50 320w

CRAIG, HARDIN. Freedom and renaissance. 117p $2.50 Univ. of N.C. press
378 Education, Higher 49-9288

Based on a series of seven lectures by a renaissance scholar, given at Chapel Hill, North Carolina. In them he puts "forward the idea that perhaps another, modern renaissance is what we need. Taken together they reflect the thinking of a notable scholar and humanist faced with some of the more obvious symptoms of today's general malaise." (San Francisco Chronicle)

J Philos 47:278 Ap 27 '50 480w

"Dr. Craig argues his points clearly and well. . . As for the author's talent for putting things effectively and simply, perhaps no one has better clarified the source of our undefined dissatisfaction than Dr. Craig when he writes: 'We have become exponents of the commonplace, and we are bored with the result.'" J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ja 17 '50 1000w

CRAIGE, JOHN HOUSTON. Practical book of American guns [drawings by J. M. Guerry]. 352p $4.95 World pub.
623.44 Firearms 50-8386

"A most practical, comprehensive, attractively written story of American rifles, shotguns and pistols with emphasis on target shooting and hunting. Includes trap shooting, skeet, ammunition, safety rules. Illustrated with diagrams, drawings and photographs." (Library J) Index.

Booklist 46:329 Jl 1 '50

Reviewed by J. A. Menaugh
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 O 29 '50 260w

"This will be good news for the huge number of enthusiasts who cannot afford the more expensive and more specialized books in this field. Here, in one volume, at a good merchandise price, is a general once-over book, which reviews not only the fascinating history of American guns, and the rapid changes of the present decade, but takes up in detail the special aspects."
+ Kirkus 18:127 F 15 '50 170w

"Recommended." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 75:1190 Jl '50 30w

"Captain Craige has jammed a tremendous mass of fascinating and useful information into fewer than 350 pages, and to the process he has brought not only expert knowledge and the capacity to impart it, but good reading, deftness of touch, and high good humor."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:31 S 16 '50 140w

CRAMPTON, GERTRUDE. More Pottleby adventures; il. by Anne Merriman Peck. 82p $1.50 Aladdin

A sequel to the Pottlebys (Book Review Digest 1949). It begins with Percival Allen's birthday and the junk man's gift of a carousel horse. The horse had fallen down a hole, but was rescued by filling the hole with water and letting the wooden toy float to the top. The artificial lake, thus created, and the carousel horse stationed on the shore soon became the center of many Pottleby activities: fishing, fire fighting, picnicking, and winter sports.

"There is a pleasantly repetitive text here and the situations are amusing, but just how much coyness the average child of today can take is the question."
Kirkus 18:235 Ap 15 '50 150w

"The humor in this family story is on a child's level, and some will enjoy this second book of wholesome experiences as much as they did the first. The humor may seem forced and a bit naive to a few; others will find it good fun." Sonja Wennerblad
+ — Library J 75:1054 Je 15 '50 60w

"The style is cleverly suited to younger readers, having spunk and variety, seeming easy in spite of frequent use of interesting long words."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 My 7 '50 200w

Reviewed by S. C. Gross
+ N Y Times p18 Je 4 '50 140w

Reviewed by G. C. Castor
San Francisco Chronicle p3 N 12 '50 100w

CRANE, MRS FRANCES (KIRKWOOD). Daffodil blonde. 242p $2.50 Random house 50-5540

Detective story.

Booklist 46:304 Je 1 '50

"Readable and fast-paced, but not top-drawer Crane."
+ — Kirkus 17:663 D 1 '49 100w

"A typical Abbott mystery, feminine, atmospheric, with a somewhat obvious plot."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 F 19 '50 150w

"Not up to Mrs. Crane's standard."
New Yorker 26:119 F 25 '50 100w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p18 Mr 5 '50 120w
Wis Lib Bul 46:18 Ap '50

CRANE, VERNER WINSLOW, ed. Letters to the press. See Franklin, B.

CRAWFORD, MARION. Little princesses. 314p il $3.50 Harcourt

B or 92 Elizabeth, princess of Great Britain. Margaret, princess of Great Britain 50-8077

For seventeen years the author was governess to the Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret Rose of England. In this account of her experiences she describes the lives of the sisters, during peace and war, in England and Scotland, up to the birth of Elizabeth's son.

Reviewed by Edward Weeks
Atlantic 186:75 S '50 240w
Booklist 46:297; 333 Je 1 '50; Jl 1 '50
Bookmark 9:239 Jl '50 40w

"Those who turn to this story for glimpses of high life will not be disappointed. But it is also a deeply edifying study of a close-knit and loving family, good parents and affectionate children. And as many salutary lessons on the education of little women can be gained from it as ever Louisa M. Alcott had to teach." Clorinda Clarke
+ Cath World 171:477 S '50 230w

Reviewed by Dorothy Sparks
Chicago Sun p5 Ag 29 '50 250w

Reviewed by Gwen Morgan
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Jl 16 '50 600w
Christian Century 67:1266 O 25 '50 350w
+ Christian Science Monitor p8 Jl 22 '50 2100w
Cleveland Open Shelf p24 D '50

"Delightful book. . . . Children will find it full of little stories and older girls will appreciate its true picture of the life of a real princess of our time." A. C. Moore
+ Horn Bk 26:356 S '50 80w
Kirkus 18:319 Je 1 '50 230w

"For general purchase." K. T. Willis
+ Library J 75:1044 Je 15 '50 130w

"'The Little Princesses,' written without any special distinction of style, is nevertheless a lot of fun. Besides giving its fascinatingly if discreetly intimate pictures of palace life, it deals with matters of valid interest on a number of counts." F. H. Bullock
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Jl 16 '50 1200w

"A fascinating tale it is, saved by the humor and intelligence of the author from the cloying sweetness that sometimes threatens. . . For all its fairy-tale title, its gossip of this and that, Miss Crawford's book is an important piece of social history into which a future Trevelyan will dip gratefully for tidbits from inside the Palace walls." Nancie Matthews
+ N Y Times p3 Jl 16 '50 1200w
New Yorker 26:72 Jl 22 '50 120w

"Unfortunately, Crawfie in her intense desire to make her readers share her feelings of her favorite's 'specialness,' overreaches herself a bit, and what she terms Lilibet's 'really unusually lovely nature' shows up on the printed page as something uncomfortably close to priggishness or big-sister bossiness. Margaret, who has Crawfie's love, but seldom her complete, unqualified approval, seems, with her practical jokes, her badly timed laughter, her sharp wit, her gift for mimicry and her waywardness, much warmer, more lovable. . . 'The Little Princesses' is good reading." Edith James
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p18 Jl 16 '50 850w

Reviewed by Pamela Taylor
+ Sat R of Lit 33:28 Jl 22 '50 600w
Time 56:94 Jl 17 '50 550w
Wis Lib Bul 46:19 Jl '50

CREAGER, WILLIAM PITCHER, and JUSTIN, JOEL DE WITT. Hydroelectric handbook. 2d ed 1151p il maps $12.50 Wiley

621.312134 Hydraulic engineering. Hydroelectric plants
50-6298

"The forty-four chapters of this work cover a wide range of topics from rainfall records to the construction of dams and the equipping of power houses. Although no topic is treated exhaustively, enough information is given on each to orient the engineer and to guide him to the more extended books and articles when additional information is needed. In this edition, completed twenty-three years after the first edition [Book Review Digest 1927] a large part of the material is new. Eleven of the chapters have been contributed by specialists other than the authors." (Library J) Chapter bibliographies. Index.

"Both the authors and publishers are to be highly commended for the way this handbook has been revised. Second editions, all too frequently, contain relatively few changes from the original even though major changes may have taken place in the subject of the book. This text is essentially new, and the authors spared no trouble in seeing that each part is up to date. Two hundred pages have been added and the number of contributors has been doubled." + Eng N 144:46 My 18 '50 160w

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 75:699 Ap 15 '50 80w
N Y New Tech Bks 35:40 My '50

CREASEY, JOHN (ANTHONY MORTON, pseud). The Baron and the beggar. 255p $2.50 Duell 50-6998

Detective story.

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 Ap 23 '50 150w

"For readers who have followed too many hard-boiled private eyes, this nice, old-fashioned English thriller may be a pleasant change. Here, in one package, are all the durable, well-loved ingredients: gentlemanly crooks, international jewel thieves, likeable Scotland Yard inspectors, a fabulous pink diamond with an evil history and a diabolical conspiracy to restore an obscure branch of the royal family to the throne of Spain." Hillis Mills

+ N Y Times p16 Ap 23 '50 190w

CREED, VIRGINIA. All about Austria. (New Europe guides) 219p maps $2.50 Duell

914.36 Austria—Description and travel
50-7619

"The first in a new series, this is designed for the prospective tourist and is a very complete guide to all parts of Austria. From the general pointers on clothes, climate, visas and travel regulations, money, accommodations, food, wines, and after a short precis of this country's history, this treats, sectionally, the specific cities, towns, villages, mountain regions and watering resorts, with fuller focus on Salzburg and Vienna. All along the way the churches, abbeys, palaces, museums, etc. are indicated, as well as places to stay, and the appendix includes further specifics on costs, airlines, sports, etc." (Kirkus) Index.

Booklist 46:301 Je 1 '50

Reviewed by Ernest Pisko
Christian Science Monitor p18 Je 14 '50 310w

"Practical, concise and useful, before or during a stay there."
+ Kirkus 18:192 Mr 15 '50 110w

"If you're headed for Austria, one of the best travel bargains in Europe this year, Virginia Creed's 'All About Austria' is the latest book on those parts of the country in which American tourists are welcome. Miss Creed knows every valley and mountain top in Austria and many small villages which have not yet attracted tourists, but the book is more suited to the wanderer who has all summer to spend in the Tyrol." Beach Conger
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 My 28 '50 110w

San Francisco Chronicle p19 Ag 6 '50 140w

Sat R of Lit 33:64 My 6 '50 140w

CREEKMORE, RAYMOND. Little skipper; story and lithographs. [40p] $2 Macmillan 50-7442

A little boy tells of his family's sailboat cruise from Long Island to Provincetown and back home. He concludes that "sailing is the most fun in all the world."

Booklist 46:321 Je 15 '50

"Some young readers may object to its being told in the first person, but those who do not will think that text and pictures tell a fascinating yarn of a delightful summer's outing." A. L. Shea
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p9 Je 25 '50 100w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 26:281 Jl '50 80w

+ Kirkus 18:96 F 15 '50 120w

"While the appeal is limited to those who like boats and the sea, the book will be a welcome addition to the sea collection for younger readers." Elizabeth Johnson
+ Library J 75:879 My 15 '50 70w

"Lee tells the story, in good, intelligent eight-year-old style. . . Boys and girls from about six to ten who love to sail will enjoy this greatly. Many others, who only dream of going to sea, will also share Lee's cruise with delight. It is for fun, not too instructive."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 My 7 '50 230w

"Junior sailors and perhaps even more envious young landlubbers who have longed to go cruising will enjoy and profit by the clear and simple definitions of common nautical terms. The first person singular as a means of telling stories for children is always dangerous. 'Little Skipper' does not escape the hazards." L. R. Davis
+ — N Y Times p16 Jl 30 '50 180w

Sat R of Lit 33:32 My 13 '50 90w

Springf'd Republican p8C My 7 '50 120w

CRICHTON, KYLE SAMUEL (ROBERT FORSYTHE, pseud). Marx brothers. 310p il $3 Doubleday

B or 92 Marx family

A biography of the five Marx brothers. It traces their rise to fame, as comedians, from a Yorkville tenement to Hollywood.

Booklist 46:315 Je 15 '50

"The roaring laughs you get out of the experiences which brought the Marx brothers to this eminence is only part of your reward in this book. There is in addition the heartwarming story of a family clan with love enough to forgive its weak members and strength of will enough to win success on its own terms." Emmett Dedmon
+ Chicago Sun p4 Je 18 '50 650w

"Author Kyle Crichton has an enjoyable book; more buskin than sock, perhaps, and with too many overtones of 'Hearts and Flowers' sobbed by a violin in the wings, but an enjoyable book nevertheless." J. R. Savage
+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Je 11 '50 550w

Reviewed by L. R. Crisler
Christian Science Monitor p8 S 2 '50 1150w

Kirkus 18:254 Ap 15 '50 210w

"A kind of theatrical Life With Mother. It is never too technical and so its backstage stories are genuinely funny without seeming to be. Highly recommended for pay collections as well as for all theatre collections." George Freedley
+ Library J 75:860 My 15 '50 130w

"Mr. Crichton has been satisfied to record, with skill and a light touch, the trials and satisfactions of as winningly daft a family as ever got on paper. The anecdotes are a joy, but the pathos as well as the humor is there for the seeking." Robert Bendiner
+ Nation 171:15 Jl 1 '50 800w

Reviewed by Iris Barry
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Je 11 '50 900w

" 'The Marx Brothers' is gaily amusing from start to finish. . . Mr. Crichton embarks on the lesser anecdotes with all of the assurance with which he sails into the good ones and the result is an occasional letdown. Perhaps, too, he writes sometimes with a little too much presumption of the reader's previous knowledge of the subject." G. S. Kaufman
+ — N Y Times p3 Je 18 '50 800w

"Mr. Crichton's style is hardly a match for the phrenetic low-brow reality of the Marxes' humor, and perhaps his over-all theory that the brothers' success can be attributed entirely to a determined mother and a gemütlich family is faulty. Nevertheless, if you have a good memory—as Mr. Crichton must certainly have, since he quotes in detail the brothers' conversations of twenty, thirty, and even forty years ago—you may enjoy thinking back to the great days of the four comedians."
New Yorker 26:108 Je 10 '50 180w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p18 Je 13 '50 1000w

"In fair weather and foul Mr. Crichton pursues the Marx Brothers with relentless industry, with a devotion that at times seems at odds with his proven critical judgment. The details of their ascendancy have a tendency to grow monotonous as do the recitals of their flair for practical joking." Richard Maney
Sat R of Lit 33:12 Jl 8 '50 700w

CRISP, LESLIE FINLAY. Parliamentary government of the Commonwealth of Australia. 344p $5 Yale univ. press

342.94 Australia—Politics and government
A50-9042

"Discussion of the Australian political system, particularly the differences between labor and anti-labor groups. The position of Catholic forces and their attitude toward socialistic trends is explained." (Current Hist) Bibliography. Index.

"Although the general reader of the volume will find it a little technical, the scholar in history and political science will value the book as a contribution to the study of government." R. H. Fifield
+ Am Hist R 56:185 O '50 320w

"American readers with scant knowledge of Australian history may find the treatment of conflicting social forces too brief for an understanding of the significance of some issues and political alignments. . . To quarrel with a point here and there serves to emphasize rather than detract from the importance of the author's work, however. His study of the national government of the Australian Commonwealth is of permanent value, and contributes much to an understanding of political processes and the relation of the party system to other institutions of democratic government." Louise Overacker
+ Am Pol Sci R 44:764 S '50 650w

Reviewed by C. H. Grattan
Ann Am Acad 270:189 Jl '50 400w

Current Hist 18:355 Je '50 30w

"On these and other matters such as the operation of the Cabinet system, the Caucus, the prerogatives of the Governor-General, Professor Crisp has much to say of great interest, skillfully weaving his source material into the text. Most of the chapters are worth the detailed treatment of at least a volume; but within the limits of its broad purpose and with the partisan limitations already mentioned, here is an indispensable book for which every student of Australian politics must be grateful." Edward Littlejohn
+ Pol Sci Q 65:630 D '50 650w

"A sometime official in Australia's late Labor Government and a political scientist of high reputation and wide learning, Mr. Crisp draws an engrossing picture of his Commonwealth's political elements in a brightly written and factually comprehensive survey that makes no bones about its pro-Labor bias."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:34 My 27 '50 290w

CRISPIN, EDMUND, pseud. See Montgomery, R. B.

CROCE, BENEDETTO. My philosophy, and other essays on the moral and political problems of our time; selected by R. Klibansky; tr. by E. F. Carritt. 240p $3 Macmillan

195 Philosophy [50-576]

"A collection of essays, most of them written during the last ten years and most of them brief, in which the Italian philosopher discourses on the political, moral, and aesthetic problems of our time. In all of Croce's writing it is apparent that liberty is the concept he holds most dear; in these essays he defines it and redefines it incessantly." New Yorker

Reviewed by Rudolf Allers
Ann Am Acad 272:269 N '50 500w

Reviewed by A. C. Garnett
Christian Century 67:433 Ap 5 '50 900w

Reviewed by Henry Sowerby
Christian Science Monitor p6 My 20 '50 700w

"To most readers the most interesting selections will be the essays on Communism, especially those on 'The Idea of Classes As Real Entities' and 'An Essay on Communist Philosophy.' And for those who delight in literary iconoclasm there is an essay called 'Proust: An Example of Decadent Historical Method.' Such bluntness is refreshing." Serge Hughes
+ Commonweal 52:75 Ap 28 '50 650w

"The selection is admirably contrived both to illuminate Signor Croce's central philosophical positions and to exhibit his skill in the writing of occasional pieces. The translator says he has made the translation plain. He has also made it smooth and lively. . . A reader of this book may well disagree with much of it, but he cannot fail to recognise that a wise man wrote it. It is all the more to be regretted, therefore, that the title selected is such as might suggest that its author is one of those newspaper sages who write challenging articles on 'What I believe.' " H. B. Acton
+ — Hibbert J 48:201 Ja '50 1100w

"Croce evidently identifies not only philosophy but all knowledge, including that of the natural sciences, with history. We may well feel that this is but one sort of philosophy, and perhaps but one sort of history. From much of this book, however, there does shine forth, if a little fitfully, the wisdom that comes of a rich and generous soul reflecting upon the issues of our time as illumined by the past. One is particularly struck by the pervasiveness of his stress on liberty, and by his courage in proclaiming that ideal to his countrymen in the dark days of Fascism and disintegration." D. D. Raphael
+ — Manchester Guardian p4 Ja 3 '50 300w

Reviewed by C. S. Singleton
Nation 170:188 F 25 '50 1150w

"Signor Croce is always edifying—and often irritating. He cannot avoid being edifying. He is a sensitive man, almost a poet, who has drunk deep of the wells of European culture, and has touched the movements of life in his time at many spots. Such a man is bound to radiate meaning and may even spread a little unction. . . To speak with counter-irritating candor, this book is a pot boiler, but, admittedly, in a decorated pot with heady tea. The title suggests a confessional too, and indeed the volume opens with a chapter on My Philosophy, in which Croce gives an apologetic for his Hegelian past by emphasizing the distance he has come from Hegel." T. V. Smith
+ — N Y Times p6 Ja 15 '50 700w

"There is a lot of very high-minded stuff in the book, but there is plenty of sting, too, as in a cruelly sportive little review that Croce, as one philosopher of history discussing another, wrote about a tract called 'Dialectical Materialism and Historical Materialism.' by J. V. Stalin."
+ New Yorker 25:101 Ja 21 '50 160w

Reviewed by Stuart Hampshire
Spec 183:780 D 2 '49 700w

CROCKER, BETTY, pseud. Picture cook book. 448p il Standard ed $2.95; de luxe ed $3.95 McGraw

641.5 Cookery

"A 'look and learn' cook book which includes some 146 recipes, 1335 black and white illustrations and some color reproductions. As a cook book it is basic, caters to simple equipment and simple cooking and simple tastes, includes many time and effort saving methods, fundamentals of measures and utensils and definitions, meal planning and nutrition and table service, and has recipes in all categories from appetizers to desserts." Kirkus

Booklist 47:56 O 1 '50

"Probably the finest basic general cookbook that has ever been published, and it is superlative in the fields of breads, cakes, cookies, pies and pastries." Morrison Wood
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 S 10 '50 320w

CROCKER, BETTY—Continued

Kirkus 18:444 Ag 1 '50 120w

" 'Betty Crocker's Cook Book' is a thing of beauty that should be a joy forever to the woman who takes her home and family seriously."

+ Springf'd Republican p4D O 22 '50 160w

CROCKETT, LUCY HERNDON. Teru; a tale of Yokohama; il. by the author. 213p $2.50 Holt

Children in Japan 50-9944

"Here is a family, once well-to-do, now living in the utter desolation of a bomb-ruined section of Yokohama. We see them proudly keeping up as many of their traditional ways of life as possible. We hear their bitterness in defeat and hatred of the 'Foreign Monsters' who move among them. Little Teru finds that one 'Monster Brute' is not at all as she expected. And gradually, through Teru and other children, a new feeling grows up toward America." N Y Herald Tribune Bk R

Booklist 47:120 N 15 '50

Kirkus 18:611 O 1 '50 160w

"No bare outline can suggest the wealth of information, of details of Japanese ways and difficulties in comprehending ours, of sympathetic handling of their traditions, that enrich these pages. Teru is a little girl, but the picture is of her whole family, especially of the troubled thinking of her intelligent father, so the book has value for any young reader from about eleven to fourteen. The many interesting sketches were done on the spot by the author." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 N 5 '50 290w

"Miss Crockett writes with warm sympathy of this difficult time of transition, and also with considerable humor. Although the heroine is still a child, the theme and the handling of the material should appeal to thoughtful teenage readers." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p42 O 15 '50 220w

"A discerning book with a complex subject, and, moreover, a book graced by a fine sense of comedy."

+ New Yorker 26:182 D 2 '50 100w

CRONIN, ARCHIBALD JOSEPH. Spanish gardener. 263p $3 Little

50-13122

Harrington Brande, American consul at a small Spanish port on the Mediterranean, lavished all his pompous love on his little nine-year-old son. Nicholas was a semi-invalid, but after a few months in the sunshine, watched over by the charming young Spanish gardener, the boy was much improved. Then his father's possessiveness asserted itself, and tragedy followed. The novel closes on a note of hope, however.

"There is nothing, I must add, in the fabric of this drama which I did not seem to have encountered before. The Spanish Gardener is a 'well-made' novel, not an exceptional one." C. J. Rolo

Atlantic 186:89 O '50 420w

Booklist 46:326; 47:12 Jl 1 '50; S 1 '50

Bookmark 10:7 O '50 40w

Reviewed by Mary Sandrock

Cath World 172:73 O '50 200w

"This novel, which originally appeared as a serial in a magazine, should have been allowed to remain there. The small pages, big type and spaces used to bulk up the book can hardly hide the fact it is a slender item of quantity as well as quality." Emmett Dedmon

— Chicago Sun p5 Ag 29 '50 550w

"If the reader accepts this tale for what it is, a rather nice horror story set in a lovely garden, plus some insight into abnormal psychology, he'll be satisfied and handsomely so. If he's looking for more he may be disappointed. Most of the characters seem to be caricatures, completely incredible at times. The scenes, bright as they are, fade when you close the covers." Lloyd Wendt

+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ag 27 '50 320w

"Dr. Cronin portrays the nine-year-old Nicholas with insight and warmth . . . [but] the exaggeration of the evil influences at work around Nicholas is so prominent throughout the narrative that the effect is often that of a horror story instead of a helpful study of conflicting human relationships. The book is nonetheless a closely knit, suspenseful tale, further vivified by its Spanish setting." M. W. Stoer

+ — Christian Science Monitor p14 Ag 28 '50 270w

Cleveland Open Shelf p20 O '50

"The climax is both exciting dramatically and plausible psychologically. Since it is a melodrama, complete with a murky Spanish mansion and a piratical fiend who brandishes knives, the fact that the villains are suffering from various degrees of mental strain, is not a point of criticism but a fact that blends well into the malevolent shadows in the background." Joan Rice

+ Commonweal 52:540 S 8 '50 260w

"The story is rather unusual, not wholly convincing; the characters are somewhat wooden. And yet there is a holding quality to the telling, even if at the close there is a sense of bafflement."

+ — Kirkus 18:360 Jl 1 '50 300w

"Recommended." E. F. Walbridge

+ Library J 75:1410 S 1 '50 100w

Reviewed by Norman Shrapnel

Manchester Guardian p4 O 20 '50 70w

"Dr. Cronin tells the story without bothering to rest along the way; he moves quickly to demonstrate his thesis, which is that evil, though it may kill the flesh which contains good, will itself be slain in the spirit by the nature of its act. . . A fake psychiatrist and a villainous butler are hardly more than caricatures, but they help to keep things moving, and in the end the story emerges well told." Thomas Sugrue

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Ag 27 '50 650w

"The story has an inner momentum that stems from the author's narrative skill. And the Spanish gardener helps, too. José is a congenial creation, and a natural attraction for a boy deprived of all but his father's marmoreal love. And in José's end the novelist proves that he understands that perplexing thing, a Spaniard's honor. So chalk up a successful if off-beat item for Dr. Cronin. The author has this reviewer's thanks for having (this once) turned his back on formula fiction." John Barkham

+ N Y Times p4 Ag 27 '50 480w

San Francisco Chronicle p20 S 24 '50 550w

"The relationship the author places his characters in is not so much superficial as artificial. And in the end, the freight of intended meaning is too heavy for such thin, pallid creations." Lon Tinkle

Sat R of Lit 33:20 S 9 '50 650w

Reviewed by L. A. G. Strong

Spec 184:490 N 10 '50 450w

Time 56:84 S 4 '50 100w

Wis Lib Bul 46:23 S '50

CRONKHITE, MRS BERNICE (BROWN), ed. Handbook for college teachers; an informal guide. 272p $3 Harvard univ. press

371.1 Teaching. Colleges and universities 50-7896

This volume contains a series of lectures first delivered to graduate students of Radcliffe and Harvard who were planning to follow a career of college teaching. The lectures are grouped under the headings: The relation between teacher and student; Varieties of teaching method; Some instruments of teaching; Speech mechanics for the teacher; The instructor's many-sided relationships; The search for a teaching position; Significant aspects of higher education in the United States. The editor is dean of the Radcliffe graduate school. Bibliography. Index.

Current Hist 19:106 Ag '50 30w

San Francisco Chronicle p21 Ag 20 '50 40w

"In spite of the degree of overlapping, this is a first-rate book for the college teacher." W. W. Brickman

+ School & Society 72:153 S 2 '50 230w

CROSS, REUBEN R. Complete fly tier. 169p il $3 Dodd

799.12 Flies, Artificial Agr50-415

"The Complete Fly Tier includes two volumes previously published—Tying American Trout Lures, and Fur, Feathers and Steel [Book Review Digest 1936, 1940]—with a new section on tying salmon flies and other additional material." Verso of title page

---

Booklist 46:263 Ap 15 '50

"A good practical handbook." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 75:778 My 1 '50 20w

CROSSMAN, RICHARD HOWARD STAFFORD, ed. God that failed, by Arthur Koestler [and others]. 273p $3.50 Harper

335.4 Communism 50-5050

Six men, who were at one time either Communists or sympathizers, herein set forth the reasons why they became disillusioned with Communism. The writers are Arthur Koestler, Ignazio Silone, Richard Wright, André Gide, Louis Fischer, Stephen Spender.

"The pieces by Silone and Wright are deeply moving confessions, and Koestler contributes a wonderfully interesting slice of personalized history. Mr. Crossman has put together a fascinating and significant volume." C. J. Rolo

+ Atlantic 185:74 Mr '50 800w

Booklist 46:168 Ja 15 '50

Bookmark 9:215 Je '50 30w

Reviewed by W. R. Coleman

Canadian Forum 30:18 Ap '50 1350w

"It is interesting and significant that all the authors are inclined to draw one moral and philosofical lesson from their experiences, long or short, with communist organizations. The end does not justify the means; or perhaps it would be more accurate to say that the means determine the end. Koestler and Fischer are perhaps the most politically mature of the contributors." W. H. Chamberlin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ja 22 '50 550w

"This is a book of the highest importance. In six autobiographical essays . . . it presents the reader with an authentic insight into the mature, international ramifications and aspirations of Soviet communism. It is more telling and enlightening than anything written on the same topic heretofore." Ernest Pisko

+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Ja 14 '50 800w

Cleveland Open Shelf p9 My '50

Reviewed by Martin Gardner

Ethics 60:296 Jl '50 900w

Foreign Affairs 28:679 Jl '50 50w

Kirkus 17:617 N 1 '49 200w

"The book provides an intimate and fascinating account of the mental processes, the emotions and every-day events which prompted these intellectuals to see Communism as the only salvation for the conflicts and troubles of the common man. Inevitably, it serves both as a condemnation of the communistic machine, and as an indictment of the weaknesses and deficiencies of European and American democracy." J. E. Brown

+ Library J 75:106 Ja 15 '50 190w

Reviewed by Reinhold Niebuhr

Nation 170:88 Ja 28 '50 1600w

"The reason why The God That Failed, for all its colorful detail and passing illuminations, makes no lasting impression is that it is evidence in a trial that has long since ended. . . If The God That Failed is little help in the strategy of the future, it does at least suggest one article of tactical policy that could save our federal police and assistant watchdogs a good deal of noisy wrongheadedness. This book is compelling evidence that when a Communist is cured, he is cured permanently." Robert Hatch

New Repub 122:19 Mr 13 '50 1200w

Reviewed by V. S. Pritchett

New Statesman & Nation 39:68 Ja 21 '50 1850w

"This book should be read by all those who in our present hysteria have forgotten the painful history of the '20s and '30s—and more particularly by those who never understood it." Merle Miller

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 Ja 8 '50 1350w

"It must be remembered that all the writers of these essays, with the exception of Richard Wright, could have learned from others what they had learned for themselves about communism. The information was already available, and some lack of shrewdness, some masochistic urge must have led them to disregard it. The value of this book is not that its authors showed themselves outstanding, but that they were typical. It is a truly contemporary book; it shows how at the moment Europeans of this kind regard communism." Rebecca West

+ — N Y Times p3 Ja 8 '50 2350w

New Yorker 25:89 Ja 14 '50 270w

San Francisco Chronicle p28 Mr 26 '50 200w

"This is a book of great power, fascination, and significance." A. M. Schlesinger, Jr.

+ Sat R of Lit 33:11 Ja 7 '50 800w

Reviewed by John Plamenatz

Spec 184:186 F 10 '50 450w

Springf'd Republican p18A Ja 29 '50 600w

Time 55:86 Ja 9 '50 1000w

"The book is well conceived, well written, well produced, well timed and well out of the ordinary. The next edition would be better for a short index."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p67 F 3 '50 1150w

Wis Lib Bul 46:21 F '50

CROWELL, IVAN HERRETT. Popular weaving crafts. 166p il pa $2 Bennett

745.52 Weaving 50-8054

"Includes braided rugs, several types of looms, with instructions for making as well as using, hooked rugs, finger weaving, card weaving, even cross-stitch and needle point, a chapter on vegetable dyeing and one on spinning and carding wool. Clear diagrams and explanations, with suggestions for design." (Wis Lib Bul) No index.

Booklist 47:9 S 1 '50

Cleveland Open Shelf p20 O '50

Wis Lib Bul 46:14 N '50

CROWLE, PIGEON. Moira Shearer: portrait of a dancer. 80p il $3.75 Pitman

B or 92 Shearer, Moira 50-7957

Sketch of the life of the Scottish dancer stressing training for the ballet, and describing her various roles. Illustrated with nearly fifty photographs of Miss Shearer. Index.

"The personal story emerges rather insipidly, but will be balanced by the truly stunning photographs."

Kirkus 18:189 Mr 15 '50 90w

"It is strictly a 'fan' book. Miss Crowle paints a charming picture of her, however, and those who have watched the little red-headed dancer from Scotland, either with the Sadler's Wells Ballet or on the screen in 'The Red Shoes,' will be quite ready to go along with the author's attitude." John Martin

+ N Y Times p40 Je 11 '50 180w

CROWLE, PIGEON—Continued

"Among them all I find Roger Wood's action picture of Moira Shearer and Michael Somes, with the corps de ballet in Cinderella, the most exciting, but all are beautiful and interesting. This is a perfect gift-book for children and childlike adults, who have no particular acquaintance with ballet. . . The single-mindedness of the author has saved her from insipidity, and she has told her success story of the charming young Scottish ballerina and film-star in such a way as to make her glamorous without offending the modesty for which all who know Moira Shearer have always praised her." Beryl de Zoete

+ Spec 183:900 D 23 '49 650w

CRUIKSHANK, ROBERT JAMES. Charles Dickens and early Victorian England. 308p il $4.50 Chanticleer

942.081 England—Social conditions. Dickens, Charles. Great Britain—History—19th century 50-6289

A study of English life and customs during the years 1837 to 1870, or from the publication of the Pickwick Papers to Dickens' death. "Sitting in Dickens's chair as editor of the 'News Chronicle,' the successor of the 'Daily News' which Dickens started, Mr. Cruikshank sees his great predecessor as the very spirit and chronicler of those mighty days. In Dickens and Keats, a piquant conjunction, he hears, too, the voices of the lower middle class Englishman, the class that never got direct representation for itself in Parliament." (Manchester Guardian) Index. Bibliography.

Atlantic 185:90 Ap '50 130w

Booklist 46:209; 216 Mr 1 '50

"The book's style is eminently readable and in places really excellent." Ney MacMinn

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Mr 5 '50 500w

"Only a lifelong lover of the works of Dickens, possessing that most valuable of all literary gifts—an impartial perspicacity—could have compiled this well documented and beautifully illustrated survey of every phase of life in early Victorian England." Leila Flower

+ Christian Science Monitor p2 Mr 4 '50 750w

Kirkus 18:129 F 15 '50 100w

"A congested, largely autobiographical and floridly written chronicle, fascinatingly illustrated with many photogravures and life drawings." E. F. Walbridge

+ Library J 75:396 Mr 1 '50 100w

"The author often reaches a rare eloquence of his own; the book is buttressed from unusual and unexpected sources and it is always stimulating. The two elements in the Early Victorians, he thinks, not taken into sufficient account nowadays are the violent and the sinister, but no one will be able to say that again after reading Mr. Cruikshank's queer and imaginative chapter 'Phantasia.' This remarkable book has an appendix of statistical charts as well as a wealth of period illustrations, many of them new to the present reviewer." James Bone

+ Manchester Guardian p4 D 16 '49 390w

Reviewed by Richard Chase

Nation 170:554 Je 3 '50 850w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p40 N 12 '50 550w

"This book is based on deeper reading and research than newspaper archives. It is a solid as well as a vivid book; and even readers who approach history through economics will find in it an appendix of social statistics likely to satisfy them. Moreover, it is amply and admirably illustrated with reproductions of contemporary pictures, etchings and engravings which stimulate the imagination." Desmond MacCarthy

+ N Y Times p5 Mr 19 '50 1050w

San Francisco Chronicle p27 Ap 30 '50 150w

"This is at best a rambling book, and one that will seem rather trivial to the serious-minded searcher for historical uniformities, or at least historical explanations. It is pleasantly written, just a little too close to whimsically written for an austere taste. And, of course, it is not the kind of book with which to begin one's acquaintance with Victorian England. But if you know that far country a bit already . . . you will find in Mr. Cruikshank's scattered pages some pleasant mixtures of the familiar and unfamiliar, some new angles of vision." Crane Brinton

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:17 Jl 15 '50 500w

Time 55:103 Mr 20 '50 500w

"Now and then it is a little difficult to see where Dickens comes in, but a quotation from him can always make an attractive sauce to flavour the main solid dish, and Mr. Cruikshank, like a good cook, uses him sparingly and judiciously. . . It is perhaps ungrateful to pick out slips, but Mr. Cruikshank really ought not to attribute to Pendennis a composite quotation from The Newcomes. . . [The pictures] all are good. Ships, coaches, trains, slums, Mr. Gladstone and Florence Nightingale—here is the best of fine confused browsing."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p788 D 2 '49 650w

CULBERTSON, ELY. Hoyle; the new encyclopedia of games with official rules; Albert H. Morehead and Geoffrey Mott-Smith, co-authors and editors. 656p $3.95 Greystone

795.4 Games. Cards 50-5903

Instructions and pointers for playing card games (poker, rummy, whist, bridge and many others); solitaires; chess; checkers; dice games; mah-jongg; mathematical and word games. There is a chapter on the science of betting. A dictionary of games and terms serves also as an index.

Booklist 46:215 Mr 1 '50

Bookmark 9:247 Jl '50 20w

"Altogether this is an encyclopedia of games that will help to standardize play and settle disputed points, but will also serve the larger purpose of widening one's field of recreation." Kelsey Guilfoil

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 Mr 5 '50 170w

San Francisco Chronicle p24 Mr 19 '50 70w

Springf'd Republican p8C Mr 5 '50 110w

CULSHAW, JOHN. Concerto. (World of music ser) 72p il col pl $2 Chanticleer

785.6 Concerto 50-6502

"This book is more an outline than a full-fledged history or analysis of the subject. The author traces briefly the history of the concerto form from its origins in the operatic aria, mentioning 16th and 17th century works bearing the 'concerto' label, the concertos of Alessandro Scarlatti, Corelli, Handel, J. S. Bach, Haydn, Mozart, and Beethoven, the concerto in the romantic period, the influence of the spirit of nationalism on the concerto, some of the curiosities included among concertos, and the concerto today. Works described are those which are performed today or which have had a marked effect on the history of the form." Music Lib Assn Notes

Cleveland Open Shelf p11 My '50

"Recommended for the general library." H. E. Bush

+ Library J 75:697 Ap 15 '50 100w

"The author's most valuable comments are those pertaining to the elements of drama and contrast in the concerto form, and to the fact that the concerto has a long history and a form of its own and should not be 'dismissed (or welcomed) as an inferior (or superior) derivation from the symphony.' The book is handsomely illustrated." Ralph Moritz

+ Music Lib Assn Notes 7:485 Je '50 210w

"Most of Mr. Culshaw's illustrations are intrinsically interesting enough, but less than a fifth of them have any bearing on concertos. . . Mr. Culshaw's text exhibits the same mixture of confusion, irrelevance, and plain error. The section on the eighteenth-century concerto is a hopeless mess. That on romantic and modern concertos, while somewhat better, is still plentifully garnished with unfounded generalizations and misleading statements. The few general ideas not in themselves wrong have been borrowed, more or less badly garbled, from Tovey's essay, 'The Classical Concerto.' I have failed to divine on what plan the material was organized, and the tone throughout is depressingly philistine." C. B. Farrell

— + Nation 171:113 Jl 29 '50 240w

CULSHAW, JOHN. Rachmaninov; the man and his music [Eng title: Sergei Rachmaninov]. 174p il $3 Oxford

B or 92 Rachmaninoff, Sergei [49-6844]

A brief biographical outline of the composer's life, followed by an attempt to discuss and evaluate all of his music. The appendix contains a list of the Works by Rachmaninov, a bibliography, and a discography. Index.

"Musicians will be pleased to find a highly intelligent if not always profound analysis of any work they might be called on to hear or perform, be it orchestral, keyboard, vocal, or chamber music. To the general music lover, however, many analyses and descriptions will be no more useful than are program notes. . . It is both gratifying and unusual to find a first evaluation like this that is neither a eulogy nor an attack. The author is as critical and unbiased as one could wish." K. G. Roy
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 My 15 '50 250w

Reviewed by Leonard Burkat
Library J 75:697 Ap 15 '50 70w

"Of course Mr. Culshaw does like Rachmaninoff's music, else he would not have written the book, but he need not be so devious in exposing his affection. For the most part he does a nice job, although some of his musical discourse is in the language of the term paper—the first theme is constructed so, the development shows such and such treatment, the coda is brilliant and effective, and so on. Yet in spite of this usual approach there are many trenchant remarks and criticisms which are highly justified and lead to further reflection. When he sheds his timidity and loudly proclaims Rachmaninoff's greatness, however, he is apt to go too far." E. N. Waters
Music Lib Assn Notes 7:473 Je '50 950w

"The book is more for the serious music student than for the general reader. In addition to the analytical summaries are the author's comments, discerning and usually unopinionated. He writes with particular warmth of The Bells, rarely heard in our concert halls, and of the Vesper Mass, which is quite unknown." Moses Smith
+ N Y Times p14 My 7 '50 200w

"Mr. Culshaw's analytical notes on Rachmaninov's individual works are adequate though conventional. But the harmonic style of Rachmaninov's music does not receive proper treatment at his hands. The characteristic 'Russian' flatted sixth is hardly 'Mendelssohnian' in its harmonic implications, as Mr. Culshaw describes it. . . Writing about Rachmaninov's Second Symphony, Mr. Culshaw complains that 'the polyphony here becomes excessively complicated.' What polyphony? . . There are errors in the musical examples, of which only the most egregious one (it would transform Rachmaninov into a wildly cacophonous modernist) is corrected in a note at the end of the book." Nicholas Slonimsky
Sat R of Lit 33:13 My 13 '50 750w

CUMBERLAND, MARTEN. House in the forest. 224p $2.25 Doubleday

50-8626

Detective story.

Booklist 47:40 S 15 '50

"A good yarn with an intriguing idea behind it and the French detective, Saturnin Dax in charge."
+ Kirkus 18:288 My 15 '50 90w

"Excellent flavor to a well worked out chase story."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 Jl 16 '50 200w

Reviewed by Hillis Mills
N Y Times p18 Ag 20 '50 140w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 Ag 20 '50 110w

"Dax sleuthing less impressive than in former tales. Plot idea good, people, scenes interesting, but story wanders."
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:28 Jl 29 '50 40w

CUMMING, MARIAN. All about Marjory; il. by David Stone Martin. 148p $2.25 Harcourt

50-14656

Episodes in the life of an imaginative eight-year-old who lived in Texas in 1904. Her experiences are written for ages eight to twelve.

Booklist 47:102 N 1 '50
Horn Bk 26:473 N '50 80w
Kirkus 18:560 S 15 '50 160w

"Little girls from 8-10 will feel very close to Marjory, and adults will have pleasant, nostalgic memories of their mud-pie and doll house days. Very outstanding big-sister relationship." N. L. Rathbun
+ Library J 75:1834 O 15 '50 90w

"Beautifully and accurately evokes a past time." S. C. Gross
+ N Y Times p30 S 17 '50 180w

CUMMINGS, EDWARD ESTLIN. Xaipe; seventy-one poems. 71p $2.50 Oxford

811 50-6561

A collection of lyrics produced since 1944. "Some of the poems, as before, scatter their words, syllables, letters of the alphabet like drops of rain; riffle them like a deck of cards; splice them with parentheses and interior punctuation. . . [The] poems are all concerned with 'the great advantage of being alive.' We have only to open our eyes; to perceive that there is more to what we see than what we see. Each poem is such an opening: a particular revelation. Its technical devices are the loving strategies by which he surprises us into awareness." (N Y Times)

Reviewed by Anne Fremantle
Commonweal 52:370 Jl 21 '50 300w

"A new collection of poems by the master of the parenthesis, this volume includes some hitherto unpublished, and should delight fans and intrigue the uninitiated. Most of the poems need disentangling, but, if the reader is patient with letters and punctuation symbols, the results in Cummings' whimsical, inward-chuckling wit are worth the effort."
+ Kirkus 18:202 Mr 15 '50 100w

"Cummings, the scornful pioneer and capricious romantic, is still one of the best poets of our time." Gerald McDonald
+ — Library J 75:1189 Jl '50 70w

"Delightful in the item, save for the occasional ghastly-sentimental or the downright nasty in the mass these poems are a little, what shall we say, otiose. For a private convention can become monotonous perhaps more quickly than a public one; to read seventy-one lyrics of Cummings straight through is like reading a hundred Cavalier lyrics in succession. The lilt and the lift and the grace, the spontaneity and the affirmation, the being on the side of life and people and springtime, as against winter and death and stuffed shirts, are wonderful as ever; one responds, happily to the invitation of the title. And yet—well, maybe it's a morbid and Puritan nature that distrusts a persistent gaiety. There is something, I think, in his own sense of the word, a little unbecoming about Cummings; now that he approaches years of discretion, he might risk the challenge to his certainly established originality by accepting, and at the same time resisting, the imposition of more traditional forms." Rolfe Humphries
+ — Nation 171:91 Jl 22 '50 270w

Reviewed by M. L. Rosenthal
New Repub 123:18 S 18 '50 1500w

CUMMINGS, E. E.—Continued

"This new beautifully blue book, which begins and ends with a new moon, the sky's perpetually renewed salutation, will add to the growing recognition of Cummings as one of the major lyric poets of our time." Lloyd Frankenberg

+ N Y Times p5 Ap 2 '50 1200w

"It is [the] deletion of the tragic that makes Cummings' joy childish and his anger petulant. 'Xaipe' means 'rejoice,' yet to rejoice with Cummings is to rejoice in an incomplete world, just as to despair with Nathan is to despair in a sentimental one." Louise Bogan

New Yorker 26:113 My 20 '50 180w

"There are many successes, as well as many failures, in Mr. Cummings' new book. The ambitiousness of his technique lends itself to unevenness, so that when he scores a bull's-eye it is a very difficult, moving target he has hit. When he fails the bits and pieces of shot seem abnormally futile. The outstanding thing about Mr. Cummings is his split-second pictorial sense: he takes in a scene in its entirety, observes its composition (he is also a painter) and reproduces it as accurately as he can in his poetry. . . These poems, however they may appear at a superficial reading, are never trivial. They are often inconsequential, but equally often they contain layers of profound meaning excitingly expressed."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p422 Jl 7 '50 650w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:160 Je '50 280w

CUMMINGS, PARKE. Dictionary of baseball; with the official rules. 122p $1.50 Barnes, A.S.

796.357 Baseball—Dictionaries 50-7982

"Herein are terms used in baseball, defined in their alphabetical order, together with the rules of the game, which underwent major revision in 1950. . . Preceding the text are listed the symbols and abbreviations used in the sport. The text itself is arranged in strictly alphabetical order. . . Cross-references are supplied with certain complex terms. Slang terms are followed with (s). Specifications are included, such as permissible size of equipment, distances between bases and the like. Typical box scores, league standings, averages and a scorecard are reproduced. At the start of the rules section there is a diagram of the field, and insets of home plate and the pitcher's mound. This book is intended to explain the structure of the game, but not its history. Names of players, and their records, are accordingly not included." (Introd) Index to playing rules.

Booklist 46:337 Jl 1 '50

"Long-time baseball fans will find little that is new in this amazingly complete dictionary of baseball terms. But johnny-come-lately types, or those whose baseball attendance is on the Ladies' day plan, will find invaluable assistance toward a better understanding of the game itself and stories written about it." Robert Cromie

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Jl 16 '50 100w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson

Library J 75:1190 Jl '50 40w

CUMMINGS, RICHARD OSBORN. American ice harvests; a historical study in technology, 1800-1918. 184p pl $3 Univ. of Calif.

621.56 Ice industry 49-11924

"In this study of the rise and development of the ice industry in America the author describes the experiments and inventions which started the industry on its way, discusses its attempts at monopoly, points out its close interdependence with other important industries, and shows how technological advances enabled it to play a broad and essential role in the delivery and preservation of the nation's food." (Publisher's note) Index.

"In these days of multivolumed scholarship it is refreshing to come across a small book properly proportioned to the importance of its subject. In my estimation this useful volume would have gained additional stature by a more thorough reworking and a sharper interpretation of the material. There are spots where it gives the impression of a collection of notes." E. C. Kirkland

+ — Am Hist R 55:991 Jl '50 170w

"The subject-matter has interest as a nearly forgotten facet of history that throws light on phases of the monopoly cycle and the attendant trend of invention and technological development. And there were colorful individuals who played major parts in the story. Unfortunately, the author zealously sets down a mass of facts painfully dug out, but he is either unable or unwilling to endow them with much color or meaning." Hal Borland

N Y Times p20 Ja 15 '50 180w

Social Studies 41:192 Ap '50 40w

CUNNINGHAM, ALBERT BENJAMIN (GARTH HALE, pseud). Hunter is the hunted. 223p $2.50 Dutton

49-50403

Detective story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe

Chicago Sun p5 F 24 '50 160w

Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 Ja 29 '50 60w

Kirkus 17:614 N 1 '49 80w

"There's not much of a mystery to this one, but the background is interesting."

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 Ja 29 '50 130w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock

N Y Times p16 Ja 8 '50 220w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle

San Francisco Chronicle p16 F 5 '50 100w

"Highly commendable."

+ Sat R of Lit 33:46 Ja 28 '50 50w

CUNNINGHAM, ALBERT BENJAMIN (GARTH HALE, pseud). Killer watches the manhunt. 222p $2.50 Dutton

50-8882

Detective story.

"Cleverly original stage setting of puzzle for neat performance by enjoyable sleuth." Drexel Drake

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p17 S 10 '50 50w

"Good counterpoint in technique, a steady market."

+ Kirkus 18:317 Je 1 '50 60w

"Slimmer as to plot and more wordy in detail than most of this backwoods series."

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 S 3 '50 140w

"The regional mystery novels of A. B. Cunningham occupy a unique place among whodunits. Usually as well plotted and suspenseful as the best of more conventional metropolitan murders, they have a fine rich plus-value as Americana in the detailed authenticity of their portrayal of backwoods life and character. That very believable and likable detective, Jess Roden, shares this latest book with a co-star." Anthony Boucher

+ N Y Times p18 Ag 13 '50 170w

"Mr. Cunningham's prose is occasionally a bit too tormented for comfort, and he deals rather profusely in red herrings, but his methods are ingenious and his atmospheric effects seem authentic, though perhaps a little thick."

+ — New Yorker 26:87 Ag 19 '50 150w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle

San Francisco Chronicle p22 S 17 '50 60w

CUNNINGHAM, ALBERT BENJAMIN (GARTH HALE, pseud). One big family. 322p $3 Dutton

50-8564

Three generations of one family living under the same roof in a midwestern town are the characters in this novel. The friction arising from the different outlooks of different generations is not cleared up until the older couple have both died, and the two members of the youngest generation have gone out to seek their own fortunes.

Booklist 47:61 O 1 '50

"Another top-grade job by Garth Hale."
+ Chicago Sun p12 Ag 15 '50 100w

"The conversations are excellently done, and the presentation of the theme honest in respect to this special, not very agreeable, family, but the general deductions are happily very much open to question." W. K. Rugg
+ — Christian Science Monitor p9 S 2 '50 250w

Kirkus 18:286 My 15 '50 140w

"Not recommended." M. E. Monroe
— Library J 75:1180 Jl '50 80w

"Most American families will . . . take pleasure in recognizing, in Garth Hale's even-handed and often acute account of the conflicts of individuals and generations, moods and situations they themselves have known. What is more, they will find an affirmation that even members of a family can know a great deal that is disillusioning or irritating about one another and still find room for liking and respect." David Tilden
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Jl 23 '50 650w

N Y Times p19 Jl 23 '50 140w

"I have a feeling that [the author] knew what he wanted to do better than he was able to do it; that the book is like a play in which the underlying plot and purpose are fine, the situations well thought out and dramatic, but the directing and characterization not quite adequate. This is my overall impression, though there are many scenes in which the essential poignance and irony of the triple conflict are shown in vivid clarity and in which the characters stand out as real people. The book just misses, I think, being a really profound commentary on human relationships." S. H. Hay
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:15 Jl 22 '50 650w

CUPPY, WILLIAM JACOB. Decline and fall of practically everybody; ed. by Fred Feldkamp; drawings by William Steig. 230p $3 Holt
817 50-9945

A collection of sketches of historical persons as they looked to the author. Among those described are Cheops, Pericles, Charlemagne, Lady Godiva, Peter the Great, Henry VIII, Montezuma, and Miles Standish. The character studies are replete with fact and fancy, complete with footnotes.

Booklist 47:53; 73 O 1 '50; O 15 '50

Bookmark 10:29 N '50 30w

"His best work." Richard Blakesley
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 O 8 '50 360w

Reviewed by Ronald Stead
Christian Science Monitor p6 O 14 '50 550w

Kirkus 18:453 Ag 1 '50 200w

"Before he died in the fall of 1949 Cuppy had sketched out the idea of the present book and had actually written most of it, though unfortunately he was unable to finish a few general chapters which, we may be sure, would have been very funny indeed. Now his long-time friend, Fred Feldkamp, has collected and edited these sketches on the great ones of history, and the result is excellent—perhaps the best of all the Cuppy books. . . It is good to be reminded of rare Will Cuppy again, and Mr. Feldkamp, the loyal editor, deserves the thanks of all of us." Stanley Walker
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 O 22 '50 500w

"Cuppy's wryness, skepticism, personal delight and excellent taste made him a very special craftsman of our time and nothing could demonstrate that better than 'The Decline and Fall of Practically Everybody.'" C. B. Palmer
+ N Y Times p7 O 8 '50 700w

New Yorker 26:134 O 7 '50 80w

"This is the book to read aloud when canasta palls." J. V.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p23 D 3 '50 400w

"Regardless of how often the laughs come—and they'll come in different places and with varying frequency for different people—you'll never get as painless and pleasurable a history lesson as you'll get in 'The Decline and Fall of Practically Everybody.'" Lionel Olay
+ Sat R of Lit 33:16 D 16 '50 550w

CURREY, RALPH NIXON, tr. Formal spring: French renaissance poems of Charles d'Orleans, Villon, Ronsard, du Bellay and others. 159p $2.50 Oxford
841.08 French poetry—Translations into English

"Mr. Currey has brought together and translated a number of French poems from the Middle Ages as well as the Renaissance—his earliest poem is from Guillaume de Machoult, who was born in 1300; his latest is Mary Queen of Scots's 'Adieu, plaisant pays de France!'" (Sat R of Lit) The original texts are provided.

"Mr. Currey has wisely chosen to translate poems of an age when form was varied and very elaborate. . . Another sample of Mr. Currey's wisdom lies in the fact that he did not limit his choice to a single poet and that he translated them not at a set time but over years, whenever he felt like it. All those sound prerequisites combine to produce a good volume of translations." J. Chiari
+ Manchester Guardian p4 Mr 3 '50 360w

"The translator has avoided the cliches and anachronisms so dear to the Pre-Raphaelites; all his renderings are alive, enjoyable and accurate."
+ New Statesman & Nation 39:352 Mr 25 '50 260w

"This is a delightful book."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 S 3 '50 130w

"Villon, d'Orleans, Ronsard, and Du Bellay are well represented; and besides the universally known little masterpieces like 'Mignonne, allons voir si la rose,' or 'Heureux qui, comme Ulysse, a fait un beau voyage' there are delightful little pieces which we might not discover if Mr. Currey did not introduce us. . . Mr. Currey's use of imperfect rhymes is allowable enough in a form that demands an excessive number of rhymes and is perhaps preferable to Rossetti's change of rhyme between stanzas; but Mr. Currey surely carries it too far. . . Yet at his best, which is nearly all the time, Mr. Currey is astonishingly successful in catching that indescribable flavor hinted at in his title, 'Formal Spring.' These French poets have, with all their beauty, a quality almost of austerity, which earlier translators have often lost in romanticism and its bastard child, false archaism, but which is preserved in Mr. Currey's almost timeless English." Basil Davenport
+ Sat R of Lit 33:33 Jl 1 '50 400w

Spec 184:404 Mr 24 '50 270w

CURTIN, JEREMIAH. Fairy tales of eastern Europe; il. by George Hood. 259p $2.75 McBride 398 Fairy tales

"A reprinting of a collection of Russian, Hungarian, Bohemian, and Serbian fairy tales published in 1914 by McBride, Nast & Co." Booklist

---

Booklist 46:206 F 15 '50

"Many of the stories are to be found in other versions, but it is convenient to have them in this well-printed edition." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 26:112 Mr '50 60w

"Recommended for large libraries which attempt completeness in the folklore section. Good print, but unattractive binding, and poorly reproduced illustrations." Clara Adams
+ — Library J 75:327 F 15 '50 100w

CURTIN, JEREMIAH—Continued

San Francisco Chronicle p6 N 13 '49 90w

Wis Lib Bul p33 Mr '50

CURTIS, FRANK W. High-frequency induction heating. 2d ed 389p il $6 McGraw

621.397 Induction heating 50-8059

"Much enlarged, with new material on coil and fixture design, analysis of production requirements, induction hardening, quenching, soft solders, and brazing alloys and fluxes." (Booklist) For first edition see Book Review Digest 1945.

Booklist 47:41 S 15 '50

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 75:1049 Je 15 '50 70w

"The number of illustrations of fixtures and special set-ups has been substantially increased. The chapter on the design of induction heating coils has been much enlarged. However, the chapter on dielectric heating is still essentially an outline of this subject and is not intended to be comparable in thoroughness to the rest of the book. The book is of wide interest in manufacturing industries, and it is written so that it can be understood by the men who use the equipment as well as those who design and specify it."
+ N Y New Tech Bks 35:57 Jl '50

CURTIS-BROWN, BEATRICE. See Brown, B. C.

CURTISS, MRS URSULA (REILLY). Second sickle. 248p $2.50 Dodd

50-6194

Mystery story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun p6 Mr 10 '50 150w

Chicago Sunday Tribune p17 Mr 19 '50 60w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 Mr 12 '50 110w

"If everything about the book were as good as the way in which the author builds up a sensation of lurking horror, it would be very good indeed. Unfortunately there is considerable arbitrary manipulation of plot; and Victoria holds out on the police to the point of witlessness." Elizabeth Bullock
+ — N Y Times p34 Mr 19 '50 170w

"The most experienced unraveller of mysteries couldn't possibly guess who the killer is."
New Yorker 26:108 Mr 11 '50 120w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p20 Mr 19 '50 70w

CURTIUS, LUDWIG. Rome; an illustrated selective guide to all important art treasures in Rome and its environs [phot. by Ernest Nash]. 185p $1.95 Pantheon bks.

914.56 Rome—Description. Art—Rome
50-6243

"This little book is designed as an aid to a selective tour. It contains no instructions on hotels, banks, transportation, and the like. . . The object is to introduce the traveler to Rome's historical and spiritual environment, and to help the tourist save time and effort, and yet not to miss any of the important monuments of Antiquity, Early Christian, Renaissance and Baroque Rome." (Publisher's note) Indexes.

Booklist 46:218 Mr 1 '50

Cath World 171:80 Ap '50 70w

"Curtly and efficiently this little book conducts the tourist from one great sight to another. It even tells him which rooms in art museums to go into and which to pass by. It will be a great service to the once-in-a-lifetime visitor to Rome who has but a few days to digest what 27 centuries have accumulated." Edward Barry
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 F 19 '50 100w

"For a book small enough to slip easily into a pocket, and with only 185 pages, the quantity of data contained in it is amazing. The many pictures make the book more attractive to the eye but take up space that could have been put to better use." W. E. G.
+ — Christian Century 67:401 Mr 29 '50 190w

"A pocket size volume, well written, and strictly historical." Ernestine Evans
+ Commonweal 51:588 Mr 10 '50 40w

"The author's historical introductions to the classic antiquities and his tracing of the development of art through church architecture and decoration offer a solid background for the tourist's appreciation of the bewildering array of magnificence he sees in Rome." C. M. Cianfarra
+ N Y Times p32 Ap 2 '50 100w

"If it's made of stone and it reposes in Rome, you will find it recorded in this handbook. Mr. Curtius's work is a dressed-up version of the English-language guides that are on sale in the world's great tourist centers. Its English is considerably more readable, however, and the standard photos are well reproduced on good stock. It makes no pretense to literature nor to opinion." H. S.
Sat R of Lit 33:41 F 25 '50 100w

Wis Lib Bul 46:25 Je '50

CUSHMAN, MRS CLARISSA (FAIRCHILD). Glass barracks. 249p $2.75 Little

50-6808

Life in one of the many United States Vetsburg encampments is the background of this novel. John and Lee Farquarson and their little son move into one of the flimsy houses because John is to be an instructor at the University. In the same house, divided only by thin partitions, lives Sam, an ex-GI who had known John during the war. Altho outwardly normal Sam is a potential sex criminal. The trials of Lee and John are eventually solved thru the intervention of a mysterious and beautiful Russian girl who had befriended Lee.

Kirkus 18:142 Mr 1 '50 160w

Reviewed by F. A. Boyle
Library J 75:559 Ap 1 '50 70w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 My 21 '50 140w

"This is an entertaining GI yarn with more melodrama than is the lot of the average veteran, one hopes." Barbara Bond
+ N Y Times p31 Ap 23 '50 180w

"Altogether messy, muddled, and unbelievable."
— Sat R of Lit 33:32 Jl 15 '50 140w

Wis Lib Bul 46:22 My '50

CUSHMAN, DAN. Montana, here I be! 173p $2.50 Macmillan

50-8484

A Western, telling the tale of how Comanche John, road agent, took sides in a freighting fight against his ancient enemy, Captain Brass.

Booklist 47:40 S 15 '50

"It's a mighty tall tale, but good fun."
+ Chicago Sun p5 Jl 18 '50 50w

Reviewed by Al Chase
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ag 20 '50 440w

Kirkus 18:288 My 15 '50 100w

"The fact that the author, as a born Westerner and former cow-puncher and prospector, writes with more background knowledge than some others in this field, should recommend the book to a wider audience than the established Western fan." J. E. Brown
+ Library J 75:1177 Jl '50 100w

CUSTER, GEORGE ARMSTRONG, and CUSTER, ELIZABETH (BACON). Custer story; the life and intimate letters of George A. Custer and his wife Elizabeth; ed. by Marguerite Merington. 339p pl $5 Devin-Adair

B or 92 50-5474

"When Elizabeth Custer died in 1933 (she had been widowed fifty-seven years before) she left behind her her carefully treasured correspondence with her soldier husband. Miss Merington, Mrs. Custer's literary executrix, has edited this and much related source material and tied the whole together with a thread of narrative which embraces the body of Custer's career from his birth on an Ohio farm to the final fury on the Little Big Horn." (Sat R of Lit) Index.

Booklist 46:218 Mr 1 '50

"This is not historical scholarship because it lacks perspective, but the editor's interpretations, based on a long friendship with Mrs. Custer, have themselves almost the status of a primary source." H. N. Smith

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 F 26 '50 1200w

"The stains of the Custer escutcheon are unnoticed. . . Yet there is much of interest here for anyone interested in the man and his deeds." Hoffman Birney

N Y Times p7 F 12 '50 250w

"The letters provide a rare and unusual contribution to the basic data of America's military and social history—a wife's-eye view of war and soldiering, and a soldier's on-the-spot confidences to his wife. . . Neither of the Custers was writing for posterity, and posterity becomes thereby the gainer." J. T. W.

+ Sat R of Lit 33:45 Mr 11 '50 150w

CUTHRELL, MRS FAITH (BALDWIN). See Baldwin, F.

CZARNOWSKI, LUCILLE KATHERYN. Dances of early California days. 159p il $5 Pacific bks.

793.31 Dancing—Folk and national dances 50-6503

"Brief historical survey of the dance, the social setting of the early California dance, analysis of basic step-patterns, and detailed description of 39 California folk dances. Text in Spanish and English, music, and clear dance-notation and diagrams for each dance." (Library J) Bibliography.

"Rich and interesting collection based upon author's direct observation and recording with research in early journals. Book is well designed and printed; will prove useful in school and public libraries. Teachers will find the material well selected and arranged and suggestive of class projects." Maria Cimino

+ Library J 75:882 My 15 '50 110w

"Miss Czarnowski is well known as one of the leaders in the movement to include the dance in physical education for women. She has been for many years connected with the Department of Physical Education in the University of California at Berkeley. It is not surprising, therefore, to find that her book is clear and well-organized; a great virtue is the entire absence of the maudlin sentimentality that characterizes so many accounts of this romantic period of California's history." S. R. Cowell

+ Music Lib Assn Notes 7:470 Je '50 1350w

School & Society 71:158 Mr 11 '50 20w

D

DABNEY, THOMAS EWING. Man who bought the Waldorf; the life of Conrad N. Hilton. 272p $2.75 Duell

B or 92 Hilton, Conrad Nicholson 50-5058

A brief biography of Conrad Hilton, the westerner from New Mexico, who has risen to fame as owner of some of the largest hotels in the United States. His purchase of the Waldorf-Astoria came after this book had started thru the press, and the publishers held up publication to change the title and include the story of his purchase of that hotel.

Chicago Sun p6 F 26 '50 180w

"The fabulous career of Conrad N. Hilton, multimillionaire hotel magnate, even when the emphasis is on his deals rather than the man himself, makes fascinating reading." Robert Cromie

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 F 19 '50 260w

Reviewed by Mary Hornaday

Christian Science Monitor p14 Ja 28 '50 550w

Kirkus 17:642 N 15 '49 140w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 Ja 29 '50 440w

Reviewed by W. B. Hayward

N Y Times p14 Ja 8 '50 200w

Reviewed by Guy Patrick

San Francisco Chronicle p13 F 12 '50 500w

"In this book you will get little more of Hilton than the most superficial business dimension. It presents the man as the sum of his deals. But one business transaction resembles another here, and although they may be profitable for the parties concerned, they grow humdrum for the reader before long. The best parts of this book are the histories of the hotels like the Plaza and the Waldorf, for these have color and drama. 'The Man Who Bought the Waldorf' is much more likely to boost the stock of Hilton Hotels than it is to give you insight into the mainsprings of a successful businessman's character." Frederick Drimmer

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:44 Ja 28 '50 550w

DA COSTA, SERGIO CORREA. See Correa da Costa, S.

DAGERMAN, STIG. A burnt child; tr. from the Swedish by Alan Blair. 264p $3 Morrow 50-14694

Psychological novel which explores the relationships among four people; the father whose wife Alma has died; his mistress, the cashier in a theatre; his son; and his son's fiancee.

"The story is written dramatically and yet with restraint; psychologically, the theme is sound, and its development lucid and logical. The complications of hatred, love, jealousy, grief, and vengeance, working out in Bengt Lundin, have seldom been so well presented and explained." August Derleth

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 S 17 '50 420w

"In spite of the story matter, a perceptive reader will find artistic pleasure in the quiet, minute-by-minute building up of the situations and the smooth simplicity with which the pitiless tension is created."

+ Christian Science Monitor p14 O 7 '50 230w

Kirkus 18:393 Jl 15 '50 150w

"A strange study of a boy's struggle to endure unhappiness; first of this young Swedish writer's books to be translated into English. Adult reading. Recommended." Anne Whitmore

+ Library J 75:1508 S 15 '50 120w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Jenkins

Manchester Guardian p4 Je 23 '50 70w

Reviewed by Ernest Jones

Nation 171:273 S 23 '50 90w

"Stig Dagerman's A Burnt Child almost defies criticism. It is the literary equivalent of a very slow, very bad Swedish film, where the simplest actions are invested with a portentousness which would have dismayed the House of Usher. It constantly drowns its own merits (a feeling for character and a certain skill in narration) by lapsing into a sort of high-class

DAGERMAN, STIG—Continued
baby-talk whenever the tension has mounted to freezing point." Frank Hauser
— + New Statesman & Nation 40:50 Jl 8 '50 110w

"Were Mr. Dagerman not a born writer, with the born writer's heightened consciousness of the seen and the unseen, this bitter brew would be intolerable. As it is, many of the feverish feelings and the quite poetic interpretations he gives them are impossible to grasp. But the main psychological tenet, based on the gulf which divides reason and emotion, is of course, acceptable to modern minds." Virgilia Peterson
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 S 10 '50 800w

"Clearly, the author has not freed himself from his subject, and is cramped by his technique. He swamps his own capacity for thought in his anxiety to let the son do the thinking. The reader ends up with the feel of the author's thoughts, but no certainty about them. Still, this is a work of honest perception and serious literary intention." Nancy Lenkeith
N Y Times p33 O 8 '50 230w

"A little book, very light to hold, and one picks it up assuming that it can be read straight through in a couple of hours. Almost at once, however, it turns out to be a novel big in everything save size, and the reader willingly grants the author the close and prolonged attention that his uncanny text demands. Dagerman is a Swede, and the quality of his writing in the original may be guessed at from the fact that so much of its beauty has survived a translation that is often clumsy." Brendan Gill
+ — New Yorker 26:119 S 23 '50 1150w

"This is an odd book, uncomfortable to read, yet it is deserving of far more attention than it will receive. . . It is pitched in a quiet key; there are no lurid scenes of lechery, but the patient and remorseless and often colorless writing creates a greater illusion of carnality than more empurpled writing would have done, just as a man who curses quietly brings his subject to the flush more completely and more quickly than does a man who uses more blustering and louder diatribe." W. B. R.
San Francisco Chronicle p20 D 3 '50 420w

"With little plot and less action, this is an extraordinary study of the paralyzing effect of conflicting emotions. While the novel stems unmistakably from the long Scandinavian tradition, its study of tensions and compulsions is freshly modern. A book to be read not so much, possibly, for entertainment as for a revealing study of human nature viewed by the wise and tolerant eyes of a creative artist." Pamela Taylor
+ Sat R of Lit 33:22 O 7 '50 380w

"Mr. Stig Dagerman's psychological approach to the problems of his characters is not always easy to follow; but it appears to be based on a belief in the mother-son relationship as an essential pattern of normal association between the sexes in the 'coldness of life's great white refrigerator.' At times there is a faint echo of Strindberg."
Times [London] Lit Sup p385 Je 23 '50 250w

DAHIR, JAMES. Communities for better living; citizen achievement in organization, design and development. 321p il $4 Harper
711 Community life. City planning 50-7171

A survey of rural and urban community action programs. Many projects, now under way, are described: recreation centers, housing developments, shopping centers and satellite cities. These undertakings are evaluated according to their physical arrangements and social implications. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:282 My 15 '50
Bookmark 9:208 Je '50 40w
Current Hist 19:107 Ag '50 30w

"While there is a strong flavor of social planning to this book, and while the hour is already late for many of California's mushrooming communities, there is much sound example and precept in this book for the communities who wish to avoid the effects of haphazard growth." J. W. H.
San Francisco Chronicle p22 My 7 '50 140w

Reviewed by J. W. Culver
Springf'd Republican p10C My 14 '50 290w

"The book makes interesting reading. There is a certain fascination in the succession of examples of the advances that have been made here and there. However, the failure to give appropriate weight to different projects and activities, plus the failure to give any inkling of how citizen action and participation brought about the desired results, leave the reader with a feeling that something has been omitted." I. S. Robbins
+ — Survey 86:569 D '50 700w
Wis Lib Bul 46:19 My '50

DAHL, ROBERT ALAN. Congress and foreign policy. 305p $4 Harcourt
328.73 U.S. Congress. U.S.—Foreign policy 50-8588

In the first part of this work the author develops his thesis that: as it now functions, the national legislature is "ill-suited to exercise a wise control over the nation's foreign policy." In parts two and three he examines certain alternative ways of improving the conduct of our foreign affairs. Index.

Reviewed by Walter Trohan
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Jl 23 '50 410w
Kirkus 18:375 Jl 1 '50 230w

Reviewed by Donald Wasson
Library J 75:1177 Jl '50 130w

"Regardless of the impact of recent history upon Mr. Dahl's contentions, the latter are worth careful consideration." H. W. Baehr
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 Jl 30 '50 850w

Reviewed by Lindsay Rogers
N Y Times p10 Ag 20 '50 700w

Reviewed by D. D. McKean
+ Pol Sci Q 65:617 D '50 600w
San Francisco Chronicle p4 N 26 '50 260w

"All in all, the author has produced a book of real distinction. As a contribution to our knowledge of what makes the congressman tick it is indispensable; as an exposition of possible remedies of the ostensibly insurmountable problems it is both illuminating and chastening." J. S. Roucek
+ Survey 86:572 D '50 300w

DAHNE, ROBERT A. Salt-water fishing; a complete guide to salt-water fishes and how to catch them; il. by Elena K. Mead. 342p $5 Holt
799.16 Fishing 50-6081

"Arranged by 'game' and 'sport' fishes, 115 species of salt-water fishes are listed under the common name with scientific name in parenthesis and information following on color, identification, range, size, food, etc. Natural baits, methods of fishing and tackle are also considered. . . Glossary, bibliography, index." Bookmark

Booklist 46:215 Mr 1 '50
Bookmark 9:132 Mr '50 80w

Reviewed by Bob Becker
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 My 7 '50 40w

"A useful but pedestrian reference book on salt water fishes, with some practical how-to-do-it data for fishermen."
Kirkus 18:130 F 15 '50 130w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 75:405 Mr 1 '50 30w

"Especially useful are the hints on baiting hooks with various natural baits (although it is misleading to imply that fiddlers are common on the Pacific Coast and hermit crabs are not)." J. W. H.
San Francisco Chronicle p28 Ap 2 '50 200w

DAHNKE, MARYE. Cheese cook book. 282p $2 Wyn

641.5 Cookery (cheese) 50-7399

Contains 250 recipes for cooking with cheese. There are recipes for appetizers, main dishes, salads, sandwiches, salad dressings, cheese breads, pastries, and desserts. Index.

"I don't know of anyone better qualified to write about cheese cookery than Marye Dahnke. She's an authority on the many varieties of cheese, having been with the Kraft Foods company for 25 years. But what is more important, she has a love and enthusiasm for cheese that is reflected in every line in her book, one which no home should be without." Morrison Wood

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ap 23 '50 270w

"I like this one immensely... The section on salads was the one part with which I found myself in constant disagreement, but then I belong to the school which likes more olive oil, less vinegar, and a dressing made over the ingredients of the salad in a bowl rubbed with garlic. The dressings here, despite the use of cheese, seem rather flat in lack of herbs, etc. The sandwich section is one of the best parts of the book. Equipment-care of cheese, etc. very sound."

+ Kirkus 18:129 F 15 '50 240w

"Primarily, it is an invitation to experiment. At the same time it is practical in its counsel—in such matters as the correct storing and serving of cheese. There are good recipes for everything that is cooked with cheese." Mary Ross

+ N Y Times p14 Jl 16 '50 60w

DAICHES, DAVID, and CHARVAT, WILLIAM, eds. Poems in English, 1530-1940; ed. with critical and historical notes and essays. 763p $3.50 Ronald

821.08 English poetry—Collections. American poetry—Collections 50-8060

An anthology which the editors hope will be found to be "both a representative and an interesting collection of significant poems." Only poems complete in themselves have been chosen tho this includes incidental lyrics from plays and other works. Mr Daiches, professor of English at Cornell, has been responsible for all the English poems and for the selections from the works of a few Americans (Pound, Eliot, Hart Crane, Cummings). Mr Charvat has chosen and annotated the other American poems. The divisions of the anthology are supplied with introductory text, and "notes" are found at the end of the volume. Index.

"The present anthology, compiled by two professors, is somewhat on the boring side—at least it is on the wingless side as regards compilation. It approaches poetry in too pedagogic a manner... Even in a book for students, we could very nicely do without what might be called schoolbook poetry, the sort that everyone learns in pre-college days... To the present reviewer's mind, the greatest failure is in the modern period... This review, for all that, will end on a word of praise: the Tudor and Elizabethan poems, with which the anthology begins, are arranged with a freshness and enthusiasm that make them seem new and strange." M. M. Colum

— + Sat R of Lit 33:17 Jl 22 '50 900w

School & Society 71:335 My 27 '50 40w

DAIKEN, LESLIE. Children's games throughout the year. 216p il $4.25 Batsford

796.1 Games

"A serious study of the source material for children's games down through the centuries, in many lands—their differences, similarities and their influence on successive generations... There are a number of plates in color, more than 100 reproductions in half tone, and a wide selection of line illustrations and engravings." N Y Times

Reviewed by Millicent Taylor

Christian Science Monitor p9 Mr 25 '50 250w

"Mr. Daiken has a sympathy for his subject that is outside scholarship."

+ New Statesman & Nation 39:47 Ja 14 '50 240w

"Leslie Daiken is an authority on folklore and anthropology. He has approached his subject from many points of view and the result is an enchanting book. The illustrations alone, from the Kate Greenaway jacket, to the fifteenth century print of the Christ child riding Cock Horse with Dorothy, and the London boys playing marbles through the blitz, would make the book a treasured acquisition." Evelyn Eaton

+ N Y Times p4 Ap 9 '50 500w

"Folk-lore students will appreciate this book for the mass of interesting information it presents. For the general reader its most attractive features will probably be the author's vivid grasp of the way children think and feel, and the illustrations, which are delightful throughout."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p844 D 23 '49 600w

DAKIN, MRS SUSANNA BRYANT. Lives of William Hartnell. 308p il $5 Stanford univ. press

B or 92 Hartnell, William Edward Petty 50-5275

"William Hartnell was born in England in 1798 and went to Chile in 1818 to work in a business house. Four years later he moved on to California, nearly a generation ahead of the Gold Rush. He thus became, more or less in turn and sometimes together, adventurer, trader, diplomat, rancher, schoolmaster, politician, and peacemaker, and Mrs. Dakin devotes a chapter to each phase of his extraordinary career. California was still Spanish soil when Hartnell got there; he lived through the entire Mexican occupation into the era of the big boom, dying at Monterey in 1854." (Sat R Lit) Bibliography. Index.

"Hartnell was catalytic agent in his time and place rather than a performer, and so has been too often passed by. It is good that Mrs. Dakin has rescued him, and identified him so ably with the older California in which, as the reader will now see, he was a more significant factor than even his contemporaries knew." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ja 16 '50 850w

"According to Mrs. Dakin, 'to this day historians overlook Hartnell.' She has sought to remedy this deficiency in a comprehensive, factual biography based entirely on primary sources. . . Men who have achieved far less have received far greater acclaim. William Hartnell deserved well of California and this competent study of his romantic life in some measure pays the debt."

+ Sat R of Lit 33:42 My 6 '50 250w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:168 Je '50 260w

D'ALBANELLA, GRAZIANO. Venetian drawings, XIV-XVII centuries [ed. by Tana de Gámez Losada]. (Hyperion drawing bks. ser) 98p $2.50 Hyperion

741.945 Drawings 50-2844

"Approximately eighty drawings are reproduced and a short introduction and notes for every artist." Sat R of Lit

Chicago Sunday Tribune p34 D 4 '49 50w

Current Hist 18:166 Mr '50 10w

Reviewed by A. S. Plaut

Library J 74:1822 D 1 '49 80w

Reviewed by Stuart Preston

N Y Times p7 D 25 '49 50w

"Unhappily, the editing is unconscionably careless. Although the title makes the claim, there are no fourteenth-century pictures in the Venetian volume." L. R. Sander

Sat R of Lit 33:39 Ja 7 '50 50w

DALEY, ARTHUR. Times at bat; a half century of baseball. 306p $2.75 Random house

796.357 Baseball 50-7250

"A sports columnist for the New York Times makes a quick tour of the last half century of baseball and turns up with a report of things seen, heard and read about." Chicago Sunday Tribune

Booklist 46:283 My 15 '50

"Everyone who is or was anyone is here, including such tarnished heroes as Hal Chase and Shoeless Joe Jackson. And when you add some excellent photos to a beautifully blended dish of history and anecdote, the end product is something to settle happily down with in an easy chair." Bob Cromie

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 My 7 '50 70w

"The sports columnist of the New York Times shows the history of baseball through its most colorful players. His anecdotes are by no means new but his writing skill as well as his sure knowledge of the game puts this head and shoulders above most of its genre." M. C. Scoggin

+ Horn Bk 26:399 S '50 40w

"A fine contribution to the folklore of baseball, told in racy, interest-holding style." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 75:779 My 1 '50 60w

Reviewed by John Lardner

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 My 14 '50 50w

"It is this reviewer's opinion that it is the most comprehensive book on baseball yet published. It can be said that from cover to cover Arthur Daley has hit the ball cleanly. There is more than a good chance that what he has batted out will land safely, will be a hit." Branch Rickey

+ N Y Times p7 Ap 16 '50 750w

Reviewed by John Lardner

New Yorker 26:110 My 20 '50 300w

Reviewed by Robert Cousins

Sat R of Lit 33:19 Je 10 '50 340w

Springf'd Republican p6C Ap 9 '50 90w

Wis Lib Bul 46:20 S '50

DAL FABBRO, MARIO. See Fabbro, M. dal

DALGLIESH, ALICE, ed. Chrismas; a book of stories old and new; il. by Hildegard Woodward. new rev ed 244p $3 Scribner

Christmas stories 50-9804

"Two stories have been omitted and three fresh stories added in this new edition; very slight change in format. Recommended only where replacement of 1934 edition is necessary." (Booklist) For first edition see Book Review Digest 1934.

Booklist 47:82 O 15 '50

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p40 D 3 '50 100w

"A collection like this ought to be in every home for reading aloud as well as for poring over alone during the Christmas holidays."

+ Christian Science Monitor p7 N 11 '50 90w

Cleveland Open Shelf p21 D '50

"A new edition of a well-loved and useful collection of good Christmas stories and poems."

+ Horn Bk 26:477 N '50 40w

Kirkus 18:557 S 15 '50 90w

"Since 1934, it has been in use by this reviewer, who recommends it heartily for family reading aloud, as well as many other uses in schools and libraries." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 N 19 '50 100w

Sat R of Lit 33:44 D 9 '50 30w

DALVEN, RAE, ed. & tr. Modern Greek poetry [an anthology]. 320p $3.50 Gaer

889.108 Greek poetry, Modern—Translations into English 50-5038

"Beginning with samples of anonymous traditional folk songs, considered the source of modern Greek poetry, this collection continues with poets of the late eighteenth century and contemporary writers. Subjects are chiefly Greek history and nationalism; an introduction describes the struggle to establish the vernacular as the national language." Booklist

Booklist 46:229 Mr 15 '50

"The translations suffice to show that among the forty-four authors represented there are a good many poets, and that in spite of dictatorships and occupations there have been great vitality and even considerable publication. The work of C. P. Cavafy, about whom E. M. Forster has written in Pharos and Pharillon, is of particular interest. I wonder a little that Demetrius Capetanakis is not represented." Rolfe Humphries

+ Nation 170:235 Mr 11 '50 200w

"If the translations lack the ultimate poetic refinement, they are none the less excellent of their kind, and the reader unacquainted with modern Greek poetry will get an admirable introduction to its content and main themes from this sympathetic and knowledgeable anthology. One misses some important pieces—the great 'Ode to Death' of Andreas Calvos, for example, perhaps rejected because of its length—and none of the new younger writers are represented; but all in all this is a fine collection." David Daiches

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 Mr 5 '50 750w

"We should be very grateful to Miss Dalven for introducing to us a world of poetry which has been closed to us. Every translator is an international agent of good-will." W. H. Auden

+ N Y Times p5 Ap 2 '50 750w

"Miss Dalven's anthology is the first significant American approach to the subject, and she has been remarkably comprehensive. The task of translating a whole anthology covering the period from the Byzantine to our own is, by the nature of prosodic and other difficulties, impossible, and it is much to Miss Dalven's credit that she has tried the impossible and come as near to success as anyone can. Her translations are often able to stand comparison with others of the same poets without suffering." George Zabriskie

+ Sat R of Lit 33:27 F 11 '50 1350w

Times [London] Lit Sup p595 S 22 '50 850w

DALY, ELIZABETH. Death and letters. 217p $2.50 Rinehart

50-7474

Detective story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe

Chicago Sun p5 Je 6 '50 40w

Kirkus 18:150 Mr 1 '50 90w

"A literate and soundly plotted tale."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 Je 25 '50 170w

"Gamadge richly deserves his popularity with readers. His creator has no need to insist on the kind of man he is. Every move he makes and every sentence he speaks prove him to be a likable, intelligent gentleman of wide book learning." H. M.

+ N Y Times p20 Je 4 '50 150w

"Mr. Gamadge uncovers a shrewd and unlikely murderer in this literate and superior work."

+ New Yorker 26:123 My 20 '50 120w

"Intelligent 'litrary' detecting, poignant pictures of proud, peculiar, and tragic family, and startling denouement. Good."

+ Sat R of Lit 33:36 My 20 '50 40w

Wis Lib Bul 46:21 Jl '50

DALY, MAUREEN. Perfect hostess; complete etiquette and entertainment for the home. 306p il $3 Dodd

642 Etiquet. Entertaining 50-10164

Informally written book of instructions for entertaining, including all types from the children's party and the live-alone career girl's cocktail party, to the formal wedding reception. Information and advice are given on invitations, party games and fun, menus and special dishes.

Booklist 47:90 N 1 '50

"Almost anyone who has problems in entertaining will find an answer in Miss Daly's book, altho the lack of indexing hinders ready reference. It is a guide for the inexperienced rather than for old hands, but will help to launch anxious young hostesses on a career of party giving." Alden Powell

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 O 22 '50 110w

"The recipes given are excellent for simple entertaining and they are practical. A book for an engagement present—shower gift, maybe!" K. T. Willis

Library J 75:2152 D 15 '50 50w

Reviewed by Ethel Dexter

Springf'd Republican p3D N 19 '50 190w

DANBY, HOPE (MRS C. G. DANBY). Garden of perfect brightness; the history of the Yüan Ming Yüan and the emperors who lived there; introd. note by Sir John Pratt. 239p il $3.50 Regnery

951 China—Civilization. Peking. Yüan Ming Yüan 50-8634

Yüan Ming Yüan, or the Garden of Perfect Brightness, was begun in 1709 by China's Emperor K'ang Hsi. The garden was about twelve miles from Peking, and was intended for the Emperor's son Prince Yün Chên. In its existence of over a hundred and fifty years, hundreds of millions of dollars were spent on the beautiful playground of royalty. It was destroyed by British troops in 1860. This history of the garden covers also the story of the eight emperors who were connected with it. Index.

"It is a historical romance of top quality." R. L. Blakesley

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ag 20 '50 320w

"No interest in Chinese history is needed to qualify the reader to be interested in this delightful book. If one has such an interest, of course it is so much the better." W. E. G.

+ Christian Century 67:1265 O 25 '50 350w

"In the light of today's happenings, this book is a valuable picture of a nation that has been wise and foolish. It almost convinces one that China should never have been opened to the Western peoples. Mrs. Danby's readable book is not pure history—rather, it is well-documented social life and customs of the Manchus." K. T. Willis

+ Library J 75:1285 Ag '50 170w

Manchester Guardian p4 Je 2 '50 240w

Reviewed by Ida Pruitt

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 N 26 '50 420w

"The book, if not remarkable in the quality of the writing, is readable, and has the ring of authenticity. The illustrations, the plans, and the maps will enhance its attractiveness for the general reader." A. W. Hummell

+ N Y Times p14 Ag 13 '50 600w

San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ag 6 '50 400w

DANIEL, MRS DOROTHY. Cut and engraved glass, 1771-1905; the collectors' guide to American wares; drawings by Sigismund Vidbergs. 441p $5.95 Barrows

748.3 Glassware 50-8234

This book for collectors of glass "sketches the history of a fine art in America; describes techniques of craftsmen; reproduces 222 photografs portraying 517 pieces of glass and 50 drawings of patterns; tells what to look for and what to avoid." (Chicago Sunday Tribune) Contains a list of known patterns; classification of Stiegel patterns; trade-marks; Irish export chart; a glossary and a bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:349 Jl 15 '50

"This is a fascinating collector's item which may be recommended with the caution that it might prove habit forming." Leon Harpole

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 Jl 23 '50 100w

Cleveland Open Shelf p14 Ag '50

"A specialized market but an important one—the first book on the subject of American cut glass."

+ Kirkus 18:320 Je 1 '50 240w

San Francisco Chronicle p26 O 22 '50 150w

DANIEL, GLYN EDMUND. Hundred years of archaeology. (Hundred years ser) 343p $3.50 Macmillan

571 Archeology [50-3526]

Study of the development of the history of archaeology since 1850, which also takes into account its beginnings in the previous half-century, and its earlier antiquarian background. Glossary. Chronology. Bibliography. Index.

"Dr. Daniel, who is here concerned with prehistoric and not classical archaeology, unfolds a fascinating and complicated story in masterly fashion." Olwen Brogan

+ Manchester Guardian p4 Mr 17 '50 330w

"It is a pity that the publishers could not have provided a more spacious and attractive production to counteract the slightly crabbed impression made by A Hundred Years of Archaeology. The other vulnerable points are a glossary and bibliography both of which show all the signs of excessively hasty compilation. But even if the critic exercises his natural ingratitude to the full, this book remains by far the most comprehensive account both of man's efforts to recollect his forgotten past, and of consciousness to smell out its own origins." Jacquetta Hawkes

+ — New Statesman & Nation 40:132 Jl 29 '50 430w

"This is a book with interesting contents, reasonable treatment and timely purpose, which Dr. Daniel has managed to write in the spare hours of a busy Cambridge life. . . The Marxist approach to archaeology is virtually disregarded, and I should have liked more on relations with anthropology and the background of empiricist and positivist thought; Dr. Daniel can sometimes be a little unfair to contemporaries, and of the ancients strangely omits Thucydides, to whose early chapters the name archaiologia was first applied. But one cannot have everything; and I wish this serious endeavour all success." Christopher Hawkes

+ — Spec 184:798 Je 9 '50 650w

"There are many minor misprints, especially in proper names and foreign words. But as a whole the book is excellently composed, and is a wholly trustworthy and readable account of its subject."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p358 Je 9 '50 480w

DANIELS, FARRINGTON. Experimental physical chemistry. 4th ed 568p $4.50 McGraw

541 Chemistry, Physical and theoretical 49-50427

"[The fourth edition of] a widely-used textbook and manual of laboratory experimentation and measurement. Three-fifths of the present edition are occupied by discussions and directions for sixty-four experiments; the other two-fifths are devoted to related topics which are important to the researcher in physical chemistry. Seven new experiments are included and there are numerous other important changes, including a number of new apparatus designs. The title page now carries the names of six authors, all members of the faculty of the University of Wisconsin." N Y New Tech Bks

DANIELS, FARRINGTON—Continued

"This familiar and useful book appears in its fourth edition. . . The section on electronics, though considerably expanded, falls somewhat short of being either a satisfactory introduction to an understanding of this subject, or a reference collection of useful circuits. The general appearance of the book is excellent." R. M. Badger
+ — Chem & Eng N 28:2202 Je 26 '50 350w

"The fourth edition of this classical textbook is a great improvement over the previous edition. It might even be said that it is an entirely new book. . . All the improvements make this revised edition the most complete textbook in the field, and this reviewer believes that the authors and publishers deserve special credit for having brought together all this material in a book whose price is within the means of all university students." P. R. Gendron
+ Chem Eng 57:308 Je '50 290w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:18 Mr '50

DANIELS, JONATHAN. Man of Independence. 384p $3.75 Lippincott
B or 92 Truman, Harry S. 50-9689

"A biography of President Truman by a Southern editor who accompanied Truman on his spectacular 1948 pre-election campaign. Mostly concerned with political aspects, tracing Truman's career from County Judge, Senator, Vice-President to President, describing in detail the influences exerted by individuals, such as his relationship with Pendergast, and his sudden selection for the Vice-Presidency." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

"The author's pun in the title is evident throughout this biography of Harry S. Truman. The tone is admiration but not adulation so that the study has more weight than a campaign biography."
Booklist 47:33; 59 S 15 '50; O 1 '50

Bookmark 10:29 N '50 40w

"This is the most comprehensive study of the man in the White House to date. It is frankly and fulsomely adulatory—at times so cloying in its sweetness as to curdle honey. Yet, one can wonder whether the object of this hero worship emerges as the Colossus of our times he appears in the eyes of the author. It could well be that President Truman may regard the book as one of the major vexations of the Presidency." Walter Trohan
— Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 O 8 '50 600w

"Mr. Daniels quotes the President repeatedly. It is a pro-Truman book and Mr. Truman has spoken freely in its preparation. . . This book is the most detailed report on the Truman background, family and antecedents yet published." Richard Strout
Christian Science Monitor p16 S 28 '50 800w

"Regardless of one's political bias, it would be hard to read this biography of Harry S. Truman without a sincere conviction that this is what posterity may very well say of him. Jonathan Daniels has succeeded in doing a perceptive, sympathetic and yet an objective story of the man and his role, to sustain the American democratic faith in the capacity of ordinary men to govern themselves."
+ Kirkus 18:496 Ag 15 '50 400w

"Recommended." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 75:1664 O 1 '50 140w

Reviewed by Richard Hofstadter
Nation 171:344 O 14 '50 900w

Reviewed by Richard Strout
New Repub 23:19 O 16 '50 1650w

"Of course, Jonathan Daniels has not written the definitive biography of President Truman. It is too soon for that, and the job will not be done by so warm a political supporter. But Americans—who really know very little about Harry S. Truman—can learn a great deal from this book. . . There is much that will help the honest and disinterested American who wishes to understand his President. He will not find evidence of great imaginative leadership, of lofty principle, or of instinctive wisdom. He will find a politician, a man of the middle border, not an average but certainly a typical American. Perhaps he will conclude that America needed more than this, but that it might have got worse." E. D. Canham
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 O 1 '50 1200w

"Mr. Daniels has written much the best book that has yet appeared about the President. It is not an 'authorized biography,' not meant to be a biography at all. The author calls it an interpretation of the American 'everyday man,' as he likes to characterize Mr. Truman. Yet 'The Man of Independence' is the most detailed and the best documented presentation of a story that hitherto has been told only in broad, hastily splashed strokes." Anthony Leviero
+ N Y Times p1 O 1 '50 1100w

"Mr. Daniels, whose primary source of information was President Truman himself, admires his subject, but he doesn't let that blind him. Although the book contains some sensational material . . . this is not merely another compilation of backstage gossip. . . The story goes to prove Mr. Daniels' thesis that American democracy offers a way up for everybody and that an 'everyday man' is capable of rising to the challenge of leadership."
+ New Yorker 26:146 O 14 '50 160w

"An interesting but highly controversial semi-autobiography." Duke Shoop
Sat R of Lit 33:10 S 30 '50 1550w

Reviewed by Donald Derby
Springf'd Republican p23A N 5 '50 650w

Wis Lib Bul 46:16 N '50

DANNECKER, HAZEL I. Happy, Hero and Judge; il. by Lilian Robertson. [27p] $1.50 Abingdon-Cokesbury 50-8716

Picture storybook for ages four to seven. It tells the story of Mr. Dean who was so lonely that he decided to have a dog for company. He ended by having three dogs, each one for a good reason.

Booklist 47:80 O 15 '50

Kirkus 18:383 Jl 15 '50 80w

"It will make refreshing reading for those who have just reached the stage where they like to read to themselves. Its best feature is its suitability as an intermediate reader. . . Recommended." H. M. Brogan
+ Library J 75:1306 Ag '50 80w

Reviewed by Esther Brown
N Y Times p42 N 5 '50 140w

+ Sat R of Lit 33:42 S 16 '50 100w

DARINGER, HELEN FERN. Debbie of the Green Gate; il. by Edward Godwin. 232p $2.50 Harcourt 50-5815

A story of the last year Debbie, one of the Pilgrim daughters, spent in Leyden before setting sail in the Speedwell bound for the New World. For girls of twelve years and older.

Booklist 46:221 Mr 1 '50

"The author has the happy faculty of making people of another time and place seem contemporary and so broadens one's interpretation of history."
+ Bookmark 9:165 Ap '50 50w

Reviewed by A. L. Shea
Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 Mr 19 '50 200w

"It is a wholesome story. . . Well written in a style that hints of the quaint literary dignity of the period." Millicent Taylor
+ Christian Science Monitor p9 Mr 25 '50 170w

Cleveland Open Shelf p24 D '50

"Miss Daringer draws her characters with skill and makes Debbie a real person." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 26:105 Mr '50 100w

"Excellent background reading."

+ Kirkus 18:101 F 15 '50 160w

"Recommended for large collections only." C. W. Field

Library J 75:568 Ap 1 '50 70w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 Ap 2 '50 180w

"This story carries on the narrative of the Endicott family begun in 'Pilgrim Kate,' but it may be read independently of that first book. Here in this account of the Pilgrims' last year in Holland much of what we learned in history class becomes real and important. There is practically no plot, but the story is memorable because Debbie is so lovable and human." E. L. B.

+ N Y Times p24 F 26 '50 200w

"Delicate drawings of Leyden and its surroundings illustrate this fine story." M. G. Davis

+ Sat R of Lit 33:47 Mr 11 '50 380w

Springf'd Republican p8C Mr 5 '50 120w

Wis Lib Bul 46:30 Mr '50

DARK, ELEANOR (O'REILLY) (MRS ERIC DARK). Storm of time. (Whittlesey house publication) 591p $3.50 McGraw

50-5357

Historical novel about Australia in the early nineteenth century: from 1799 to 1808. The book is in three sections covering the governorships of three men, ending with Captain Bligh, of the Bounty mutiny. The characters are from many walks of life, including the beautiful young Irish wife of the wealthy landowner, Stephen Mannion, the officials, soldiers, overseers, convicts and aborigines.

Booklist 46:189 F 1 '50

Bookmark 9:135 Mr '50 50w

"A highly readable, expertly balanced novel. It is to be regretted that its publishers did not set it in better form, with wider margins and a less crowded type."

+ — Cath World 171:153 My '50 200w

"The characters that crowd the pages range from governors and land owners to convicts and natives. There is no single unifying viewpoint and, in the first part of the book, the rapid shift of focus makes demands upon the reader's concentration, but, once the characters and forces are clear, each new scene contributes to the whole. . . This is an historical novel that accomplishes that difficult feat of portraying actual people and events comfortably and convincingly besides figures and events of the imagination. Perhaps the secret is that the historical material has been so well absorbed that it can be used in an effective creative work." Mildred Walker

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 F 5 '50 450w

"'Storm of Time' is a novel which fulfills its purpose in leaving with its reader a realization of the clashing interests, mistakes, progress, and retardments of those early years, and, more than all else, of the individuality of Australia as a land, founded by Englishmen but not English, molded by its topography and its vast resources, able to outride the storms." W. K. Rugg

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 F 9 '50 700w

Kirkus 18:38 Ja 15 '50 240w

Reviewed by E. B. Davis

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Ja 29 '50 800w

"As history and anthropology this book is impressive and convincing; as fiction it is exhausting. . . Yet 'Storm of Time' is carefully and painstakingly written, dramatic and moving in many of its episodes. It is, perhaps, most successful in its portrayal of the life and thoughts of the natives and of the Australian natural scene. Some of this is as fascinating and exotic as the aboriginal words with which the text is sprinkled." N. K. Burger

+ — N Y Times p30 F 5 '50 450w

"Mrs. Dark's careful research and her fairly involved plot fight for precedent at every turn, and the final effect of her book is that of an overlong and quite unimaginative documentary film."

— + New Yorker 25:90 F 4 '50 70w

San Francisco Chronicle p26 Ap 23 '50 450w

"There is the stuff of powerful drama in 'Storm of Time' It is an historical novel (in the richest meaning of the term) which is alive with people and events. And if it is sometimes turgid it is never lacking in strength. It is a very long time since I have read a novel that kept me up so late or claimed my attention so completely." V. P. Hass

+ Sat R of Lit 33:19 F 25 '50 800w

"The breadth, sympathy and justice of Mrs. Dark's picture of the harsh unfolding of Australian society under the three Governors who succeeded Philip command sincere admiration. It is competence of this order, after all, not the fashionably pretentious or febrile, that helps to keep the novel alive." R. D. Charques

+ Spec 183:188 Ag 5 '49 180w

"Miss Dark's book is written with . . . great competence and accuracy."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p457 Jl 15 '49 90w

DARLING, FRANK FRASER. Sandy the red deer; il. by Kiddell-Monroe. 46p $2 Oxford

Deer—Legends and stories 50-9116

"[This] is not exactly a story but a word picture of the glens of the West Highlands in Scotland and of the deer that live there. Roddie and Flora are the children of the keeper who guards the deer and guides the hunters in the deer season. Sandy is the fawn, a grown buck now, that the children took in and fed when his mother was killed in an accident." Sat R of Lit

---

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton

Christian Science Monitor p10 N 13 '50 20w

Kirkus 18:417 Ag 1 '50 120w

"Beautifully written story. . . Recommended for school and public libraries." E. T. Dobbins

+ Library J 75:1671 O 1 '50 90w

"It is good reading for eight to ten-year-olds who like animal stories, with excellent type and dramatic pictures." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 S 10 '50 160w

"Deer stalking as a profession and deer watching as an avocation will provide new realms of adventure for most of the American children who read this book." L. R. Davis

+ N Y Times p26 D 10 '50 170w

"An unusual book."

+ Sat R of Lit 33:58 N 11 '50 100w

Wis Lib Bul 46:20 N '50

DARLINGTON, MARWOOD. Irish orpheus; the life of Patrick S. Gilmore, bandmaster extraordinary. 130p pl $2.50 Olivier, Maney, Klein company, Drexel bldg, Philadelphia 6

B or 92 Gilmore, Patrick Sarsfield

An outline of the career of Patrick Sarsfield Gilmore, an Irish-born bandmaster who organized and conducted huge musical spectacles in Boston and New York, and otherwise contributed to the history of American band music. He came to this country in 1848 and died in New York in 1892.

"The book is disarmingly innocent in tone, but that, I fear, sums up its merits. . . Darlington's book makes no attempt at a Gilmore

DARLINGTON, MARWOOD—Continued
critique, which would be moderately interesting. It might be added that the book cites no sources other than 'personal notes' and 'research work,' and that it lacks both index and bibliography." R. F. Goldman
Music Lib Assn Notes 7:483 Je '50 260w

Reviewed by Carter Harman
N Y Times p37 Ap 16 '50 170w

DARLINGTON, WILLIAM AUBREY. World of Gilbert and Sullivan. 209p il $3.50 Crowell

782.6 Gilbert, Sir William Schwenck. Sullivan, Sir Arthur Seymour 50-7010

A study of the Gilbert and Sullivan light operas by an English dramatic critic. Concentrating on Gilbert's part the author acknowledges that some of the wit, and many of the topical allusions are out of date and it is his purpose to elucidate them against the background of the world Gilbert knew so that today's Gilbert and Sullivan fans can understand and appreciate them better. Indexes.

Atlantic 185:88 Je '50 210w

Booklist 46:271 My 1 '50

Reviewed by Carlyle Morgan
Christain Science Monitor p6 Ap 22 '50 1000w

"Interesting bypaths for the fanatics, and in its special field, excellent reference."
+ Kirkus 18:122 F 15 '50 180w

Reviewed by C. K. Miller
Library J 75:867 My 15 '50 70w .

"We do not believe this book is necessary, or within a predictable future will be. If England needs it, there has indeed been a revolution in that unhappy isle. But it's lots of fun to read, recalling endless happy hours in the playhouse." W. P. Eaton
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Ap 16 '50 400w

"Mr. Darlington's reluctance to examine Sullivan's scores inevitably tilts the balance of the book. My own view is that the immortality of the operettas was guaranteed by Sullivan's share. . . Mr. Darlington's scrutiny of Gilbert's temperament and opinions is the chief element in his book and it is acutely made." Ivor Brown
+ — N Y Times p4 Ap 9 '50 1250w

Reviewed by Harvey Breit
N Y Times p14 Ap 23 '50 1100w

"Full of information, and pleasant to read."
+ New Yorker 26:121 My 6 '50 160w

"The author's appreciation of the fantastic facility with words that made Gilbert what he was, his realization of the difficulties of wedding words to music and the reverse, and especially his solid awareness of Gilbert's understanding of his medium, the man's really unusual knowledge of stagecraft, make this book a worthwhile contribution to Gilbertiana. One demurrer, Mr. Darlington is evidently one of those who regards a pun—seriously, too, and not half in jest—as an exceedingly low thing. . . You can't condemn all puns and all punning, and I'm sorry that Mr. Darlington considers the tendency in Gilbert to be a weakness, as he seems to. For my money, Gilbert's puns, in the operas or in the 'Ballads,' are good even when they're Bab. Mr. D can disapprove of that one as much as he likes!" J. H. Jackson
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ap 19 '50 800w

"Mr. Darlington is an enthusiast, but his enthusiasm is considerably this side of idolatry. He writes pleasantly and with the cool, penetrating detachment of one who not only loves the theatre but who understands it. I can heartily recommend this book to all Savoyards." Newman Levy
+ Sat R of Lit 33:27 Ap 29 '50 600w

"As a guide to obscure allusions and outmoded social situations in the plays of Gilbert and Sullivan, this book renders a genuine service to all Savoyards." Henry Popkin
+ Theatre Arts 34:9 Jl '50 440w

DARSIE, DARSIE L. My greatest day in golf; Pat Abbott [and others]. 210p il $3 Barnes, A.S.

796.352 Golf 50-6674

Short sketches describing the most memorable days in the lives of fifty-one golfers, both professionals and amateurs. Partial contents: Patty Berg; Chick Evans; Roland Hancock; Chick Harbert; Jimmy Hines; Ben Hogan; Bobby Jones; Lloyd Mangrum; Dr. Cary Middlecoff; Joe Novak; Paul Runyan; Gene Sarazen; Sam Snead; Louise Suggs; George Von Elm; Craig Wood; Babe Zaharias; Al Zimmerman.

"If you happen to be a golf fanatic and a lover of Horatio Alger this collection of great days on the links is worth reading. If you are neither, it will leave you cold."
Chicago Sun p5 Je 27 '50 70w

Reviewed by Robert Cromie
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ap 16 '50 160w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 75:779 My 1 '50 30w

Reviewed by Tom Meany
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 My 14 '50 270w

DAUGERT, STANLEY MATTHEW. Philosophy of Thorstein Veblen. 134p $2.25 King's Crown press

330.1 Veblen, Thorstein 50-5414

"Here is a defense of the thesis that Veblen formulated and developed, a philosophy that he applied to the analysis of human problems, but there is also a discussion of the partial and incomplete statement of that philosophy." (School & Society) Bibliography. Index.

"Since friend and foe agree in classifying Thorstein Veblen as one of the greatest of American writers in the social sciences, a book which in the compass of little more than a hundred pages examines the origins and development of the main ingredients of his philosophy is valuable. . . To students who are willing to read carefully and can understand what they read, without popularizing expedients, this should be a stimulating introduction to Veblen's books; and those already familiar with Veblenian literature may find that it helps their understanding of it." Edmund Whittaker
+ Ann Am Acad 269:180 My '50 400w

"If this book be a 'glorified' doctoral dissertation, as appears, it is a model in both fecundity and restraint." T. V. Smith
+ Ethics 61:89 O '50 270w

"Daugert has made an important contribution to our understanding of an important body of ideas; and on that account it is especially regrettable that his searchlight does not penetrate just a little farther." C. E. Ayres
+ — J Pol Econ 58:451 O '50 800w

School & Society 71:173 Mr 18 '50 60w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:164 Je '50 240w

DAUGHERTY, CHARLES MICHAEL. Let 'em roll; il. by [the author]. 188p $2.50 Viking 50-7041

"Why anybody should want to be anything but a motion picture director is beyond the comprehension of Josh Beacon, who has been making movies in his high school for three years. When the story opens he is about to visit an uncle, a famous director in Hollywood, and see him make a movie based on General Frémont's Western explorations. Mr. Daugherty has two purposes in his book: to show movie-making as it really is and to make boys like history. In the studio and on location Josh sees movie-making in the raw, even to a quarrel between director and producer over artistic qualities versus box office values."
N Y Times

"An excellent and informative story." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 26:203 My '50 90w

Kirkus 18:64 F 1 '50 150w

"The style is brisk, and the sketches are excellent and helpfully factual at the right places. Any boy of about twelve who is interested in movies from any angle will be absorbed. This is no very special piece of good writing, and the adventure is, of course, a fantastic bit of luck. But it is good to suggest that boys take an attitude toward the movies which is both critical and creative."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 My 7 '50 320w

"In a pleasing style, mature but never heavy, the author succeeds, though his central character sometimes seems secondary to the information. Perhaps it is because Josh does not become too closely involved in the problems of the story." F. C. Smith

+ N Y Times p30 My 14 '50 200w

Sat R of Lit 33:32 Ag 12 '50 140w

DAUGHERTY, JAMES HENRY. Landing of the Pilgrims; il. by [the author]. (Landmark bks) 186p $1.50 Random house

50-10542

Only slightly fictionized, this is the story of William Bradford, based on his own writings. Beginning with the young Will's decision to join the Separatists in Scrooby, England, the narrative tells of the travels of the Pilgrims to Holland and then to the New World, and of their adventures and hardships during the early years of their life here.

Booklist 47:142 D 1 '50

Christian Science Monitor p10 N 13 '50 30w

"Plenty of action, quick thinking, and courage under fire paces this lively narrative."

+ Kirkus 18:472 Ag 15 '50 150w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 N 12 '50 120w

Reviewed by R. A. Brown

N Y Times p6 N 12 '50 40w

New Yorker 26:190 D 2 '50 40w

"Humor enters into the story, the dry, delightful humor of James Daugherty's 'Daniel Boone.' His drawings, printed in brown ink, have the same vitality. . . When the children or their elders ask for a book about the Pilgrims, this is the book to give them. It is curiously timely today—the record by a gifted American of men and women who sought the four freedoms in a new land."

+ Sat R of Lit 33:64 N 11 '50 200w

DAVENPORT, MRS GWEN (LEYS). Candy for breakfast. 251p $2.75 Doubleday

50-10570

A satire on super-progressive education. Dr Macefield got into it when he took over an advice to the lovelorn column. From there he went to the lecture field, and finally into education, which he made over drastically.

Booklist 47:136 D 1 '50

Kirkus 18:568 S 15 '50 130w

"Somehow the book escapes being as funny as it should [be]. The stage is tastefully lighted, the dialogue appropriate, and the characters come on zealously reciting their lines. But out in the wings the comic spirit sulks, refusing to emerge. What should have been hilarious seems at best midly amusing. It is a book I found very easy to put down." Phyllis McGinley

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 D 10 '50 500w

"The entire book, especially the hilarious climax, is so entertaining, that even readers who feel that Mrs. Davenport has played a little rough will forgive her." Jane Cobb

+ N Y Times p28 N 19 '50 260w

DAVID, EBENEZER. Rhode Island chaplain in the revolution; letters of [the author] to Nicholas Brown, 1775-1778; ed. by Jeannette D. Black and William Greene Roelker [pub. jointly with R.I. soc. of the Cincinnati]. 82p il $5 John Carter Brown lib, Providence 12, R.I.

973.38 U.S.—Revolution—Personal narratives

"Here is a picture of George Washington's army, as seen through the eyes of a young chaplain, just graduated from Rhode Island College. His letters report in some detail upon military operations from the siege of Boston, through Saratoga, to Valley Forge. . . The Nicholas Brown who received these letters was the father of that other Nicholas for whom Rhode Island College was renamed Brown University." N Y Times

"Although [the letters] will necessitate no modification of established views of the war, they provide fresh and interesting corroborative evidence for accounts, official and unofficial, previously known. With great skill, and from very fragmentary records, Miss Black has reconstructed the prewar career of young David." J. B. Hedges

+ Am Hist R 55:697 Ap '50 310w

"Especially interesting, because most historians neglect that phase, is his account of the naval operations on the Delaware when our forces were trying to defend and then to contain Philadelphia. . . The young divine's unorthodox spelling has been faithfully preserved by the editors, along with a style of composition reflecting more sincerity than literary art." H. I. Brock

N Y Times p25 Ja 22 '50 150w

DAVIDMAN, JOY (MRS WILLIAM LINDSAY GRESHAM). Weeping Bay. 257p $3 Macmillan

50-6067

"Story of poverty-stricken people in a one factory town in the Gaspé on the St. Lawrence. A sincere attempt on the part of a priest-organized to form a union for improving shocking conditions in the factory proves abortive because of the opposition of the factory owner in collaboration with the local curé who succeeded in breaking the union before it had gained the necessary strength." Library J

"The story is told with a large cast of made-to-order characters in quick, spasmodic incidents. Unfortunately, however, it takes more than pamphleteering and sight-seeing to make a novel." Mary Sandrock

— Cath World 171:233 Je '50 200w

"'Weeping Bay' is ably integrated, its characters are well rounded and credible, its story moves without delay and without sacrificing style to story. The tourist town of Weeping Bay comes fully alive on all its levels in Miss Davidman's novel." August Derleth

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Mr 12 '50 300w

Kirkus 18:8 Ja 1 '50 240w

"In spite of the excellent descriptive passages, the book is marred by obscenities and bursts of blasphemy." R. P. Breaden

Library J 75:171 F 1 '50 80w

"Miss Davidman has told her story straightforwardly and with a sharp eye for detail. . . She knows what side she is on, and though the whole novel has an air of having been blue-printed before it was written, this does not detract from the documentary interest, though it may from the reader's entire acceptance of the thesis. The author's attitude to the Catholic Church is severely critical, but not blankly or blindly hostile; and her portrayal of the degree of difference possible inside the field of clerical opinion is revealing enough to be plausible." James Hilton

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Mr 12 '50 700w

"Miss Davidman has accomplished an extraordinary feat of compression, but at a certain cost. . . The story, moreover, falls into a melodramatic pattern, with a hero—Hervé

DAVIDMAN, JOY—Continued
Kirouac—whose heroism shines brighter and brighter against the villainy and cowardice of his antagonists. . . Yet the novel makes an enduring impression. I have no idea what the sources of Miss Davidman's knowledge are, but she convinces me that here is part of the reality behind the much-admired picturesqueness of the Gaspé. It is a dark picture that she has drawn—and one that bears the marks of authenticity." Granville Hicks
+ — N Y Times p30 Mr 5 '50 310w

"Miss Davidman, who is enraged by their plight, writes with determination and assurance, and does a wonderful job of directing a large cast of characters. Her book has a fascination that does not derive at all from the Gaspé people and their misery. It must be that she is a good storyteller."
+ New Yorker 26:103 Mr 11 '50 80w

"Because she is a writer of great sensitivity and because she is also a novelist interested, as the good novelist always is, in human beings, 'Weeping Bay' has both strength and beauty. It is, in short, a fine novel by a first-rate writer, who has both courage and insight, and supplements these with great natural ability. Best of all, perhaps it is clearly and in every line a novel by a writer who has unquenchable faith in people, no matter what. That's the chief reason I'd like to add that a novel once in ten years from Miss Davidman does not seem enough for many who have discovered how good she is." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Mr 7 '50 900w

"'Weeping Bay' is a distinguished piece of regional writing, but the author's message is by no means clear. We grieve, surely, with the lowly and the innocent who cannot win. Would she have the reader turn against greedy industrialists and ignoble clergymen? He was never on their side. Whatever the answer, she has turned him against codfish for life." A. F. Wolfe
Sat R of Lit 33:16 Mr 18 '50 550w

"The book as a whole is an imaginative, compelling picture not only of a region and a way of life, but also of a very real struggle against repressive forces."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:156 Je '50 240w

DAVIDSON, DAVID ALBERT. In another country. 289p $3 Random house
50-10019

"A famous news broadcaster, through a series of flash-backs, reviews his first trip abroad as a young student and relives his experiences in an English boarding house. His fumbling love affairs and friendships with fellow boarders make up the story which is pretty much one of frustration." Library J

"It is unfortunate that Mr. Davidson has chosen to centralize Freddy's personal and national immaturity around his adolescent desire for 'experience.' The surface coarseness of the book may point up the superficiality of Freddy's character, but it will alienate many a reader." Ruth Chapin
— Christian Science Monitor p10 O 21 '50 750w

"Some fairly facile writing here disguises a rather slack story and an unappealing type, the tentative, thwarted male, though to some his fiascos may be funny."
Kirkus 18:486 Ag 15 '50 200w

"It does not make a very important book." Donald Wasson
Library J 75:1406 S 1 '50 100w

"Mr. Davidson has written an international tragi-comedy, more comic than tragic in manner, the reverse in meaning." Richard Match
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 O 22 '50 1100w

"This is a boarding house novel in which the similarity between 'boarding' and 'bawdy' is not entirely coincidental. In his tale of a young American among Bloomsbury lodgers Mr. Davidson has drawn frequently upon the kind of humor that springs up on the walls of public washrooms." Gerald Sykes
— N Y Times p34 O 22 '50 500w
New Yorker 26:150 N 25 '50 70w

"Although the same competence and sharp writing are apparent this book does not measure up to Mr. Davidson's earlier novels." Martin Blumenson
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:21 D 23 '50 380w

DAVIDSON, GUSTAV. Moment of visitation; poems. 47p $2.50 Swallow, A.
811 50-4773

"Eighteen lyrics and a shorter section that Gustav Davidson calls Cynic's Corner make up this collection. The two sections differ considerably in tone." N Y Times

---

"The lyrics are serious and meditative, subtle thought expressed in the clearest of diction. The wit here is serious and usually paradoxical. . . The Cynic's Corner employs an entirely different style of sharp ironical wit." M. H. Irvine
+ N Y Times p23 Ag 6 '50 150w

"Gustav Davidson's talent is not a major one, it is true, but within its self-recognized limitations his work reveals a genuine poetic gift, sensitive, aware; poignant more often than intense; a voice which, if not powerful, is unfaltering and clear. The prevailing tone is quietly reflective." S. H. Hay
+ Sat R of Lit 33:17 N 18 '50 320w

DAVIE, MAURICE REA. Negroes in American society. (Whittlesey house publication) 542p $6; text ed $4.50 McGraw 325.26 Negroes 49-11574

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

Reviewed by D. S. Strong
Am Pol Sci R 44:231 Mr '50 230w

"For the general reader, as well as for teachers and students who prefer an eclectic approach or like to supply their own theories, Negroes in American Society will be an exceedingly useful book. Each chapter has a well-selected, annotated bibliography, and there are detailed subject and author indexes." G. B. Johnson
+ Am Soc R 15:311 Ap '50 550w

"The reader who is searching for a concise and factual account of the over-all activities of Negroes in contemporary America can find it in Negroes in American Society." J. E. Miller
+ Ann Am Acad 270:178 Jl '50 850w

"For serious students of the subject, this will be one of the most valuable books that can be found. The bibliographies are unusually full. As a textbook or for individual reading and study, this is highly recommended." W. E. G.
+ Christian Century 67:401 Mr 29 '50 240w

"A word should be said about the style. Few texts, in my opinion, have been so well written or so well organized; every fact and conclusion is pertinent and none is extended beyond its importance." W. G. Smith
+ New Repub 122:27 Ap 17 '50 270w
San Francisco Chronicle p17 Mr 5 '50 300w

Reviewed by M. C. Hill
Social Forces 28:442 My '50 650w

"Among the growing list of publications which attempts to throw light upon the Negro and his interrelations in American society, it seems likely that Professor Davie's recent book will become a classic. . . The unique quality of Professor Davie's book is due to its historical approach, its logical organization, and the inclusion of stimulating predictions as to the future of Negroes in the American scheme of things." V. W. Stone
+ Survey 86:211 Ap '50 500w

DAVIS, MRS CAROLINE. Jungle child; il. by Jean Martinez. 256p $2.50 Viking 50-10363

Her mother died when Elfrida Legend was born, and her father, an Englishman in the Forest Services in India, simply did not understand girl children. Elf grew up a tomboy in the care of the servants, but finally in her tenth year matters came to a head and Elf and her father found a solution to their problems.

"Irrepressible Elfrida will appeal to all tomboys and ex-tomboys and, indeed, to readers of any age who have been fascinated by the beauty and mystery of India." A. T. Eaton
+ Christian Science Monitor p10 N 13 '50 40w

Cleveland Open Shelf p24 D '50

"A lively story of India for nine to twelve-year-old girls."
+ Horn Bk 26:381 S '50 70w

"A richly conceived portrait of India, loved and understood as a home, but distorted by a British colonial point of view."
+ — Kirkus 18:515 S 1 '50 190w

"It is a book full of sights, sounds, smells of the Indian jungle, full of its strange birds and creatures, and varied people. We cannot ever feel very sorry for Elf, but we wonder at India as seen through her young eyes. Mrs. Davis has used her memories well indeed." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 N 12 '50 280w

"Elf, self-willed, tempery, is a genius at getting into scrapes. Quite naturally, she and her reserved father misunderstand each other. It is this problem—finally resolved in Elf's characteristic fashion—which gives a poignant undertone to this vigorous, entertaining story. The multi-colored background of Indian life is beautifully drawn, based as it is on the author's own experiences in bringing up a family in the jungle." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p34 O 29 '50 200w

"The author knows the jungle and vividly describes an elephant hunt and other spirited episodes."
+ New Yorker 26:182 D 2 '50 90w

DAVIS, CLYDE BRION. Age of indiscretion. 284p $3 Lippincott

917.3 U.S.—Social life and customs. Twentieth century 50-7221

"This latest rebuttal of the ideas expressed in T. S. Eliot's The Definition of Culture [Book Review Digest 1949] contends that culture has advanced, not declined, since 1900. Using Eliot's own definition of culture as 'that which makes life worth living,' Mr. Davis describes the so-called good old days as he knew them in the typical small town of Chillicothe, Missouri, and cites advances in education, art, music, medicine, religion, attitudes toward sex, child and parent relationships, social and economic legislation, and racial discrimination." Booklist

---

Booklist 46:269; 273 My 1 '50

Bookmark 9:208 Je '50 30w

Reviewed by J. H. Fichter
Cath World 172:159 N '50 260w

Chicago Sun p5 Je 6 '50 80w

"All of it is delightful, tho I am not at all sure that Mr. Davis has cut the ground from under Dr. Eliot as much as he believes." V. P. Hass
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 My 14 '50 460w

Reviewed by Henry Sowerby
Christian Science Monitor p9 My 27 '50 750w

"This entertaining bumptious book is full of inconsistencies, but it makes excellent reading when Mr. Davis forgets his dislike of Eliot and lets himself go, describing his early life." John Cournos
+ — Commonweal 52:230 Je 9 '50 350w

Current Hist 19:107 Ag '50 50w

"The events and activities reported are strictly in the Penrod-Tom Sawyer tradition, if a bit less wholesome and pure, a little more malicious and earthy. . . Entertaining and readable but sociologically slight." Harold Lancour
Library J 75:771 My 1 '50 110w

"There is no denying that T. S. Eliot stuck out his chin when he wrote his 'Notes Toward the Definition of Culture.' Mr. Davis, another Missouri boy as rabidly content with the last half-century's progress in organizing society as the poet is malcontent, has pounced upon him. An old mugwump reviewer can but feel there is something to be said for both sides." Ernestine Evans
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 Je 11 '50 550w

"The author's range of experience is wide, and his conclusions, are, in the main, wise. 'The Age of Indiscretion' is a fine, sincere and entertaining compilation of fact and conviction, and will prompt many a cheer. However, some may still prefer the seductive glamour of Japanese lanterns at a lawn party to brighter, safer neon." W. M. Prince
+ — N Y Times p10 Je 18 '50 500w

New Yorker 26:102 Je 3 '50 160w

Reviewed by Ogden Tanner
San Francisco Chronicle p8 My 13 '50 700w

"I speak not with alien contempt, for I was born there, too, though I lived in other Midwestern states after my eighth year. I, who am somewhat older than Mr. Davis, should remember still worse conditions, but the alleged prudery and superstition of his home town around 1900 surpass anything in my experience. . . Mr. Davis cites examples of scholarship and culture which he has discovered among today's workingmen, which he thinks make 1900 look like a Dark Age. But he should read the expressions of astonishment of an Englishmen, Sir Charles Lyell, at the erudition which he found among New England working people, male and female, in 1841, half a century before Mr. Davis was born—as well as remarks by Dickens, Charles Eliot Norton, and others." A. F. Harlow
Sat R of Lit 33:30 Jl 22 '50 850w

Springf'd Republican p12C Je 4 '50 360w

DAVIS, DOROTHY SALISBURY. Clay hand. 207p $2.50 Scribner 49-50432

Detective story.

"Quietly but surely impressive. . . It is worth saying that just as Mrs. Davis has observed the troubles as her male reporter might see them, so she never once betrays herself by a 'feminine' accent. By which I mean no contempt for the female narrator, only praise for the consistency of this accomplished writer whose perception is at once delicate and unsentimental and whose narrative is as rich as the wide range of her characters." James Sandoe
+ Chicago Sun p6S Ja 13 '50 300w

"Sober, substantiated unraveling with an unhackneyed background."
+ Kirkus 17:680 D 15 '49 70w

"Some who are offended by the harsh and the strange will not like 'The Clay Hand.' It is grim. But Mrs. Davis has belied the old publishing saying that an author's second novel is usually less good than the first. Since her first ranked among last year's best, what more need be said?" Elizabeth Bullock
+ N Y Times p19 Ja 15 '50 220w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ja 22 '50 150w

"Exciting story, well plotted and superlatively characterized. Tragic end may not please some—but its honesty is among tale's best features."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:32 F 18 '50 50w

Wis Lib Bul 46:28 F '50

DAVIS, FRANK GARFIELD, and NORRIS, PEARLE S. Guidance handbook for teachers. 344p $3.50 McGraw

371.422 Personnel service in education 49-50228

"The material in this book may well be used as the title indicates as a guide for those teachers who are interested in the fullest development of each student. The authors state that this 'handbook is intended to make guidance work as easy as it is possible to make anything so important.'" (J Home Econ) Bibliographies. Index.

DAVIS, F. G.—Continued

"The book has a fresh approach to a vital part of education. It leaves one with the thought that every teacher has a place in guidance and that a dozen teachers really interested in pupil development are more effective than one full-time specialist." E. M. Mitchell
+ J Home Econ 42:299 Ap '50 400w

"This textbook will prove especially valuable to teachers in schools which do not have counselors."
+ School & Society 70:367 D 3 '49 20w
School R 58:362 S '50 30w

"Considering its size, the book is remarkable for its scope as it deals with almost every phase of guidance in the school systems of today. It is attractively written, well organized and unhampered with unnecessary technical definitions. The material presented is factual and is the result of years of experience of the two authors." N. T. Hagaly
+ Social Studies 41:285 O '50 480w

DAVIS, FREDERICK CLYDE. Deadly Miss Ashley. 223p $2.25 Doubleday 50-6082

Detective story.

"Swiftly paced skullduggery with humor neatly sprinkled in the excitement." Drexel Drake
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p15 Ap 23 '50 70w

"Good suspense builds up to an unusually ominous portrait of a lady murderess."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 Ap 9 '50 180w

"Concentration on the puzzle occasionally slows up the story, but it is a neatly constructed puzzle." Hillis Mills
+ N Y Times p34 Mr 19 '50 90w

"Mr. Davis is an accomplished practitioner of the action school but he is not above permitting himself a bon mot every so often. Nice going." E. D. Doyle
+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 Mr 19 '50 120w

"Deadly Miss Ashley is a winner, and I look forward to reading more of Cole and Speare. Most detective novels are 'expendable'; this I shall keep by me." John Garrett
Spec 184:406 O 20 '50 200w
Times [London] Lit Sup p593 S 22 '50 150w

DAVIS, HAROLD EUGENE. Latin American leaders. 170p $2.50 Wilson, H.W.
920.08 Latin America—Biography 49-4704

"Continues the studies of political and intellectual leaders begun in a previous volume, Makers of Democracy in Latin America [Book Review Digest 1945]. None of the 16 men included in this volume is now living, and of them all Toussaint L'Ouverture's is probably the only name widely known in North America. A short bibliography is appended to each biographical sketch." (Booklist) Index.

"Though the sketches are brief, they are clear and accurate. A brief bibliography in English and Spanish accompanying each sketch demonstrates the diligence and seriousness of the author and opens the way for those who wish to make more detailed studies. The effort of Professor Davis is honest and useful; however, the names which he chose are not the only ones which might be included in a book of this type, nor does the book help those who seek an organic or integrated conception of the life and thought of Latin Americans in the past and present." Jorge Basadre
+ — Am Hist R 55:714 Ap '50 300w

"Most of the biographees are not known at all in our country; others well known here are omitted. We may, however, be grateful for the opportunity to get acquainted with very different types of leaders in the other America. . . . Regardless of all criticism of selection of personages, Professor Davis' book will promote the spirit of good neighborhood among the two Americas." Alfred Manes
+ Ann Am Acad 267:214 Ja '50 400w
Booklist 46:96 N 15 '49
Social Studies 41:144 Mr '50 20w

DAVIS, JEROME. Character assassination; introd. by Robert Maynard Hutchins. 259p $3 Philosophical lib.
323.4 Antipathies and prejudices. Civil rights. U.S.—Race question 50-7496

An analysis of the habit of men "to castigate any individual or group against whom there exists a deep-seated hostility." Partial contents: Prejudice, hysteria, murder; Smearing the presidents; Anti-Semitism—group assassination; Ammunition against the Negro; Hitting labor below the belt; Who is un-American? Recovery of faith in freedom. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by Kermit Eby
Am J Soc 56:301 N '50 330w
Reviewed by E. H. Volkart
Am Soc R 15:579 Ag '50 220w
Booklist 47:127 D 1 '50

"In an era of the House committee on un-American activities, a book such as Character Assassination is greatly needed. If the book never quite lives up to the aim of the author or the expectation of the reader, it is perhaps because the author has thrown the book together too hurriedly and also has perhaps been too close to some of the persons maligned." H. A. Jack
Christian Century 67:821 Jl 5 '50 1000w
Reviewed by Ernest Pisko
Christian Science Monitor p9 My 27 '50 1050w
Reviewed by James VanZant
Churchman 164:17 Ap 1 '50 140w
Current Hist 19:166 S '50 30w
Reviewed by Walter Watson
Ethics 61:86 O '50 160w
Reviewed by David Spitz
New Repub 122:19 Je 26 '50 340w

"The great failing of Mr. Davis' book is that he appears only dimly aware that the expansionist aims of Soviet foreign policy and the 'higher loyalty' practiced by Soviet dupes in every country of the world force certain inescapable revisions in our traditional concepts of tolerance. Genuine democracy in the United States is in no less danger from those who are too naïve to see the nature of the Communist challenge than it is from those who spot a Communist in every critic of the status quo." A. H. Raskin
N Y Times p15 Je 18 '50 190w

"With the citizens and some Senators running amok, it is a good book to read and to remember." A. K.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 Je 11 '50 160w

"Balanced inquiry is wholly subordinated to selective evidence. If Professor Davis really thinks he is testifying to a fundamental faith in freedom it is not freedom for everybody but only for those good people who want a better world. And among the good he makes no distinctions. . . I do not thereby characterize Professor Davis as a fellow traveler. He belongs rather to that species of reformer who naively welcomes any and all promised lands in the place of the one we've got. No fine distinctions for him; police states or democracies are equally acceptable if they are headed for salvation." Roger Baldwin
Sat R of Lit 33:9 Jl 29 '50 650w
School & Society 71:254 Ap 22 '50 50w

"Mr. Davis suggests that the consistent practice of Democracy is the surest way of preserving it in America. His study is comprehensive and illuminating." R. F. Henchey
+ Springf'd Republican p12C Je 4 '50 120w

DAVIS, KINGSLEY. Human society. 655p $4.25 Macmillan

301 Sociology 49-6711

"This book is in the nature of a general treatise on sociology, presumably written with the hope that it will be found usable as a textbook for college courses in that subject. . . The author presses in every chapter some of the more theoretic and fundamental questions which can be raised concerning the topics with which he is dealing." Ann Am Acad

---

"It seems to me to be one of the best books in 'general sociology' or the 'principles of sociology' that have appeared in a number of years. It is thoughtful and, on the whole, well written; the author has synthesized the ideas of a number of oustanding sociologists of the recent past who are commonly thought of as of different 'schools'; and he seems to me to have covered the main topics and questions of general or theoretic sociology rather comprehensively." F. N. House

+ Am J Soc 55:500 Mr '50 800w

"This book is obviously no labor of mere expediency; nor does one sense, as in so many texts, the figure of a publisher at the author's elbow. The writing is clear and the content is sufficiently advanced to give both the student and the instructor an intellectual workout. That is to say, it is a college text-book. There are certain critical points I would raise about this no less than other recent volumes in the field. Professor Davis is at his best where he is clarifying problems of order and structure which were long buried under categories of change. He is weakest, I think, where he deals either explicitly or implicitly with the problem of change." R. A. Nisbet

+ — Am Soc R 15:307 Ap '50 650w

"It is one of the most thoughtful general treatises on sociology that it has been my privilege to read in a number of years." F. N. House

+ Ann Am Acad 268:243 Mr '50 360w

Reviewed by J. S. Himes

Social Forces 29:100 O '50 500w

Social Studies 41:142 Mr '50 20w

DAVIS, KINGSLEY, and others, eds. Modern American society. 734p $4.50 Rinehart

309.173 U.S.—Social conditions 49-5542

"Selected readings in the problems of order and change, with articles on the many facets of social science, intended as a textbook on the unity and continuity of American society. Most of the articles quoted are by known specialists in the subject." (Current Hist) Indexes.

"This book is highly recommended as a source-book on modern American social problems." H. L. Smith

+ Am J Soc 55:501 Mr '50 650w

"The real merit of this volume lies in its approach. Taking the system of traditional American values as a fact of major sociological importance, the editors not only delineate that system succinctly (especially in the second and concluding chapters), but seek to show in principal areas of American life the extent to which different elements of our value-credo are fulfilled and/or frustrated by the institutional structure." C. H. Page

+ Am Soc R 15:157 F '50 500w

Current Hist 17:227 O '49 40w

Reviewed by J. S. Himes

Social Forces 29:100 O '50 500w

Social Studies 41:96 F '50 50w

Survey 86:47 Ja '50 20w

DAVIS, NORMAN. Picken's great adventure; il. by Winslade. 43p $2 Oxford

50-2468

The story of a little African boy's canoeing holiday. He kills a bush-cat and a snake, makes friends with a monkey, and recovers a stolen bracelet. He returns home a hero welcomed by a cheering crowd and an exceedingly proud father.

Booklist 46:248 Ap 1 '50

Bookmark 9:162 Ap '50 40w

"Little boys will love this charming tale." Polly Goodwin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Ag 6 '50 150w

Cleveland Open Shelf p24 D '50

"Children who like to know how other children live will find this little African a real boy. The illustrations are excellent." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 26:190 My '50 80w

"An absorbing action story and regional study, this book has adventure and plot enough for an eight or nine year old, but the format and 'fairy tale' aura of the tale marks it for a younger group."

Kirkus 18:175 Mr 15 '50 150w

Reviewed by F. M. Hensey

Library J 75:879 My 15 '50 70w

"The book is unusually good for beginning readers, especially those boys of seven or eight whose books generally have so little real story content. The many splendid pictures give an exciting sense of this far-away adventure." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 Mr 26 '50 170w

"Despite a prose which is frequently top heavy this brief story gives a vivid picture of the African jungle, pointed up with beautiful illustrations." E.L.B.

+ N Y Times p30 My 7 '50 140w

Wis Lib Bul 46:21 Je '50

DAVIS, PEARCE. Development of the American glass industry. 316p $6 Harvard univ. press

338.476661 Glass manufacture and trade 49-9758

A history of the development of the glass industry in the United States from Colonial times to 1929. The study has three basic purposes: "The first is a historical account of the economic evolution of glass manufacture in the United States, reviewing the industry's changing quantitative and qualitative aspects, its technical and mechanical progress, and its progressive adjustments in the expanding American economy. . . A second purpose of the study falls within the field of labor history. . . A third purpose is an analysis of the interrelationships between the tariff policy of the United States and the growth of glassmaking." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

"If the layman is to understand the evolution of glassmaking, the author must give a clear description of the processes, especially of the basic ones. It is virtually impossible to do this without diagrams or pictures. There is not a diagram or picture in the entire book. Instead, there are lengthy and sometimes involved descriptions of manufacturing processes. These leave the reader bewildered and frustrated unless he is a glass expert. The audience for these studies should be wider than that." D. L. Kemmerer

Ann Am Acad 267:231 Ja '50 500w

"A detailed and scholarly history. . . This study represents an important addition to the literature on the development of American industry and will be of value not only to the economic historian but to other specialists in economics as well." J. P. Miller

+ J Pol Econ 58:79 F '50 800w

"With proper reference to facts and to their theoretical interpretation, Mr. Davis has written a brief history of an old American industry. For those interested in this area of the economy, and few others will read such a book, his study will be used in conjunction with the more detailed account of entrepreneurial and business factors contained in Warren Scoville's Revolution in Glassmaking."

U S Quarterly Bkl 5:475 D '49 200w

DAVISON, ARCHIBALD THOMPSON, and APEL, WILLI. Historical anthology of music. v 2, Baroque, rococo, and pre-classical music. 303p $10 Harvard univ. press

780.9 Music—History and criticism. Music—Collections (49-4539)

"The second and final volume of a distinguished collection of representative music scores organized along historical lines. It covers the years 1600-1800 approximately, with the understandable omissions of Bach and Handel whose works are readily available in trade editions. As before, the selections illustrate the special contributions of the ranking composers of the era, and the useful commentary includes reading references and discographical citations." (Library J) For volume I see Book Review Digest 1946.

"The translations of foreign texts are an excellent feature. Highly recommended for all but the smallest public libraries, a necessity for college, research, and conservatory libraries." C. K. Miller

+ Library J 75:1508 S 15 '50 120w

"The authors Archibald Davison, Professor of Music at Harvard, and Willi Apel, author of 'The Harvard Dictionary of Music,' here faced a knottier problem than in their previous volume, for many of the available works of this period were too large for inclusion in such an epitome. If it, like many an anthology, resembles a meal of hors d'oeuvres, it should whet the appetites of both students and laymen." Carter Harman

N Y Times p37 O 8 '50 220w

DAWSON, CHRISTOPHER HENRY. Religion and the rise of Western culture. 286p il $3.50 Sheed

270 Civilization, Christian. Civilization, Medieval 50-6539

The theme of these lectures is that religion is the dynamic element in medieval society and its culture. He maintains that it was the medieval Catholic church, with its continuous tradition, which was responsible for the resurgence of growth after the devastation of the Dark Ages. Index.

"Both the student of culture and the student of religion will be grateful to have this masterly introduction to a whole department of literature, from one who must certainly be classed among the most able specialists in that field."

+ Cath World 171:318 Jl '50 150w

"Dawson is a writer, and Religion and the Rise of Western Culture is a well-formed, decently composed literary work. The sentences read right, and the vocabulary is that of civilized intercourse. The whole thing is short, only 274 pages. Particular events and illustrations are written with the greatest economy possible. There is no parade of learning and laboring of points, but rather discipline and modesty—and also a kind of confidence in the reader, not assuming unusual knowledge but trusting his reasonableness and imagination." Philip Burnham

+ Commonweal 52:273 Je 23 '50 1400w

Current Hist 19:40 Jl '50 30w

"Throughout the book there is a freshness and vigour of treatment which shows a continually active mind, welcoming new knowledge (this is especially clear in Chapter VI, 'The Byzantine Tradition and the Conversion of Eastern Europe') and penetrating ever deeper into the understanding of the period which Mr. Dawson has made particularly his own." A. H. Armstrong

+ Hibbert J 48:404 Jl '50 1100w

"The author is so learned and lively a scholar, and writes so pleasantly, that a student of history may read with profit what he says about the history of the mediaeval Latin Church—early monasticism, the mediæval Popes, and the friars." C. R. Cheney

+ Manchester Guardian p4 F 10 '50 500w

"It is a stimulating experience to read these dozen chapters, covering almost as many centuries, full of learning, and yet clarifying, not compressing, that crowded history of vast migrations, obscure events, and fragmentary evidence." H. R. Trevor-Roper

+ New Statesman & Nation 39:276 Mr 11 '50 2050w

Reviewed by R. S. Bosher

N Y Times p4 D 24 '50 360w

San Francisco Chronicle p20 Ag 20 '50 270w

Times [London] Lit Sup p7 Ap 7 '50 1000w

DAWSON, ROBERT MACGREGOR. Democratic government in Canada. 188p il $2.75 Univ. of Minn.

342.71 Canada—Politics and government—Handbooks, manuals, etc. 50-6012

"A short, descriptive account of Canadian government, national, provincial, and municipal." (Pref) Includes text of British North America Acts, from 1867 to 1949. Bibliography. Index.

"In a book which is directed, as the author implies in his preface, toward the interested citizen rather than the political science student, it is a real merit to find a readable style unencumbered by excessive footnotes combined with a definitive analysis of fundamentals, a type of treatment frequently difficult for the serious scholar to achieve." G. M. Hougham

+ Am Pol Sci R 44:508 Je '50 240w

Reviewed by H. McD. Clokie

Ann Am Acad 270:188 Jl '50 110w

Booklist 46:242 Ap 1 '50

"A few more of the facts of Canadian life would have added greatly to what is, nevertheless, a most useful little volume." F. R. Scott

+ — Canadian Forum 30:20 Ap '50 280w

School & Society 71:109 F 18 '50 20w

DAWSON, MRS ROSEMARY (BENET), and DAWSON, RICHARD. A walk in the city. 30p $2 Viking

50-7042

A picture book for ages three to six, which describes the day of a small New York city boy, who walks and plays about Greenwich Village.

Booklist 46:291 My 15 '50

Reviewed by A. L. Shea

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Ag 13 '50 110w

Reviewed by Millicent Taylor

Christian Science Monitor p6 Ap 29 '50 60w

"City children will recognize much that is familiar here, and country children will like the book, too." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 26:188 My '50 80w

Kirkus 18:58 F 1 '50 90w

Reviewed by Louise Davis

Library J 75:627 Ap 15 '50 110w

Reviewed by K. H. McAlarney

Library J 75:870 My 15 '50 50w

"City picture books for the very young are rare, and this one is a happy combination of the talents of a father and mother, keyed to the look-and-listen abilities of very young children."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 My 7 '50 190w

"There aren't many books for very young city children which capture and give back to them the pleasures of their own everyday surroundings. This one does, very satisfactorily. . . The setting is New York's Greenwich Village, but the friendly meetings are those which could take place in any one's home city, thus arousing that feeling of recognition which is so delightful to small children." E. L. B.

+ N Y Times p24 Ap 9 '50 150w

San Francisco Chronicle p19 N 19 '50 80w

"That the author of these verses is the daughter of William Rose Benét makes it easier to understand why they are so satisfying. The drawings are satisfying, too. They have humor and a realism that will make New York boys and girls feel very much at home, and will perhaps stir a longing to see New York in boys and girls who have never been there."

+ Sat R of Lit 33:32 My 13 '50 140w

Wis Lib Bul 46:25 My '50

DAY, RICHARD WARD. New England schoolmaster; the life of Henry Franklin Cutler. 274p il $3 Hildreth press, inc, Emmett st, Bristol, Conn.

B or 92 Cutler, Henry Franklin. Mt Hermon school for boys, Mount Hermon, Massachusetts 50-2261

Biography of Dr Henry Franklin Cutler, who for forty-two years served as principal of the Mount Hermon School. The earlier chapters deal with Dr Cutler's struggle to gain an education; the later section of the book covers the years at Mount Hermon. The last chapters describe his retirement years, during which he won a medical degree in Europe. Bibliography. Index.

"This biography is most fascinating, deserving reading and study by all who are interested in boys and in their Christian education." W. P. Schell

+ Christian Century 67:1170 O 4 '50 700w

"Dr. Cutler's biographer has done a competent and understanding job in reconstructing the life of a modest and—in these times—unspectacular man. It is far easier to write of a politician, a general, or a baseball player, than of a teacher whose career was devoted to imparting a way of life rather than to calling attention to himself. The 'old boys' of Mount Hermon will recognize their old master, tart comments and all; others see, as did Dr. Day, a giant in the earth." R. F. H.

+ Springf'd Republican p8B Ag 27 '50 550w

DEAN, JOHN W. Leathercraft techniques and designs. 251p il $5 McKnight

745.53 Leather work 50-5415

"Intended for the use of craftsmen with some knowledge of leatherworking. Discusses types of leather, their care and uses, tools which can be made in a home workshop at small cost, quantity production, techniques of ornamenting and constructing the product; gives designs and instructions for making 50 articles. The designs, reproduced in this volume one third of their size, can also be had in full size, separately bound, in Dean, Leathercraft Designs in Actual Size." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 46:215 Mr 1 '50

Cleveland Open Shelf p19 O '50

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 75:699 Ap 15 '50 50w

"As a complete information source for leathercraft including details of stamping, coloring, cementing, sewing, and designing patterns for applications, [this book] deserves an important place in your library."

+ School Arts 49:4adv Je '50 120w

DEAN, SIDNEY WALTER, and MARSHALL, MARGUERITE MOOERS. We fell in love with Quebec; a book of cities, shrines, villages, rivers, mountains, and people. 272p il $3.50 Macrae Smith co.

917.14 Quebec (province) 50-8402

An informal guidebook to Quebec, based on the narrative of trips the authors made in their cabin cruiser, Margot, thru the waterways of the province from the Chambly canal and the Richelieu river to the St Lawrence, and the Saguenay. The trips were made in summertime but one chapter deals with Quebec revisted in December.

Booklist 47:11 S 1 '50

Cleveland Open Shelf p17 O '50

Kirkus 18:87 F 1 '50 160w

"Their book has the best qualities of homely, friendly, down-to-travel-writing, (maybe it will be a touch too folksy for some readers) and of the standard guidebook. Most of the text involves travel by a 30-foot cabin cruiser, which should bring it directly into a reader-field which is constantly growing as more and more Americans learn the pleasures of investigating new country in one's own floating home." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 Je 23 '50 140w

"For those contemplating a similar yachting venture this should be indispensable, but you might consult it as an informal guide to the province as well. For pure reading it will prove a harmless adventure."

+ Sat R of Lit 33:40 Ag 12 '50 330w

Wis Lib Bul 46:18 Jl '50

DEAN, MRS VERA (MICHELES). Europe and the United States. 349p $3.50 Knopf

940.55 U.S.—Foreign relations—Europe. Europe—Politics. World politics 50-7480

"Vera Micheles Dean, the research director of the Foreign Policy Association, is one of America's leading educators in the field of foreign policy. In her new book she seeks to analyze the present condition of Europe and to define the main outlines of American policy toward that weary and tormented continent. She describes the retreat of nationalism and imperialism and the decline of laissez-faire; she charts the main political and economic tendencies in contemporary Europe; and she reviews United States policy toward various European nations, noting the elements of strength and of weakness in the American strategy and position." (N Y Times) Suggested reading. Index.

Reviewed by J. S. Roucek

Ann Am Acad 271:187 S '50 600w

Booklist 46:313 Je 15 '50

Canadian Forum 30:162 O '50 290w

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon

Chicago Sun p5 My 16 '50 750w

"Underestimation of the threat of soviet communism and overestimation of the danger to the world's peace from a broken, disarmed and divided Germany give the book an unrealistic character. The author's personal preference seems to be for nondictatorial socialism. She seems to overrate the achievements of burocratic planners and to overlook the amazing and suggestive relative well being of the two European countries which went in whole heartedly for economic freedom, Switzerland and Belgium." W. H. Chamberlain

Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 My 14 '50 700w

"Mrs. Dean's objective is the important one of educating people, of interesting them, of labeling the layers of the pact pyramid in letters we all can read. Her book cannot solve—and does not seek to solve—the massive issues presented. But it is of great aid in etching those issues more clearly." H. S. Hayward

+ Christian Science Monitor p16 My 25 '50 900w

Current Hist 19:39 Jl '50 40w

Foreign Affairs 29:143 O '50 50w

"An interesting and informed study, but perhaps too abstract for the general reader, and not easy selling. Tie in with Mrs. Dean's lecture schedules; link with other 'thought and idea books' for study groups."

+ — Kirkus 18:196 Mr 15 '50 550w

"Recommended." H. L. Roth

+ Library J 75:692 Ap 15 '50 110w

"The first sections of her book . . . are rather slow going. And this is a great pity, for there is danger that the Far Eastern crisis will divert the attention of Americans from the problems of Europe and thus permit Soviet imperialism to take over countries that are more vital to us than South Korea. In the second part of the book . . . Mrs. Dean's

DEAN, V. M.—Continued
style becomes more lively. While carefully offering no conclusions about the possibility of war, or who will win it, she gives an admirable exposition of the complexity of the problems now facing the United States. It is to be hoped that Mrs. Dean's book will reach a large number of readers." T. J. Hamilton
+ — Nation 171:89 Jl 22 '50 800w

"The range of Europe and the United States is as wide and as deep as the crisis of our times. The book might have been even more compelling if its organization and structure had been simplified and sharpened, but in view of its many virtues this is a minor criticism. One cannot help noting and admiring Mrs. Dean's freedom from the timidity that today hampers so many writers on politics. She says forthrightly what she wants to say, and since she has seen much and thought much, the result is a superb insight into the realities of the modern political world." A. Z. Carr
+ New Repub 122:18 Je 12 '50 1400w

"The accumulation of useful information and shrewd judgment embodied in 'Europe and the United States' is valuable and stimulating, representing the play of a well-informed and coolly rational mind over the issues of the day. Instead of a sense of crisis and doom, Mrs. Dean conveys, through all her realistic appreciations of the trials and turmoils of this age, a feeling for the long and complex processes of historical development, the many roads by which humanity may seek the same goal. Humane and—in the best sense of a word that has almost vanished from today's vocabulary—tolerant, 'Europe and the United States' is a book to be studied and savored." H. W. Baehr
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 My 7 '50 1000w

"This book contains much useful information. It provides necessary and chastening reminders to those Americans who wish to impose our system of capitalist enterprise on the rest of the world. However, it does not in this reviewer's judgment convey an adequate sense of the world crisis or of the extent to which the challenge of Soviet totalitarianism strikes at the very fundamentals of our heritage of human dignity." Arthur Schlesinger, Jr.
— + N Y Times p4 My 7 '50 900w

Reviewed by C. W. Weinberger
San Francisco Chronicle p18 Je 4 '50 700w

Reviewed by Hans Kohn
Survey 86:332 Je '50 1500w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:341 S '50 290w

Reviewed by Dexter Perkins
Yale R n s 40:160 autumn '50 250w

DEARING, CHARLES LEE, and OWEN, WILFRED. National transportation policy. 459p $4 Brookings
385 Transportation—U.S. 49-11772

"A description and criticism of federal promotional and regulatory policy relating to transportation and of the organization of the federal agencies concerned therewith." Am Econ R

Reviewed by R. W. Harbeson
Am Econ R 40:458 Je '50 1150w

"This is a volume of worth, a worth largely in exposition and description. Specialists would have found the book of greater use had the authors not become special pleaders for railroads, which they view as a potential area of free enterprise that has been injured by inept federal bureaucratic interference with management on the one hand and by public openhandedness to the competitors of the railroads on the other. The authors' deep and often repeated annoyance with the extensive use of federal subsidies to certain forms of transportation has impaired the force of their judgments with regard to the wisdom of making such grants. Even their bias in favor of states' rights must be considered in appraising several of their conclusions." Charles Aikin
+ — Am Pol Sci R 44:488 Je '50 1250w

"The study is highly critical of present promotional and regulatory policy, and it is not lacking in a positive program for the future. Although there is bound to be disagreement with some of the conclusions reached, the book deserves to be read carefully by all who are concerned with the transportation system of the country." D. P. Locklin
Ann Am Acad 268:237 Mr '50 500w

"The book makes good, and at times highly interesting, reading, particularly because the writers do not hesitate to call a spade a spade. A defect is a tendency to oversimplify, but this is not serious. In particular, the work does not deal adequately with problems of fixed charges and the resulting discriminatory rate structure, especially in so far as rail-water competition is concerned." J. G. B. Hutchins
+ — J Pol Econ 58:364 Ag '50 1200w

"Aggressive and well documented criticism of national transport policy in the United States."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:54 Mr '50 240w

DE ARMOND, FRED. Laundry industry. 302p il $4 Harper
648.1 Laundry 50-14947

This book has been sponsored by the American Institute of Laundering, and the Troy Laundry Machinery Division; its author has been connected with the laundry business for more than thirty years. The book covers both the history of the business from 1840 to the present, and the economic, organizational and technical aspects of the industry.

Booklist 47:90 N 1 '50

"Interesting and useful." J. E. Cross
+ Library J 75:1666 O 1 '50 90w

DE AZEVEDO, FERNANDO. See Azevedo, F. de

DEBO, ANGIE. Oklahoma, foot-loose and fancy-free. 258p il $3.75 Univ. of Okla. press
917.66 Oklahoma—Description and travel 49-48798

"Oklahoma is one of the half dozen states of the Union that has a marked character of its own. Oklahoma's character grows out of its Indian heritage, the delayed white settlement, and several elements in the state's geography and history. Miss Debo's book begins with the geology of the state and follows with a survey of its historical development. The major portion of the book, however, deals with Oklahoma life today and its problems." (U S Quarterly Bkl) Index.

"Miss Deboe's study is calm and restrained; she scorns the writers who have told melodramatic tales of poor Indians and white and their didoes when overwhelmed by sudden riches. . . Within its self-imposed limitations, it is an honest and knowing book, written with a great affection. The best part of it, somehow, is the brief reminiscences of a few old-timers, little flashes which tell more than many pages of description." Stanley Walker
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Jl 2 '50 700w

"This is a competent little handbook and it would be silly to plan an extended stay in Oklahoma without reading it. It is also well worth the attention of people who merely want to know something about Oklahoma."
+ Sat R of Lit 32:33 D 31 '49 140w

"Although Miss Debo writes in a manner suited to the general reader, her subjects are serious, and they are developed with a keen appreciation of modern scholarship. Although she does not hesitate to point out faults, non-Oklahomans may feel that Miss Debo claims too much for her state."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:87 Mr '50 170w

DEBRETT, HAL, pseud. of DAVIS DRESSER, and KATHLEEN ROLLINS. Lonely way to die. 246p $2.50 Dodd 50-8280
Detective story.

"Nicely conceived, it has as little routine as Debrett's first novel. But the author murders his tale by the ineptitude of his dialog and his apparent incapacity to lend his characters the dimension the plot requires."

— + Chicago Sun p5 Jl 4 '50 50w

"Sound in character and topical interest, but rather tenuous as to plot."
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 Jl 2 '50 190w

"Hal Debrett, author of the highly praised 'Before I Wake' does a thoroughly satisfying job of peopling this story with interesting, dimensioned characters." Elizabeth Bullock
+ N Y Times p11 Jl 2 '50 140w

DE CAMP, LYON SPRAGUE, and PRATT, FLETCHER. Castle of iron; a science fantasy adventure. 224p $2.50 Gnome press
50-11508

Fantastic tale about the adventures of two friends, a scientist and a psychologist, with a troublemaking hangeron or two, in the world of the Italian romances. Transported into the land of Orlando Furioso, Paynims, warrior maidens, and magic, they escape all dangers, and seem about to return to Ohio as the story closes.

"Pure extravanganza and pure delight." Basil Davenport
+ N Y Times p23 Ag 13 '50 110w

San Francisco Chronicle p20 Jl 23 '50 150w

Reviewed by Fletcher Pratt
Sat R of Lit 33:16 D 30 '50 100w

DECKER, DUANE WALTER. Catcher from Double-A. 188p $2.50 Morrow
50-5969

Story of Pete Gibbs, a young baseball player whose main trouble was his fear of making mistakes. He finally managed to gain self confidence and made good in his chosen career.

Booklist 46:265 Ap 15 '50

"High on the fiction list." Robert Cromie
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 My 14 '50 90w

"Decker's previous books have played around this same pattern of self-confidence growing out of overcoming an obsession with defeat. He has nothing new to offer, but the unfailing appeal of authentic baseball terminology, action and dugout talk."
+ Kirkus 18:24 Ja 15 '50 130w

"Recommended for older boys and girls and for young people." M. D. Read
+ Library J 75:882 My 15 '50 40w

"It is not too long, is full of thrilling games, and well written. For boys of around twelve and over." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Je 11 '50 70w

Reviewed by R. A. Brown
N Y Times p11 Jl 2 '50 80w

DEE, SYLVIA, pseud. See Proffitt, J. M.

DE FOREST, LEE. Father of radio; autobiography [eds: Linton J. Keith and Arthur Brogue] 502p il $5 Wilcox & Follett
B or 92 Radio 50-9446

The author tells the story of his childhood and youth; his early struggles and achievements in wireless telegraphy; his rivalry with Marconi; his invention and development of the basic instruments of radio broadcasting; his loves and sorrows; his fierce battles with several corporations to maintain the validity of his many radio patents. Index.

Booklist 47:94 N 1 '50

Reviewed by Larry Wolters
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 S 17 '50 600w

"Probably some of the statements made will be disputed in some quarters, but the book is nevertheless interesting reading whether one reads it for the light it sheds on the development of electronics or for its portrayal of an extraordinary personality." R. R. Hawkins
+ — Library J 75:1829 O 15 '50 130w

"There is much drama in his story, but unfortunately a great deal of it is lost through inept narration. Like ore still to be refined, this long, detailed autobiography glitters here and there, but in the main it is an assembling of biographical raw material rather than a finished product." Samuel Lubell
— + N Y Times p6 S 17 '50 750w

"Controversial aspects of Mr. de Forest's inventions which were settled through bitter lawsuits are pointedly presented to support his case. This makes the autobiography too one-sided for objective discussion of this important man of our times, but it certainly will be of exciting interest to historians of broadcasting and electronics." Hillier Krieghbaum
Survey 86:517 N '50 150w

DE GAURY, GERALD. Arabian journey, and other desert travels; il. from phot. taken by the author. 192p maps $3.50 British bk. centre
915.3 Arabia—Description and travel

"Arabian Journey consists of three . . . parts, which describe respectively journeys and adventures in Arabia, Iraq and North Africa. The chapters on Arabia . . . begin by describing the author's prolonged stay as the guest of King Ibn Saud at Riyadh and subsequently at his desert retreat on the fringe of the Dahana dunes, where the King retires with his court and lives in his simple tents, as did the Umayyad caliphs." Times [London] Lit Sup

Reviewed by Simon Harcourt-Smith
New Statesman & Nation 40:48 Jl 8 '50 360w

"Colonel De Gaury's book belongs to the best tradition of British Arabists—the tradition made known to the world by Sir Richard Burton and Charles Doughty and T. E. Lawrence. Unlike Lawrence, he does not dramatize his own efforts, being content to try to interpret the Arab world to the West. This will probably limit his appeal in the United States to a few specialists, which is unfortunate, since he is the kind of humanist who can aid us in the sympathetic rapprochement with the Middle East that our new diplomatic commitments now make imperative." Gerald Sykes
+ N Y Times p41 S 10 '50 230w

"As a writer on the Arab world Colonel de Gaury made his mark with Arabia Phoenix. His Arabian Journey is a slighter work, but in spite of a certain haphazard air it contains much that will interest those who know the Arab countries."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p295 My 12 '50 800w

DE GOUY, LOUIS PULLIG. Salad book. 302p $3.50 Greenberg
641.83 Salads 50-8365

Recipes for about 800 salads and salad dressings. "These recipes and formulas are widely varied under each division with directions which, while accurately detailed, are sufficiently elastic so that the homemaker may express her individuality and suit the tastes of her family or her guests, according to her means, ever bearing in mind that the cheapest foods are sometimes the most expensive in the end." (Author's note) Index.

Booklist 46:348 Jl 15 '50

Reviewed by K. T. Willis
Library J 75:2152 D 15 '50 30w

"Maitre De Gouy has a way of romping through his material with a gusto that does not exactly hide his authority but dares the cook to get out of that rut." Mary Poore
+ N Y Times p14 Jl 16 '50 100w

DEISS, JAY. Washington story. 313p $3 Duell
50-6462

Novel based on one more Washington witch hunt. The suspect is Faith Robles Vance, a government worker, whose integrity would never have been suspect, except for one person. The hopeless struggle to prove her innocence is lightened by the lawyer who took her case.

"There's a high pulse beat here, and more than a little fictional glamour, but there's also a definite basis in fact."
Kirkus 18:33 Ja 15 '50 180w

"Mr. Deiss's first novel is extremely readable but a bit slick. His lawyer is noble, Faith rather too sweet and Faith's husband such a vicious fool that it is hard to know why she could have tolerated him for an instant. This slickness is unfortunately deceptive. It obscures the seriousness of the author's purpose, and only at the very end does it become clear that Mr. Deiss is not writing about a peculiarly trying experience but about an irreparable evil which is blighting the lives of a great many innocent people." Joanna Spencer
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Ap 2 '50 550w

Reviewed by Jane Cobb
N Y Times p26 Je 4 '50 150w

"Accusing and everlastingly shameful, despite its awkward, often cheap, writing." C. M. Brown
Sat R of Lit 33:30 Je 24 '50 170w

DE JONG, MEINDERT. Good luck duck; il. by Marc Simont. 57p $2 Harper
Ducks—Legends and stories 50-6809

"Tale of a boy who, against his will, wins a squawking duck at the fair, gets stuck on a Ferris Wheel and finds he has the perfect pet." Bookmark

Booklist 46:291 My 15 '50

"Highly recommended."
+ Bookmark 9:162 Ap '50 50w

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun p3 Ap 15 '50 200w

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p9 My 21 '50 180w

"Many gay pictures, as diverting as the story, will give the book a high place in the affection of little children." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 26:188 My '50 80w

"The prose is rhythmic and sparkling and the dramatic presentation of the story is lively and fun."
+ Kirkus 18:58 F 1 '50 90w

Reviewed by Louise Davis
Library J 75:630 Ap 15 '50 90w

Reviewed by N. L. Rathbun
Library J 75:880 My 15 '50 70w

"This odd plot makes an unusually well-written story for younger boys, full of action and of lively talk between Timothy and the various queer adults he meets at the fair."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p19 My 7 '50 230w

"A happy hurly-burly which ought to delight any youngster of 6 to 10 who likes noise for its own sake—and what small boy doesn't? . . Vigorous, strongtoned illustrations by Marc Simont add a suitable note of levity." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p28 Ap 2 '50 180w
New Yorker 26:179 D 2 '50 70w
Sat R of Lit 33:46 Ap 8 '50 140w
Wis Lib Bul 46:19 Je '50

DEJONG, MEINDERT. Tower by the sea; il. by Barbara Comfort. 113p $2 Harper 50-10021

In the village of Katverloren in Holland there once stood a tower, with a weathervane in the form of a cat with a blue jewel eye, perched on a cradle. This story for ages ten and over retells the medieval legend explaining the strange weathervane.

Booklist 47:140 D 1 '50
Cleveland Open Shelf p23 D '50

"An important book with literary distinction and an enthralling story based on a North Sea legend."
+ Horn Bk 26:381 S '50 160w
Kirkus 18:414 Ag 1 '50 200w

"Sensitive story unusually well told." Clara Adams
+ Library J 75:2083 D 1 '50 100w

"A well-written story, not easily forgotten and not for small children." Siri Andrews
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p24 N 12 '50 140w

"Obviously this is not a story for every child. Thoughtful readers, however, will be quick to see the author' tenderness for all misunderstood creatures and his anger against ignorance and superstition." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p12 D 24 '50 180w

"Mr. DeJong presents his material, which can, of course, be construed as a timely parable, in a simple, silken way that is perhaps designed to catch the attention of readers of any age. A good percentage of them will undoubtedly get the point."
New Yorker 26:131 O 7 '50 70w

"A story that is full of suspense and mystery and a strange atmosphere."
Sat R of Lit 33:55 N 11 '50 230w

DEKNATEL, FREDERICK BROCKWAY. Edvard Munch. See Munch, E.

DELACROIX, EUGENE. Eugène Delacroix, by Jacques Lassaigne [tr. by D. I. Wilton]. (Masters of painting ser) 16p 39pl $2.50 Harper
759.4 Paintings, French

A monograph on Delacroix who has been called the last of the Renaissance painters because of his "extensive knowledge and his decorative ambition." Includes nine color reproductions and 31 half-tone illustrations.

Booklist 46:317 Je 15 '50
Kirkus 18:130 F 15 '50 120w

"Whether Delacroix seems the last of the ancients or the first of the moderns this account of his life and work will prove interesting and useful. Recommended." A. S. Plaut
+ Library J 75:1186 Jl '50 70w

Reviewed by W. C. Smith
Springf'd Republican p12C Ap 16 '50 140w

DE LA MARE, WALTER JOHN. Collected tales; chosen, and with an introd. by Edward Wagenknecht. 467p $4.50 Knopf 50-5738

A collection of the author's short stories: allegories; ghost stories; and introspective tales. Written for adults.

Booklist 46:246 Ap 1 '50

Reviewed by Anthony Boucher
Chicago Sun p5 Mr 6 '50 40w

"If at first some of his stories seem not to make 'sense,' it is because 'sense' is not the only thing worth making. Certainly they do not make nonsense; they lie quite on the other side of sense, toward a kind of extra-sense or super-sense. . . De la Mare's handling of children sometimes shows a fusion of the real and the eerie; fond as he is of writing about childhood, he has no illusions about children. . . There are sad pages in De la Mare. But there are also pages bright with the reflection of worlds beyond sadness." J. F. Nims
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p9 F 26 '50 420w

"It is the genius of de la Mare that, with few exceptions, he is able to make believable anything he sets his hand to. Disparate, even antithetical elements in his work are reconciled by a deep human concern, a positivism more instinctive than reasoned. His craftsmanship manifests the same integrity. His prose is first cousin to his poetry—rhythmic, concrete, evocative, but always disciplined." Ruth Chapin
+ Christian Science Monitor p3 Mr 4 '50 1100w

Kirkus 18:80 F 1 '50 100w

Reviewed by G. D. McDonald
Library J 75:399 Mr 1 '50 100w

Reviewed by James Stern
N Y Times p4 Mr 12 '50 1000w

"This title is rather misleading, it is a volume of selected tales. But the selection—by Edward Wagenknecht—is a good one, and includes two dozen stories."
+ New Yorker 26:116 Mr 25 '50 160w

San Francisco Chronicle p24 Ap 23 '50 200w

"Between the extremes of 'The Orgy' and the haunting spiritual history called 'The Connoisseur' we find tales of many kinds, almost every one of them excellent in its own way, and no recurrent formulas. The author's meanings cannot always be caught and catalogued like butterflies—Mr. Wagenknecht did well to place 'The Riddle' at the beginning of his volume—but there is always artistic communication even when precise meanings are elusive. Among Mr. De la Mare's talents is his ability to score by what he leaves unsaid as well as by what he says." B. R. Redman
+ Sat R of Lit 33:26 Mr 4 '50 320w

Time 55:100 Mr 6 '50 550w

DELDERFIELD, RONALD FREDERICK. Farewell the tranquil [Eng title: Farewell the tranquil mind]. 317p $3 Dutton

50-10468

"The story of Davy Treloar, English smuggler, accused by His Majesty's Government of killing Exciseman Vetch, and of being a French spy. Most of the action takes place in France where Davy takes part in the Revolution, and where he marries a Frenchwoman. When Davy is finally apprehended by the English, clemency is won for him in exchange for a packet of French military information which his wife turns over to the Admiralty." Library J

Booklist 47:86; 115 N 1 '50; N 15 '50

"Mr. Delderfield, a historical romanticist at heart, casts a bright light on a dark age. His story, with all the horrifying savagery of such men as Marat and Robespierre, clears some of the fog that still shrouds the who and why of the French revolution that was patterned on America's triumph, but turned into a despotism worse than the one it supplanted." Richard Blakesley
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p49 D 3 '50 350w

Christian Science Monitor p8 D 23 '50 150w

"A more matter of fact approach to turbulent times than is usual, a sobriety which has conviction, this is possibly too subdued in its romantic interest (there is no decolletage) for followers of this type of fiction."
Kirkus 18:534 S 1 '50 170w

"Recommended." W. K. Harrison
+ Library J 75:1660 O 1 '50 80w

"A list of boners would not be amusing; but, to pick up a good old phrase, any resemblance between Mr. Delderfield's facts and recorded history is purely coincidental. In his defense be it said that his French is no weirder than Shakespeare's; his spelling of proper names no more capricious than T. E. Lawrence's; his conception of French history sane compared with that of Charles Dickens, and his Parisian topography, strange as it appears, more reliable than Elliot Paul's. This ought to be praise enough for any man." Albert Guerard
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p19 N 19 '50 430w

Reviewed by Robert Hagy
N Y Times p15 D 17 '50 190w

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p705 N 10 '50 240w

DE LEEUW, ADELE LOUISE. Blue ribbons for Meg; il. by Mac Schweitzer. 145p $2.50 Little

50-5455

"Story of a little girl from Boston who goes to stay with cousins on a cavalry post in South Dakota around the turn of the century. A horse of her own and riding lessons from an exacting but kindly soldier help Meg in her adjustment to the new and unexpected world of horses, soldiers, Indians, and miles and miles of prairie. Grades 3-5." Booklist

---

Booklist 46:221 Mr 1 '50

Bookmark 9:214 Je '50 30w

Reviewed by A. L. Shea
Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Je 4 '50 200w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 26:199 My '50 70w

Kirkus 18:236 Ap 15 '50 160w

Reviewed by E. E. Frank
Library J 75:1306 Ag '50 70w

"The style is good, and the pictures are charming. Girls of eight or nine will enjoy it."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p19 My 7 '50 130w

"There is enough about ponies and riding here to satisfy all but the greediest of horse fans, but this is first of all a story about humans, of how one bewildered little girl fits herself into a new life, and a lively, readable story it is, too." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p22 Ap 30 '50 150w

Reviewed by G. C. Castor
San Francisco Chronicle p6 N 12 '50 70w

DELEN, ADRIEN JEAN JOSEPH. Flemish master drawings of the seventeenth century; with an introduction and notes [tr. by Robert Allen]. 90p $3 Harper

741.9493 Drawings

"Just as he dominates the art of his century, so Rubens dominates this handsome little volume. More than one-third of the fifty-seven drawings reproduced are from his hand, while the remaining plates are devoted to the work of Van Dyck, Jordaens, Brouwer, Snyders, Fyt, and Teniers the Younger. They are drawn from galleries and collections throughout Europe. . . A. J. J. Delen, formerly chief curator of the Musee Royal des Beaux-Arts in Antwerp, has provided a short introduction and critical notes for each drawing." Sat R of Lit

---

Booklist 47:77 O 15 '50

Reviewed by A. S. Plaut
Library J 75:1509 S 15 '50 70w

"The publishers offer to the student of modest income art books of very high quality, both in the reproductions and in the accompanying essays." S. L. Faison
+ Nation 171:535 D 9 '50 350w

San Francisco Chronicle p18 N 19 '50 50w

+ Sat R of Lit 33:45 N 4 '50 140w

Wis Lib Bul 46:14 N '50

DE LIMA, SIGRID. Captain's Beach. 228p $3 Scribner

50-5211

A first novel depicting the life in a dreary New York rooming house, situated near the water front. The chief characters are a crippled young book agent, the Mortlock family with whom he rooms, and three pathetic old women who live on the memories of their own past lives, and on the miseries of the present.

DE LIMA, SIGRID—Continued

"Miss de Lima, in her first novel, explores dirt, dullness, dreariness, and social conditions, with the faithful zeal of a Tennessee Williams, but lacks his dramatic fire. . . She does write strongly; her word pictures are vivid. Her overlong description of a dog's sickness and death is graphic, as are similar episodes. But to what purpose is it all?" Enid Sheppard
— + Canadian Forum 30:95 Jl '50 170w

Reviewed by Nelson Algren
Chicago Sun p5 Mr 7 '50 400w

"A first novel, with a certain talent but with little likelihood of attracting general audience."
Kirkus 18:4 Ja 1 '50 160w

"The characterizations are exceptionally fine and there is some very moving writing in this book, but it adds up to very little." Donald Wasson
Library J 75:171 F 1 '50 80w

"This is a compartmentalized novel, lacking any large, over-all design, and reading as if it had been written simply to demonstrate how terrifyingly close the most ordinary daily life is to the abyss. But the awareness of the abyss is communicated." Ernest Jones
+ Nation 170:138 F 11 '50 380w

"Every one of the novel's few characters is graphically presented, is almost as palpable as the overstuffed furniture in the Mortlocks' living room. In style Miss de Lima's writing is lucid, articulate, fine. On rare occasions she resorts—unwisely, I think—to Gertrude-Steinisms to get a particular effect. But for the most part she records her impressions not in such personal perverse use of words but in the total form and content of the novel itself." F. H. Bullock
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 F 5 '50 600w

"The effect, unfortunately, is precisely as though one of those Charles Addams drawings had gotten out of hand, permitting everyone to ad lib to his heart's content. Terrifying as that could be, it's only boring here. It should be added that Miss de Lima's talent (i.e., a way with words) is as obvious throughout as her lack of discipline." C. V. Terry
— + N Y Times p31 F 5 '50 270w

"Miss de Lima draws her characters expertly, but none of them, with the exception of the landlady, has any originality, and the scene goes dead every time the landlady steps out of sight. The writing is painfully studied and even windy, which is a pity, because when Miss de Lima approaches simplicity, as in the account of Mrs. Mortlock's death, she has unusual imaginative assurance and her people all seem better focussed and more interesting."
+ — New Yorker 26:117 F 25 '50 120w

"Undoubtedly there are tenderness and sensitivity in 'Captain's Beach,' an untamed gift for language, an eagerness. It is a first novel of merit, but I think it will be for the greater benefit of Miss De Lima's maturing work if the special accomplishments of the present book are not exaggerated." Edmund Fuller
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:18 F 11 '50 500w

DELISO, OSCAR. Wheat of night. 382p $3.50 Scribner

50-8911

A story of Italy during the decade 1925 to 1935, which saw the rise of Fascist power. The tale is told from the point of view of an Italian-American lad who returns to Italy with his mother, goes to school and is drafted into the army, finally becomes involved in a peasant uprising against the government.

Chicago Sun p12 Ag 15 '50 50w

Reviewed by Edmund Fuller
Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 Ag 13 '50 450w

"Regardless of the book's defects as a novel, it remains a tragic commentary on a dilemma that has been all too often repeated in recent generations. Each exposition of a phase of the ideological warfare confronting mankind has some positive value, especially if it testifies to the great need for alertness and moral courage. In this connection, the picture given here of a small Italian community in rebellion against injustice has a universal application, and it must surely be granted a place in the ever-increasing body of literature examining the great social, economic, and political problems of our day." M. W. Stoer
+ — Christian Science Monitor p9 Ag 19 '50 310w

Kirkus 18:338 Je 15 '50 270w

"De Liso has a genuine talent, as sections of 'Wheat of Night' and 'God's Thumb Down,' an earlier novel, display. . . One can recommend, almost without qualification, the whole section of 'Wheat of Night' which deals with Aldo's life as a dragoon in the Italian cavalry. . . Had there been more of Aldo as a dragoon, and less of Aldo as a champion of the oppressed and as a doomed lover, 'Wheat of Night' would be less of a disappointment, and its concluding chapters would not read as though 'For Whom the Bell Tolls' were being directed by a Russian movie director during the early '20s." Alfred Hayes
— + N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Ag 13 '50 650w

"This is a book whose virtues outweigh its defects. The picture of the reluctant and skeptical south in the toils of fascism is very well outlined and the author has succeeded in getting across the 'feel' of that unhappy period of Italian history. Further, 'Wheat of Night' is a novel, whatever its shortcomings may be, concerned with things of real significance to humanity; its intent is serious and its intensity commands our respect." T. G. Bergin
+ — N Y Times p4 Ag 13 '50 320w

Reviewed by William Hogan
San Francisco Chronicle p20 Ag 13 '50 800w

" 'Wheat of Night' is a brilliant successor to Oscar DeLiso's first notable novel, 'God's Thumb Down.' Again there is an inexhaustible fund of characters, and events, which crowd each other but do not jostle, and a style which converts the prosaic into the poetic, so that the writing is of a high, creative order. . . Evident in Mr. DeLiso's first novel were minor shortcomings that should have been avoided in his second book; but still present are tendencies to ramble without holding overflow material in check and to be unnecessarily melodramatic on occasions." Siegfried Mandel
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:9 Ag 12 '50 600w

DELMAR, MRS VINA (CROTER). About Mrs. Leslie. 301p $2.75 Harcourt

50-6147

The scene of this Grand Hotel novel is a Beverly Hills rooming house. In the course of one day Mrs Leslie, the owner, loses all her roomers. Flashbacks of the lives of Mrs Leslie and each of her roomers are given, showing why that particular day was a turning point in several lives.

Booklist 46:309; 335 Je 15 '50; Jl 1 '50

"Miss Delmar examines her tawdry specimens minutely, and certainly makes the reader share her conviction that life, especially on the wrong side of Wilshire Boulevard, is bleak. But minute study, Beverly bleakness and Mrs. Leslie's slightly askew pontifications fail to convince the reader that the novel deals with reality. Miss Delmar's Fifties are as concocted as her Twenties." Mary Sandrock
— Cath World 172:75 O '50 240w

" 'About Mrs. Leslie' is extremely readable, pleasantly dramatic, and it could be made into an excellent movie. . . The characters are alive and unforgettable—Mrs. Leslie being one of the most human persons you'll ever meet." R. L. Blakesley
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Jl 9 '50 370w

Kirkus 18:70 F 1 '50 170w

"This will perhaps rent—it's fairly lively reading for extremely bored housewives; but it could hardly be recommended as literature." Anne Whitmore
Library J 75:560 Ap 1 '50 70w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 Je 25 '50 350w

Reviewed by Bosley Crowther
N Y Times p24 Je 25 '50 650w

"Someone has said that the test of a good novel is the length of time a reader remembers it. Mrs. Leslie and her roomers have staying qualities; they are passing you silently a thousand times on every street, but they have been made articulate now." Josephine Lawrence
+ Sat R of Lit 33:12 Jl 1 '50 500w

DEL SOLAR, MRS CHARLOTTE (FEHLMAN). Parents and teachers view the child; a comparative study of parents' and teachers' appraisals of children. 119p $3 Teachers college

136.7 Child study

"The purpose of this study is to clarify the educational goals that parents and teachers seek for their children. This was accomplished by a comparative study of parents' and teachers' appraisal of the assets, satisfying qualities, weaknesses, shortcomings, and needs of individual children. Information was also sought concerning children's attitudes toward home and school. Thirty-six elementary school children and their parents and teachers were used in this investigation." (J Home Econ) Brief bibliography. No index.

"Of particular interest to curriculum workers, teachers, and school people generally, [this book] will meet a felt need of parents. The investigators in the studies have opened up areas which have long been neglected, and they have also laid a firm foundation for additional work." W. J. Moore
+ El School J 50:477 Ap '50 950w

"This book should be especially helpful for those directing research in child development and for graduate students in that field." A. M. Scarborough
+ J Home Econ 42:458 Je '50 150w

DE LUBAC, HENRI. See Lubac, H. de

DEL VAYO, JULIO ALVAREZ. See Alvarez del Vayo, J.

DELVES-BROUGHTON, JOSEPHINE. Heart of a queen [Eng title: Crown imperial] (Whittlesey house publication) 558p $3.50 McGraw

Elizabeth, queen of England—Fiction
50-6562

Historical novel based on the life of Queen Elizabeth. The three loves of Elizabeth's life, according to the author, were her love for England, for Dudley, and for Essex. Around these motivating factors the story of her life is written.

Booklist 46:275 My 1 '50

"Well, this is something like! Something like that is to say, what an historical novel ought to be. I do not say that it is the best novel that has been written about Queen Elizabeth. I doubt that it achieves quite the literary quality of the series upon which Margaret Irwin is currently engaged. But there is not much contemporary fiction that makes more utterly absorbing reading." Edward Wagenknecht
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Mr 19 '50 550w

" 'The Heart of a Queen' comes perhaps as close to definitive biography as a novel can. Equipped with a bibliography, with a genuinely historic cast and plot, and studded with authentic letters, conversations, and speeches, its resemblance to a Lytton Strachey biography is notable. Yet still it is impossible to say, 'This was Elizabeth,' but only 'This must have been she.' " Ruth Chapin
+ Christian Science Monitor p6 Mr 25 '50 1200w

Kirkus 18:108 F 15 '50 150w

"[Miss] Delves-Broughton has related [Elizabeth's] inner life at every point to the intrigues and pageantry of her reign. But the love-starved woman she discovers behind the regal façade never quite convincingly steps out of the brilliant tapestry she has woven about her." H. I'A. Faussett
Manchester Guardian p4 Jl 22 '49 240w

Reviewed by Rayner Heppenstall
New Statesman & Nation 38:705 D 10 '49 260w

"In structure 'The Heart of a Queen' is less a drama than a glittering biographical pageant with dignity of intent. I would say that Josephine Delves-Broughton has written a biographical novel which does superbly many of the things a good biography should." Richard Match
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Mr 26 '50 500w

" 'The Heart of a Queen' might have been profitably shortened in a few places but it is good reading, and commands respect because of the careful workmanship that has gone into it." C. W.
+ N Y Times p17 Ap 9 '50 180w

"A scholarly, happily polished, exciting, richly incidented, and honestly portrayed picture of Elizabeth's reign. . . The novel is not 'literature,' I suppose, but it is extraordinarily good reading just the same." V. P. Hass
+ Sat R of Lit 33:19 Ap 8 '50 750w

Springf'd Republican p12C Je 4 '50 180w

"This imaginative but not fanciful life of Queen Elizabeth is convincing in the picture it paints of her as sacrificing all other considerations to her devotion to her people, and to her people's devotion to her."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p485 Jl 29 '49 360w

Wis Lib Bul 46:20 Jl '50

DE MARTELLY, MRS MARGARET M. Cross country horses; equitation. 121p il $2.50 Finch & McCullough, 80-84 S. LaSalle st, Aurora, Ill.

798.2 Horsemanship

"In this book Mrs. de Martelly, who had many years of training under cavalry officers of Fort Riley, Kan., sets forth the methods by which one can become an expert horseman." Chicago Sunday Tribune

Booklist 47:91 N 1 '50

"A concise, clearly written manual combining a comprehensive explanation of technical horsemanship with material to make it an excellent teacher's guide and drill manual." Alden Powell
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ap 16 '50 140w

DEMBY, WILLIAM. Beetlecreek. 223p $2.50 Rinehart
50-5374

Character sketch of Bill Trapp, an elderly white man who had lived a solitary life for fifteen years in the Negro section of a rural southern town. A Negro from Pittsburgh goes to see Bill and introduces him to the other people nearby. Gradually Bill comes out of his shell, but ugly rumors spread, and in time what had promised to be a release for Bill leads to tragedy.

"A curious reluctance or inability to take a firm grasp on essentially dramatic material has marred an earnest—and in many respects effective—novel. It is Demby's first book, and it may well figure as the laudable beginning of a brilliant literary career." Jack Conroy
+ — Chicago Sun p6 Mr 23 '50 170w

"It is skilfully done. Mr. Demby is by no means heavyhanded, nor does he belabor scenes or characterizations; his people are credible, their actions likewise, and his story has evenness of pace, whatever it may lack in significance and depth. As a first novel, 'Beetlecreek' offers something different in its situation; competently and well done, it may give many readers pause to reflect that people are fundamentally very much alike, regardless of color, which is a basic truth far too many people need to learn." August Derleth
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 F 12 '50 450w

Kirkus 17:674 D 15 '49 290w

DEMBY, WILLIAM—Continued

Reviewed by Ernest Jones
Nation 170:138 F 11 '50 380w

"The characters in the novel are real and troubled individuals, who bear no relation to the standard types of current fiction. However, Mr. Demby's novel has a curious lack of force which dulls what he is trying to say. His incidents are too slight, and the suffering of his characters wanders out of the focus of his plot. Obviously a talented and sensitive writer, Mr. Demby has unfortunately failed in this first novel to give successful dramatic form to his ideas."

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p13 F 12 '50 370w

"The fault of this book is that it does not hang together; it lacks a central focus. Yet William Demby, a young Negro writer, has succeeded in this, his first novel, in illustrating the sufferings of both Negroes and whites under the present system of race relations. His sensitivity and fine poetic style mark him as a writer of promise. 'Beetlecreek' is worth reading for those who want to know more about Negro-white relationships in the back-country Southern town." Horace Cayton

+ — N Y Times p4 F 26 '50 350w

"It would be hard to give Mr. Demby too much praise for the skill with which he has maneuvered the various relationships in his book. At times, one has the feeling that he simply set the scene and named the characters, and let them carry on alone from there, so naturally and inevitably does their story develop to its ending. Mr. Demby's trouble is his style, which is strained and self-conscious, but his people are strong enough and fully enough realized to survive even worse faults of writing."

+ — New Yorker 25:93 F 11 '50 160w

" 'Beetlecreek' is a well-written story marred by a dangling conclusion that leaves too many unresolved crises." K. B.

San Francisco Chronicle p18 Mr 5 '50 70w

"A story possessing a unique and original flavor of its own is offered us by William Demby, a new writer of distinct ability and quality. It succeeds remarkably well with certain delicate and difficult relationships, barely skirting sentimentality—the kind of thing Saroyan and Steinbeck sometimes have mangled horribly. But it has strength and range beyond this single aspect, as well." Edmund Fuller

+ Sat R of Lit 33:17 Mr 4 '50 550w

Reviewed by Harry Hansen
Survey 86:156 Mr '50 210w

DE MILLE, MRS ANNA ANGELA (GEORGE). Henry George, citizen of the world; ed. by Don C. Shoemaker; with an introd. by Agnes de Mille. 276p il $3.50 Univ. of N.C. press

B or 92 George, Henry 50-6148

The life story of the author of Progress and Poverty, Henry George. The biography is by one of his daughters, now deceased. Index.

Reviewed by Broadus Mitchell
Am Hist R 56:216 O '50 310w

"The style is simple and the choice of incident effective. In addition to the interest of a tale well told, the reader is rewarded by a very vivid picture of one of America's greatest economists. One does not have to be a follower of Henry George to enjoy it." Mabel Newcomer

+ Ann Am Acad 271:203 S '50 320w

Booklist 46:245 Ap 1 '50

"It captures, as no other book by any other author could, many facets of George's personality. Mrs. de Mille was careful to stay close to facts. . . Many of her facts, of course, could be known only to a member of the subject's immediate family. No amount of library work could reproduce this book. And almost any other writer would have been far more free with interpretation and judgment than was Mrs. de Mille. . . Publication of this loving and unsentimental biography of a good man is a public service." A. C. Ames

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Mr 19 '50 450w

Reviewed by Roland Sawyer
Christian Science Monitor p14 Mr 18 '50 1000w

Reviewed by Emerson Hynes
Commonweal 52:612 S 29 '50 650w

Current Hist 18:228 Ap '50 40w

"A competent, scholarly approach, of limited interest."

+ — Kirkus 18:153 Mr 1 '50 220w

"Recommended for large public libraries." H. A. Bernt

+ Library J 75:563 Ap 1 '50 100w

"No one who reads Anna De Mille's book can fail to develop a different sort of respect for Henry George, and something more than respect. For this woman has worked a minor miracle: she has created in her readers genuine affection for—of all things—an economist!" G. W. Johnson

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Mr 26 '50 1200w

Reviewed by R. L. Duffus
N Y Times p35 Ap 16 '50 800w

New Yorker 26:110 Ap 1 '50 120w

"For generations who have never heard of the Single Tax or its creator, and for those to whom Henry George is but a name buried in a paragraph of history this should prove a fascinating introduction to an author whose works and ideas caught the imagination and roused the fervent devotion of an incredible number of people all over the world." C. W. Weinberger

+ San Francisco Chronicle p19 Mr 19 '50 750w

Springf'd Republican p8C Ap 30 '50 210w

DEMING, WILLIAM EDWARDS. Some theory of sampling. 602p $9 Wiley

311.22 Sampling (statistics) 50-8810

"Practically everyone is familiar with door-to-door 'surveys' designed to produce statistical data of interest to some individual or organization. . . In this book, the basic theory is discussed, but most of the space is given to such practical questions as sources of error and how to avoid those that would invalidate the findings of the survey, selection of the size of the 'universe' to be surveyed, planning the practical details of surveys, and interpreting the results. Two actual examples of surveys that produced useful data are described in detail." (Library J) Index.

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 75:1300 Ag '50 130w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:70 S '50

DEMUS, OTTO. Mosaics of Norman Sicily. 478p 120pl $18.50 Philosophical lib.

729.7 Mosaics. Sicily. Christian art and symbolism [50-13111]

"A massive and monumental opus discussing four groups of religious pictures, all done in one medium (mosaic), all dating from one period (the 12th century), and all located in one area (in or near Palermo, Sicily). These are described in detail, and 120 plates present to the reader's eye an almost complete survey of the surviving examples of this type of Byzantine art that were created in a part of Italy then under the rule of Norman kings." (Christian Century). Indexes.

"This is an immensely important body of material in the history of art, and it has a place also, though a less important one, in the history of religion." W. E. Garrison

+ Christian Century 67:1331 N 8 '50 900w

Reviewed by A. S. Plaut
Library J 75:2078 D 1 '50 100w

"It is gratifying that the first complete account of the most impressive body of Norman art to be published in this country should be the thank-offering of an Austrian refugee for the shelter and help given him by British scholars and institutions. Dr. Demus's choice of the Sicilian mossaics as his subject permits him to bring into play his vast knowledge of western and Byzantine art, of political and ecclesiastical history, and of Latin and Greek theology. The mere description and reproduction of virtually every detail of thousands of square feet of the largest and best-preserved interior decorations of the twelfth century would alone deserve grateful acknowledgment; but in addition Dr. Demus has provided a searching analysis of all their artistic, iconographic and historic aspects."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p259 Ap 28 '50 1000w

DEMUTH, NORMAN. César Franck. 228p $4.75 Philosophical lib.

B or 92 Franck, César Auguste 50-5059

A study of the life and works of Cesar Franck, which is the first book on Franck to be written by an English author. "The composer is placed against the background of his contemporaries and his time, and his works are critically examined and analyzed." (Publisher's note) The author is composer and lecturer on music. Bibliography. List of Franck's works. Index.

Reviewed by W. P. Tryon
Christian Science Monitor p6 Je 17 '50 240w

Cleveland Open Shelf p19 O '50

"Libraries that make any attempt to cover the history of French music will need this monograph. . . It is, nevertheless, an annoying book; the syntax and literary style are by no means above reproach and there are errors of fact and instances of questionable judgment." C. K. Miller

Library J 75:321 F 15 '50 100w

"It is good to have Norman Demuth's book on César Franck for a reasoned and unbiased view of the composer had long been wanted if only as a corrective of the loving but too wildly ecstatic biography produced years ago by Vincent d'Indy. Though even Mr. Demuth rates some of the music above its deserts, his account is in the main a just and carefully balanced one." G. A. H.

+ Manchester Guardian p3 Mr 22 '49 150w

"The British critic, Norman Demuth, has taken up the cause of César Franck with an enthusiasm which is often infectious. . . The list of works at the end is probably the most complete so far published, and will prove extremely useful since it gives composition dates and publishers where possible, distinguishes between published works and those still in manuscript, and clears up questions of conflicting opus numbers." F. C. Campbell

+ Music Lib Assn Notes 7:298 Mr '50 440w

"A full and balanced reassessment of Franck's music is a felt need, but readers who hope to find one in the indefatigable Mr. Demuth's latest offering will be disappointed. . . With care and intelligence a scholarly critic might make of this subject a study of considerable value. But enthusiasm is not enough, and Mr. Demuth's methods of advocacy are not calculated to win converts for Franck's music." Edward Sackville-West

— + New Statesman & Nation 38:102 Jl 23 '49 490w

"Mr. Demuth has written a study of Franck's music (something of an adoration) which is the first important work in English to be added to a relatively small bibliography. While the book devotes scarcely more than thirty pages to Franck's life, it manages to shed light on hitherto murky details. . . As a result the composer emerges a more credible human being." Moses Smith

+ N Y Times p38 N 27 '49 180w

"In spite of some hit-or-miss writing Demuth's book often itself survives by a happy carelessness, a sort of slang gusto. . . But Demuth's book, often helter-skelter, sometimes ungrammatical, ends with a true and happy insight." D. G. Mason

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:31 Ap 1 '50 230w

"In his warm appreciation of Franck's best music and his championship of even the admittedly unequal the author does a great service to a composer whom a school of French critics declare to have been the creation of his pupils. He is very much less successful in his attempt to explain Franck's character and its effect upon his work. The book is very colloquial in style and inspired by a general enthusiasm rather than the spirit of scholarship."

Spec 182:526 Ap 15 '49 70w

"In spite of the interesting material that he has collected and his obvious enthusiasm for Franck's music, Mr. Demuth writes in such a slipshod way and is content with such muddled and superficial thinking on the problems raised by Franck's character, that his picture of the composer is not likely to displace that drawn by d'Indy. No lover of Franck's music—indeed, no intelligent person—will want to substitute for the idealized Pater Seraphicus Mr. Demuth's nice old man who was really a very good sort ('and never un religieux in the fullest sense of the term') in spite of his strange beliefs and all his churchgoing."

— + Times [London] Lit Sup p196 Mr 26 '49 480w

DENKER, HENRY. My son, the lawyer. 278p $3 Crowell

50-5416

Young David Brown did not want to take the time or the money to become a professional man but his mother, socially and economically ambitious, used all her wiles to force him to become a lawyer. When, to give her the best of care, he gets into trouble, she dies without being told of his disbarment, and he is free to start life anew.

Booklist 46:335 Jl 1 '50

"As an attorney, I must admit that I heartily enjoyed those portions dealing with law school, the bar examination, and the practice of law. But a novel must do more than arouse reminiscences in a specialized section of its readers, and 'My Son, the Lawyer,' with a weakling for its central character, too many shopworn by-paths, and little cohesion, never excites more than momentary interest." W. M. Kunstler

— + Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Mr 5 '50 400w

Christian Science Monitor p8 My 13 '50 100w

Kirkus 17:678 D 15 '49 150w

Reviewed by Anne Whitmore
Library J 75:399 Mr 1 '50 70w

"'My Son, the Lawyer' is Mr. Denker's second novel. In story texture and theme, it is quite a few narrative levels above 'I'll Be Right Home, Ma.'"

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 F 19 '50 270w

"This is an oft-told and lifeless tale, done by a practicing radio writer in the kind of primitive, flat-wheeled prose once aptly described as the 'monotonous declarative.'" Leon Dorais

— N Y Times p41 Mr 19 '50 150w

"Compared to Mr. Denker's first novel, 'I'll Be Right Home, Ma,' his second one is much better. His first book contained only 'characters.' Here, at least, we have pieces of people." Robert Mende

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:27 Mr 18 '50 650w

DENNISTON, ELINORE (RAE FOLEY, pseud). Bones of contention. 214p $2.50 Dodd

50-5156

Mystery story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun p6S Ja 13 '50

"Elements of suspense effectively knitted into plot of violence and surprise."

Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 Ja 29 '50 50w

"The plot of this one is somewhat obvious, but both characters and writing are likeable."

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 F 12 '50 150w

DENNISTON, ELINORE—Continued
"The plotting and detection are nothing to stir the envy of other professionals (in fact, they're rather below the standards of Miss Foley's own last novel), but many a more renowned writer might envy the unpretentious likability which the author manages to infuse into an essentially routine story." A. B.
+ — N Y Times p22 Ja 22 '50 90w

Springf'd Republican p6C Ap 9 '50 120w

DENNISTON, ELINORE (RAE FOLEY, pseud). The hundredth door. 246p $2.50 Dodd 50-8781

Detective story.

Reviewed by Drexel Drake
Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 Ag 13 '50 50w

"A slim mystery with a good deal of emphasis on romance."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Ag 6 '50 190w

"A great deal of what goes on is tied to the earlier murder—and since that event is too sketchily motivated to be completely credible, most of the rest becomes less than credible, too." E. B.
N Y Times p25 Ag 6 '50 150w

"Somewhat involved and improbable, but readable enough."
New Yorker 26:76 Ag 12 '50 130w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p13 Ag 27 '50 50w

DENNY, MARGARET, and GILMAN, WILLIAM H., eds. American writer and the European tradition [by Louis B. Wright and others] pub. for the Univ. of Rochester. 192p $2.75 Univ. of Minn.

810.9 American literature—History and criticism 50-13091

"Twelve essays by scholars whose diversity of background and special interests sharpen by contrast the reader's perception of that nebulous entity, 'native American literature', in relation to the cross-currents of our necessarily European heritage and later influences." Kirkus

Atlantic 186:101 N '50 160w

"Never fully measures up to its promising title. It is a symptomatic rather than a significant work." Theodore Kalem
Christian Science Monitor p6 O 14 '50 1050w

"Recommended without qualification for the scholarly market."
+ Kirkus 18:446 Ag 1 '50 180w

"A rewarding volume. Unlike much of the learned criticism that our academies so copiously produce, most of these essays are not limited in their appeal to the producer of learned criticism. Most of them have something stimulating to say to any layman seriously interested in American culture—any layman, that is, who is not a literary patrioteer content, as Henry James put it, 'to glow belligerently with his country.'" C. J. Rolo
+ N Y Times p4 S 17 '50 850w

DENNY, NORMAN, comp. See Yellow book (periodical). A selection.

DENVER POST. Rocky Mountain empire; revealing glimpses of the West in transition from old to new, from the pages of the Rocky Mountain empire magazine of the Denver post; ed. by Elvon L. Howe; with a foreword by Palmer Heyt. 272p $3 Doubleday

917.8 Rocky mountains. Frontier and pioneer life—West 50-4620

A collection of twenty-nine short stories or feature articles chosen from the Sunday supplement of the Denver Post. They were selected to demonstrate the pioneering qualities of the people of Colorado, Wyoming, New Mexico, Utah, Idaho, Arizona, Montana, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, and Texas.

Booklist 47:11 S 1 '50

Reviewed by V. P. Hass
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Jl 23 '50 410w

"Regional journalism at its readable best. Local color as brilliant and distinctive as this region's topography and personalities."
+ Kirkus 18:321 Je 1 '50 100w

Reviewed by J. E. Brown
Library J 75:976 Je 1 '50 140w

"To me their accomplishment is first rate, as illuminating to regional people like myself as to those unfamiliar with this area." T. H. Ferril
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Jl 16 '50 800w

Reviewed by R. L. Neuberger
N Y Times p18 Ag 13 '50 270w

"Both because of the nature of its contents, which make easy and lively reading, and because taken together these stories do what the editor intends them to do—reveal the West in transition from old to new—it should find a wide audience." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 Jl 10 '50 700w

Sat R of Lit 33:39 Ag 5 '50 140w

DENVIR, BERNARD. Chardin. See Chardin, J. B. S.

DE RIENCOURT, AMAURY. See Riencourt, A. de

DERLETH, AUGUST WILLIAM, ed. Beyond time and space. 643p $4.50 Pellegrini & Cudahy

Short stories—Collections 50-7958

"Collection of science fiction shorts. . . The stories are arranged chronologically to trace the development of both form and content from Plato's account of the fabled Atlantis through Lucian, Rabelais, Bacon and on to the better known fathers of this type of fiction—Jules Verne and H. G. Wells—and outstanding modern writers." Kirkus

Booklist 46:336 Jl 1 '50

"A minor regret is that Derleth has not seen fit to credit translators (with the exception of Chicago's Everett F. Bleiler, who offers the first English version of Kepler's important 'Somnium') nor to indicate the context from which some of the earlier works are excerpted. But he has produced an anthology which henceforth will be essential to the smallest library in the field." Anthony Boucher
+ Chicago Sun p5 Jl 23 '50 300w

"All in all, Mr. Derleth's new anthology is marked by soundness of taste and firmness of conception. It will make new friends for science-fiction, and will remind some enthusiasts that this fiction is not an invention of the present generation." Milton Crane
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 Jl 16 '50 450w

"For those who enjoy fantastic stories of adventure with technical spice requiring no more knowledge than is familiar to every partaker of a high school course in general science, this book will be a worth-while investment. Nor will it be out of place in the library of the connoisseur of literature, since many of the works reproduced in these 643 pages have hitherto been available only as collectors' items." H. B. Nichols
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Jl 11 '50 550w

"Some fans will find the historical bits tough reading but all should profit from this relation of a modern interest to the entire stream of literature; and all will enjoy the tales by contemporaries." M. C. Scoggin
+ Horn Bk 26:398 S '50 70w

Kirkus 18:184 Mr 15 '50 100w

"The present collection of science fiction stories appears to be the best selection of its kind thus far assembled. . . The editor also contributes a sensible and informative historical introduction, and useful preliminary bio-critical notes." E. F. Walbridge

+ Library J 75:774 My 1 '50 110w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p13 Ag 13 '50 50w

"More than half the thirty-four tales in this excellent collection are by twentieth century practitioners. . . As in every anthology, there may be stories which the individual reader will not find to his taste, but the overall excellence of the stories selected is a measure of Mr. Derleth's ability as an editor." Villiers Gerson

+ N Y Times p12 Jl 2 '50 230w

"A valuable collection." Don Fabun

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 My 14 '50 150w

"Mr. Derleth gives us a few doses from Plato, Rabelais, Swift and Sir Thomas More before plunging into the pulps and it is rather a pity that with so broad a base he could not have offered a better selection." Fletcher Pratt

Sat R of Lit 33:32 Je 17 '50 80w

Wis Lib Bul 46:28 Je '50

DE ROOVER, RAYMOND ADRIEN. Gresham on foreign exchange; an essay on early English mercantilism with the text of Sir Thomas Gresham's memorandum: For the understanding of the exchange. 348p pl $6 Harvard univ. press

332.45 Gresham, Sir Thomas. Foreign exchange. Mercantile system 49-6339

"This book sets out to publish an anonymous sixteenth century English memorandum on foreign exchange from a copy of it in the Kress Library at the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration. Another copy exists in the English Public Record Office and has been utilized by students of the subject. Dr. de Roover's first problem as he saw it was to date the document and to identify the author. Both of these he succeeds in doing from internal evidence. He demonstrates very convincingly that the memorandum was prepared early in the reign of Elizabeth, before the recoinage of 1560, and that its author was almost certainly Sir Thomas Gresham. With these points established, Dr. de Roover proceeds to discuss the English coinage and to explain the intricacies of international exchange. Before he has finished he has provided an introduction of 287 pages for a document which fills only 18 pages." (Am Hist R) Bibliography. Index.

"No scholar will regret that [Dr de Roover] has gone into the matter at such length. International exchange in the sixteenth century in England has long been full of obscurities, arising in part from the disposition of contemporary writers to preserve an air of mystery about it and in part from somewhat foggy notions about it which have characterized most modern commentators. . . Dr. de Roover's account is admirably clear." Conyers Read

+ Am Hist R 55:413 Ja '50 390w

"The study is carefully done, clearly written, and interestingly presented. It should be of value not only to students of money and international finance but as well to those interested in the history of economic thought."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:475 D '49 210w

DERSO, ALOIS, and KELEN, IMRE. United nations sketchbook; a cartoon history of the United nations [pub] in association with United nations world. 96p $2.85; de luxe ed $10 Funk

341.13 United nations (organization). Caricatures and cartoons 50-7603

Caricatures of diplomats and their activities in the United Nations, from the opening in San Francisco in 1945 to the laying of the cornerstone for the permanent headquarters in New York city in 1949.

Bookmark 9:208 Je '50 30w

Reviewed by Carlyle Morgan

Christian Science Monitor p7 My 6 '50 700w

"The book is sprightly, impudent and much more revealing than some of the windy press and radio pap that bores the world and causes it to lose faith in the U. N." R. F. Crandell

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Ap 30 '50 550w

"On the whole, the ideas embodied in the cartoons are perceptive, the program notes amusing and the heads of many of the diplomats shrunk to just about the right size." D. D.

+ N Y Times p30 Ap 30 '50 140w

Reviewed by J. T. Winterich

Sat R of Lit 33:17 Je 24 '50 310w

DESAI, A. R. Social background of Indian nationalism. 432p $7.50 Oxford

954 India—Nationality

"Dr. Desai's thesis conclusion is that a united, independent India with a socialist economy might be able to deal adequately with the accumulated foci of crises represented in Indian nationalism, but that the chances for the complete realization of these aims are small at the present time. For a starting point in his study, he presents a brief survey of pre-British Indian economy and culture. He then traces the impact of British rule on this social structure, covering a number of analytic categories including the transformation of agriculture, the decline of the town handicrafts and village artisan industries, the development of modern industry and transport, the evolution of modern education, new social classes, and others. Each chapter is treated as a unit indicating a phase in the development of Indian nationalism, but all are interwoven to form parts of the general thesis." Am Pol Sci R

"A valuable addition to the India library. . . It is a carefully executed dissertation containing a wealth of specific references and an excellent bibliography." R. L. Park

+ Am Pol Sci R 44:207 Mr '50 750w

"Whatever its deficiencies, this is an important contribution to historical sociology and to the literature dealing with the interrelations of nationalism, religion, and social reform in the former colonial areas." Daniel Thorner

+ — Am Soc R 14:690 O '49 1450w

DE SALES, FRANCIS, SAINT. See Francis de Sales, Saint.

DE SALZA, ANDRE. Touring Italy in 1950; a Holy year guide; produced under the editorial direction of David Marshall. 197p maps pa $1.75 Cocee press, 9 Barrow st, N.Y. 14

914.5 Italy—Description and travel 50-5389

Guidebook to Italy designed for those who are visiting that country during the Catholic church's Holy Year Jubilee. "The author assumes the traveler is actually on the go and that his time is short. He packages his itineraries so that a traveler with only 15 days in Italy can skim across the republic's principal attractions. If you have longer, the book is equally helpful. It leans heavily on Rome and the Vatican. . . Maps and descriptions of what you pass en route are right at hand." (San Francisco Chronicle)

"Presents data intelligently chosen and well arranged; and there is no padding. Rome and Florence get large folding maps. The other city maps are too crowded to be easily legible. All in all the book is well worth the price."

+ Cath World 170:480 Mr '50 80w

"Among the spate of travel books about Italy which have been brought out in connection with the Holy Year, this is one of the best we have read so far." L. J. Wollemborg

+ Commonweal 51:587 Mr 10 '50 280w

Reviewed by C. M. Cianfarra

N Y Times p32 Ap 2 '50 130w

DE SALZA, ANDRE—Continued

San Francisco Chronicle p19 Ja 29 '50 270w

"Mr. De Salza is going to cost somebody a lapful of lire. He has evolved a new guidebook method which is going to make the cab drivers, carriage drivers, and gondoliers of Italy the happiest, if not the richest, chauffeurs on the Continent." H. S.

Sat R of Lit 33:41 F 25 '50 140w

DESCHIN, JACOB. Say it with your camera; an approach to creative photography. (Whittlesey house publication) 230p pl $3 McGraw

770 Photography, Artistic 50-5358

"The thesis of this latest Deschin photography book is ' . . . having something to say should be the principal motivation in creative photography.' The author stresses that the photographer must project his own personality into his work. He must have 'understanding, intention and technique . . . the components of expression.'" (San Francisco Chronicle) Index.

Reviewed by Meyer Berger
N Y Times p27 F 5 '50 150w

San Francisco Chronicle p20 Mr 26 '50 230w

DE SCHWEINITZ, DOROTHEA. Labor and management in a common enterprise. 186p $3 Harvard univ. press

331.152 Employees' representation in management. World war, 1939-1945—Economic aspects 49-5570

"Based primarily on the wartime experience of joint labor-management production committees sponsored by the War Production Board, this book summarizes the principles and procedures applicable to peacetime labor relations, and the problems to be surmounted. In seven chapters the author sets forth the general characteristics of the joint production committee, the wartime experience as it affected specific procedures and the functions of management and unions, the 'basic problems' of union-management cooperation, and the hopeful conclusion that joint committees lead to cooperation and industrial peace, given reasonableness on all sides." U S Quarterly Bkl

"In this volume Miss de Schweinitz has made a real contribution to the growing literature on the subject of union-management cooperation. . . This is a book to be recommended to all serious students of industrial relations." N. W. Chamberlain

+ Am Econ R 40:228 Mr '50 750w

"This book, dealing with labor-management production committees, contains the most satisfactory exploration of their performance and potentialities since the analysis of several prominent plans of the late thirties by Slichter in Union Policies and Industrial Management." R. C. Sorensen

+ Ann Am Acad 267:229 Ja '50 550w

Reviewed by Winifred Baum
Chicago Sunday Tribune p16 Mr 19 '50 70w

Reviewed by Clark Kerr
J Pol Econ 58:369 Ag '50 650w

"This evaluation, although thorough and worthwhile, is based on a somewhat dubious set of assumptions." R. H. U.

San Francisco Chronicle p26 N 6 '49 250w

"This book is a valuable and heartening addition to the meager literature on labor-management production committees. Its limitations are that its analysis is confined primarily to the experience in World War II. And because it is a 'fellowship' research project, the entire statement is dispassionate and objective to the point of being almost colorless in its exposition. Considering the factors of hurry, emergency, unpreparedness, reluctance, and meager prior experience which proposals for this type of activity within war plants encountered, it is surprising that the total record is as impressive and constructive as it is." Ordway Tead

+ — Survey 86:212 Ap '50 440w

"The book will probably be of primary interest to students of industrial relations, but may also prove of value to the practitioners of them."

U S Quarterly Bkl 5:515 D '49 220w

DE SEVERSKY, ALEXANDER P. Air power: key to survival. 376p il map $3.50; pa $1 Simon & Schuster

358.4 Aeronautics, Military. U.S.—Defenses 50-14963

It is De Seversky's theory that peace can be maintained only by an invincible American air armada. The author takes issue with much of the modern military thinking on that score, and urges the immediate creation of such an air force. Index.

Booklist 47:70 O 15 '50

Reviewed by J. H. Thompson
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 O 8 '50 900w

Current Hist 19:357 D '50 50w

Kirkus 18:324 Je 1 '50 190w

"The reader should be careful in this provocative but loosely written and often redundant book, to separate fact from fiction; reason from non sequitur. However, clear-thinking citizens should be interested in the major problem raised by Major de Seversky: How can the free world with its limited man power best use its technology against the massed armies of the Soviet world?" O. R. Reid

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 S 24 '50 2200w

"This book is essentially 'Victory Through Air Power' brought up to date. The author is beating the same drums, and he has much the same disdain for the views of those who do not agree with him. In this reviewer's opinion, 'Air Power: Key to Survival' is a better book than the earlier work; it demonstrates again the author's vision, as well as his visionary 'wild-blue-yonder' bias. . . Not that this reviewer agrees, by any means, with the burden of his book. . . Still, when all is said, Mr. Seversky's support of the intercontinental air fleet has real validity—not, in this reviewer's opinion, as the sole or even the primary agent of victory in the immediate future, but as a vastly important deterent to war." H. W. Baldwin

N Y Times p6 S 24 '50 2150w

San Francisco Chronicle p22 N 26 '50 900w

"Maj. de Seversky's views undoubtedly will be challenged by many, since the general trend in this country seems to be toward a balanced war machine, giving about equal weight to land, sea, and air arms. . . In any event, his new book is well worth a thoughtful reading by everyone who is interested in the future of this country and the world." H. H.

+ Springf'd Republican p6D O 8 '50 850w

DESGREY, ARTHUR H. Camping; a guide to outdoor safety and comfort. 171p il $3 Ronald

796.54 Camping Agr50-466

"This manual is offered as a handy, practical guidebook to camping in safety and comfort. Its chief purpose is to help inexperienced campers, and those who are going on their first real camping trip, to learn both what to do and how to do it. . . While the primary purpose of the manual is to help smooth the camper's trail, it is further intended to meet the needs of camp directors and counselors as well as leaders of recreational centers and outdoor clubs who have the responsibility of planning and supervising camp trips." Pref

Reviewed by Bob Becker
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 N 5 '50 70w

"An excellent, handy, practical guide by Asst. Faculty Manager of Athletics at C.C.N.Y." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 75:1906 N 1 '50 40w

School & Society 72:206 S 23 '50 20w

DESMOND, SHAW. Edwardian story. 356,25p il $3.50 Macmillan

914.2 Great Britain—Social life and customs. Great Britain—History—Edward VII, 1901-1910 [50-2031]

Reminiscences of Edwardian England by an Irish-English author best known for his writings on the Irish theater. The book is illustrated with photographs of well-known people of those days, especially actors and actresses. Index.

Reviewed by Leila Flower
Christian Science Monitor p12 Jl 31 '50 600w

"Prospective readers of Mr. Desmond's book should be warned that it contains a nearly priceless collection of illustrations: it has Mr. Desmond as a child on his mother's lap and a slender Winston Churchill on his wedding day; a coy Tetrazzini seated at the piano; a wistful silent Melba, her eyes looking beyond us and her chin resting on her left hand. . . Perhaps the best of Mr. Desmond's rarities in an Edwardian gallery is Dan Leno, the great clown, dressed as 'The Second Mrs. Twankeray.'" Horace Gregory
+ N Y Times p3 Jl 16 '50 600w

New Yorker 26:104 S 30 '50 100w

"Sometimes the clichés, the judgments, the attitudes are so exactly right for the period, for a crusty, whimsical old codger who was once an Edwardian dandy and a radical Edwardian Socialist, that one suspects a deliberate counterfeit, an elaborate Irish leg-pull. Against this view we have the evidence of style." Garrett Mattingly
Sat R of Lit 33:16 Jl 15 '50 800w

Times [London] Lit Sup p320 My 26 '50 550w

DESSART, GINA. Last house. 239p $2.50 Harper

50-9033

The scene is a New England village. On a night in December Cindy Hastings, the village outcast, is murdered. Suspicion falls on a member of the Armande family, and the gossip mongers spread all kinds of rumors. The effect of the murder on the minister, Cindy's harsh aunt, the Armandes, the girl who loves the accused, and her best friend, all are traced in the few days it takes the police to capture the murderer.

Booklist 47:12 S 1 '50

Chicago Sun p4 S 12 '50 80w

Kirkus 18:342 Je 15 '50 90w

"Gina Dessart has tried to combine a novel with a mystery background, but the violent emotions of her characters do not seem justified, and the mystery is not sustained."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 S 10 '50 180w

"The author gives an intimate, knowledgeable picture of a small town stripped of all glamour. She knows the psychological paths that twisted minds take and she explores the reasons realistically and presuasively. 'The Last House,' though it deals with death, is neither thriller nor whodunit. It is a novel in the true sense, built effectively on the quirks of human nature." Anne Richards
+ N Y Times p20 Ag 20 '50 230w

DE STENDHAL, pseud. See Beyle, M. H.

DE TOLEDANO, RALPH, and LASKY, VICTOR. Seeds of treason; the true story of the Hiss-Chambers tragedy; pub. for Newsweek. (Newsweek bkshelf) 270p $3.50 Funk

351.74 Hiss, Alger. Chambers, Whittaker. Communism—U.S. 50-6693

An account in book form of the trials of Alger Hiss. "Ralph de Toledano, of Newsweek, and Victor Lasky, of the New York World-Telegram and The Sun, covered the case for their respective journals. In this work they have dug into the past and have tried to reconstruct the strange and tangled story which reached its melancholy consummation a few months ago in Foley Square." (Sat R of Lit)

"From the storytelling standpoint, Seeds of Treason is an exciting book. It is very far removed, however, from the dispassionate, probing, and wonderfully illuminating reports that Rebecca West turned in on William Joyce, John Amery, and the other British traitors. What Lasky and Toledano have given us is, more or less avowedly, something of a pamphleteering job." C. J. Rolo
— + Atlantic 185:80 My '50 800w

"Do not conclude from the title that this book is run of the mill. From the journalist's point of view it is a fine professional job. . . From the reader's point of view it is a delightfully readable presentation of all the evidence required for the forming of a fair judgment on a most puzzling case. . . To many, its outstanding excellence consists in the clear light it throws on the process by which an heir of the American tradition is turned into a traitor to his country. The coupling of liberalism with irreligion spawns truly monstrous and loathsome characters."
+ Cath World 171:160 My '50 170w

"There is little dull reading here. How could anything about the Hiss-Chambers case be dull? Even the fancy writing, a compound of Sunday supplement sensationalism and quaint rhetoric, isn't bad enough to obscure the essential drama. 'Seeds of Treason' is worth looking into, but it is not likely to resolve your doubts about the Hiss-Chambers affair.'" Herman Kogan
Chicago Sun p5 Ap 6 '50 700w

"This is not only a fascinating tale of espionage and intrigue in the '30s; it is an intelligent, informed, and provocative survey of a singular era when some American office-holders seemed more concerned about the interests of soviet Russia than those of their own country. The book is definitely not 'the first complete account of the greatest trial of our time' as a jacket blurb proclaimed. The two trials of Hiss, which consumed some three months of court hearings, occupy, in fact, only the last 42 of 270 pages. But the remainder of the work is intensely absorbing." Willard Edwards
+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ap 9 '50 450w

"Seeds of Treason is one of the first of what will, I suppose, be a rash of books on the Hiss-Chambers affair. Almost inevitably such books will be compared with The Meaning of Treason, Rebecca West's tour de force. Few books can stand such a comparison; certainly the present one cannot. Rebecca West plumbed depths of motivation; this book rarely penetrates surface appearances. Rebecca West wrote about people of substance, clothed in flesh and blood; Seeds of Treason is largely filled with shadowy cardboard figures. The Meaning of Treason is told in memorable prose; Seeds of Treason is pure journalese, often rather closer to the tabloids than to the Times." James O'Gara
— Commonweal 52:48 Ap 21 '50 1600w

Reviewed by P. V. Farrell
Commonweal 52:583 S 22 '50 650w

Foreign Affairs 29:150 O '50 30w

Kirkus 18:233 Ap 1 '50 210w

Manchester Guardian p4 N 7 '50 100w

Nation 170:409 Ap 29 '50 150w

Reviewed by Merle Miller
New Repub 122:18 My 8 '50 1450w

Reviewed by R. H. S. Crossman
New Statesman & Nation 40:481 N 18 '50 950w

"The book which is the subject of this report is . . . a 'quickie' job. . . Long before the second trial began [the authors] had their book under way. . . Thus their book is an example, at least, of prodigious effort in the publishing field. There is, however, a large question as to whether that prodigious effort was worth while. In the opinion of this reviewer, it was not. . . There is an element of irresponsibility in the book; it pretends to be more than it is, and therein lies its fault." John Desmond

DE TOLEDANO, RALPH—Continued
— N Y Times p6 Ap 2 '50 850w

"What we are given is something of an apologia pro vita sua. As such, it is convincing. . . The authors' style is invincibly maladroit and their treatment lacks the austerity the subject deserves, but the book provides rough notes for part of the tragic history that will someday be written of our time."
New Yorker 26:74 Jl 8 '50 160w

"As far as the trials themselves go, Toledano and Lasky have done a fairly good job. But, unfortunately, their failures with the book as a whole far outweigh their successes. 'Seeds of Treason,' therefore, is important only because it is the first book-form presentation of the perjury trials. Undoubtedly, cooler heads are even now planning other volumes on the same material, and if this material is not cut on the bias, so much the better." Edith James
— + San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ap 9 '50 600w

"What is one to make of this story? The authors of 'Seeds of Treason' do not seek to conceal their sympathy with Chambers. They overstate their case, it seems to me, in several particulars. Yet I cannot but feel that the main lines of their reconstruction are convincing. . . 'Seeds of Treason' is a work of journalism, not of history nor of the deeper psychology." Arthur Schlesinger, Jr.
Sat R of Lit 33:21 Ap 15 '50 2250w

Reviewed by Max Beloff
Spec 184:584 N 24 '50 90w
Time 55:98 Je 19 '50 170w

DEUTSCH, ALBERT. Our rejected children. 292p $3 Little 364.36 Juvenile delinquency. Reformatories 50-8848

"Late in 1947 I started on a journalistic survey of juvenile delinquency. I visited a number of institutions for delinquent children, from coast to coast. Following a pattern set in an earlier investigation of state mental hospitals I confined my field work mainly to the 'best' states—those ranking among the highest in wealth and culture. . . My institutional visit was necessarily brief, usually, but in each instance it was preceded and followed by extensive interviews with staff personnel and with local experts. . . The project began as a single article, an institutional survey for the Woman's Home Companion. It developed into two articles for that magazine, supplemented by two lengthy series of newspaper articles—and finally, into this book." (Introd) No index.

Booklist 47:5 S 1 '50

Reviewed by Ed Orloff
Chicago Sun p5 Ag 20 '50 200w

"The jacket blurb suggests that this is the book for parents, teachers, social workers, psychiatrists, judges. It is also a book for preachers or plain people who are willing to find rejected children and give them the attention, love and security that will make the difference between delinquency and good citizenship." Evelyn Luchs
+ Christian Century 67:1050 S 6 '50 900w

"The material is forceful and fascinating."
+ Kirkus 18:325 Je 1 '50 210w

Reviewed by J. M. Scherr
Library J 75:1286 Ag '50 140w

"Mr. Deutsch is an able and conscientious reporter. He writes with indignation and compassion." Frances Witherspoon
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ag 6 '50 1000w

Reviewed by M. R. Brown
N Y Times p21 Ag 6 '50 420w

"A straightforward and very depressing study."
+ New Yorker 26:122 S 9 '50 140w

Reviewed by Keith Kay
San Francisco Chronicle p17 O 29 '50 600w

"This is a fearless book. It is a strong book written with deep social indignation. For its author has made himself a champion of the rejected children in our institutions. As researcher and social investigator, Albert Deutsch knows how to get the facts. As journalist he knows how to dramatize them and to make us listen." L. T. Stern
+ Sat R of Lit 33:16 S 2 '50 800w

"Albert Deutsch, a great social reporter, has written a stirring book, a strong book, which must be read." L. T. Stern
+ Survey 86:463 O '50 900w

DE VEGH, GEZA, and MANDI, ALBER. Craft of ceramics. 145p il $4.75 Van Nostrand
738.1 Pottery 49-11801

"A series of lessons in logical sequence covers the simple but fundamental techniques of the ceramic art—clay working, mold making, and the decoration of ceramic objects. Numerous photographs and line sketches amplify and further clarify the procedures given, so that the actual appearance of ceramic objects at the various stages and the methods employed therein are more readily understood." (Pref) Glossary and list of supply houses. Index.

Booklist 46:186 F 1 '50

"It is one of the simplest, clearest and most helpful books for the beginner that has been written on any subject." Carolyn Stull
+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 F 5 '50 260w

"Geza de Vegh and Alber Mandi answer questions most frequently asked by their beginner pupils in the field of ceramics. The book is especially helpful to those who crave to create and do not want too involved a route to follow. It is not enough to finger through the pages and let it go at that, however. The ideas advanced must be put into practice." R. T.
+ Springf'd Republican p8C N 13 '49 130w

DEVINE, STEWART. Even in death. 221p $2.25 Doubleday
50-6840

Detective story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun p5 Ap 21 '50 60w
Kirkus 18:148 Mr 1 '50 150w

"A characterless and unconvincing yarn, which relies too heavily on family history."
— N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p24 My 14 '50 160w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
N Y Times p35 Ap 30 '50 140w

"In spite of its occasionally breathless manner, an ingenious and generally satisfactory piece of work."
+ New Yorker 26:124 Ap 8 '50 130w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p16 Ap 9 '50 110w
Sat R of Lit 33:61 My 6 '50 50w
Wis Lib Bul 46:29 Je '50

DE VOTO, BERNARD AUGUSTINE. World of fiction. 299p $3.50 Houghton
808.3 Fiction—Technique 50-6694

"Mr. DeVoto has undertaken a study of the facts of fiction: Why people read novels, and how and why people write them. . . Preconceptions are challenged; toes are trodden on; some currently fashionable schools of criticism are taken for a bumpy ride." N Y Herald Tribune Bk R

Booklist 46:331 Jl 1 '50

"Brisk, stimulating examination of the relationship between the writer of a novel and its reader, dealing with the psychological basis of fiction and its techniques."
+ Bookmark 9:208 Je '50 30w

Reviewed by Paul Engle
Chicago Sunday Tribune p13 Ap 23 '50 450w

Reviewed by Horace Reynolds
Christian Science Monitor p7 Je 3 '50 1100w

Cleveland Open Shelf p10 My '50

Current Hist 19:39 Jl '50 30w

"For the student of the fiction form of literature, this has a challenging contribution to make. Mr. DeVoto will seem, at times, dogmatic; often his conclusions, and the steps by which he reaches them, are controversial. But there's meaty reading here, for those interested in his analytical approach to the role of reader, the role of writer, and the techniques and skills demanded today for the writing of fiction."
+ Kirkus 18:119 F 15 '50 280w

"Recommended for all collections, and essential reading for those who deal with books and people." Shirley Barker
+ Library J 75:557 Ap 1 '50 100w

"The difficulty in appraising this book is that it is not a study nor an argument but a point-of-view, a series of personal convictions tied together by much experience, some logic, and boundless fervor. To dismiss it or acclaim it is not a matter of rigorous thought but of the sentimental attachment one may or may not form to the author." Charles Spielberger
New Repub 123:20 Jl 24 '50 1000w

Reviewed by DeLancey Ferguson
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Ap 9 '50 950w

"Bernard DeVoto has, by internal evidence, thought and read a great deal in and about 'the world of fiction.' He wrote, some will remember, an excellent novel, 'We Accept With Pleasure.' He is an experienced editor and writer and a Pulitzer Prize winner in history. He had been a critic, an essayist, a teacher of literature. One would not need to know all this about him, for it is clear from this book alone that he has thought and read a great deal about fiction, is familiar with what its contemporary practitioners are writing and its contemporary critics thinking. He knows his way round, too, in the fiction of the past." Irwin Edman
+ N Y Times p5 Ap 9 '50 900w

"Written in a breezy, lowbrow style that does everything possible to make one suspicious of the author's fitness to deal with his subject, this short book is nevertheless an exceedingly fruitful study of what the novel is, or can be, and of the novelist as a craftsman."
+ — New Yorker 26:108 Ap 29 '50 120w

"Writers, I have no doubt, will use this book; there is so much wisdom and clarity and plain horse-sense in it that they should. But, as the author intended, it is frankly a book for the reader of fiction. Such readers will gain much from it. Many of them will even discover fiction all over again in a new way, and will be grateful to the directing hand that showed them how." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 Ap 14 '50 900w

"The book inevitably suffers from having been assembled from a variety of times and places. The preface insists that the work has 'a single, deliberately limited and clearly defined purpose.' Yes and no. The book is really a three-in-one package. . . The special virtue of Mr. DeVoto's discussion, it seems to me, lies not so much in the asseveration of a Freudian principle of art as in Mr. DeVoto's clear recognition of the precise area in which the principle works." H. M. Jones
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:46 Ap 15 '50 1100w

"Naturally, Bernard DeVoto is literate, but he is also intelligent, intellectual and enthusiastic, which creates a melding of the qualities most necessary for fine appreciation of the art of fiction." L. S. Munn
+ Springf'd Republican p12C My 21 '50 490w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:150 Je '50 240w

Wis Lib Bul 46:16 Ap '50

DEWEY, EDWARD R., and DAKIN, EDWIN FRANDEN. Cycles; the science of prediction, with 1950 postscript: Further deflation and its promise. 255p $3.50 Holt

338.54 Business cycles 49-50180

"Sets forth the theory that economic rhythms are regular and predictable, and indicate probabilities ahead in business and prices. First issued in 1947, now expanded by the 52-page postscript preceding the main text." (Booklist) For earlier edition see Book Review Digest 1947.

Booklist 46:201 F 15 '50

Reviewed by Winifred Baum
Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 Mr 5 '50 40w

Reviewed by J. E. Cross
Library J 74:1824 D 1 '49 90w

DEWEY, JOHN, and BENTLEY, ARTHUR FISHER. Knowing and the known. 334p $4 Beacon press

121 Knowledge, Theory of 49-48030

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

"Since the book is largely concerned with the methodological and terminological foundations for a behavioral theory of knowledge, it is perhaps not a criticism to say that it contains almost no descriptions of actual processes of knowing. It is more pertinent to doubt whether even the proposed terminology is yet sufficiently developed to permit such descriptions. For behavior is regarded by the authors as always involving signs, and yet the criterion for a sign is left very vague indeed." Charles Morris
Ann Am Acad 268:224 Mr '50 400w

Reviewed by W. K. Wright
Crozer Q 27:182 Ap '50 250w

"The critical chapters are sometimes biting, always enlightening. Chapter I is pitilessly concrete in exposing inconsistencies and inadequacies in the terminology and thinking of such authorities in the field of logic as Rudolf Carnap, Morris R. Cohen and Ernest Nagel, C. J. Ducasse, C. I. Lewis, and Charles W. Morris. Not all readers will agree, however, that the implicit reference of these logicians to the mind or to a 'mental operator' is a 'malignant orientation,' yet no one interested in clear and consistent thought can fail to profit by reading this chapter or the pungent Chapter IX, A Confused 'Semiotic.' The reinterpretation of Mr. Dewey's thought is provocative. . . Contentious though it be, the book should be read by those who are interested in philosophy."
+ — U S Quarterly Bkl 6:29 Mr '50 260w

DEWEY, THOMAS B. Mourning after. 220p $2.50 Mill

50-8971

Detective story.

"Highspeed action with tough and glamorous performers in exploit of fascinatingly eccentric sleuth." Drexel Drake
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 Ag 13 '50 50w

Kirkus 18:289 My 15 '50 70w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 Ag 20 '50 90w

"The author apparently cannot make up his mind whether he is being influenced by the eccentric characterization and formal deduction of Rex Stout, or the sensational sex-cum-sadism peddled by Mickey Spillane." Anthony Boucher
N Y Times p11 Jl 30 '50 110w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
— San Francisco Chronicle p13 Ag 27 '50 50w

Springf'd Republican p8B Ag 27 '50 90w

DE WOHL, LOUIS. Imperial renegade. 311p $3 Lippincott

Julian the Apostate, emperor of Rome—Fiction 49-49642

Historical novel about the time of Julian the Apostate in the fourth century. It begins when Julian is in the monastery where he received his Christian education, and follows his career thru his return to paganism, and his death during the war against the Persians.

"A sincere, carefully detailed historical novel of a fourth century attempt to stem the rising tide of Christianity. . . With its neat interlayers of theological debate, adventure, historical references and then more adventurous exploits, this novel is interesting from many angles." Mary Sandrock

+ Cath World 170:475 Mr '50 250w

Reviewed by Edward Wagenknecht

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ja 22 '50 300w

"Cecil B. de Mille probably will love it, but this reviewer got confused and a little bored." Anne Whitmore

— Library J 75:43 Ja 1 '50 70w

"Battles that can actually be followed and understood, intrigue, treachery of the most appalling order, the young love of Julian and Helena, these are enough to provide an interesting and exciting story. But beyond this, Mr. de Wohl presents a conflict of ideas at a crucial period in western civilization. . . Louis de Wohl has written a fast, vivid story and managed to make the intellectual conflicts and the development of a dictator as exciting and stimulating as any of his scenes of adventure." Lorine Pruette

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 Ja 29 '50 700w

"Though Mr. de Wohl's commendable zeal for authenticity clutters his portrait of Julian with a great many theological, philosophical and dialectical details, the Emperior emerges as a sincere man of unusual gifts, and a seeker after truth. The love story of Julian and Helena, his beautiful and ambitious cousin, comes off second best to the story of Julian's struggle to restore the worship of the gods and suppress Christianity." Charlotte Capers

+ N Y Times p27 Ja 22 '50 150w

"From the first page to the last the novel reeks with brutality and evil, with lust and horror. The period is more or less accurately portrayed, though it is doubtful if many persons who were living then were conscious of such lurid venom as prompted a master to beat out his faithful slave's eyes with a thonged whip, or of endless other such incidents with which the book is packed." J. C.

Sat R of Lit 33:31 Mr 4 '50 220w

DE WOHL, LOUIS. Quiet light. 317p $3 Lippincott

Thomas Aquinas, Saint—Fiction 50-8449

Historical novel based on the life of St Thomas Aquinas. The Emperor Frederick II is one of the chief characters and the life in castle and monastery in the thirteenth century forms the background.

Booklist 47:12 S 1 '50

"Though The Quiet Light sheds little insight into either Thomas or Thomism, it makes agreeably active reading." Mary Sandrock

+ Cath World 171:474 S '50 200w

"Perhaps the most serious objection that can be brought against Mr. de Wohl is that he uses—though not nearly to the same extent as Lloyd Douglas in The Robe and The Big Fisherman—a certain number of inappropriate bits of American slang, made all the quainter by being interlarded with medieval Italian oaths. On the other hand, the author is surprisingly good whenever he touches on theology or philosophy, so far as I can judge." Theodore Maynard

+ — Commonweal 52:493 Ag 25 '50 350w

"The descriptive passages and the characterizations are good. Recommended." R. P. Breaden

+ Library J 75:1290 Ag '50 80w

"Catholics will be particularly interested in the book, as the subject was suggested to Mr. de Wohl by the Pope, but the story of St. Thomas's life from the time he came to the monastery of Monte Cassino as a child of five, asking 'What is God?' is so extraordinary in itself that a popular version of it will be read with interest by anyone who has not already gained the information from more austere authorities." Elizabeth Jenkins

+ Manchester Guardian p4 Mr 3 '50 110w

Reviewed by Lorine Pruette

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Ag 20 '50 800w

"Historical novels are not noted for their accuracy, but Louis de Wohl's new book must be criticized for lowering the standards. In the interests of providing a counterfoil for his main characters, he gives us as biased a portrait of the Hohenstauffen Emperor, Frederick II (1194-1250), as you are likely to see. . . Aside from this, 'The Quiet Light' is, at best, run of the mill. . . It suffers throughout from the fact that the author has created no living character except Thomas Aquinas. That great intellectual saint alone comes to life from the printed page." T. C. Chubb

— + N Y Times p11 S 3 '50 180w

"This tale of great thoughts and great deeds in the thirteenth century is pleasant enough to read, if one has time for superficial costume pieces; but, because of the nature of his medium and the character of his probable audience, the author can only skirt the arena of intellectual action in which his hero won immortality and sainthood. And what is Thomas of Aquino without his thought? Not himself, certainly." B. R. Redman

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:13 Ag 26 '50 800w

"Mr. de Wohl has indeed produced a fluent and picturesque tale. But the atmosphere of the stage property-room is just a bit too thick now and then, and is not really suited to a potted version of Thomist philosophy." R. D. Charques

+ — Spec 184:350 Mr 17 '50 80w

"The attempt to give a compendious account of St. Thomas's philosophy in the course of a novel is an ambitious one; but the author has reached a compromise whereby the average reader will probably be edified without too great a strain. When not concerned with religious matters, the book tells a lively and sufficiently romantic story, marred by oddities of grammar and too many misprints."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p133 Mr 3 '50 170w

DEWOLF, LOTAN HAROLD. Religious revolt against reason. 217p $2.50 Harper

201 Religion—Philosophy. Reason 49-10389

"A description, analysis and evaluation of the revolt of modern religious thinkers [especially Niebuhr, Barth, and Brunner] against reason." (Christian Century) Index.

"Theology in America has a new voice, one that speaks with marvelous clarity and consistency. This first published book of L. Harold DeWolf's may well have in theology the epochal significance that Arthur O. Lovejoy's Revolt Against Dualism had in philosophy. . . This reviewer eagerly awaits the completion and publication of the author's volume on systematic theology, which is reported to be in the writing stage. For if fault is to be found with this book, it is for its brevity. Still, the author has performed exceedingly well the limited task he set himself, and he has exposed the skeletal outlines of theistic immanentalism, to which he adheres and upon which all his arguments depend." R. E. Gilmore

+ Christian Century 66:1294 N 2 '49 1250w

"Truth to tell, this book should have been constructive and systematic rather than polemical. In a very suggestive concluding chapter on 'Reason and Faith,' the author too briefly shows his powers. . . Actually the book attempts to try the case against reason. . . No one should dissent from this book's laudable aim: 'What is needed is both more reason and more faith, combined in the same people.' How this is to be effected at the present stage of thought has yet to be shown." Paul Ramsey

J Religion 30:231 Jl '50 750w

"This is a book for Protestant theologians and others interested in current theological discussions. While many would not agree with the writer's main contention, it is a clear and fair presentation of what might be called the 'liberal' point of view."
+ Kirkus 17:542 O 1 '49 180w

"None of the three modern theologians dealt with will relish being classified together as 'neo-orthodox,' for sharp differences have developed among them. Nevertheless, label them as one will, there are certain doctrines which they hold in common and most of them go back to Kierkegaard for their inspiration. . . The author is quite appreciative of the contribution being made to religious thought by these theologians, and concentrates on the one basic criticism—the denial to reason of its rightful place." K. D. M.
Sat R of Lit 33:44 F 18 '50 150w

"A timely and needed book, this is a readily understandable answer to Kierkegaard. . . The book, of value to the general reader, is a defense of reason in religious belief; it is also a useful manual for the student and minister who wish to be informed concerning the issue between neo-orthodoxy and philosophy."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:29 Mr '50 220w

DE YOUNG, CHRIS ANTHONY. Introduction to American public education. 2d ed 676p il $4.50 McGraw
370.973 Education—U.S. 50-8568

"An over-all view of public education, planned for prospective teachers. The book, originally published in 1942, appears to have been brought up to date, and has new material on changes brought about by World War II." Booklist

Booklist 47:77 O 15 '50

"Retains the qualities of thorough coverage of the subject, clarity of presentation, helpfulness of study aids, and excellence of illustrations." W. W. Brickman
+ School & Society 72:215 S 30 '50 180w

DICKENS, MONICA. Flowers on the grass. 293p $3 McGraw 50-9410

Disconnected episodes in the life of one Danny Brett, an English artist.

Bookmark 10:32 N '50 20w

"In this novel, Miss Dickens surely leaves flowers in the grass for her readers. The fragrance will linger." Olive Carruthers
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 S 17 '50 500w

"Miss Dickens writes with a warm sympathy and refreshing discernment. She can be devastating in her picture of some worlds: the 'progressive' school which in the name of freedom tolerates anything at all; or the artificial, sophomoric gaiety of a holiday camp."
+ Christian Science Monitor p6 O 7 '50 300w

Reviewed by E. S. Skillin
Commonweal 52:589 S 22 '50 190w
Kirkus 18:430 Ag 1 '50 150w

Reviewed by Norman Shrapnel
Manchester Guardian p4 D 2 '49 50w

"Monica Dickens is a keen observer, and is able to create with skillful economy a whole group of well realized individuals. Like her famous greatgrandfather she hates the false and the fatuous, and she has her own swift, sure talent for exposing them. Her book, written on a high level of entertainment, presents a vivid picture of English life today. But above all it is alive, witty, and fun to read." Doris Schneider
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 S 17 '50 450w

"Miss Dickens laughs her way through a story which might well be called Inside England, but her laugh, like her grandfather's, has no sneer in it. In her latest novel she presents a cozy, preposterous, comical England which makes one forget the harsh crudities of the austerity regime. Yet the poignancy of her description is no less effective because it stems from a gracious, witty view of life." Nancy Lenkeith
+ N Y Times p5 S 17 '50 450w
New Yorker 26:121 S 23 '50 60w

"The chapters, each a new encounter for Daniel, could almost be read separately. Highly recommended to anyone with a taste for or curiosity about that admirable and multifarious people—the English." Patricia Highsmith
+ Sat R of Lit 33:54 O 7 '50 320w

"Danny is an agreeable character, irresponsible at times to the verge of the sinister, and his adventures make entertaining reading. Presented, however, in such a haphazard fashion, they have even less shape and give less impression of a character in process of development than if they had been told in conventional picaresque form."
Times [London] Lit Sup p821 D 16 '49 310w

DICKENSON, FRED. Kill 'em with kindness. 210p $2.50 Bell 50-8254

Detective story.

"A heavy-handed plot, but the dialogue is light and in spots amusing."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 Jl 16 '50 140w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p14 Je 18 '50 90w

"Not quite credible but good fun."
Sat R of Lit 33:42 Je 17 '50 30w
Springf'd Republican p8B Ag 13 '50 180w

DICKSON, CARTER, pseud. See Carr, J. D.

DIEKHOFF, JOHN SIEMON. Democracy's college; higher education in the local community. 208p $2.50 Harper
378 Colleges and universities 50-5904

A discussion of the aims and purposes of the local public colleges now functioning in some two hundred and fifty American communities, their historical background, methods of financing, administration, etc., and their relationship to the development of healthy democracy. Index.

Kirkus 17:619 N 1 '49 110w
School & Society 71:63 Ja 28 '50 50w

"Short as the book is, it packs many sensible observations on collegiate education and useful administrative suggestions." W. W. Brickman
+ School & Society 72:150 S 2 '50 350w

"This should be a valuable reference book to everyone in the field of education." H. S. Neal
+ Springf'd Republican p8C Mr 19 '50 110w

DIETERLE, WILLIAM (WILLIAM SIDNEY, pseud). Good tidings. 370p $3 Farrar, Straus
John, Saint, the Baptist—Fiction 50-8688

Novel based on the life and times of John the Baptist. Altho John dominates the book, the influence of the Messiah is felt in the novel, and He appears toward the end.

"'The Good Tidings' is hardly fiction of power, but it is much less a pastiche than biblical novels are wont to be. Mr. Sidney achieves a comparatively independent line of development. He cuts a very wide swath—too wide, perhaps, and involving too many briefly or intermittently glimpsed characters—to achieve the full power of which his theme was capable." Edward Wagenknecht
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Jl 9 '50 420w

DIETERLE, WILLIAM—Continued

"Sometimes there is a slowing of pace of story, as the author injects extraneous material and takes poetic license with the mood of story. But there's so much that is new, so much that demands interest, that the book as a whole is worth special attention. Some readers may feel a lack of emotional quality in either story or characters, but the lively sense of shared history will compensate for most."

+ — Kirkus 18:283 My 15 '50 250w

"Colorful details make characters in this novel of Bible times distinctively alive. . . Recommended." R. P. Tubby

+ Library J 75:1045 Je 15 '50 80w

"William Sidney has handled the brief appearances of the young carpenter from Nazareth with an excellent quiet sympathy, but he is less successful with the enigmatic character of John the Baptist. . . John and Salome appear to be psychiatric cases at one moment, serious in character the next. The touch of epilepsy in John, the more than a touch of nymphomania in Salome made it difficult to accept Salome's attempt to save John from being beheaded. But it must be admitted that William Sidney has given a new twist to the dance of Salome and the end of John." Lorine Pruette

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Je 18 '50 470w

"William Sidney writes a terse, limpid prose and can evoke the feeling of drama, the mood of suspense that must have animated everyone who lived through those stirring, tragic, yet hopeful times in ancient Judea. . . Nevertheless, 'Good Tidings' as an imaginative work grounded in the facts and mythology of ancient history has a number of faults. In the dialogue such contemporary Americanisms as 'I guess,' 'hanging around,' and so on, disturb the mood and mar the portrait of an ancient society. Ignorance of Talmudic law and of ancient Jewish customs abounds." Philip Rubin

+ — N Y Times p22 Je 18 '50 230w

"This is by no means the first literary portrait of the Baptist nor is it a particularly notable addition to the gallery already known to us. . . The material on which 'The Good Tidings' is based is enormously dramatic and might be intensely effective. But it demands a creative and original power far beyond anything which comes to light in this novel." Pamela Taylor

Sat R of Lit 33:13 Jl 1 '50 600w

DIGBY, MARGARET. Horace Plunkett; an Anglo-American Irishman. 314p il $3 Macmillan

B or 92 Plunkett, Sir Horace Curzon [50-2283]

Biography of Sir Horace Plunkett, the Irish agricultural reformer, who "is remembered in this country chiefly as mediator between the Irish and English factions in the last years of Eire's struggle for political independence." (N Y Times) Between the years 1879 and 1889 he lived in the United States, on a ranch in the foothills of the Rockies, and it was on this experience that his understanding of the United States was based. Index.

"Plunkett was a man of the head rather than the heart, and his biography is true to his life. . . In Miss Digby's pages, whether it is the fall of Parnell, World War I, the Easter Rebellion, or even the burning of Kilteragh by the republicans, one never feels the vital immediacy of the flaming moment as one finds it, for example, in the turbulence of O'Casey's autobiography. Plunkett did not stir men's souls, although he lived a more useful life than many who did." F. R.

+ Christian Science Monitor p6 F 25 '50 800w

"In an introduction to this book Dr. W. G. S. Adams ranks Horace Plunkett as 'the greatest man I have known'—and Dr. Adams has known many great men, among them Lloyd George. This book brings to light some of the less commonly known aspects of the man and his work and enables us to understand Dr. Adams's verdict. . . Certainly this book shows clearly that Plunkett early recognized that America was destined soon to take the leading part in world affairs. And it did not stop there. He foresaw, too, the spread of the doctrines of Socialism and the coming of a struggle for equal opportunities for all and for a classless society." J. T. Gwynn

+ Manchester Guardian p4 D 20 '49 650w

"A biography that is as straightforward, honest and meticulous as its subject." E. B. Garside

+ N Y Times p10 Ja 29 '50 450w

"His career, as described by Miss Digby, will surprise many who half remember his mixed reputation and will be followed with attention by anyone curious about Anglo-Irish and Anglo-American relations."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p102 F 17 '50 950w

DILLIARD, MAUD ESTHER. Wishing boy of New Netherland; il. by Albert Orbaan. 187p $2.50 Dutton

50-9299

Story for grades four to six about a small boy and his younger brother and sister living in Achterveld, Long Island, in the seventeenth century.

Booklist 47:102 N 1 '50

Christian Science Monitor p11 N 18 '50 30w

"Entertainment value struggles with scholarly period detail and wins, for once, in this superior family story set in 17th century New York."

+ Kirkus 18:559 S 15 '50 130w

"Gives a good picture of the customs and clothes of the period and shows that children in those days longed for the same things they do now; security, affection, and companionship. The relationships between the individuals in the home could serve as a fine model for families today. . . Recommended." C. W. Field

+ Library J 75:1513 S 15 '50 80w

"In easy flowing prose Miss Dilliard recreates a period, meticulously accurate in detail. In that period she sets a warm family story that will not seem alien to any modern child." N. B. Baker

N Y Times p60 D 3 '50 150w

Wis Lib Bul 46:22 N '50

DISNEY, DORIS MILES. Fire at will. 217p $2.25 Doubleday

50-7588

Detective story.

"Well set up and deeply snarled puzzle solved sketchily." Drexel Drake

Chicago Sunday Tribune p7 Jl 9 '50 60w

Kirkus 18:149 Mr 1 '50 70w

"Homely and pleasant, with more emphasis on character than on mystery."

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 Je 11 '50 170w

"O'Neill is still attractive, both as a professional and as an individual. However, the case which O'Neill must solve (family skeletons and buried treasure) is below the high Disney standard." A. B.

— + N Y Times p26 My 14 '50 120w

"An active piece, but somewhat disorganized, and certainly a disappointment coming from Miss Disney, who has previously done some very tidy jobs."

— + New Yorker 26:123 My 6 '50 150w

"A pleasant little murder set in Connecticut." E. D. Doyle

+ San Francisco Chronicle p21 My 7 '50 120w

DIVINE, ARTHUR DURHAM (DAVID RAME, pseud). King of Fassarai. 296p $3 Macmillan

50-5877

The natives of Fassarai had given up all hope when the United States Navy took over. The Japanese had taken all the young people, leaving only the very old and the very young, and to them life had no meaning. The novel describes one man's effort to put new hope into this group of dignified but hopeless natives.

Booklist 46:194; 219 F 15 '50; Mr 1 '50

"A shallow but agile enough tale that you might find entertaining if you are not supersaturated with war stories of the South Pacific. This novel has a Saturday-Evening-Post briskness about it and was published in that magazine under the title of 'The Doctor of Unknown Island.' "
Cath World 171:154 My '50 200w

Reviewed by Fanny Butcher
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Mr 5 '50 650w

Cleveland Open Shelf p8 Mr '50

"The humor here, some of it is masculine, the naivete of these natives, and the central character, all have a definite appeal."
+ Kirkus 17:679 D 15 '49 180w

"Told with feeling and much humor." Donald Wasson
+ Library J 75:318 F 15 '50 100w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Mr 19 '50 260w

"At times touching and exciting, and the author's descriptive writing helps the book pleasantly on its way. But it takes too much plotting to keep the story moving in a sterile sea of self-conscious Navy and medical talk." Edward Stansbury
+ — N Y Times p41 Mr 19 '50 220w

San Francisco Chronicle p21 Mr 26 '50 220w

Reviewed by Edmund Fuller
Sat R of Lit 33:17 Ap 29 '50 500w

Reviewed by W. R. Manchester
Springf'd Republican p10C My 14 '50 180w

Wis Lib Bul 46:24 Mr '50

DIXON, HARRY VERNOR. Something for nothing. 240p $2.75 Harper

50-5657

In which Gil Devon, handsome but a rotter, with his eye always on money, almost gets his heart's desire, only to have it snatched away from him at the last minute.

Booklist 46:89; 219 N 15 '49; Mr 1 '50

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun p6 Mr 8 '50 50w

Reviewed by Henry Cavendish
Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Mr 12 '50 550w

Kirkus 17:676 D 15 '49 130w

"A story with powerful suspense and an ironically startling finish. Inevitably—as the publishers claim—it is reminiscent of the James Cain stories. But in making the comparison it should be noted that Mr. Cain has the edge on writing style, while Mr. Dixon is the winner for a truly surprising plot."
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p19 Mr 5 '50 180w

"In spite of Vernor Dixon's fluent style and gift for metaphors, his first novel is no more than ordinary. 'Something for Nothing' is just another one of those thrillers wherein melodramatic effects are exploited to the hilt." Robert Elkon
N Y Times p35 F 19 '50 180w

"This one has a good deal of the quality that made James M. Cain's 'Double Indemnity' so satisfying."
New Yorker 26:120 F 25 '50 120w

San Francisco Chronicle p14 F 19 '50 250w

Sat R of Lit 33:28 My 13 '50 130w

Springf'd Republican p8C Mr 19 '50 70w

Times [London] Lit Sup p705 N 10 '50 300w

DOBBS, ROSE, ed. Once upon a time; twenty cheerful tales to read and tell; il. by Flavia Gág. 117p $2 Random house

50-7172

The chief purpose of these stories is to entertain. The book consists of three parts: Ever Old, Ever New; Why and How; and Just for Fun. "Six of the stories have been retold by Miss Dobbs; among them are 'The Pine Tree,' 'The Little Bee' and 'The Wise King.' From other sources she has chosen Wanda Gág's translation of 'Clever Elsie' from the Brothers Grimm and 'The Princess Whom Nobody Could Silence' from the Braekstad translation of Asbjörnsen." (Horn Bk)

Booklist 46:291 My 15 '50

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun p5 Jl 25 '50 60w

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin
Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Ag 13 '50 100w

Cleveland Open Shelf p22 D '50

Reviewed by A. C. Moore
+ Horn Bk 26:98 Mr '50 140w

"Well printed and quaintly illustrated, these cheerful tales are sure to give entertainment to little children in the home as well as in the story hour." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 26:284 Jl '50 70w

"Excellent bed time reading with the stories short but with dramatic values and a gay charm. Good material for story telling too."
+ Kirkus 18:96 F 15 '50 70w

"A knowledge of source material and a sure sense of selection distinguish this collection for younger children by a former children's editor. Miss Dobbs has developed a real ear for the rhythmic pattern of the folk tale and a respect for the simplicity of its plot. As a result, this collection has a lighthearted gaiety that is altogether fresh and inviting—to younger readers and story-tellers alike." Eulalie Steinmetz
+ Library J 75:986 Je 1 '50 80w

"The large type and merry pictures will appeal to eight or nine-year-olds to read alone. The telling could be done for any group over four. Parents will like to hold its pleasant shape, and will feel very cheerful indeed as they read such excellent prose."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 My 7 '50 140w

"The stories have style, range and timing. . . Enjoyment is added to this book by the humorously eloquent drawings. Here is choice material for storytellers, for school and library, and entertainment for parties and young readers." Irene Smith
+ N Y Times p16 Je 18 '50 140w

Sat R of Lit 33:34 My 13 '50 130w

Wis Lib Bul 46:26 My '50

DOBIE, JAMES FRANK. Ben Lilly legend. 237p il $3.50 Little

B or 92 Lilly, Benjamin Vernon 50-7737

"Tales (both fact and fable) told about a master hunter of the Rockies who in his prime was 'chief huntsman' to Theodore Roosevelt." (Publishers' Weekly) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:333 Jl 1 '50

Bookmark 9:239 Jl '50 40w

"A plain, clear picture of an interesting and extraordinary individual, and of a kind of life which can never be again. . . A number of the tall tales about Lilly's incredible marksmanship and feats of prowess enrich the book and justify its title." Stanley Vestal
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 My 21 '50 380w

Reviewed by Horace Reynolds
Christian Science Monitor p9 S 2 '50 1550w

Kirkus 18:161 Mr 1 '50 150w

"The book is chuckful of swell yarns told by a great story teller." Sylvester Vigilante
+ Library J 75:863 My 15 '50 150w

DOBIE, J. F.—Continued

"From this remarkably comprehensive biography one may glean relevant truths, especially interesting from a psychologist's point of view, about men of action in our past—so numerous as to constitute a distinct class—who performed extraordinary feats to render living on our frontiers relatively safe." Carl Carmer

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 My 28 '50 850w

"It makes a good story of a rare man who succeeds in living on his own terms. It rates kudos, with a citation for being a fine piece of book-making." J. M. Myers

+ N Y Times p4 My 28 '50 650w

Reviewed by A. R. Bosworth

San Francisco Chronicle p22 My 21 '50 1150w

"Ben V. Lilly, professional bear and lion hunter of Louisiana, Texas, New Mexico, and Arizona, is hereby officially Frank Dobie's entry in the folk-hero sweepstakes. . . The subject of dogs happens to be only one brief section in this collection of the folklore of Ben Lilly. The hunter's approach to bears, to lions, to marriage, to life itself is every bit as revealing and fascinating, and, as usual, Frank Dobie has set it down in his ever-genial, ever-robust narrative." A. N. Williams

+ Sat R of Lit 33:21 Ag 5 '50 600w

Time 55:106 My 15 '50 800w

DODGE, MRS CONSTANCE (WOODBURY). Unrelenting; a novel of suspense. 218p $2.75 Doubleday

50-5157

A suspense novel in which the central character is a school teacher, driven out of her profession by the suicide of a pupil whom she had disciplined. She seeks refuge in a New England house left her by a distant relative. The secret of the old house gradually comes out as a nearly two hundred-year-old curse comes to light.

Booklist 46:166; 189 Ja 15 '50; F 1 '50

Kirkus 17:630 N 15 '49 150w

"An atmospheric story which has character, but not as much suspense as was intended, and a somewhat inconclusive ending."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 F 5 '50 170w

"There is a spookiness to 'The Unrelenting' that is quite beguiling." Rex Lardner

+ N Y Times p31 F 5 '50 170w

"Constance Dodge has produced an unusual plot and built it up solidly and logically to a rational conclusion. She has combined a group of well drawn characters with their normal actions and reactions and set them in a background which is fascinatingly imaginative." J. F. S.

+ Springf'd Republican p6D F 19 '50 270w

DODGE, DAVID. Red tassel. 241p $2.50 Random house

50-9902

Mystery story.

Booklist 47:98 N 1 '50

Reviewed by Drexel Drake

Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 O 15 '50 60w

Kirkus 18:439 Ag 1 '50 80w

"One of the best and most exciting stories by a writer whose Spanish-American backgrounds are always entirely convincing." E. F. Walbridge

+ Library J 75:1290 Ag '50 110w

"An intelligent mystery which is informative as well as good fast reading."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p27 O 22 '50 150w

"Mr. Dodge, the author of several travel books and Colby books, has got off a pretty fair mystery story with an unusual and interesting background." Rex Lardner

+ N Y Times p40 O 15 '50 190w

Reviewed by L. G. Offord

San Francisco Chronicle p20 O 29 '50 70w

"Lively and literate."

+ Sat R of Lit 33:60 O 7 '50 50w

DODGE, LANGDON, pseud. See Wolfson, V.

DOGBOLT, BARNABY, pseud. See Silvette, H.

DOLPH, JACK. Murder makes the mare go. 218p $2.25 Doubleday

50-8304

Detective story.

Kirkus 18:249 Ap 15 '50 60w

"It takes a knowledge of medicine, a love for horses and sheer doggedness to unravel this puzzle, but Doc Connor has all of them."

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Jl 9 '50 200w

"The warmth of the author's devotion to the turf will delight all who share his enthusiasm; other mystery readers who can take horses or leave them alone may bog down in a badly scrambled plot which is a little harder to understand after Doc's explanations than before." Anthony Boucher

N Y Times p19 Je 25 '50 100w

"Good and tough."

+ Sat R of Lit 33:38 Jl 15 '50 40w

DOMANIEWSKI, ZBIGNIEW (JOHANNES ALASCO, pseud). Intellectual capitalism. 140p $3 World univ. press, 101 5th av, N.Y. 3

330.1 Capitalism 50-6577

"A study of changing ownership and control in modern industrial society." (Subtitle) "The author suggests that a revolution is going on within the economic structure of democratic capitalism, not to destroy it, but to settle the matter of ownership and to clarify the vague and vulnerable status of capital itself." (School & Society) No index.

Am Pol Sci R 44:804 S '50 70w

Booklist 46:255 Ap 15 '50

Reviewed by C. E. Noyes

Nation 170:453 My 13 '50 330w

"Perhaps the most absorbing passages of Mr. Alasco's terse prose are devoted to what he holds to be the real issue of our times: the push of the intelligentsia against the traditional political and legal norms of our society. . . Mr. Alasco's discussion of this general phenomenon illuminates what may well be the real and powerful, though unavowed, drives behind the conduct of that baffling individual: the treacherous scientist of the recent spy trials." Robert Strausz-Hupe

N Y Times p14 Je 18 '50 750w

"How the author reaches his remarkable conclusion is a fascinating study in the distortion of authorities, misreading of facts, and misinterpretation of economic history." P. R. Levin

— Sat R of Lit 33:34 My 27 '50 400w

School & Society 71:254 Ap 22 '50 40w

DONALDSON, ETHELBURT TALBOT. Piers Plowman; the C-text and its poet. 257p $5 Yale univ. press

821 Langland, William—Piers the Plowman 49-9111

Piers Plowman was originally written about 1362, that version being designated the A-text. There were two later expansions and revisions called the B-text and C-text. There has been some doubt that all three versions were by one author. "Mr. Donaldson's dissertation is a frontal attack upon those who doubt or deny Langland's authorship of the C-text. After a statement of previous scholarly opinion on both sides of the question, Mr. Donaldson considers in turn the more external characteristics of the C-revision (including the alliteration), the artistic qualifications or disqualifications of the reviser, the politics of the C-poet, his attitude toward various social and economic classes, the changes which affect the religious allegory, and finally, the autobiographical allusions." (U S Quarterly Bkl) Bibliographical index.

"As in his articles on the pronunciation of the final e in Chaucer's poetry, Dr. Donaldson writes here with notable ease and effectiveness, simply, directly, and without self-consciousness; he is not afraid to use on occasional colloquialism or bit of slang when such expression will point a statement, and throughout the book he maintains a reader's interest. Such writing will be welcome always." J. R. Hulbert

+ Mod Philol 47:207 F '50 750w

"It is not to be expected that the treatment of all these topics will be equally satisfying, but even where his argument fails to carry conviction, Mr. Donaldson has thrown fresh light on the subject, and his book is a significant contribution to Piers Plowman studies."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:310 S '49 280w

DONER, MARY FRANCES (MRS C. L. PAYZANT). Cloud of arrows. 252p $2.75 Doubleday

50-8305

The story of a woman who had to vanquish her illusions before she could find happiness. The background of the novel is the sugar beet industry of Michigan.

Booklist 46:353 Jl 15 '50

Chicago Sun p5 Jl 11 '50 100w

"Her story is episodic, but it is almost inevitable by its nature that it be so. What is chiefly lacking, perhaps, is that quality of universality which enables the reader to get out of himself and into the book in a sense more real than that of surface entertainment. When Miss Doner adds this quality to her already considerable talents in the field of the novel, she may well write serious and impressive fiction which will tower far above anything she has so far written." August Derleth

+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ag 27 '50 350w

Christian Science Monitor p6 Ag 26 '50 120w

Kirkus 18:246 Ap 15 '50 120w

"Entertaining, readable. Recommended." Anne Whitmore

+ Library J 75:979 Je 1 '50 80w

"Readers who like unadulterated virtue in large quantities will not be disappointed." Jane Cobb

N Y Times p23 Je 18 '50 140w

"Here is a novel written by a woman, about women, for women. . . Not that there aren't men in this novel, there are—quite a number, in fact—but they are men as conceived in a woman's mind. This effect of excessive femininity is produced mainly by the chattering style and by the exclusive presentation of the woman's mind and point of view. The women characters are presented in the round whereas the reader is allowed to judge the men mostly by implication."

Sat R of Lit 33:33 Jl 15 '50 230w

DOORLY, JOHN WILLIAMS. God and science. 227p $3 Prentice-Hall

215 Religion and science [50-545]

"Based on a comprehensive study of the Old Testament, this book, in explaining the gradual uplifting of the thought of the Hebrew prophets, shows the vital importance of exact spiritual thinking. It tells how this understanding can bring into human experience an improved sense of health, safety, and satisfaction." Library J

"A book which should prove interesting to any thinking person; it is informative for students of the Bible; the writing is intelligent and shows an intense interest in and research into the Old Testament; it is, though, for the serious student. Recommended." Anne Whitmore

+ Library J 75:1183 Jl '50 100w

"It is difficult to see how Mr. Doorly can convince anyone of anything except those who already share his subjective experiences. There may be many who do so, and to them the book may be a lucid masterpiece; but I am not one of them. That is not to suggest, however, that Mr. Doorly's work may not be as strictly scientific as the quantum theory, with which it shares the characteristic of meaning nothing whatever to the uninitiated." C. M. Woodhouse

Spec 184:56 Ja 13 '50 450w

Reviewed by J. W. Culver

Springf'd Republican p13C Ap 16 '50 360w

DORFMAN, JOSEPH. Economic mind in American civilization; v. 3, 1865-1918. 494p $6 Viking

330.973 U.S.—Economic conditions. U.S.—Economic policy (45-11318)

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

"While it is a book to be read for both pleasure and profit—abundant, solid, valuable information—it is not, to me at least, very satisfying intellectually. I can only report that to this one reader it seems deficient in intellectual depth or penetration, clarity, cogency, and illumination." O. H. Taylor

+ — Am Econ R 40:177 Mr '50 2200w

"From a literary and perhaps a structural point of view, Dorfman has undertaken a well-nigh impossible task. Three quarters of a century ago Sir Leslie Stephen based his brilliant History of English Thought in the Eighteenth Century on the same method of summarization and comment, but the writings he treated were more general and less often technical, and his lively comment from a point of view illuminated every line. By Sir Leslie's standard, Dorfman is reticent, an encyclopedist more than a historian. . . Dorfman's grateful accomplishments are the discovery of the forgotten—see his sections on H. C. Adams and C. S. Walker —an encyclopedism where encyclopedism is needed. His generous though lopsided feats place him in the select company of five or six who have recently opened a whole field of our national and international existence." C. A. Barker

+ — Am Hist R 55:387 Ja '50 800w

"A recurrently useful and suggestive volume which pictures many kinds of Americans at work solving problems, spinning theories, in the rough nonformalized context of life. For persons interested in omnibus courses on 'American civilization' the book is nearly indispensable, though it may have to be checked against others for relative historical emphasis. For other readers it will be enlightening; should anyone still think of American socialism and radicalism as recent Russian imports, the book will open his eyes." H. G. Singer

Am J Soc 56:121 Jl '50 1150w

Foreign Affairs 28:333 Ja '50 20w

"Dorfman's book lacks organization; it does not lack objectivity. In fact, it is an excellent example of objectivity carried beyond the point of diminishing returns. There is no question about the range or authority of The Economic Mind; the scholar who will devote himself to writing a true history of American economic ideas will find his task immeasurably lightened by the extensive and intensive spadework accomplished by Professor Dorfman. But that history has still to be written." Theodore Norman

— + New Repub 122:27 Ja 30 '50 700w

"Despite the complexity of the materials with which he has worked, Professor Dorfman has achieved both unity and coherence of pattern for his study, with but little overlay or repetition. The bibliography, over sixty-five pages in length, is itself an important contribution to future scholarship in the field."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:344 S '49 400w

DORIAN, MRS EDITH M. High-water cargo; il. by Forrest Orr. (Whittlesey house publication) 216p $2.50 McGraw

50-6928

A novel for teen-agers. It is the story of the son of a lockkeeper on the Delaware and Raritan canal back in the 1850's. The boy wanted to go to Rutgers to become an engineer, and hence was much interested in the widening of the canal. Stolen jewels and a flood add to the excitement.

Booklist 46:278 My 1 '50

Bookmark 9:165 Ap '50 60w

"The story is excellent. . . Boys and girls interested in the people who built our country will like this combination historical adventure and mystery tale with an added touch of romance." A. L. Shea

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p7 Ag 20 '50 230w

Christian Science Monitor p6 Jl 29 '50 70w

Kirkus 18:64 F 1 '50 70w

Reviewed by Louise Davis

Library J 75:641 Ap 15 '50 70w

"Any well-written book that can give young people help in the process of growing up is a welcome addition to the library shelves. In this book with its historical background of New Jersey, the maturing process is shown in the lives of Dirck and Maddy, and there is, besides, an excellent mystery and a delightful picture of family life." C. W. Field

+ Library J 75:989 Je 1 '50 70w

"The background, both of canal life and of family life, is well done. Mr. Orr's excellent pictures illuminate the period. The villain is too easily spotted, but there is plenty of action to offset that."

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 My 7 '50 240w

"The period details have the ring of truth and the added merits of liveliness and good humor. Mrs. Dorian successfully combines sound research with vivid storytelling." Lavinia Davis

+ N Y Times p22 My 28 '50 180w

+ Sat R of Lit 33:27 Jl 8 '50 320w

Springf'd Republican p8C My 7 '50 120w

DORSON, RICHARD MERCER, ed. America begins; early American writing; with an introd. by [the editor]. 438p il $4.50 Pantheon bks.

810.8 U.S.—History—Colonial period. American literature—Collections 50-8306

An anthology of the writings of seventeenth century authors, with a few from the eighteenth, on the subject of America's beginnings. The material is grouped under eight headings: Voyages; Natural wonders; Remarkable providences; Indian captivities; Indian conceits and antics; Indian treaties; Witchcrafts; Forest wars. Contains a list of sources, and a biographical index of authors.

Chicago Sun p5 Jl 2 '50 50w

"This book is crammed with details. No American can fail to enjoy it and to be moved by it and to be amused by it." Paul Engle

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Jl 9 '50 390w

"Much of the material is true history. Much of it is early myth and gossip, superstition, fantastic folklore and rough humor. But out of it emerges a remarkable sense of what that new continent was like to the eyes that first saw it, and how it struck them, and what they believed about it or wanted to make others believe."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 Jl 16 '50 900w

"The book suffers from the editor's naïve idea that the Indians taught their white conquerors savagery and total warfare, and from his unnecessarily bouncy style, but it is a very well-done job."

+ — New Yorker 26:151 O 14 '50 200w

San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ag 6 '50 200w

Reviewed by W. G. Tyrrell

Social Educ 14:333 N '50 450w

Springf'd Republican p9B Jl 2 '50 250w

Time 56:81 Jl 3 '50 650w

DOS PASSOS, JOHN RODERIGO. Prospect before us; il. by Micky Strobel. 375p $3.75 Houghton

309.1 Reconstruction (1939-). Liberty

50-10285

"This time John Dos Passos has dreamed up the picture of a lecturer delivering a free series of addresses to a small but typical American public that serves him as a foil. Before getting to these addresses the author himself sets out the predicament of modern man, namely, the likeness of all industrial societies. . . The five lectures demonstrate the argument and point to the remedy." Sat R of Lit

"Dos Passos's book, in sum, reflects a curious blend of sentimental, old-fashioned individualism and hard, forward-looking devotion to technology. This looks to me rather like making the worst of both worlds." C. J. Rolo

Atlantic 186:96 N '50 1050w

Booklist 47:110 N 15 '50

Reviewed by J. A. Clark

Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 D 17 '50 500w

Kirkus 18:505 Ag 15 '50 240w

Reviewed by V. O. Key

New Repub 123:19 D 4 '50 1000w

"The appearance of a new book by John Dos Passos ought to be an event. In the case of the book under review, it is a minor event. Mr. Dos Passos has lost none of his skill as a writer or his gift for vivid description and effective use of incidents. But, despite his geographic range, he squints at the prospect before us through a very narrow slit of interests." Norman Thomas

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 N 5 '50 1250w

Reviewed by D. L. Cohn

N Y Times p16 O 22 '50 700w

"A rather tentative effort, sometimes provocative and sometimes provoking, to evaluate the mess that man has got himself into. . . The prospect, one gathers, is a kind of murky gray, and we had better do something soon; just what is not very clear."

— + New Yorker 26:166 N 11 '50 240w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p22 N 1 '50 400w

Reviewed by E. A. Mowrer

Sat R of Lit 33:14 N 4 '50 1150w

"There are all too many books that 'analyze' the problems of contemporary life and reach no conclusions. 'The Prospect Before Us' belongs to this large group, and it would deserve little attention except for the fact that it was written by John Dos Passos, who has a way with words and with thoughts. Even the bleakness of the prospect he presents is so well pictured in words that the volume is worth reading, although its dismal forebodings can scarcely be taken seriously." Donald Derby

+ — Springf'd Republican p8D N 12 '50 550w

Time 56:106 O 30 '50 850w

DOUGHTY, OSWALD. Dante Gabriel Rossetti; a Victorian romantic [Eng title: Victorian romantic]. 712p il $10 Yale univ. press

B or 92 Rossetti, Dante Gabriel A49-9876

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

"The fairly steep price of this volume might suggest it to be one of those de luxe items intended more for display than for reading, with full-color reproductions of Pre-Raphaelite art, garlanded with a little elegant comment. Actually what the ten dollars demanded by the publisher will buy is one of the most solidly constructed and interestingly written literary biographies of recent years." Paul Dinkins

+ Cath World 171:158 My '50 450w

"On the whole it is a gloomy picture that Professor Doughty paints. The shadows are deepened. . . But there is another Rossetti; he who could arouse the enthusiasm of younger men from the days of the 'Oxford adventure' onwards. . . This is the man who emerges more clearly from the vivid pages of Mrs Angeli's recent book, and in the end he is the one who matters." John Bryson

New Statesman & Nation 39:20 Ja 7 '50 500w

"We have feasted of late from large dishes of Rossetti. Professor Doughty's is the largest dish yet. Never has D. G. R.'s life from cradle to grave been unfolded in such detail. It would be false to suggest that the author plays to the scandal gallery—he is too interested in poetry and in scholarship for that—but the gallery will enjoy it; and the critics of the psycho-analytical school never have had such a mountain of data."

Times [London] Lit Sup p10 Ja 6 '50 1350w

"What is distressing is the crusading spirit in which Mr. Doughty has recorded those failures and the feeling of dislike verging on contempt with which he has assembled and chronicled the pathological elements of the story. The pathological elements are unquestionably there. . . All this is a disappointment; but the book is a masterpiece of collecting and weaving together the manifold materials. New and corrective evidence is still appearing, moreover, and we may look forward to a biography of Rossetti the poet and painter, the 'Victorian Romantic,' which is not presented so largely as the case history of a psychotic." P. F. Baum

+ — Yale R n s 39:570 spring '50 900w

DOUGLAS, MRS MARY TERESA (PEACOCK). Teacher-librarian's handbook. 2d ed 166p il $2.75 A.L.A.

027.8 School libraries. Library science 50-93

"Surveys the work of the teacher-librarian, beginning with a statement of standards and covering briefly the selection and organization of the book collection and nonbook materials, equipment, and publicity." (Booklist) For first edition see Book Review Digest 1941.

Booklist 46:202 F 15 '50

"Long an invaluable guide to the inexperienced or untrained librarian, The Teacher-Librarian's Handbook has now been brought up-to-date and expanded to reflect the growing emphasis on audio-visual materials." E. D. Hodges

+ Library J 75:1039 Je 15 '50 290w

DOUGLAS, WILLIAM ORVILLE. Of men and mountains. 338p il maps $4 Harper

B or 92 Mountaineering 50-7078

An informal autobiography of Supreme Court Justice Douglas. The book stresses his experiences as mountaineer and fisherman, and the years of his boyhood in Yakima, Washington. There is very little space given to his legal work, the S.E.C., or his work in the Supreme Court. Glossary. No index.

Booklist 46:273 My 1 '50

Bookmark 9:208 Je '50 40w

"Justice Douglas writes with disarming simplicity. He does not hesitate to tackle descriptions of scenic grandeur. His trout fishing forays are an armchair adventurer's delight to read. His anecodotes about Jack and Kitty Nelson, Roy Schaeffer and others who have chosen the remote fastness for a permanent home are small classics of their kind." W. F. Morse

+ Chicago Sun p7 Ap 21 '50 290w

"'Of Men and Mountains,' is more than a book: it is a man. If I were on the friendliest possible basis with Mr. Douglas I doubt that I would know any more about him than I have learned from his book. It is as tho you had been privileged to sit with him beside a hundred camp fires, fished beside him in mountain trout streams all over Washington and Oregon, climbed with him to the top of Mount Adams, stood with him in silence as you drank in the beauty of the incomparable Blankenship Meadows in the Cascades." V. P. Hass

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ap 23 '50 420w

"In spite of a lack of literary style, Bill Douglas holds his audience. He talks as plainly and directly as if he were sitting across a campfire in Klickitat Meadows. It is a discourse in Jeffersonian philosophy above the cracker-barrel level and a regional report of men, in and out of their mountains, that will appeal to many readers." Roland Sawyer

+ Christian Science Monitor p5 Ap 15 '50 1250w

Current Hist 19:106 Ag '50 30w

"It is surprising and refreshing to find in this century a man with such a variety of vital interests outside his work and such an overwhelming wealth of information on each subject."

+ Kirkus 18:89 F 1 '50 170w

"We heartily recommend it to all libraries, not only as revealing the character of an eminent jurist, but as a book that can be enjoyed by all and give inspiration to many." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 75:776 My 1 '50 140w

"This is one man's moving account of a deep and almost life-long friendship with the region in which he grew up, a friendship that survived even the accident last October which left him on the side of a mountain with a majority of his ribs broken and a lung punctured." J. K. Hutchens

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 Ap 9 '50 1450w

"There are many good stories of mountain rambles, and one hair-raising passage on rock climbing. I found, to my taste, too much retelling of dullish, and probably expurgated, Indian legends, and too much botanical cataloguing. But to compensate, there are good backwoods anecdotes and football character sketches. . . All in all, 'Of Men and Mountains' is a highly interesting and rewarding book for its clear and honest picturing both of our northwestern mountains and of its notable author." G. R. Stewart

+ N Y Times p3 Ap 9 '50 650w

New Yorker 26:122 My 20 '50 160w

"This is a book about a magnificent wilderness country—indeed about several such regions—and a book about men in the closest of relationships to it. It is also the kind of book that will make any man who has climbed, fished and has his own quiet thoughts under the stars say to himself, 'Why, this fellow's saying just what I've thought, too!' Yes, it's a man's book, and one in a thousand. My tip is don't miss it." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 Ap 12 '50 900w

"If anyone may have gained the impression that the Supreme Court is packed with aloofness and austerity they should buy or borrow this book, for herein you will meet a most human soul. In fact, it is a pity the volume could not have been called 'Of a Man and Mountains.'" I. T. Sanderson

+ Sat R of Lit 33:53 Ap 15 '50 700w

+ Springf'd Republican p10C My 14 '50 750w

Reviewed by R. L. Neuberger

Survey 86:334 Je '50 550w

Time 55:114 Ap 17 '50 800w

Wis Lib Bul 46:19 My '50

DOUGLASS, RALPH. Calligraphic lettering with wide pen and brush. 56p $2.50 Watson-Guptill

745.6 Lettering 50-5720

Charts and instructions on elementary lettering.

Booklist 46:215 Mr 1 '50

"Just the book for the art student or anyone else who might wish to do a satisfactory job

DOUGLAS, RALPH—Continued
of lettering, for those jelly glasses, for instance, or those cards at the club, as it gives all the pertinent information necessary for a professional looking piece of work." Gary Sheahan
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 Mr 5 '50 70w

DOWD, HARRISON. Night air. 338p $3 Dial press
50-9207

"Here we have the story of Andy Moor, an actor in the middle forties, unsuccessful in his career and in his marriage, burdened with self doubt and anxiety, Andy had been a successful child actor, later an abortive composer. Seduced into homosexual activity at an early age, Andy's youth had been disorganized and dissolute. In his marriage with Kit, New England born and more than a little prim, Andy had sought stability and respectability. This novel is the consistently engrossing story of his discovery that this external 'solution' has been no solution to his problem, of his reversion to homosexual practices and alcoholism, and his final recognition and acceptance of himself." Sat R of Lit

"Recommended." George Freedley
+ Library J 75:2013 N 15 '50 40w

"Harrison Dowd is a forceful writer, and there is tolerance as well as truth in this study of defeat and moral bankruptcy. The minor figures—producers, agents, floozies, failures—are drawn to the life, and the tensions of theatrical rehearsals and opening nights are conveyed with skill. 'The Night Air' is a novel about tramps, as Broadway understands the word, and the tramps are of both sexes."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p19 S 24 '50 240w

Reviewed by Charles Spielberger
N Y Times p23 Ag 27 '50 130w

"Mr. Dowd's writing is less than distinguished, and his characterizations for the most part are thin, but in the case of the actor he has succeeded in giving a heartbreaking picture of a human being in need."
New Yorker 26:118 S 9 '50 70w

"Add another—and an excellent—volume to the lengthening shelf of novels about the homosexual in our society." E. J. Fitzgerald
+ Sat R of Lit 33:36 S 16 '50 250w

DOWDEY, CLIFFORD. Weep for my brother. 308p $3 Doubleday
50-5304

Novel describing an historian's efforts to provide proper care for his psychotic brother. "During the night and day that Chris Mathers combs Richmond for his brother Lacy, he recalls the countless times the search has been repeated, his recollections tell the story of Lacy's progressive mental and moral breakdown, and the disastrous consequences to the Mathers family. The present hunt for Lacy recedes into the background as Chris (and the reader) concentrate on the problem of maladjustment." (Booklist)

Booklist 46:149; 189 Ja 1 '50; F 1 '50

Reviewed by V. P. Hass
— Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 F 12 '50 320w

Kirkus 17:631 N 15 '49 260w

"As a novel, 'Weep for My Brother' has solid virtues. Clifford Dowdey knows Richmond, past and present, about as well as any writer could. The city's distinctive character flavors his pages. . . Against this vivid background Mr. Dowdey imposes the harrowing recital of Lacy Mathers's 'lunacy' hearings, court commitments, hospital admissions, discharges and readmissions. The author's purpose, presumably, is to make this grim merry-go-round disgust, exasperate, pain, horrify and, in time, bore the reader as much as it did Lacy's family. Those are not pleasing emotions to induce in a reader. Mr. Dowdey's very success at inducing them limits the attractiveness of his book. Furthermore, the novel suffers from two serious flaws, one technical, one artistic. The technical one is the excessive and confusing employment of the flashback. The author's second flaw is his total failure to create anything like sympathy for the psychotic Lacy." Richard Match
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Ja 22 '50 700w

"In form, 'Weep for My Brother' resembles most of all a well-written case study with a plot draped casually over it. Crisp dialogue and descriptions bolster a style which has been sharpened through Mr. Dowdey's five previous novels of Tidewater Virginia. But motivation of characters is fuzzy, and the romantic interest, a spare-time affair between Chris and a socialite divorcee, loses itself in parlor psychiatry." J. K.
— + N Y Times p30 Ja 29 '50 290w

"Although the reader may sometimes feel that Mr. Dowdey's treatment is not expert, 'Weep for My Brother' is an important book because it is built on basic realities that affect us all." M. J. Ward
Sat R of Lit 33:18 Ja 21 '50 550w

DOWNER, ALAN S. British drama; a handbook and brief chronicle. 397p $3 Appleton
822.09 English drama—History and criticism 50-8678

"In this history of drama, Mr. Downer . . . rejects the practice, common among dramatic historians, of making brief, evaluative, uninformative references to all the plays that can possibly be named. Instead, he has analyzed typical plays of every important genre and every important period. Thus, Douglas Jerrold's 'Black-Ey'd Susan' does duty for all the melodrama of the early nineteenth century, while Shaw is represented by three plays of different kinds and Shakespeare by only one-third of his total output." Theatre Arts

School & Society 72:30 Jl 8 '50 50w

"The selectivity of this treatment should not suggest that there is any failure to show the historical connections between various types of plays. On the contrary, Mr. Downer does a particularly good job of exhibiting influences—demonstrating that medieval dramatic conventions look forward to the conventions of the Elizabethan theatre, that the comedy of humors is directly related to the comedy of manners, that most modern dramatists still use the pattern of the well-made play. . . 'The British Drama' is an extraordinary little book. It could be better only by being bigger."
+ Theatre Arts 34:2 S '50 500w

DOWRIE, GEORGE WILLIAM, and FULLER, DOUGLAS RAYMOND. Investments. 2d ed 611p $5 Wiley
332.67 Investments 50-5436

"A college textbook useful for general reader reference. In the present revision new chapters are added on taxation and preferred stock analysis, current developments have been introduced, and statistical material brought up to date." (Booklist) Supplementary readings. Index. For first edition see Book Review Digest 1942.

Booklist 46:263 Ap 15 '50

"A compact, satisfying, not over-technical work." J. E. Cross
+ Library J 75:402 Mr 1 '50 80w

DRAKE, ROLLEN H. Aircraft engine maintenance and service. 237p il $5 Macmillan 629.13435 Airplane engines 50-8972

"Intended for practical students who are enrolled in vocational high schools or aeronautical schools. The text contains numerous step-by-step descriptions of standard servicing procedures. There are 219 figures, and the majority of them are reproductions of actual photographs of maintenance and servicing operations." N Y New Tech Bks

Booklist 47:110 N 15 '50

"It is clearly written and well illustrated, and for an introductory book, fairly comprehensive. It is suitable for use in high schools aeronautical vocational schools and also for home study." R. R. Hawkins
+ Library J 75:1300 Ag '50 70w
N Y New Tech Bks 35:49 Jl '50

DRAKE, THOMAS EDWARD. Quakers and slavery in America. 245p $3.75 Yale univ. press
326.973 Slavery in the U.S. Friends, Society of 50-12921

A history of the part played by the Quakers in the abolition of slavery from the time of George Fox to John Greenleaf Whittier. Bibliographical note. Index.

"Dr. Drake has managed to combine the utmost richness of fact with readability." T. M. Longstreth
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 N 25 '50 490w

"Careful and interestingly written." E. H. Smith
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p44 D 3 '50 370w

DRAPER, JOHN WILLIAM. Twelfth night of Shakespeare's audience. 280p il $5 Stanford univ. press
822.33 Shakespeare, William—Twelfth night 50-6021

Detailed study of the various characters in Shakespeare's Twelfth Night, showing how and how far, each reflected the intellectual, social and theatrical aspects of Elizabethan English life. Indexes.

Chicago Sun p3 My 30 '50 60w

Reviewed by Harry Levin
N Y Times p7 Mr 26 '50 400w

"Professor Draper's information and documentation are as thorough as one could wish and his achievement is successful in making us view the play through the mind of its own day." Robert Halsband
+ Sat R of Lit 33:20 Je 3 '50 150w
U S Quarterly Bkl 6:151 Je '50 240w

DREIER, MARY ELISABETH. Margaret Dreier Robins; her life, letters and work. 278p il $4 Island press
B or 92 Robins, Mrs Margaret (Dreier) 50-9743

"The late Margaret Dreier Robins never had to earn her own living, but she helped to make life more tolerable for millions of women who needed to work in order to eat. For thirty-eight years, as president and honorary president of the National Women's Trade Union League, she brought to national attention the problems of women at a time when women were merely 'tolerated' in industry. . . Mary Dreier, also a leader in the women's labor movement, tells of her sister's life, wisely allowing many of Mrs. Robbins' letters to illustrate her compassionate and eloquent pleas for justice." N Y Times

Booklist 47:38 S 15 '50

"The love and admiration of a not-too-objective sister have recreated a warm and glowing personality." D. K. Oko
Library J 75:1667 O 1 '50 100w

"This is moving biography of a remarkable member of that coterie of noble women which included Jane Addams, Julia Lathrop, the Breckenridge sisters and the pioneer women in the trade-union movement." Elinore Herrick
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Jl 16 '50 600w

Reviewed by Lucy Freeman
N Y Times p17 Jl 23 '50 200w

"Mary Dreier has done a service to all of us who are concerned with the growth of social responsibility in the United States by writing this sincere, accurate, and loving book about her sister." Frances Perkins
+ Survey 86:512 N '50 1000w

DREIKURS, RUDOLF. Fundamentals of Adlerian psychology; with a foreword by Alfred Adler. 117p $2 Greenberg
131.3463 Adler, Alfred. Psychology, Pathological. Personality 50-7721

"A summary of Adler's theory of individual psychology. Too elementary for the advanced student but admirable as an introduction for the beginner or lay reader. The German edition of the book was published in 1933; this American translation has been brought up to date with added paragraphs and notes." (Booklist) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:298 Je 1 '50

Reviewed by L. T. Heron
Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 Ag 6 '50 140w

DRESBACH, GLENN WARD. Collected poems, 1914-1948. 321p $5 Caxton ptrs.
811 50-8062

From his books of poetry published between 1914 and 1948 the author has selected those he considers best, and has added about a hundred others which have not appeared in book form.

Booklist 46:350 Jl 15 '50

"It is good to know that Glenn Ward Dresbach's best poems are gathered between covers. There are poets of richer metaphysical and mystical gifts but there is none who has given a better accounting of his talents in the service of poetry." A. M. Sullivan
+ Sat R of Lit 33:19 Jl 22 '50 470w

DRESSER, DAVIS. This is it, Michael Shayne, by Brett Halliday [pseud]. 215p $2.50 Dodd 50-6521

Detective story.

Reviewed by E. Fowke
Canadian Forum 30:144 S '50 30w

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun p6 Mr 31 '50 100w

"Another competent Michael Shayne story—not particularly colorful—but soundly plotted."
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 Ap 9 '50 140w

"This is pretty routine; but Halliday was writing this sort of thing long before most of his present competitors, and still does it with unrivaled readability." Anthony Boucher
N Y Times p31 Mr 26 '50 140w
New Yorker 26:128 Mr 18 '50 160w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p24 Ap 30 '50 140w

"Good and tough."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:36 Mr 18 '50 40w

DRESSER, DAVIS, and ROLLINS, KATHLEEN. See Debrett, H., pseud.

DRUCKER, PETER FERDINAND. The new society; the anatomy of the industrial order. 356p $5 Harper
331 Industry—Organization, control, etc. Industrial relations 50-7722

"The world revolution of our times, says the author of this bold, unemotional book, is an industrial revolution which started in this country and is based on the principle of mass production. . . Mr. Drucker believes that giant industrial enterprises are bringing forth a new kind of social order, different from anything in history. The structure of this new society and the problems it is creating in the fields of labor, management, and the organization of government are what chiefly interest

DRUCKER, P. F.—Continued
the author, who would like to see in America a free industrial society that would be neither capitalist nor Communist." New Yorker

Reviewed by Robert Merriam
Chicago Sun p4 Je 11 '50 500w

Reviewed by Philip Dodd
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 My 21 '50 500w

"Peter F. Drucker, well known journalist and analyst, has written another stimulating volume appraising modern industrial society. . . His book deserves wide reading." J. B. Parrish
+ Churchman 164:16 S 1 '50 250w
Cleveland Open Shelf p9 My '50

"Be sure to read The New Society. It's the book of the year in the field of socio-economics." G. G. Higgins
+ Commonweal 52:467 Ag 18 '50 1300w
Current Hist 19:107 Ag '50 30w

"A provocative, interesting book."
+ Kirkus 18:163 Mr 1 '50 300w

Reviewed by J. E. Cross
Library J 75:1296 Ag '50 70w

"Peter Drucker has made a substantial contribution to the analysis of contemporary problems in terms of current reality rather than traditional theory. 'The End of Economic Man,' published in 1939, challenged both classic liberal capitalism and Marxian socialism on the basis of new evidence about the motives of social and political behavior. 'The New Society' is an even more ambitious attempt to describe the organization and conflicts of industrial civilization in the middle of the twentieth century." C. E. Noyes
+ — Nation 170:577 Je 10 '50 1050w

Reviewed by David Fellman
New Repub 123:18 O 2 '50 1150w

"There are some minor irritants in this book. For example, the witnesses at the profits hearings of 1948 did not all concentrate on big business. As one of the two economists testifying, the reviewer considered non-corporate profits. It is not true that college graduates overwhelmingly seek business as their careers; nor is it so clear that the middle class is growing as rapidly as Mr. Drucker suggests. . . Nevertheless, 'The New Society' is a stimulating, valuable and provocative book." S. E. Harris
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 My 21 '50 1950w

"The title of Peter Drucker's book is more ambitious than his intention; nevertheless, what he has to say is so important that he is deserving of the widest possible audience. . . Mr. Drucker puts down [his thesis] with a native common sense and a wealth of example that make his book the reverse of didactic." L. M. Hacker
+ N Y Times p6 My 14 '50 850w
New Yorker 26:110 My 27 '50 190w

"Here is a penetrating piece of social-economic analysis, flanked by informed and suggestive synthesis." P. F. Brissenden
+ Pol Sci Q 65:604 D '50 1050w
+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 Je 4 '50 550w

"It is a solid but stimulating book, a carefully reasoned, well-organized analysis of the most serious problem of our time." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 Ag 7 '50 1050w

"Mr. Drucker is regarded as one of America's leading experts on economic, social and political problems, and has wide experience as a foreign correspondent, college teacher, international banker and consultant to large business concerns. His scholarly book offers answers to many of the questions people are asking today, provides a sound endorsement of the American way of life, and holds out for the nation renewed hope for the future." H. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p12C Je 4 '50 300w
U S Quarterly Bkl 6:357 S '50 290w

Reviewed by J. M. Clark
Yale R n s 40:171 autumn '50 850w

DRUMMOND, ANDREW LANDALE. Story of American Protestantism. 418p $6 Beacon press 284 Protestantism. U.S.—Church history
50-12382

"A full-length history of Protestant Christianity in the United States by a British writer." Christian Century

"A daring enterprise. Dr. Drummond has carried it through with eminent success. Not for a long time have I read any British book about America which impressed me as showing more adequate knowledge of the facts, sounder judgment about the facts, or less disposition to 'make something out of it' when some American practice or idea is discovered which differs from its British correlative. This does not mean that it is a particularly 'friendly' book. If it were, it would be less valuable than it is. But the author is always intelligent, honest and frank, and nearly always well informed." W. E. Garrison
+ Christian Century 66:1012 Ag 31 '49 2200w

"In general, I like the book very much. It is intelligent, honest, fair, and clear. And it is very good reading." W. E. Garrison
+ Crozer Q 27:60 Ja '50 1300w

Reviewed by R. V. Holt
Hibbert J 49:98 O '50 1450w

"Recommended only for the largest public libraries, and for college, university and theological seminary libraries." E. H. Weeks
+ Library J 75:1397 S 1 '50 130w

"The book is a well-documented account . . . and I found it interesting to read." A. G.
+ Manchester Guardian p3 My 29 '50 450w
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p685 O 21 '49 700w

DRUMMOND, DONALD FRASIER. No moat, no castle. 51p $2 Swallow, A.
811
49-11196

"Donald F. Drummond [is a] . . . Western poet, and a protege of Ivor Winters. . . His poems bristle with biblical references, in which Old Testament characters or parables find their contemporary counterparts: 'Long Term Prophecy,' for instance, strikes an effective parallel between the Age of Moses and the Age of the Atom. A few of the poems, such as 'Song for a Violent California City,' draw from strictly Western material." N Y Herald Tribune Bk R

Reviewed by Rolfe Humphries
Nation 69:601 D 17 '49 110w

"He writes precisely, a little academically, and with more than a hint of Calvinism in his background. . . Mr. Drummond's strong feeling for history lends weight and significance to his outlook. The impact of one such historical moment, the Aztec Conquest, on the mind of a boy—called up by the capture of rainbow trout—gives special appeal to the book's concluding poem 'The Cinder of Montezuma.'" Ruth Lechlitner
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p50 D 4 '49 170w

"With modest punctilio the majority of his poems move across no moat toward no castle and eventually seem to settle somewhere near where they set out for. But there are exceptions. . . The Cinder of Montezuma is a longish and very ambitious poem, often disturbed and sometimes moving. To me it seems marred only by descriptions of trout fishing—descriptions which are too redolent of Field and Stream." J. R. Squires
Poetry 76:302 Ag '50 240w

Reviewed by T. H. Ferril
San Francisco Chronicle p25 Ja 8 '50 70w

DRURY, AUBREY. How to retire to California. 194p $2.50 Harper
917.94 California—Description and travel
50-5158

Practical advice on how to live, "retired" from work, in California, based on a survey among hundreds of families who have already settled there. Index.

Booklist 46:165; 187 Ja 15 '50; F 1 '50

Bookmark 9:155 Ap '50 40w

"The book, while directed specifically to those weighing the pros and cons of California, would serve as a practical guide to the state for those who want to look before they leap. The specific values of each section are carefully indicated, scenic values noted."
Kirkus 17:619 N 1 '49 150w

Wis Lib Bul 46:25 F '50

DUBOIS, MRS RACHEL (DAVIS). Neighbors in action; a manual for local leaders in intergroup relations. 294p $3 Harper

370.19 Intercultural education. U.S.—Race question 50-8576

"The report of a project in intergroup relations carried on by a Parents Association in co-operation with the Workshop for Cultural Democracy in one of New York's most culturally mixed neighborhoods." (School & Society) Bibliography. Index.

"For those who value every small triumph over prejudice, and see in minor successes the portent of greater victories, 'Neighbors in Action' is a volume of heart-warming hope. For the parent with children of school age, for the teacher with a class of several races and religions, for the personnel manager with workers of differing social groups, for the community leaders—the simple but thoughtful program outlined by Rachel DuBois may light a candle in the cavern of bigotry." W. L. Mezger
+ Christian Science Monitor p18 S 21 '50 600w

"A sound carefully planned book for the creative guidance of parents and teachers in any community."
+ Kirkus 18:274 My 1 '50 170w

"A wealth of useful background material on the life and customs of different groups is included. This is an original and successful idea in the field." M. E. Monroe
+ Library J 75:1410 S 1 '50 110w

School & Society 72:15 Jl 1 '50 30w

"Mrs. DuBois is aware that her methods will not work everywhere, under all circumstances. Also, she realizes that, for the sake of clarity, she has here somewhat over-simplified her interpretation of the psychological processes involved. Nevertheless, she succeeds in making her case." Bruno Lasker
+ Survey 86:526 N '50 450w

"A sound, carefully planned book."
+ Wis Lib Bul 46:15 Jl '50

DU BOIS, MRS THEODORA (MCCORMICK). High tension. 224p $2.25 Doubleday 50-8638

Mystery story.

Booklist 47:40 S 15 '50

"If implausible, this is also engaging."
Kirkus 18:268 My 1 '50 70w

"[Miss Du Bois] creates an atmosphere so well stocked with delightful minor characters, so pleasantly literate as a whole, that she comes close to making you swallow a completely incredible plot."
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 Jl 23 '50 270w

"For a man who wants to get away from it all, Peter acquits himself exceedingly well. So does the author, as she leads the reader through Peter's paces: the nipping of a political plot in the bud and the solving of a crime." E. B.
+ N Y Times p19 Jl 16 '50 140w

"Mrs. Du Bois's lady-like style contrasts rather oddly with her subject matter, which is perilously close to that of 'Super Comics.'"
New Yorker 26:75 Jl 8 '50 160w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p20 Ag 20 '50 90w

DU BOIS, MRS THEODORA (MCCORMICK). We merrily put to sea; il. by Jean MacDonald Porter. 247p $2.50 Doubleday 50-9337

The three Scott children were horrified when the elderly couple with whom they stayed threatened to sell their dog and their sailboat. They sailed off to find their grandfather and he reluctantly took them on as crew on his own boat. The four of them started down the Inland Waterway to Florida, but Grandfather got sick and had to leave them for a hospital. The story tells of the three children and one dog as they sailed the Lapwing successfully to St Augustine.

Christian Science Monitor p11 N 13 '50 20w

Kirkus 18:352 Jl 1 '50 110w

"A lively and humorous book, certain to appeal to both boys and girls eleven and up who like to read stories of boating. Recommended." M. E. Martignoni
+ Library J 75:1838 O 15 '50 80w

"Mrs. DuBois has plotted the adventures so carefully that they somehow seem quite reasonable. It's a little hard to put up with the whimsicality of 8-year old Jerry, the wonder-boy, but on the whole this is good fun." E. L. Buell
+ — N Y Times p42 N 19 '50 140w

DU BOIS, WILLIAM PENE. Peter Graves; il. by [the author]. 168p $2.50 Viking 50-10429

Gay nonsense story about Peter Graves, who was the kind of boy who was always in difficulty because he was too daring. The day he was the means of destroying the house of Houghton F. Furlong, inventor, was the beginning of a great business for Peter.

Booklist 47:140 D 1 '50

"This is superlative nonsense in the happy tradition of 'The Twenty-One Balloons,' served up, in story and pictures, in such a delightfully straight faced manner, you feel it all might just be possible." P. G.
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p15 N 12 '50 220w

"Tops for the juvenile honor list." E. C. I.
+ Christian Science Monitor p10 N 13 '50 50w

Cleveland Open Shelf p23 D '50

Horn Bk 26:375 S '50 70w

Kirkus 18:518 S 1 '50 160w

"It is just as inventive as the balloon story, but perhaps even funnier. Needless to say, every detail of pictures and bookmaking is perfect." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 N 12 '50 270w

"This is a fine book with illustrations at once grave and gay." M. F.
+ N Y Times p20 N 12 '50 170w

"His drawings and the excellent format contribute to make an exceptional book."
+ New Yorker 26:177 D 2 '50 80w

"Exquisitely precise drawings of the inventions, lovely pictures of the professor's house, and a marvelous portrait sketch of the professor himself illustrate a story that is as exciting as one of the new science-fiction books and much, much more fun."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:48 N 11 '50 310w

DUBOS, RENE JULES. Louis Pasteur; free lance of science. 418p il $5 Little

B or 92 Pasteur, Louis

A study of the life and work of the French scientist, Louis Pasteur. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:231 Mr 15 '50

Bookmark 9:133 Mr '50 50w

"In many ways the careers and interests of subject and author are closely parallel despite the three quarters of a century difference in time, and so this biography possesses a degree of sympathy and understanding always desired but seldom realized in volumes

DUBOS, R. J.—Continued
of this kind. From this reader's point of view the best word for the result is satisfying." D. H. Killeffer
+ Chem & Eng N 28:1958 Je 5 '50 250w

Reviewed by R. S. Kleckner
Chicago Sun p6 Mr 16 '50 500w

Reviewed by T. R. Van Dellen
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 F 26 '50 360w

Christian Century 67:562 My 3 '50 220w

"This book is in every way a splendid work of scientific biography. There is no mush nor melodrama in it, but the soundest of stuffs, soundly presented." Alan Devoe
+ Commonweal 51:612 Mr 17 '50 600w

Kirkus 17:637 N 15 '49 200w

"Particularly noteworthy are the depictions of his mode of work, his ability to grasp the implications of isolated facts, and his eagerness to associate theory and practice. Numerous excerpts from Pasteur's own works fit in well with the author's nontechnical and easy style of writing." J. E. Brown
+ Library J 75:169 F 1 '50 140w

Nation 170:190 F 25 '50 40w

"Dr. Dubos has told the story with a wealth of intimate detail. His book is a precious analysis for all who wonder why science has been so successful. Each chapter is itself a case history in a special field." Gerald Wendt
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 F 5 '50 1100w

"His book is more than a biography of a great microbiologist; it is a history of microbiology itself, especially during the nineteenth century. It is more than a book about a great scientist; it presents the philosophy of science, and treats of the socio-economic and historical background which made possible the life and scientific contributions of Pasteur. . . This is a book that will be read and reread not only by those interested in microbiology and in the history of science but also by the many who are interested in the role of science in human society, and in what science can do to improve the life of man and to make this world a better place to live." S. A. Waksman
+ N Y Times p1 F 5 '50 1300w

New Yorker 26:118 F 25 '50 160w

"Pasteur's work and achievements are familiar to most now, but Dr. Dubos' approach is fresh and his treatment is clear and firmly grounded on great scientific knowledge of his own. His book more than justifies his purpose in writing it, and it will, it may be safely predicted, add considerably to its author's own stature." C. W. Weinberger
+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 Mr 26 '50 500w

"We have not only the life story of a distinguished figure in science but a remarkably good sketch of the development of latter-day bacteriology. And best of all, anyone with a high-school education can read Dr. Dubos with enjoyment because of his lucidity and because of his skill in holding the interest." Waldemar Kaempffert
+ Sat R of Lit 33:20 Ap 22 '50 650w

Reviewed by B. C. Gruenberg
Survey 86:344 Je '50 600w

"An excellent study of Pasteur the man, his methods, strengths, weaknesses, and fate, and in addition, a brilliant cross section of scientific progress in action."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:169 Je '50 140w

Wis Lib Bul 46:17 Ap '50

DUDLEY, OWEN FRANCIS. You and thousands like you. 157p $2.50 Longmans

239 Roman Catholic church—Doctrinal and controversial works. Christianity—Evidences 49-8128

"In this little book a Roman Catholic priest, himself a convert from Anglicanism, appeals to the 'separated brethren.' The book is in the form of a personal communication to the unbeliever. . . Father Dudley begs leave to take the individual inquirer by the hand and lead him step by step to the doors of the church. Of special interest to the non-Catholic are chapters dealing with devotion to the Blessed Virgin, the meanings of being in good or bad faith as these things relate to salvation outside of the church, and the treatment of confession." Crozer Q

Cleveland Open Shelf p5 Mr '50

"The style is simple, direct, and at times even moving." H. B. Scholefield
+ Crozer Q 27:86 Ja '50 450w

DUERR, EDWIN. Radio and television acting; criticism, theory, and practice. 417p $6.50; college ed $5 Rinehart

792 Television broadcasting. Acting. Radio broadcasting 50-6410

A handbook for workers in radio and television, describing such aspects of the professional work as voice and speech, microphone techniques and procedures, emotional and comedy acting, etc. Selected readings at ends of chapters. List of plays and recordings. Indexes.

"Valuable handbook for actors, directors, script writers and producers."
+ Bookmark 9:182 My '50 40w

"The chapter on 'The Nature of Acting' is particularly illuminating and rewarding to the non-professionals. Many scripts illustrative of various types of microphone readings are included. A list of available radio plays and recordings is included." Larry Walters
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ag 20 '50 210w

"Highly recommended for universities having radio and television departments as well as to public library radio-television drama and theatre collections." George Freedley
+ Library J 75:869 My 15 '50 70w

Reviewed by Saul Carson
New Repub 123:21 O 23 '50 340w

"The publishers of this volume call it the 'only practical, professional book in its field for actors, producers and script writers.' Though the title suggests that Mr. Duerr limits his subject to two restricted areas, he has turned out a thoughtful, comprehensive text covering the major topics of general acting theory." E. F. D.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 Jl 16 '50 170w

DUESENBERRY, JAMES STEMBLE. Income, saving, and the theory of consumer behavior. 128p $2.50 Harvard univ. press

339.4 Income. Consumption (economics) 49-50134

"In this study of income saving and expenditure, Professor Duesenberry (Harvard) finds some natural conclusions, such as the fact that saving has a distinct relationship to previous income, and that changes in interest rates and income all have a bearing on the question. Consumers' individual preferences also are a factor." (Current Hist) Bibliography. Index.

"This book is a thought-stimulating addition to the growing literature on the consumption function. Although pointedly directed at the Keynesian formulation, it seeks to establish a generalized theory of consumer behavior relevant to a wide range of problems in demand and welfare theory as well." A. M. McIsaac
+ Ann Am Acad 272:229 N '50 950w

Current Hist 18:100 F '50 70w

Reviewed by J. E. Cross
+ Library J 75:46 Ja 1 '50 110w

"This expanded doctoral dissertation makes a significant contribution to the economic-theoretic study of household behavior in savings and consumption decisions. A novel feature is the attempt made to integrate current psychosociological models of individual and group behavior with the neo-classical analysis of consumer preference developed by Alfred Marshall and Vilfredo Pareto."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:54 Mr '50 200w

DUFFUS, ROBERT LUTHER. Non-scheduled flight. 235p $2.50 Macmillan

49-49686

A novel about the passengers on an unscheduled flight between New Orleans and Guatemala City. There was a crash; but all of the characters, living and dead, got exactly what they wanted.

"Well written; the characters and their doubts and uncertainties are believable."

+ Booklist 46:133; 159 D 15 '49; Ja 1 '50

"The author impartially doles out eighteen fates with a bit of amateurish philosophizing to explain each one. The smartly staged action is deftly handled." Mary Sandrock

Cath World 170:395 F '50 300w

"'Non-Scheduled Flight' is good entertainment; it reads well and it does not suffer for lack of action or suspense any more than it does for lack of character portrayal; but for all that it remains primarily a venture into light reading." August Derleth

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 F 19 '50 250w

"A psychological study, set in the frame of flight. Holding."

+ Kirkus 17:633 N 15 '49 160w

"There's nothing original about this book, but some readers will find it a time-occupier." W. K. Harrison

Library J 74:1818 D 1 '49 100w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Ja 22 '50 450w

"There are too many people with too many problems in this short book for it to achieve the richness of characterization that makes a truly first-rate novel. But Mr. Duffus has written a sane, an articulate, a suspenseful, and, in the end, a hopeful love story, with two or three very appealing people in it. You'll like Miss Twill, and you'll find 'Non-Scheduled Flight' continuously interesting." Richard Match

+ N Y Times p26 Ja 22 '50 450w

New Yorker 25:98 Ja 21 '50 70w

"Mr. Duffus conducts his tale with expert precision; he writes simply and well; he knew what he wanted to say when he set out, and he says it. If his novel is not precisely profound, it is nevertheless, sensible, and will remind the reader of a few things about living that he will recognize as true. Since the reminder is wrapped up in a story in which both suspense and action are given their full weight, along with all the rest of it, 'Non-Scheduled Flight' should find a good audience and that audience should find it good." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 Ja 18 '50 750w

Sat R of Lit 33:18 Mr 4 '50 130w

"A psychological study and a well-told tale."

+ Wis Lib Bul 46:19 Ja '50

DUFFY, CLINTON T. San Quentin story, as told to Dean Jennings. 253p $2.75 Doubleday

365.9794 California. State prison, San Quentin 50-8524

The warden of San Quentin tells about what has gone on there during his lifetime. "He tells of the early days at San Quentin, when Tom Mooney was the best-known prisoner there, and when riots, prison breaks and daring escapes were frequent occurrences. In addition to these stories, Warden Duffy also reports on the many reforms which he has carried out, and which have made him one of the country's leading penological experts." (Springf'd Republican)

Booklist 46:347 Jl 15 '50

Chicago Sun p5 Ag 1 '50 90w

Kirkus 18:273 My 1 '50 190w

"For those interested in the psychology of crime, or merely in an unusual set of thrillers, Warden Duffy's case history should prove exciting reading." Frances Witherspoon

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Jl 9 '50 850w

"If I had a crime story to assign, or if I were a Big House warden looking for a biographer, I would have no one but Dean Jennings. If I were a crime writer, I would study this book to learn the important lesson it imparts." Meyer Berger

+ N Y Times p18 Ag 13 '50 500w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p10 Jl 8 '50 420w

"A wholly lively and dramatic narrative by an expert. As it happens, I've been in a position to read a rather large proportion of everything Dean Jennings has written in the last decade or so, and I have no hesitation about saying that this book, both technically and 'humanly,' if I may put it that way, is the best writing job he's ever done." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p10 Jl 9 '50 1500w

Springf'd Republican p7D Je 25 '50 170w

Wis Lib Bul 46:18 S '50

DUGDALE, GEORGE STRATFORD. Whitehall through the centuries. 192p il $3.75 Macmillan

942.1 London—Streets—Whitehall

"At a time when Whitehall is being sharply changed as Vincent Harris's enormous Government block arises to dwarf Inigo Jones's Banqueting House, the gentle Georgian mansions, and the Victorian and Edwardian official buildings, a new authoritative book on the 'Street of Kings' is due. . . Whitehall Through the Centuries is based on the Lister Collection of prints, now the property of the Treasury, which illustrate the development of Whitehall from the earliest pictorial records with some recent plans and pictures, making 84 plates." Manchester Guardian

Reviewed by Gilbert Twiss

Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 N 5 '50 120w

"Mr. Dugdale has done his work thoroughly and well with proper references and useful appendices."

+ Manchester Guardian p4 Ag 11 '50 150w

"Though much patient research has been clearly expanded on its compilation Whitehall Through the Centuries reads rather like an old-fashioned local guide-book. Mr. Dugdale has quite properly subordinated historical to topographical changes. . . The illustrations, mainly drawn from the R. J. Lister collection of old prints and drawings at the Treasury, are often delightful."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p503 Ag 11 '50 900w

DU JARDIN, MRS ROSAMOND (NEAL). Wait for Marcy. 221p $2.50 Lippincott

50-14655

Novel for 'teen aged girls about Marcy Rhodes. Her older brother manages her first date for her, and from then on Marcy learns fast about the business of growing up.

Booklist 47:139 D 1 '50

"There's a good humored wholesomeness about this book, that makes it pleasant all-family reading." F. D. Heron

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 N 5 '50 140w

Kirkus 18:611 O 1 '50 100w

"Recommended." R. O. Bostwick

+ Library J 75:2084 D 1 '50 70w

"This is a completely authentic report on the teen age with its hopes and fears—and in its very accents. It is more than a story of how a girl handles her first date and gains confidence in her contacts with boys; it is also a wise and amusing presentation of the changing relationships in one family as brother and sister grow up and parents must be patient." M. C. Scoggin

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 O 22 '50 150w

DU JARDIN, R. N.—Continued
"In addition to her ability to understand adolescents and speak their language, Mrs du Jardin has a sense of humor. The hero and heroine are not only very modern young people, they are wholesome young people with whom parents would like to have their sons and daughters associate." M. R. B.
+ Sat R of Lit 33:54 N 11 '50 150w

DULLES, FOSTER RHEA. American Red cross; a history. 554p $5 Harper
361.5 Red Cross. U.S. American national Red cross 50-8717

A history of the American Red cross society from its foundation in 1881, giving detailed information about the growth of the society under Clara Barton, and bringing the story thru World war II, and up to the present. Bibliographical notes. Index.

Booklist 47:35 S 15 '50
Bookmark 10:3 O '50 20w

"Clear and readable, the progress and pitfalls outlined through the years provides a sociological and ideological yardstick of America. . . This is an objective report that is heartening without whitewashing."
+ Kirkus 18:275 My 1 '50 130w

"Recommended for all libraries." E. P. Nichols
+ Library J 75:1177 Jl '50 150w

Reviewed by Frances Witherspoon
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 S 17 '50 950w

"Here is a wealth of historic material readably written by an author who shuns academic language. Here, too, is balance. While the book extols the idealism that is a part of Red Cross work, it also peers closely at some disturbing by-products of the missions of mercy performed by this organization." Lucy Freeman
+ N Y Times p24 Ag 6 '50 450w

"For any one truly interested in the Red Cross the book is fascinating, though not too easy reading." R. S. E.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p30 D 10 '50 220w

"This is a book for which the Red Cross and the American people should be grateful—the Red Cross because it is a faithful history of its activities, and the American people because the institution is peculiarly its own and could not have existed unless it had been wholeheartedly supported." E. M. Chute
+ Sat R of Lit 33:18 S 2 '50 470w

"An excellent account." H. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p8C Jl 9 '50 180w

DULLES, JOHN FOSTER. War or peace. 274p $2.50; pa $1 Macmillan 327.73 U.S.—Foreign relations. World politics. International relations 50-7251

This study of our present international affairs is based on the author's intimate firsthand experiences. He analyses the situation between the United States and Russia; traces the course of international affairs during the last five years; explains our present foreign policy; and sets forth a program to be followed. Index.

"War or Peace is a sensible book which ought to be widely read, even if in its autobiographical aspects it does suggest that John Foster Dulles has batted 1,000 and that his Democratic collaborators do not have quite such a spectacular batting average." W. T. R. Fox
+ — Am Pol Sci R 44:751 S '50 600w
Booklist 46:272 My 1 '50
Bookmark 9:209 Je '50 40w

"The book contains nothing novel or revolutionary. It is a clear, objective, carefully worded description of the steps by which the Soviet has arrived at its present appalling predominance; and it suggests practical measures that must be taken if human freedom is to survive."
+ Cath World 171:320 Jl '50 100w

Reviewed by Irving Pflaum
Chicago Sun p7 Ap 21 '50 240w

Reviewed by Chesly Manly
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ap 30 '50 700w

Cleveland Open Shelf p9 My '50
Foreign Affairs 29:143 O '50 20w

"A short book but an extremely important one, particularly in view of the appointment of John Foster Dulles to the State Department, the best insurance of the bipartisanship he advocates that the administration could give. It is an almost up to the minute book (the latest data bears the February 1950 dateline)—and a book that is in the main heartening in that he feels war can be avoided, provided our policies are extended and reinforced."
+ Kirkus 18:249 Ap 15 '50 340w

"A wide circulation should awaken the more conservative among Mr. Dulles readers to the real and present danger of Soviet ideological aggression. Recommended." Scott Adams
+ Library J 75:776 My 1 '50 110w

"Mr. Dulles has written an admirable book." T. J. Hamilton
+ Nation 170:452 My 13 '50 1400w

"Lawyer, churchman, diplomat, better than mediocre cold-war strategist, Dulles is a man of parts. But neither as Devil nor as thinker is he a figure of first-rate stature. . . He understands, for example, the need for admitting Communist China to its seat in the Security Council. He knows how to put the military boys in their place, being a civilian interested in political warfare rather than a military-minded devotee of the hydrogen bomb as the ultimate weapon. He assesses the political-moral price of a preventive war, and he knows also that out of the chaos of the next war a new totalitarianism is bound to emerge. Yet you finish the book with no sense that your insights have been deepened or your spirit nourished. Dulles is a busy, ambitious man with a mastery of detail and a finger in numberless pies." Max Lerner
New Repub 122:18 My 15 '50 1850w

Reviewed by Aylmer Vallance
New Statesman & Nation 40:127 Jl 29 '50 1100w

"It seems to me not unfair to Mr. Dulles to say that the raw materials of a fresh, new approach are here but that what is wanted is more boldness and a more dramatic imagination. . . Mr. Dulles writes with simplicity and directness." Marquis Childs
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 Ap 30 '50 1550w

"Mr. Dulles is one of the most reflective men in public life today. He has had unusual experience in the field of foreign affairs. He has not been burdened by the exigencies of administration, and, given more time on this book, he might have come up with one or two of the answers that have eluded the busy and harassed officials in Washington. He has not done that, however. He has written a good book, but like almost every other book ever written, it is not nearly as good as it might have been." James Reston
+ — N Y Times p3 Ap 23 '50 1900w
New Yorker 26:119 My 6 '50 250w

"The book does a great deal to make the meanings of recent world events and of our policy available to the public. Its wide popularity encourages hope that public understanding may keep pace with at least the broad outlines of the world situation and that popular American support of the United Nations will survive the failure to realize immediately Wilkie's dream of One World." Basil Rauch
+ Pol Sci Q 65:592 D '50 1050w

"It is clear that Mr. Dulles returns to official diplomatic life with seasoned convictions and with his devotion to principles unshaken. There are reports that it was the reading of this book which convinced President Truman of Mr. Dulles' indispensability to the present phase of American foreign policy making. Certainly few policy makers have come to the Government with their convictions so well established and clearly set forth." G. G. Stevens
+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 Ap 16 '50 1150w

"Students of foreign affairs should by all means read Mr. Dulles's new book. It has occasional and revealing bits of diplomatic history such as his account of Molotov's tactics at the London Conference of September 1945 and the close liaison between Dulles and Dewey during the 1948 campaign. But the book is chiefly valuable in showing the achievements and difficulties of bi-partisan cooperation in foreign affairs. . . Most readers will, however, be more interested in Mr. Dulles's recommendations for future policy." P. H. Douglas
+ Sat R of Lit 33:14 My 27 '50 850w

"An important book; it might be called a manual for survival."
+ School & Society 71:238 Ap 15 '50 20w

Reviewed by Herbert Agar
Spec 184:56 Jl 14 '50 800w

"Whether or not one agrees with all of Mr. Dulles' conclusions, his book is worth the serious consideration of all people who want to live in peace and security." H. H.
Springf'd Republican p8C Ap 30 '50 210w

Reviewed by Hans Kohn
Survey 86:333 Je '50 160w

Times [London] Lit Sup p527 Ag 25 '50 900w

"The book outlines the problem of the 'cold war' with considerable realism. Quotations from Communist ideology are timely and pertinent. The solutions offered seem, however, rather vague and ill-defined, and some statements on the Asiatic situation are little short of naive. The virtue of universality for which Mr. Dulles strives is often marred by the stubbornness of particular facts which he ignores."
+ — U S Quarterly Bkl 6:342 S '50 290w

Wis Lib Bul 46:13 N '50

Reviewed by Dexter Perkins
Yale R n s 40:160 autumn '50 250w

DU MAURIER, DAPHNE (MRS F. A. M. BROWNING). Parasites. 305p $3 Doubleday 49-50221

The three Delaneys, legitimate and illegitimate children of a famous theatrical couple, amused the public with their individual antics. Faced with the accusation of being parasites, they looked back into their past lives and decided to reform. Maria would give up her acting and devote more time to her family, Niall would write a piano concerto instead of numerous ephemeral dance tunes, and Celia would go back to her writing and drawing. However it was too late to change as they all discovered in the days to come.

"This is evocative writing: a study of talent and temperament, a picture of backstage rehearsals and tumultuous first nights, of a home life in hotels and on tour. . . The scenes of the stage are delightful in detail. . . Niall's composing seems to me to leave something to be desired; Tin Pan Alley, I think, requires a tougher schooling. No, it is for the character drawing of the four women and for Pappy's magnificence that this book will be remembered." Edward Weeks
+ — Atlantic 185:81 F '50 480w

— Booklist 46:58; 141 O 15 '49; D 15 '49

"A sophisticated, impressionistic, modern novel, which subtly and wittingly suggests the artistic world."
+ Bookmark 9:82 Ja '50 60w

Reviewed by Mary Sandrock
— Cath World 170:472 Mr '50 250w

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun p37 Ja 3 '50 400w

Reviewed by Fanny Butcher
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ja 8 '50 500w

"The novel is unwaveringly readable. Its touch is light and expert, precisely right. Only a few feeble protests is a reviewer impelled to make. Surely the ending is clumsily devised. . . And then there is the chapter devoted to a week end which all the Delaneys spent in the ancestral home of Maria's in-laws. There they are made to appear as clowns; the account is farcical and simply will not do." Margaret Williamson
+ — Christian Science Monitor p12 Ja 10 '50 650w

Cleveland Open Shelf p4 Ja '50

"The dust jacket on Miss du Maurier's latest novel calls the story 'sophisticated, gay, and sometimes tragic.' In spots it assuredly is sophisticated and gay, but on the whole, tragic is about the right word. For an author with Miss du Maurier's flair for creating a mood and telling a tale, it is about the dullest concoction of neurosis and sex this side of Hollywood." C. H. Weiss
— Commonweal 51:371 Ja 6 '50 400w

"Skilled craftsmanship, but not so holding a story as Rebecca."
Kirkus 17:607 N 1 '49 260w

Reviewed by Anne Whitmore
Library J 74:1903 D 15 '49 80w

"Miss Daphne du Maurier reveals in another form the capacity that so much distinguished her father. The late Sir Gerald du Maurier would appear in a worthless part, and the audience dared not blink so long as he was on the stage. Miss du Maurier uses equally poor material and establishes the same instantaneous, gripping contact with her audience. The shoddiness of this story and the consummate skill with which she tells it are a revelation." Elizabeth Jenkins
— + Manchester Guardian p4 O 21 '49 150w

"Miss du Maurier is often superficial and still more often embarrassingly whimsical, but she has moments of devastating honesty and an extremely shrewd and compassionate understanding of the brilliant and second-rate. I am not saying The Parasites is a masterpiece; far from it. But I think it only decent to admit that I have found many novels with far fewer faults and far more pretensions infinitely less readable." Antonia White
+ — New Statesman & Nation 38:521 N 5 '49 250w

Reviewed by F. H. Bullock
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 Ja 1 '50 900w

"'The Parasites' can be criticized from several points of view. Its end leaves us in the air and the suicide of Niall strikes me as unlikely and unnecessary. The father is somewhat of a reach-me-down Bohemian type. Furthermore, I never could understand why the anarchic Delaneys forced their company so insistently upon the married sister's correct 'county' husband. They would have hated being in his house. Why wait to be kicked out of premises you never enjoyed?. . . Yet, when all that is said, 'The Parasites' remains as easily readable as Miss du Maurier's plays are easily watchable." Ivor Brown
N Y Times p1 Ja 1 '50 1850w

"As the story proceeds we learn a good deal about the Delaneys, past and present, but nothing to show that they are more parasitical, or more deadly, than anyone else in the world. Aside from their overwhelming preoccupation with themselves as a family, they are just nice, charming people, and it is hard to become wrought up over their problems, which Miss du Maurier discusses intensely and at length."
New Yorker 25:85 Ja 14 '50 140w

"Miss du Maurier is a professional writer with her own unmistakable flavor. The smooth, glossy surface of her novel cracks here and there with the pressure of melodrama, but on the whole, she has done a creditable job in laying bare the lives of rootless people who are, and this is the tragic portent, aware of their shortcomings. Yet we believe that her admirers will be happy to see her abandon social tragi-comedy and go back to narrating the adventures of general's daughters and lady pirates." Jane Voiles
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p24 Ja 8 '50 700w

"This is a little too near to daydreaming tushery." R. D. Charques
— Spec 183:616 N 4 '49 140w

"Today many novelists have almost forgotten how to tell a story. Not so Daphne du Maurier [she] can weave a fascinating and intriguing story out of the shoddy and shabby

DU MAURIER, DAPHNE—Continued
tatters the average novelist would not even notice. 'The Parasites' is of this genre and it has much of the same compelling magic which made 'Rebecca' a best-seller, even though it woefully lacks the good rich stock that was the basis of the earlier novel." L. S. Munn

+ Springf'd Republican p8C F 5 '50 390w

Time 55:93 Ja 16 '50 440w

"Novelettish, sentimental and melodramatic, The Parasites is also (within its convention) competently conceived and at times very amusingly written."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p729 N 11 '49 130w

Wis Lib Bul p24 Mr '50

DU MAURIER, DAPHNE (MRS F. A. M. BROWNING). September tide; a play in three acts. 127p $2 Doubleday

822 50-8525

A modern comedy of manners. A charming English widow living in Cornwall takes in her newly married daughter and her artist husband. In their two-months stay the artist, who is a generation older than his wife, falls in love with his mother-in-law and she with him. The situation is finally cleared up when the artist discovers that his tomboy wife really adores both her mother and her husband.

"By blowing a little dust off the plot, this well-known writer has achieved a gentle and pleasantly sentimental comedy of manners wherein artist son-in-law falls in love with the more mellow grace of his wife's mother."

+ Kirkus 18:274 My 1 '50 100w

"Despite the dénouement, which seems too contrived to be wholly effective, and a stock device which opens every act with a servant's exposition, Miss du Maurier has written a spirited and very entertaining social comedy. It will be playing in theatres for years. The cinema, however, is its proper medium. Ladies, everywhere, will go and laugh their hearts out—and weep for lost love." Richard Gaines

+ — N Y Times p14 Ag 6 '50 460w

"'September Tide' never quite adds up to anything more than a pleasant little comedy of manners. . . That this play acts well enough was proved by Gertrude Lawrence in London; but for reading purposes Miss Du Maurier's novels are likely to prove more exciting." Frank Jones

San Francisco Chronicle p22 Ag 13 '50 420w

DUMBAULD, EDWARD. Declaration of independence, and what it means today. 194p il $3 Univ. of Okla. press

973.313 U.S. Declaration of independence 50-9691

"The present volume is designed for the accommodation of readers desiring to ascertain the meaning of any particular passage of the text of the Declaration. Accordingly, I have sought to present relevant data in convenient form, rather than to develop a significantly original treatment of the subject. I have included in my commentary, however, any observations that seemed pertinent and interesting, whether novel or otherwise. In connection with many passages in the Declaration, I have referred to related ideas appearing elsewhere in Jefferson's writings or in sources he may have used. In the Introduction, I have discussed briefly the adoption of the Declaration and the texts of the Declaration." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 47:58 O 1 '50

"So much has been written about the great Declaration that it might not seem possible at this date to say anything fresh and useful about it. Mr. Dumbauld has proved that it is possible."

+ Nation 171:418 N 4 '50 230w

"Mr. Dumbauld has properly refrained from pinning the immortal Declaration down to a specific set of solutions of contemporary ills, which might be effective today and unwise tomorrow. He stresses the meaning of the document, and by helping us to understand it he has made it easier for us to apply its principles. Having quickened our faith he leaves with us a challenge. Very definitely this is in the spirit and the manner of Thomas Jefferson." Dumas Malone

+ N Y Times p6 S 3 '50 1300w

Wis Lib Bul 46:16 N '50

DUNCAN, DAVID. Serpent's egg. 243p $3 Macmillan

49-49687

A story of labor and unions in California during the war. The effects of a labor dispute over a bus-driver's pay, are traced in the course of the lives of a number of people, at first only remotely connected with the case.

Booklist 46:149; 172 Ja 1 '50; Ja 15 '50

"An intellectually and emotionally honest and holding handling of some precarious points of personal conduct."

+ Kirkus 17:659 D 1 '49 220w

"An excellent novel with pointed, realistic dialogue, interesting philosophy, and legitimate suspense." E. F. Walbridge

+ Library J 74:1904 D 15 '49 80w

"In the handling of his sub-plots, the author never lets his material wander away from his central story. In exploring Kensington's character and motivations, however, Mr. Duncan is less successful. The hero's sense of inferiority, his inability to act spontaneously, based, it appears, on an underprivileged youth and an artificial foot, is always a little murky in origin. The gesture with which Kensington simultaneously throws away his inhibitions and his career is ironic and exciting, but just why as a result he should feel better and more free is not clear. Most readers, however, will not be inclined to quibble about the philosophical content of 'The Serpent's Egg,' for there is plenty of story and action to make it good reading." Joanna Spencer

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Ja 29 '50 550w

"'The Serpent's Egg' is sharp, literate, crystalline. Its theme demands the virtuoso touch, and it is a tribute to the author that he brings it off without special pleading." James Kelly

+ N Y Times p30 Ja 29 '50 240w

San Francisco Chronicle p16 F 19 '50 400w

"It is a pleasure to be able to write that in David Duncan's latest book he has succeeded where so many have failed. 'The Serpent's Egg' has none of the old clichés. There is nothing heroic about the main character and the author does not carry a torch for either side. . . 'The Serpent's Egg' is altogether a remarkable novel, and not the less so because the author's earlier books of mystery and suspense were well-written pot-boilers." Harrison Smith

+ Sat R of Lit 33:17 F 4 '50 600w

DUNCAN, WINIFRED. Private life of the protozoa; and of their neighbors, the metazoa and the insect larvae; il. by the author. (Humanizing science ser) 141p $3 Ronald

591.5 Animals, Legends and stories of 50-10217

These sketches, slightly fictionized, picture the life of the inhabitants of an aquarium in the author's garden in Mexico. Illustrated with line drawings by the author.

"Her observations are as keen and as delightful as in the earlier book, Webs in the Wind [Book Review Digest 1949] and the drawings as exquisite. A few sophisticated readers may feel that she has in spots carried anthropomorphism a little too far, but her slight failing in this direction should be forgiven in the light of what she has accomplished in making primitive life processes interesting." R. R. Hawkins

+ Library J 75:2008 N 15 '50 70w

"Much of what she sees may be found in dry outline in textbooks and scientific journals, but she writes with wit as well as with imagination, so that even those not totally ignorant of her subject will find it amusing. Those who are totally ignorant will be moved, if anything can move them, to interest." J. W. K.
+ Nation 171:536 D 9 '50 300w

"The publishers, if we are to believe the dust jacket, take this book seriously. Let us hope no one else does." J. W. H.
— San Francisco Chronicle p32 D 10 '50 150w

DUNLOP, AGNES MARY ROBERTSON (ELISABETH KYLE, pseud). A little fire [Eng title: Douce]. 292p $3 Appleton

50-6939

A novel set in mid-Victorian times which parallels the story of Mary, Queen of Scots, and Elizabeth of England. Douce Albany, child of a French-Scottish marriage, is the central figure. After the death of her mother Douce takes command of the wine importing business which her mother had fought to keep from falling into the hands of the English branch of the firm. Douce marries a rotter, and when he dies in a fire, marries again and this time is abandoned. Years later she is accused of murdering her first husband and is convicted.

Booklist 46:286 My 15 '50

"Although some may question the validity of a transfer such as this, the story still retains its sympathy and suspense, provides popular, period reading."
+ — Kirkus 18:243 Ap 15 '50 160w

"Engrossing thriller for vacation lists. Recommended." F. A. Boyle
+ Library J 75:775 My 1 '50 70w

"An intricate, somewhat sombre, but continuously fascinating story." Lisle Bell
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p13 My 21 '50 420w

"The question is not if Douce's defeat (or Mary's) is justified, but if this literary stunt is worthwhile. The answer is eventually No, though the author's style is trim, her characters scrupulously developed." William Kehoe
N Y Times p21 My 14 '50 110w

"Miss Kyle makes no bones about the fact that her heroine's life and character are as like as possible to those of Mary Queen of Scots. This is a pity because the trick spoils the impact of her book—the natural result of setting a merely pathetic figure alongside a tragic one."
New Yorker 26:107 Je 10 '50 80w

"A valiant experiment, if not entirely a successful one. . . Miss Kyle is a skilful storyteller, maintaining a high degree of suspense until the inevitable denouement. But by reducing the stakes and the heroic proportions of the original antagonists she has diminished her novel's dramatic impact. A great conflagration becomes 'A Little Fire'—indeed an accurate title." Ray Pierre
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:30 My 27 '50 240w

DUNLOP, AGNES MARY ROBERTSON (ELISABETH KYLE, pseud). West wind; il. by Berkeley Williams junior. 277p $2.50 Houghton

50-8850

Mystery story for boys and girls.

Booklist 47:64 O 1 '50
Kirkus 18:352 Jl 1 '50 110w

"Recommended for the mystery shelf where it will be popular with the 10-14 age group." A. M. Wetherell
+ Library J 75:1516 S 15 '50 80w
Wis Lib Bul 46:27 S '50

DUNN, A. F. (HARRY WEEDON, pseud) Pilgrim's guide to Rome. 206p il maps $2.75 Prentice-Hall

914.56 Rome (city)—Description 50-6165

Guidebook for Holy Year pilgrims to Rome. Concentrates on the catacombs, St Peter's, the Vatican, and the seven churches which are of special interest to pilgrims. Information is given on planning the trip, accommodations, food, hospitals, and short trips from Rome to points of religious interest. Maps. Index.

Booklist 46:231 Mr 15 '50

"Original and picturesque 'maps' help to pack a large amount of topographical and historical information into a small space."
+ Cath World 171:80 Ap '50 70w

Reviewed by J. O. Supple
Chicago Sun p9 Ap 14 '50 50w

"It is more specifically a guide for Catholic pilgrims, though equally informative for tourists taking advantage of special Holy Year rates. It is to be commended for its large type and its thoughtful assumption that pilgrims and tourists alike have a vast number of needs." Ernestine Evans
+ Commonweal 51:587 Mr 10 '50 150w

"It is a book clearly conceived and executed with an authenticity of material that attests to the author's intimate knowledge of the Vatican." C. M. Cranfarra
+ N Y Times p32 Ap 2 '50 230w

"Compact, concise directory of information specifically designed for those going to Rome this year as pilgrims." H. S.
+ Sat R of Lit 33:42 Ap 8 '50 140w

Reviewed by J. W. Bogan
Springf'd Republican p5C My 28 '50 60w

DUNN, DOROTHY. Murder's web. 215p $2.50 Harper

50-7141

Detective story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun p5 Ap 28 '50 160w
Kirkus 18:116 F 15 '50 90w

"Miss Dunn's fine hand with atmosphere makes St. Louis, in the devastating heat of August, a brooding, murder-ridden city. For any one who has sampled a Missouri summer, she does not need to prove her case. Along with the other virtues of 'Murderer's Web' is a detective team, Rohan and Post, who are human beings, a blessed relief from the stock type usually penned."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p26 My 7 '50 160w

"It's a commonplace of whodunits that the victim must be despicable, so that a number of interesting and often likable people might well have wished him dead. Dorothy Dunn is bold enough to spurn this formula in her first novel and she presents a victim so innocent, so humanly appealing, that the reader's blood boils for retribution on the callous killer. There are other fresh departures here, too." A. B.
+ N Y Times p16 Ap 23 '50 190w
New Yorker 26:136 Ap 15 '50 100w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p20 My 14 '50 140w

"High grade."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:34 Ap 29 '50 40w
Wis Lib Bul 46:21 Jl '50

DUNNER, JOSEPH. Republic of Israel: its history and its promise. (Whittlesey house publication) 269p il $4.75 McGraw

956.9 Israel. Palestine—Politics and government 50-7653

"An examination of the republic of Israel with a discussion of the problems that face it. . . Beginning with the historical background for the establishment of the present state of Israel, covering the long years of Jewish migration from the destruction of Judea through the horrors of 1939-45, Dr. Dunner treats in detail the struggles of Jewish leaders and the Jewish people to establish the state against diplomatic pressure of all sorts and actual military attack. The author then explains the political, ideological and geographical nature of Israel, its internal and international policies and organizations. There is also a discussion of the Arab and Russian problems. Dr. Dunner, the head of the Zionist Organization in the Iowa area, is naturally concerned with the controversial issue of the loyalties of American Jews, and suggests a dual loyalty based on the similar democratic concepts of America and Israel. Appendix with the Mandate for Palestine and the text of the draft Constitution." (Kirkus) Selected references. Index.

DUNNER, JOSEPH—Continued

Reviewed by Fred Krinsky
Ann Am Acad 272:296 N '50 650w

Chicago Sun p7 Ap 21 '50 60w

"This very substantial history of the movements and events leading up to the founding of the Jewish state and of its development up to this time is written from the Zionist point of view. . . The essential records have been studied with care and many of the relevant documents are incorporated in the text or given in the appendices. Abundant and excellent illustrations are included." W. E. G.
+ Christian Century 67:997 Ag 23 '50 170w

"A readable and only moderately controversial story of Israel's historical background, its period of struggle between the two world wars, its fight for life against the combined attack of seven Arab nations and its present economic, political, and diplomatic status. But it is essentially an uninspired treatment of an inspiring subject." J. G. Harrison
— + Christian Science Monitor p14 My 16 '50 600w

"There is some controversial material in regard to the relation of Christianity to anti-Semitism, but this on the whole should be of general interest."
Kirkus 18:159 Mr 1 '50 170w

"In spite of the unfortunate first part, which should have been left to the historian, the report of the newest democracy is enlightening and informing reading." C. J. Roth
+ — Library J 75:692 Ap 15 '50 110w

" 'The Republic of Israel' is valuable as a simple, straightforward textbook which brings the record up to date. In the opinion of this reviewer, however, Dr. Dunner could profitably have devoted more attention to the problems implied in the title." Marie Syrkin
+ — Nation 170:625 Je 24 '50 550w

"Little is left untouched, nothing is probed to the depths. . . Although [Dr Dunner] writes confessedly as a Zionist, his tone is, on the whole, objective and calculated to inspire confidence. But the frequent and unwarranted injection of his own person into the narrative is disturbing and out of key with his purpose. It is a book to consult for its documentation, summaries, and schematic virtues." Marvin Lowenthal
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 My 28 '50 360w

"Mr. Dunner's 'The Republic of Israel' is competent in surveying events from the Roman destruction of the Temple through Herzl to the Mandate and Israel's birth. . . On the internal workings of Israel, he lays his critical apparatus aside." Hal Lehrman
+ N Y Times p19 My 14 '50 270w

"When Dr. Dunner surveys the already well-charted history of the Jewish dispersion, the lot of the Jews in a Christian world, and the story of the Palestine mandate, he does a masterful job of condensation. This material, however, the author tells us, was prepared at least in brief as early as 1943 and has apparently been carefully thought over and reworked. When the volume moves to more recent events, the style deteriorates." P. L. Hanna
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:24 Ag 5 '50 650w

"Students of the subject will find nothing especially new here, but those who want a connected, dispassionate story of the founding, the organization, and the problems of the new state, with its international relations, will find it in this volume." S. G. Inman
Survey 86:468 O '50 700w

DURANT, WILLIAM JAMES. Story of civilization [v4] The age of faith. 1196p il $7.50 also in 2v $10 Simon & Schuster

901 Civilization—History. anal Middle ages—History (35-10016)

Part four of the author's Story of civilization series is "a history of medieval civilization, Christian, Islamic and Judaic; from Constantine to Dante: A.D, 325-1300." (Subtitle) It "covers almost one thousand years of history, and covers it with the same abundance of concrete details, revealing anecdotes, arresting quotations and dramatic pen portraits that enlivened the preceding volumes." (N Y Herald Tribune Bk R) For earlier volumes see Book Review Digest, 1935, 1939, and 1944.

Booklist 47:154 D 15 '50

"The author writes with a ready pen and a persuasive rhetoric. His style is facile and witty, even sometimes brilliant, and his narrative, though unavoidably superficial, is not disfigured by the gross errors and prejudices that too frequently have marred the writing on medieval matters of otherwise competent scholars." G. B. Phelan
+ Commonweal 53:177 N 24 '50 1250w

Current Hist 19:356 D '50 70w

"Delightful reading, at no time overweighted with the sense of ponderous scholarship."
+ Kirkus 18:623 O 1 '50 130w

"Rarely has a historian writing for the general public combined such a readable style with such assiduous documentation, encyclopedic interests, and indefatigable zest. . . Now that Part IV has appeared on schedule, maintaining the high level of its predecessors, the success of this one-man campaign to produce a popular history of civilization can hardly remain in doubt." Geoffrey Bruun
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 N 12 '50 1250w

"Much of the book is perforce synthetic, assembling under one set of covers a good deal that can be read separately elsewhere. Yet its account of the origins of feudalism—the beginning of that institution is placed in the late Roman rather than the early barbarian days—is fresh and convincing, and if it says too much about philosophers and philosophy, what it says is eloquent and original." T. C. Chubb
N Y Times p5 O 29 '50 800w

"The outstanding merit of this book is that it does present the medieval chapter in the story of civilization substantially as a whole, vividly, intelligibly, and honestly." S. B. Packard
+ Sat R of Lit 33:19 D 9 '50 1000w

DURIEUX, MRS CAROLINE. 43 lithographs and drawings; foreword by Carl Zigrosser. [87p] $8 La. state univ. press

763 Lithographs. Drawings 49-11827

Forty-three lithographs and drawings by an American artist, a member of the fine arts faculty of Louisiana state university. The reproductions are divided into four parts: To the comic spirit; Fantasy; Portraits; and To the tragic spirit.

"At first glance these lithografs seem to be shallow and lacking in substance but upon closer study their meatiness begins to assert itself and the first impression is forgotten. Certainly many are satire, but not the sharp probing satire which cuts so deeply. Rather they are a genteel, needling satire reminding one in some strange way of the iron grillwork and fancy curtains of the artist's native city, New Orleans." Gary Sheahan
Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 Ja 29 '50 110w

Reviewed by Roy Hillbrook
Current Hist 18:41 Ja '50 30w

Reviewed by A. S. Plaut
Library J 75:44 Ja 1 '50 80w

DURUZ, WILLIS PIERRE. Principles of nursery management. 125p il $3.50 De La Mare

635.969 Nurseries (horticulture) Agr50-403

"A student's or beginner's handbook on starting a nursery and common practices—growing seedlings, propagation, pest control, moving and storage of stock, grading, shipping, and selling. Only a short section on the business management." (Booklist) Chapter references. Index.

Booklist 46:243 Ap 1 '50

+ San Francisco Chronicle p15 F 19 '50 60w

"Well-illustrated and charted, [the book] gives valuable information to those who are already in the nursery business, those who are beginning and those who are contemplating. Despite its serious tone it is interesting reading." R. T.

+ Springf'd Republican p3D Ja 22 '50 120w

DUSENBERY, H. SYRIL. Direct current motor manual. 275p il $3.50 Macmillan

621.3132 Electric motors 50-7295

"The direct current motor has special characteristics which make it superior in some applications to the alternating current motor. Since these applications include controlling devices and some kinds of automatic machinery whose use is increasing, even experienced electricians are being forced to refresh their memories on this type of motor. The present book covers the subject with fair thoroughness from the viewpoint of men charged with the selection or maintenance of direct current motors and controls for them." (Library J) Glossary. Index.

Booklist 47:7 S 1 '50

"The book should be useful in most collections on electrical engineering." R. R. Hawkins

Library J 75:873 My 15 '50 130w

DUSINBERRE, G. M. Numerical analysis of heat flow. 227p $4.50 McGraw

536.2 Heat—Conduction. Thermodynamics 49-49183

"The traditional approach to heat-flow problems is by means of calculus, a method which requires that the heat-transfer medium be considered as homogeneous. The alternative approach in which the material of the heat-transfer medium is considered as a finite series of points is expounded in this book. The numerical method, which has special application to such complicated heat-flow problems as the transmission of heat through laminated glass and heat conduction from soil to buried pipes, is fully developed and many worked examples of problems are included. Frequent comparisons between the analytical method and the numerical method are made." (N Y New Tech Bks) Bibliography. Index.

"The engineering profession has awaited with interest the publication of this book. . . The author might have aided reader comprehension of the material by devoting more space early in the book to the interpretation of the mechanics of the various operations. However, with a little effort at the outset, the reader will find this book to be a useful tool for the solution of a variety of heat transfer problems." W. M. Rohsenow

+ Chem & Eng N 28:1600 My 8 '50 300w

"This book is the first one which has extensively collected and presented numerical methods for the study of heat transfer with enough details and explanation for the benefit of those who want to learn this new tool. . . The value of the book is greatly enhanced by the comprehensive bibliography of about fifty references and a large number of home problems presented with some answers at the end of each chapter." J. C. Chu

+ Chem Eng 57:324 My '50 750w

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 75:109 Ja 15 '50 90w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:6 Ja '50

"Although the book seems to be unique as a text in its field, the methods presented are not completely new, in that they have been used extensively in other engineering fields and to a limited degree in this field also. The book should be a useful reference for those setting up or solving numerical problems in this field, as it shows how it is possible to obtain practical answers to various heat conduction problems for which classical methods of solution either cannot be applied, or actually require a greater amount of labor for their numerical evaluation."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:241 Je '50 210w

DU SOE, ROBERT C. Boatswain's boy; decorations by Arthur Harper. 227p $2.25 Longmans

50-10136

"The war of 1812 is the colorful setting for this story of gallant lads who suffered the hazards of sea warfare during the early days of our nautical history." (School & Society) For ages twelve to sixteen.

Booklist 47:141 D 1 '50

"An exciting book, packed with salty characters and tough experiences, which will please and inform and thrill any boy." E. B. H.

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 N 12 '50 190w

Cleveland Open Shelf p23 D '50

Kirkus 18:420 Ag 1 '50 190w

"Good character development. Girls as well as boys should enjoy the book." C. W. Field

+ Library J 75:2084 D 1 '50 70w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 D 31 '50 80w

"The book gives a good deal of well-chosen information about ships and sailors of that period. There is a nicely developed minor theme between Jonithan, who was born to lead, and Tim, who was born to be led. Another good point is that all Americans are not heroes and all Britishers villains. These things give it a pleasing sense of balance that atones for a rather conventional plot." M. P. A.

+ Sat R of Lit 33:52 N 11 '50 260w

School & Society 72:237 O 7 '50 30w

DUTT, RAJANI PALME. Britain's crisis of empire. 160p $1.25 Int. pubs.

942 Great Britain—Colonies, dominions, etc. Great Britain—Politics and government [50-7481]

"The editor of Labour Monthly, a British Marxist, views the British Empire. In his opinion techniques of imperialism have changed but objectives remain the same. He criticizes both Britain and the United States for failure to recognize the desire of backward peoples to be free. He charges the Labor government with failure to recognize the actual costs of its imperialistic program." (Am Pol Sci R) Index.

Am Pol Sci R 44:785 S '50 40w

Reviewed by Carroll Amundson

— Ann Am Acad 271:226 S '50 450w

Foreign Affairs 29:159 O '50 10w

DUTTON, RALPH. Wessex: Dorset, Wiltshire, Hampshire; with West Berkshire & East Somerset. (Face of Britain) 128p il 125pl $2.75 Batsford

914.22 Wessex, England

Description of the Wessex section of England, the once most powerful of the seven Saxon kingdoms. It comprises the counties of Hampshire, Wiltshire, and Dorset, plus parts of Berkshire and Somerset, and a bit of Devon. The text is both descriptive and historical; the illustrations are photographs, water colors, and drawings. Maps on endpapers. Index.

"Mr. Dutton maintains that the writer of a book about a country or a district should either view it with the fresh, detached vision of a newcomer, or else know it closely and intimately through constant year-long association. He himself was born in Wessex and still lives in the house where he was born, and so, fortunately, falls into the second category. Much love and the carefully culled knowledge of his native earth have gone into his book." Francis Russell

DUTTON, RALPH—Continued
+ Christian Science Monitor p8 My 27 '50 380w

"An account of this delightful region in 120 pages must necessarily be superficial. . . Mr. Dutton writes pleasantly, and his prejudices are frankly indicated; whether you like or dislike his Wessex will depend largely on your agreement or disagreement with them. For my part I share his love of unrestored churches and 'bombastic' eighteenth-century monuments, and his preferences in landscape are mine—for waters and deciduous trees rather than 'the sour land of pine trees and gorse scrub.' On the other hand, I protest strongly against his undiscriminating condemnation of the great nineteenth century and all its works." Jack Simmons
+ — Spec 184:588 Ap 28 '50 500w
Times [London] Lit Sup p466 Jl 28 '50 480w

DUVALL, MRS EVELYN RUTH (MILLIS). Facts of life and love for teenagers; sketches by Ruth Belew. 360p $3 Assn. press
176 Sexual ethics. Sex instruction 50-9756

Information for young people on the physical facts of life and love. Partial contents: How girls grow up; When boys become men; Where babies come from; Dating know-how; Parents and dates; Who it is you love—and how?; Petting; Saying no; Becoming engaged; Getting ready for marriage. No index.

Booklist 47:63 O 1 '50

Reviewed by F. D. Heron
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 O 29 '50 170w

"Always the emphasis is on intelligence, understanding, and emotional and spiritual growth. . . It would be wise to look this over before prescribing, since this report cannot cover the myriad subjects discussed, but this is an excellent treatment on a subject now discussed in schoolroom lectures and roundtables as an essential element in mental and moral health."
+ Kirkus 18:425 Ag 1 '50 270w

"Comprehensive, straightforward information for boys and girls in their teens and twenties." M. B. Snow
+ Library J 75:1417 S 1 '50 100w

"This sane, sound, reassuring book for young people gives not only the facts of sex and growth but also an understanding of how those facts are related to all of life, from etiquette to ethics. It minces no words in its descriptions of growing up and all the attendant problems of sex. The real contribution of this book is its emphasis upon the interrelation of the physical, social and moral aspects of life upon each individual's acceptance of responsibility for his own conduct." M. C. Scoggin
+ N Y Times p24 O 1 '50 360w

"A sound, authoritative compendium of facts as they are known so far in the fields of sociology, ethics, psychology, physiology and human development." Dorothy Widoff
Survey 86:515 N '50 500w

DUVALL, SYLVANUS MILNE. 101 questions to ask yourself before you marry. 171p $2.50 Assn. press
392.5 Marriage. Sexual hygiene 49-9545

"The author writes out of more than twenty years of experience as a counselor on marriage and family life problems. Out of his experience in both group and individual counseling, Dr. Duvall has chosen the 101 questions which people ask—or should ask—before they marry. His answers are based on research and clinical evidence which makes it a sound guide for those contemplating marriage." (J Home Econ) No index.

Reviewed by W. L. Kolb
Am Soc R 15:153 F '50 310w

"The readable style of the book will also help make it of great value to all young people contemplating marriage." M. I. Morgan
+ J Home Econ 42:46 Ja '50 150w

"The spiritual values of character and religion, while they frame the skeleton that supports the psychological and other insights, are integral in the book, as in its author. They never obtrude to scare away those conditioned against all mention of these intangibles, but they may be expected to do something valid toward winning over the skeptics." G. H. Groves
+ Survey 86:337 Je '50 180w

DUVOISIN, ROGER ANTOINE. Petunia; il. by [the author]. [32p] $1.50 Knopf 50-10286

Picture story book about Petunia, the silly goose, who found a book and carried it around, because she thought it would make her wise. After a catastrophe brought on by Petunia's silliness she suddenly discovered that its what is inside the book that counts. For ages four to eight.

"Some of Mr. Duvoisin's most droll and colorful pictures enhance a story whose ridiculous situations 4 to 8 year olds are sure to love." Polly Goodwin
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p7 D 24 '50 100w
Christian Science Monitor p11 N 13 '50 40w
Kirkus 18:640 O 15 '50 120w

"Not since 'The Little Red Hen' has there been written such an engaging story of a poultry heroine." E. T. Dobbins
+ Library J 75:2081 D 1 '50 50w

"With sparkling wit and wisdom, the little scene has been built into a gay story, full of the repeated acts of error children love. The bold, modern pictures give us this artist at his best. Brilliant colors may add to the sales appeal, but it is the clear bold line, so seldom seen before in Mr. Duvoisin's work, that is so able and admirable." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 N 12 '50 270w

Reviewed by Lois Palmer
N Y Times p33 N 12 '50 130w

DYER, JOHN PERCY. The gallant Hood. 383p il maps $3.50 Bobbs
B or 92 Hood, John Bell 50-9550

A critical and military biography of the Confederate General John Bell Hood. It follows his career from his native Kentucky, to West Point, then to Texas, his Civil war career, and his postwar life in New Orleans. In 1878 he was ruined financially. The next year he and several members of his family died during a yellow fever epidemic. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 47:74 O 15 '50

Reviewed by Avery Craven
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 S 24 '50 450w

"It is based on thorough study, on an examination of the formidable Official Records and of all relevant material. It is judicious and critical, makes no undue claims for Hood, does not adopt his quarrels or his prejudices. It is, perhaps, a bit hard on Longstreet and on Joe Johnston, but it is difficult for one writing the story of Hood not to be hard on Longstreet and Johnston, who so insistently invite criticism. It does not neglect the personal factor, and is admirable on the social background. The style, though not brilliant, is spirited and lucid." H. S. Commager
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 S 3 '50 1200w

"Mr. Dyer's book about this tragic figure is highly satisfactory; it is sympathetic but critical, condensed but clear, entertaining as well as scholarly." W. B. Hamilton

+ N Y Times p7 S 3 '50 500w

"Dr. Dyer has produced an interesting critical biography that helps to explain Hood and to suggest the causes of his ultimate failure as an independent army commander. . . There are, however, too many minor errors of detail, such as mistakes in spelling, incomplete or inaccurate footnote citations, and inaccurate statements." T. R. Hay

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:20 S 16 '50 750w

Time 56:114 S 11 '50 500w

DYER, MRS KATE GAMBOLD. Green sprig. 188p $2.50 Westminster press

50-3157

The adventures of a bound boy during the British occupation of Philadelphia. He not only wears a green sprig to show his loyalty to the colonists' cause but proves it by hiding an American spy and doing some spying himself.

"The characters are loosely drawn and Washington and Arnold chatter like magpies to young Stephan. Fast but uneven, although good background for the Andre-Arnold incident."

+ — Kirkus 18:135 Mr 1 '50 140w

"Well written. Character development well handled. For ages 12-14." Claire Nolte

+ Library J 75:989 Je 1 '50 70w

"The contrived spy plot is clumsily handled, lacking both suspense and plausibility. However, the book gives a good picture of life in the occupied city, with the British and their Tory friends making merry while Washington's men freeze and starve at near-by Valley Forge." N. B. Baker

— + N Y Times p18 Je 25 '50 160w

DYSON, GEORGE MALCOLM. Manual of organic chemistry for advanced students; v. 1, The compounds of carbon, hydrogen, oxygen and the halogens. 984p $12.50 Longmans

547 Chemistry, Organic

"This first volume starts with an introduction to chemical literature, nomenclature, and extends to steroids covering all the common classes of compounds of carbon, hydrogen, oxygen, and the halogens. The author has collected a vast amount of material on occurrence, structure, syntheses, and reactions. Appendixes are given at the end of each chapter giving lists of books, reviews, and references for further consultation, and also detailed treatment of certain special topics not covered in the main chapter." (Chem & Eng N) Index.

"The aims set forth by the author constitute too ambitious an undertaking for one author. This volume gives only a partial picture of organic chemistry for the period 1920-50." R. L. Shriner

Chem & Eng N 28:4124 N 20 '50 430w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:66 S '50

E

EAGLETON, CLYDE, ed. See Annual review of United nations affairs

EARLE, EDWARD MEAD, ed. Nationalism and internationalism; essays inscribed to Carlton J. H. Hayes. 510p $5.75 Columbia univ. press

904 Nationalism and nationality 50-6540

"No greater compliment can be paid an historian than the acknowledgment that his teachings have widened and deepened mankind's awareness of the past, present, and, to some degree, the future. Precisely this kind of compliment is paid here by colleagues, friends, and former students to Professor Hayes in honor of his half century of dedicated scholarship at Columbia University." School & Society

Reviewed by S. B. Fay

Am Hist R 56:69 O '50 900w

"These essays do not break new ground, even though they are judiciously written and carefully annotated in the best traditions of historical scholarship. They are, in effect, historical footnotes documenting and elaborating upon the conclusions so forcefully developed in Hayes' major works." H. A. Steiner

+ Am Pol Sci R 44:761 S '50 800w

"If one may single out an individual essay in this embarrassingly rich collection, mention might be made of 'A Secret Agent's Advice on America, 1797,' in which Frances S. Childs, associate professor of history, Brooklyn College, shares with us the information she dug out of a mountain of documents concerning a French undercover agent in the United States." Joseph McSorley

+ Cath World 172:76 O '50 270w

"The seventeen essays in this Festschrift are a worthy tribute to a great teacher. As Edward Mead Earle makes clear in a model introduction, they bear witness to Professor Hayes's breadth of interpretation, to his multiple interests, to his prophetic gift for singling out those forces in modern Europe that Americans have most urgent need to study. Viewed in retrospect, his prescience appears almost uncanny. . . These essays offer dramatic proof that this great virtue of a great teacher continues to inspire those who have been privileged to know him and to work with him." Geoffrey Bruun

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 My 7 '50 900w

"The essays in this collection are unified not in theme or treatment, but in their purpose: to pay homage to one of the outstanding teachers of modern European history in the United States. . . [Mr. Hayes's] influence will live on not only among his students but also among historians and political scientists, because he pioneered in two all-important fields. He was the first in the United States to recognize nationalism as a chief moving force in modern history. . . Again, he was the first to see clearly that the term 'nationalism' covers very different and even opposed manifestations." Hans Kohn

+ N Y Times p35 Mr 19 '50 1050w

Reviewed by Crane Brinton

Sat R of Lit 33:24 My 6 '50 850w

School & Society 71:222 Ap 8 '50 50w

"The quality of the papers is uniformly high, and all of the standard techniques of social science research and writing find some expression in the various papers. Some of the contributors are not known widely, but they are good people with whom to become acquainted."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:201 Je '50 300w

EARLY, ELEANOR. New York holiday. 376p $3.75 Rinehart

917.47 New York (city)—Description

50-10517

Informal, subjective, guide book to New York covering its famous streets and shops, its old homes and taverns, its restaurants, museums, and landmarks. Includes many stories and anecdotes of people who have lived in or visited New York thruout its history.

Booklist 47:85; 114 N 1 '50; N 15 '50

"Once again Eleanor Early is reinstated as my favorite travel guide, this time with a book that makes me realize how little I know of my home town. She had slipped a bit in seeming too smart alecky, but she's gotten away from that without sacrificing the buoyant enthusiasm and light touch."

+ Kirkus 18:583 S 15 '50 160w

"Recommended as an entertaining, but not too important addition to public library travel collections." H. R. Forbes

+ Library J 75:1654 O 1 '50 110w

"Whether you're a seasoned New Yorker or a visiting fireman, you'll find much to enjoy in these pages." H. I. Brock

+ N Y Times p27 D 10 '50 180w

EARLY, ELEANOR—Continued

"Less than a guide and more of a collection of pleasant, sometimes historical tales. Except for the section on restaurants, it isn't the kind of a travel book you would carry in your hand while you comb old streets. It is the kind of book you will find pleasant to read if you are someone who lives in New York or someone who lives elsewhere."

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:48 N 25 '50 190w

EARNEST, ERNEST PENNEY. S. Weir Mitchell: novelist and physician. 279p il $3.50 Univ. of Pa. press

B or 92 Mitchell, Silas Weir 50-8063

Biography of this Philadelphia physician and novelist, whose long life covered the years from 1829 to 1914. Among his friends were such men as Oliver Wendell Holmes, William Dean Howells, and Edward Bok. Mitchell was a pioneer in psychosomatic medicine and wrote many medical treatises. He was also one of the first novelists to deal with the neurotic personality. His best-known novel is Hugh Wynne, a story of the Quakers at the time of the Revolution. Index.

"Prof. Earnest's able, thoro, and frequently entertaining biography of Weir Mitchell may not, perhaps, turn out to be the definitive study of this once well known physician and novelist, but, for all present and immediately forseeable purposes, it should adequately serve as such. . . In the light of what we are told, and more especially on the strength (or weakness) of what we are shown, we're afraid that as a literary figure, Dr. Mitchell remains after this 'revaluation' what he always was—a second, or third. rater. . . It is hardly Prof. Earnest's fault that this is not a better book. It is Dr. Mitchell's." J. A. Clark

+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Jl 23 '50 320w

Nation 171:134 Ag 5 '50 130w

"Since there is little likelihood that another biographical study of Dr. Weir Mitchell will be called for, the writer of this life may take satisfaction in the thought that his work will not soon be superseded. In the present instance the possibility of rivalry is still further lessened by the fact that Professor Earnest has done a thoroughly first-rate job." G. F. Whicher

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 My 28 '50 1050w

"This scholarly biography of a man who was 'almost a genius' to his contemporaries reminds the present-day reader that Dr. Mitchell's 'Injuries to the Nerves and Their Consequences' (published in 1864) was a standard text for the French of World War I, that toxicology and immunology owe much to his studies of rattlesnake venom. . . Mr. Earnest, a Professor of English at Temple University, has obviously made an intensive study of both the man and his era. . . [He] has drawn an engaging portrait of a man who hated sham in both the world of science and letters." I. W. Voorhees

+ N Y Times p22 Je 4 '50 220w

"Mr. Earnest has produced a book that is undistinguished but not unintelligent. . . It does not really take us into the late-nineteenth-century American world and the special Philadelphia milieu in which Weir Mitchell flourished. There is a story here that has still not been told, a chapter of intellectual history that has not been adequately written." Edmund Wilson

+ — New Yorker 26:63 Ag 5 '50 950w

"A thoughtful and heavily documented study of Mitchell and his place in medicine and letters." Marguerite Clark

+ Sat R of Lit 33:33 Jl 22 '50 1200w

EARP, UNUS F. Rural electrification engineering. 313p il $3.50 McGraw

621.393 Rural electrification. Electricity in agriculture 50-1502

A textbook designed for professional agricultural engineering courses in rural electrification. The author is associate professor of Agricultural engineering at Virginia Polytechnic institute. Index.

Booklist 46:256 Ap 15 '50

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 75:699 Ap 15 '50 130w

"A moderate amount of previous education in engineering fundamentals is assumed, but in its own area the book is introductory. Nevertheless, the discussions of such topics as the design of rural distribution lines is complete enough to prepare the reader for practical work."

N Y New Tech Bks 35:37 My '50

EASTWOOD, DOROTHEA. River diary. 256p $3 Houghton

914.243 Usk river. Monmouthshire—Description and travel 50-9850

A diary kept by the author during a season at the family fishing hut on the River Usk, near the border of Wales. Here they lived near to nature, her husband fishing; she herself painting and attending to the few daily chores; and their young son following "those white designs that children drive."

"Ostensibly a journal, a day-by-day record, the book is really a distillation of experiences. One never quite knows, and could hardly care less, how many years have gone into its making. Which means that, transcending the literal, it is truer than fact; unhitched to time." Doris Peel

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 N 4 '50 1800w

"This is one of those rare books that enriches the mind and strengthen the heart. It is English nature writing in the finest tradition: sensitive perception, many details, accurate descriptions, personal comments, and philosophical responses to the innumerable facets of country life." H. S. Pearson

+ N Y Times p52 N 12 '50 230w

Times [London] Lit Sup p448 Jl 21 '50 550w

Wis Lib Bul 46:13 N '50

EATON, CLEMENT. History of the old South. 636p il maps $7; text ed $5 Macmillan

975 South—History 49-50281

This history of the South from Colonial times to 1861 emphasizes the social, intellectual, and economic forces which produced the region. The author is professor of history at the University of Kentucky. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by L. W. Labaree

Am Hist R 56:139 O '50 650w

"Splendid book. . . The important question about any sectional volume is always whether it is balanced and unbiased. In this case it is pleasant to report that the faults as well as the virtues of the old south are presented without distortion. . . The reader will leave the book with a decided feeling that the Civil war was the product of a clash between a backward, closed-minded south and a northern rival that had caught stride with the emerging modern age." Avery Craven

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ja 29 '50 350w

"It is detailed in pertinent human interest stories, and decidedly readable, with sympathetic views on Southern likes and dislikes."

+ Current Hist 18:164 Mr '50 50w

"Professor Eaton's discussion of the sectional controversy which led to secession and civil war is not good. He seems to have no clear idea of what was taking place and leaves his readers confused and uncertain. He is heavily factual in a case where interpretation is required. A splendid sectional history, therefore, weakens where it should reach a climax. That is the only serious fault in an otherwise superior study of the Old South." Avery Craven

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p25 Ap 16 '50 750w

"Excellent in itself, this book may also be regarded as an introduction to a large body of current historical literature. It can be commended with confidence both to students and general readers." Dumas Malone
+ N Y Times p25 Ja 29 '50 370w

"Economic and social affairs are especially well handled. The materials dealing with agriculture are carefully selected to reveal the exhaustive methods of early days and the equally important moves toward reform in later decades. . . The chapters on education, religion and literature are necessarily brief but offer an excellent survey of conditions and developments. To those who have thought of these phases of Southern life as arid and bleak Eaton's materials will come as a distinct surprise. The political side of the Old South is not so well done. The author's grasp is none too firm and his effort at balancing opinions confuses and weakens." Avery Craven
+ — Pol Sci Q 65:318 Je '50 550w

"To anyone who wishes to understand the South as it is today, the book will provide the essential background. While ostensibly a formal, impartial history of the South up to the formation of the Confederacy, it has been written with today's problems in mind and we find the book closing with a comment on the current civil rights furore. It is perhaps best that such an objective history should come from the hands of a Southerner, for it will be more kindly received below the line than if a Yankee had written it." J. W. H.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p17 F 19 '50 350w

"Eaton writes from the currently orthodox liberal viewpoint, approving the common man, democracy, an optimistic view of human nature, and American nationalism, while disapproving slavery, aristocracy, 'Big Business,' sectionalism, and secession. We have little quarrel with this platform, but we wish there had been less labeling of things as good or bad, more probing of their causes, and more meditating on the lessons that history can teach our generation about what is good or bad in a particular institution or attitude in terms of the way it operates." C. S. Sydnor
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:34 Ap 1 '50 500w

EATON, JEANETTE. Gandhi, fighter without a sword; il. by Ralph Ray. 253p $3 Morrow

B or 92 Gandhi, Mohandas Karamchand—Juvenile literature 50-13063

A biography of Mohandas Gandhi for high school age. The first five chapters take up the story of Gandhi's years in Africa, where many of his ideas were first tried out. No index.

Booklist 47:15 S 1 '50

"This is stimulating, thoughtful reading for all serious minded teen-agers and their parents, who sense that a strong and ardent spirit such as Gandhi's is woefully needed today to shed spiritual light on our troubled age." Polly Goodwin
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 S 3 '50 320w

Christian Science Monitor p7 N 11 '50 180w

Cleveland Open Shelf p24 D '50

"Miss Eaton has provided older young people and grownups with a clear, swift-moving life. . . One is grateful for the pleasant type and good bookmaking of this fine book." B. E. M.
+ Horn Bk 26:378 S '50 110w

"It has the simplicity which comes from assimilation of source material, international point of view, and absolute integrity. It is a book full of implications for our country and our era." M. C. Scoggin
+ Horn Bk 26:502 N '50 80w

"A sincere and beautiful book."
+ Kirkus 18:359 Jl 1 '50 180w

"The book is readable and timely, and the genius of the Mahatma and his importance in the fight for recognition of the strength and dignity of the human spirit are portrayed with a minimum of histrionics. Recommended." Mary Strang
+ Library J 75:1309 Ag '50 80w

"Here is a most important and impressive new book of the fall for young people. Written in an easy-reading style, handsomely produced, it will have wide appeal and should reach many adults as well as youth in junior and senior high schools." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ag 6 '50 350w

"It's a simple book, simply written and easy to read, but with that simplicity which comes only from mastery of source material and thoughtful interpretation. . . We need this book, for Miss Eaton has shown that truth and love in action can change the course of history." M. C. Scoggin
+ N Y Times p20 Ag 6 '50 200w

New Yorker 26:189 D 2 '50 70w

Reviewed by Eleanor Breed
San Francisco Chronicle p9 N 12 '50 120w

"Clear and expressive drawings by Ralph Ray are true to the spirit of this fine biography." B. W. S.
+ Sat R of Lit 33:50 O 21 '50 280w

EATON, JEANETTE. Leaders in other lands. 322p $1.92 Heath

920

Fictionized biographical sketches of Jeanne d'Arc, Johann Gutenberg, Leonardo da Vinci, James Watt, David Livingstone, Fridtjof Nansen, Sun Yat-sen, and Mahatma Gandhi. Intended as a textbook for grades four to six.

Booklist 46:278 My 1 '50

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 Jl 2 '50 80w

"Leaders in Other Lands would make very interesting recreational reading apart from its intended use in the social studies area." H. E. Reynolds
+ Social Educ 14:330 N '50 250w

EBERHARD, WOLFRAM. History of China. 373p il maps $4.50 Univ. of Calif.

951 China—History A50-9093

A history of China from earliest times to the present, written by a European scholar who has taught in Peking and Ankara and is now at the University of California. Bibliographical notes. Index.

"Archaeology and anthropology have been the chief agents in correcting and explaining the ancient misconceptions, and as a social anthropologist, Prof. Eberhard, now of the University of California, is able to deal with these questions in a fascinating and enlightening manner. A native of Potsdam, he did research in China for the Berlin Anthropological museum, then taught at universities in Peking." L. T. Heron
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p16 S 10 '50 220w

Current Hist 19:289 N '50 50w

"Professor Eberhard's book reads so smoothly that many readers will remain unaware that it was written in German. The name of the translator, Mr. E. W. Dickes, ought surely to have appeared on the title-page instead of being tucked away on its reverse side." Guy Wint
+ Manchester Guardian p4 N 10 '50 200w

Reviewed by Dorothy Woodman
New Statesman & Nation 40:152 Ag 5 '50 550w

San Francisco Chronicle p4 N 26 '50 450w

"In spite of his claim to the contrary, Professor Eberhard's work is likely to prove of more interest to the specialist than to the general reader. . . Although the author has succeeded in compressing the whole history of China from prehistoric times to the present day into some 360 pages, it is nevertheless so overladen with detail, especially in the less important periods, that it is difficult to obtain any clear picture of the development of the Chinese people. . . Professor Eberhard's bibliography is disappointingly meagre. It is hard to believe that he can have based his book on the few works that he names, most of which are not generally considered important works on China."

EBERHARD, WOLFRAM—Continued
Times [London] Lit Sup p467 Jl 28 '50 1100w

EBERHART, MRS MIGNON (GOOD). Hunt with the hounds. 247p $2.50 Random house 50-8527

Detective story.

Booklist 47:40 S 15 '50

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun p5 Ag 1 '50 60w

"All it is fair to tell a reader is that the author is not stingy either with death or clews [including 'red herrings'] to the dealer of death. The reader has a rich, full measure of both." Fanny Butcher
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Jl 23 '50 300w

Kirkus 18:269 My 1 '50 80w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 Jl 23 '50 140w

Reviewed by Anthony Boucher
N Y Times p21 Jl 9 '50 140w

"Almost too much for any mind, especially a Northern, non-foxhunting one."
New Yorker 26:75 Jl 22 '50 100w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p20 Ag 20 '50 90w

EBERLE, IRMENGARDE. Lorie; il. by Mary Stevens. (Whittlesey house publication) 174p $2.25 McGraw 50-9950

A family life story for grades 4-6. It tells how Lorie Davis, aged eleven-going-on-twelve, was able to make friends who helped her widowed mother set up a restaurant business.

Booklist 47:141 D 1 '50

"Author and artist apparently know modern nine to twelve-year-olds and picture them naturally and convincingly."
+ Horn Bk 26:473 N '50 70w

Kirkus 18:418 Ag 1 '50 150w

"A story full of humor and optimism. . . Characters are well defined, and there is solid reality in the story. Boys and girls of 8-12 will enjoy the mixture of fun and action in the adventures of the Davis family. Recommended." H. M. Brogan
+ Library J 75:1909 N 1 '50 70w

"There is a warm reality to the story, which will please this age of girls who feel so grown-up and so ready to share in adult problems. The children all are good fun to meet." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 D 31 '50 150w

EBERLE, IRMENGARDE. Right dog for Joe; il. by Jean Macdonald Porter. 197p $2.50 Dodd 49-48774

Twelve-year-old Joe loved dogs, and was always adopting strays, and when his father got provoked, Joe would find a home for the current stray. But when a beautiful collie adopted Joe and made it apparent that he was Joe's dog, Joe's father finally give in. Grades four to eight.

Booklist 46:144 D 15 '49

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun p3S F 4 '50 110w

"Good reading for boys and girls who love dogs." A. L. Shea
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p13 F 5 '50 100w

"This is a warmhearted story showing the love and wisdom of a noble dog for one who has been kind to him." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 26:111 Mr '50 110w

"Good story for younger dog-lovers of 8-12. Recommended." Elizabeth Johnson
+ Library J 75:327 F 15 '50 70w

"Boys and girls will enjoy Joe and his dogs."
+ Wis Lib Bul 46:24 Ja '50

ECCLESTON, ROBERT. Overland to California on the southwestern trail, 1849; diary, ed. by G. P. Hammond and E. H. Howes. 256p il maps $7.50 Univ. of Calif.
917.8 Overland journeys to the Pacific
50-9551

"Robert Eccleston was 19 when he set down this account of an overland trip from Texas to California in the summer and autumn of 1849, a journey he made as a member of the New York Fremont Association, one of many such groups formed with the purpose, first, of sharing the expense and travail of getting to California and, second, of mining gold cooperatively when they arrived." (N Y Times) Index.

"This volume is of chief interest to the student, or at least the reader with a special bias. . . [The] journal is a worthy addition to the sources on the goldrush migration and especially to those on the less fully covered Southwest Trail." J. H. Jackson
+ N Y Times p20 O 29 '50 230w

"[Eccleston's] account of his anabasis is lively and graphic, and highly readable in its own right apart from its historic importance." J. T. Winterich
+ Sat R of Lit 33:40 O 14 '50 180w

ECKMAN, DONALD P. Industrial instrumentation. 396p $5 Wiley
530.78 Physical measurements. Measuring instruments
50-9004

"Although this book is essentially a text for upper-class engineering students, it can be used also by industrial and chemical engineers as an introductory guide to the principles and methods of measurement which are of use in the processing and manufacturing industries. Emphasis is placed on instruments used in measuring temperature, pressure, rate of flow, and composition. Each class of instrument is preceded by a review of the physical principles involved; and the construction, operation and applications of selected instruments are described. Schematic diagrams and review problems are included." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

"The work is designed mainly for use in upper-class, undergraduate engineering courses, but men in industry who understand basic physics and chemistry should have no difficulty in making use of it. Also, it can be used for reference to answer such questions as how particular types of flowmeters operate." R. R. Hawkins
+ Library J 75:1301 Ag '50 100w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:70 S '50

ECKRICH, JAMES FREDERICK (FREDERICK JAMES, pseud). Cloud hoppers; pictures by Katherine Evans [prepared under the direction of Laura Oftedal]. [37p] $1.25; reinforced ed $2.13 Childrens press
49-5951

A simple little picture-story of a boy and a dog, embodies in its telling a few first principles of aviation for small readers.

"A very usable little book for small children." A. L. Shea
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 F 26 '50 90w

"By no means a necessary title, but will be attractive to ages 5-7." A. M. Wetherell
+ Library J 74:1681 N 1 '49 90w

EDDY, GEORGE SHERWOOD. You will survive after death. 210p $2 Rinehart

133.9 Psychical research. Future life 50-12070

A discussion of life after death. Dr Eddy tells why he is disposed to believe in survival after death, and describes his efforts to obtain proof thru psychic phenomena. Glossary. No index.

Booklist 47:126 D 1 '50

"For those with a budding interest in the supernatural, this book is a natural. Some borderline sceptics may become initiates. There is a reassuring lack of hokus pocus and a good deal of evidence."

+ Kirkus 18:551 S 1 '50 190w

"Dr. Eddy . . . writes in a readable, popular, convincing style which should appeal to the layman who is interested in the supernatural." Anne Whitmore

+ Library J 75:1901 N 1 '50 80w

EDEN, ANTHONY. Days for decision. 239p $3 Houghton

942.084 Great Britain—Politics and government. Great Britain—Colonies, dominions, etc. 50-13062

A selection from the speeches of this English Conservative statesman, made between June 1946 and August 1949.

Booklist 47:37 S 15 '50

Current Hist 19:229 O '50 40w

Manchester Guardian p4 F 3 '50 30w

"They are good, sound speeches, and they read much as they must have been delivered. . . This is a good piece of Mr. Eden's mind. It is not a very interesting mind. Very few will read this book who have not already read some of the very similar collections of speeches Mr. Churchill has brought out. To read Mr. Eden after Mr. Churchill is to go from brilliance to dullness. . . He is a most gifted parliamentary leader, and one who may yet win his way over younger rivals to the leadership of his party when and if the current Grand Old Man ever retires." Crane Brinton

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 Ag 13 '50 1050w

"Mr. Eden is no master of the thrusting epigram and the rolling phrase. In his defense, however, let it be said that his leaner style also saves him from compounding the gamier sentences to which Churchillian rhetoric is occasionally prone." P. R. Levin

Sat R of Lit 33:18 N 4 '50 320w

"Mr. Eden is obviously better in person than on paper, as the rather hasty foreword is enough to show. Even by the current standards of Hansard, the speeches themselves do not read as great oratory. Mr. Eden emerges as a man of Mr. Attlee's stamp rather than Mr. Churchill's; and as it is widely held that this was just the type of man needed to succeed Mr. Churchill as Prime Minister, the same may well be true of the leadership of the Conservative Party. This book will go far to confirm the widespread belief that Mr. Eden's succession to that leadership is much to be desired in the country's interest."

Times [London] Lit Sup p756 N 18 '49 600w

EDMONDS, WALTER DUMAUX. Mr Benedict's lion; il. by Doris Lee. 154p $2.75 Dodd 50-10167

Mr. Benedict was a shy young teacher of English at Miss Satterlee's Female Seminary, back in 1832. The story is about Mr Benedict's trip to New York to buy a piano for the school. But he lost the address of the music shop and returned to the school with a lion instead. Complications for Mr Benedict, but romance came in their wake. For ages fourteen and over.

Booklist 47:175 Ja 1 '51

"This is a grand family book, for its interest has no age limits." Polly Goodwin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 D 10 '50 200w

"Let it never be said of Mr. Edmonds that he writes all his books to one pattern or is lacking in imagination! Teen-agers whose sense of humor is a bit on the sophisticated side will delight in the adventures of Mr. Benedict."

+ Horn Bk 26:480 N '50 80w

"Recommended." Elizabeth Hodges

+ Library J 75:2019 N 15 '50 90w

"The author's explanation is in itself not quite convincing, for the events in this story are random and willful, noticeably so since the background is so solid and real. The canal boats, the docks and streets of Lower New York in 1832, are described in motion, and with color and authenticity. Unhappily, the characters are stock figures and the narrative artificial. Doris Lee's drawings, however, are charming, naive and knowing." Marjorie Fischer

N Y Times p42 N 5 '50 130w

"The story frolics along, spiced with colorful, if stock, characters and a good use of the period background."

+ New Yorker 26:185 D 2 '50 70w

Reviewed by G. C. Castor

San Francisco Chronicle p3 N 12 '50 100w

"This is a very, very amusing story, and Doris Lee's drawings are even more amusing. There is no age limit to the readers whom it will please. You take it up because of the drawings and, after reading a bit of it, you keep right on because of Mr. Benedict and the lions."

+ Sat R of Lit 33:54 N 11 '50 140w

EDUCATORS guide to free films [1949] ed. by Mary Foley Horkheimer and John W. Diffor; educ. consultant, John Guy Fowlkes [proc]. (V9) 355p pa $5 Educators progress service, box 497, Randolph, Wis.

371.335 Moving pictures in education—Catalogs (45-412)

"The Guide has been previously reviewed by the Subscription Books Bulletin for July 1943 and January 1947. . . The publisher's foreword indicates that the ninth edition lists 1716 titles of films, 116 more than in the 1948 edition. It also states that 511 titles are new to the ninth edition. The films are listed under 31 broad subject headings in five general groups: Applied Arts, Fine Arts, Health Education, Science, and Social Studies. Three indexes, distinguished by papers of different colors and by different type faces, follow this main section and consist of indexes to titles, subjects, and sources. . . Entries in the main section are arranged alphabetically by title under broad subjects, followed by the film width in millimeters, whether sound or silent, and number of reels. An annotation, varying in length from one or two to ten or twelve lines, is followed by a statement of running time and the name of the source from which the film may be obtained." Subscription Bks Bul

"The source and availability index gives complete addresses for the agencies given as sources in the main section, the terms upon which films may be secured, the length of time generally needed to secure the films, and page references to the films available from those sources. This index is a valuable feature and is evidently kept up to date. . . The subject and source and availability indexes are very useful but, since the Educators Guide to Free Films is limited to films available free or upon payment of transportation charges (which is not a good basis on which to select educational material), since the annotations are largely descriptive without evaluation, since there is no indication that the films listed have been previewed, since there is no apparent grading to indicate the age level at which the films are to be used most effectively, the Educators Guide to Free Films is recommended only to agencies which must for financial reasons make use of free films and then only when it is possible to preview all films before use so as to eliminate those that may be unsuitable because prepared for another age level or objectionable because of bias or excessive advertising."

— + Subscription Bks Bul 21:21 Ap '50 850w

EDWARDS, LIONEL DALHOUSIE ROBERTSON. Getting to know your pony; il. by [the author]. 74p $3 Scribner

636.16 Ponies

General information on how to choose, train and use ponies, illustrated with colored plates and line drawings in the text. Accompanying the plates are brief descriptions of the various kinds of ponies, Shetlands, Exmoor, Arabs, Fell ponies, etc. A British book.

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 75:1414 S 1 '50 30w

"The lovely colorful illustrations by the author make this book one that could be placed in the fine arts department of any library. Definitely English in material and point of view." J. M. Smith
+ Library J 75:1516 S 15 '50 80w

"Any book with twelve large full-page color paintings by this outstanding English illustrator and horse enthusiast, is well worth the price. These pictures, so beautifully reproduced, are Edwards at his best. . . The best chapters for young Americans are probably those on pony intelligence and pony endurance. . . It is a grand book, a perfect gift for any-one with his or her first pony." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ag 27 '50 270w

EHRLICH, BETTINA (BAUER) (MRS GEORG EHRLICH). Cocolo's home; il. by [the author]. [32p] $2.50 Harper

50-10831

"At the end of the second Cocolo picture book that charming Italian donkey was newly married and happily settled with his wife Carmen in Lobsterbay, U. S. A. Everything was serene until Cocolo suffered an acute attack of homesickness. So, with that perfect reasonableness found in all the Cocolo stories he is off again to Italy. Ravaya-Reena, however, wasn't quite as Cocolo remembered it. After some exciting but trying experiences he is glad to go back to America." N Y Times

"The warmth and beautiful coloring of Bettina's pictures, so important to the story, are again lovingly present for youngest readers." Polly Goodwin
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p40 D 3 '50 130w

+ Kirkus 18:383 Jl 15 '50 170w

"The pictures of Italy are enchanting, and Cocolo is more lovable than ever." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 D 10 '50 150w

Reviewed by E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p50 N 26 '50 140w

"The tender story, with its amusing details of their visit to Italy, and the alluring water-color and wash illustrations will bewitch any child between six and nine years old."
+ New Yorker 26:176 D 2 '50 60w

Sat R of Lit 33:37 N 11 '50 250w

EICHELBERGER, ROBERT LAWRENCE. Our jungle road to Tokyo; in collaboration with Milton Mackaye. 306p il $4.50 Viking

940.542 World war, 1939-1945—Pacific ocean. World war, 1939-1945—Personal narratives, American 50-9852

"Lt. General Eichelberger arrived in Australia in the early days of the war in the Pacific and commanded American forces in that theater up to the end of the war. After the surrender of the Japanese, General Eichelberger remained in Japan in command of American occupation troops for three years. This is his blow by blow description of the fighting which led from New Guinea to the Philippines." (Library J) Index.

Reviewed by R. E. Danielson
Atlantic 186:84 N '50 1800w

Booklist 46:325; 47:58 Jl 1 '50; O 1 '50

Bookmark 10:3 O '50 40w

Reviewed by J. H. Thompson
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 S 24 '50 900w

Reviewed by M. B. Jansen
Christian Science Monitor p14 O 9 '50 650w

"War history at its best."
+ Kirkus 18:409 Jl 15 '50 290w

"It is a personal, anecdotal account, and while there is no great writing here, the record is an exciting one. The section covering the early days of the struggle when his troops were raw and poorly equipped is especially interesting at this time." Donald Wasson
Library J 75:1286 Ag '50 130w

Nation 171:349 O 14 '50 150w

"Perhaps because it enjoys the perspectives of time, perhaps because the author had Milton MacKaye's help in the writing or perhaps because of General Eichelberger's own soldierly honesty, simplicity and innate sense of tact and balance, this seems to me one of the best of the generals' books to come out of the second world war." Walter Millis
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 S 24 '50 1450w

"General Eichelberger's memoir inevitably invites comparison with the others. It is not so salty as Stilwell's account; it lacks the exultant thrill of General Kenney's story; since Eichelberger was present at only one of the moments of crisis in the conflict, it does not chronicle the decisions on great issues which make General Eisenhower's book so important. Neither is it so wrong-headed as Chennault's book nor so pompous as Brereton's. It is a simple, straightforward narrative." Fletcher Pratt
+ N Y Times p25 O 1 '50 650w

"This is history that is still timely, written with humor and modesty but with an insistence on seeing that the Army gets due credit for its part in winning the Pacific war."
+ New Yorker 26:103 S 30 '50 130w

"Better written than most military autobiographies, and the fact that its author participated in many of the most crucial campaigns of the relatively little known Pacific war, gives it added stature. It is a somewhat uneven book, reflecting thereby the tenor of life in the damp islands with the alternation of excitement and drab dullness. Furthermore, the book is considerably freer than most of unsavory episodes." C. W. Weinberger
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 S 24 '50 950w

"With the help of Milton MacKaye, General Eichelberger tells his story skilfully and with great modesty." Donald Armstrong
+ Sat R of Lit 33:11 S 23 '50 800w

Springf'd Republican p8B S 3 '50 850w

"The book is not bitter. It tells firmly and frankly of the heroisms as well as headaches of a hard-fought war, and the information it gives adds much to what we already know about the details of the arguments in the headquarters and the battles in the field that made the Pacific campaigns memorable." Donald Derby
+ Springf'd Republican p3D N 19 '50 490w

Time 56:78 O 2 '50 600w

Wis Lib Bul 46:17 N '50

EINSTEIN, ALBERT. Out of my later years. 282p $4.75 Philosophical lib.

508.1 50-6859

"These sixty chapters of Einstein's collected essays [are] on moral issues, Judaism, the relativity theory, the atomic bomb, education, socialism, world government, science and religion, and many other subjects. All of these essays were written during the last fifteen years, and all—since Einstein belongs to history—are important. The pieces are not arranged in chronological order, but according to subject-matter." N Y Times

Am Pol Sci R 44:804 S '50 30w

"Although marked by a generous moral fervor and a dignified simplicity, Einstein's reflections on social affairs do not rise above the theoretically commonplace, and in some respects they show a surprising naïveté. . . In evaluating Einstein's views on social and political matters, it is well to bear in mind that there is no transference in training from one field to another, and that no man, however great his vision, sees truly all the time. Aristotle defended slavery, Aquinas defended the death sentence for heretics, and Newton believed in miracles." Sidney Hook

Ann Am Acad 271:201 S '50 800w

Atlantic 186:86 Ag '50 120w

Booklist 46:327 Jl 1 '50

"The book clearly states his views on quantum mechanics which, as is well known, do not agree with those of most physicists of the present day. Several other essays on science will be of interest to the scientist, but in the opinion of the reviewer, they are not sufficiently simple to make the theory of relativity intelligible to the layman, as claimed in the blurb." O. K. Rice

Chem & Eng N 28:3376 S 25 '50 270w

"To read through this book is to have our view of Einstein confirmed. He is indeed a good man. There is a high nobility in him. The part of the book called 'My People' is very moving. The words on war and peace have frequent splendor. Dr. Einstein's heart is very much in the right place. The inescapable word for him, I think, is lovable. But, with sadness, we find here that Dr. Einstein as philosopher—a role he has increasingly played in the public mind—is indeed a surprisingly schoolboy sort of philosopher." Alan Devoe

+ — Commonweal 52:276 Je 23 '50 600w

Current Hist 19:107 Ag '50 30w

Reviewed by F. H. Heinemann

Hibbert J 48:396 Jl '50 20w

"Every page has passages and phrases that are temptingly quotable." Gerald Wendt

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 My 14 '50 400w

"Those who appreciate whimsey and originality will find delight in reading what this great man has to say on the problems of our day; they will find great pleasure in the beauty and impersonal wisdom of Einstein's writings. Indeed, some of the essays, such as the one on Ehrenfest, are masterpieces of writing and characterization." Leopold Infeld

+ N Y Times p12 My 28 '50 600w

Springf'd Republican p5C My 28 '50 450w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:147 Je '50 240w

EISENSCHIML, OTTO. Celebrated case of Fitz John Porter; an American Dreyfus affair; maps by Barbara Long. 344p pl $3.50 Bobbs

B or 92 Porter, Fitz-John. U.S.—History —Civil war 50-7686

"The story of a Union officer, Major General Fitz John Porter, who was court martialled during the Civil War and dismissed from the service on charges of treason and cowardice. His long fight for vindication, the political intrigues against him and his eventual reinstatement are described from evidence newly collected by the author." (Publishers' Weekly) Index.

Booklist 46:334 Jl 1 '50

Reviewed by Keith Wheeler

Chicago Sun p7 My 28 '50 240w

Reviewed by Walter Trohan

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 My 14 '50 750w

Reviewed by H. S. Commager

— N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Jl 16 '50 950w

"The heroic struggle of Porter to clear his name . . . and the slow accumulation of new evidence that clearly showed his innocence are described with real skill and dramatic effect. . . Eisenschiml has, beyond question, done the memory of Fitz-John Porter a real service and reminded Americans of the dangers inherent in military trials conducted in the charged atmosphere of wartime." Avery Craven

+ N Y Times p5 My 7 '50 950w

"This book is the story of the trial and the story of a man's attempt to find justice, and it is written with the suspense of a detective novel. Otto Eisenschiml, who had previously edited and written many fine books on the Civil War, is the author." A. K.

San Francisco Chronicle p22 My 28 '50 170w

"The account of this famous case as here presented leaves much to be desired. It is almost entirely from Porter's side and the basis of research seems much too narrow. . . There is no bibliography; the footnotes are not numbered and offer little help to the inquiring reader. The subtitle, 'An American Dreyfus Affair,' is not apt. . . Another similar famous Civil War case, that of General Gouverneur K. Warren, is not mentioned. There are several illustrations, some good maps, and an index." T. R. Hay

— + Sat R of Lit 33:14 Je 17 '50 800w

EISNER, PAVEL. Franz Kafka and Prague [tr. from the German by Lowry Nelson and René Wellek]. 100p il $3 Arts, inc, 756 7th av, N.Y. 19

B or 92 Kafka, Franz 50-6895

An attempt to "explain" Kafka by examination of his position in life as a German Jew in Prague before the first World war.

"This admirably written little essay by a Czech critic and editor of Kafka contributes a provocative sidelight to the growing legend about the writer whom Thomas Mann has suggestively described as a 'religious humorist.'. . Within his limited scope, Mr. Eisner is convincing. But explaining Kafka's work solely in terms of his personality, he misses—like other critics—the real art of Kafka, his remarkably objective vision of that paradoxical symbol of modern man with his awareness of futility and his search for certitude." Nona Balakian

+ — N Y Times p26 Mr 19 '50 450w

"All this explains the man, not his writing; consequently, one claim of the author must be discounted. In a way, however, this is good. The greatness of Kafka's novels and stories lies in their very obscurity. They can be read and enjoyed on many levels and can mean something different to different persons. This way they will and must remain, despite any attempts at providing a handy skeleton key." A. K.

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p17 Mr 26 '50 200w

"All this is set forth with abundant insight and proportion by Mr. Eisner, who recognizes that his is not the only key to unlock Kafka. But his pretentious and pedantic style has not been improved by his translators, and his book is eccentrically set up and adorned with beautiful but irrelevant photographs of Prague." Robert Halsband

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:21 Mr 4 '50 130w

EISTER, ALLAN W. Drawing-room conversion. 236p $3.50 Duke univ. press

248 Oxford group 50-5658

"A sociological account of the Oxford group movement." (Subtitle) "The author studies the Oxford Group movement in relation to the historical period in which it appeared, to determine if possible the type of need which the religious experiences provided by the Group were designed to satisfy and how the urgent problems of a culture in crisis were interpreted by it and resolved within it." (Editorial note p.vii) Bibliography. Index.

"As a sociological analysis of a religious movement, this volume is disappointing. The major conceptual analysis of the author is concerned with the distinction between the cult and the sect. Evidence is introduced to indicate that the Oxford Group may be regarded as a cult. While a description is given of the ritual of the group, and there is some discussion of group leadership, the function of ritual (extremely important in a group of this kind) and the relation of the leader and the led are never seriously considered. The treatment of these topics, as well as the discussion of the 'religious experience,' remains descriptive rather than analytical. . . Drawing Room Conversation emerges as a historical rather than a sociological study. The author should be commended for his efforts in investigating a type of mass behavior which has hardly been considered by contemporary sociologists." Ethel Shanas

EISTER, A. W.—Continued
— Am J Soc 56:122 Jl '50 360w

"This case study, and others of its kind, would have been immeasurably strengthened had its author cast free from that typology first provided students of religion by Weber and Troeltsch, and presented his findings in some other theoretical form. As it is, Eister's theoretical device has prevented him from both asking and answering many important questions concerning the sociological implications of his study." J. Sirjamaki
Am Soc R 15:456 Je '50 150w

Reviewed by Ephraim Fischoff
Ann Am Acad 272:276 N '50 650w

"There is only the barest mention of the training centre at Mackinac Island, Michigan, and nothing about the Los Angeles assembly in the summer of 1948. Thus, as a history the book is sketchy and not up to date. . . The writer predicts that the movement 'will disappear as it arose—gradually.' This is hypothetical. It does not explain the Oxford Group as distinguished from Christian Science, or the Mental Hygiene movement. The author writes as one who may have read the 168 specific references in his bibliography, but has failed to grasp the 'why's' and 'wherefore's' of the association. Sect or cult? The author does not know. Does anybody?" R. L. Hightower
— Crozer Q 27:275 Jl '50 700w

Reviewed by C. S. Braden
J Religion 30:294 O '50 420w

"Sympathizers with the movement will no doubt feel that such a coldly scientific approach to something that has meant so much to them is in the nature of a sacrilege. Indeed, it is a question to what degree a religious movement with all of its subtleties and intangible values and emotional over-tones is susceptible of scientific analysis. However, the attempt makes of this an interesting book and one which will no doubt attract much attention, not only from members and friends of the group but from others who are interested in some of its emphases and values."
Kirkus 18:167 Mr 15 '50 260w

"The study is factual, unprejudiced and fully documented." N. K. B.
N Y Times p33 F 19 '50 110w
U S Quarterly Bkl 6:292 S '50 250w

EL GRECO. See Theotocopuli, D.

ELCHIBEGOFF, IVAN M. United States international timber trade in the Pacific area. 302p maps $7.50 Stanford univ. press
338.1749 Lumber trade 49-8695

"A detailed statistical survey of the geographical, economic and political considerations that condition this commerce." (Foreign Affairs) Bibliography. Index.

Foreign Affairs 28:162 O '49 20w

Reviewed by J. J. Parsons
Geog R 40:168 Ja '50 480w

"Many sections conclude with a brief description of war and postwar conditions, appended to a more complete discussion of statistics ending usually about 1939. One wonders whether data for the years ending a decade later might not reveal a rather different picture. This does not lessen the value of the book as a reference work for the earlier period, but it does raise a question as to its reliability as a guide to present and future policy." R. H. Van Voorhis
+ — J Pol Econ 58:80 F '50 700w

"In addition to providing a mine of information of value to anyone concerned with international trade in the Pacific area, Mr. Elchibegoff cites freely the experience of various countries in forest conservation experiments. His material will be of particular interest to Japanese forestry specialists, aware as they are of the necessity for radical reform of Japanese forestry policies and administration if the country is to escape devastation at the hands of its timber industry." Seishi Yokose
+ Pacific Affairs 23:335 S '50 600w

"The book should be valuable to lumbermen, businessmen, and students of the overseas timber trade."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:476 D '49 320w

ELDERFIELD, ROBERT COOLEY, ed. Heterocyclic compounds; v. 1, Three-, four-, five-, and six-membered monocyclic compounds containing one O, N, and S atom. 703p $11 Wiley
547 Heterocyclic compounds (50-7589)

"Its purpose is to make available detailed monographic treatments of heterocyclic compounds of current interest, which have not already been treated in similar fashion in other books. Each of the chapters is written by a specialist who has worked with the group of compounds which he discusses. The treatment in each case is on a professional level and is intended for graduate students, teachers of chemistry and professional chemists. Full attention is given to such aspects as nomenclature, structure, reaction and derivatives. Literature citations are given in footnotes." N Y New Tech Bks

Reviewed by E. A. Steck
Chem Eng 57:252 S '50 450w

"The work is a necessary addition to well developed chemical collections which are used for reference by advanced chemical students and professional chemists." R. R. Hawkins
+ Library J 75:1049 Je 15 '50 110w
N Y New Tech Bks 35:52 Jl '50
U S Quarterly Bkl 6:382 S '50 400w

ELDRIDGE, SEBA, and others. Fundamentals of sociology; a situational analysis. 720p il maps $4.75 Crowell
301 Sociology 50-8148

"One of the paradoxes encountered by college teachers is that they learn far more from the courses they teach than do their students. . . Perhaps the most distinguishing feature of this book is that it represents an attempt on our part to solve this paradox by putting the student in somewhat the same situation as the teacher. Accordingly, we have designed this book for use not only as a text but also as a sort of workbook. In keeping with this purpose, we have throughout placed emphasis on the independent study of life problems by the student. To this end, abundant illustrative materials are included and, at the ends of chapters, discussion questions and work projects requiring real thought and investigation by students. . . Most students of introductory sociology take no other course in the general field. Our text has been planned with this fact in mind." (Pref) Indexes.

"Each treatment is up to date, lucid, and adequate for novitiates in sociology. . . In the hands of an experienced and effective instructor this book might be used quite successfully." J. B. Gittler
+ Am J Soc 56:301 N '50 420w

"Although topics and material follow the usual pattern of synthesis, the text as a whole is a distinguished performance. In clarity, readability, and cogency of the subjects and the research data selected for discussion and illustration, it excels by far most other textbooks in the field. In spite of its multiple authorship, it is remarkably well integrated." Theodore Abel
+ Ann Am Acad 272:260 N '50 300w
School & Society 71:335 My 27 '50 50w

ELECTRICAL WORLD (periodical). Electric power industry; past, present and future; by the editorial staff. 178p il maps $3.50 McGraw

621.31 Electric power 49-49142

"In this book the editorial matter from the 75th anniversary issue of the Electrical World is reprinted in more permanent form. Some 40 articles specially written for the anniversary issue discuss the development of various aspects of the generation, distribution and use of electricity." (Library J) Index.

Booklist 46:213 Mr 1 '50

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 74:1912 D 15 '49 70w

"Generally speaking, each article is a highly condensed summary without, however, any references to sources of further information. In spite of the lack of bibliography, the book has a good deal of reference value, particularly for readers who want a reliable survey of high spots."
N Y New Tech Bks 35:37 My '50

ELIOT, ELIZABETH. Alice. 251p $2.75 Duell 50-9255

"As told by Margaret, her oldest friend, this follows the story of Alice from the time when they attend a rather impossible finishing school. Everything Alice does goes badly; she seems attuned to failure in her search for emotional security, the only thing she wants. The first boy she loves is appropriated by her older sister; she marries Cassius Skeffington, a self-absorbed, self-indulgent exquisite; she has an affair with a bluff but bad-tempered older man; and as finally she makes a success in the theatre, she obliterates reality when she loses her memory, her identity." Kirkus

Booklist 47:12 S 1 '50

"Miss Eliot knows well the glossy surface of a certain facet of London society: its weaknesses, its vanities and its pretensions. Unfortunately she does not always seem to have the upper hand over her material. Her wit has not always the essential air of effortlessness."
+ — Christian Science Monitor p6 O 7 '50 320w

"A first novel which has considerable charm, an insouciant brightness, and a definite knowledge of the rather worldly world from which it derives."
+ Kirkus 18:364 Jl 1 '50 170w

"If readers like Nancy Mitford's books they will welcome a new member of her school of writing. . . . Small collections need not rush to buy this." K. T. Willis
Library J 75:1290 Ag '50 80w

"This is a first novel and an attractive one, and it must remain a mystery why the writer, unless she had prematurely read her own blurb which assures us that 'the best jokes cover the deepest tragedy,' decided upon so alarming an ending." Norman Shrapnel
Manchester Guardian p4 N 4 '49 120w

"An odd, original, disquieting, maddening book. . . Elizabeth Eliot has a neat satirical turn but she is not a feminine Evelyn Waugh. Her manner is rather uncertain; sometimes falsely naive, even arch; sometimes too knowingly explanatory. But she has a sharp eye, makes some acute observations and brings off a last scene which, though a hit below the belt, is really moving." Antonia White
New Statesman & Nation 38:592 N 19 '49 80w

"Quiet wit, a sharp eye and an intense awareness of the secret fears, the hidden avidities and the loneliness that lie below the surface of human character—these are distinguishing qualities in this first published work of a young English writer. Elizabeth Eliot's novel is admirably proportioned. . . In its candor, its restraint, and its perceptiveness, its combination of humor and clear-sightedness with compassion, its impeccable taste and clear style, this book is something of a minor tour de force." Iris Barry
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Ag 27 '50 800w

Reviewed by Evelyn Eaton
N Y Times p33 S 10 '50 220w

"Lacking the wit, irony, and paradox of a novel by Evelyn Waugh or Nancy Mitford (with which comparison if obvious is also inevitable), this remains a curiously frustrating book. Flashes of amusing dialogue, now and again a highly comic situation or a wickedly acute description keep one reading, waiting hopefully for Alice to materialize as something more than a nebulous and entirely aimless heroine." Pamela Taylor
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:31 S 30 '50 320w

"The writing is very uneven, and in her handling of time Miss Eliot is not so much unskilled as unaware that any problem exists. In places the story limps, shambles, then gathers up its skirts and makes ungainly leaps to the point it next desires to reach. These elementary blemishes would not be worth mentioning unless they were in such glaring contrast to the story's merits. Miss Eliot is a superb portrait-painter, and some of her scenes . . . are brilliantly felt and imagined." L. A. G. Strong
+ — Spec 183:714 N 18 '49 180w

"Alice is a lively and promising first novel, written with considerable knowledge of the world. It has affinities with the work of Miss Mitford and Lady Longford, and is none the worse for that."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p765 N 25 '49 240w

ELIOT, THOMAS STEARNS. Cocktail party; a [verse] comedy. 190p $3 Harcourt

812 50-6564

A poetic drama which begins and ends with a cocktail party. The marriage of Edward and Lavinia Chamberlayne is breaking up. A psychiatrist takes a hand in the proceedings and the marriage is patched up, while the "other woman" goes to her death as a missionary. The scene is London.

Reviewed by C. J. Rolo
Atlantic 185:84 My '50 1100w

Booklist 46:244 Ap 1 '50

Bookmark 9:155 Ap '50 40w

"The dramatic materials have been handled deftly and surely. . . With a reservation to be mentioned presently, the characters are grippingly alive and the situations in which they are involved are charged with the intensity of interest which so often attaches to even the minor experiences of vivid personalities. The dialogue is witty, with a happy combination of sparkling epigram and good talk, and wise with a terrible and disturbing wisdom that lifts the work out of the class of the ephemeral, where it might still rank as the best comedy of the season, into that of the perennially significant, where it becomes hard to account for its popular appeal, since, unlike Shakespeare, Mr. Eliot does not utter his profundities in lucid terms. . . But my real difficulty lies in the character of Sir Henry. . . He remains throughout a symbol, a figure out of allegory, and a confusing one at that." B. M. Kelly
+ — Cath World 171:156 My '50 750w

Reviewed by W. E. Garrison
Christian Century 67:400 Mr 29 '50 850w

"The current success of the play on Broadway seems to show that it may have theatric values even for those who only half sense its spiritual content, and one must feel profoundly grateful for the presence of this degree of Christian dignity and serious purpose in the current theater. Yet the thinness of this poetry as compared with the richness of Shakespeare, the forlornness of this hope as compared with the radiant faith of primitive Christianity, the snobbishness of this insight as compared with that democracy of the spirit open even to a little child, make us feel that, with all his manifest virtues, Mr. Eliot cannot yet be numbered among the 'saints' whose vision has pierced through suffering to the life-giving joy at the heart of being." Robert Peel
+ — Christian Science Monitor p7 Mr 25 '50 1200w

ELIOT, T. S.—Continued
Reviewed by W. P. Sears
Churchman 164:17 Ap 1 '50 60w

"Eliot's writing makes most of the current plays puny in comparison. This thing is distinguished by his intelligence, his good sense and his talent. And, despite the limited action, this is a workable play; on the stage it gains force and tension which are not realized in the written pages alone. But there are questionable qualities in language and idea which should be mentioned, and they are not caused by poetical obscurity." George Miles
+ — Commonweal 52:106 My 5 '50 1250w

"Clever, irritating, intriguing—perfect for rainy Sundays and after seeing the play. And for the reading public away from the lights of Broadway, here's a play that makes good reading, in groups, or by individuals."
+ Kirkus 18:201 Mr 15 '50 90w

"The Cocktail Party is unquestionably the finest play to be produced in the 1949-50 season on Broadway. . . Highly recommended for drama and theatre collections." George Freedley
+ Library J 75:698 Ap 15 '50 50w

Manchester Guardian p4 Mr 21 '50 260w

"If the texture of the verse here is much less dense than it was in Family Reunion—carries less overtones and richness of association—it is yet remarkably lovely and witty, pointed and shapely, and achieves a kind of Wildean elegance while retaining Mr. Eliot's very personal rhythm, idiom and irony. At the same time there are weaknesses in the structure which become increasingly obvious as one reads his text." T. C. Worsley
+ — New Statesman & Nation 39:322 Mr 18 '50 750w

"Most will agree that the play is fascinating to read as well as to see on the stage. It is written in verse so easy most of the time that it is only barely above the level of prose. The surface meaning is always perfectly clear. . . Much of the dialogue turns around the subject of 'personality' or the 'persona' in the theological sense of the term and there are two scenes which are especially fine. . . Mr. Eliot has said that he regarded it as only a beginning from which a genuinely popular poetic drama might take its rise after it had first met the popular audience on its own ground. Certainly 'The Cocktail Party' is wonderfully promising from that point of view. It introduces a genuinely new note into writing for the contemporary theatre." J. W. Krutch
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 Mr 19 '50 1300w

"By using very little imagery, by his language which is so idiomatic that one accepts his rhythm as that of ordinary speech with an insistent beat pulsing through it . . . Eliot really does portray real-seeming characters. He cuts down his poetic effects to the minimum, and then finally rewards us with most beautiful poetry. This arises out of the intensity of the dramatic situation, and is as natural as the 'flat' passages." Stephen Spender
+ N Y Times p7 Mr 19 '50 1150w

"It is probably fortunate that Mr. Eliot's play makes its appearance as a book at a time when discussion of it in its theatrical form is so widespread. For one thing, the presence of chapter and verse may serve as ballast for the more erratic soarings of personal interpretation and analysis that one hears. . . Of course, there is the fact that Mr. Eliot is Mr. Eliot, and the way he can put the English language through hoops is always something to see."
+ New Yorker 26:122 Mr 18 '50 100w

"As with all of Eliot's works, and the works of other expressionists, 'The Cocktail Party' has many levels of significance. The fullness of your appreciation will depend directly on the extent of your scholarship, your religious experience, and your familiarity with his past efforts. . . The play's solution is agreeable, then, only on the ground upon which it stands—faith. And faith is a variable and uncertain commodity in such times as these when a T. S. Eliot and a Jean-Paul Sartre meet equally vociferous response at opposite poles of belief." Luther Nichols
+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 Mr 26 '50 2650w

School & Society 71:205 Ap 1 '50 30w

Reviewed by Bonamy Dobrée
Spec 184:541 Ap 21 '50 1100w

Springf'd Republican p8C My 7 '50 270w

Times [London] Lit Sup p198 Mr 31 '50 1200w

Wis Lib Bul 46:20 My '50

ELIOT, THOMAS STEARNS. Selected essays. new ed 460p $4.50 Harcourt 814 50-10103

"I have expanded the original volume of Selected Essays: 1917-1932, by including a few essays from the now superfluous Essays Ancient and Modern." Author's note

Booklist 47:117 N 15 '50

Kirkus 18:629 O 1 '50 30w

"To my notion T. S. Eliot is the greatest of all literary critics. This is said with due respect to Aristotle, Coleridge, Arnold, Goethe, Samuel Johnson, Lessing, the best French critics of the nineteenth century, and Ezra Pound. . . A new and expanded edition of the Selected Essays is most welcome." Clement Greenberg
+ Nation 171:531 D 9 '50 2800w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R O 8 '50 120w

"In looking through these essays I find that my early enthusiasm remains undiminished: the prose still strikes me as wonderfully sec and spare and just; the ideas, even the alienating ones, always stimulating and serious and fruitful." Harvey Breit
+ N Y Times p36 N 5 '50 230w

Wis Lib Bul 46:15 N '50

ELIZABETH MEG, pseud. See Meg, Elizabeth, pseud.

ELKINS, HERVEY BERTRAND. Chemistry of industrial toxicology. 406p $5.50 Wiley
615.9 Poisons 50-6713

"The author is Chief of the Laboratory of the Division of Occupational Hygiene of the Massachusetts Department of Labor and Industries. . . His book is concerned with the chemical aspects of industrial poisons rather than their medical aspects. Approximately half of it is taken up with compact information about poisonous substances with emphasis on data pertaining to effects on the human system and to what constitutes irritating or dangerous concentrations. Other chapters deal with processes in which toxic compounds are generated, with preventive measures, and with accepted methods of analyzing for toxic compounds." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

"This useful book, by a well recognized industrial hygienist, will be of greater value to the individual with limited knowledge of the problems of industrial environmental control than to the experienced hygienist." J. H. Sterner
+ Chem & Eng N 28:1772 My 22 '50 280w

"Without question, the author has rendered a valuable service to industry, and the book is recommended without qualification. It is a very valuable 'handbook' to the art and science of industrial hygiene and should find a place in every industrial plant and technical school library." H. H. Fawcett
+ Chem Eng 57:310 Jl '50 350w

"This work is an obvious reference book for industrial physicians, safety engineers, and other persons concerned with the maintenance of healthful conditions in industrial establishments." R. R. Hawkins
Library J 75:699 Ap 15 '50 140w

"[This manual] does not cover pathology and other medicinal topics which usually constitute the main content of books on industrial toxicology. It will be useful to plant physicians, industrial health engineers, public health workers and others concerned professionally with industrial hygiene. Also it is highly suitable as a library reference book."
N Y New Tech Bks 35:44 My '50

"As a handy reference in chemical laboratories and industrial plants, the book should serve a useful purpose in minimizing the danger of poisoning through the breathing of fumes or dusts."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:388 S '50 240w

ELLIKER, PAUL REUBEN. Practical dairy bacteriology. 391p il $4 McGraw

637 Dairy bacteriology 49-10923

"The role of bacteriology in the production, processing, and distribution of dairy products, and detailed procedure for the commercial manufacture of cheese, butter, and ice cream. For the student, dairy farmer, dairy plant worker, and inspector." (Booklist) Chapter references. Index.

"The subject matter is well organized for the purpose intended, is printed on high gloss, bleached paper with headings and subheadings in bold face type, shows originality, and is well illustrated. By direct style presentation, the author has avoided controversial details with exhaustive documented references often suggestive of unsolved problems to the advanced student in dairy bacteriology." A. H. Robertson
+ Am J Pub Health 40:215 F '50 370w
Booklist 46:116 D 1 '49

ELLINGTON, RICHARD. Stone cold dead. 247p $2.50 Morrow

50-7065

Detective story.

Kirkus 18:116 F 15 '50 60w

"A competent but undistinguished mystery."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 My 28 '50 180w

"The quiet, unsensational pleasantness of the telling and the unusual island locale make this a more than readable version of the conventional formula." A. B.
+ N Y Times p16 Ap 23 '50 140w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p20 Jl 23 '50 80w
Springf'd Republican p12C My 21 '50 190w

ELLIOT, ROBERT O. E. Eastern brook trout; with pointers on where and how to fish for them. 242p il $5 Norton

799.1755 Trout Agr50-433

"Author Elliot, who works for the Maine Development Commission, has relentlessly pursued this trout (salvelinus fontinalis) for years and his book is rich with history of trout flies and gear, techniques of finding and outsmarting the wary ones, cooking and caring for those that didn't get away." (N Y Times) Index.

"Scholarly, well written discussion about the where and how of brook trout fishing by an experienced angler and newspaper columnist." Bob Becker
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 My 7 '50 50w

"It would be a delight to any fly-fisherman who loves whipping the hill stream or spring fed pond for salvelinus fontinalis." J. A. Leighton
+ Churchman 164:15 My 1 '50 180w
Cleveland Open Shelf p11 My '50

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 75:779 My 1 '50 30w

Reviewed by Nate Aleskovsky
N Y Times p7 Ap 16 '50 320w
San Francisco Chronicle p20 My 7 '50 300w

ELLIS, HOWARD SYLVESTER. Economics of freedom; the progress and future of aid to Europe; with an introd. by Dwight D. Eisenhower; pub. for the Council on foreign relations. 549p $5 Harper

330.94 Europe—Economic conditions. Reconstruction (1939)—Europe. U.S.—Foreign policy 50-9247

"Dr. Ellis, Professor of Economics at the University of California, headed a distinguished research staff assembled to evaluate the European Recovery Program under the auspices of a group of well-known public figures called the Council on Foreign Relations. General Dwight D. Eisenhower was chairman of the Council's Aid to Europe Group, and contributed the introduction to this report, which represents the composite work of the staff." (Nation) Index.

Bookmark 10:3 O '50 30w
Current Hist 19:231 O '50 70w

"This important book is the most ambitious attempt made thus far to analyze the progress of the Marshall Plan and to discuss its accomplishments."
+ Foreign Affairs 29:145 O '50 140w

"Not the least of its virtues is that Dr. Ellis has made it into a unified book, rather than the usual loosely coordinated collection of individual essays. . . The 549 pages are filled not only with facts but with remarkably forthright comment on the effects to be expected from various courses of action. Political obstacles, both in Europe and in the United States, are faced in exactly the same objective spirit as are the problems of producing and distributing goods." C. E. Noyes
+ Nation 171:211 S 2 '50 700w

"Though bleached a bit by time and tide this book is of prime interest and use. Thoroughness, depth of background, proportion and dissecting skill make it so. These distinguish it from the torrent of writing about the subject. Yet lack of evocative quality and a way of speaking only to the mind—to the mind bent toward the standard conceptions of the American economist—may reduce its persuasive range." Herbert Feis
+ — N Y Times p9 S 3 '50 1150w

"The author speculates on the future of Marshall Plan aid and ventures here and there into what sounds like informed criticism of certain aspects of our foreign economic policy. This is, of course, vital information to any American who wants to know how we are shaping up vis-à-vis Russia."
+ New Yorker 26:123 S 23 '50 160w

"This book is an excellent treatise on one of the most important problems facing the American public today, and is worth a careful reading by every person who takes an intelligent interest in the future of this country and the world." H. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p12C S 17 '50 270w

ELLIS, HUMPHRY FRANCIS. Vexations of A. J. Wentworth, B.A; drawings by Aldren A. Watson [Eng title: Papers of A. J. Wentworth, B.A.] 152p $2.50 Little

50-8884

Sets forth the harrassed life of an English schoolmaster, A. J. Wentworth, whose lack of a sense of humor was not duplicated by his young charges. They had humor to spare, but they never spared A. J., known as "the great Wen."

Booklist 47:61 O 1 '50

Reviewed by Mary Sandrock
Cath World 172:154 N '50 200w

"The situations are not ones which might be confined to the fertile imagination of English lads in their concoctions. Any boys' school could be the scene of most of them. But their local color undoubtedly adds much to the hilarity for English readers. For this American reader 'The Vexations of A. J. Wentworth' are only mildly amusing." Fanny Butcher
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 S 24 '50 320w

ELLIS, H. F.—Continued

Christian Science Monitor p6 O 7 '50 300w

Kirkus 18:399 Jl 15 '50 190w

"This Mr. Chips in reverse, one of God's own fools, is hilariously funny even to American tastes; the most masterly creation since Mr. Pooter of the Grossmiths' Diary of a Nobody. Highly recommended." E. F. Walbridge

+ Library J 75:1406 S 1 '50 100w

"'The Vexations of A. J. Wentworth, B.A.' now offers to the American reader—a dry humor, educated, English, quite implacable, and very funny indeed. I have often thought that 'Punch' jokes, at their worst, could have been invented by schoolmasters; now it is proved they can be that at their best also." James Hilton

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 O 1 '50 800w

"H. F. Ellis is the literary editor of Punch and he was once an assistant master in an English public school, where he may have met Mr. Wentworth. I cannot think of a book more likely to make a reader merry than these highly comical adventures of the bemused schoolmaster. I shall cherish my copy for aye; it goes into my secret bookcase equipped with the device which gives bibliothieves a nasty electric shock the instant they touch it." Frank Sullivan

+ N Y Times p8 S 24 '50 600w

"This story, told in diary form, of a mathematics master at an English preparatory school appeared originally as a series of pieces in Punch, and proves once again that no one can top a skillful English writer in the field of pure comedy."

+ New Yorker 26:134 O 21 '50 180w

Reviewed by W. R. White

San Francisco Chronicle p18 O 15 '50 400w

"Anyone who has ever taught will recognize something of himself—and, of course, a good deal more of his colleagues—in this self-portrait of an assistant master in an English school." Paul Pickrel

+ Yale R n s 40:192 autumn '50 110w

ELLSON, HAL. Tomboy; with an introd. by Frederic Wertham. 215p $2.75 Scribner

50-8423

The story of a New York city teen-age gang. The most daring girl of the group is Tomboy, the product of a broken home. She plans many crimes and is the leader of the "debs," the girls of the gang. She is tough, but not tough enough to hear an unpleasant truth about her "dead" mother. One last robbery fails and she and her boy friend hop a freight car out of town.

Booklist 46:309; 335 Je 15 '50; Jl 1 '50

Chicago Sun p5 Jl 18 '50 130w

Reviewed by M. W. Stoer

Christian Science Monitor p16 Jl 26 '50 300w

"This is not pleasant reading but is undeniably compelling in its sensitive understatement of youthful tragedy."

Kirkus 18:336 Je 15 '50 210w

"Not a pretty story, but effective in showing the result of parental neglect, lack of community concern with the juvenile delinquent, and poor social integration." H. L. Roth

Library J 75:1180 Jl '50 100w

Reviewed by Joanna Spencer

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Jl 23 '50 300w

Reviewed by Meyer Berger

N Y Times p18 Jl 16 '50 500w

"In a way it is rather sad that Mr. Ellson should have titled his book 'Tomboy.' The word isn't employed often in these days of female ball teams and roller-skating derbies. But there must still be thousands of small-town and city folk to whom 'tomboy' recalls the memory of a girl who could swim and fish, ride a bicycle, play tennis and baseball, shoot marbles, and win a snow fight as handily as any boy. She was the despair of her mother and maiden aunts, but she was healthy, wholesome, and clean." Josephine Lawrence

Sat R of Lit 33:11 Ag 12 '50 600w

School & Society 71:399 Je 24 '50 40w

"Despite its fascinating subject, Tomboy is no great shakes as a novel. Its surface action is credible enough, but when Therapist-Novelist Ellson tries to explain what makes his little hoodlums run, he is much too pat and predictable. Unlike such other slum novelists as James T. Farrell and Nelson Algren, he lacks the gift for individualizing his miniature mobsters and thereby arousing sympathy for them. The chances are that Ellson, who is a better reporter than novelist, would have done just as well to turn his notes into a straight, big-city documentary."

— Time 56:82 Jl 24 '50 490w

ELMORE, WILLIAM CRONK, and SANDS, MATTHEW LINZEE. Electronics: experimental techniques. 417p il $3.75 McGraw

537.5 Electronic apparatus and appliances

49-48777

"The National Nuclear Energy Series is designed as a record of research done under the Manhattan Project and its successor, the Atomic Energy Commission. . . Division V will be based on activities of the Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory. The present volume is the first issued in this Division. In it are described a number of circuit elements and circuits which are of interest to electronics engineers. Characteristics of the circuits are described with considerable fullness." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

N Y New Tech Bks 35:5 Ja '50

"The relative allocation of space to different topics, and the variation in level of presentation are difficult to understand. For example, much space is given to well-known construction techniques, while the theory of amplifier and trigger circuits is highly condensed; the discussion of decade counters, interpolators, fast counters, counting losses, and other important topics is greatly abbreviated in favor of much descriptive material on particular equipments. The descriptive treatment benefits, however, from the results of extensive experience."

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:123 Mr '50 230w

ELTING, MARY (BENJAMIN BREWSTER, pseud). First book of baseball; pictures by Jeanne Bendick. 96p $1.50 Watts, F.

796.357 Baseball—Juvenile literature

50-7367

"Easy introduction for the little fellow, cleverly illustrated with cartoon-like drawings. Index." (Bookmark) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:291 My 15 '50

Bookmark 9:213 Je '50 20w

"An interesting baseball handbook written simply; strictly for beginners."

Kirkus 18:99 F 15 '50 120w

"This is a perfect book for the young and brand new baseball fan! In a simple, readable style, the book presents the basic rules of the game together with the special terms that are used in connection with plays and positions." M. D. Read

+ Library J 75:1054 Je 15 '50 70w

"It's all good, and highly recommended for either sex, of any age on their way to a 'first' baseball game." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Je 11 '50 150w

"'First Book of Baseball' is as clear an introduction to the mysteries of the diamond as we have ever seen. . . Jeanne Bendick has contributed diagrams and drawings which are amusing as well as instructive." E. L. B.

+ N Y Times p22 My 28 '50 140w

Wis Lib Bul 46:19 Je '50

ELTING, MARY (BENJAMIN BREWSTER, pseud). First book of cowboys; pictures by William Moyers. [42p] $1.50 Watts, F.

917.8 Cowboys—Juvenile literature
50-6874

Information for ages eight to ten on the life of a cowboy, described in text and pictures. The cowboy's gear, duties, clothing, slang, and favorite songs, all are described.

Booklist 46:278 My 1 '50
Chicago Sun p5 My 16 '50 40w

"It's all told in an easy to read, lively style, with decorative pictures to match." Polly Goodwin
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Je 18 '50 110w

"The information is evidently accurate and the chapters on the spring roundups, the rodeo and the winter activities will be appreciated by the youngsters for whom the book is intended; so will the songs." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 26:188 My '50 80w

"This is one of the best books we have seen about cowboys and their work."
+ Kirkus 18:99 F 15 '50 70w

"Welcome addition to any book collection. Recommended." Elizabeth Sussdorff
+ Library J 75:879 My 15 '50 70w

"This attractive picture book will be welcomed with cheers by those eight-year-old would-be cowboys." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 My 21 '50 110w

"The information is excellently organized, vividly presented in easy-to-read prose." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p30 My 14 '50 150w
Wis Lib Bul 46:19 Je '50

ELTON, GODFREY ELTON, 1st baron. Two villages. 190p $1.75 Macmillan for Collins

828 England—Social life and customs
[50-2090]

A group of essays recording "various reflections, and encounters, in a midland village during the course of one day in the summer of 1948, through the texture of which can be discerned here and there, as when two photographs are imposed upon the same film, glimpses of another village, belonging to another life. One village, Questing Regis, is, so far as I know, not to be found upon any map, nor are its inhabitants actual people. Nevertheless Questing Regis is, I hope, the sort of village, and its inhabitants the sort of people across whom one may still stumble in many parts of England to-day. As for the other village, everything said of it is strictly factual." (Chapter I)

Booklist 46:350 Jl 15 '50

Reviewed by R. H. S. Crossman
New Statesman & Nation 38:490 O 29 '49 180w

Reviewed by P. W. Wilson
+ N Y Times p24 My 28 '50 180w

"It must be confessed that the method is doubtfully satisfactory. Something like an impressionist's glimpse of the village of Questing Regis has emerged when the book closes, and we nearly believe in it—but not quite. The people, too, very nearly come into the daylight, and it is the daylight of Dr. L. P. Jack's Mad Shepherds, which must have been very recently in the author's mind, but they flit, insubstantial shades, at hide-and-seek among the shadows of their rural world, making as they come and go a passing contribution to the reflections. . . It is unfair, however, to try to summarize what is always intensely alive, closely tied to the normal facts of to-day's experience and unfailingly interesting and suggestive. No one is likely to read Lord Elton's book and then dismiss it without further thought or quite without gratitude."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p621 S 23 '49 450w

ELWOOD, MURIEL. Against the tide. 331p $3 Bobbs
50-6265

Philip Mackay returned to Los Angeles in 1879 to become a rancher, and to find the Spanish girl he had admired when they were both children. Francisca's proud family hated Americans and Philip's progress was slow. Even after they were married he had to be tactful in handling any situation which meant giving up the old ways. The discovery of oil brought them riches, and as the book ends one of Philip's children is asking for a "horseless carriage."

Booklist 46:232 Mr 15 '50

"It is refreshing today to come upon an historical novel whose author is primarily concerned with telling a story and not with providing a continuous chronicle of boudoir escapades. . . The theme is a delicate one and is handled with skill and sensitivity but the book suffers from the lack of really first rate descriptive writing and from the absence of passion and vitality in many of its characters." J. M. Connole
+ — Commonweal 51:661 Mr 31 '50 200w

Reviewed by M. M. Ahern
N Y Times p33 Ap 30 '50 160w

"Best thing about the story is the author's reflection of what you might call the 'feel' of the period of which she writes. She has been at pains to dig up not merely the literal facts of Los Angeles' first boom, but to get at the emotional climate of the time, so to say." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p10 Ap 15 '50 700w

"Comfortably told in slightly shredded prose. All gamblers are 'inveterate'; belles are 'reigning,' or were; conventions are made to be 'flouted;' and if any clinging is done it's done 'tenaciously'. Words fit in to their accustomed places. Soothing."
Sat R of Lit 33:29 My 13 '50 130w

ELY, LOUIS BRAINERD. Red army today. 256p il maps $3.50 Military service

355 Russia. Army
49-49554

"Using such information as is available, Colonel Ely tries to evaluate Soviet armed might and to guess at the manner in which it might be used against us. By way of demonstrating the latter he rehearses two hypothetical Russian invasions—one of Western Europe and the other of the Middle East and North Africa—but assumes that neither side will use atomic weapons." Foreign Affairs

---

"For a book which is in many ways a technical intelligence estimate of the situation, the presentation is in readable form for anyone who wishes a better picture of the war potential of the Soviets." E. M. Peixotto
+ Ann Am Acad 270:190 Jl '50 400w
Foreign Affairs 28:685 Jl '50 50w

Reviewed by J. M. Gavin
N Y Times p3 Ja 15 '50 750w

EMERY, MRS ANNE. Going steady. 189p $2.50 Westminster press
50-7106

A sequel to Senior Year. During the summer after their graduation from high school Sally Burnaby wears Scotty's pin and they make plans for the future, jobs, trousseau, a home of their own. But as the summer wears on the romantic aspects wear thin and budgets, bills and the trials of early marriage begin to seem important, until at the end of the vacation period both are ready to go to college.

Booklist 46:236; 265 Mr 15 '50; Ap 15 '50
Bookmark 9:214 Je '50 40w

"The author's realistic approach to a problem facing many families these impetuous days

EMERY, ANNE—Continued
combines sympathy for first love and a lot of common sense. 'Going Steady' might well prove a boon to worried parents if they would put it in the hands of their teen age offspring, happy to accept advice if wrapped in an entertaining story." Polly Goodwin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Je 11 '50 250w

"An appealing story with sound values."

+ Kirkus 18:67 F 1 '50 80w

"A serious problem skillfully handled. . . Excellent for young people's collections." Sonja Wennerblad

+ Library J 75:705 Ap 15 '50 50w

"[The book] is not wonderfully well written, but it offers a very real problem of young people in senior high school, and strikes at a crisis which happens to that age girl more often than most adults would realize." L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Jl 16 '50 170w

"This is a fine book which girls will enjoy and from which they will get sound though unobtrusive advice on a very important teenage problem." M. C. Scoggin

+ N Y Times p26 Ap 16 '50 200w

Wis Lib Bul 46:27 My '50

EMERY, EDWIN. History of the American newspaper publishers association. 263p $3.50 Univ. of Minn.

070.627 American newspaper publishers association 50-6013

"Formed in 1887, the Association now has a membership of over 800 newspapers, representing more than 90 per cent of U.S. and Canadian dailies. It has made itself an accepted spokesman for daily newspapers in their dealings with labor unions and advertisers; fenced with the New Deal; eliminated tariff charges on newsprint, and aided the war effort. Index, four-page bibliography, and list of officers and directors from the beginning." Library J

"This is a work of scholarship, competently and objectively done. Anyone interested in the background of contemporary American journalism had better read it." Herbert Brucker

+ Am Hist R 55:991 Jl '50 330w

Reviewed by H. C. Perkins

Am Pol Sci R 44:504 Je '50 290w

"In a world of slanted writing, the neutrality of this book is refreshing. . . As a whole, this book is a good, solid piece of research work, worthy of a place on the reference shelves of anyone interested in the American press; but definitely, it is not 'dramatic.'" W. C. Clark

+ Ann Am Acad 270:165 Jl '50 360w

Booklist 46:227 Mr 15 '50

Reviewed by William Yates

Chicago Sunday Tribune p15 Mr 26 '50 300w

"A useful chronicle, though the style is in general as prosaic as the title." E. F. Walbridge

Library J 75:493 Mr 15 '50 80w

"Mr. Emery went to the ANPA files for basic materials. His book will be of interest to newspapermen and students of the press." W. D. Ogdon

N Y Times p23 Mr 5 '50 400w

San Francisco Chronicle p18 Mr 26 '50 190w

Sat R of Lit 33:43 My 6 '50 280w

"Designed primarily for those with a special interest in the growth of the press as a business enterprise, the book deserves a wider audience, for it takes the reader behind the matters of news or editorial policy to the everyday problems of men who direct the business operations of a newspaper, and therefore adds information valuable for a full understanding of the American press."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:190 Je '50 210w

EMMET, BORIS, and JEUCK, JOHN E. Catalogues and counters; a history of Sears, Roebuck and company. 788p il $7.50 Univ. of Chicago press

658.872 Sears, Roebuck and company 50-7387

"The history of Sears, Roebuck & Co., one of the phenomenally successful commercial enterprises in 20th century America. . . The history spans the period from 1886, when the company had its beginning as a small mail order venture, to the present in which the company occupies the position of the country's largest distributor of general merchandise. Of greatest interest to most readers is probably the account of the company's development in the last 30 years." (Chicago Sunday Tribune) Bibliography. Index.

"It would be hard to find another volume so large, so packed with statistics and hard facts, that is at the same time so readable. Somehow, however, the authors always appear to be looking in from the outside rather than looking out from the inside. They are examining things already accomplished and decisions made. The essence of the management appears to be the central formulation of policies and then the local execution of those policies by employees said to be of a rather mediocre quality." N. S. B. Gras

+ — Ann Am Acad 272:250 N '50 800w

Booklist 46:283 My 15 '50

"A history of a business institution as honest and informative as 'Catalogues and Counters' is a rare occurrence. The authors—one a former Sears executive and the other a University of Chicago professor—have set a high standard for those who follow in this new field of history which has as its subjects the Goliaths of manufacture and distribution spawned by a free American economy." Emmett Dedmon

+ Chicago Sun p5 Ap 24 '50 420w

"The book contains a wealth of information in highly readable form about a business organization probably better known to more Americans than any other corporate enterprise." Thomas Furlong

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ap 23 '50 370w

Current Hist 19:105 Ag '50 30w

"This history of Sears, Roebuck will have but scant appeal for the general reader, who will be deterred by its bulk, its statistics, its detail. It is a valuable book, however, for the economist, the merchant, the sociologist, the folklorist, the student of American ways, the advertiser. And the future popularizer will find it a bonanza." D. L. Cohn

+ — N Y Times p7 Ap 23 '50 1000w

"This business history is so complete, detailed, thorough and technical that much of the drama inherent in the amazing story of the growth of an American business into an international institution is necessarily lost. But for businessmen generally, and all readers interested, professionally or otherwise in business and economic history, this is a most valuable study of the problems, policies and practices of a huge private business, its administration, its success and failures, and its place in American life." C. W. W.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 My 28 '50 200w

"This book, though pleasantly written and with many humorous incidents lightening its pages, is too ponderous in size, too frighteningly studded with charts and tables, to attract the casual reader, who will find more entertainment in David L. Cohn's 'The Good Old Days,' a dissertation on the Sears, Roebuck catalogue written about ten years ago." A. F. Harlow

Sat R of Lit 33:38 My 6 '50 950w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:329 S '50 320w

ENGEL, CLAIRE ELIANE. History of mountaineering in the Alps; with a foreword by F. S. Smythe. 296p pl $6 Scribner

796.52 Mountaineering. Alps 50-7482

"This new history of mountaineering covers the whole subject in its European context, from the moment when men first lost their fear of the peaks and began to think there might be something interesting in climbing them. The reasons for this change of attitude were numerous and intricate, and Mlle Engel (herself a climber of considerable skill, with a long list of French books on Alpine subjects to her credit) attempts to make them clear. . . The book ends with an analysis of modern climbing tendencies and the lines along which they are developing. She makes use of a large number of hitherto unpublished documents which throw an entirely new light on this exciting story." (Publisher's note) Bibliography. Index.

"A compendium of names of people and places, of peaks and dates that is sadly lacking in the human interest and excitement which the reader might expect from the subject matter. To the initiated few who are already familiar with Alpine geography and history, this may prove an exhaustive reference work; however, the interested lay reader will probably give up after the first few chapters of early naturalists who troop by in confusing succession looking for flora and discovering the joys of climbing. The last few chapters provide a bit of the hoped for action, yet even this is blunted by the serious, superior tone of the author who seems to take a very dim view of 'hikers' as opposed to 'climbers' and obviously considers anything smaller than an alp no mountain at all."
— Kirkus 18:225 Ap 1 '50 170w

"Highly recommended." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 75:1190 Jl '50 50w

"The author is a well-known and highly competent French Alpinist. Her book is written in English, and excellent English, too. She has considerable descriptive powers, writes a lively prose, and rejoices in a dry humour which is in the best tradition of mountaineering literature." Lord Chorley
+ Manchester Guardian p4 Ap 14 '50 420w

"Mlle Engel is almost as interested in the writings of mountaineers as in their climbs. There have been several histories of the subject: she has made hers fresh and lively by using unpublished letters and narratives of the early climbers, by her interest in the personalities of climbers and guides, and by her wide reading in nineteenth- and twentieth-century literature. It is a stimulating narrative, and very well illustrated; but it should be used with reserve as a reference book. There are too many wrong dates, mis-spellings and sweeping judgments—e.g. 'the worst adversaries of mountaineering were the guides.'" J. A. Smith
+ — New Statesman & Nation 39:580 My 20 '50 1150w

"Mlle. Engel's book is the best of introductions to the romance and grandeur of climbing for the beginner; it is bound to be a revelation to the uninitiated, and should be a 'must' for mountaineers." Saul Colin
+ Sat R of Lit 33:28 S 9 '50 320w

"Possibly the least satisfactory thing about her stimulating and enjoyable book is its title. Regarded as a series of papers on Alpine history, it is always interesting; as a continuous history, however, it is open to some criticism on grounds of proportion."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p441 Jl 14 '50 600w

ENGINEERING RESEARCH ASSOCIATES, INCORPORATED. High-speed computing devices; by the staff, supervised by C. B. Tompkins and J. H. Wakelin; ed. by W. W. Stifler, junior. 451p $6.50 McGraw

651.264 Calculating machines 50-13719

"Explains the mathematical and electromechanical bases of computers, then describes specifically the machines which have been developed to date and also gives some attention to devices which will probably be developed in the near future. In addition to a meaty text, there is a rather considerable number of illustrations, most of which are schematics of circuits. Extensive bibliographies also are included. Though most of the space is given to electronic methods of computation, the commercial adding machines and punched-card machines also are explained. The work was originally prepared as a report for the Office of Naval Research." (Library J) Chapter bibliographies. Index.

Booklist 47:56 O 1 '50

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 75:1829 O 15 '50 140w

ENGLANDS helicon; ed. from the edition of 1600 with additional poems from the edition of 1614, by Hugh Macdonald. (Muses' lib) 260p $1.70 Harvard univ. press

821.08 English poetry—Collections [50-2224]

"Of special interest to students of English literature. This collection of lyrics is a copy of the 1925 edition, with notes, author and title indexes and a facsimile of the 1614 title page." Booklist

Booklist 47:78 O 15 '50

Reviewed by Kathleen Raine
New Statesman & Nation 39:410 Ap 8 '50 60w

Reviewed by B. R. Redman
Sat R of Lit 33:76 N 11 '50 60w

"Among these smooth songs there is nothing harsh or inharmonious, no fracturing of the metre, little complexity in the thought; but, instead, a perfection of clear language and homogeneous imagery, of 'pretty' and not violent 'conceits.'" Richard Murphy
+ Spec 184:658 My 12 '50 650w

ENGLEBERT, OMER. Saint Francis of Assisi; a biography; tr. and ed. by Edward Hutton. 352p il $4 Longmans

B or 92 Francis of Assisi, Saint 50-14456

A scholarly biography of St Francis, based on all available research. Bibliography. Index.

"Perhaps the Abbé Englebert's genius is for the use and interpretation of source materials and scholarly writing rather than for brisk and orderly biographical narrative, but, when one lays the book aside, there remains a vivid impression of Francis' characteristics. . . To this reviewer, the book seems primarily valuable for its simplicity and fairness; the author takes his stand honestly, but he treats Brother Elias and others not in agreement with Francis kindly and generously." D. H. Moseley
+ Commonweal 52:613 S 29 '50 600w

"A really sound, scholarly life of St. Francis. . . Mr. Edward Hutton has done a good work in translating and editing this book, though his translation is sometimes a little stilted. The footnotes which he adds and which are not in the French edition, are among the most valuable parts of the book." J. R. H. Moorman
+ Manchester Guardian p4 Mr 10 '50 300w

"It is the merit of the present volume that it brings together and synthesizes the more important recent investigations without neglecting the fundamental source material of the Legendae themselves. Thus the author combines the scholarly with the popular, the erudite with the traditional, achieving a balance that fully justifies its high purpose. A sober but not a pedestrian book." J. W. Chase
+ N Y Times p10 S 3 '50 220w
San Francisco Chronicle p24 S 17 '50 200w

ENGSTRAND, STUART DAVID. Son of the giant. 272p $3 Creative age

50-5867

Psychological novel in which the central character is Cliff Kent, son of an influential businessman in a Missouri town. Cliff hated his father, partly because he blamed him for the death of his mother. His father hated Cliff because he could not seem to make a man of him. The struggle became more complicated when Cliff fell in love with his father's second wife.

ENGSTRAND, S. D.—Continued

"'Son of the Giant,' while not up to 'Beyond the Forest' in performance, is nevertheless an incisive and ably done portrait of a psychiatric type not at all uncommon." August Derleth

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Mr 5 '50 350w

"As Freudian melodrama the novel is highly readable. There is a rush of narrative from first page to last, so precipitous that the author has understandably dispensed with conventional chapter divisions and plunged his reader on a 272-page adventure without pause." Stephen Stepanchev

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 Mr 12 '50 350w

Reviewed by Charles Spielberger

N Y Times p41 Mr 19 '50 200w

"Mr Engstrand writes very well. . . I might add that I shouldn't be surprised to learn that the author had taken psychiatric counsel on some of his situations, and that he had gone to experts for it. His awareness, implicit throughout, that even the abnormal is traceably linked to what we like to think of as 'normal,' is the most significant thing about his novel." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Mr 9 '50 750w

"The end of the novel is astounding, but perhaps no more astounding than every chapter of it. It is in its entirety primitive and abnormal." John Cournos

Sat R of Lit 33:34 Mr 25 '50 320w

EPSTEIN, BERYL W. See Williams, Beryl.

ERDMAN, LOULA GRACE. Edge of time. 275p $3 Dodd

50-14306

A novel of the Texas Panhandle in 1885, and of a brave young couple who started their married life as homesteaders in that lonely country.

Booklist 47:79 O 15 '50

"A natural, appealing story."

+ Bookmark 10:32 N '50 30w

"Miss Erdman's story tells about the makers of the great Texas Panhandle wheat country, shows imagination touched with grace, the ability to reconstruct a place and a time, and genuine admiration for the people, particularly the women." W. K. R.

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 O 21 '50 200w

Reviewed by M. D. Read

Library J 75:2160 D 15 '50 40w

"Miss Erdman now lives in the Panhandle and has heard first-hand many stories of neighbors who are homesteaders or children of homesteaders. Out of these she has drawn this refreshingly unassuming novel of frontier days." Mary Ross

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 O 29 '50 650w

"Miss Erdman writes tenderly and understandingly of the 'sodbusters' whose faith built much of the West and who never merited the contempt with which they were regarded." Hoffman Birney

+ N Y Times p37 N 26 '50 470w

"One is inclined to complain at the muted tone of the book, yet that quietness is probably accurate. . . Nevertheless the book is good reading. Miss Erdman has done a fundamentally honest and literate telling of one of the lesser-known chapters in the American saga, and we need each such chapter. Besides, Bethany and Wade are nice people—you'll like them." Kathleen Sproul

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:74 N 11 '50 410w

Wis Lib Bul 46:17 N '50

ERIKSON, ERIK HOMBURGER. Childhood and society. 397p $4 Norton

618.92 Child study. Psychoanalysis 50-10326

"A Professor of Psychology at the University of California and a teacher of psychiatry and psychoanalysis, Mr. Erikson emphasizes the importance of early frustrations and leniencies in the development of adult attitudes, anxieties and actions. He believes that while sexual conflict was at the basis of most neuroticism in Freud's day, the main reason for emotional disturbances in America today lies in the lack of 'an emotional integration.' He traces this back to immaturity caused by a prolonged period of childhood and to certain unique characteristics of the American culture and family training." (N Y Times) Index.

"Dr. Erikson points out areas for research but does not feel that we now have sufficient knowledge to blueprint a new type of child training. The favorable reception of his thesis hinges to a large extent on the reader's acceptance of psychoanalytic theory. Most of us, at any rate, will agree that the author has presented an interesting and timely point of view, one that reflects a healthy trend in psychiatry, psychoanalysis and child development." M. R. Brown

N Y Times p35 N 19 '50 410w

San Francisco Chronicle p8 N 26 '50 270w

ERNST, MORRIS LEOPOLD, and LINDEY, ALEXANDER. Hold your tongue! the layman's guide to libel and slander; a fascinating exploration of the realm of defamation, including an analysis of ideological, racial and religious libels. rev ed 304p $3 Abelard

347.5 Libel and slander 50-13674

"Some years ago [the authors], well and widely known attorneys at law, collaborated to produce a book on libel for the layman. Now extensively revised and brought down to date, it is reissued under the original title." (San Francisco Chronicle) For first edition see Book Review Digest 1932.

"In general, the authors handle well the problem of transforming a technical body of doctrine into a form intelligible to the general reader. The law of defamation is full of entertaining examples of the foibles of human nature, and the authors exploit these opportunities fully. One of the major weaknesses of the book arises from efforts to make the subject matter palatable to the nonspecialist. . . If the book does not succeed completely, neither does it fail completely. It deserves thoughtful consideration." F. A. Allen

+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 S 3 '50 480w

"Like the earliest edition, it is a useful guide for the ordinary reader and at the same time interesting reading for anyone." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 Ag 9 '50 850w

ERNST, ROBERT. Immigrant life in New York city, 1825-1863. 331p $4.50 King's Crown press

325.7471 New York (city)—Foreign population 49-9759

"Dr. Ernst provides here a well-rounded picture of the life of immigrant groups on Manhattan Island from the opening of the Erie Canal in 1825 to the Civil War draft riots of 1863. . . Greatest attention is, necessarily, given to the Irish and German groups who constitute the large majority of the immigrants in the period covered. The problems the immigrant faced upon landing, living conditions, economic adjustments, trade union developments, and the relations between immigrant and native workers are fully described." (U S Quarterly Bkl) Bibliography. Index.

"Like most contemporary works in social history, Immigrant Life in New York City is excellent in factual coverage and disappointing in meaningful generalizations." Arthur Mann

+ — Am Hist R 55:635 Ap '50 480w

"The title to some extent belies the actual scope of the work, and it is to be regretted that a more genuinely descriptive one was not selected. Identical with its prototype, Boston's Immigrants, 1790-1865, Ernst's volume likewise masterfully encompasses 'the internal constitution of the social milieu.' . . The virtues of intrinsic interest, scholarly exposition and concise organization make this volume rewarding reading for the sociologist and special student of ethnic problems as well as for the student of American history." Moses Rischin

+ — Am J Soc 56:116 Jl '50 550w

"The book, although based on material from a limited geographical area, will certainly allow us to draw broader conclusions about immigration history en large. The basic conditions among the immigrants were probably similar in all big cities along the Atlantic Coast. Mr. Ernst's study is well fortified with footnotes, tables, statistics, bibliography, and index." Dieter Cunz
+ Ann Am Acad 267:243 Ja '50 440w

"A talent for the selection of relevant detail, and for lively characterization of many forgotten but significant personalities, distinguishes Ernst among research scholars." Lloyd Morris
+ New Repub 121:19 O 31 '49 550w

Social Studies 41:144 Mr '50 10w

"The contents and the presentation make the book a suitable reference for secondary school or college students. It is a good example of the value of a study of a particular locale for the understanding of a topic of nation-wide significance." Ira Kreider
+ Social Studies 41:333 N '50 200w

"This detailed social history of the New York immigrant of this period provides a valuable complement to the numerous sociological and historical studies dealing exclusively with the post-Civil War period."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:489 D '49 280w

ERSKINE, JOHN. My life in music. 283p $3.50 Morrow

B or 92 Musicians—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 50-10220

Chapters in the author's autobiography which stress the musical aspects of his life. Index.

Booklist 47:94 N 1 '50

Bookmark 10:29 N '50 50w

Kirkus 18:501 Ag 15 '50 170w

"Full of humor and a sense of responsibility." C. K. Miller
+ Library J 75:1508 S 15 '50 70w

"This autobiography is recommended to theatre and cinema collections." George Freedley
+ Library J 75:2155 D 15 '50 30w

Reviewed by Herbert Kupferberg
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 O 29 '50 950w

"The author's bland frankness is often an eye-opener. . . The tales of the reorganization of the Juilliard School and of the wedding of the Juilliard Foundation with the Metropolitan have been told before, but not with the authority of a man in Erskine's key position." Moses Smith
+ N Y Times p14 O 22 '50 500w

"One wonders why Mr. Erskine bothered to bring out such a slight volume, one which scarcely enhances his reputation. This is a far cry from 'The Elizabethan Lyric,' 'The Moral Obligation to Be Intelligent,' and 'The Private Life of Helen of Troy'—works for which the author is justly acclaimed. In the present publication there are a few attractive thumbnail sketches, affectionate tributes to a number of artists—he has always remained an ardent admirer of MacDowell—and occasional arresting passages. By and large, however, this is a disappointing job." C. S. Smith
— + Sat R of Lit 33:28 N 25 '50 800w

ERTZ, SUSAN (MRS J. R. MCCRINDLE). Prodigal heart. 305p $3 Harper

50-4868

"Medwin Blair, a young war widow, goes to work as a secretary for two rich, elderly ladies, both of whom are engaged strenuously in charities. There is an element of strain in the household and Medwin perceives that the two are bitter rivals. . . When Medwin falls in love with the nephew of one of her employers the book reaches an inevitable dénouement." N Y Times

Booklist 46:345; 47:13 Jl 15 '50; S 1 '50

Bookmark 10:32 N '50 50w

"Silly people in a silly tale that is swaddled in fuzzy prose." Mary Sandrock
— Cath World 172:75 O '50 200w

"Susan Ertz' 14th novel is written with the skill and readability that characterize all her work, and one can enthusiastically recommend it as being completely absorbing. . . Of course it works out, but the added complications of Aunt Louise's communism and Robert Lyddon's wife seem almost unkind on the part of the author. It isn't as tho she were trying to prove something in this novel. She is a superb storyteller. But there seems to be just a little too much story here." Olive Carruthers
+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 S 10 '50 450w

Christian Science Monitor p6 O 7 '50 260w

"An unsatisfactory and perhaps too too noble an ending, for a story in which no one of the characters ever quite comes to life."
— Kirkus 18:364 Jl 1 '50 250w

Reviewed by K. T. Willis
Library J 75:1290 Ag '50 80w

"'The Prodigal Heart' is an unusual novel, interesting for its picture of life and classes in post-war England and remarkable for its variety of theme and depth of characterization. With insight into the motives of the very different persons in her story, Miss Ertz also has compassion for the forces that make them act as they do, even when cruelly or foolishly. The result is a satisfying and highly civilized story." Mary Ross
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 S 10 '50 550w

"The decision to call Susan Ertz's new novel 'The Prodigal Heart' was a disservice to a good book. There is no trace of the sentimentality such a title implies in Miss Ertz's wise and compassionate probing into the loves and hatreds and half-perceptible tensions which go to make up a situation, a household or a lifetime." Jane Cobb
+ N Y Times p28 S 17 '50 230w

"A thoughtful book. . . Miss Ertz's writing, particularly in the first part of the book, is often clumsy, but most of the time she writes a good solid story, managing to make her characters seem not only real but likable, and even a bit romantic as well."
+ — New Yorker 26:118 S 9 '50 160w

San Francisco Chronicle p21 N 26 '50 270w

"Joyce Cary has found in the contrast between Victorianism and its aftermath one of his major themes. . . Now Susan Ertz, in this good, solid, in many ways distinguished novel, has felt and written on much the same subject. She is herself a little cautious and in the end she reduces some of her emotion to sentimentality (as the Victorians were more apt to do in literature than in life). But her book is a pleasure to read, the precision of her writing is a joy, and her characters are full of those delightful surprises that make one read a book not merely for the drive of the narrative, but also for the page-by-page enjoyment of each well-created scene and passage." Elizabeth Janeway
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:20 S 9 '50 850w

ESPEY, JOHN JENKINS. The other city. 211p $2.75 Knopf

B or 92 49-50395

The third volume in the author's recollections of a boyhood spent in Shanghai as the youngest member of a Presbyterian mission family. Some of the articles have appeared in the New Yorker.

Booklist 46:149; 170 Ja 1 '50; Ja 15 '50

ESPEY, J. J.—Continued

"At his best Mr. Espey has undeniable charm in his writing and some delightful humor. At his worst he can be coy and undeniably dull." V. P. Hass
+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 Ja 29 '50 460w

"These entertaining sketches can be recommended to all for each—historian, traveler, child psychologist, Presbyterian—will find material for thought as well as amusement." M. B. Jansen
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Mr 3 '50 450w

Cleveland Open Shelf p6 Mr '50

Kirkus 17:637 N 15 '49 190w

"A nice contrast of the worldly and Presbyterianism adds richness to what might otherwise be merely amusing or anecdotal. . . Recommended." H. S. Taylor
+ Library J 75:103 Ja 15 '50 130w

"'The Other City' is a winsome and gracious book, child-wise on the surface, uneasy beneath. Being not merely Westerners in China but also born there, the children were a minority of a minority—'We often felt that we wandered as strangers through our own city.' That they felt it as their own and also felt themselves strangers in it gave their experiences the tang that Mr. Espey so well remembers and communicates." James Hilton
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Ja 15 '50 800w

Reviewed by H. E. Wedeck
N Y Times p25 Ja 22 '50 190w

"Here, in an amiable and cheerful manner, John P. Espey tells of his schoolboy days in Shanghai, China, back in the 1920's. Those who have read some of these amusing reminiscences when they appeared originally in the New Yorker, will know what to expect. And the readers of Mr. Espey's other books, 'Minor Heresies' and 'Tales Out of School,' will find his latest book, 'The Other City,' quite as charming and refreshing." Carl Glick
+ Sat R of Lit 33:22 F 11 '50 550w

Wis Lib Bul 46:14 Ja '50

ESPY, WILLARD R. Bold new program. 273p $3 Harper

327.73 U.S.—Foreign policy. Economic conditions 50-7665

A discussion of Point Four of President Truman's inaugural address which calls for aid to underdeveloped areas of the world. "The book is divided into three sections. Section one presents a clear choice for Americans between economic isolation and active participation in a worldwide development of markets, power resources, industry, agriculture, and better health. . . Section two is a country-by-country survey of the Bold New Program at work, now and in the near and distant future. Section three deals with the human, organizational, and physical resources which can be employed and developed in implementing the Bold New Program." (Publisher's note)

Booklist 46:328 Jl 1 '50

"Mr. Espy is not the ideal expositor of a great ideal. His magazine-writing experience gives him a stereotyped, slapdash, fact-firing style that is all too familiar in achievement pages of our light literature. However, through the slick flow of statistics, there gleams, notwithstanding, a vision of this majestic design. Point Four begins to take shape as a piece of statesmanship that may open the gates to a new concept of national purpose, to a better and more harmonious world." Henry Sowerby
+ — Christian Science Monitor p6 Je 3 '50 1050w

Current Hist 19:107 Ag '50 40w

"A stimulating book."
+ Kirkus 18:191 Mr 15 '50 310w

"An extremely interesting survey of conditions in backward areas, with suggested plans. The whole a striking concept. Highly recommended." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 75:863 My 15 '50 140w

"Most of Espy's book consists of an encyclopedic summary of the limitations and possibilities of the world's poorer areas, taken up one by one in a somewhat paralyzing procession. It has the concentration of information to be found in a dictionary and is not much easier to read, despite a facile and competent journalistic style. On the other hand, the very fact that an executive of the Reader's Digest has given enthusiastic approval to Point Four, and backed it up with solid documentation, may be considerably more effective than the testimony of a group of experts who have been rather closely identified with the New Deal." C. E. Noyes
Nation 171:14 Jl 1 '50 450w

"The book merits a wide reading. If it cannot illuminate the whole path, it at least scatters sparks, some of which may start bonfires or even conflagrations." August Heckscher
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 My 28 '50 1050w

"Mr. Espy's survey of world needs is interesting and enlightening. Yet it is not the book that was needed about Point 4. . . Called upon for advice on Point 4, Mr. Espy would have useful judgments on all questions, for he gives plenty of indication in his book of having thought of them. However, he mostly passes them by in his effort to convert souls that are already saved—or beyond salvation." J. K. Galbraith
— + N Y Times p16 My 14 '50 950w

Reviewed by J. W. Hedgpeth
— San Francisco Chronicle p23 My 21 '50 1250w

"Never have the possibilities of world industrial development been more clearly or more excitingly portrayed than [in this book]. . . As director of special promotion for The Readers' Digest [the author] helped to launch that magazine's International Editions. Whether his mastery of the technique of the thumbnail sketch is cause or effect of this association, I do not know, but the affinity is unmistakable. The series of snapshots of the world's undeveloped regions, which form the main body of this book, exemplify that technique at its best. . . With all its evident virtues, 'Bold New Program' also suffers this defect. Mr. Espy offers no solution of the enigma of economic nationalism. For him it simply does not exist." C. E. Ayres
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:14 S 16 '50 700w

Wis Lib Bul 46:19 S '50

Reviewed by Herbert Feis
Yale R n s 40:164 autumn '50 430w

ESTORICK, ERIC. Changing empire, Churchill to Nehru. 342p $3.75 Duell

942.084 Great Britain—Colonies, dominions, etc. Imperial federation 50-8203

"Chronicles Britain's transition from an Empire, with England as the all-powerful head, to the present Commonwealth of Nations. Emphasis is upon the modern statesmen—Churchill, Smuts, Nehru, etc.—who helped effect the transition, and the story is described against the background of the continuing world crisis which has accelerated this tremendous historical development." (Library J) Index.

Booklist 46:332 Jl 1 '50

"The author perverts history in order to lead up to his argument." Arthur Veysey
— Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Jl 2 '50 400w

"Mr. Estorick's gallery of portraits are generally accurate. His main defect is an inability to see that though the Empire is in process of decentralization, the cohesive qualities of strong leaders like Smuts and Churchill have had their constructive value." Henry Sowerby
+ — Christian Science Monitor p8 Je 24 '50 1200w

Reviewed by E. W. Harris
Churchman 164:17 Ag '50 140w

"The biographies—and as a result, the book—are profoundly interesting, written with more sparkle than the earnest and scholarly Stafford Cripps evoked in Mr. Estorick's earlier biography, but only a skeleton of information about the changes in British colonial policy emerges." C. H. Weiss

— + Commonweal 52:421 Ag 4 '50 800w

"Those chapters dealing with the individuals to whom Estorick attributes the greatest parts in the drama are far more interesting reading than the more general overall treatment of the opening and closing chapters. . . Particularly significant are the chapters on Attlee, Smuts, Evatt, Bevin—perhaps because we know less about them, perhaps because the new England, South Africa and Australia are of vital importance in today's world. . . Not an inspired book, but important in the sum and substance of its content."

Kirkus 18:253 Ap 15 '50 150w

"The author's overweening insistence upon British terminology may annoy American readers, and some of his conclusions would be challenged by the serious historian. Nevertheless, as a general, somewhat superficial, introduction to the subject, this work will prove useful to the average reader." R. H. McDonough

+ — Library J 75:860 My 15 '50 120w

"Mr. Estorick has chosen the method of biography, with all its advantages in narrative, drama and stylistic vivacity. The core of this book is short biographical essays on seven men: Churchill, Attlee, Mackenzie King, Smuts, Bevin, Evatt and Nehru. Of course this involves telling substantially the same story seven times, from seven points of view, with seven different sets of historical circumstances all leading to the same end. . . I feel myself that the method requires greater technical brilliance, not to say virtuosity, than is at Mr. Estorick's disposal just now. I read every word of the book with unflagging interest, but I could have wished for a little more light and shade, changes of pace and cadence and emphasis, to make repetition imperceptible and illumine the seven aspects of the metamorphosis in a subtler light." Vincent Sheean

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Je 18 '50 1550w

"Mr. Estorick's book has value in that it brings together background information concerning regions which are very much in the news. His mind is capacious, but one could wish that it were more critical. He has collected a fat and interesting bag of facts, but these do not always seem to have the meanings which he assigns." Mildred Adams

+ — N Y Times p9 Je 11 '50 600w

New Yorker 26:96 Je 24 '50 120w

Reviewed by W. H. Stevenson

Sat R of Lit 33:15 Jl 29 '50 850w

ESTRIDGE, ROBIN. Sword without scabbard [Eng title: Return of a hero]. 250p $3 Morrow 50-10371

"The story of Captain Lewis who alone knew why Major Falkland was not a traitor; why the British government was responsible for the Major's lynching. For Lewis was the 'Hero of Kasmaan', the survivor of that harrowing trek to reach Falkland, the protector of Britain's oil interests in Kasmaan. Laying bare the persecution of a helpless people, the inefficiency of a government, this novel of the integrity of a man who sacrifices his future in the interests of truth is a telling study of the perversion of justice." Library J

Booklist 47:136 D 1 '50

Kirkus 18:533 S 1 '50 190w

"Recommended." W. K. Harrison

+ Library J 75:1824 O 15 '50 100w

"An excellent idea which misfires through lack of sophistication." John Raymond

New Statesman & Nation 40:438 N 11 '50 290w

"'Sword Without Scabbard' is too melodramatic in places and does not dig very deep, but the current importance of its underlying theme gives it a certain stature and integrity." James Hilton

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p19 N 19 '50 750w

Reviewed by Roger Garis

N Y Times p24 D 10 '50 170w

New Yorker 26:162 N 11 '50 120w

Reviewed by Richard Henchey

Springf'd Republican p30A D 17 '50 240w

Times [London] Lit Sup p641 O 13 '50 270w

ETHRIDGE, WILLIE (SNOW) (MRS M. F. ETHRIDGE). Going to Jerusalem. 313p $3.50 Vanguard

915.69 Palestine—Description and travel. Palestine—Jewish-Arab problem 50-7222

Personal narrative of the author's visit to Palestine where she went to join her husband, a member of the United Nations Palestine Conciliation Commission. Starting out as an ardent, though admittedly uninformed believer in Zionism, Mrs Ethridge returned convinced that there are two sides to the Arab-Jewish problem, with good and evil in both.

Booklist 46:301 Je 1 '50

"A very good book. Unhappily, there are some obstacles to complete enjoyment. For one thing, Mrs. Ethridge can be cloyingly cute; for another, she oversimplifies a complex problem; for a third she insists upon calling her husband [a good word] Mark [a good name] the 'roommate' and the sophomoric repetition made me a little ill." V. P. Hass

+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 My 14 '50 400w

"Mrs. Ethridge has written an admirably objective, factually accurate and very readable volume about the problems of present-day Palestine. . . The book has its weaknesses. There are a number of points where the reader feels that the author is straining too hard and stretching the story too far in an unsuccessful attempt to be funny. And there are places where a few more background facts are needed." G. E. Hopkins

+ — Christian Century 67:950 Ag 9 '50 650w

Reviewed by Ruth Chapin

Christian Science Monitor p16 Je 1 '50 420w

"Much of the book is revealing, much of it is disturbing. And many people will read this book who would steer clear of any more serious approach to the Palestine issue."

Kirkus 18:157 Mr 1 '50 250w

"This book is good reporting and entertaining, but the author's pattern has no variation. Not too important." K. T. Willis

Library J 75:489 Mr 15 '50 70w

Reviewed by Thomas Sugrue

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p21 My 14 '50 600w

"There must be millions of housewives, mothers and Junior Leaguers in the United States who know as little today about Israel and the Arab states as Willie Snow Ethridge knew before she went to Jerusalem. . . Mrs. Ethridge offers them a painless introduction to a painful problem. They may not learn many hard facts from Mrs. Ethridge's book about her experiences, but they will get something of the sight and sound and feel and smell of the Palestine problem, the countries and people involved." Clifton Daniel

N Y Times p22 Ap 16 '50 460w

"While 'Going to Jerusalem' makes no pretense of being a profound study of conditions in Palestine, it gives the kind of general picture which sends the interested reader to other sources for more detailed information." J. V.

San Francisco Chronicle p26 My 21 '50 500w

"Mrs. Ethridge's own good sense and accurate observation shine through the often clumsy descriptions, so that you see the terraced mountains and the orchards and the rocky deserts and the barren hills. More than that, under the impact of the very real problems which she met in Palestine for the first time, her archness becomes grimness and her writing turns into able reporting." M. S. Douglas

+ Sat R of Lit 33:31 Je 24 '50 600w

Wis Lib Bul 46:20 My '50

EUDY, MRS MARY CUMMINGS (PAINE). Quicken the current; poems; with an introd. by Hugh R. Walpole. 116p $2.50 Harper
811 49-50050

Short poems about life and people.

"[The poems are] worded with a delightful economy and facility, reminiscent of Emily Dickinson; accurate but unobtrusive, seasoned with warmth and humor."
+ Booklist 46:154 Ja 1 '50

"Mrs. Eudy uses words with rare economy and feeling in the poems collected in this book. Hers is a small poetic talent, one which relies largely on antithesis and paradox for its effects, but she has made the most of it, and the result is pleasing. Precise, sparsely decked in strong and original imagery, they speak plainly, and occasionally they rise to the higher level of overtones of general truth hinted at in some small image as in 'Dew.'. . Generally, her short, aphoristic poems, altho she seems to fancy them, are not as original or poetically genuine as her lyrics." Russell MacFall
+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 Ja 1 '50 220w

Kirkus 17:596 D 15 '49 130w

EVANS, BENJAMIN IFOR. Church in the markets. 154p $1.75 Macmillan
49-50244

In this short novel of post-war London, the hero is a war-weary veteran seeking peace and quiet in his little second-hand bookshop in the Chelsea district. Samuel Kemp, an elderly gentleman with a great love of London's past, makes friends with the hero, and together they confer on old books and old customs, especially Covent Garden and its old church. Eventually Samuel Kemp's unorthodox methods of gaining funds for charity bring about his downfall.

Booklist 46:219 Mr 1 '50

"As a novel, 'The Church in the Markets' is unimpressive, but as an eloquent, sane, reasoned and despairing cry against the debilitating effects of the welfare state it is one of the most impressive statements we have yet had from a British writer. . . 'The Church in the Markets' nevertheless is worth any serious reader's time." V. P. Hass
+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 Ja 8 '50 450w

"It is an incongruous tale; incongruous as Covent Garden itself. Mr. Evans has, indefinably, caught the compound flavor of the past. For this one forgives him his earnest but inadequate generalizations on beauty and truth, and this indulgence of the fallacy that all the difficulties of modern living stem from England's present government."
+ — Christian Science Monitor p11 D 29 '49 250w

Reviewed by Paul Bloomfield
Manchester Guardian p3 Je 10 '49 50w

"While 'The Church in the Markets' has its limitations as a novel, it is a moving and beautiful piece of prose." Hilda Osterhout
+ — N Y Times p15 Ja 1 '50 280w

San Francisco Chronicle p18 F 26 '50 190w

"It is well written in a quiet, clear, suitably old-fashioned style and makes a curiously vivid impression, out of all proportion to its didactic purpose and intrinsic unreality."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p393 Je 17 '49 180w

Wis Lib Bul 46:24 S '50

EVANS, DANIEL LUTHER. A free man's faith. 194p $3 Oxford
201 Faith. Religion—Philosophy 49-10594

"This book frankly takes the position that the paramount function of philosophy is to help people find the principles of excellent and effective living. The significance of critical and analytical methods in philosophical inquiry is definitely recognized, but the dominant concern of the book is to show the importance of intuitive and interpretive knowledge in a comprehensive philosophy of life. The theme of the book is that faith in reason and faith in revelation are both necessary for a constructive understanding of man and the cosmos. There is no attempt to expound exhaustively the theories of any of the world's great philosophers and religionists." Foreword

Reviewed by Ellen Rogers
Canadian Forum 30:144 S '50 120w

Reviewed by T. V. Smith
Ethics 60:150 Ja '50 280w

"This is a book for searchers of truth of whatever religious background, a helpful book to put into the hands of the wistful pagans of this materialistic civilization."
+ Kirkus 17:546 O 1 '49 100w

"Recommended for those in search of a social rather than a merely personal philosophy." L. R. Miller
+ Library J 74:1458 O 1 '49 130w

Wis Lib Bul 46:13 Ja '50

EVANS, ETHEL. This is crocheting. 277p il $2.95 Macmillan
746.43 Crocheting 49-11097

"Instruction book for beginner or proficient crocheter. It gives careful directions for simple advanced stitches (127, including many European innovations), up-to-date women's fashions, men's accessories, children's wear, afghans, blankets, and bedspreads. There is a list of the cryptic crocheting terminology and each pattern is illustrated with a photograph." Booklist

Booklist 46:153 Ja 1 '50

"Attractive, well-illustrated manual."
+ Bookmark 9:155 Ap '50 30w

EVANS, MRS EVA (KNOX). Tim's place; il. by Bruno Frost. 185p $2.50 Putnam 50-9460

Tim, the son of a New Hampshire farm family, was killed in World war II. He had been planning to bring an Austrian boy home with him, so the family sent for Stephen, to take Tim's place. The story is of Stephen's struggle to learn new ways and overcome the resentment he found among some of the inhabitants of the village. When he saved two small children caught out in a blizzard Stephen was really accepted.

"A good theme with enough action and suspense to hold the interest of boys and girls from about eleven and twelve to fourteen and fifteen." S. M. A.
+ Horn Bk 26:480 N '50 110w

"Labeled 'a novel for young people,' actually it is a good story for those of around twelve. . . A romance is hinted at between Lucy and Stephen, but on the whole it is a boy's story, and a good family story. The style is excellent, the New England atmosphere well done. The rescue of little Ellie in a blizzard is a thrilling climax." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 N 5 '50 220w

"Not every outsider has a chance to prove his integrity so heroically as did Stephen . . . but his story is fundamentally that of many a 'different' one. It is a good narrative, perceptive and honest, and it has a good deal to say to thoughtful young people." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p13 S 3 '50 230w

EVANS, JOAN. Cluniac art of the Romanesque period. 134p 209pl $14 Cambridge 246 Christian art and symbolism. Cluniacs. Architecture, Romanesque

Study of the art used to beautify the churches and monasteries of the Cluniac order from 910 to the twelfth century. Copiously illustrated by photographs of illuminated manuscripts and details of sculpture and other architectural decoration. Index.

"The volume will be of interest chiefly to scholars and to specialized students of art history." Howard Devree

+ N Y Times p45 S 24 '50 220w

"The 400 and more illustrations to Dr. Evans's new book are a treasure. . . The psychology of medieval art production and art appreciation is still a subject sorely in need of close research. But to tackle it, iconography—the knowledge of why subjects were chosen and for what reasons, other than aesthetic ones, they were treated as they were—must first be firmly established. Dr. Evans's book provides the much-needed foundation for Cluniac iconography."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p519 Ag 18 '50 1300w

EVANS, JOAN. English art, 1307-1461. (Oxford history of English art, v5) 272p pl $10 Oxford

709.42 Art, British. Art, Medieval 49-11146

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

"On the whole the book seems designed for specialists. The ordinary student of history or literature may lack the patience and the technical vocabulary to follow the treatment of some of these arts. Others are understandable enough, however, and the glimpses Miss Evans affords of the historical and social background should inform and delight both the historian and the literary critic." Faith Thompson

+ Am Hist R 55:584 Ap '50 600w

Reviewed by A. S. Plaut

+ Library J 75:174 F 1 '50 160w

"It is somewhat disappointing for those who know and admire England to encounter the familiar self-disparagement—the constant acquiescence to the premise that English art seldom if ever reached the heights of the great masterpieces on the Continent. . . American scholars in particular will be amused at Miss Evans's query as to whether timber-framed houses should be included under the term architecture. They are likely as well to feel that $10 is a lot to pay for a volume, which, in spite of the high quality of the ninety-seven plates, is essentially a modest one. Miss Evans has, however, assembled in this volume much material not available elsewhere and many of her chapters will prove useful to all students of English civilization." S. McK. Crosby

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:42 Ap 1 '50 800w

"To make a book containing so much detail so pleasureable to read is a great feat. It is, moreover, in the best English tradition. There are no daring new theories to confuse us, no displays of enthusiasms to irritate us. The narrative runs evenly, but evenness is not dullness. The writing is accomplished yet warm hearted, the felicity of the descriptive phrase enviable indeed. In short, precisely those literary and scholarly qualities are displayed which Mr. Boase will need for the ten following volumes to establish the Oxford History of English Art not only as a student's but also as a layman's handbook."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p17 Ja 13 '50 3300w

EVANS, MARY. Costume throughout the ages. rev ed 360p il $5 Lippincott

391 Costume 50-8475

"Many new illustrations and an added chapter on American costume since the seventeenth century distinguish this from the earlier edition [Book Review Digest 1930]." Booklist

Booklist 47:77 O 15 '50

Reviewed by L. T. Heron

Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Ag 27 '50 80w

"A survey useful for those interested in design in drama and/or the life at court and in the alleys." A. S. Plaut

+ Library J 75:1664 O 1 '50 80w

EVANS, OLIVER WENDELL. Young man with a screwdriver. 56p $2.25 Univ. of Neb. Extension division

811 50-7953

"As Tennessee Williams points out in a foreword to this first book of poems by Oliver Evans, here is an art neither violent nor compulsive, but rather 'a natural and joyful accompaniment to living.' Lyric, with a sense of the dramatic, these are largely poems about people, individually and collectively, or the creations and activities of men." N Y Herald Tribune Bk R

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Ag 6 '50 200w

"His work is characterized not only by a delightful freshness of conception but also by a precision in the use of language that bespeaks no aristocratic disdain of the blue pencil. . . The title, jacket and foreword of this book do not adequately represent the real wit and intelligence of Mr. Evans' poetry." Milton Crane

+ N Y Times p28 Je 4 '50 230w

"Evans's poetry is a poetry of statement, employing simple forms and rhythms, uncomplex, without subtleties or nuances. He effects a certain ordering of experience, clearly but not deeply, and his poems do usually come to a focus, a quality not often encountered nowadays—but for all this, the poems have a thinness and lack impact. Evans is weak linguistically and when he tries to achieve artful language, his results are disastrous." José Garcia Villa

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:32 Jl 1 '50 450w

EVANS, RUTH, and GANS, LEO. Supervision of physical education. 293p $3.50 McGraw

371.732 Physical education and training 50-5417

"The authors have three major concerns in mind: (1) to phrase a consistent and workable philosophy, (2) to analyze techniques, (3) to evaluate the use of desirable practices." (School & Society) Chapter references. Index.

"An excellent text book." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 75:405 Mr 1 '50 40w

School & Society 71:63 Ja 28 '50 30w

EVATT, MRS HARRIET. Secret of the whispering willow; il. by the author. 282p $2 Bobbs

50-5905

Mystery story set in the Island of Orléans in the St Lawrence river. For ages nine and ten.

"A mystery that girls will enjoy, its chief charm lies in its delightful picture of that section of French Canada. Recommended." Elizabeth Johnson

+ Library J 75:566 Ap 1 '50 50w

Reviewed by Louise Davis

Library J 75:636 Ap 15 '50 70w

"It is all rather unusual material for this age readers, that is, girls under twelve. However, it would not be easy reading for all of them, with its many French names and phrases and its rather irritating repetition of the word 'habitant.' The pictures are much too childish for the age that can read it, too. Yet for the many who know this fascinating island, and for all with a French background, the story is worth while. The family atmosphere is excellent." L. S. Bechtel

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 Ap 2 '50 170w

"The situations are of a routine variety, so are the characters; and Ninon is just a little too good to be true. Yet there is a disarming warmth in this story and a lively pace sustains the interest." E. L. B.

+ — N Y Times p24 F 26 '50 140w

EVERARD, KATHERINE. Star's progress. 252p $2.75 Dutton

50-5359

"Story of the rise and fall of a Hollywood star. . . At the start, Graziella Serrano, ten year old Mexican child, with a passion for dancing, is demanding a chance for a stage career—a chance that comes to her when the family moves to New Orleans. . . Strip tease dancing and its concomitants in sexual experience ends abruptly when her brother discovers what she is doing, but an older man, Jason Carter, who has fallen in love with her, marries her and they have five years of relative content before Hollywood claims her and she asks for divorce. . . Success on the screen comes too easily. . . Then, in Paris, she meets a Crown Prince of a Balkan kingdom, has a brief interlude with him on the Riviera, and, her career smashed by scandal, loses him to his kingdom." Kirkus

"The matter-of-fact, slow motion style robs even the melodramatic aspects of the story of the values that readers might expect."
Kirkus 17:660 D 1 '49 220w

— N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 Mr 5 '50 200w

Reviewed by A. H. Weiler
N Y Times p35 F 19 '50 180w

Reviewed by C. M. Brown
Sat R of Lit 33:32 Ap 29 '50 100w

EVEREST, ALLAN SEYMOUR. Morgenthau, the new deal and silver; a story of pressure politics. 209p $3.50 King's Crown press

332.422 Morgenthau, Henry. Silver as money. Finance—U.S. 50-6940

"The opening chapters of this book, titled The Good Old Days, and Hard Times for Silver, are the retrospective and introductory: the remaining seven deal specifically with the Silver Bloc since the advent of the New Deal. . . This book furnishes detailed information on the political operations of the Silver Bloc, and on the manner in which the legislation for which this group was responsible has been administered." (U S Quarterly Bkl) Index.

"This reviewer is inclined to question a few of the factual statements which are peculiarly difficult to authenticate. But on the whole this study of a broad field has been pursued with unusual ability and realism. It contributes considerably to our knowledge of the fine art daily demonstrated by lobbyists for special pressure groups at Washington, an art developed to the point where it endangers democracy." J. P. Nichols

+ Am Hist R 55:994 Jl '50 320w

"The book is clearly written and can be understood by the general reader as well as the economist. It makes a contribution to its subject by presenting a wealth of detail not elsewhere readily available."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:317 S '50 240w

EVERETT, JOHN RUTHERFORD. Religion in human experience; an introduction. 556p il $5 Holt

290 Religions 50-8225

"A proper study of 'religion' begins with an introduction to the beliefs and practices and the historical development of particular religions. This book provides such an introduction for the beginning student and the general reader. The author was until recently assistant professor of philosophy at Columbia University and now is president of Hollins College in Virginia." (N Y Times) Glossary. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 47:88 N 1 '50

Reviewed by Paul Ramsey
N Y Times p21 O 22 '50 230w

School & Society 72:319 N 11 '50 30w

EVERETT, MRS KATHERINE (HERBERT). Bricks and flowers: memoirs. 252p il $3 Macmillan

B or 92 [50-17520]

"Rummaging through her past in an attempt to recapture for publication the details of her distinguished career as a house-builder and landscape gardener, Mrs. Everett apparently unearthed such a wealth of family lore that she became somewhat distracted from what she had set out to do. As a result, she presents the reader with a wonderfully diverting gallery of titled Irish eccentrics who lived, around 1900, in castles and mansions that defied all efforts at rehabilitation, and whom she was able to observe, in her role of a poverty-stricken visiting relation." New Yorker

"Her book is as remarkable for the youthful vigor of the writing, and the vividness with which it recalls scenes and personal emotions over this long stretch of time, as it is for the variety of episode and character included in the narrative. . . One congratulates Mrs. Everett on her delicious sense of humor, on her talents as a stylist and a raconteuse, and, not least, on the sympathy and understanding that characterize her outlook." Eric Forbes-Boyd

+ Christian Science Monitor p16 Ja 26 '50 480w

"The book makes easy reading, interesting chiefly for its memories of a vanished England." J. C.

+ N Y Times p37 Ap 16 '50 170w

+ New Yorker 26:134 Ap 15 '50 180w

"This is a perfectly titled book, 'because the building of houses and making of gardens have given me pleasure,' writes Mrs. Everett, and houses and gardens are the twin themes of this delightful autobiography."

+ Sat R of Lit 33:34 O 21 '50 140w

"This, in short, does not in the least resemble the stock autobiography any more than Mrs. Everett can resemble other octogenarian ladies who are interested in houses or gardens. It is a gay, constantly surprising book, warmly to be recommended to any reader for a railway journey or a convalescence. Connoisseurs of the wilder bizarreries of family life will enjoy it vastly, even without a journey and in perfect health." Lettice Fowler

+ Spec 183:696 N 18 '49 460w

"An eminently readable and lively book of recollections."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p789 D 2 '49 650w

EVERNDEN, MARGERY. Knight of Florence; il. by Rafaello Busoni. 133p $2.50 Random house

50-8606

The knight of Florence, in this tale for young readers, is Piero Feruzzi; the time, the fourteenth century. Altho he belonged to a famous family and his father had determined that his only son should become a warrior, Piero dreamed of becoming a painter. The story shows Piero's progress from apprentice to a poor painter to the day when Giotto himself took him into his studio.

Booklist 47:16 S 1 '50

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin
Chicago Sunday Tribune p7 Ag 20 '50 240w

Cleveland Open Shelf p24 D '50

Horn Bk 26:381 S '50 80w

"It is a pleasure to see an historical novel for young people, not only authentic in background but fresh in story and character."

+ Kirkus 18:261 My 1 '50 250w

Reviewed by C. W. Field
+ Library J 75:1309 Ag '50 70w

"Mr. Busoni sketches old Florence and its people in as true and lively a fashion as if he had seen them only yesterday. The book is well made and a pleasant size to the hand." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Jl 23 '50 300w

"Miss Evernden has a fine talent for spinning an exciting story. At the same time she conveys the feel and spirit of a period without being in the least pedantic. It is seldom that one finds so vigorous a treatment of a young artist in the making." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p16 Jl 16 '50 180w

"The action of the story is not as clear or as smooth in continuity as in Miss Evernden's 'The Secret of the Porcelain Fish.' But the characters are well drawn and the atmosphere of fourteenth-century Florence is excellent. Rafaello Busoni's drawings add greatly to the authentic quality of the story. His sketches of the city as the two boys see it from Fiesole are real enough to bring a feeling of nostalgia to those who know and love this particular view."

+ Sat R of Lit 33:32 Ag 12 '50 230w

Wis Lib Bul 46:23 Jl '50

EVERY, GEORGE. Poetry and personal responsibility; an interim report on contemporary literature. 96p 75c Macmillan

821.09 Poetry—History and criticism

"An introduction to the work of the generation of English poets which has emerged since the late Thirties and an account of the intellectual and social forces that have produced the new orientation in sensibility that their verse displays." Sat R of Lit

"The scope of Mr. Every's subject is too great to be safely handled in the limited space at his disposal. Nor does he seem to have the power of critical compression. As a result, his judgments tend to skim the surface, rather than probe and concentrate the core of the problem. But as a job of placing some modern English artists, in relation to each other and to a certain focal point (unsettled as it may be), this book performs a useful, tabulative function." R. B.

+ — Canadian Forum 29:240 Ja '50 140w

"A remarkably comprehensive and stimulating little book." F. B. McCarthy

+ Sat R of Lit 33:32 Jl 1 '50 550w

EWEN, DAVID, ed. Book of modern composers. 2d rev & enl ed 586p $6 Knopf

927.8 Musicians 50-7043

"Some revision throughout, and the addition of two composers, Benjamin Britten and Walter Piston, bring this edition up to date." (Booklist) For earlier edition see Book Review Digest 1942. Selected recordings and bibliographies. Index.

Booklist 46:289 My 15 '50

"'The Book of Modern Composers' is here again, fatter than ever. It is still informative, still entertaining, still indispensable for libraries and for students with papers to write, and —if possible—still more exasperating than the first edition. . . One is glad to have Piston and Britten discussed in this enlargement, where they certainly belong. But what conceivable excuse is there for again omitting Honegger? If 'the leading composers of the various schools are represented,' as Ewen claims, where in the name of impressionism is Debussy?" K. G. Roy

+ — Christian Science Monitor p14 Je 19 '50 480w

Reviewed by C. K. Miller

Library J 75:867 My 15 '50 170w

"Libraries and individuals already having the first edition need not give priority to acquisition of the second. Lacking the original volume, however, many people may well consider purchase of this one, for it provides a good deal of information on many of the outstanding composers of the present and immediate past." Lee Fairley

+ Music Lib Assn Notes 7:577 S '50 550w

"A more appropriate title for this would have been 'The Book of Selected Modern Composers.' . . Such figures as Ives, Debussy, and Khatchaturian, for instance, are not to be found here. Others of considerably less stature are given their full due and more. How the editor can claim to have assembled 'a cross-section of the music of the past fifty years' is therefore not immediately apparent. A lengthy and knowledgeable introduction alone is worth the price of the book." James Lyons

Sat R of Lit 33:62 Ap 29 '50 400w

EWEN, DAVID. Story of Irving Berlin; il. by Jane Castle. 179p $3 Holt

B or 92 Berlin, Irving—Juvenile literature 50-6695

The life story of the famous song-writer, from his boyhood in Russia, thru his rise to success in America, and down to the present. For older boys and girls. Selected recordings of Berlin's most famous songs. Index.

Booklist 46:265 Ap 15 '50

Chicago Sun p7 Ap 9 '50 180w

Reviewed by Felix Borowski

Chicago Sun p2 Ap 22 '50 60w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk 26:290 Jl '50 90w

"Although this syrupy biography of the great popular composer may have some reference value, as a documented account of the works of Berlin, the brief personal sketch, and the chunks of manufactured dialogue follow the old slick pattern and are often aloof from the subject."

— Kirkus 18:209 Ap 1 '50 150w

"Occasionally saccharine, but Berlin is a familiar figure to young people, who constantly request biographies of modern musicians. . . Popular, not a scholarly, life, with an immediate appeal to the younger generation. Recommended." Clara Adams

Library J 75:1198 Jl '50 100w

Reviewed by Virginia Cunningham

Music Lib Assn Notes 7:483 Je '50 160w

"The ups and downs of his career, the present fantastic income, the Broadway productions and the moving pictures are all described with verve, but Irving Berlin as a human being does not emerge. Probably this hard-working, modest sort of person is difficult to write about while he is still alive." L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p21 Ap 16 '50 310w

"A fascinating biography. In this volume, however, there is little material that has not been well sifted by magazines and Sunday supplements—some of which is repeated almost verbatim." Carter Harman

N Y Times p15 Ap 9 '50 200w

San Francisco Chronicle p20 Je 4 '50 50w

"'The Story of Irving Berlin' does tell the story of Irving Berlin. It is written simply and inoffensively by a man who has written other works on popular musical personalities. It has a good index and can be used as a reference book for those who feel a need for research on the plays, movies, and songs of Berlin. . . But somehow I don't think that, with all its compliments, even Irving Berlin's family will love the book." Howard Dietz

Sat R of Lit 33:26 Ap 29 '50 750w

Wis Lib Bul 46:19 My '50

EYCK, ERICH. Bismarck and the German empire. 327p $3.75 Macmillan

B or 92 Bismarck, Otto, furst von. Germany—History

"A one-volume political biography of Otto von Bismarck, written in English by a German scholar who is also responsible for a three-volume study in German. The author presents Bismarck as a giant of statecraft—a man of superior intellectual gifts who unified Germany, prostrated the Second Empire, defeated Austria, and forged the alliance between the Hapsburg monarchy and the German Empire. He is also shown as a man who would use every trick of deceit and disloyalty to further his cause, and in whose nature there was as much lofty larceny as blood and iron." (New Yorker) Index.

EYCK, ERICH—Continued
Reviewed by L. T. Heron
Chicago Sunday Tribune p18 S 10 '50 110w

"Dr. Erich Eyck's 320-page monograph 'Bismarck and the German Empire,' an abridged edition of his three-volume study of the 'Iron Chancellor,' should make it abundantly clear to any open-minded reader that, however superior in intellect Bismarck was to all his successors (including Hitler), there is little to choose between his fanatic efforts to assert Prussian hegemony and the Nazi claim of German racial superiority." Ernest Pisko
Christian Science Monitor p12 Ag 29 '50 800w

Reviewed by A. J. P. Taylor
Manchester Guardian p4 Jl 25 '50 310w

"It would be a poor compliment to say that this is the best life of Bismarck; it is the only life of Bismarck and will hold its own for years to come. For one thing, it covers the whole story from beginning to end. Or rather, to be precise, it gives out when Bismarck left office and omits the last eight years when Bismarck conducted a malicious and unscrupulous campaign against William II who had dismissed him. Still, it is more important that Dr. Eyck has read and digested the enormous mass of Bismarck literature." A. J. P. Taylor
+ — New Statesman & Nation 40:204 Ag 19 '50 2350w

"What Dr. Eyck appears to be saying in conclusion is that by uniting Germany and making her powerful, Bismarck accomplished good, but by creating a political institution like the German Empire and then leaving it in the stewardship of a mediocrity like Wilhelm II, he accomplished evil. Hardly a verdict that will be very popular outside Germany."
New Yorker 26:121 S 16 '50 200w

Reviewed by Geoffrey Bruun
Sat R of Lit 33:20 D 9 '50 230w

Reviewed by Maurice Ashley
Spec 184:184 Ag 11 '50 800w

F

FABBRO, MARIO DAL. Modern furniture; its design and construction. 158,16p il $5 Reinhold
684 Furniture 49-50343

"A pictorial reference book on modern furniture. Mainly, it provides overall dimensions for a wide range of typical furniture pieces used in offices and dwellings. In general, only length, width and height are shown, but since the drawings are done in scale, the dimensions of parts can be rather easily determined. There are also a number of reproductions of photographs. Designers' or manufacturers' names are given for many of the pieces, but there are also many which are not so identified. At the back of the book is a sixteen-page supplement of detailed drawings for the aid of amateur craftsmen." N Y New Tech Bks

Booklist 47:152 D 15 '50

Reviewed by William Yates
Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 F 19 '50 50w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:6 Ja '50

FABRICIUS, JOHAN WIGMORE. World at six [Eng title: Flip wonders why]. 224p $2.75 Westminster press 50-6782

Flip, a little Dutch boy, going on six, is the central figure in this story of life in Holland. Flip follows a Salvation army band and gets lost; quarrels with his small cousin; falls in love with the maid; plays the part of grandma's pet; and even helps his father when he gets in the toils of one of those beautiful women who make a career of "understanding" other women's husbands.

Booklist 46:261 Ap 15 '50

"The author, in attempting to distinguish between what actually happens and what Flip understands has sacrificed characterization on the adult level and the adults are unreal and one dimensional. Clichéd journalese is used for a subject which demands a light hand. Altogether a disappointment."
— Kirkus 18:110 F 15 '50 220w

"This series of anecdotes about young Flip Valckenier and his Dutch family and friends fails as a study of childhood because of casual characterizations and a confusion in point of view. . . We do not recommend this for the average young adult."
Kirkus 18:136 Mr 1 '50 100w

Reviewed by Ellis Tinkham
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p23 Ap 16 '50 700w

San Francisco Chronicle p17 Ag 6 '50 220w

"Affectionate, sensitive, and warm, this is an engagingly perceptive picture of a little boy's life in Holland." Pamela Taylor
+ Sat R of Lit 33:12 Jl 15 '50 500w

FAIR, MARVIN LUKE, and WILLIAMS, ERNEST WILLIAM. Economics of transportation. 757p il maps $5.50 Harper
385 Transportation—U.S. 50-8528

An analysis of "the economics of the American transportation system—rail, air, water, highway, and pipeline. Unusually thorough in its treatment of some of the more important aspects of the subject, such as the analysis of the economics of transportation service, treatment of transportation rates and their application in the light of existing regulations, and consideration of transportation agencies and their functioning." (Management R) Index.

"The book is well organized, well written, and well documented; and the treatment is judicial. That it will be widely employed as a textbook may be safely predicted." Eliot Jones
+ Ann Am Acad 272:249 N '50 450w

"A comprehensive work, packed with information and discussion of factors involved in understanding and dealing with the problems posed." J. E. Cross
+ Library J 75:1296 Ag '50 130w

"A most complete and balanced treatment."
+ Management R 39:497 Ag '50 70w

FAIRBAIRN, HAROLD WILLIAMS. Structural petrology of deformed rocks; with supplementary chapters on statistical analysis by Felix Chayes. 2d ed 344p il $12.50 Addison-Wesley
552 Rocks

Second edition of a text first published in 1941. "A reference book for specialists in petrology and graduate students preparing to enter this field. It deals with the fundamental processes of the formation of rocks and certain geological structures. Its primary purpose is to enable the petrologist to analyze rocks and to study geological formations on the basis of crystal structures, behavior of rocks under pressure and related processes. Much new material has been added in this edition, including the two chapters on statistical methods applied to the analysis of petrofabrics." (N Y New Tech Bks) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 75:497 Mr 15 '50 80w
N Y New Tech Bks 35:29 Mr '50

FAIRBANK, JOHN KING, and LIU, KUANG-CHING. Modern China; a bibliographical guide to Chinese works, 1898-1937. 608p $7.50 Harvard univ. press
016.951 China—Bibliography 50-5236

"The books described in this bibliography are in the Chinese language, and deal with affairs in China since the Reform Movement of 1898. The titles are given both in Chinese characters and in romanized form, although all annotations are in English. The work was compiled to facilitate the research of students in the Regional Studies Program at Harvard, to inform them about the nature of the sources most useful for the study of modern Chinese history. Scholarly works dealing with periods before 1898, but published after that year, are intentionally excluded, as are those on the fine arts, linguistics, science, and religion. Stress is laid on works of general reference, government and law, economics and foreign affairs, social and intellectual problems." (U S Quarterly Bkl) Index.

"In a field so undeveloped as the study of modern Chinese history the appearance of an adequate guide to native sources is an event of some importance. Students of the period since the reform movement of 1898 will find this handbook a very welcome tool. . . The rather frequent use of a word 'bureaucrat' in a pejorative sense, and the ungainly translation of some titles are but minor blemishes. When one considers what might be done with this rich material one must agree with the compilers that it presents 'a direct challenge to modern American scholarship on China.'" A. W. Hummel

+ Am Hist R 55:986 Jl '50 280w

"Those interested in research on the period in question will welcome the appearance of this volume and eagerly await the further research aids promised in future Institute Studies. It is to be hoped that other universities possessing substantial Chinese collections will provide equivalent guides in the not too distant future." S. B. Thomas

+ Pacific Affairs 23:198 Je '50 1000w

"Students of Chinese affairs, burdened by a difficult language and a voluminous literature, will welcome this convenient and lucid guide. Even those who do not read the language can glean from it much valuable information. It is a challenge to improved scholarship on China in the West."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:255 Je '50 240w

FAIRHALL, LAWRENCE TURNER. Industrial toxicology. 483p $6 Williams & Wilkins

615.9 Poisons. Diseases, Industrial 49-10360

"Consists of a series of one to three page summaries of the toxicology of some 70 inorganic and 130 organic elements or compounds. Each material is discussed as to characteristics, industrial uses, toxicity, and analysis." Am J Pub Health

"Excellent reference book. . . This book will be of great value to the experienced industrial hygienist and toxicologist, but by its concise treatment may mislead the novice in the field. The admitted disparity in treatment of subjects, with the greater relative emphasis on the newer materials, may confuse the casual reader." J. H. Sterner

+ — Am J Pub Health 40:93 Ja '50 320w

"There are serious omissions both as to new and old compounds. . . There are some very serious errors in toxicology. . . The author having had excellent libraries available seems to be under the impression that every analytical chemist has such services and that therefore all he need give in his analytical sections are brief notations of methods or references to the literature. . . There are many other errors; the proofreading is very poor." M. B. Jacobs

— Chem Eng 56:292 O '49 650w

"Forming as it does a kind of index of industrial toxicology, the book should be a valuable reference tool for technicians working in the field of industrial hygiene."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:524 D '49 240w

FAITH, WILLIAM LAWRENCE, and others. Industrial chemicals. 652p maps $8 Wiley

661 Chemicals 50-9629

"In selecting the chemicals to be discussed in this book, the authors eliminated those which are produced merely by the refining of natural products. Remaining were 106 chemicals which are produced wholly or partially by synthetic or biochemical methods. . . Information on the following points and others is given about each chemical: name; chemical formula; current manufacturing processes; chemical equations for the principal reactions; raw material requirements per unit weight of commercial product; and price data, commercial grades, shipping regulations, and economic aspects. References to literature are not included." (Library J) Index.

Booklist 47:56 O 1 '50

"This is something entirely new in a chemical book and something good. . . The style, largely tabular, is excellent for the type of treatment required, and though some readers might criticize the lack of bibliography, much of the information included is common knowledge in the industries concerned and it would be difficult to give significant references. The data from those fields in which this reviewer has had personal contact are accurate and well selected." W. A. Mosher

+ Chem & Eng N 28:4028 N 13 '50 270w

Chem Eng 57:251 S '50 700w

"The book is essentially a reference book for use in offices of executives, purchasing agents and at the desks of chemical reference libraries." R. R. Hawkins

+ Library J 75:1830 O 15 '50 180w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:66 S '50

FALL, THOMAS, pseud. See Snow, D. C.

FALLON, CARLOS. Variety of Fallon. 276p $3 Little

818 50-10241

The Fallon family originated in Ireland and went to Colombia in the eighteenth century. This descendant of the Fallons describes his own life and that of his family in Colombia, and in New Orleans, where his father served as consul. The author is now an American citizen and a successful lecturer.

Booklist 47:85; 112 N 1 '50; N 15 '50

Kirkus 18:553 S 1 '50 210w

"The book is a banquet, succulent in color, texture and flavor, and made more delicious by the sparkling wine that accompanies it. The difficulty, confronted by such a banquet, is to refrain from bolting, and to pause for savoring each course." Emily Kimbrough

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 D 3 '50 700w

FALSTEIN, LOUIS. Face of a hero. 312p $3 Harcourt

50-8821

Story of the ten men who were the crew of an American bomber flying out from a south Italian base. The story is told in the first person by Ben Isaacs, the thirty-five year old gunner, who is one of the two survivors of the original ten when the fifty missions are finished.

Booklist 47:39 S 15 '50

Reviewed by Keith Wheeler

Chicago Sun p8 Ag 27 '50 500w

"Eighty per cent of this novel is made up of the dirtiest, filthiest, most shockingly foul language I have ever seen in print. To me, it is incredible that it ever got into print in the first place and I am leagues from being a prude. And yet I believe that Mr. Falstein's novel belongs well up on the list of World War II novels." V. P. Hass

+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ag 20 '50 410w

Reviewed by Joe Dever

Commonweal 52:490 Ag 25 '50 1300w

"One of the best of the war novels, this still faces a reluctant reading public."

Kirkus 18:392 Jl 15 '50 250w

"This first novel is tense, coarse, and authentic. Recommended." A. J. Gaines

+ Library J 75:1891 Ag '50 50w

FALSTEIN, LOUIS—Continued

"As a novel, Face of a Hero does not perhaps go as deep as it might into the character of people as people (though the author has a keen ear for the varied configurations of their speech). On a documentary level, however, it is one of the best-told tales of air combat in World War II." David Davidson

+ — New Repub 123:19 O 2 '50 650w

"Not many novels written of the war can boast as few falsifications of experience as 'Face of a Hero' appears to possess. . . This history of what must have been the common fate and the repetitious golgotha of every bomber crew, Mr. Falstein tells from close up and tells honestly and fully." Alfred Hayes

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Ag 20 '50 750w

"Written from the enlisted man's point of view, 'Face of a Hero' is, in my opinion, the most mature novel about the Air Force that has yet appeared. The author, an aerial gunner with the Fifteenth Air Force in Italy, has told his apparently autobiographical story dispassionately and honestly. He has produced a book that is both exciting and important. . . If some readers are offended by the language, which at times is certainly low, Louis Falstein can argue rightly, I think, that this is the way the men in the air force talked, and these are the things they talked about." H. F. West

+ N Y Times p4 Ag 20 '50 650w

New Yorker 26:119 S 16 '50 60w

"Mr. Falstein's attempt to establish a deep moral theme unfortunately weakens his book and gives it an amateurish tinge. He decries the arrogance of Army brass and he laments anti-Semitism in and out of the armed forces. But he does this in an unsubtle and inconclusive way, not at all the simple directness he uses to picture his unhappy aircrewmen—orphans of the war—whom the Fickle Finger of Fate has done a painful injustice." J. D. W.

San Francisco Chronicle p10 Ag 27 '50 420w

"To make up for the lack of sharp characterization (and it is likely that Mr. Falstein had this for his purpose) there is a universalization of the experience. . . Time unrolls like a scroll here, and the emotions of a lifetime can be crowded into six hours spent 20,000 feet above the earth. Time is fifty missions, too, and time halts until fifty missions are completed. And time spent in the air above flak-dotted areas leaves scars that to be scars do not need to show upon the flesh. This Mr. Falstein communicates, and since he communicates it honestly and well he is a writer to be taken seriously." Hollis Alpert

+ Sat R of Lit 33:12 Ag 19 '50 650w

Time 56:86 Ag 21 '50 380w

Reviewed by Paul Pickrel

Yale R n s 40:191 autumn '50 150w

FANNING, LEONARD M., ed. Our oil resources [contributors: Eugene Ayres, and others]. 2d ed 420p il $5 McGraw

553.28 Petroleum—U.S. 50-8811

"A reference book in which the problems of petroleum resources and conservation are presented chiefly from the viewpoint of the petroleum industry. The authors of the various chapters are for the most part authorities associated with petroleum producing companies and other organizations of the industry. . . The first edition was published in 1945 [Book Review Digest 1946]. This edition contains considerably more material and later statistics." Library J

Booklist 47:42 S 15 '50

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 75:1301 Ag '50 140w

FANSLER, THOMAS. Creative power through discussion. 211p $3 Harper

374.24 Discussion 50-7181

Handbook on how to participate in any kind of discussion group, in professional, trade, civic, social, or religious gatherings. Index.

Reviewed by W. L. Mezger

Christian Science Monitor p16 O 11 '50 180w

Management R 39:498 Ag '50 60w

"The book is simply written in non-technical terms and for the most part addressed to the lay member. It takes little for granted. . . With the sort of introspection which the author promotes, some people, it is to be feared, may lose in spontaneity; but most of us have given all too little thought to the psychological mechanism of a group process and will benefit from paying more attention to it. The book thus has an important and neglected educational aim." Bruno Lasker

+ Survey 86:388 Ag '50 600w

FARGA, FRANZ. Violins and violinists; tr. by Egon Larsen; with a chapter on English violin-makers by E. W. Lavender. 223p il $4.50 Macmillan

787.1 Violin. Violinists 50-7252

"Story of the violin and the great violinists and composers. The lives of the great makers and something of their secrets; the Italian varnishes; the fate of some famous violins; and the art of violin-making are also included." Cleveland Open Shelf

" 'Violins and Violinists' is a nice item to take down from the shelf or to pick up from the table. Don't let it get out of reach till you have read every last word of the text and studied every last drawing and photographic reproduction. If nothing more, you will learn the traits of two noble species of wood—pine and maple; you will learn to value varnish; and you may have your imagination aroused for the appreciation of angelic tone." W. P. Tryon

+ Christian Science Monitor p6 Je 17 '50 400w

Cleveland Open Shelf p11 My '50

FARGO, LUCILE FOSTER. Spokane story. 276p il $3.75 Columbia univ. press

979.7371 Spokane, Washington 50-10471

The story of the city of Spokane, Washington, one of the oldest Anglo-Saxon settlements in the Far West. The material is both factual and anecdotal. Present day development in Spokane is not included. Bibliography. Index. Map on end papers.

Booklist 47:172 Ja 1 '51

"Because Miss Fargo has a colorful command of facts, it is a pity her tale stops so abruptly. She has a mere two pages for the Spokane of today, which began such diverse careers as those of Bing Crosby, Henry J. Kaiser and Eric Johnston. And this modern Spokane may be the most significant of all." R. L. Neuberger

N Y Times p37 N 19 '50 370w

"There is a ten-page bibliography which has what every reference bibliography should have —a brief note on the scope, utility, and value of each item cited." J. T. Winterich

+ Sat R of Lit 33:58 D 2 '50 180w

FARKAS, ADALBERT, ed. Physical chemistry of the hydrocarbons. v 1 453p il $8.50 Academic press

661 Hydrocarbons (50-6245)

"A systematic presentation of physical and chemical knowledge pertaining to the properties and behavior of the hydrocarbons. It is addressed primarily to graduate chemists. Of the nine authors represented in the present volume, seven are associated with industrial research; nevertheless their papers deal more with basic than applied knowledge, and techniques. There are numerous tabulations of physico-chemical data, and each paper is supplemented by an extensive bibliography." N Y New Tech Bks

"The editor of this volume has done science and industry a good service by bringing together in one place the papers from the several contributing experts. The extent of overlapping of text among the related chapters is not large and is justified on the basis of making each chapter a complete entity in itself. The book will repay study by those scientists and engineers whose work involves hydrocarbons." F. D. Rossini

+ Am Chem Soc J 72:3833 Ag '50 320w

"The present volume can be recommended unreservedly to research workers and technologists in petroleum industries." W. J. Taylor
+ Chem & Eng N 28:3160 S 11 '50 500w

"With the exception of the sections on applied mass and optical spectroscopy, this book has emphasized abstract theory too greatly. This is particularly true since the theory appears often to be presented for its own sake, little attempt being made to derive mathematical relations in a form convenient for use. . . This book contains a few well-balanced chapters that would provide a good introductory orientation in the fields covered. The bibliographies at the end of each chapter are well chosen and would provide a good guide to further study." Gustav Egloff
+ — Chem Eng 57:292 Jl '50 1000w
N Y New Tech Bks 35:23 Mr '50

FARLEY, RALPH MILNE, pseud. See Hoar, R. S.

FARLEY, WALTER. Blood bay colt; il. by Milton Menasco. 307p $2 Random house
Horses—Legends and stories 50-9584

Bonfire, the blood bay colt, is a son of the Black Stallion, owned by Jimmy Creech, professional driver. Tom's handling of Bonfire and his training of the colt as a harness racer, is the gist of this story for ages 12 to 16.

Booklist 47:80 O 15 '50
Bookmark 10:12 O '50 20w
Reviewed by Frances Cavanah
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 N 12 '50 120w
Horn Bk 26:476 N '50 50w

"Farley fans will not be disappointed although this is almost too concentrated in technical details about the mysteries of harness racing for the general market."
+ Kirkus 18:304 Je 1 '50 180w

"Character sketches are excellent, both of boy and colt. Story is filled with excitement and action. Recommended for ages 12-16." S. J. Robinson
+ Library J 75:1674 O 1 '50 50w
Reviewed by Siri Andrews
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 O 15 '50 80w

"Farley fans will find this book every bit as engrossing as the others in the Black Stallion series." Marjorie Burger
N Y Times p24 N 12 '50 140w

FARMER, HENRY GEORGE. Military music. (World of music) 71p il $2.50 Chanticleer
785.13 Military music 50-9630

Traces the rise of the military band, from its small beginnings in the eleventh and twelfth centuries to the days of Sousa, Bantock, and other moderns. Index.

Booklist 47:77 O 15 '50
Reviewed by C. K. Miller
+ Library J 75:1827 O 15 '50 70w
Reviewed by C. E. Vulliamy
Spec 184:488 N 10 '50 360w

"Mr. Farmer has written a closely packed and learned essay on what he rightly regards as one of the great popular forms of music. . . Some of his pages are somewhat overladen with names and titles; but this is a fault very difficult to avoid when covering so wide a field in so short an essay."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p551 S 1 '50 300w

FARNHAM, WILLARD EDWARD. Shakespeare's tragic frontier; the world of his final tragedies. 289p $3.75 Univ. of Calif.
822.33 Shakespeare, William 50-6566

Studies of four of Shakespeare's tragedies: Timon of Athens, Macbeth, Antony and Cleopatra, and Coriolanus. In the principal characters of these dramas, the author sees men "deeply tainted . . . and yet . . . noble." "In his presentation of this mystery Shakespeare is greatly daring, not merely in risking loss of sympathy for his tragic heroes but in other ways as well. He takes up an advanced position in a realm of late Renaissance tragedy where new refinements of tragic truth are to be discovered in paradox but where the tragic emotions and the essential simplicities of tragic understanding are in constant danger of being overwhelmed by paradox. Here he occupies a country of the mind that may be called his tragic frontier. Here he finds marches of tragedy beyond which he cannot go without deserting tragedy." (p.2) Index.

"I found the book dull, confused and confusing." Mabel Livingston
— Cath World 172:78 O '50 320w

"'Shakespeare's Tragic Frontier' is an important addition to the critical literature inspired by Shakespeare's tragedies, and will be read with profit by all, specialists and amateurs alike, who take pleasure in the strange and rich plays with which Shakespeare concluded his career as a tragic poet." Milton Crane
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Mr 26 '50 650w
Reviewed by B. I. Evans
Manchester Guardian p4 Je 20 '50 150w
Reviewed by Douglas Bush
New Repub 122:22 Ap 24 '50 420w

"[Professor Farnham's] book is pervasively clear and lucid—in arrangement, in thought, and in style. It is also enormously illuminating." Robert Halsband
+ Sat R of Lit 33:16 Jl 8 '50 180w

"Professor Farnham presents [his thesis] with skill and eloquence, and a careful study of his book is richly rewarding."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:151 Je '50 230w
Reviewed by Hallett Smith
Yale R n s 39:743 summer '50 210w

FARRELL, JAMES THOMAS. American dream girl. 302p $3 Vanguard
50-10661

Twenty short stories, most of them "laid in Chicago, Paris and New York. The characters range from prostitutes, a lunatic murderer (who killed his wife because, for twenty years, she would never give a straight answer to a question), actors, workers, writers and Party officials." (N Y Times)

Reviewed by Paul Engle
Chicago Sunday Tribune p7 N 19 '50 340w

"There's some very good writing, and considerable uneveness both in style and matter. But it is important as a facet of Farrell."
Kirkus 18:532 S 1 '50 240w

"Farrell's naturalism seems to need the scope of the novel to be at its most impressive, but these stories will interest students of his literary career, as well as his admirers." H. W. Hart
Library J 75:1660 O 1 '50 80w

"The pieces in this volume could hardly be held up as examples of the well made story. Mr. Farrell is much more interested in packing everything in than he is in technique. . . Nevertheless in the best of the work . . . this piling up of detail can produce a cumulative effect of considerable power." J. J. Maloney
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 N 26 '50 1000w

"There is some light but little sweetness as Mr. Farrell regards human nature with a materialistic and slightly jaundiced eye, and describes with irony and pity the seamier sides of human experience. Once in a while, as in 'I Want to Go Home,' he has flashes of poetic insight, but these are rare." H. F. West

FARRELL, J. T.—Continued
N Y Times p32 N 5 '50 280w

"There are twenty-one stories here, all concerned with lack of privilege in one form or another and all written in a berating tone that seems to nag for pity because it has not the spirit to command respect."
New Yorker 26:186 N 18 '50 80w

Reviewed by Nelson Algren
Sat R of Lit 33:16 D 9 '50 600w
Time 56:114 N 6 '50 800w

FARRINGTON, EDWARD IRVING, ed. Gardener's travel book [ed. for the Massachusetts horticultural society]. new ed rev & enl 278p pl $4 Oxford

716.2 Gardens. U.S.—Description and travel. Canada—Description and travel 49-11449

"Facilities of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society have been used in compiling this completely revised and enlarged practical guide and valuable reference to the gardens of the U.S., Canada and Mexico. Listed by states are gardens, landscaped parks, wild-flower displays, fruit blossom and flower festivals, and flower exhibitions. All necessary information, such as when displays are open to the public, fees, if any, etc., is included." (Library J) For first edition see Book Review Digest 1939.

Booklist 46:173 Ja 15 '50
Kirkus 17:593 O 15 '49 150w

"The book creates a pleasantly compelling desire to home and itinerant gardeners to see for themselves what travel books generally fail to point out." H. S. Taylor
+ Library J 74:1673 N 1 '49 110w

FARSON, NEGLEY. Last chance in Africa. 381p $5 Harcourt

916.76 Kenya Colony and Protectorate 50-7266

After the success of his earlier book on Africa: Behind God's Back (Book Review Digest 1941) the author was urged to write another on Kenya alone. For four months he traveled thru Kenya, visiting all classes of people from government officials to tribal chiefs, farmers, and Indian merchants. This book is the result of his travels. No index.

"Very likely, this will be welcomed as an 'important' book if only because many people who wouldn't dream of reading any other book about Africa will read it. However, despite the enthusiastic reviews quoted on the dust-cover, Last Chance in Africa is not a very good book, though it has some of the merits of good reporting." Kenneth Robinson
Ann Am Acad 272:298 N '50 370w
Booklist 46:301 Je 1 '50
+ Bookmark 9:182 My '50 40w

"Farson is a keen observer and seems to write the truth as he sees it. His style is a mixture of vivid narration and description and shocking slang; but its merits, on the whole, outweigh its faults. Those who are interested in this small segment of Africa or the relations of the Negroes with other races can read this volume with profit." J. F. Rippy
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 My 14 '50 600w

"Negley Farson has done it again. This time, at the colony's invitation, he went to Kenya to 'go where you like, see what you like and say what you like'—as the governor put it; adding, 'I imagine you will want to be rude about many things.' If not rude, Mr. Farson is discerning and he puts his finger on beauties and sore spots with fine impartiality and a strict regard for facts." Margaret Hubbard
+ Christian Science Monitor p18 My 4 '50 500w

Reviewed by Max Fischer
Commonweal 52:229 Je 9 '50 1000w

Foreign Affairs 29:163 O '50 30w
Kirkus 18:251 Ap 15 '50 260w

"Readers of 'Behind God's Back,' Mr. Farson's previous book on Africa, need not be told that he is a good reporter. He has a bountiful curiosity, a gusto for life, a love of nature, and a genuine interest in all kinds and conditions of men. Unfortunately, in writing this book he did not take enough trouble in organizing his abundant material." Keith Hutchison
+ — Nation 170:600 Je 17 '50 750w

"A book which is at once sentimental and hard-headed, perceptive and perverse. He is so anxious to demonstrate his tough realism, his contempt for the Left-wing 'intellectual's' idealistic desire to 'protect' the African, that he comes near at times to taking sides with Herrenvolk pioneers. . . Mr. Farson's outstanding merit as a reporter is that he has few prejudices—except perhaps against the infiltration of Africa by Big Business—and a great capacity for liking his fellow man, even if his skin is black." Aylmer Vallance
+ New Statesman & Nation 38:762 D 24 '49 900w

"Mr. Farson's evaluation of the people who cross his path, be they black or white, lofty or lowly, is penetrating and colorful and gives you a valuable insight into the human side of the African problem. . . He is a tourist at heart, with a tourist's fascination for strange and beautiful places, primitive peoples and weird practices. His adventures with the blood-drinking Masai, the 'Men of God' and the tribesmen of Kenya's northern frontier make good reading." Arch Steele
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 My 7 '50 1000w

"This detailed, intelligent study of Kenya is by far the most valuable book Mr. Farson has yet written. It is valuable not only for its up-to-date and accurate report on a strategic but little-known area, but because it supplements the admirable but now outdated Hailey Survey, standard handbook on African affairs." John Barkham
+ N Y Times p23 My 7 '50 400w
New Yorker 26:109 Je 10 '50 240w

"This is a grim book on a grim subject and Farson doesn't hold his punches." Herbert Cerwin
San Francisco Chronicle p14 My 16 '50 650w

"Aside from its interesting travel aspects, 'Last Chance in Africa' is an outstanding treatise on contemporary Africa's multitudinous problems." Linton Wells
+ Sat R of Lit 33:16 My 27 '50 750w

"Farson, as an American citizen, should be able to stand outside the turmoil and see Kenya steadily and see it whole, but he does not, in fact, seem able to pronounce a verdict more conclusive than any British observer. . . The book seems to me less vividly written than his earlier work; it relies more on quotations, facts and figures than on Mr. Farson's own lively impressions of people and scenes. The deliberately provocative remarks of the first book are muted down, and one feels the evident desire to be 'fair.' Mr. Farson is in love with the Kenya landscape, and well conveys the settler's own intense devotion to that country. Like all Mr. Farson's work, Last Chance in Africa goes at a brisk pace and carries the reader along." A. I. Richards
+ Spec 184:344 Mr 17 '50 550w

"Last Chance in Africa is an unhappy title. It is much too hard to find the point of this medley of fact and propaganda. . . Like several of his heroes, [Farson] has clearly found joy in the background of African life, the beauty of Kenya, the simplicity of lions and elephants, and in the pleasure of fishing in peace; but this book tries to do too much. Unlike Chantz and Marbutt, who attempted the impossible and yet succeeded to a remarkable degree because they knew where they were going, Mr. Farson frequently catches the smell of Africa only to lose it rapidly, and when he picks it up again it has often faded or palled."
— + Times [London] Lit Sup p859 D 30 '49 900w
Wis Lib Bul 46:18 Jl '50

FAST, HOWARD MELVIN. The proud and the free. 311p $3 Little

50-10024

A historical novel about the revolt of the 11th Regiment of the Pennsylvania Line, on New Year's Day, 1781. The narrator is Jamie Stuart, a sergeant of the line, who recalls the story sixty years afterwards.

Booklist 47:96 N 1 '50

Kirkus 18:485 Ag 15 '50 240w

"A vigorous retelling of a little-known incident, with an interpretation which may rouse some readers, familiar with Mr. Fast's position as a spokesman of the left, to protest." H. W. Hart

Library J 75:1825 O 15 '50 80w

"Most fully drawn of the historical figures who appear in these pages is General Wayne. But it is the men of the line who are the story's heroes. All that happens is seen from their point of view. And as heroes, men of bravery and dreams, Jamie Stuart recalls them to life." Elisabeth Shoemaker

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p21 N 5 '50 1050w

Reviewed by Joyce Geary

N Y Times p56 D 3 '50 200w

"There are historians who will dispute Mr. Fast's interpretation of this highly charged and rather infrequently discussed episode in our history. Meanwhile, it may be noted here, he has again written a persuasive novel, peopled with warm, believable characters and rich with the details of colonial life and fighting, which made his book on Washington, 'The Unvanquished,' so memorable an experience. As a cavil, be it noted also, that his prose and particularly the speech rhythms which he gives to his characters are getting a little too richly poetic and folk-songy." E. J. F.

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:45 N 25 '50 230w

"The book is interesting to the extent that it sheds light on a phase of the Revolution that has not been treated extensively in most histories. One weakness of the style is the total lack of quotation marks, since much of the continuity is built around conversation. This leads to considerable confusion, at times, as to who is talking about what." H. H.

Springf'd Republican p6D O 8 '50 250w

FATIO, LOUISE (MRS ROGER ANTOINE DUVOISIN). Christmas forest; pictures by Roger Duvoisin. [44p] $1.25; lib ed $1.75 Aladdin

50-9631

The author recounts the startling events of the night when Santa left his cozy home to start off on his Christmas rounds and fell asleep.

Booklist 47:102 N 1 '50

Christian Science Monitor p11 N 13 '50 30w

"The story is too slight to stand by itself, but is made gay and lively by Duvoisin's pictures of Santa and the reindeer and of the forest animals hurrying over the snowy fields with Christmas packages."

Horn Bk 26:477 N '50 80w

Kirkus 18:507 S 1 '50 110w

"It is a pleasure to discover a fresh and entertaining story of Santa Claus, and especially when it is easy enough vocabulary for young readers to read for themselves." D. M. Blasco

+ Library J 75:1834 O 15 '50 80w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 N 19 '50 70w

"This is gentle, amusing fantasy, and though some of Roger Duvoisin's illustrations are crowded, they match the imaginative quality of the story." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p60 D 3 '50 90w

"Roger Duvoisin's pictures are on every page, reproduced in bright green and red and brown. They are very amusing, too."

+ Sat R of Lit 33:44 D 9 '50 100w

FAULKNER, HAROLD UNDERWOOD. From Versailles to the new deal. (Chronicles of America ser) 388p il textbook ed $2.25; subs ed $6 Yale univ. press

973.91 U.S.—History—20th century. U.S.—Politics and government—20th century

50-8826

"A chronicle of the Harding-Coolidge-Hoover era." (Subtitle) Bibliographical note. Index.

Reviewed by R. V. Harlow

Ann Am Acad 272:217 N '50 580w

Reviewed by J. H. Powers

Atlantic 186:77 O '50 500w

Booklist 47:37 S 15 '50

"Dr. Faulkner is thoroughly at home in this field, since his most notable work has been in economic history." W. E. Garrison

+ Christian Century 67:1201 O 11 '50 250w

Reviewed by Ellen Logue

Commonweal 52:588 S 22 '50 450w

Current Hist 19:165 S '50 20w

Reviewed by G. D. McDonald

Library J 75:1402 S 1 '50 70w

Reviewed by Joseph Kraft

Nation 171:271 S 23 '50 270w

"Mr. Faulkner naturally stresses the political and economic aspects (giving, it must be said, full attention to the brighter phases of this period of national expansion), but he does not neglect the social and cultural flow." Karl Schriftgiesser

+ N Y Times p7 S 10 '50 270w

Reviewed by Harvey Wish

Sat R of Lit 33:21 N 18 '50 380w

FAULKNER, JOHN. Chooky; il. by Rafaello Busoni. 250p $3 Norton

50-10437

The adventures of an eleven-year old boy and his two Negro playmates, all of them living in Mississippi.

Booklist 47:136 D 1 '50

"Probably the response to childhood chronicles is a matter highly personal. So it is likely that quite a number of people may find Mr. Faulkner's brief saga of a small boy much to their taste. Unhappily, it leaves me cold. . . The whole fabric is too threadbare. Also, much of what does happen is improbable." Edmund Fuller

— Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 N 5 '50 450w

"Pretty funny in spots, this has a perennial appeal."

+ Kirkus 18:535 S 1 '50 190w

"Lacking in spontaneity, incident piled upon incident, coincidence following coincidence, the slapstick humor produces an effect like a comic strip—quite unrealistic. Not a very successful study in the psychology of an eleven year old." R. W. Henderson

Library J 75:1902 N 1 '50 90w

"These stories of a boy growing up in Mississippi have that rare quality, warm and genuine humor. The quality of the stories, it may be added, is admirably matched by the accompanying drawings of Rafaello Busoni." Coleman Rosenberger

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p13 D 10 '50 360w

"Chooky is lazy, doesn't mind, doesn't do his homework, sits on a pin in school in order to put the blame on a classmate so that the latter will be punished. He is always mumbling about getting back at someone. His parents, like most parents of radio and fiction, seem bewildered, entranced and rendered impotent of judgment by their offspring. . . If an underprivileged slum boy had done one third of the things that Chooky did he would have been stuck in a home for juvenile delinquents until he reached draft age." Betty Smith

— N Y Times p32 N 5 '50 380w

FAULKNER, JOHN—Continued

"The quality of the writing in the book does not come up to its humor and the success of its characterizations, but Chooky's affectionately done action portrait is good enough to add considerably to the Faulkner laurels." Herschel Brickell

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:13 D 16 '50 750w

FAULKNER, WILLIAM. Collected stories. 900p $4.75 Random house

50-9187

"Forty-two short stories, including all from These Thirteen (1931), all but two from Doctor Martino and Other Stories (1934) and seventeen published in magazines, 1932-1948, now first printed in book form. They have been arranged here under headings (The Country, The Village, The Wilderness, etc.) which present Faulkner as a chronicler of the South; many of the stories deal with characters and incidents related to those in his novels set in the mythical Yoknapatawpha County, Mississippi." Library J

"These Collected Stories certainly strengthen the case of those critics who have steadily maintained that Faulkner is the greatest living American writer."

+ Atlantic 186:90 O '50 120w

Booklist 47:75 O 15 '50

"This is the book which may at last bring William Faulkner the position and praise he has so long deserved. . . The stories of the south in this volume have a quality of intense accuracy lacking in those dealing with Europe or New York. But there is not a story in this book which does not have elements of great fiction." Paul Engle

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 S 10 '50 500w

"An important book in the Faulkner picture, and for short story enthusiasts, it offers rich fare."

+ Kirkus 18:340 Je 15 '50 180w

"For readers, students, and critics of Faulkner, a valuable collection of work not easily available elsewhere." H. W. Hart

+ Library J 75:1180 Jl '50 110w

"If Faulkner's extraordinary rhetoric is at times obscure, and is at times as baroque as the plot and substance of some of his stories, he has also written more passages of unmistakable lucidity than any writer of his generation. He is more distinctly the master of a style than any writer of fiction living in America today. Surely few writers of the short story can withstand the test so well as he in having a story read aloud; more than half the art of Faulkner's prose is in the meaning and the pleasure it conveys to the reader's inner ear." Horace Gregory

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 Ag 20 '50 2800w

"To a contemporary audience that is close to abandoning the reading of serious fiction in favor of books on how to be happy forever or to achieve heaven painlessly, it seems doubtful that Faulkner can have much to say. No one reading him will achieve peace of mind or peace of soul. Still, for the serious reader, for the reader not yet lost from the world of literature, Faulkner can be a deep and continuous source of wisdom. For this kind of reader Faulkner reveals the laws of existence and the conditions of survival—and how people behave under them." Harry Sylvester

+ N Y Times p1 Ag 20 '50 700w

Reviewed by Edmund Wilson

New Yorker 26:161 D 9 '50 1050w

"The most striking aspect of the collection is its tremendous variety, not only in subject matter and narrative type, but in quality. One need read no further than the second story, 'Shingles for the Lord,' to discover the variation in aim and quality of which Faulkner is capable, for this cheerless attempt at regional humor contrasts startlingly with the first story in the book, 'Barn Burning.' . . It is in stories dealing with social and moral—and occasionally, metaphysical—themes in a southern locale that Faulkner seems most at home and that he achieves his best results. In the other types of stories which comprise this collection, Faulkner works with varying success. Probably least satisfactory are the excursions into Indian folklore—most of them grouped under the heading 'The Wilderness.'" William Rose

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ag 20 '50 700w

"William Faulkner is beginning to emerge rather clearly as the most considerable twentieth-century American writer of short fiction; the present volume is a publishing event of real significance." William Peden

+ Sat R of Lit 33:12 Ag 26 '50 700w

"In the Collected Stories, Faulkner's blazing skill and lazy improvisations, his rich humor and corny folksiness, his deep sense of tragedy and tasteless gothic excesses are all brought together. . . The final impression left by Faulkner's work is that he is a writer of incomparable talents who has used and misused those talents superbly and recklessly. But his book has the excitement that comes from never knowing when, amidst pages of failure, there will come a masterpiece."

+ — Time 56:79 Ag 28 '50 1800w

Wis Lib Bul 46:18 N '50

FAYOL, HENRI. General and industrial management; tr. from the French ed. (Dunod) by Constance Storrs; with a foreword by L. Urwick. 110p $3.25 Pitman

658.01 Management. Industrial management [49-48588]

"A new translation by Constance Storrs of the famous French classic Administration Industrielle et Générale (1916), first published in English in 1929. Fayol ranks with Frederick Winslow Taylor in the origination and elaboration of the principles of scientific management. In a prefatory tribute L. Urwick, English writer on administration, takes exception to the translation of the author's 'administration' by 'management' instead of 'administration' as in the earlier translation, holding that this tends to narrow the proper scope of Fayol's work which properly includes public administration." Library J

Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Je 11 '50 40w

"An essential work, still valid." J. E. Cross

+ Library J 75:46 Ja 1 '50 100w

"All the students of administration and management are indebted to Isaac Pitman & Sons for a new printing of Henri Fayol's pioneer treatise Administration Industrielle et Générale. . . The book is a distinct improvement over the earlier English edition, which appeared in 1929 and has long been out of print. The present volume is not only attractive and easy to read, but follows current English and American terminology." Luther Gulick

+ Management R 39:47 Ja '50 650w

FEAREY, ROBERT A. Occupation of Japan; second phase: 1948-50; pub. under the auspices of the Int. secretariat, Inst. of Pacific relations. 239p $3 Macmillan

940.5352 Japan—History—Allied occupation, 1945- 50-10855

A survey of Japan's progress toward economic recovery and political autonomy, as described by a member of the State Department's office of northeastern Asian affairs. The time covered is between 1948 and 1950. Index. "This volume . . . is intended to supplement the earlier IPR study, The Allied Occupation of Japan by Edwin M. Martin [Book Review Digest 1949]." (Foreword)

Booklist 47:172 Ja 1 '51

"Writing on an inherently controversial subject, Robert A. Fearey has achieved a minor miracle of objectivity." Stuart Lillico

+ N Y Times p7 N 26 '50 500w

"A scrupulously dispassionate summing up."

New Yorker 26:170 D 9 '50 230w

FEIKEMA, FEIKE FREDERICK. The brother. 422p $3.50 Doubleday

50-10431

The second volume in the author's trilogy called World Wanderer, of which the first part was The Primitive (Book Review Digest 1949). In this book Thurs, now out of college, goes East. "His awakening to life, already begun at college, is carried on first in and around a rubber factory in Jersey, later among the artistic and socially progressive elite of Greenwich Village. The time is approximately 1933." (Christian Science Monitor)

"The author likes words. There are some fine juicy coinages in this novel, and some extremely effective passages of solid prose. There are also occasional verbal high-jinks which may strike some readers as strained and ineffectual. The technique thruout is naturalistic; so is the outlook; and in both rendering and philosofy the novel—because it is a strong piece of work—may breed disagreement among those whose views of man, life, and love do not jibe with the author's convictions on these subjects. But for work so honest and ardent, so free of hedging or fakery, even demurring readers must feel gratitude." Richard Sullivan
Chicago Sunday Tribune p25 N 12 '50 460w

"The final failure of the book to meet contemporary problems, although it is obsessed with them, on anything like realistic terms must be laid to this: it is setting against the entire corruption of modern life a purely primitive concept, a Beowulf with his moral sense almost wholly instinctive and his spiritual sense nonexistent. Thurs cannot meet modern urban life on its own ground and win." Ruth Chapin
Christian Science Monitor p16 N 7 '50 280w

"In spite of the heavy dose of experimental sex, there is plenty of good reading. Not for the fastidious or overly sensitive."
Kirkus 18:529 S 1 '50 250w

Reviewed by Paul Corey
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 N 26 '50 700w

"Any novelist takes upon himself the responsibility of selection of material, character, incident, problem and presentation—and a viewpoint which, if he is a writer of serious purpose, will indicate where he is going and why. In 'The Brother,' Feikema shows no clear purpose, and his material comes from the bottom of a very moldy barrel." Hal Borland
— N Y Times p15 D 17 '50 370w

"Mr. Feikema claims that Thurs is a giant not only in body but also in intellect, creativeness, sensitivity, virility, and judgment. However, as far as the reader can make out, the main difference between this fellow and the hollow folk he encounters is that they are all made of paper, while he is composed on a larger scale, and of a denser, thicker, and more rigid substance, such as, for example, wood."
— New Yorker 26:185 N 18 '50 90w

FEINGOLD, S. NORMAN. Scholarships, fellowships and loans. 254p $6 Bellman

378.3 Foundations, Charitable and educational. Scholarships 49-49180

"Brings together information on approximately 650 scholarships, fellowships, and loans, most of which are for graduate studies. Information includes address of donating agency, the purpose, qualifications of candidate, funds available, miscellaneous information submitted by the donor, where to apply. By no means a complete list; omits all scholarships awarded by or through colleges to students already enrolled and many others about which no information could be obtained." (Booklist) Bibliography. Indexes.

Booklist 46:227 Mr 15 '50

"A serviceable work of reference, but excessively overpriced." W. W. Brickman
School & Society 71:327 My 27 '50 70w

FEININGER, ANDREAS. On photography. 409p il $15 Ziff-Davis

770 Photography 49-11948

"Provides simple but completely professional answers to any question which the amateur (or even professional) photographer may ask. It is written for the beginner but will take him as far as he wants to go. Assumes that even amateurs are interested in getting fully professional results. Part I includes choosing equipment, how a camera works, processing of negatives and prints, etc. Part II 'Art of Making a Photograph' is perhaps the clearest available review of those factors—composition, contrast control, color control, perspective, controlled distortion, lighting, motion, etc.—which distinguish 'photography' from mere snap-shooting." Library J

"This is a stimulating book for the amateur creatively interested in photography who wants to go far beyond the ordinary snapshooter."
+ Kirkus 17:673 D 1 '49 180w

"A refreshing feature is the absence of usual emphasis on the nude." Daniel Melcher
+ Library J 74:1912 D 15 '49 150w

"Feininger is well known for his striking telephoto shots of New York and his industrial photography. Numerous examples of his work are in this book with simple diagrams explaining how each picture was taken. This feature should aid those who are not content with ordinary snapshots but who have only a hazy idea how to improve their work. Chapters on lighting, motion, composition and some darkroom trickery (bas relief, solarization and reticulation) concludes this well-rounded, readable, though rather expensive volume." Kenneth McLaughlin
+ San Francisco Chronicle p13 Ja 22 '50 550w

"Feininger's book is to this reviewer the most important and useful general work for the photographic student or interested onlooker to appear to date, and stands out in a welter of how-to-take-a-snapshot books that presently clutter the market and range from those by experts who are too specialized to be helpful, to those by people who can neither teach, nor, in the vernacular, photograph their way out of a paper bag." D. E. Scherman
+ Sat R of Lit 33:38 F 4 '50 500w
+ Special Libraries 41:65 F '50 80w

FEIRER, JOHN LOUIS. Industrial arts woodworking. 295p il $2.60 Bennett

371.426884 Woodwork 50-5694

"A textbook for manual arts courses and vocational schools. It is somewhat more inclusive than typical works of its kind. There are about 450 illustrations and most of them are reproductions of expertly made photographs. There are also some working drawings for furniture pieces. Useful incidental information such as charts, showing nail and screw sizes is included." (Library J) Index.

Booklist 47:5 S 1 '50

"The book can be recommended to home craftsmen as well as to students studying in organized courses." R. R. Hawkins
+ Library J 75:699 Ap 15 '50 80w
N Y New Tech Bks 35:31 Mr '50
School & Society 71:125 F 25 '50 20w
Wis Lib Bul 46:14 N '50

FEIS, HERBERT. Road to Pearl Harbor; the coming of the war between the United States and Japan. 356p $5 Princeton univ. press

940.532273 World war, 1939-1945—U.S. World war, 1939-1945—Japan. U.S.—Foreign relations—Japan. Japan—Foreign relations—U.S. 50-9585

"[An] account of how the war between Japan and the United States came about. The author, who was in the State Department during the prewar negotiations with the Japanese, has documented his book with passages from the writings and statements of Stimson, Grew, Morgenthau, and Hull; from state papers of the Roosevelt administration; and from Japanese sources." New Yorker

FEIS, HERBERT—Continued

Atlantic 186:102 N '50 90w
Booklist 47:73 O 15 '50

"The author of this book presents a well documented blow by blow account of the diplomatic contest between Japan and the United States. . . In spite of the admirable features of this book, there remain certain fundamental defects. In the first place, regardless of the author's economic training, he omits an adequate discussion of the economic and geopolitical factors which tended to drive the United States and Japan into inevitable conflict. In the second place, he begins his discussion of the diplomatic contest with the year 1937, whereas the factors of the struggle for power in the Pacific had been determined long before this date. . . In the third place, Dr. Feis almost entirely ignores the Beard thesis that President Roosevelt deliberately and secretly led this country into war by means of the far eastern imbroglio." Kenneth Colegrove
+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 O 1 '50 1200w

"A finely balanced and possibly definitive study of this important problem." J. D. Squires
+ Christian Century 67:1170 O 4 '50 1000w

"It is always pertinent to estimate the degree of objectivity in a work of this kind. If the measurement of objectivity is the amount of fact, direct quotation, and documentary evidence supplied, then The Road to Pearl Harbor is objective and may be considered a work of scholarship. But more than this is needed to make a narrative, and when one looks at the connecting links, the interpretations and characterizations, one finds it anything but objective." R. M. Weaver
Commonweal 53:20 O 13 '50 1500w

"The book throws much new light on hitherto obscure details. . . There is as good an account as probably can ever be given of Matsuoka's weird pilgrimage to Moscow and Berlin in the spring of 1941; there is the fullest analysis we have yet had of the slow development of American economic sanctions and, finally, of the critical decision of July 25, 1941, to 'freeze' Japanese assets and so bring all trade, including the vital trade in oil, to an end. . . There are no scandalous, and I think few, if any, very startling, revelations in these passages, but they set the record straight. And it is a record which, having been subject to so many partisan and biased distortions, needed to be set forth straight, clear and in full." Walter Millis
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 O 29 '50 1450w

"This is such a complete, scholarly and balanced account of the events that led up to the tragedy that it may be regarded as the final word. . . This is primarily a diplomatic history, but behind its sometimes dry recital, buttressed by copious footnotes, it tells a tense and dramatic story of the prolonged and fateful diplomatic chess game that ended at Pearl Harbor." O. D. Tolischus
+ N Y Times p3 S 17 '50 1050w

"Mr. Feis is scrupulous about his facts and careful in his interpretation of them, but he has opinions, and while they do not sound even remotely like those of the Charles A. Beard-Chicago Tribune school, neither do they glow with admiration for American diplomacy. He finds considerable fault with the American leaders of those years, charging them with indecision, double-talk, and a reluctance to take the people into their confidence."
New Yorker 26:120 S 16 '50 140w

"Excellent, scholarly, detailed account of how we went to war against Japan." J. B. Cohen
+ Sat R of Lit 33:13 O 21 '50 600w

FEJTO, FRANCOIS, ed. Opening of an era: 1848; an historical symposium; tr. from the French by H. Shelley; with an introd. by A. J. P. Taylor. 444p $4.50 Macmillan

940.28 Europe—History. Revolutions

"A symposium on the momentous year in which the revolutionary spirit flared up in most of the countries of Europe and was savagely suppressed. The revolutions in Spain, France, Italy, Germany, Hungary, and elsewhere are discussed by historians of those countries who are specialists in the period; other writers examine the repercussions of this social upheaval on the countries that escaped its more violent manifestations, notably Russia and the United States." New Yorker

"These essays vary in merit, style, and originality of interpretation. Bury on Great Britain and Fejtö on Hungary are especially well done. May's chapter on the impact of 1848 on the United States, based on his earlier work on American opinion on the revolutions in central Europe, is especially interesting to American readers. Several of the essays contain too much confusing detail; there is some repetition, and one detects occasional overtones of World War II, further proof, if proof were needed, that each generation rewrites history in terms of its own problems and concerns." Carl Wittke
+ — Am Hist R 55:898 Jl '50 650w

"It was an excellent idea in historical scholarship to have each writer limit himself to the history of his own national revolution. It is obvious, moreover, that each contributor is very conscious of the wider European revolution of which his narrative forms a part. The order is logical: each essay, while complete in itself, leads to the next, and the smaller countries are grouped around the great in the manner of modern satellites." L. L. Snyder
+ Ann Am Acad 269:183 My '50 650w

"The book is unusually well integrated for this kind of thing, and there is even a tendency among the authors to come to general conclusions."
+ New Yorker 26:122 Mr 18 '50 160w

"The impression that persists after reading this competent revaluation of disparate events is that these events do not cohere in any helpful pattern. It is difficult to show that the year 1848 marked either the opening or the closing of an era regardless of the title." G. B.
Sat R of Lit 33:21 Jl 15 '50 270w

FELLER, WILLIAM. Introduction to probability theory and its applications. v1 419p $6 Wiley

519 Probabilities (50-8529)

"The heart of work is a rigorous mathematical treatment of probability theory, but numerous examples which illustrate applications have been inserted in the text. This practical material is labelled with asterisks for the benefit of readers who desire to skip it. More than 300 problems for the student to solve are included. Relatively simple concepts are dealt with in most of the chapters, but toward the end of the book there are chapters on Markov chains and stochastic processes. The author is Professor of Mathematics at Cornell University." (Library J) Index.

"An important addition to the current literature of probability." R. R. Hawkins
+ Library J 75:1301 Ag '50 90w

"The work is designed for use as a textbook in advanced college classes, but it is potentially of interest to persons out of college, who are beginning to work in fields where a thorough knowledge of probability theory is essential."
N Y New Tech Bks 35:58 Jl '50

FELLNER, WILLIAM JOHN. Competition among the few; oligopoly and similar market structures. 328p $5 Knopf

338.82 Competition. Monopolies. Trusts, Industrial 49-11360

"Many prices and wage rates are determined under conditions neither of simple (or pure) competition nor of monopoly, but of fewness: a few decision-making units shape their policies in view of how they mutually react to each other's moves. By examining the problems which arise under such conditions the author attempts to lay a basis by which a value theory may be extended into this field. For the advanced worker." (Library J) Index.

"Professor Fellner has written a thoughtful and stimulating book on the theory of oligopoly and bilateral monopoly. He traces the development of the modern theory, and he seeks to emend, systematize, and elaborate this theory. If, as I believe, Fellner's own theory is unacceptable in its present form, he has demonstrated the fatal weakness of much modern theorizing on oligopoly and contributed to a clearer understanding of our present task." G. J. Stigler
+ — Am Econ R 40:699 S '50 1500w

Reviewed by W. F. Stolper
Ann Am Acad 268:228 Mr '50 800w

Reviewed by A. J. Nichol
J Pol Econ 58:360 Ag '50 390w

Reviewed by J. E. Cross
Library J 74:1755 N 15 '49 70w

"Not intended for the layman, the book makes an analysis of the characteristics of fewness which is a significant contribution to value theory."
U S Quarterly Bkl 6:55 Mr '50 250w

FELLOWS, ALICE. Laurel. 309p $3 Harcourt
50-6385

